Our bargains are made by marking down our own stock to a low price, not by purchasing inferior goods to make an attractive price.

It is a mistake to infer that we carry only high-priced fabrics. We have medium grades as well, and our prices are low because our expenses are proportioned over a volume of business exceeded by few in our specialty in the United States, and equaled by none in New England.

WOMEN'S CLUB

Elects Officers and Adopts By-Laws.

Offer of Dr. Brackett Accepted

The Object Philanthropic, Educational, and Social.

Another large and enthusiastic meeting of women interested in a woman's club for Quincy was held in the chapel of First church on Tuesday afternoon. Over two hundred were present. Miss Elizabeth Johnson presided and called for the report of the committee appointed to confer with Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett on the advisability of using his homestead on Goffe street as a club house.

Mrs. John W. Sanborn, chairman of the committee, said they met Dr. Brackett and went over the house thoroughly, and found it in good repair. She read a letter from Dr. Brackett in which he says:

"If my house is taken for the purpose of a home for a large and representative women's club and a centre for educational and philanthropic effort, I shall take pleasure in putting into it a large furnace, in addition to the one now there, and in painting the house outside. Mr. Bates assured me that a large furnace, placed under the parlor, will heat that room, the front hall and the two rooms over the parlor, besides taking the chill off the upper hall. The present small furnace, which heats the southern part of the house and is connected with one register in the parlor will do alone for spring and autumn."

The committee's report was accepted and it was voted unanimously to accept Dr. Brackett's generous offer.

Next in order was the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws. Mrs. Wilson Marsh, the chairman, read the constitution as a whole, and then section by section, each being acted upon separately. The first relating to name brought out considerable discussion, and it was decided that no better name could be found than "Quincy," a name that means much, not only to inhabitants, but to the whole country. A question of Woman's or Women's club arose, and on a close vote it was decided that the club should be called the "Quincy Women's Club."

Section two, the object of the club was unanimously voted as follows: "Its object is to become an organized center for united thought and action in social, literary and humanitarian work."

The club is limited to three hundred and the annual dues are three dollars. Elections will be biennial, which is something new in club work. There will be meetings on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month from October to June with meeting for election of officers in May. No officer can hold the same office for more than two consecutive years. The by-laws as drafted by the committee were accepted with slight changes.

Besides the officers of the club there will be various committees on house, art and literature, social, philanthropy, educational, civic improvements, etc., which will interest all sections of the city. The chairman of these committees to be members of the executive board.

Mrs. W. E. Alden, chairman of the nomination committee, presented a list of names for the officers and the following were elected:

President—Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus.
First Vice-President—Mrs. Chandler W. Smith.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. John W. Sanborn.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Wilson Marsh.
Treasurer—Miss Annie L. Prescott.
Auditor—Mrs. Zenas Arnold.

Papers were passed for the signatures of those who desired to become charter members and over one hundred and seventy-five signed, which, added to those who signed at the first meeting brings the number well up to two hundred and fifty, so the club starts out near its limit of three hundred.

There was much enthusiasm and unity throughout the meeting, and it was most pleasing to see the representative women of all sections of the city entering heartily into the club idea. It was the wish of all that the club work heartily for its object, unity in social, literary and humanitarian work, with special emphasis on the word unity. With such sentiments the club is bound to prosper and its influence for the uplifting of our city will become an important factor in years to come.

Success to the Quincy Women's club.

NOT THIS TIME.

The "Pork Barrel" Bill to be Turned Down.

Quincy will not be remembered by the present Congress with an appropriation for a government building, as will be seen by the following Washington dispatch to the Herald:

Speaker Cannon has won a complete victory in his fight on the public building bill. The committee admitted Tuesday that there was no chance for the bill, and gave up the contest. When the committee members circulated a petition and obtained the signatures of nearly 90 per cent. of the House in favor of bringing in a rule to allow the bill, the speaker saw he had a strong rebellion to put down.

His final move was to call the attention of some signers of the petition not directly interested in the bill to the manner in which "the pork" was distributed. It was found that each member of the committee had taken splendid care of himself and his personal friends, and that some structures were going to little villages all over the country. The bulk of the House members immediately lost interest in the measure.

Beware of Her.

It is reported that a woman is working servant girls about the city out of their good money. The woman, who is said to be good looking and wearing a blue skirt and brown waist has been calling at houses in Wollaston and offering to tell fortunes for twenty-five cents. If they refuse the woman then says she will tell their fortunes for nothing. After this has been done she demands twenty-five cents, and if not paid then the woman makes a fuss, and in the end to save further trouble, usually gets her money.

A SUSPENSION OF WORK.

The Proposition at Conference Was Rejected

At the Meeting of the Granite Cutters' Union.

It was with a general feeling of regret that the citizens of Quincy awoke this morning to learn that the Granite Cutters' Union had refused to accept the proposition of the Manufacturers and that there was a suspension of work.

The general feeling this morning, however, is that the strike will not be of long duration.

The proposition submitted to the Cutters' Union at the conference Monday night, was that the minimum wage be $3 per day, but that men unable to earn this amount should be permitted to work for less.

This proposition was very favorably received by the Cutters' Committee on Monday but they did not have full power to settle, and were obliged to submit it to the Union. This they did at a meeting of the Cutters' Union held Tuesday evening at St. Mary's hall.

The meeting was largely attended and was addressed by Secretary Duncan, who is reported to have said that he did not wish to interfere with the local affairs but that he desired the union to decide the question itself.

A vote on the question was taken by a show of hands and the proposition was voted down.

The committee then came to Quincy and met the Manufacturers' Committee, in conference, as agreed upon, and reported the result of the West Quincy meeting. The conference was of short duration.

This morning the men went out as the existing bill of prices had expired.

Another meeting of the Cutters Union will be held this afternoon to hear the report of the committee on last night's conference.

The number of Union men affected is 865, of which 785 are granite cutters.

CUTTERS' SIDE.

A Type Written Statement Issued by Them This Afternoon.

Secretary Duncan authorizes the following statement of the situation:

"Irrespective of the manifested desire of the Quincy branches of the Granite Cutters' National Union, for a pacific adjustment of the wage rate with their employers preparatory to March first, the date of change, the granite cutters of Quincy found on February 28 that their employers had again resorted to their old-time tactics of leaving the question of adjustment of the wage rate to settlement after a suspension of work has been made. The granite cutters were extremely desirous not only on their own account and because of the effect a suspension would have locally, but because of the harm that would come to Quincy trade in the granite line through it being known so near to Decoration Day, which is an objective date in the monumental business, that granite work had suspended.

"After waiting for weeks without the manufacturers giving them an opportunity through their committee to meet and finally discuss the points at issue, they called for a meeting of the Manufacturers' committee to meet their committee on February 27, at which time the best offer the Quincy manufacturers made was one which, while theoretically appearing beautiful sentiment, in reality meant that the $3 minimum rate for day work, asked for by the Granite Cutters' committee, would be considered by them practically a maximum rate and that men they considered unworthy of that rate should have their wages graded downwards accordingly.

On the other hand, the Granite Cutters' committee called for a $3.00 minimum for day men and which rate or a minimum much higher, is already recognized in 99 per cent. of the granite cutting branches of the trade, and that a man whom the employers did not care to hire by the day should be employed by piece work and paid according to what he could make. The $3 rate being an anchorage for the ordinary kind of day-work granite cutter, and which rate is based upon what an ordinarily fair workmen can earn on a piece rate mutually recognized between employer and employe.

"The granite cutters in Quincy, like their fellow craftsmen elsewhere, believe they are entitled to as fair compensation for their labor in Quincy as elsewhere. They are competent workmen and have no difficulty in commanding the best wages paid elsewhere when employed outside of Quincy, and are very often selected for the best work to be done, which perhaps is the best tribute to their mechanical ability which can be shown them.

"They are not so illogical as to take the position that an old, or a maimed man whom the employer will neither hire by the day nor give them piece work, shall be debarred from following the trade, so have in their proposition the usual "Old man's clause," whereby an aged or maimed member may have a special rate of wages commensurate with his earning power, but beyond this for day work employment, the $3 minimum rate is called for, not only in accord with the minimum rate paid elsewhere, but in strict accordance with a clause in the constitution of The Granite Cutters' National Union, that $3 per day shall be considered the minimum wage rate to any ordinary day workman in any part of the United States.

"In short, the manufacturers in Quincy, have been offered the lowest rate now or to be recognized hereafter in the granite cutting trade in any part of the United States, but evidently place their city and their product at a lower value than cut granite elsewhere, by a refusal to pay a rate co-equal to the lowest rate paid elsewhere to the men who cut granite for them. Trade is now and will be exceptionally brisk in the granite cutting line, so the cutters on strike will have no difficulty in getting employment elsewhere at least at the rate they are looking for in Quincy, and in many instances from 25 cents to 75 cents per day more than the rate asked for and which the manufacturers have caused a suspension in connection with, rather than to recognize and pay.

"Contentions elsewhere in the trade are unknown. The granite cutters on strike in Quincy will be financially supported from their national organization, but all concerned expect that better judgment will prevail and that the employers of granite cutters in Quincy will fall in line with the spirit of the times and agree to an equitable settlement along the lines of the cutters' proposition."

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Let us hope that the Fore River Co. will get the contract for one or both of those two new battleships to be built.

The women of Quincy are showing the men that it is possible to unite all parts of the city in a common cause. Success to the Quincy Women's Club which has started so auspiciously. If the club accomplishes nothing more than to harmonize Quincy and create a unity of action, it will do more for the city than any organization in the past. But the Women's Club promises to do much more and we believe it will, not on social lines alone but in a sphere of usefulness.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Why don't you answer your friend's letter at once? It will have double value if written promptly and will take no more time now than by and by.

Why don't you make the promised visit to that invalid? She is looking for you day after day, and "hope deferred maketh the heart sick."

Why don't you send away that little gift you've been planning to send? Mere kind intentions never accomplish any good.

Why don't you speak out the encouraging words that you have in your thoughts? Unless you express them you are of no use to others.

Why don't you try to share the burden of that sorrowful one who works beside you? Is it because you are growing selfish? Why don't you take more pains to be self-sacrificing and loving in the everyday home life? Time is rapidly passing. Your dear ones will not be with you always.

Why don't you create around you an atmosphere of happiness and helpfulness so that all who come in touch with you may be made better?—Chicago News.

☞ Just as much as people can be tempted to live more in the open, will the average of health improve. Cold does not cause "colds." Nansen and his men at the North Pole did not suffer from respiratory affections, but several of them were down with grippy "colds" within a short time after their return. Dampness is not an active factor in the production of disease, when there is adequate protection of the body by clothes, and when the food is abundant and nutritous, and there is no abuse of stimulants. Old traditions should not be allowed to have weight in the face of modern carefully collated observations. Windows should always be open in sleeping rooms, no matter how cold or damp the weather, and, if care be taken to have dry, abundant bed clothing and a warm room to dress in, there not only need be no fear of evil consequences but the health will always be better, and the tendency, particularly to respiratory diseases, the most frequently fatal affections of this stage of civilization, will surely be obviated.—The Independent.

Kuropatkin May Abandon Positions on the Hun

IS ON THE AGGRESSIVE

Successful Counter Advance of Japanese Leaves Them In Position to Fight Their Way Northward Toward Mukden

London, March 1.—Fighting on a large scale is in progress between the Russian and Japanese armies in Manchuria. General Kuropatkin, after meeting the initiative of the Japanese in the eastern part of the Shakhe valley, assumed the aggressive in the western portion yesterday, and, under cover of a heavy artillery fire from Putiloff hill and Novgorod hill, succeeded in driving the Japanese from a position in the outskirts of Sandiapu. Simultaneously the Russians attacked and captured a railroad bridge on the Japanese centre.

Much more serious are the Japanese operations against the Russian left wing, which threaten, unless quickly checked, to oblige Kuropatkin to abandon the positions on the Hun river which he has occupied and fortified during the winter.

There is no confirmation of the report that the Russian commander-in-chief has notified the czar that retreat northward has become imperative.

It is very difficult, in the absence of reliable maps and the mutilation of dispatches by the censor, accurately to follow the progress of operations at the front in Manchuria. But it would seem that Kuropatkin's effort to seize the crossings of the Taitse, 50 or 60 miles southeast of Mukden, had failed, and that the Japanese, countering hard, had secured considerable advantage on the extreme left of the Russian line.

While this action was a long distance from the fortified positions on the Shakhe, it yet bears directly on them, for, if the Japanese continue their advance in sufficient force and sieze strongly the Mukden-Fushun-Kirin road, 40 miles north of the present scene of operations, the line of the Shakhe, and Mukden itself, might have to be evacuated. This would be especially true if, with this movement on the east, it should turn out that the Japanese in force have reached Fukumen, 35 miles northwest of Mukden.

But it does not seem likely that the Japanese have violated Mongolian territory, as alleged. Japanese troops at Fakumen would mean that China was openly violating her pledge of neutrality.

It is stated in the dispatches that Oyama's forces have crossed the Shakhe, at Vanuputzi, which is towards Bentsiaputze, and where the river runs northwest. The passage ought to have been strongly disputed by the Russians.

Tokio says that in the fighting on the east the Russians had 17,000 troops involved, and their losses were 2000 men, 205 being killed, while several machine guns were captured.

Fighting All Along the Line

Mukden, March 1.—Fighting is in progress along the whole line, the Japanese attacking everywhere. All attacks yesterday were beaten back and the Russians made counter attacks at many places. The Russians have seized the head of the bridge across the Shakhe river in the centre of the Japanese lines.

The Japanese are using heavy siege artillery in the bombardment of Putiloff hill and Novgorod hill, and this is believed to be preliminary to an attempt to storm them. The roar of artillery firing is echoing unceasingly from the mountains to the eastward to the low flats of the Hun river valley, the scene of General Gripenberg's repulse. The fight appears to be developing in intensity along the whole line.

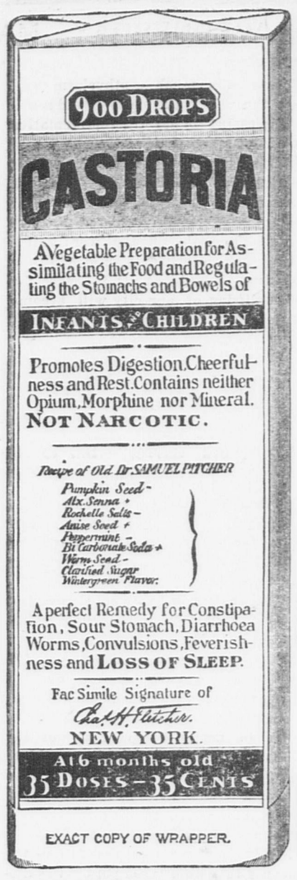

Ten determined attacks opposite Yansintung and west of Vanupudzi were all repulsed with heavy loss.

As Viewed at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The effect of yesterday's developments on General Kuropatkin's reported intention to withdraw from the Shakhe is problematical. Retirement in the face of an enemy, which is extremely hazardous under any circumstances, is doubly dangerous when the armies are grappling in a general engagement, but if General Kuroki succeeds in rolling up the Russian left much further the perilous expedient may become necessary. The counter strokes on the right and centre may possibly be intended to cover the withdrawing of trains and stores. If, however, Kuropatkin is determined to stand and fight out the battle on the line which he has held during the winter, and if he should be able to administer a vigorous check to Kuroki, he has secured a good position for his second move in the game.

Poland In Throes of Strikes

Warsaw, March 1.—The strike situation in Poland is far from encouraging. The coal supply in Warsaw is diminishing and prices are rapidly advancing, owing to the situation at Sosnovice, where few mines are being operated. Negotiations between the employers and strikers are continuing but there appears to be little hope of a successful outcome. The Vistula railway strike still continues and is costing the company $37,500 daily. The fact that the line has been placed under martial law appears to have had no effect.

RECESS OF SENATE

Defined by Judiciary Committee of That Body

IT SHOULD BE TANGIBLE

Constructive Idea Not Thought of by Framers of the Constitution--Effect of Interpretation on Recess Nominations

Washington, March 1.—The senate committee on the judiciary, by adopting the views of Senator Spooner, concerning recess nominations and what constitutes a recess of the senate, has declared that there can be no constructive recess.

The decision, if it were given any legal standing by action of the senate, would affect the nominations of General Leonard Wood, W. D. Crum, collector of the port of Charleston, and 166 other nominations sent to the senate in the infinitesimal period between the adjournment of the special session convened Nov. 9, 1903, and the convening of the regular session, Dec. 7, the two sessions having merged. All the nominations were sent to the senate later and confirmed, but the officers drew salaries for the time the senate committee now decides they were not serving under authority of law.

This decision, as the matter now stands, would affect accounts only, and it is not intended that action shall be taken. It is expected rather that the opinion of the committee shall only be used to govern in the future. The officers of the government affected were appointed during the summer of 1903 and their nominations sent to the special session convened in November. They were not confirmed at that session, and they were named as recess appointments in the imaginary time between the merging of the sessions. Under the law, as construed by the judiciary committee, the nominations had failed and a recess appointment could not be made. Referring to the word "recess," the committee's report says:

"It was evidently intended by the framers of the constitution that it should mean something real, not something imaginary; something actual, not something fictitious. They used the word as the mass of mankind then understood it and now understand it. It means, in our judgment, in this connection, the period of time when the senate is not sitting in regular or extraordinary session as a branch of the congress, or in extraordinary session for the discharge of executive functions; when its members owe no duty of attendance; when its chamber is empty; when because of its absence it cannot receive communications from the president or participate as a body in making appointments.

"It would seem quite as natural that there should be a 'constructive session' of congress or of the senate as a 'constructive recess.' We think there cannot be any 'constructive end' of a session or a 'constructive beginning' of a session of congress or of the state.

"There was not a moment when the president could not, had he chosen, have sent nominations to the senate. It was in session to receive any nominations or message he might communicate. There was no 'recess' within the letter or spirit of the constitution, and therefore, there was no right to issue commissions and induct the officers commissioned into office.

"The theory of 'constructive recess' constitutes a heavy draft upon the imagination. Or it involves a constructive ending of one session, a constructive beginning of another and a constructive recess between the two."

Mystery Partially Solved

Paterson, N. J., March 1.—The body of a woman found dead beside a railroad embankment here has been identified as that of Mrs. Lillian McCoy of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. She left her husband a year ago after a quarrel. As to her movements since then nothing definite is known here as yet. Prosecutor Emery will prefer charges of manslaughter against three men under arrest.

Another Break In Wheat

Chicago, March 1.—During a fresh break in prices wheat for May delivery sold yesterday at 1.13½, a drop of 2 5-8 @3-4 from Monday night's closing price. July fell a trifle over 2 cents. Following Monday's sensational slump the break yesterday gave further indications of the abandonment of the May deal by eastern speculators.

Regarding Egg Importations

Washington, March 1.—Secretary Wilson has issued a notice to importers announcing that further importations of egg products in a dry state, preserved with boric acid or with other preservatives, with the exception of salt, sugar, vinegar or wood smoke, will be regarded as a violation of the provisions of the existing law.

Boy Wanted to Marry

New York, March 1.—Enraged by the refusal of Etta Schultz, aged 17, to marry him, Frank Malla, an Italian, aged 16, shot her twice through the back in Brooklyn last night. Doctors say the girl will probably die. Malla made no attempt to escape and was arrested.

Depredations by Students

CITY BREVITIES.

March.

Lent begins next Wednesday.

Spring begins Tuesday, March 21.

There was just a little fall of snow last night.

Two unusually cold months of 1905 have passed.

The days will get the best of the nights March 18, two weeks from Saturday.

March came in like a lamb. Will it, as the old saying is, go out like a lamb?

The concluding games in the Old Colony league will be bowled tomorrow evening.

There are now direct mails between Quincy and Braintree, giving quick means of communication.

Many sidewalks continue to be covered with rough ice, which soon ruins those things they call rubbers which sell for eighty cents per pair.

Did Not Try to Poison

North Platte, Neb., March 1.—Mrs. Louisa Cody yesterday took the witness stand in defense of the suit brought by W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) for divorce. Mrs. Cody emphatically denied that she had ever attempted to poison her husband, or that she had administered anything for the purpose of getting control over him.

Checking Discrimination

Jefferson City, Mo., March 1.—The house passed the bill regulating stockyard charges by railroads and also the switching charges for cars already in the yards. The legislation is the result of an investigation by a joint committee into alleged discrimination by the railroads in favor of the so-called beef trust.

Statehood Strikes a Snag

Washington, March 1.—The conferees on the statehood bill were in session three hours but were unable to agree, nor is any hope held out by the conferees that there will be an ultimate agreement. The house conferees decline to consider the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory alone.

Chadwick Indictments Stand

Cleveland, March 1.—Judge Tayler of the United States district court overruled the motion of J. P. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, that the two indictments returned against her by the federal grand jury on Feb. 21 be quashed.

Count Got the Mitten

Pittsburg, March 1.—Miss Elizabeth Howe, one of Pittsburg's wealthiest young women, who, it is said, was lately engaged to marry Count Charles de Cinni of Rome, was quietly married to Franklin P. Sprout here last evening.

MANUAL TRAINING.

The Philergians met at Braintree last week, the president, Mrs. O. W. Allen in the chair. A program of unusual interest was arranged for the afternoon by Mrs. Ella Sheppard Gallagher, chairman of its committee on art, assisted by Mrs. Susan J. Avery, Mrs. Mrs. Elizabeth Bridgham, Mrs. Agnes R. Gould. There was an exhibit of work done in the sloyd department of the Jonas Perkins school, East Braintree, also from the manual training class at South Weymouth, in charge of the teacher of sloyd, Mrs. Signe Wilbur. Miss Grace Hackett, teacher of drawing in schools of Weymouth and Braintree, spoke of work done by her pupils, illustrated by the examples exhibited. Mr. Harris W. Moore told of the work done in the summer school at Watertown. Mr. Walter Sargent, state supervisor of drawing, made an address on "The Manual Arts in the Public Schools," illustrated with blackboard drawings.

The subject of manual training was well treated by the speakers of the afternoon and earnestly listened to by the large audience that filled Pythian hall to overflowing. Though manual training may be thought of as a comparatively new phase of educational activity, yet, like all things else in life, it is a development from the past. As we are debtors to the Hebrews for so many of the best influences in our civilization, so for the trade element in manual training we go back to this ancient people. The Hebrew father was admonished by the Talmud, "As it is your duty to teach your son the law, teach him a trade," and again it declares, "He who does not have his son taught a trade, prepares him to be a robber." In this declaration, the moral influence of a handicraft is clearly recognized. After the dark ages at the beginning of the sixteenth century, Rabelais Montaigne advocated in France a trade idea, similar to that of the Jews.

After another hundred years, a distinguished educator recognized the educational value of the child's instinct to destroy and to construct. One of his mottoes, so to speak, was "Learning by doing." He wanted the hand as well as the mind trained at school. Some years before the American Revolution another French philosopher, Rousseau, still further emphasized this education value, when he wrote, "If instead of making a child stick to his books, I employ him in a workshop, his hands work to the advantage of his intellect, he becomes a philosopher, while he thinks he is becoming simply an artisan." Froebel, the father of the kindergarten, recognized self activity to be the brain of all education. Only he who makes a thing knows it thoroughly. The Creator alone is all wise.

At the Centennial exposition the late Dr. Runhle of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, saw in the exhibit of the Russian Railroad schools the value of tool work for American youth and introduced it into his courses. Adoption of this work has had great influence in our country. Indeed, the two great moulding influences upon public school manual training, have been, the kindergarten below and the technical school above. In this vicinity sloyd also has had a potent influence, and this entered the grammar grades directly through the establishment in Boston in 1888 of the Sloyd Training school by Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw.

The remarkable growth of manual raining schools and courses in this country the last 15 years bears witness to the value of the work. Since 1895 Massachusetts has required it in the high schools of cities of 20,000 population and upwards. During the experience of a number of years, I have occasionally met a misconception of the purpose of manual training, which was voiced to me not long ago by a discouraged boy, in his question, "What's the use of my taking manual training? I'm not going to be a carpenter! In answer, I tried to show him that because one studies poetry one is not necessarily going to be a poet, or if music, a musician; or if history, a historian.

We use wood-working tools, chiefly because they are the most available and universal. Through them there are more points of contact with the world about us, than through any other set of tools. Some of the models, windmill, water-wheel, bow and arrows, which he makes, give the pupil a larger insight into some of the forces of nature, which man has found useful in his development into civilization. One of life's blessings which after years can never take away, and one for which we are profoundly thankful, is the memory of a happy childhood. Should we not try to make the school life of a child, a happy life? In general, boys are glad indeed for the privilege of using tools. Manual training, especially if continued through a number of years and a variety of courses and materials, will enable the boy to discover his aptitudes and capabilities. It enables him to find a congenial occupation. It developes his resourcefulness and self reliance.

The problems with which the pupil deals in manual training are real tangible ones, most like those he will have to do with in after life. The arithmetic and geometry for instance involved in his work, are not hypothetical, by any means. Some two years ago President Eliot said: "I believe there is more in manual training work than in nine-tenths of the arithmetic given in the schools," and again: "I believe there is as much mental training in manual work as in any book whatever." The pupil is trained in habits of carefulness, patience, neatness, accuracy and methodical procedure.

A water wheel or wind mill not built in a minute. Each part of it has to wrought separately, and all with reference to the whole. How often I urge the worker to take pains with the preliminary steps, telling him that if he gets each step right as he proceeds, if he planes smoothly, measures accurately, saws and chisels to the live, the whole will come out right in the end. Perhaps he will then learn that genius is the capacity for infinite pains. A few years ago, Prof. James of Harvard University made this statement in his book, "Talks to Teachers." "The most colossal improvement which recent years have seen in secondary education, lies in the introduction of manual training schools, not because they give us a people more handy and practical for domestic life and better skilled in trades, but because they will give us citizens with an entirely different intellectual fiber.

Laboratory work and shop work engender a habit of observation, a knowledge of the difference between accuracy and vagueness, and an insight into nature's complexity, and into the inadequacy of all abstract verbal accounts of real phenomena, which, once wrought into its mind, remain there as a life long possession.

They confer precision, because, if you are doing a thing, you do it definitely right, or definitely wrong. They give honesty, for when you express yourself by making things, and not by using words, it becomes impossible to dissimulate your vagueness or ignorance by ambiguity. They beget a habit of self reliance. They keep the interest and attention always cheerfully engaged and reduces its teacher's diciplinary functions to a minimum.

A healthy child is a reservoir of energy; no the figure is too placid,—he is rather a mountain stream running, tumbling, bubbling over with perpetual energy. Our school rooms still have too much repression of this energy in them. We give the child a desk and seat, and tell him to sit still in it, when all the pent up energy of nature tells him to run and jump. Manual training offers one channel in which this energy can be guided to useful ends. Race may be learned through manual training. The child who is given a box of sand and is told by his teacher of Holland, its people, geography, customs will soon part the sand for a canal, make windmills and carry out in an object lesson, all the teacher has imparted to him, something never to be forgotten. So with other countries and peoples. This teaches the child not only to use his hands in construction, but calls on his invention, patience and ingenuity, impressing the facts on his mind in a practical way.

Sloyd trains through hand and eye. Doing for exact results and good workmanship. There is a fine distinction between work for sake of good workmanship, for marks, for exhibition, etc. and good workmanship for sake of effectiveness and the thing made: for example, a joint for sake of a perfect joint or problem the success of which depends on good joints.

Second consideration is need of incentive in actual desire for things made—as a sled, etc., and demoralizing influence of doing for its waste basket or scrap heap. Next stage in manual training is in making practical things. Interest in occupation of elders and later, and deeper still, its present. Not merely indulging interests, not merely to make a thing as well as a machine can, but with a more vital motive.

Forty or fifty years ago, children had part in knowledge and effect of vocation of their parents. A boy knew all about the planting of the seed, the growth of grain-harvesting and so on, to the full effect in that branch of business. He knew all about wool and its uses. The children had an abundance of work for genuine needs. Planning things to meet needs as shelves, brackets, plant boxes, frames for the schoolroom, furniture, brass and leather work, cane seating for the home. Outside interests, toys, sleds, kites, skees.

Boys who made skees, thoroughly instructed themselves of the manner of making the history and customs of Norway, where they are used, the record of high jumps and long journeys thus gaining through the trend of manual training an ability to apply their knowledge to the making of skees and the geography, history of the country. The end to be gained is to plan and execute problems to meet genuine needs rather than a series of exercises to fit all emergencies. Mr. Sargent gave an example of practical work on blackboard in key tag problem, water cup design.

Occupation may be correlated rationally and naturally with study of geography, history and other branches; occupation involving ingenuity, invention and continuity; occupation to choose wisely the vocation and prepare for it. Towards this end all systems of manual training work. The town which brings manual training brings awakening, better citizenship. No corner loafers, no brawling, no waste of energy and material in lawlessness and shiftlessness. The mind will be uplifted, the hands know how to work and idleness will be a thing of the past.

During the afternoon Mrs. Susan J. Avery, contralto; Miss Clapp, accompanist and Mr. Leavitt, violinist, gave a few musical selections. There was a large attendance of club members and guests, and great interest shown in the subject of Manuel Training.

TEN-LOOM SYSTEM

It Works Satisfactorily In Some Fall River Mills

Fall River, Mass., March 1.—The Fall River Manufacturers' association, composed of the representatives of 26 of the cotton mills in this city, held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon and, after re-electing President Borden and Secretary Hathaway, and electing W. F. Shove a member of the executive board, discussed the general situation, but took no action.

The difficulty about the 10-loom system is no nearer a settlement than it was when the weavers' delegation met the manufacturers. In some mills in the city the system is working satisfactorily. The weavers are earning from $8.30 to $9.70 a week in some mills. Eight-loom weavers in these mills are earning more than $7 a week but in other mills the average is much below these figures.

Manufacturers are at a loss how to act under these conditions, as they have no power to tell managers how they shall run their mills.

Breaking of Great Ice Gorge

Circinnati, March 1.—After holding $2,000,000 worth of vessels and other river property in peril for more than two months, one of the worst gorges ever known in the Ohio river at this point finally broke up and passed off down the river last evening, causing comparatively small damage at the last, although more than $300,000 loss had been suffered by the sliding and crushing of the immense ice pack. Three steamers grounded and were left in a dangerous position as the water went down. Nearly 200 barges also grounded.

Rupee Is Worth 32 Cents

Washington, March 1.—The supreme court has reversed the judgment of the circuit court of appeals in what is known as the "great rupee case" and held that the value of the rupee in computing the duties on merchandise imported from India is 32 cents, as fractional parts of the pound sterling, and not 20 cents, as the value of the silver contained therein. Nearly $3,000,000 alleged excess of duties already paid by the importers was concerned in the case decided and others dependent upon it.

Many Buildings In Ashes

East Liverpool, O., March 1.—The third destructive blaze here this winter broke out last night and six fine buildings and many smaller ones are in ashes, while others are scorched and damaged by water, causing a total loss of more than $250,000. The blaze started in a shoe store. Numerous business offices were burned out. The origin of the fire is not known.

Soldiers' Skeletons Unearthed

Chattanooga, March 1.—In removing a hill in the eastern part of the city workmen during the past two days have unearthed 20 skeletons, supposed to be the remains of federal soldiers. The remains are probably those of soldiers who were hastily buried in trenches, being forgotten during the severe battles and campaigns in this vicinity.

Herrick Slated For Empire State Democratic Leader

HE HAS SOME OPPOSITION

Chief Murphy of Tammany Seeks Control, Which If Secured, Would Make His Organization a National Factor

Albany, March 1.—From a source of authority that is Democratic bedrock in this state it is learned that an agreement has been reached among that faction of the Democracy that was in command of the party machinery in the commonwealth during the last campaign, to make D. Cady Herrick state leader to succeed David B. Hill.

There had been much talking to this effect almost since the last election and Herrick's name was proposed for the position more frequently than that of any other man; nevertheless, it is only within the last few days that the determination to elect him chairman of the state committee was formally reached by the men in whose hands, it may be said, Hill left the well-being of his party in the state.

As to the opposition, it is freely admitted that if Charles F. Murphy sees his way clear to claim the state leadership as his own, at any stage, late or early in this political game, he will seize the opportunity. Therefore the most absorbing feature of the present situation is the fight on for the control of the Brooklyn organization, between Murphy and Patrick H. McCarren. Wresting at last the leadership of Kings county away from McCarren as the result of this fight, the Tammany chieftain would become at once not only the foremost figure in Democratic politics in the Empire state, but the organization of which he is the head would immediately become a factor in the national situation that could not well be denied.

One of the most prominent members of the younger element in the party, who was a nominee for high office upon his state ticket last fall, in speaking of the situation, says:

"I do not believe all the talk now going the rounds about the sudden recrudescence of Bryanism. If another Democratic national convention were to be held tomorrow Bryan would not be the nominee. There is an undercurrent of Democracy too determined against his radicalism and of too powerful influence to permit of his nomination.

"Neither would the Parkerism of the last campaign be recognized. Parker does not represent enough aggression, his policy was too timid. He stood for no principle at all except the promise to take over Republican principles and apply them better than they were being applied by the progeny of their originators. Democracy wants to find a man who represents, militantly, the mean between Parkerism and Bryanism, and, almost more than that, it wants to get rid of the forces that have always been ill-starred."

Beef Trust Jurors Summoned

Chicago, March 1.—The 23 men who are to appear March 20 to be impaneled as a grand jury to hear testimony from more than 200 witnesses in connection with the "meat trust" investigation have all been served with summonses. The identity of the jurors will not be made public until the venire has been empaneled and the members sworn.

Holding Up Freight Traffic

Rome, March 1.—Railway obstructionism by employes has somewhat diminished as regards passenger trains, but has been augmented in freight traffic. Prices of all foodstuffs have increased, owing to scarcity. The government has received many protests and is urged to use its powers to reestablish the normal working of the railways.

Claim Dated Back to 1812

Albany, March 1.—The state has recovered $120,000 from the United States government, which has been allowed in the omnibus claims bill, which has just passed congress. This sum was allowed on a claim for $20,773, with interest, moneys which the state loaned to the government during the war of 1812.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Representatives of various state camps which have been organized in Vermont by veterans of the recent war with Spain met at Burlington and formed the United Spanish War Veterans, department of Vermont.

A collection of models, charts, maps and books, forming part of the German exhibit at the recent St. Louis exposition, has been formally presented to Harvard university.

A scheme for an international monument to Shakespeare, to be erected in London, the London county council having agreed to provide a suitable site, has been formally launched.

The Boston school committee, by a vote of 13 to 7, decided not to protest as a body against bills now pending in the legislature providing for the abolishment of the committee.

President Roosevelt has signed the joint resolution providing for the return of battle flags captured during the Civil war.

"CORBETT'S" MASTER

Battling Nelson Amply Proves It For the Second Time

San Francisco, March 1.—Battling Nelson of Chicago made Young Corbett of Denver appear the poorest type at the fighting game last night when he practically knocked him out in the middle of the ninth round. In order to save their man a complete knockout the seconds threw up the sponge. In the early part of the fight on several occasions Corbett straightened Nelson up with rights and lefts on the jaw, but when it came to following up his advantage his swings were wild. He seemed to be over anxious, while Nelson at all times was cool and confident.

In the seventh round, when it appeared as if Corbett was practically gone, he showed a flash of his old-time speed and landed several severe punches on Nelson's ribs and jaw. It was only a spurt, however, and Young Corbett soon lapsed into his semi-groggy condition, which lasted until the end of the fight.

Nelson demonstrated that he is Corbett's superior in speed, accuracy and aim, ability to take punishment, and stiff punches. The fight was heavily played by the betting element.

Probing Naturalization Frauds

New York, March 1.—The federal grand jury has made a presentment relative to the numerous cases of fraudulent naturalization in this district and recommending that congress so amend the federal statutes as to prevent the perpetration of such frauds in the future. The jury also requested that copies of the presentment be forwarded to the President of the United States, the department of justice and the attorney general.

Fames In Steamer's Cargo

San Francisco, March 1.—Fire broke out in the cargo of the steamer Oregon when the ship was on her voyage from San Francisco to Portland, Or. There were 56 passengers on board the Oregon besides the crew, but the passengers were safely transferred to the steamer Del Norte and taken to Crescent City. The Oregon has started for Humboldt bay, where her captain expects to beach her.

False Teeth In His Throat

Cincinnati, March 1.—C. H. Niehaus, a New York sculptor, was given an X-ray examination here in order to locate his false teeth, which were dislodged by a hearty laugh and slipped part way down his throat. They interfere somewhat with the patient's breathing, but the physicians say that no operation will be necessary and that Niehaus is in no danger.

Kerens Forces Increased

Jefferson City, Mo., March 1.—Except that R. C. Kerens has called to his standard three supporters who have been scattering their votes, there is no change in the senatorial deadlock. Some of the Kerens men say that they will refuse to be bound by the action of any Republican caucus, even though Niedringhaus be dropped and another candidate selected.

Harper Is Gaining Strength

Chicago, March 1.—President Harper of the University of Chicago, although it is less than a week since the operation was performed upon him that revealed cancer of the colon, is sitting up in bed attending to his duties as head of the university. The attending surgeons believe he will be able to leave the hospital much before the time they set for him.

Hunting For Missing Coachman

New York, March 1.—Acting upon an important clue, Chief of Police Gallagher and Detective Hummel of Montclair, N. J., visited Providence in search of the coachman who was employed by Mrs. Hannah Ross and who has been missing since her death. Mrs. Ross is believed to have been murdered and robbed.

Colorado Governorship Fight

Denver, March 1.—The gubernatorial contest committee will vote this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the recommendations to be made to the joint assembly concerning the respective merits of the claims of Peabody and Adams to the governorship. These recommendations will be transmitted to the joint assembly tomorrow.

Improvements For Porto Rico

San Juan, P. R., March 1.—The bill authorizing a loan of $4,000,000 for public improvements has unanimously passed the house. Island banks are designated as depositories, with authority to loan unexpended improvement funds to island agriculturists. The executive council is favorable to the bill.

Says Mormons Control Utah

Washington, March 1.—A feature of the day in the senate was a speech by Mr. Kearns (Utah) on the Mormon church. He charged that the church controls the politics and business of Utah. He denied that he had paid Lorenzo Snow, then president of the church, for support of himself for senator.

Wyndham Has Not Resigned

London, March 1.—The absence from parliament and the cabinet council yesterday of Mr. Wyndham, chief secretary for Ireland, which led to rumors of his resignation, was due to indisposition. His doctor has ordered a few days' rest.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. L. F. Callan of Woonsocket, R. I., is visiting Mrs. Peter F. Talbot of Chestnut street.

Albion F. Hall, who recently moved his grocery store from Washington street to 1609 Hancock, has now closed the latter place and disposed of his stock.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans left this morning for Washington to witness the inaugural of President Roosevelt. They will be the guests of their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Curtis of Lincoln Park.

A little boy from the Point had a narrow escape from drowning one day this week. While out picking up drift wood, he fell through a hole in the ice but was quickly rescued by a couple of men who happened to be near.

The new social club at Quincy Point held a business meeting Tuesday evening. Reports of the committees were read and other important business transacted. A whist party will be held in the club room Thursday evening, March 2, at 8 o'clock.

The funeral of Miss Alice Dean was held from her father's residence in Stockbridge, on Monday afternoon. Miss Dean leaves a father and two brothers, beside a host of young friends to mourn her loss. One brother, Harlow F. Dean is a student at the New England Conservatory of Music.

Installed at Hopedale.

The Rev. E. W. Whitney of Milford, formerly of Quincy made the opening prayer, the scripture lesson was read by the Rev. C. A. Roys of Uxbridge, the installation sermon was delivered by the Rev. C. E. St. John of Boston, and the installation prayer was made by the Rev. A. S. Garver of Worcester.

The charge to the new minister was given by the Rev. Ellery C. Butler of Quincy, after which the Rev. C. G. Horst of West Upton extended the right hand of fellowship. Frank J. Dutcher welcomed the new pastor in behalf of his new congregation.

The Rev. L. G. Wilson, recently pastor of the church, also spoke. The closing prayer was by the Rev. David Howe of the Union Evangelical Church and the new pastor pronounced the benediction. There was singing by a quartet.

A NEW TEACHER.

The School Committee Have a Brief Session.

Messrs. Burke, Churchill, Hallowell, Miller, Porter, Record and Smith were present at Tuesday night's meeting of the School Committee.

The resignation of Miss Janie C. Michaels of the High school was accepted.

Miss Adele Schroeder was elected to fill the vacancy.

An informal discussion of school matters followed.

The expenditures of the School department to date was reported as follows:

Salaries,	$17,418.46
Janitors,	1,231.58
Books, Supplies and Sundries,	1,515.13
Fuel,	—
Transportation,	123.80

Total,	$20,401.47

SEMI COLON LAW.

Is Upheld by Large Majority in the House.

Both Representatives Freeman and Nicol of this city were with the majority on Tuesday in voting against the motion to substitute for the Committee's report, a bill providing that liquor may be sold by licensed inn holders in Boston up to midnight.

The vote was 83 yeas to 126 nays with four pairs.

The substitute was favored by Fisk of Boston and Serberlich of Boston.

Men's Club.

A meeting of the Men's Congregational club of Wollaston was held in the vestries of the Wollaston Congregational church, Tuesday evening. Mr. Goodspeed gave an interesting talk upon books, having with him samples of books from the 14th century up to the present day. Mr. Leofler executed some very difficult music upon the piano, and Rev. E. A. Chase read dialect poems. After the entertainment refreshments were served. The committee in charge were John Lynch, Elliot Taylor and Chester Tenney.

Miss Underwood Eligible.

Some doubt having arisen whether Miss Julia E. Underwood was eligible in the Herald contest, her friends have interviewed the editor of the School Contest, and they are assured that there is no question whatever.

The Coddington is a "grammar school" and Miss Underwood is a "lady teacher in a grammar school." Kindly note the reading. In Boston there are primary buildings which are not eligible.

Already 600 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 1000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

The editor of the Daily Ledger would like to hear from all the former pupils of Miss Julia Underwood, especially in the early years—1855 to 1875. He would also be pleased to read reminiscences of her former pupils, and hopes to gather many letters before the 50th anniversary March 31.

On Trial.

It is to recover $8000 damages for personal injuries, a hand caught and crushed between a car door and its framework Sept. 24, 1904, and due to the alleged neglect of defendant's servants.

Also the case of Carl H. Weinschenk vs. same. To recover $5000 damages for the loss of wife's services and medical expenses.

Want Tracks Over Bridge.

A petition, that has already been largely signed, is being circulated, addressed to the Mayor and City Council, praying that they compel the street railway to build its tracks across the new Atlantic bridge, and run through cars to Neponset. The petitioners seem to lose sight of the fact that the street railway have no location over the part of the bridge that has been built, and that last year's City Council refused to give them a location.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

SINGLE ADDITION

Favored by Committee on High School Enlargement.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings held a meeting Tuesday night. The High school enlargement was the subject under consideration. There was more or less discussion on the subject. The order for $65,000, for building the north wing was turned down, and the committee voted to procure plans for a single complete addition to the present building.

No amount was fixed as to the cost, but it was understood that plans for an addition costing about $75,000 should be procured.

Two Inquests.

Inquests were held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Julius Nelson, who was killed by the cars at the Saville street crossing on Feb. 2; also on James Sears, who was killed by the cars at Atlantic, Feb. 3.

Two Girls Saved Babies' Lives

Provincetown, Mass., March 1.—Two 15-year-old girls, Minnie Barnes and Jennie Morris, rushed bravely into a burning dwelling house here and saved the lives of four small children, the oldest being 5. Mrs. Carlos, a widow, left the children alone for a few minutes and while she was away the building caught fire. The Barnes and Morris girls, who live close by, ran quickly over to the house and, plunging through the smoke-filled rooms, snatched up the children and escaped without injury. All, however, were partially overcome by smoke, but revived in a few minutes.

Turned Over to State Police

Boston, March 1.—"Any further information relative to the steps that are being taken to apprehend the party or parties who have stolen Mr. Cheney's securities will be given out by Chief Shaw of the state police, in whose hands this case has been placed, and in whom we have the utmost confidence." The above statement was issued by B. D. Hyde, attorney for Herman S. Cheney of Southbridge, the loss of whose safety deposit box containing $285,000 in securities has been a mystery.

Persistent Would-Be Suicide

Hartford, March 1.—Edward McConville of Northampton, Mass., came here last Saturday and attempted to end his life by asphyxiation in a hotel. He was taken to a hospital and discharged yesterday. After having a fit in a saloon last night he was arrested. In the lock-up he tried to hang himself five times, tried twice to cut his jugular vein on the cell door, and attempted to knock his brains out by butting his dead against the iron grating.

Investigating Carroll's Death

Pawtucket, R. I., March 1.—Three physicians, who held an autopsy on the body of James Carroll, found dead and embedded in the ice in a yard on Main street, were the witnesses at the coroner's inquest, but they requested the coroner not to make their testimony public. Medical Examiner French states that bruises on Carroll's head could not have been caused by a fall.

Sentenced For Killing Wife

Boston, March 1.—John A. Ricker was given a sentence of not more than 15 years nor less than 12 years in the state prison for manslaughter in causing the death of his wife by shooting. The grand jury indicted Ricker for murder in the second degree, but later he pleaded guilty of manslaughter, which plea was accepted by the government.

Heavy Spipments of Cereals

Boston, March 1.—The grain exports from this port for February were nearly double those of the same month last year. The shipment of cereals amounted to 1,281,933 bushels, compared with [illegible] bushels, compared with 670,034 bushels in 1904. March also starts well, as steamer Cymric took out today 190,264 bushels of cereals.

Dissatisfied Lasters

Lynn, Mass., March 1.—Twenty-five lasters at the shoe factory of George A. Creighton & Son struck because of the refusal of the firm to sign an increased wage scale. An offer of the union to submit the matter to the state board of arbitration was declined by the firm.

Move In Swayne's Behalf

Washington, March 1.—A communication was presented to the senate from attorneys for Judge Swayne in the impeachment trial, requesting a sufficient allowance to the judge to pay the expenses of the trial, including counsel fees. The communication was referred to the committee on judiciary.

Winter Was Extremely Cold

The Yellow Holly

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

"You told me all this before," interrupted Brendon ruthlessly. "I ask if you have ever been to San Remo?"

"Why, yes, assuredly, and why not?" She looked at him with narrowing eyes as she put the question, blinking like a cat.

"There is no reason, only I was thinking"— He paused.

"Eh, you think—of what?"

"Oh, something which does not concern you, Lola."

"All that is of you is to me," she responded. "I love you."

"Lola, be reasonable."

"Pschutt! I mock myself of your reason," she cried, snapping her fingers and speaking in quite a French way. "I leave reasons to your chilly

"My deliverer, my adored!"

English ladies. I—eh, but you know I am of the south. To you—to you, my adored preserver, do I give myself."

"Ah, then, good night to you. Let it be adieu and never come back."

"That's grateful," said George quietly, and she was at his feet.

"Ah, but no! I am a bad womans. I am entirely all wicked. You are an angel of the good God. Dearest—my own"— She stretched adoring hands, and her eyes glittered like stars.

George reasoned with her. "Lola, do you wish me to be pleased with you?"

"Assuredly. And why not?"

"Then sit down and talk sensibly."

She sat down, or rather flung herself into the chair, with a whirl of scarlet draperies. "Decidedly I am a Christian. I go to mass, I confess—yes, I confess to the priest how I love you."

"Do you really love me, Lola? I was told that you wished me harm."

She started from her chair with a passionate gesture.

"Who says it is liars of the worst! Tell me who speak, that I may tear and scratch."

"No, no! I don't want a scandal."

"For her sakes, oh, yes!" She subsided sulkily. "I am nothings."

"For whose sake?" asked Brendon, rather alarmed, for he did not wish this tigress to know about Dorothy.

"The other woman's. Oh, yes, there is some one else. I know. You are mine all, and would be but for the other womans. Imbecile that I am to think of you who kick me hard—hard. And I can learn nothing—nothing. If I did—if I knew, I"— She stopped and breathed hard.

"I wonder you don't have me watched," said George, thoroughly angry at her unreasonable attitude. Lola tossed her head and her expression changed to one of alarm. Brendon saw the change and guessed its meaning. "You did have me watched."

"And what if I did?" she demanded defiantly. "You are mine."

"I am not yours," he retorted angrily. "I have given you no cause to think that I would marry you."

Lola burst into tears. "You took me from the stones and snows," she wept with extravagant grief. "Why did I not die? You fed me with foods and made me shine in this London. You win my heart and then—then—pschutt"—she snapped her fingers—"you toss it aside."

"Why did you have me watched?" asked George sternly.

"I want to know of the other woman," she replied sullenly.

"There is no"— He broke off. "It has nothing to do with you."

Lola sprang to her feet with fierce eyes. "Then there is another—another—oh, you cruel! Name of names, but I shall find her. I shall tell her"—

"You shall tell her nothing—you shall not see her."

"But I will. Eh, yes. You do not know me." This with a stamp.

"I know you cannot behave decently, Lola. If you have me watched again, if you dare to—to—bah!" George stamped in his turn. "I have had enough of this. Behave, or I go and will not return."

She flung herself at his feet with a wail. "Ah, but no," she sobbed, "I do love you so dearly—I will die if you love me not."

George drew himself roughly away, and taking her by the hands placed her in a chair, where she hid her face and sobbed. "Who was it you got to watch me—you hired to watch me?" George advisedly used the word "hired," as he thought she might have engaged one of her friends to do the dirty work instead of engaging a professional. Yet he knew she was quite capable of going to a private detective office.

"I shall not tell you," said Lola, sitting up with a hard expression on her mouth and in her eyes.

"Did you pay him much?" asked Brendon dexterously.

"I paid him what I chose," retorted Lola, falling into the trap.

"Ah! Then it was a professional detective you engaged. You have been to one of those inquiry offices."

"That is my business," said Lola, who, seeing she had made a slip, became more obstinate than ever.

George shrugged his shoulders. He was not going to argue with her. Remembering that Bawdsey had mentioned her name, and that Bawdsey appeared to know all about himself, he began to put two and two together. Certainly he might be wrong, and Bawdsey might have nothing to do with the matter. Still it was worth while trying to startle Lola into a confession by the use of his name. His rescue of Bawdsey hinted that the long arm of coincidence might be at work.

"I should have thought that the red man was clever enough to"— began George.

She rose to her feet with such manifest alarm that George knew his guess was correct. "You talk foolish," said she.

George looked at her angry face serenely. "Did Bawdsey when he said you wished me harm?"

"What?" She flung up her hands, with blazing eyes. "Did he say I do wish you harm? Was it—that—that cow—pig"—

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Greeted by Audience of 1,000 or More

At Bethany Church, Quincy.

Says That We Make Religion Too Easy.

Evangelist Dawson, the noted English divine, honored Quincy with a visit on Wednesday evening, and found a responsive audience of over 1,000 church people, all adults, gathered. All the churches of Quincy were invited to send delegations, and also the Congregational churches of Milton, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham and Cohasset, and most of these churches were largely represented. It was a grand congregation which would have warmed the heart of any pastor, and it would have been twice as large had Quincy had a church of that capacity. Pews designed for five or six held six and seven adults. People stood in the rear, on the sides, and in the vestibules; the gallery was crowded and also the platform.

The meeting opened with a praise service led by Mr. T. B. Pollard of the Quincy Point church. There was an overflow praise service in the chapel led by Mr. A. L. Hayden of Bethany church, which adjourned before the address and was accommodated in the church.

Rev. F. W. Burrows of Braintree read the scripture lesson and Charles L. Estey of Brockton followed with a solo, "While the days are going by," the congregation joining in the chorus. A fervent prayer was offered by Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of Braintree.

Rev. F. N. Hardy, the pastor, introduced Dr. Dawson, who held the closest attention for an hour, speaking without notes. He said he expected to speak to the general public, but since this was a gathering of church workers he would speak directly to them as such.

He took for his text St. Johns 12: 24—Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. Also II Corinthians 4: 10—Always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body.

No brief synopsis of the address would do Dr. Dawson justice, but he emphasized his belief that Jesus is the cross and all it means, a force of love and power in the hearts of men. Mysticism, he said, is a part of life. It is all mystics when we pray, and when we love. When men say they do not pray, I don't believe them. Therefore, don't refuse message because it is mystic.

To save your life is to lose it. Jesus did not die upon Calvary, but many years before. It is easy to die the death of the body, but the death of will—is your will crucified that Jesus' will may be done. That is the beginning of life eternal.

Domestic love may become the most selfish thing in the world. Jesus asks more than love of kindred. What are we doing to let those around us, who have not heard the message, know that Jesus died for them.

Do you really want to see Jesus tonight? It is an awful thing to see Jesus. If he entered this church who would come with him? The rabble. Would you welcome them? Would you make room for them? He might say, what gospel is this you are preaching. What life is this? Where are the sick, the poor and the sinners? What are you doing for them?

Christ made religion a hard thing. We make it too easy. Until a man is discontented he will never do anything. Christianity means crucifixion. It is a hard thing but a sweet thing. Have you church people surrendered to Christ? Think of the lost people to be saved.

Are you young men living up to your possibilities! Have you older ones enough religion to make you happy. God grant tonight that this may be the time for some to begin a consecrated life.

Dr. Dawson then asked all to bow their heads in silent prayer. After a few moments he asked them to repeat verses, and then led them in prayer.

Finally, he requested all to stand who desired to consecrate their lives anew to Christ, and practically the whole audience of 1000 stood and received his blessing.

The meeting closed with the benediction of Rev. Edward Norton, the pastor emeritus of Bethany church.

Dr. Dawson, accompanied by Rev. E. N. Hardy, Rev. J. G. Miller of Atlantic, and several others took the 9.13 train for Boston, where the evangelist conducted a revival meeting until 11 P. M. at Tremont Temple which is reported on page two today.

Surprise Party.

A more lively, gay and happy party is seldom seen, than that to the number of thirty which assembled at the home of Mrs. J. F. McLeod, 143 Arlington street, Wollaston, from Newton, Allston, Boston, Neponset, Quincy and Wollaston, on Tuesday evening. It was to surprise their friend, Miss Lizzie Warren, who, for a few moments, was so overcome that she could not say a word. After recovering from her surprise she extended the hand of fellowship to all, and hoped the evening would be one of pleasure and enjoyment, which from all accounts proved to be so. During an intermission, Miss Tina Warren, in behalf of those assembled, presented her with an elegant gold bracelet, with monogram inscribed. She was also remembered with beautiful flowers and a cake brilliantly illuminated with twenty-four candles, in honor of her passing another milestone in life's journey. A banquet was served by her friends.

New Spitting Rule.

The street railway company, with the assistance of Chief of Police Burrell and his officers, are to strictly enforce the recent rule adopted by the Board of Health relative to the spitting in the street cars. There has been many complaints relative to this filthy habit, aside from the danger to public health that arises from it.

The officials and employes of the company have tried in every way possible to put a stop to this nuisance, but have been unable, as there was no prohibitive rule of the Board of Health. Now that the Board of Health have acted the officials and police will do their part.

The company has caused signs to be printed in large plain letters to be posted in all of the cars. One of these signs prohibits smoking and the other is a notice that spitting is prohibited by the Board of Health under penalty of $100.

Chief of Police Burrell will it is said enforce this rule, and an example will be made of the first man caught violating the rule by bringing him into court.

MANUFACTURERS' SIDE.

Chairman Jones Replies to Secretary Duncan.

Says Manufacturers' Have Troubles Which Make Life a Burden.

Believes Men Would Have Come to an Agreement If Australian Ballot Was Used.

Mr. Editor:

On taking up the Quincy Daily Ledger tonight I noticed and read the letter from the secretary of the Granite Cutters' National Union giving his version of the trouble between the Granite Cutters of Quincy and the Manufacturers. I hope you will publish these few lines from a manufacturer's standpoint.

In the first place, I believe every man should receive a fair remuneration for his labor. I believe the fast and good workman should be paid extra good wages, because he earns them, but I can't see why a man that don't do a third as much work as the fast and good workman should receive as much pay.

But under the "minimum wages" desired by the Granite Cutters' Union that would be the result, if none could be paid less than the $3 per day. You can readily see that no manufacturer can hire these slow men and pay them the minimum pay of $3 or even $2.64. The result is that the Granite Cutters' Union drives these men out of Quincy. I heard yesterday of a stone cutter,—a slow man but a fine workman, but all he is capable of earning is from $2 to $2.25 per day. Every winter he has to go away from home, down on the island in a company boarding house, away from his wife and family. He calls it going to jail, because he cannot earn the minimum pay.

That man and a great many others like him could get work at home, easily if he was allowed to work for what he was worth by the day.

Then the Cutters' Union will say, why not put him on by the piece? Any man in the business will tell you piece men cannot work to advantage now. No money in them. And they interfere with your business in this way. If you could keep them on hammered stones all the time it would be all right, but you cannot. The stones don't come from the quarry as you would like to have them. So at times you have to give them polished stones to keep them at work, and as they square them up for the polishing mills of course you must keep the stones for the piece man to finish. He might have three or four stones under way at the same time. You might be in a hurry for some of them. Were these stones squared up by a day man, you could put any of your day men on to finish them. But no, they were squared up by the piece man, and you cannot touch them. No matter how much your costumer wants the work you must wait for the piece man to finish them. And then a piece man can come and go when he likes, and they lose a lot of time. But you have to pay the blacksmith just the same for them as you do for a day man that works all the time. So they are not considered profitable men to have in your yard.

Now in Barre there is no minimum wage scale. A man can go to work, no matter how slow he is, and get his pay according to what he can earn. They have a $3.00 "average pay," but no "minimum," and still Barre is the principal competitor against Quincy. The Quincy Manufacturers have offered the men this $3.00 average pay, which they won't accept.

Westerly is another of our competitors and the men have just settled there on a $3.00 minimum, but any man who cannot earn this $3.00 minimum can work for what he can make under the bill of prices. The Quincy manufacturers have proposed this same Westerly settlement to the Quincy cutters, and they have refused it.

The writer of this article knows by experience that stone cutting is hard work and doesn't blame men for getting all the pay they can, but he believes that the demand for any article of labor regulates the price, and if the Quincy cutters can get better pay elsewhere they should go and get it.

The Quincy granite manufacturer is also working under difficulties that he cannot change. Quincy granite is hard stone to quarry, and while it is considered as good granite as there is quarried in the world and far ahead of Barre granite, or any other granite, for polished work, it costs more to quarry it and the manufacturer of monuments often finds to his sorrow some knot or streak in it which necessitates getting another stone after he has expended a lot of money on it. Now the Barre manufacturer doesn't have this to contend with as much as his Quincy competitor, the Barre granite not being as hard a granite as Quincy granite, and easier to manufacture into monuments.

I once heard an old maid say, that if she had had a chance to choose a husband she would have had a good one long ago. So with the Quincy granite manufacturer. If he had had a chance to choose his granite, there is no doubt but what he would have chosen Quincy granite, but he would have had it easier to quarry, and easier to manufacture into monuments. But we can't always have everything as we want it, and all we have to do is the best we can, and keep step with the music.

There are always two sides to a question. No doubt but what the granite cutters have grievances that ought to be remedied. The manufacturers also have their troubles, and quite often find life a burden. The writer of this article believes the middle men who have offices in Boston are the main curse to the granite business, and that it would be a great benefit to the stone cutters as well as the manufacturers if there were no middle men. They are the men who make manufacturers; start them in business. They get a few stone cutters to start in business; find them work; then bleed them, and put other men in the business so as to make more competition for the ones already striving to get a living.

To sum up my opinion of this trouble, I think that if the granite cutters at their meeting had voted under the Australian ballot system like they do at their meetings in Barre, they would have accepted the proposition of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers, to settle the same as Westerly has settled, viz:—a minimum wage of $3.00 per day, but any man physically incapable of earning this sum to be paid what he can earn under the bill of prices, and any man that can earn more than the $3.00 will get it as he does now, and a 7 per cent rise in the bill of prices of 1900. Some of the men have been paid over $4 pe day. A joint committee of the Granite Cutters' union and the Manufacturers' to settle the man's pay that can't earn this $3.00 minimum; no strikes or lockouts; all differences to be settled by Arbitration.

Frederick L. Jones,
Chairman Manufacturers' Committee.
Quincy, March 1, 1905.

MANY AT WORK.

Members of Firms and Corporations Hammering Stone.

There is practically no change in the granite situation this morningr. The meeting of the cutters at St. Mary's hall Wednesday did not develop anything new.

The meeting was adjourned from the previous evening and was called to hear the report of the Union committee as to what transpired at the conference late Tuesday evening with the manufacturers.

After hearing the report the men were admonished to stand firm, and the meeting adjourned.

Although the union cutters were all out Wednesday there was not an entire suspension of business. At the Merrymount granite works and at Joss Bros. Co., where the employes are members of the corporation, work was progressing as usual.

More or less work was also being done in all of the yards. Manufacturers, many of whom had served their time at the trade, had their coats off and were hard at work. Some of the manufacturers were sharpening while others with apprentices were finishing up stones that had been left by the workmen.

Some of the workmen picked up their tools and put them away in their boxes while others had left them on the stone upon which they were at work when quitting time came Tuesday night.

Today is practically a repetition of Wednesday. Quincy cutters are a peaceful body of men and there is no fear that there will be disturbance of any kind from them.

Rapid Coasting.

The Snow King, double runner mentioned in Monday's Ledger is 25 1-2 feet long, and equipped with two steering wheels, automatic brake, and twelve inch gong. The record trip was from Hitchcock's quarry to the junction of Granite and Parker streets in two minutes, covering eleven hundred feet of level ground, and climbing one hill en route. During the months of January and February it carried between 12,000 and 13,000 passengers.

Drift of Opinion.

☞War has been declared against the Standard Oil Company in California, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas and Wisconsin. This is going to be a very busy year with the oleaginous octopus.—Nashville American.

☞ March came in on a compromise between the traditional "lion" and the "lamb" order. The temperature was low, but the skies were bright. There was no bluster of "winds, and clouds, and changing skies," but the air was too cool to be called lamblike. It is therefore unsafe to predict the weather for this present March, and the best way will be to take it as it comes.—Lynn Item.

☞Meriden, Connecticut, will be one hundred years old in June of next year, and now, more than a year in advance of the date, sends out announcement of the program which will celebrate the centennial. It will cover a week and include good features; but the most impressive thing about the bureau of publicity's circular is not in the item about the religious observances on Sunday, the civic and industrial parade and welcoming exercises on Monday, the automobile parade and dedication of three public buildings, post office, armory and city hall, on Tuesday, the sporting events on Wednesday, the military parade and colonial ball on Thursday, the more sporting events and fireworks on Friday, the historical addresses on Saturday and the social reunions and conventions and meetings and musicals scattered throughout the week, but is revealed in the next to the last line, where it is casually stated that the whole city is working for the event and that "'the Meriden habit' of working together" assures the biggest celebration the state has ever seen. The people of Meriden are to be gloriously congratulated—on their years that ought to carry them well into the paths of wisdom? yes; but more on their habit of working together. That is worth more than all the city's material possessions, and will carry it on to a proud position. "The Meriden habit" is one to emulate.—New Bedford Standard.

The Pulpit Buffoon.

Sir William Dugdale applied the name "pulpit buffoon" to Hugh Peters (1598-1660), the joke loving Puritan clergyman, whose pulpit peculiarities made him a notable figure during the English civil war, when he held the post of chaplain to the parliamentary army. Peters was a born jester, and the pulpit set no bar to his broad humor and pungent witticisms—not always in the best taste, as, for example, when turning the hourglass while preaching a long sermon he said, "Now, my friends, let us have another glass." His pulpit appeals were very effective in winning recruits to the parliamentary army, and when a town was to be taken by assault the storming parties were first stimulated to the task by a rousing sermon from their chaplain.

ALONG THE HIGHWAYS

Revivalists Paraded In Boston and Gathered Recruits

Boston, March 2.—Marching through the streets of the North and South Ends last night to the music of the Salvation Army band and the singing of Gospel hymns, a procession of fully 3000 people introduced in this city the tactics adopted in London by Rev. W. J. Dawson, the English revivalist, who is now conducting a series of revival meetings in this city.

Congregationalists in large numbers joined with the Salvationists in the parade, distributing in saloons and along the streets invitations to a service which was held later in the evening in Tremont temple, accosting onlookers and endeavoring to persuade them to join the ranks of the marchers. The procession was under police escort, and nowhere en route was there a semblance of disorder.

The Tremont temple meeting was addressed by Rev. Dawson and Rev. N. D. Hillis of Brooklyn, the temple being crowded.

Youth Charged With Murder

Bridgeport, Conn., March 2.—Paul H. Schmidt, 18 years old, is before a jury which will pass upon the question of his guilt or innocence of the charge of murder in the first degree. Schmidt is charged with the killing of William Taylor, aged 50. Both men were employed on the estate in Sherman of W. H. D. Crittenden. It is alleged that Schmidt was rifling the safe in the house when he was surprised by Taylor; that Schmidt shot Taylor and escaped with valuables worth $1000.

Improvement In Boston Commerce

Boston, March 2.—The commerce of Boston in 1904 showed a gradual, but steady, recovery from the depression that marked the closing months of the previous year, according to Secretary Preston of the Chamber of Commerce, whose report has just been submitted. The exports in 1904 were $87,866,628, as compared with $86,429,116 in 1903; imports $86,268,648, as against $82,762,828 the previous year.

Trading Stamp Tax Favored

Augusta, Me., March 2.—The legislative committee on legal affairs voted ought to pass on an act to impose an excise tax on the persons doing a trading stamp business. Also on an act in relation to the business of selling, giving or delivering trading stamp checks, coupons or similar devices in connection with the sale of articles, wares or merchandise.

Brown University to Get $1,500,000

Pawtucket, R. I., March 2.—The will of Harriet Z. Littlefield, widow of George L. Littlefield, has been presented for probate. The only public bequest is a gift of $1000, to the Baptist society of Bellingham, Mass. By the death of Mrs. Littlefield the estate left by her husband, valued at $1,500,000, reverts to Brown university.

Probably Died of Exposure

New Fairfield, Conn., March 2.—John Walker, a retired farmer, who has been living with relatives near here, was found dead on a haymow, in a barn at Ball's pond. It is thought that he died of exposure. There is no suspicion of foul play.

United Workmen's Election

Boston, March 2.—The Ancient Order of United Workmen elected officers for the ensuing year, John Symonds of Lynn being chosen for grand master workman. The question of assessment charges was laid over until the next session.

Hitch on Panama Commission

Washington, March 2.—A meeting of the conferees on the Panama canal bill resulted in no agreement on the main question of differences between the two houses—the abolition of the isthmian canal commission. The senate conferees proposed that the commission be reduced to three members. The house conferees declined this compromise. They want the present commission abolished and the president authorized to appoint a new commission of three members.

Death of Ex-Senator Wolcott

Denver, March 2.—A message announcing the death of former United States Senator Edward O. Wolcott, who has been sojourning in southern France, was received here last night. The cablegram came from Monte Carlo. While it did not give the real cause of his death, it is known that he had suffered from stomach trouble for a number of years. Senator Wolcott was born at Longmeadow, Mass., in 1848.

New Montana Reserve Open

Missoula, Mont., March 2.—Lake Como forest reserve has become subject to homestead entry. Between 15,000 and 20,000 acres of land will be thrown open for settlement. The land is in the famous Bitter Root valley, and was set aside by President Cleveland as a temporary reserve. The city is thronged with people ready to file claims.

Would Help Smash Trusts

Austin, March 2.—The lower house of the Texas legislature adopted a resolution warmly endorsing President Roosevelt's action in attacking the so-called beef trust, and appointed a committed to confer with the cattlemen of Texas and the governor to ascertain if there is any way in which Texas can give the president any assistance.

Chasing Up Standard Oil

Topeka, March 2.—State Attorney General Coleman has filed suit in the supreme court, asking that a receiver be appointed for the Prairie Oil and Gas company, said to be the Kansas branch of the Standard Oil company, on account of alleged violation of the state laws.

MRS. INA M. LOWRY.

You Can Feel Better at Once!

When everything seems an effort, when you feel tired most of the time, when you wake up every morning as tired as when you went to bed,—then there is something wrong.

Remember, your strength is not in your muscles—the muscles simply work when the Nerve Force tells them to.

Even your brain does not work by itself—the substance in your brain cells must have energy to do its work; this energy must be nerve force—the same great power-of-life that controls every organ of the body.

Every form of weakness, or sickness, or disease, comes from a lack of Nerve Force to keep the organs working properly.

When the nerve system is not strong and well-nourished, it follows inevitably that one is easily "over-worked"—easily run down—just as Mrs. Lowry describes.

"For several months my system had been run down and I felt all worn out, tired, did not feel able to get out of bed in the morning and felt just as tired when I got up as when I retired. Had no appetite and looked pale and sallow. A friend who had used Paine's Celery Compound a couple of years ago, and who recommended it very highly, induced me to try it. I felt better at once and I found that at the end of six weeks it had changed me into a well woman, and I cannot say too much in its praise. I shall take a bottle every Spring and Fall and feel sure that it is all the medicine I shall need. Very truly yours."—Mrs. Ina M. Lowry, 3109 Dunham Ave., Kansas City, Mo. (Worthy Matron Order of Eastern Star; Rec. Sec. Kansas City Friendly Aid Society.)

Paine's Celery Compound is giving new Nerve Force to thousands every day by feeding and restoring the nerves to their full strength. It never fails to build up the run down system to full, ruddy health.

Two days' treatment proves its marvelous power. You feel better at once.

See how much better you feel.

Paine's Celery Compound feeds the nerves—restores them to their strength—gives them new power to send vitality and health to every part of your body, new courage to your heart, new animation to your brain.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

CZAR'S MEN MAY RETREAT

Cannot Long Withstand Bombardment With Eleven-Inch Shells Which Rendered Port Arthur Untenable--No News Regarding Russian Left Flank

St. Petersburg, March 3.—The curtain of a rigid censorship has settled down over events in Manchuria. There is no news of the results of yesterday's fighting. Dispatches describing the picturesque events of the night retreat from Da pass and the all-night combat at the railroad bridge across the Shakhe river have been allowed to come through, but nothing to show whether General Kuropatkin is withdrawing or is determined to stand his ground.

It is significant that no news has been received from the threatened left flank, the last dispatches leaving the Russians clinging desperately to Oubenepusa against strong forces of General Kuroki's veterans.

Although it is not admitted at the war office, the general impression in military circles is that Kuropatkin may be forced to withdraw. Not only is Kuroki threatening his communications, but the redoubts at Putiloff and Novgorod hills, and even the hills themselves, keys to the position of the Russian centre, appear to be crumbling away under the impact of terrible 11-inch shells such as levelled the fortifications of Port Arthur and rendered the fortress itself untenable. No troops will be able to retain the position long if the bombardment continues.

It developed that the Russians were unable to hold permanently the southern end of the railroad bridge across the Shakhe river.

Hills Look Like Volcanoes

Mukden, March 2.—For three days Putiloff and Novgorod hills have been subjected to a terrific bombardment with 11-inch shells charged with shimose powder. From a distance the hills look like volcanoes, spouting flame and great clouds of smoke, a hail of earth and stones falling far beyond their bases. The Russian siege batteries are answering energetically, but their fire is comparatively ineffectual.

All is quiet on the right flank at this time, it being reported that General Nogi is operating against the left flank. The weather is magnificent, warm and dry.

Must Have Permanent Peace

Tokio, March 2.—Marquis Saionji, president of the Constitutionalists, in delivering a farewell address to those of the party who are members of the diet, warned them to pay no attention to false rumors of peace between Japan and Russia. He said it would be necessary to prosecute the war until Japan secured her main object—the guarantee of a permanent peace.

Dissatisfied With Kuropatkin

London, March 2.—The Times' Russian correspondent telegraphs that he hears a war council will be held at St. Petersburg about March 5 to decide whether General Kuropatkin shall be recalled. He adds that Grand Duke Nicholas or General Dragomiroff, the hero of the Russo-Turkish war, are mentioned as possible successors.

No Labor Commission

St. Petersburg, March 2.—As a result of yesterday's meeting of workmen here, preliminary to the election of 50 representatives to the proposed imperial mixed commission charged with the consideration of measures for the adjustment of the grievances of workmen of St. Petersburg, there seems to be reason to doubt if the commission will be convoked. It is said that the men formulated their demands without any expectation that they will be granted, and it is affirmed that unless the men recede there will be no commission.

House Doors Ordered Closed

Warsaw, March 2.—Disturbances broke out here last evening in connection with the strike of shoemakers. Soldiers drew their swords and dispersed the crowd, three strikers being wounded in the affray. The chief of police has issued orders that all house doors must be closed the whole day under heavy penalties.

Czar's Mind Not Made Up

St. Petersburg, March 2.—The great question for Russians, that of granting the people a voice in the government, remains undecided. Emperor Nicholas has not yet given the final word. In view of many conflicting statements printed abroad the press is authorized to make the above definite announcement.

Big Immigration Increase

New York, March 2.—Immigration statistics show more than 130 percent increase of newcomers during the month of February over the corresponding period of last year. The arrivals of the month were 53,460, as against 23,410 in February, 1904.

Another Advance In Tubing

Pittsburg, March 2.—Official announcement is made of another advance in the prices of merchant pipe by the National Tube company. The increase is $1 a ton, and is the third similar advance made this year.

CITY BREVITIES.

Frank C. Gilbert has closed his variety store at 1060 Hancock street.

The City Council Committee on Finance will meet tonight for further consideration of the annual budget.

F. D. Grant has started the foundation for another three-apartment house off Hancock street.

Quite a fall in temperature was recorded this morning from the past few days. About 10 above at sunrise.

J. Warren Nightingale has returned from his trip to Jamaica and Cuba. He brought home a supply of cigars which he has distributed among his friends.

The last of the monthly men's meetings will be held at the Washington Street Congregational church, on Friday evening, March 3. The leader of the meeting will be City Auditor George A. Sidelinger and his subject: "Liberty, from a biblical standpoint." Mrs. E. C. Page will contribute vocal solos, accompanied by Harold W. Newcomb. The public is cordially invited to be present and help make this meeting as successful as those in the past.

VAGARIES OF FASHION.

The Bolero Holds Its Own In Popularity—The Draped Bodice.

The bolero, which is so popular, is nothing like its Spanish namesake. The new development is a half loose coat which finishes in a round belt at the waist. Another example of the bolero is evolved of lace hung in loose plaits from the shoulders and confined at the waist by a high pointed girdle of soft silk. This girdle is pointed in front and rounded at the back.

The fitted and draped style of waist is gradually gaining in popularity. The loose, graceful blouse bodices so long in favor the average woman finds difficult to dispense with. Consequently a smart wardrobe will have waists of both styles.

Myrtle and lizard shades of green as well as the bronze tones, currant and various shades of red, medium violet deep plum, burgundy and the golden browns will be the day wear tints for early spring gowns.

Most becoming and dainty are the exquisitely embroidered fine white chemisettes designed for wear with long tailor made coats.

A hat of one color and gown in a contrasting or harmonizing tone bid fair to be a fashionable vogue later in the season.

Very stunning is this dress of gun metal cashmere. The skirt is laid in fine plaits about the waist. At the knee the plaits flare, and each one is caught alternately with passementerie motifs. The sleeves are odd affairs consisting of circular ruffles trimmed with black velvet buttons.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Siberian Chicago.

A British company, with a capital of 10,000,000 rubles, is founding a meat preserving establishment, fitted with the most modern machinery, about 120 miles from Petropavlovsk, district of Akmolinsk, in Siberia, says the London Globe. This establishment will be joined to the Transsiberian railway at Petropavlovsk by a service of motor wagons, each with a carrying capacity of six hundredweight. Machinery and utensils for this establishment are said to be arriving daily. Petropavlovsk is the center of the steppe cattle rearing district of eastern Siberia. The preserved meat, it is said, will be dispatched to London, application having already been made to the authorities for favorable freight rates.

Chance For a Reformer.

Some day a great reformer in whose aspirations sense is duly blended with enthusiasm will make and win a great fight for adequate pockets in women's street clothes, says Harper's Weekly Why woman does not have more and better pockets in her clothes is one of the mysteries of civilization.

ANNEXATION IDEA

Not Contemplated In Dealings With San Domingo

HAITI MADE AN INQUIRY

Receives Assurance That We Wish Black Republics Only Continued Peace, Prosperity and Independence

Washington, March 2.—In answer to an inquiry on the subject, Secretary Hay has formally assured the Haytian minister here that the United States government has no intention whatever of acquiring by annexation or otherwise possession of Haiti or Santo Domingo, nor of extending American influence in that direction.

The correspondence that passed between the secretary and the minister is dated last month. Mr. Hay wrote as follows to Mr. Leger, the Haitien minister:

"In answer to your inquiry it gives me pleasure to assure you that the government of the United States of America has no intention of annexing either Haiti or Santo Domingo, and no desire of acquiring possession of them, either by force or by negotiation; and that, even if the citizens of either of these republics should solicit incorporation into the American union, there would be no inclination on the part of the national government nor in the sphere of public opinion, to agree to any such proposal. Our interests are in harmony without sentiments in wishing you only continued peace, prosperity and independence."

In reply to Mr. Hay's letter, Mr. Leger thanked the United States for their solicitude for Haitien prosperity and independence and said:

"My compatriots will be especially touched by the interest which President Roosevelt has kindly testified to them in asking you to dissipate, through frank explanations, the anxiety created by this erroneous rumor in regard to the character of your relations with the Dominicans. The republic of Haiti will learn with pleasure that the United States intend neither to annex the Dominican republic nor to acquire possession of it. The loyal and categorical declarations which you make upon this subject will not fail to increase the confidence of my fellow citizens in the just and equitable sentiments of the generous American people."

The president is framing another message to the senate urging speedy action on the pending Dominican treaty. He is led to supplement the strong representations contained in his first communication by important developments, which, it is understood, relate to the possible action of European powers pecuniarily interested in San Domingo, in the event of the failure of the treaty to secure approval before the adjournment of the extra session of the senate.

Power Boats For Lifesavers

New York, March 2.—An effort is about to be made by the Maritime Exchange of this city to have the federal government authorize the construction of power boats for the use of life saving crews along the coast. The advocates of the plan say they believe that with such boats the life savers frequently would be able to reach distressed vessels which, with the apparatus now in use, must be left to their fate.

Thorough Inquiry Promised

Paris, March 2.—The appointment of Count de Brazza, the African explorer, to investigate the charges of irregularity and brutality brought against officials of the French Congo is expected to bring out a complete exposure of the situation in Central Africa. The inquiry will cover the recent alleged scandalous treatment of natives and also the reported harshness of officials leading to native revolts and massacres.

If you could lighten your labor, would you?

If you could make a better loaf of Bread with less labor, would you?

Today we are going to tell you why Jones' Superlative makes bread making easier.

And this is why: Flours milled entirely from Spring wheat are so strong that they require a ridiculous amount of kneading, good for the muscle if you can spare the time, but hard on the nerves.

Convince yourself—buy a bag or a barrel.

REPORT AGAINST ADAMS

Political Lines Drawn In Colorado Governorship Fight

Denver, March 2.—After a long executive session of the gubernatorial contest committee, 13 of the 18 Republican members signed a report in favor of seating James H. Peabody and the nine Democrats signed a report in favor of continuing Governor Alva Adams in the office. The other five Republican members refused to sign either report.

Senator Alexander, one of the Republicans who refused to sign the Peabody report, made a hard fight for the rejection of the claims of both the contestor and contestee and the seating in the governor's chair of Lieutenant Governor McDonald. He found no supporters for this plan in the committee, but he may bring it up before the joint assembly as a compromise measure. His argument was that there is no doubt of the election of Mr. McDonald, while there is doubt as to whether Adams or Peabody was elected lawfully.

A Republican caucus last night decided to allow each side to contest eight hours for argument. Each member of the joint assembly will be permitted to speak 10 minutes and, should they all take advantage of this rule, or assign their time, the final vote will probably be delayed until next Tuesday.

Capitol Corridors Captured

Washington, March 2.—Members of the house made surprised comment when they arrived at the Capitol yesterday and found the corridors below the house floor in the possession of fakirs and venders of inauguration souvenirs. Inquiry developed that the shrewd trinket sellers had gotten permission from the joint inaugural committee of the senate and house to set up their stands in the building. It was commonly voted a cheap piece of business. The opposition finally became so strong that the fakirs were ordered to pack their wares and get out.

Fatal Duel In Street

Naugatuck, W. Va., March 2.—Frank B. Elswick, a railroad conductor, shot and killed George W. Waller, proprietor of the Naugatuck house, last night. When Elswick's train arrived in Naugatuck he prepared to go to the hotel. He was met by Waller with a revolver in each hand. Waller opened fire, and Elswick drew his gun. When the duel was over Waller was dead. Trouble between the two men had been of long-standing.

Big Appropriation Bills Passed

Washington, March 2.—During Wednesday the senate considered and passed three supply bills aggregating an appropriation of over $357,000,000. The session began at 11 a. m. and continued well into the night. The appropriation measures passed were: The postoffice bill, carrying $181,526,834; the pension bill, carrying $138,000,000, and the river and harbor bill, carrying $58,370,899.

Prospective Cabinet Changes

London, March 2.—The rumor persists that Mr. Wyndham will resign the Irish chief secretaryship. He is said to be suffering from insomnia and prostration arising from worries incident to his position. It is said that Walter Long will succeed Wyndham and that the Duke of Marlborough eventually will succeed the Earl of Dudley as viceroy of Ireland.

In Behalf of Women

Washington, March 2.—The senate, in executive session, ratified a treaty with all nations for the repression of the trade in white women. All of the contracting nations agree to enact laws for the punishment of any person enticing a woman or a girl from one country to another, even with her consent, with a view to her debauchery.

Commerce Commission Defied

Chicago, March 2.—Western railroads have decided to ignore the order of the interstate commerce commission requiring them to charge no higher rates for livestock than are charged for the transportation of livestock products. By the advice of attorneys the matter will be tested in the courts.

Hotel Beat In Custody

Syracuse, N. Y., March 2.—W. H. Prime, 24 years old, of Lynn, Mass., was arraigned here, charged with defrauding a boarding house keeper. He made a statement in which he admitted defrauding hotels in seven cities. He also says that he stole a diamond ring at Norwalk, Conn. He will be held.

Cowboys For Inaugural Parade

Chicago, March 2.—Fifty members of Colonel Seth Bullock's company of cowboys have arrived in Chicago en route from Deadwood, S. D., to attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt. Fifty picked horses have preceded the party to Washington to serve as mounts during the ceremonies.

Want Bread--Not Bayonets

Paris, March 2.—The Brest strikers have issued an appeal calling on the soldiers to act conscientiously, stating that the employers' exploitations are responsible for the troubles of the workmen and that what the latter want is bread and not bayonets.

Ban on Religious Processions

Paris, March 2.—The council of ministers has decided to accept the proposed change in the bill providing for the separation of church and state whereby religious processions hereafter will be strictly prohibited.

SECOND ATTEMPT

Mrs Stanford Finally Succumbs to Poison

WAS PLACED IN MEDICINE

Had Left California to Evade Someone Who Previously Tried to Take Her Life--Noted Philanthropist Dies In Hawaii

San Francisco, March 2.—The news of the death of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford at Honolulu Tuesday night was received here with surprise and sorrow, to which was added horror when it was learned that probably she had been poisoned.

Her brother, Charles G. Lathrop, who is treasurer of the Stanford university, refused to believe that her death was due to other than natural causes, and her attorney, M. S. Wilson, positively declined to discuss the report that a previous attempt to poison her had been made in this city. Mr. Wilson is awaiting advices from the Honolulu officials before taking any action regarding the business affairs of Mrs. Stanford, which are intimately connected with those of the great university which she and her husband founded at Palo Alto.

This institution has already been endowed with $38,000,000 in property and money, to which may be added about $10,000,000 from Mrs. Stanford's personal estate. She took deep personal interest in the university and to her wisdom and business sagacity is due much of its success, a fact that is testified to by its president as well as the students, nearly all of whom knew and loved her.

The university is closed and is not expected to reopen until after Mrs. Stanford's remains have been placed beside those of her husband and son, in their mausoleum on the university campus. In respect to her memory, the state legislature adjourned and flags were placed at half-mast throughout the state.

The story of an attempt to poison Mrs. Stanford in this city was first made public on March 18 last, when it was declared that strychnine had been found in a bottle of mineral water, of which she had taken several drinks. She became ill, and an analysis showed the presence of the deadly drug in the water. To Dr. Boericke, who attended her, Mrs. Stanford told the story of what she believed to have been an attempt upon her life. She suspected no one and, on the physician's advice, soon went to the country. Returning here, apparently in improved health, she sailed for China and Japan by way of Honolulu on the steamer Korea Feb. 18, arriving at the Hawaiian port five days later.

The alleged attempt to poison her was investigated by a detective agency, but no results were obtained, and the matter apparently was dropped.

In her California street residence, the first of the handsome mansions erected on Nob hill, there were 10 persons at the time of her illness, which began with her drinking the water on Jan. 14. There were, besides Mrs. Stanford, Ah Wing, the Chinese factotum, who had been in Mrs. Stanford's employ for 25 years; Ah Young, the house boy; Yeng, cook; Ah Lee, the second cook; Wong, the second butler; Nora Hopkins, the housemaid; Elizabeth Richmond, the lady's maid; William McWhinney, the butler, and Miss Bertha Berner, Mrs. Stanford's secretary, who accompanied her on the voyage to Honolulu.

STRYCHNINE POISONING

Doctor's Opinion of Cause of Death of Mrs Stanford

Honolulu, March 2.—Mrs. Jane Lathrop Stanford of San Francisco, widow of United States Senator Leland Stanford, died at 11:40 o'clock Tuesday night, 40 minutes after she was taken ill at the Moana hotel here, under suspicious circumstances, pointing, in the opinion of Dr. Humphries, the physician who attended her in her dying hour, and seemingly in that of others, to poisoning by the administration of strychnine in a vial of bi-carbonate of soda.

Mrs. Stanford herself, when found by a guest of the hotel who had heard her groaning in her agony and suffering from convulsions, declared: "I have been poisoned," and her last words were: "This is a horrible death to die."

The physicians say that between convulsions Mrs. Stanford repeated the assertion that she had been poisoned and said it was the second time the attempt had been made, the first time being in January at her San Francisco home, and that it was this attempt that caused her to come to Honolulu.

An autopsy on the remains showed the cause of death was tetanus of the respiratory organs, but how this was brought about will not be known until after an examination of the contents of the stomach, the result of which examination will probably be known tomorrow.

The bottle containing the bi-carbonate of soda bears the label of Charles Fells & Co., King William street, Adelaide, Australia, but it is believed that it has been refilled since it was purchased there. Miss Bertha Berner, Mrs. Stanford's secretary, says:

"At 8:30 Tuesday evening Mrs. Stanford sent for her maid, May Hunt, whom she had recently employed. She then said to me: 'I shall retire and take my medicine; please get it for me.' I got a teaspoonful of bi-carbonate of soda, one purgative tablet and a bottle of mineral water. Mrs. Stanford forgot to take the medicine and lay down and slept. As soon as she awoke she took the medicine and again retired.

"Mrs. Stanford soon thereafter was seized with convulsions which threw her out of bed. The maid and myself came in answer to her call, as did also a guest from a nearby room. She said: 'I am poisoned.' The convulsions continued in spite of the efforts of her physician.

"The bi-carbonate of soda was purchased by me at Adelaide some years ago, but I think it has been refilled for Mrs. Stanford at San Francisco—I don't know by what druggist."

Two years ago Mrs. Stanford went to Australia on a visit to a brother of her late husband, Thomas Stanford, a wealthy resident of Melbourne.

It is reported that R. A. Duncan, the territorial food commissioner and chemical analysist, has found strychnine in the bottle of bi-carbonate of soda. No official report of such finding has yet been made.

Mrs. Jane Lathrop Stanford was born at Albany in 1825. She married Leland Stanford, who later became one of the builders of the Central Pacific railroad and accumulated an immense fortune. As the wife of Governor and later Senator Stanford, Mrs. Stanford for many years took a prominent part in social affairs. She co-operated with her husband in the founding of Leland Stanford, Jr., university, and after Senator Stanford's death devoted herself almost entirely to the interests of the university.

Although the immense endowment of nearly $20,000,000 made by Senator and Mrs. Stanford to the university was placed in the hands of trustees, Mrs. Stanford until the time of her death had control of the funds and the appointment of trustees. Almost the entire Stanford fortune now goes to the university. Mrs. Stanford had but one child, a son, who died at an early age, and in memory of whom the Leland Stanford, Jr., university was founded.

Strike of Worcester Cutters

Worcester, Mass., March 2.—All granite cutters in Worcester are on strike. According to an agreement made Dec. 1, three months' notice was to be given of any variation in contracts between cutters and employers. At that time the cutters gave notice that they would expect $3.25 for a day's work of eight hours. Yesterday the employers refused to grant the request and a strike was ordered.

Strike In Milford Quarries

Milford, Mass., March 2.—The employes at the local granite quarries have voted to strike for higher wages. They demand a wage rate of 30 cents an hour for hand drillers and 40 cents for machine drillers. They also demand that the tool sharpeners for the quarrymen must withdraw from the Stone Cutters' union and join the Quarrymen's union. The manufacturers refuse to accede.

Bandits Robbed Express Safe

Memphis, March 2.—An east-bound passenger train was stopped by three bandits eight miles south of Mammoth Springs, Ark., and the Southern Express company's safe was blown open and robbed of its contents. The officials of the express company here do not know how much money was secured.

NEWS IN BRIEF

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

All parts of Quincy were well represented at the Dawson meeting last evening.

Master Charles Tanner, Jr., is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Haynes of Upland road.

Miss Sadie Perry has accepted a position at Mrs. Sears' restaurant on East Howard street.

Mrs. August V. Johnson of Kendrick avenue is still confined to her home a sufferer of muscular rheumatism.

Mrs. Wilson Tisdale of this city is reported as seriously ill with pneumonia in California contracting en route.

Alfred H. Richards, secretary of the Masonic lodge, Wollaston, has been suffering from a severe case of the grip.

Friends of Mr. Elijah S. Brown will be sorry to learn that he has been in very poor health for the last few weeks.

Delcevare King was elected one of the board of directors of the Watch and Ward society at its annual meeting on Wednesday.

Rev. W. Charles Wilson of Spring Hill Mines, N. S., addressed a meeting in the interest of Christ church periodical club this week.

Those queer noises heard north of the Unitarian church are rehearsals of the Whitney Road Comedy Four, practicing for Friday night's vaudeville at First church chapel.

Councilman Stone is to have another conference today with T. E. Pyrnes, assistant to President Mellen of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. relative to improvements desired in Quincy.

Mr. Joseph Ryan, formerly of South Quincy, is now with E. J. Picanco at the hair dressing parlors at the Hancock House, and would be pleased to meet his old friends.

Pro forma verdicts were given the defendent in the cases of Sally A. Weinschenk and Carl H. Weinschenk of Quincy vs the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. in the Norfolk Superior court on Wednesday.

Miss Corlew's Wollaston dancing class will be postponed for one week. Miss Corlew will take a much needed rest from her classes for a week, and in company with her friend, Mrs. Annie Bynner Wellington of New York, will take a short pleasure trip.

Wollaston Alliance.

The regular meeting of the Wollaston Ladies' Alliance was held in the Unitarian vestry Wednesday afternoon. After the usual devotional exercises and a short business meeting, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president of the Alliance, introduced the Rev. George W. Cutter, pastor of the Neponset Unitarian church as the speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Cutter's subject was "Life in the slums of a great city by a medical missionary," and he gave a very interesting and instructive talk from his own personal experiences. While pastor of one of the churches in Buffalo, N. Y., Mr. Cutter was on the visiting board of a charitable organization, and in this capacity became very familiar with tenement life in the slums. Rev. Frank W. Pratt, upon the invitation of the president, made a few remarks upon the same subject, after which tea was served, and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

February Court Business.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear reports the number of criminal cases in the District court at Quincy in February to have been 101, an increase of ten over the corresponding month last year.

Of the new cases, 55 were for drunkeness, assault 10, larcency 5, disturbing the peace, violation of by-laws, search for liquors and keeping and exposing liquor for sale, 3 each; adultery, disturbance on a public conveyance, loitering at railroad station, perjury and search for stolen goods, 2 each; assault with attempt to rape, breaking and entering, eavesdropping, habitual school offender, malicious mischief, non-support, subornation of perjury, tramp and sale of liquor, one each.

Of the unfinished cases 8 were continued for further hearing, 4 were continued for disposition; 6 were continued to pay fines; 11 were not served, 2 held for the grand jury, and 2 appealed.

Master Builders.

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the Master Builders' and Traders' Association. Matters pertaining to the interest of the city, including the present labor trouble in the granite industry, were discussed at length.

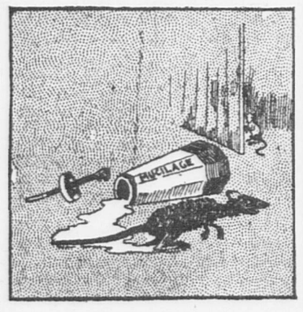

The association earnestly desires that an adjustment of the present difficulties may be reached soon. In order to do what they can toward this end and with a view of bringing the two committees together for another conference, the association appointed the following committee: Thomas L. Williams, Charles M. Bryant, J. W. Pratt, H. Everett Crane, W. H. Teasdale, C. A. McFarland and Charles H. Johnson.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Inquisitive Mouse

Not very long ago two little mice lived behind a plastered wall in a great big house. They were very happy, for there were no cats or traps of any kind about, and they knew just when to come out at night and where to find all the good things in the cupboard.

They lived this life for a very long time, so after awhile they were so sure that everything was all right that they became careless. There was a bottle always standing on the desk in the library that looked very tempting, but the hole in the top of it was so small that they had never been able to get at the contents.

The oldest mouse said he must have a taste of that stuff, for he was sure it must be good, and it was kept away up on the top of the desk, and he had heard the children forbidden to touch it. And every night he would keep on talking about the good stuff in the bottle until finally one night he made up his mind he would have a taste, let happen what would.

So he gave the bottle a little push and over it fell, with mucilage running out of it and over Mr. Mouse until his legs and tail got so stuck up with it that he could not get away, and there he had to stay until next morning, when the servant girl found him.

And what do you think she did? Well, she borrowed the cat that belonged to the family next door, and puss ate him up for his breakfast.

And the poor little mouse that was left all alone made up her mind that she would take warning by what happened to her brother and would never be inquisitive.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

WESTERN TOUR.

Lieut. Col. Kincaide on an Inspection.

Visits Worcester and Springfield.

What the City Papers Say of His Work.

Lieut. Col. Henry L. Kincaide of the military staff of Gov. Douglas has just returned from a tour of duty as assistant inspector general in the western part of the state, including Worcester, Springfield, Westfield and Holyoke. He was accompanied by Gen. Miles.

A Worcester daily said in part: Lieut. Col. Kincaide came to Worcester Thursday night, a stranger to the men of the 2d regiment, to which he has been assigned for this season. All that was known of him was he had been a captain of K Co., 5th Massachusetts Infantry, and he was to take the place which Lieut. Col. Edward J. Gihon has been an inspector several years.

He gave the City guards, A Co., a thorough inspection Thursday night, and the night following the Wellington rifles, H. Co., got the same dose. One of the members of the militia who was watching the inspection of A Co. Thursday night, held his watch, and said afterward the front rank of the company was kept standing at attention for 35 minutes. Some of the men were seen to sway a little as they stood there, while the inspection was going on, but they all stood it well. It was nearly as long as that the men of H Co. had to stand at attention the night following.

Last year there was a regular army officer accompanying the state inspectors, but this year there had been none, and no hint of one to come.

The Springfield Union said in part: Militiamen are awaiting the inspection tonight with no little interest. Lieut.-Col. Kincaide is said to be the most thorough inspecting officer that the militia has had in years. The men who have been subjected to the tests of Lieut.-Col. Gihon in years past in Worcester say that it was like a summer picnic in comparison with the rigidity of Lieut.-Col. Kincaide's methods.

Gen. Miles is to accompany Lieut.-Col. Henry L. Kincaide when the latter makes his inspection of the Springfield militia companies tonight, it being his first appearance at such a function since the orders for mobilization were issued Saturday.

Gen. Miles and Col. Kincaide on Tuesday inspected the proposed camp at Westfield, and that evening were guests and speakers at the banquet of the Holyoke Business Men's Association, when over 400 covers were laid, and the ladies were entertained.

TODAY'S COURT.

Peter J. Donahue, Jr., Charles E. Hollingshead and Walter Greno were arraigned for violation of the town by laws of Braintree, by loitering on the sidewalk. They were found guilty and their cases were placed on file with the understanding that if the offence was again committed these cases would be taken up.

Miss Underwood Eligible.

Some doubt having arisen whether Miss Julia E. Underwood was eligible in the Herald contest, her friends have interviewed the editor of the School Contest, and they are assured that there is no question whatever.

The Coddington is a "grammar school" and Miss Underwood is a "lady teacher in a grammar school." Kindly note the reading. In Boston there are primary buildings which are not eligible.

Already 600 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 1000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

The editor of the Daily Ledger would like to hear from all the former pupils of Miss Julia Underwood, especially in the early years—1855 to 1875. He would also be pleased to read reminiscences of her former pupils, and hopes to gather many letters before the 50th anniversary March 31.

Today the Coddington school is No. 3 among the schools, Miss Underwood is No. 3 among the teachers, and Master Henry C. Prescott is No. 1 among the pupils. Shall we keep them there?

River Appropriations.

The National Senate is expected to pass today the House bill appropriating $9,827 for Town river in Quincy, $50,500 for the Fore river, and $10,000 for the Neponset river.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

Lola saw that she had gone too far. She tried to recover lost ground. "I do not know his names," she said sullenly, then burst out: "But I wish you no harm. Eh, will you believe that, my preserver?"

"I'll believe nothing if you will not tell me the truth," said Brendon, a little cruelly. "Come, Lola, admit that you paid Bawdsey to watch me."

"I did not pay—no, not one sou. He did it for love."

"Oh, indeed! So Bawdsey is in love with you?"

Lola threw back her head defiantly. "Yes, he is, and I care not one, two, three little trifles for him. Chup! He is old—he is red—he is one big fool, that I can twist and twist"—

"And you apparently have done so. Well, then, Lola, did you get him from a private inquiry office?"

"No, I did not so. He loved me, and sent me flowers—oh, many, many flowers—those roses." She pointed to a silver dish filled with roses. He has flowers from a friend in San Remo."

Brendon sat up with an eager look in his eyes. So Bawdsey knew some one in San Remo. Brendon began to think that there was some meaning in all these things and plied Lola with questions. She was sulky at first and would not answer. But Brendon knew how to manage her, and before the conclusion of the conversation he got the whole truth out of her.

"So Bawdsey knows San Remo, and he is fifty or over fifty years of age. H'm! He knows all the history of the place, I suppose."

"I know not—nothing do I know."

"Ah, that's a pity! Bawdsey could tell you some nice tales." He fixed a keen glance on her. "About some yellow holly, for instance."

Lola winced, for the shot had gone home. But she still held to her declaration of ignorance. "I know nothings—absolutely."

"But apparently this man knows a great deal. He is in love with you and must have told you much. Did he inform you of a certain murder which took place at San Remo?"

"Ah, bah! Why should he? I knew of all already."

"You! How did you know?"

"My father and my mothers, they lived in San Remo when—oh, they did tell me all of that Englishman."

"Did they know who murdered him?" asked George, marveling at this unexpected discovery.

"No. No one know anythings."

"Was there no suspicion?"

"Not one suspicions. I know nothings," she repeated doggedly.

"It strikes me that you do. How did you and Bawdsey come to be talking of this matter?"

"We did not talk." Lola looked down at her foot as she told the lie and moved it restlessly.

George rose and took up his hat. Throwing his coat over his arm, he moved toward the door. "Good night, mademoiselle."

She sprang to her feet and flew after him. "No, no!" she cried in lively alarm. "You must not go, my dearest dear!"

"What is the use of my stopping when you will not show your gratitude toward me by telling the truth?"

"I will tell! I will tell! Sit down. The coat—you shall not go. I will say all. Ask what you will. Sit, my little cabbage—a wine in the glass—ah, yes—and a cigarette. Come, be good. Am I mademoiselle?"

"No," said George, smiling on her pleading face. "You are my friend Lola now that you are sensible."

"Ah, only friend!" she said sadly. "But I speak. Yes?"

George began at once to question her lest the yielding mood should pass away. "You made the acquaintance of Bawdsey at the hall?"

Lola nodded. "He loved me; he sent me flowers. I learn that he looks after people, and I made him watch you. I told him your name."

"Did he know my name?" asked Brendon quickly.

"He knew everything—oh, yes—all—all!"

Brendon was taken aback. "All—all what?" he asked, amazed.

"Why"—Lola twirled her fingers—"all what you would not tell to me, my dear. That your names is Vane, and milor"—

"Derrington! Did Bawdsey mention Lord Derrington?"

"Yes. Oh, many times he speaks of milor. I speaks of San Remo. This—this Bawdsey ask me of the blue domino—of the holly"—

"Of the murder, in fact."

"It is quite so, my friend. Of the murder of your father."

"What?" George started from his seat. "Did he know that the man who was murdered at San Remo was my father?"

"Yes, and that it was difficult about the marriages."

"That also. He appears to know the whole story. And he mentioned Lord Derrington. That is how he comes to be acquainted with these facts. A spy—Derrington is employing him. And the man is boarding in Amelia square." George struck his hands together. "By Jove, it's a conspiracy, and I never knew anything!"

"I do not wish you to have the marriages right, George," said Lola, with a pout. "If you are as what you are, then you will marry me. She will not be madame."

"Did Bawdsey tell you the name of the lady?"

"No. But he will tell. But she is a well born one, and I am of the gutter. But I love you—ah, yes, I love you!" She threw her arms round him. "Be still Brendons, and not milor, and I am yours."

"No, no!" George took her arms from his neck and spoke more soberly. "Lola, hold your tongue about what you have told me, and I'll see you again. If you speak, I see you no more."

"I will be silent," she said as Brendon put on his coat. "But you are cruel, wicked. You shall never be milor, never!"

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NEW TRAINS.

The Council Committee Very Successful.

Several Additions are Promised.

It is more than probable that Quincy will see a decided improvement in its Boston train service within a few days. The conferences between the Special City Council Committee and T. E. Byrnes, assistant to President Mellen, have been most congenial.

Mr. Byrnes is a thorough railroad man and has taken an unusual interest in Quincy. He is anxious to cooperate with the people and will do everything in his power to give Quincy better service than it has ever had.

He intends to entirely revise the Quincy schedule, and when the new timetable is issued there will be many important changes, which will include practically half hour service in the morning, new express trains and a late theatre train.

In the meantime Quincy is not to be neglected. Within a few days there will probably be two new inward express trains in the morning about 9.01 and 11.01 and a new evening express about 7 o'clock.

For the outward service there will probably be four or five new express trains.

The exact time cannot be given as yet, but there will probably be an express leaving Boston between 9 and 10, one between 10 and 11, one about 11.45, one about 12.45 and one about 3.45. These will be in addition to the present schedule.

No Sign of Agreement

Washington, March 3.—At a final meeting of the conferees on the Panama canal bill the futility of attempting a compromise was admitted and the conferees decided to ask for their discharge. As this decision will probably be accepted by the two houses, the effect will be to kill the bill. Under the Spooner act it is conceded that the president is empowered to go ahead with the construction of the canal.

Money For Jamestown Show

Washington, March 3.—Government participation in the exposition to celebrate the first permanent settlement of English-speaking people on the western hemisphere in the vicinity of Jamestown, Va., was provided by the house when the bill for that purpose was passed under a suspension of the rules. The amount appropriated is $250,000. The measure later passed the senate and now goes to the president.

Governor Called Upon For Facts

Madison, Wis., March 3.—A resolution was introduced in the senate calling upon Governor La Follette to give the detailed figures on which he bases his deductions in regard to Wisconsin railway earnings and to present the same to the senate. This is the first time in the history of Wisconsin that statements in the message of a governor have been challenged.

Alleged Conspiracy to Defraud

New York, March 3.—The federal grand jury indicted Richard Cohn, S. L. Simpson and I. G. Mann on a charge of conspiracy to defraud, in connection with involuntary bankruptcy petitions against the American Wire and Steel company, and Cohn, who was a furniture dealer. The men were later arrested and released on bail.

Vassar College to Advance Rates

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 3.—President Taylor of Vassar college announces that the rates which have been maintained since 1866 are to be advanced, making the four years' cost to the pupil staying at the college $2000, an increase of $400. Increase in cost of education and of living are given as the reasons for the increase.

Sun Spots Affected Telegraph

Chicago, March 3.—Aurora borealis predicted to appear yesterday afternoon on a large scale, as a result of sun spots, arrived on schedule time. Telegraph circuits westward from Chicago were noticeably affected. The disturbance seemingly extended from Chicago to Sioux City, Ia.

DRAMA "MR. BOB."

Dramatic evening of the Manet club brought out an audience that comfortably filled Colonial hall. "Mr. Bob" the play selected, while not new to many, as it has had several presentations in Quincy, is always well received and enjoyed, as it abounds in amusing situations. Thursday evening's production was particularly enjoyable, the local cast giving a fine performance.

Alexander Rose, as the butler, was capital, and Miss Bonnlyn Morgan, as Patty the maid, was irresistable. Miss Carrie Underwood, the maiden aunt; Miss Annie Rose, as Mr. Bob; Miss Margaret Davidson, the niece; Merton Turner, as Robert Brown, and Ernest Ames as Philip Royson, entered into the spirit of their parts with flattering results.

The applause was frequent and hearty. Several bouquets were passed over the footlights and curtain calls demanded.

The play was given under the direction of Miss May Rose, and E. L. Mitchell was stage manager.

Following the play, dancing was enjoyed until half-past eleven; Mrs. Rhines at the piano inspiring all to enjoy the pastime.

It was one of the most enjoyable of the many pleasant evenings given this season by the Manet club, and those in charge are to be congratulated.

Inaugurals of 1789 and 1905.

Mr. Norman Hapgood makes an interesting comparison between the times of President Washington's and President Roosevelt's inaugurals, when he says in this week's Collier's:

The inaugural this week unfolds far other sights and a far different leader. When the first President was inaugurated, the city which was to bear his name was in the womb of time. When John Adams entered it, it consisted of half-finished edifices lying in a wilderness. Firewood was scarce, because none could be found to cut the trees. The spot was beautiful, but wild. Savages and beasts still lurked among the thickets, and from the adjoining hill the wide view swept over distances unknown to civilized man.

Today this capital is an immense and powerful race, this fairest city swarms with Americans from vast western regions, which then no white man's eye had seen. It is dotted, also, here and there, on the occasion of the twenty-sixth President's inaugural, with people of dusky hue and varied garb, tokens of an empire undreamed of when Washington was alive. Conditions changing have altered profoundly the premises on which the philosophy of that day was based. It assumed remoteness from the other world as the essential of our position. Now we reach that world as easily as Washington came from Boston to New York. We speak to Europe more quickly than Washington could get a message from one wing of his army to another, Changing facts have meant changing policies, and yet in spirit the philosophy of 1789 guides our steps today. Could Washington be deposited in the city of his name, he would draw no quick conclusions. Haste was no ingredient of his nature. He would learn whether the eighty million people who had spread across his continent were happy, as this world goes. He would decide whether they were virtuous, in man's small way, and I think he would conclude that the country had done well with the inheritance which he left.

WILL NOT RESIGN

Change Wanted in Keeper of Almshouse.

But He Proposes to Contest It.

Overseer F. F. Green of the Poor department has requested George Wilson, keeper of the almshouse, to resign, and Mr. Wilson has refused. What will happen next?

Rumors have been freely circulated about the city during the past few days that Mr. Wilson was to get out, and that George Westland was to be appointed as his successor.

When seen this morning, Mr. Wilson admitted that he had received a letter from Overseer Green dated Feb. 27, requesting him to hand in his resignation March 4. He further said that he had paid no attention to the request, and that he did not intend to send in his resignation.

Mr. Wilson says that he was appointed under the veterans service act, and that he cannot be removed except for cause. He further says, that if charges are preferred against him, that he will contest them.

Overseer Green when seen this morning admitted that he had requested Mr. Wilson to hand in his resignation March 4, and no reply had as yet been received from the request. He said he should wait until after that date before taking the next step.

MILTON.

Rev. Theodore I. Reese entertained the choir boys of the Missions church Wednesday evening at a turkey supper. During the evening Mr. Jackson contributed piano solos and songs.

Mrs. Thomas Hook of Granite avenue is ill with pneumonia.

There is but little excitement this year over the annual town meeting.

The whist club met Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bearse. Prizes for the best scores were awarded Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dougherty, Mrs. McIntosh and Mrs. Ernest P. Lilly.

George Clements, driver of Hose 2, has been off duty this week an account of the grip.

A pleasing entertainment and social was held at the Baptist church Wednesday evening.

Michael Barry is improving the looks of his house with paint.

A cake and candy sale was held Friday afternoon and evening in the basement of the Mission church by the young people.

The dancing party given by the Viscaria Oculata Club of Milton in Ellsworth hall, East Milton, Wednesday evening was in every way a great success. The matrons were Mrs. John Connell, white silk with pale blue, and Mrs. James MacKay, white tulle with imported lace. The guests were ushered by Miss Anna McCloud, white peau de soie with violets; Miss Mary Banning, white lace over satin with rose trimmings; Miss Grace Barry, white crepe de chine with real lace and Miss Alice Gunning, pink moire with white roses. The hall was prettily trimmed, and Cuff's orchestra furnished the music. This party is the beginning of many social events to follow by the Viscaria Oculata Club.

Rebekah Initiation.

One of the most enjoyable evenings of the season, was that held in I. O. O. F. hall, Thursday evening, by Geo. L. Gill, Rebekah lodge, when over one hundred assembled to witness the initiation of five candidates, which was done by the degree team, in almost a letter perfect manner. After the business of the lodge, remarks were made by P. S. D., Mrs. Annie E. Sawyer, P. S. G. M., Mrs. Nellie Harrington of Boston, and other visiting members. Delegations were present from Braintree, South Weymouth, East Weymouth, Cambridge, Dorchester, Newport News, South Boston, and other places. At the close a fine banquet was served, after which the evening was spent in social intercourse and dancing.

SEVERE WINTER.

James and Thomas Mattie have just returned from Nova Scotia, being called to their old home by the sudden death of their mother. They left Quincy Feb. 16th and were due there Feb. 18th. All went well until Picton was reached on the evening of the 17th, but it was not until the 22d that they could push through to their destination. The train became stalled being unable to make any headway against snow drifts which were higher than the cars. The railroad being operated by the government, the 200 passengers were fed at hotels.

It has been a winter of unusual severity in the vicinity of Tracadie where their parents reside; surpassing the winter of forty years ago. One day while there the mercury was 35 degrees below zero. Wood choppers who went into the woods were unable to get their horses out, and found it necessary to kill them because the supply of hay and grain became exhausted. They were fortunate to get out themselves. The railroads have smashed most of their snow ploughs and derailments and accidents have been numerous.

Mr. Mattie says he would like to have Quincy people see some of the snow drifts, but would not want them to encounter the severity of the winter.

Mrs. Mattie was 72 years old and is survived by a husband 84 years old, also sons and daughters.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

CAN'T HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT TOO

Have you heard about Little Bruin and how he saved the honey? No? Well, I guess that is because it only happened the other day.

His grandfather promised him that if he were a good bear and kept his paws clean for a week he should go with him to gather honey, and that if he helped well he should have a jar.

Bruin was, of course, a model bear, and at the end of the week went out into the woods with grandpa bear to get the honey which the bees had put away in the hollow trees. Little Bruin worked well, and he and grandpa filled up several jars with the sweet sirup, and one of these was given to our little bear.

He was delighted. Trudging along toward Bearville he hugged the precious jar to his little stomach and thought what he would do with all that boney.

"I'll give some of it to Tiny and to Jim and some to Southpaw and some to mother," he said, looking into the jar. It looked so good that he took a lick with his tongue.

"BETTER LET ME CARRY THAT JAR."

"My, that's good! I guess I'll sell half of it and buy myself toys." Then he took another lick.

"My, it's nearly half gone," he thought. "I guess I'll save the rest for the fair for the Bears' Orphan home next week." But his little tongue found its way to the jar again.

When they reached the milepost, near home, his grandpa said, "Bruin, you better let me carry that jar; you seem to be losing the honey out of it."

"Oh, no, grandpa," said he, "only one mile more and then I'll give some to that lame bear next door." But that tongue could not keep from that honey. When they reached home it was all gone.

"I wish I had that honey," said he.

"You have it," said his grandpa, "but it's in the wrong place, that's all."

"Yes," said Mother Bear, "can't have your cake and eat it too."

BY REQUEST

Granite Cutters and Manufacturers Are Holding Conference.

Trouble is All Because of Misunderstandings.

The State Board of Arbitration Has Received an Appeal.

Another conference between the committees representing the Granite Manufacturers' and Cutters' Unions is the latest development in the granite trouble. This conference was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the rooms of the manufacturers' association in the Adams building.

The request for this conference came from the State Board of Arbitration this morning, in the form of a communication sent to both committees, requesting them to hold another conference. Who was at the bottom of the suggestion does not matter as long as the desired result is reached.

Both sides immediately complied with the request, and the meeting was arranged as announced.

The Master Builders' committee have also called for a meeting this afternoon to take the necessary steps toward getting the two committees together in conference. They will not be displeased however to learn that someone has forestalled them.

Other than this there is nothing new in the situation today from what it was yesterday. It is the general hope that this afternoon's conference will bring forth a speedy settlement of the differences which seems to be largely one of misunderstanding.

For latest news of the conference see the Quincy Patriot which will be issued at 6 o'clock tonight.

Messrs. Palmer, Barry and Howland of the State Board of Arbitration were present at the conference.

Quincy Almshouse.

From the annual report of the State Board of Charities the Ledger learns the following relative to the Quincy Almshouse, some of which is undoubtedly news. The inspection was made June 1, 1904:

Warden, George Wilson; matron, Mrs. Wilson; salary, $600; served here two years. Warden also has charge of supplies for out-door poor. Two assistants, women, paid by city. Total annual cost, $3,278.25; net, $2,878.25. Wooden building of three stories and one wing, with iron fire-escapes. One sitting-room; twenty sleeping-rooms, with twenty beds. Three bath rooms, supplied with hot and cold water. Three water closets; three detached privies. Heating by steam.

Sexes separated at night only. Eighteen inmates; twelve men and six women. Four men do general work; one woman washes and sews. Ages: one between 30 and 40; one between 40 and 50; one between 50 and 60; eleven between 60 and 70; four between 70 and 80. Eleven acres of land; one acre tilled. Almshouse in fair condition, and fairly well managed. Prescribed register kept.

—"Jimmy," said the teacher after reading the youngster's "note from his father" excusing Jimmy's absence from school the day before, "it seems to me your father's writing is very much like yours." "Yes" replied Jimmy, unabashed, "father ain't had no education, and I'm learnin' him.

☞Representative George Schofield of Ipswich accepted service of the Bryant-Sheppard libel suit in Dedham. Under the law he was not obliged to pay any attention to it, but he had some things he wanted to say, and he also was agreeable to doing a good turn for Bryant, who uttered what Sheppard declares are libelous words, at a hearing before the coal investigation committee which caused all the trouble. Mr. Copeland of the news service, on the other hand, was not so fortunate. He went out because he had to go, and for no other reason, and he got away from there just as soon as he could.—Practical Politics.

☞The Senate has decided that the nation needs the battleships that were in the naval appropriation bill. Two scout ships have also been added. Nothing more has been heard in the line of Senator Hale's talk about bullying the little powers with a big navy. It was unworthy talk and a poor argument for a New Englander, and one of which the senator is likely to live to be ashamed. Those who talk about the expenses of the navy ought to remember that the expense of building up the damage done by a fleet of hostile vessels in a day where they had the chance to ravage the seas unstopped, would surpass the expense of maintaining a good sized navy for several months. The need of a navy is something that is with any nation every hour. No country on the seaboard should be without a navy that is large, and equal to the work that may be cut out for it in the event of a war breaking out. It is not common sense to get along without such a protection against trouble. The peace with all idea is not unobjectionable as a theory, but as a condition it hasn't obtained yet, and it never will till the millennium comes.—Brockton Enterprise.

No Smoking at City Hall.

Mayor Buttrick of Melrose has sent communications to the heads of all the departments having offices in the City Hall requesting that they prohibit smoking in their offices in business hours. It is said that complaints have been made by women who have business at city hall about the smoking by the officials. The board of health of Melrose has also issued notices that there must be no more spitting on the sidewalks, in the public buildings or in the cars, and that prosecution will follow any violation of the law.

DUEL OF ARTILLERY

Whole Main Front Engaged In Fierce Conflict

THE RAID ON SINMINTIN

Reported Dash by Japanese Cavalry May Seriously Affect Russian Army Supplies--Non-Combatants on Line of Siberian Railway Facing Famine

St. Petersburg, March 3.—In a long dispatch from General Kuropatkin which was received here yesterday, the commander-in-chief of the army in Manchuria gives details of the various attacks by the Japanese the last few days, and a press correspondent at Mukden, in a dispatch received at midnight, indicates a continuation of the artillery duel, but neither report throws any light upon the rumored intention of Kuropatkin to withdraw northward, which has been the gossip of St. Petersburg for the last two days.

Heavy fighting is taking place all along the east front, and apparently on the Russian east flank. From the west comes a belated dispatch showing that on Tuesday the Japanese occupied a line stretching northwestward from Shatzemun, a little west of the Hun, to Kalita, on the east bank of the Liao. They drove in the Russian outposts in this region, but at first seem to have attempted nothing more, and not to have replied to the heavy Russian bombardment. This movement of the Japanese may have been either in preparation for a flanking attack, or to check any such movement as that of Gripenberg on the part of the Russians.

The Japanese raid on Sinmintin, if Newchwang has truthfully reported it, may prove of considerable importance in its effect on the supplies of the Russian army. For months past there has been a large trade in provisions from Mongolia, and over the Chinese railway from the Gulf of Liaotung. There is said to be a large accumulation of stores in the region of Sinmintin, and if the Japanese should succeed in destroying these the effect might be considerable.

The raiding force is reported as only 400 cavalry, but there are said to be 10,000 Japanese troops near to them. The existence of this force due west of Mukden, and only about 30 miles distant, may also constitute a menace to the railway.

The Siberian railroad, which is being worked to its full capacity by purely military traffic, is about to have a further burden imposed upon it, namely, that of feeding the resident non-combatant population. The stocks of provisions in Irkutsk and other towns in Siberia were not as large as usual at the beginning of the winter and are now running low. The government has been informed that provisions must be imported by the railroad or that the towns will be face to face with famine within a fortnight. This will necessitate some delay in the forwarding of military supplies, which are sorely needed at the present moment.

From a Japanese Source

London, March 3.—A dispatch from Tokio to The Daily Telegraph states that the Japanese are endeavoring to force a decisive battle in Manchuria, but that it is feared General Kuropatkin will retreat, fighting a rear guard action.

Reports from the Shakhe river indicate that the Russian morale is seriously impaired and there are numerous voluntary surrenders, not only of Poles and Jews, but of recently arrived European troops. They relate that rumors are current in the army that Kuropatkin has been recalled, and knowledge of the internal troubles in Russia causes a deep depression in the army.

Reports at Tokio, but not confirmed officially, are to the effect that the Japanese have occupied Sakhalien.

Bombardment Continues

Mukden, March 3.—The thunder of cannon is heard from all positions. Putiloff and Novgorod hills are hidden by the smoke from the guns. The bombardment was resumed after the repulse of an infantry attack by Japanese. A heavy bombardment is also in progress in the neighborhood of the Shakhe bridge, apparently in preparation for an attack in that quarter. The weather continues fine and warm.

Czar Friendly to Stoessel

St. Petersburg, March 3.—General Stoessel, who was given an audience by the czar yesterday, was received with a warmth which went far to atone for the cool reception which he was given by several of the newspapers and military factions. No steps have yet been taken towards an investigation of the surrender of Port Arthur, but the whole matter will soon be placed in the hands of a commission of inquiry.

BLACK CLOUDS INDEED

Industrial Troubles Break Out With Renewed Vigor

St. Petersburg, March 3.—Black clouds are again lowering over the industrial situation of Russia. The strike at Moscow has been resumed on a large scale, anarchy reigns in the Caucasus, and at St. Petersburg the measures which the government advanced to quiet discontent and restore good relations between masters and men appear to have failed, with the probability of causing the storm to break anew.

The labor delegates representing the whole of the industrial population of St. Petersburg, and who were elected to choose 50 members of the Schidlovski reconciliation commission, met again yesterday and reaffirmed the resolutions adopted the previous day, which threatened, in case the demands for the release of imprisoned workmen and freedom from arrest, unhampered speech, full publicity of meetings of the commission, the abolition of the censorship, etc., are not granted, not only to refuse to elect labor representatives to the commission, but to order a resumption of the general strike. A practical ultimatum was delivered, calling for an answer today. There is little expectation that the government will grant the conditions demanded.

The strike already has assumed large proportions here, about 50,000 men being out. Among those who struck yesterday are the employes of the St. Petersburg shops of the Warsaw railroad. The leaders may decide to order the trainmen out, in order to paralyze one of the most important railroads in Russia.

Bomb In Police Courtyard

Warsaw, March 3.—A bomb was thrown from a window overlooking the courtyard of the Muranoff district police station yesterday afternoon. It fell in the midst of a group of soldiers, but did not explode. Two Jews have been arrested for supposed connection with the affair. No details are available, as the authorities are very reticent.

May Have Had Designs on Czar

St. Petersburg, March 3.—The police at Tsarskoe-Selo, who, since the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius have redoubled the ordinary precautions for the protection of the imperial family, have arrested a suspect who was found to be armed with a heavily loaded revolver. An investigation is on foot.

Czar Is Evidently Scared

St. Petersburg, March 3.—The Official Messenger publishes an imperial manifesto calling on the country to rally round the throne in defense of the empire from its internal enemies.

Their Journey Cut Short

New Brunswick, N. J., March 2.—J. F. Cordova, at one time a clergyman, and Miss Julia Bowne, arrived here from Washington, where they were taken into custody on a request from the local authorities, who alleged they were fugitives from justice. Cordova was arraigned and held in $1000 bonds on an abandonment charge and Miss Bowne in $500 as a witness. As neither could furnish bail they were taken to jail.

MISS OLSEN LOCATED

Says She Is Not Concerned In Missing Cheney Securities

Providence, March 3.—Private detectives visited here Miss Olsen, a young woman who was working in the home of H. S. Cheney at Southbridge, Mass., at the time of the disappearance, about Jan. 17, of $285,000 worth of securities. The result of the interview was not made public.

Regarding the visit of the detectives, Miss Olsen stated that on the day of the disappearance of the securities she and one other servant were in the house. When the loss of the bonds became known she was questioned and Cheney was satisfied that she was not concerned in the matter. She said that she became discouraged at the turn of affairs and came to this city, where she secured employment. Cheney, she said, knew where she had located.

Held Up In His Home

Waterbury, Conn., March 3.—Thomas Lockwood, aged 82, a recluse, was found in his farmhouse near here with his skull fractured and his body badly cut and bruised. He says that two men called upon him and, at the point of a revolver, made him sign a document giving them a right for a trolley line over his land. As he was signing it, he says, they assaulted him with a bludgeon and then rifled his house, taking everything of value to them. Four thousand dollars in non-negotiable securities was left behind.

Station Agent Kills Burglar

Unionville, Conn., March 3.—A. A. Burnham, station agent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in this village, shot and killed one of a gang of burglars who had broken into the station. A complete burglar's kit was found on the body. His companions escaped after a running fight with the station agent, during which several shots were exchanged.

To Destroy Sunken Wrecks

Nantucket, Mass., March 3.—A corps of divers from the United States engineer department have arrived here to commence work of blowing up sunken wrecks in this vicinity which have become a menace to navigation. The divers will commence work immediately.

Woman Crushed to Death

Boston, March 3.—In attempting to avoid being struck by a heavy wagon, Mrs. Annie McGaffigan, a widow, 60 years old, jumped in front of an electric car on Cambridge street, near her home, and was crushed so badly that she died before she reached a hospital.

Must Be Tried For Conspiracy

Trenton, March 3.—Judge Lanning, in the United States district court, dismissed the demurrers to the indictment of Messrs. Stone, Quintard, C. W. Russ and J. Russ of the Montana Cork works of Camden, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the United States government by inserting pieces of iron in cork life-preservers. As a result of the decision, the defendants will have to stand trial under the indictment.

Balfour Ministry's Close Shave

London, March 3.—The house of commons last night, in considering the additional army estimates, gave the government a majority of only 24 on a minor amendment. The result of this division was received with an outburst of cheering by the opposition and cries of "resign." In subsequent divisions the government majority hovered around 26 and 28 and the matter was the subject of excited comment in the lobby.

Difficulties Not Yet Adjusted

New York, March 3.—After an all-day conference between representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen in this city, it was announced that another meeting would be held today in the effort to reach a settlement on the differences between the two organizations which so nearly resulted in trouble on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Knocked Out by Poor Whiskey

New York, March 3.—One man is dead, another blind and several are seriously ill as the result of drinking whisky which is believed to have contained wood alcohol. The liquor was given to hired mourners in a synagogue in the East Side. Aaron Kolish was taken ill soon after drinking the stuff and died later, and Joseph Keide, sexton of the synagogue, has become blind. No arrests have been made.

Trying to Oust Standard Oil

Kansas City, March 3.—The Standard Oil company has been served, through its local agent, with legal notice of the filing of the proceedings brought against it at Topeka, alleging failure to comply with the laws of the state. The notice requires the company to answer Attorney General Coleman's charges on or before March 30.

French Strikers Hurt In Charge

Toulon, March 3.—There were serious strike disturbances here last evening. Workmen threw stones and exploded firecrackers beneath the gendarmes' horses. A charge ensued, in which several persons were wounded.

Bills Aimed at Gamblers

Sacramento, Cal., March 3.—The assembly has passed a bill prohibiting pool selling or wagering on a horse race. The anti-prize fight bill has been passed by the senate on reconsideration. The measure now goes to the assembly.

Suicide In Wedding's Wake

Ottumwa, Ia., March 3.—Ernest F. Dubbert, aged 19, killed himself with carbolic acid a few hours after his marriage. He died in his bride's arms and gave no explanation for his act.

CITY BREVITIES.

Next Monday will be town meeting day in towns about Quincy.

Indoor games of football will be played in Quincy tonight for the first time.

Probate court for Norfolk County will be held at Quincy next Wednesday morning.

Founder's day will be observed at the Woodward Institute on Saturday evening, March 11.

The street railway has began to break in conductors and motormen for the summer season.

There will be a complete story as well as the instalment of "The Yellow Holly" in the Saturday Ledger.

The choir of the United Presbyterian church will give a recital at the church on Thursday evening, Mar. 9.

The sleighing continues good on most of the side streets, but in City Square and the main thoroughfares there is considerable bare ground.

Several heads of departments appeared before the City Council Committee on Finance Thursday evening, and considerable progress was made on the annual budget.

There will be a candy sale at Bethany chapel, Thursday evening, March 16, when the "District School of Blueberry Corner," will hold another session. It will be for the benefit of the Sunday school.

The Box & Cox Company are first class entertainers and their vaudeville entertainment tonight will probably be far ahead of any previous entertainments in the city at least that is what Mrs. George G. Saville, Emery L. Crane and Houghton Schumacher say and they ought to know.

March Magazines.

From cover to cover the March McClure's teems with interest. In the discussion of vital topics, in romance, in action, in humor, and in verse it runs the gamut of human experience. It is a number with never a dull page and crowded, too, with sound, solid matter which takes high place in the arena of public discussion—matter that it is not possible to miss and yet pretend to follow the drift of civic life. Mary Stewart Cutting has another "Little Story of Courtship," a sweet tale of the winning of the right girl. There is the quality of truth in these stories.

The leading feature of Lippincott's Magazine for March is a novelette by Captain Archibald W. Butt, U. S. A., called "Both Sides of The Shield." The Shield is, of course, the South before the War. A writer on a Northern paper goes to Georgia to report conditions and falls in with a typical Southern family, much reduced in estate. He also falls in love with the daughter, and when his newspaper revelations come to her ears she indignantly rejects him. The Spanish-American War, strangely enough, brings a truce to the bitterness, and all ends in charming appropriateness.

Grandma beside the evening lamp, scanning the pages of her old scrapbook makes beautiful the cover of the March number of the National Magazine of Boston. And the contents of the number sustain the happy first impressions given by the cover. For the National is essentially a high-class home magazine, and it brings into the widely scattered homes of its readers each month the story of the whole world's larger aims and undertakings, told in the simple, direct language of the home.

"My husband is just the best man in the world and we get along beautifully," said a Lewiston woman confidentially to a neighbor the other day. "I threw a flatiron at him the other day and it struck Georgie, our oldest boy, in the leg and my husband never said a word."

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

A SHORT ADDRESS

One of Roosevelt's New Reforms at Inauguration

CONSIDERED ADVISABLE

Realization of Fact That to See, Not to Hear, Is the Desire of Audience--White House Overrun With Visitors--President to Entertain Rough Riders

Washington, March 3.—Among the reforms under way for the coming inauguration, such as the limitation of the parade to interesting features, it is understood that President Roosevelt will contribute in the same direction by an inaugural address so brief as to seem a radical departure from his usual messages and state papers and from the inaugural address of other presidents of recent years.

The "messages and papers of the presidents" reveal a tendency to make these papers longer, with the growth of the nation, the widening of our interests and particularly the fullness with which everything is printed in the newspapers. The old inaugural addresses were short and it is highly desirable that the practice should be restored.

The address is delivered in circumstances which do not invite study of intellectual problems; the crowd on the east front of the Capitol are there to see, and not to hear. Very few of them can hear, and therefore the impropriety of a long address which only delays the start of the procession.

The White House is overrun with inauguration visitors, who, under the escort of senators and representatives, are "paying their respects" to the president. These lawmakers maintain that their regular duties are seriously invaded by these requests from constituents who seem more eager to call on the president than to do anything else. The city is rapidly filling with people. Saturday weather, upon which all else depends, now promises well. Unless there is another downpour, all the important streets will be dry by tomorrow.

All incoming trains have brought in large crowds. The hotel lobbies are thronged and the streets are filled with the strangers. The committee on street decorations is putting the finishing touches on its elaborate scheme of embellishing the line of parade and the "court of history," into which the plaza in front of the White House, treasury and state, war and navy buildings has been transformed, is almost complete. Wednesday's snow has practically disappeared and the reviewing stands erected along the line on both sides of the route of march are in readiness.

The chorus for the inauguration concert which is to be held next Monday night have had a general rehearsal with over 450 members present. The entire program to be carried out at the concert was rehearsed under the direction of Percy S. Foster, and accompanied by the United States Marine band. Another meeting of the members will be held tonight at the pension building.

At the conclusion of the inaugural parade Saturday President Roosevelt will receive at the White House the members of his Rough Rider escort of honor and such other members of his old regiment as may be in the city. The entire party will be entertained by President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a luncheon. He also will receive and shake hands with the cowboys who have been brought to Washington by Captain Bullock. They will ride through the porte cochere of the White House and each man will give the president a "riding shake." None of them will dismount.

The details of the personnel of the grand military and civic pageant are given in "General Orders No. 5" of the grand marshal, made public last night by the inaugural committee. It gives the order of the parade, its organization, movement and dismissal, and shows all of the military and civic bodies which are to participate, as well as the position which they will occupy. It is estimated that approximately 30,000 men will be in line.

Fire In Chicago Hospital

Chicago, March 3.—Sixteen patients, some of them critically ill, were carried from the Chicago Union hospital last night during a small fire on the third floor. The structure is of wood, but good work by nurses and attendants held the flames down somewhat until the arrival of the fire department. The damage was $1000.

Opposed to Japanese Immigration

Sacramento, Cal., March 3.—A concurrent resolution calling on President Roosevelt and the department of state to take action against Japanese immigration was unanimously adopted by the California assembly. The resolution is identical with one previously presented in the state senate.

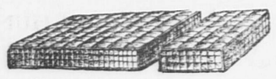

Canadian Beaten at Wrestling

Utica, N. Y., March 3.—Jim Parr of Buffalo defeated Carl Pons of Montreal in a wrestling match here last night. Parr won the first fall in 10:30 and the third fall in 16:30. Pons secured the second fall in 15 minutes.

Fisherman a Total Wreck

Yarmouth, N. S., March 3.—Schooner Arbutus, ashore at Abbott's island, broke up during the gale last night and has become a total wreck, with her cargo of 18,000 pounds of fish.

FIGHT OVER WAGES

Granite Cutters' Strikes Are On In Three States

STORM CENTER AT QUINCY

Other Bay State Quarries Affected, as Well as Some In Maine and Vermont--Financial Aid Not Needed at Present

Boston, March 3.—The granite industry in New England, both in the building and monumental quarries, is seriously affected. Some 1800 men are out on strike at Quincy, Worcester and Milford, this state, Waldoboro and Stonington, Me., and Bethel, Vt. A settlement was made yesterday with the workmen at Vinalhaven, Me., while at the great quarries at Barre, Vt., Concord, N. H., and Westerly, R. I., the men are working on a basis said to be satisfactory.

A satisfactory settlement is also anticipated in the quarries at Milford, N. H., while at smaller Maine quarries and at High Island and Long Cove, there is apparently no trouble.

The storm centre is at Quincy, where 1200 cutters are out on a dispute over the wage scale which expired Wednesday. About 50 have struck at Milford, Mass., 150 at Worcester, 100 at the Hurricane Island Granite company's quarries near Waldoboro, Me., about 100 have been out for some time at the quarries in Stonington, Me., while 200 workmen struck at Bethel, Vt.

In nearly all of these quarries the dispute is over the scale of wages, the strikers demanding a minimum wage of $3 a day. At Waldoboro, however, the dispute is over the length of the period of settlement, the $3 a day minimum having been granted by the company. The strikers there want the bill of prices limited to one year, while the company insists on a settlement on a three-year basis.

No offers of help have as yet been received by the workmen at the strike centres, but it is not expected that any call for aid will be made for some time, as the union is in a very satisfactory financial condition.

Ambassador's Daughter to Wed

Paris, March 3.—A dance at the embassy last night inaugurated the festivities attending the wedding of Miss Elsie Porter, daughter of the ambassador, to Dr. Edwin Mende of Zurich, Switzerland. The French government signalized its esteem of the ambassador by presenting Miss Porter with a Sevres tea set specially made at the government's porcelain factory and bearing her initials. There were numerous superb presents. The church marriage will take place Saturday.

Money For British Navy

London, March 3.—A memorandum of the navy estimates for 1905-1906 shows them to be $166,945,000, against $184,445,000 for the current year. The admiralty proposes to build during the year one battleship, four armored cruisers, five ocean-going torpedo boat destroyers, one ocean-going torpedo boat destroyer of an experimental type, 12 coast torpedo boat destroyers and 11 submarine boats.

Deadlock Remains Unbroken

Jefferson City, Mo., March 3.—The caucus of Republican legislative supporters of T. K. Niedringhaus for United States senator was resumed last night in an endeavor to select another candidate and effect a settlement of the deadlock on the joint balloting for United States senator. Twenty-three ballots were taken without a candidate being agreed on.

Railway Men Won't Strike

New York, March 3.—Though a conference between the officers of the Interborough Rapid Transit company and representatives of the men employed in the subway and on the elevated railway lines in Manhattan will be held today to discuss the renewal of a labor agreement, it is stated that there will be no strike.

Coal Deal Involving $3,500,000

Irwin, Pa., March 3.—The largest coal deal in the history of the bituminous region of this state was consummated when the Westmoreland Coal company took over the Pennsylvania Gas Coal company, the purchase price being about $3,500,000, on a basis of $4 an acre for coal land and $1,500,000 for equipment.

Gift Offered to Government

Indianapolis, March 3.—Henry Wallace, son of General Lew Wallace, on behalf of himself and his mother, has offered "Water Bubble," General Wallace's country place, to the government for a fish hatchery. The farm contains several large artificial lakes, a keeper's lodge and hatchery equipment.

Train Went Over Embankment

Cumberland, Md., March 3.—A fast freight ran away on a grade between Terra Alta and Rowlesburg and 10 steel cars and several cars laoded with live stock went over the embankment when the runaway struck a curve. The stock was killed. Three persons were injured.

Special San Domingo Message

Washington, March 3.—President Roosevelt will send to the senate next Monday a special message relating to the San Domingo treaty which is pending before that body and will urge its ratification. The nature of the message has not been divulged.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

WITHOUT A THEORY

Officials Make No Progress In the Stanford Mystery

Honolulu, March 3.—The police investigation into the death of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford is at a standstill. It had been expected that the report of the chemists on the analysis of the contents of Mrs. Stanford's stomach would be made last night, but they announced that they had not concluded their investigation. It is probable that the inquest will commence this afternoon. High Sheriff Henry said:

"I am utterly unable to formulate any theory that would account for this tragedy. The San Francisco papers which have just been received, containing full accounts of the alleged poisoning case of Jan. 14, have not been of any help to me. I am awaiting results. The analysis of the stomach and the contents of the bi-carbonate of soda bottle, together with the inquest which will follow, may develop some new facts."

One theory is that Mrs. Stanford accidentally mixed strychnine with the bi-carbonate of soda, but Sheriff Henry says there was no strychnine among Mrs. Stanford's medicines found in her chest.

The opinion of most of the investigators is that if there had been a crime it was committed in San Francisco and possibly at the same time that strychnine is said to have been placed in the mineral water on Jan. 14.

CONFESSION TOO LATE

Innocent Man Hanged For Crime Committed by Brother

Washington, Pa., March 3.—"My God, that's my brother. He never killed that woman. I am the murderer. I should have been hanged instead of Eugene," cried Adolph J. Bloch in a frenzy of remorse, interrupting a companion at the steel mill in Canonsburg, who was reading to him an account of the hanging of Eugene Bloch at Allentown on Tuesday.

Adolph Bloch is in the Washington county jail awaiting a hearing on the charge of murder to which he has confessed and for which his innocent brother has been executed. He is a German Jew, 26 years of age, and formerly lived in Philadelphia. His brother was hanged for the alleged murder of Mrs. Kate Falzinger on Aug. 6, 1903. Adolph Bloch declared to the authorities, after the item had been read to him, that he himself killed Mrs. Falzinger and that the brother, who had been hanged, suffered death rather than betray him. Bloch is a mill worker, reads newspapers but little and says he knew nothing of the trial, conviction and execution of his brother until yesterday.

Ready For Chadwick Trial

Cleveland, March 3.—Practically all arrangements have been made for the trial of Mrs. Chadwick in the federal court next Monday. Judge Tayler desires that the trial be conducted just as is every other trial, regardless of any particular prominence Mrs. Chadwick may claim. So far as is possible the rules that govern the courtroom of the United States supreme court will be followed.

Canadian Club's Unique Dinner

New York, March 3.—The Canadian camp ate a rhinoceros dinner last night at the Hotel Astor. Other dishes were Indiana raccoon, mephetis pie, menagerie ices, etc. The "rhino" was served hide, horns, hoofs and tail. It weighed a little less than three tons. It arrived from the Berlin zoo a week ago and was hauled to the hotel in a four-horse truck.

Statehood Conferees Cannot Agree

Washington, March 3.—Numerous conferences on the statehood bill again failed to bring about an agreement by which legislation for either one or two new states may be had at the present session. The conferees adjourned without any proposition having been advanced that even approaches promise of ultimately compromising the difficulties.

Lawyer Sues For $59,000 Bill

Binghamton, N. Y., March 3.—John Delahunty, the New York attorney, who was counsel for Richard A. Canfield for several years, has brought two actions against Canfield to recover $59,000 for legal services. Delahunty was one of the attorneys for Canfield when he was under indictment.

Decision on Christian Science

Columbus, O., March 3.—A decision of the Ohio supreme court, holding that Christian science healers cannot practice without a state license, does not affect those who practice the doctrine purely as a religious belief.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Captain Koester and Captain Hickok, 15th cavalry, have been designated by the war department to make official inspection of the Massachusetts Volunteer militia.

While lighting a fire with the use of kerosene oil, the clothing of Mrs. John Leclaire of Chisholm, Me., caught fire, resulting in her death.

In a fire which destroyed one of the Squantum club's outbuildings at Providence, Miss Katherine Riley, aged 20, a cook, received terrible burns. The fire was caused by the overturning of a lamp.

R. B. Hall, cornet soloist, bandleader and composer, suffered a paralytic shock at Waterville, Me. Physicians expect recovery.

Preliminary examinations for appointment of assistant surgeons in the army will be held on May 1 and Aug. 1, 1905, at points hereafter to be designated. Information can be obtained on application to the surgeon general of the army at Washington.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Fresh mined coal was received this week by J. F. Sheppard & Sons.

Wollaston lodge, A. F. and A. M. will have work at the next communication.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin of Beacon street are rejoicing over the birth of a daughter.

No more cases will be heard at the civil sitting of the Norfolk Superior court at Dedham.

The I's of Bethany church met Thursday evening with Albert Prescott. Rev. E. N. Hardy was a guest.

L. F. Loring of Willow street, Wollaston, is a guest at a house party given by friends in Springfield.

Dr. Gordon returned on Thursday evening from a very pleasant southern trip of several weeks.

Mr. Clifford Bradford of Spear street, has been elected president of the Arts and Crafts society of Melrose.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoel (Mrs. Mary Keenan) have moved from the Point to their new home in Somerville.

The St. Marys basket ball team won again Thursday evening, defeating the Jamaica Plain F. C. A. A. 23 to 7.

The special committee of the City Council to investigate the price paid for illuminating gas in Quincy will meet tonight.

Some of the school children gathered large branches of pussy-willows in the woods this week. This is a sure sign that spring is not far off.

Robert Park, of Wollaston, has just returned from Tuskegee, Alabama, where he has been for the past few weeks studying the negro question.

The bass drum to be used in the grand finale of the minstrel show has arrived in Wollaston. The "Big Brass Band" promises to be quite a feature.

Mrs. Mary E. Tisdale, who was reported seriously ill en route to California, is much improved and has been able to continue her journey to Pasadena.

Some mischievious boys amused themselves Thursday afternoon, by pulling great branches off the apple trees on the vacant lot, corner of East Howard and South streets. This sport continued until an officer happened along and drove them off.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Madison street, Atlantic, was held from the Sacred Heart church this morning at 9 o'clock. Mass was celebrated by the pastor Rev. Fr. Cuffe. Mrs. Sullivan was one of the oldest residents of Atlantic, being in her 72d year. Two sons survive her. The interment was at West Quincy.

The first practical test of the new rules posted in street cars regarding smoking and spitting came this morning on the special cars which bring the Fore River workmen from Neponset. The men filed into the car two thirds of them smoking or chewing tobacco. The conductor politely called their attention to the signs and pipes immediately disappeared.

THE KISS ...OF LIFE

[Original.]

The members of the household stood about my bed waiting for my death. Not brothers, sisters, father, mother, for these were all dead. My aunt stood at the foot of the bed. My Cousin Eugenia, to whom I was engaged to be married, sat weeping near a window, her face buried in her handkerchief. Laura, whom my mother had left to my care when a little girl of but ten years old and for whom I had provided ever since, stood in the background, crowded away from the bed by the others, and I could not see her face. Laura was now twenty and by my death would be left without a home or support. I had provided for her, but had not been fully satisfied with the new will in which I had made the provision and had kept it locked where it would not be found. The old will left everything to Eugenia.

The doctor came and put his hand on my heart and after leaving it there a few minutes said in a softly modulated voice:

My cousin Tom turned and with bowed head walked out of the room, slowly at first, but more rapidly as he neared the door, and I could hear him going downstairs with a springy step. Eugenia rose and cast a frightened glance my way. I expected to see in her face indications of a blighted life. I was astonished to discover a look of relief. Aunt Winifred went to her, put her arm around her, Eugenia's head full on her mother's shoulder, and they passed out of the chamber.

One by one those who had been with me in my last moments left me. Laura stood by a window with her back to me. She waited till the last person had departed, then turned. On her face was genuine grief. She had concealed it in presence of the others, but now that they were gone she gave full vent to it. Coming to me, she knelt by my bed, put her face down into her hands and sobbed as if her heart would break. But hearing a step without she rose, brushed away her tears and began to busy herself about the room, gliding noiselessly here and there while the doctor, who had forgotten his satchel, came in, put away his medical paraphernalia and went away.

Was I dead?

I didn't believe I was. I had often heard of the comatose condition in which a person may linger for a long while and concluded that mine was such a case. I was certainly paralyzed. Had I not been propped up with pillows I should not have seen what I did.

During the night I heard a faint laugh in a distant chamber. I recognized it at once, for I had long loved it. It was Engenia's laugh. I heard a sob in the hall, and in a few moments Laura came in. Softly approaching the bed, she stood looking down at me.

Presently she seemed to notice something in my face—probably a life-like tinge. At any rate, she touched my cheek. She appeared to be disappointed and took her hand away, but not before it had stirred my dormant pulse. Then she bent down and imprinted a kiss upon my lips.

That kiss was like new fuel to a flickering fire. I could feel my heart begin to beat—slowly at first, but quickening every moment. Laura must have noticed the change, for she hastened out of the room, and presently my aunt and my cousin Tom came hurrying in and looked at me.

"Nonsense!" said Tom, but with a look full of fear that I might live.

"It's that stupid Laura's fancy," said my aunt.

I hoped to hear more, but after a hasty glance they left the room. Laura came back and stood peering down into my face. I gave a faint sigh. Quick as a flash she put her hand to my heart and felt it beating. Seizing my hand, she chafed it spasmodically, then ran to the door and called over the banister.

"Get the doctor, quick!"

When the doctor came the sun was shining in at my window, and there is nothing more reviving than its rays. Laura had started life anew; the sun gave it strength. The doctor declared that I still lived, but after deliberation decided not to give me any remedy, though he ordered a tank of oxygen for me to breathe. The household again gathered in the room, my fiancee approaching me with a partly concealed dread or disappointment in her face. They crowded about my bed, and Laura, as before, was crowded out. Then, when sure I lived, they went away again.

The time came when I was perfectly recovered. I broke my engagement with Eugenia and turned the rest of them out of the house. When they were all gone I sent for Laura. She came into my study wonderingly. I had two wills in my hand. I gave her one to read. It left all my possessions to my late fiancee. When Laura had read it, I handed her the other, executed that morning. It left everything to her.

"What does this mean?" she asked, a color mounting to her cheek. "Why am I to have all this property?"

"You won it."

"How?"

"By a kiss."

"What kiss?" The color in her cheek deepened.

"The kiss that restored me to life."

She turned away, but I went up behind her and, drawing her face around, kissed her.

"You gave me life; I give you fortune. If you will take me with it, it is yours now."

THE VOTE TODAY.

Quincy has a good start in all three of the Herald contests today, and a leader in one. There is much enthusiasm for Miss Julia E. Underwood, and the plan of distributing the art collection among the other Quincy schools meets with favor. Master Prescott not only leads in his district but has forwarded more votes than any pupil in New England.

The vote of the district in which Quincy is interested, for the leading five candidates, is as follows today:

SCHOOL CONTEST.

Lincoln of Brookline,	1389
Glenwood of Malden,	503
Coddington of Quincy,	474
Hyde of Newton,	176
Franklin of Medford,	170

And many other schools.

TEACHERS' CONTEST.

Miss Connors of Brookline,	1389
Miss Berry of Malden,	503
Miss Underwood of Quincy,	474
Miss Blakeley of Medford,	170
Miss Reed of Newton,	146

And many other teachers.

PUPILS' CONTEST.

Henry C. Prescott of Quincy,	474
Thomas Fleming of Brookline,	341
A. N. Ormsby of Malden,	262
S. F. Berry of Malden,	236
George Keefe of Brookline,	185

And many other pupils.

Some doubt having arisen whether Miss Julia E. Underwood was eligible in the Herald contest, her friends have interviewed the editor of the School Contest, and they are assured that there is no question whatever.

The Coddington is a "grammar school" and Miss Underwood is a "lady teacher in a grammar school." Kindly note the reading. In Boston there are primary buildings which are not eligible.

Already 900 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 1000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

The editor of the Daily Ledger would like to hear from all the former pupils of Miss Julia Underwood, especially in the early years—1855 to 1875. He would also be pleased to read reminiscences of her former pupils, and hopes to gather many letters before the 50th anniversary March 31.

—In a contest over the will of the late J. Alexander Yoell, a shrewd but excitable business man of San Jose, Cal., one of the facts cited as proof of his unsoundness of mind was that, in a dispute with Bob Fitzsimmons at a hotel over the use of a bathtub, when the pugilist said to him: "If you were not so small I would break every bone in your body," he replied, "Try it. You will get the worst of it."

☞ A bill has been introduced in Congress to appropriate $250,000 for a leoprosarium. It is supposed the crying need of a leprosarium hus been made apparent by the discovery of three lepers in Massachusetts. Meanwhile one out of every nine persons in the United States dies of tuberculosis and legislation for the establishment of camps and hospitals for consumptives makes small headway.—Milford Journal.

—The State of Washington will erect a handsome building at the Lewis and Clark Exposition. The structure will cost $25,000.

The bill to exempt from taxatation property of civil war veterans to the amount of $2000 providing such veterans are incapacitated was killed by the Senate Thursday after debate.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Scott's Emulsion is the means of life and of the enjoyment of life of thousands of men, women and children.

To the men Scott's Emulsion gives the flesh and strength so necessary for the cure of consumption and the repairing of body losses from any wasting disease.

For women Scott's Emulsion does this and more. It is a most sustaining food and tonic for the special trials that women have to bear.

To children Scott's Emulsion gives food and strength for growth of flesh and bone and blood. For pale girls, for thin and sickly boys Scott's Emulsion is a great help.

The Yellow Holly

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

CHAPTER IX.

"An invitation—an invitation to dinner. By Jove, I never thought I'd get that far. The Honorable Mrs. Ward too. Hurrah!"

Leonard Train made these remarks over a letter which had come by the morning post. It was a delicate perfumed friendly note, begging dear Mr. Train to come to dinner the next evening without ceremony. "I have just learned that your dear mother was at school with me," wrote Mrs. Ward in her most gushing style. "So you will see why I write informally."

To account for Train's exuberant joy, which seemed out of all proportion to its reason, it must be explained that, notwithstanding his money and what he regarded as his talents, he had never managed to enter the fashionable world. As he was as vain as a peacock and anxious to shine and be admired among people worth knowing, this was a great grief to him. George took him to several houses, but Leonard did not seem to be a success, for after one visit he was never asked again, although he left cards assiduously. The desire of his life was to be fashionable; hence his delight at the letter.

"Of course I'll go," soliloquized Leonard when calmer. "I wonder if George will be there. He loves that Ward girl, so he might. Mrs. Ward does not approve of the match, so he might not. I wonder if there is a regular engagement. If not I might have a shot myself. The Honorable Mrs. Train—no, that would be the mother."

It will be seen that Leonard was not very faithful to his absent friend, but the fact is that Train was less devoted to Brendon than he had been. The episode of Amelia square made him fight rather shy of George. The story of the marriage was shady, and in some way—Leonard couldn't exactly explain how—seemed to be connected with the murder of Mrs. Jersey. Moreover, Leonard knew something which he had not mentioned to Brendon and would not have mentioned for the fashionable world. However, he had said nothing about George's history and so far had kept faith. But Brendon saw that Leonard was no longer so pleased to see him as formerly. He therefore avoided the fat young man, and Leonard did not seem to mind the avoidance.

Leonard never intended to speak, being weak, but honorable in his own foolish way. But when Mrs. Ward's invitation came he walked blindfolded into a trap set by that clever little woman. She asked Train to dinner, not because she had known his mother—although that was true enough—but for the simple reason that she wished to hear what he knew about the Amelia square tragedy. Brendon had told her much, but it was probable that Train, being a weak idiot in the hands of a pretty woman like herself, would tell her more. Mrs. Ward wished to find some scandal smirching George, that she might induce Dorothy to break the engagement. She would have utilized the tales about Lola and Brendon, but she was not sure of her ground in this particular direction, and, moreover, having seen the Spanish dancer, feared lest so passionate a woman should make an open scandal. It was the aim of Mrs. Ward's life to do wrong things and to avoid troubles arising from them. Therefore she, for the time being, put Lola on the shelf and arranged in her own scheming mind to make use of Leonard.

When Leonard entered the drawing room he was welcomed by Dorothy, who told him that Mrs. Ward would be down shortly. "It is only a small dinner, Mr. Train," she said. "Mr. Vane is coming; no one else."

"I expected to find my friend Brendon here," said Leonard, thinking how beautiful she looked.

"No. Mr. Brendon is very busy at the present time with his book. He would have come otherwise."

"All things should give way where a lady is concerned," said Train gallantly.

Miss Ward laughed. She had heard much of Train from Brendon and thought him a kindly but foolish young man. "I am not a woman of that sort, Mr. Train. I have no desire that a man should neglect his work for frivolity. You are a great friend of Mr. Brendon?"

"The greatest he has."

"And he was stopping with you in the house where that tragedy took place. He told me about it."

Train secretly wished that George had held his tongue on this particular point, as he had his own reasons for not wishing to be questioned. With the very best intentions as to holding his tongue, he knew his weakness for babbling well enough and found it easier to abstain from talking altogether than to be temperate in speech. "Brendon certainly stopped with me," he said reservedly, "but we were sound asleep when the murder took place. Neither of us heard anything. After the inquest we both returned to the west end."

"It was a most unpleasant experience," said Dorothy thoughtfully.

"Very," assented Train, wiping his face. "I shall never go in search o. types again."

"You can find amusing types in the west end," remarked Dorothy in a low voice. "Here is one."

The young man who entered the room was a small, attenuated, precise atom of a creature, immaculately dressed and with a rather shrill voice. He answered to the name of the Hon. Walter Vane and was the cousin of Brendon, although he did not know of the relationship. But Dorothy and Train both knew and compared Vane's physique disadvantageously with that of Brendon.

Lord Derrington, who was a bluff old giant of the country squire type, sneered at his degenerate descendant. All the same he would not replace him by George, who was a man in looks and tastes after the old lord's own heart.

"Mr. Train—Mr. Vane," said Dorothy, introducing the two.

Vane stared and muttered something about "pleasure." Leonard caught no other word. He then continued his conversation with Miss Ward. "I sneezed twice at the Merry Music hall the other night."

"That is where Velez dances," said Leonard, determined to speak.

Vane stared again, and it was Dorothy who answered. "My mother went to see her and says she is a most extraordinary dancer."

"I saw your friend Brendon at the hall, Miss Ward—the writing man, you know," said Vane; "a fine looking chap, but sulky."

"The best man in the world," said Leonard, whereupon Dorothy gave him an approving look. She wondered what Vane would say did he know that the man he criticised so freely was his cousin and the legitimate heir to the Derrington title.

"Well, he has his larks like every one else. They say he is sweet on the dancer."

March Magazines.

Madame, the magazine "For Women Who Think," published by The Ford Publishing Co., Indianapolis, takes up the question of Life Insurance in the March issue in a vigorous manner, and calls attention to the mistake of the average woman in raising objections to life insurance on the part of her husband.

The March issue of Suburban Life is alive with information and suggestions pertaining to vegetable and flower gardening and to other springtime preparations. The leading article, "Beautifying a Suburban Home," takes up the personal experience of a man who enhanced the attractiveness of his house and grounds by judicious planting of shrubs and plants, at a comparatively small cost. Every detail of the work is furnished, making the paper of practical value to the suburban landowner who desires to treat his grounds with a view to adding to their beauty. The article is handsomely illustrated.

—Norwegian singing societies will have a special day at the Lewis and Clark Centennial for a reunion of members and a contest for prizes.

The Simplon Pass.

The Simplon pass always has been the great highway of travel from Switzerland into Italy. It was used by Caesar and his legions as far back as 50 B. C., and, although Napoleon happened to use the St. Bernard pass, he recognized the superior importance of the Simplon and ordered a military road to be built over it to serve in future campaigns. It was begun in 1800, but before it was completed, in 1806, the fortunes of the battlefield led the emperor elsewhere, so he never saw it. While thus constructed for war, no army ever crossed it. Instead of furnishing a route for cannons, it became a peaceful medium for international commerce.—St. Louis Republic.

The Original Lovers' Leap.

Sappho's Leap was the name given to a white cliff or promontory anciently called Leucadia, now Cape Ducato, at the southern extremity of Santa Maura, one of the Ionian islands. It was so called because Sappho, the poetess, is reported to have thrown herself from this height into the sea. A criminal, with birds attached to him to break his fall, was thrown from the cliff at the annual festival of Apollo, and if he reached the water unhurt he was picked up by boats placed there for that purpose. This is the rock from which, according to the story, lovers throw themselves in order to be free from the pangs of love.

INAUGURATION AT WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
[FROM JOHN S. SARGENT'S PORTRAIT.]

Washington, March 4.—President Roosevelt took the oath of office today before a vast gathering of the people he has been elected to serve. The attendant scenes were not unusual. Inaugurations from the time the east front of the Capitol first became the setting for the ceremony have been much the same. Many of the central figures have officiated in like capacity on other occasions when presidents have acceded to the highest office in the gift of the American people. Chief Justice Fuller, in administering the oath, repeated a solemn function he has performed four times—today his last. Yet, with all this repetition, nothing was jaded and everything appeared new.

The great crowd assembled for the crowning event of a day full of features cannot be estimated even by comparison. It extended far beyond the reach of the voice and was so densely packed as to carry the stage out of the sight of many. The Capitol plaza, resourceful in accommodating the thousands eager to view the ceremony, was completely filled. People came in its numerous streets and avenues, which, like so many yawning, ravenous maws, greedily swallowed the throng until every colgn of vantage was occupied. The trees, barren of foliage, carried their human burdens on limbs capable of bearing the weight of man or boy, and so far away as the terraces and marble steps of the Library of Congress thousands stood.

Although the ceremony differed little from those that have preceded it, in the great sea of spectators probably there was a larger number of representative Americans than any inauguration has brought to Washington. The eastern states were rivalled in point of attendance by reason of President Roosevelt's great popularity in the middle and far west. Delegations were present from every one of the insular possessions. Many of them had never seen the Capitol and, to a large number, the inauguration of a president was wholly strange.

The movements of the gathering troops and organizations were not all the crowd had for its entertainment. Directly in its front preparations were in progress for the inauguration itself. A monster stand in the form of an open amphitheatre had been erected on a line with the rotunda of the Capitol.

The stand itself was of symmetrical architectural proportions, on a different plan from those used in former years. For this occasion it had been built in the form of a semi-circle inclining to a level platform on which was placed a pavilion for the president's personal use. The amphitheatre accommodated nearly 7000 persons.

Some time before the beginning of the inaugural ceremony several thousand persons holding tickets entitling them to seats on the stand began to take their places. By 12 o'clock, the human garden, which had flourished in the senate and house galleries, was transplanted to the open-air amphitheatre. The brilliant costumes of the women gave to the scene the finishing touch of color. Added to the acre of people seated, who looked down upon 10 acres standing, were hundreds banked upon every projecting ledge of the Capitol and filling the windows.

The entrance of the official party was dramatic. All except those who were participating in the ceremony were seated. When the justices of the supreme court, with the exception of Chief Justice Fuller, emerged from between the Corinthian pillars and marched down the sloping carpeted aisle to their station, they were greeted with applause. The justices wore their robes and skull-caps. Then came the members of the diplomatic corps in their gorgeous uniforms. After them came members of the cabinet, senators and representatives in congress.

Suddenly the crowd on the stand began to cheer. This was taken up by those immediately in front of the platform. The military presented arms, the committee uncovered, and soon the great sea of people was waving hats and flags and shouting itself hoarse.

INAUGURATION DAY.

BY RICHARD WATSON GILDER.

On this great day a child of time and fate
On a new path of power doth stand and wait.

Though heavy-burdened, shall his heart rejoice,
Dowered with a nation's faith, an empire's choice.

Who hath no strength, but that the people give,
And in their wills, alone, his will doth live.

The well-beloved, the chief American!

Whose people are his brothers, fathers, sons:
In this his strength, and not a million guns.

Whose power is mightier than the mightiest crown,
Because that soon he lays that power down.

Whose wish, linked to the people's, shall exceed
The force of civic wrong and banded greed.

Whose voice, in friendship or in warning heard,
Bring to the nations a free people's word;

And, where the oppressed out from the darkness grope,
'Tis as the voice of freedom and of hope.

O pray that he may rightly rule the State,
And grow, in truly serving, truly great.

—Collier's for March 4.

The Social Realm.

Here's health to all those that love them
That love those that love them

The selection of Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus as the first president of the Quincy Women's club seems to be giving quite general satisfaction. Her home is near the proposed club house and naturally as president she would take more than ordinary interest in its welfare. She is an artist in every sense of the word and her taste and good judgment will be invaluable in fitting up the house. Mrs. Bumpus is a Colonial Dame and that society is greatly indebted to her for the careful attention which she gave the renovating and furnishing of the Dorothy Q house recently purchased by them. She is not only well known socially but has many friends in the artistic and literary circles, a great advantage to any club president. Through Mrs. Bumpus the talented young writer Miss Myra Kelly of New York came to the Quincy Mansion school this week where many had the pleasure not only of enjoying her monologues but in meeting her personally. Many of these pleasant affairs will probably be part of the social life of the club in the future. Mrs. Bumpus is the wife of Judge Bumpus who is widely known throughout the legal profession. Their home is one of the most beautiful in the city.

Those who have met Mr. and Mrs. Binnian who have recently come to Quincy to make their home, having taken the Whicher place on Adams street, find them most delightful people. When they are settled in their new home they will doubtless receive a cordial welcome. At present they are stopping with Mrs. Keyes of Alleyne terrace.

JOYFUL NEWS

All the Misunderstandings in the Granite Trouble Come to an End.

The Manufacturers and Cutters Reach Agreement.

An Adjourned Conference for Adjustment of Details Held This Morning.

"The strike is settled" was the word that went forth last night after the conference adjourned.

It had been a long session, but it had accomplished the desired end and everybody was happy. Another session was necessary this morning, however, to arrange details.

It was 2 o'clock Friday afternoon when the conference commenced and it was 7.45 when an adjournment was taken until 9 o'clock this morning.

Besides the two committees there were present Hon. Willard Howland, chairman, Richard P. Barry and Charles D. Palmer of the State Board of Arbitration; also James Duncan, National secretary and treasurer of the Granite Cutters' Union.

The whole subject was thoroughly thrashed out. It was a very quite meeting, however, and no sound of what was going on behind the closed door could be heard on the outside, where half a dozen reporters were patiently waiting to give the news to the world.

Ex-mayor John O. Hall, who has a real estate office across the hall, invited the newspaper men to use his office while waiting, and here they stood on guard, as it were, until adjournament.

Every now and then some one of the committees would come out to get a breath of air and stretch his legs. He was eagerly sought for information, but all that could be learned was that they were making progress.

At 5.15 the door suddenly opened and out marched the Manufacturers' committee. They went out and into the office of Luther S. Anderson for a conference among themselves.

At the end of half an hour they came back, and the conference was on again. Nothing could be learned from them however.

Again the door closed and it was 7.45 before the doors again opened, and the hungry and tired men made a bolt for home.

But an agreement had been reached and it only remained for them to meet this morning and complete the details.

It was understood last night that Secretary Duncan, being present, did away with the necessity of a confirming vote of the union, but even if one is necessary it will be only a matter of form, as the agreement reached had his sanction.

The clauses which were practically agreed upon yesterday were those relative to the $3 minimum wage, that relating to the limitation of apprentices, and the average increase on the bill of prices.

The exact reading of matters agreed upon have not been given out as it was decided to be unadvisable to do so until everything had been settled.

The $3 minimum clause, however is based largely upon the Westerly settlement.

It provides that the minimum wage for day work shall be $3. If however any man is physically incapable of earning that wage, he may work for less. The wage he shall receive to be based upon what he can earn by the existing bill of prices, which is to be determined by a joint committee of manufacturers and workmen.

As to the piece bill, it was practically decided that there should be an average increase of seven percent over the 1900 bill.

Quincy manufacturers have been paying an increase of five percent on the 1900 bill since 1903, so that the new increase will be about two percent more than what they are now paying.

As the piece bill is made up of almost countless items, which will have to be taken up separately, it will take considerable time to figure these out. It is largely this work that is occupying the attention of the two committees today.

Another matter agreed upon yesterday was that relating to apprentices. Under the old agreement there was no limitation to the number of apprentices that might be employed.

While it can not be stated just what agreement was reached in regard to this clause, it is understood to be based on an agreement of three apprentices to 13 journeymen.

If a firm employes but three journeymen he may put on three apprentices but no more than three apprentices up to thirteen journeymen. Over thirteen journeymen it is understood that the agreement allows one apprentice for every four journeymen.

While an agreement with the granite cutters is practically agreed upon, it does not mean that work will be resumed next Monday. The reason of this is that no settlement has as yet been reached with the blacksmiths who are also out.

The demand of the blacksmiths was an increase from $2.90 to $3 per day, and a clause limiting the number of apprentices that may be employed. It is believed, however, that once the cutters' agreement is settled it will not be long before the blacksmiths settle.

There are about 80 blacksmiths, and as they are affiliated with the Granite Cutters' Union, it is believed that it will not be long before they come to an agreement.

The Manufacturers' Association was represented by Fred L. Jones, Fred Barnicoat, Robert Mavers, Thomas Bishop, James Milne, Luther S. Anderson, William L. Birnie, James Joss and William Deacon. The Cutters' Union was represented by National Secretary James Duncan, James Watson, Alexander D. Booth, George Smith, Michael Bryan, Richard H. Holton and Michael C. Tracey, Mr. Duncan took the place on the committee of a cutter who was sick.

The two committees were in session all this morning, and considerable progress was made settling the minor details. It was impossible, however, to complete all of the details this morning, and at noon and adjournment was taken until Monday morning.

There was some question at Friday's conference about permitting National Secretary Duncan to be present at the conference. The question was but a momentary one, however, for the manufacturers realized that his presence would go a long way towards reaching an early settlement and his presence was welcomed.

It proved a wise move, for after the conference was over, it was generally admitted that but for his presence there would have been no agreement reached. It also saves calling a meeting of the Cutters' Union to ratify the action of its committee.

Points of Interest.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on applicat on to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

SOLDIERS KILLED

Cleveland Military Suffer by a Railroad Wreck

OVER A SCORE INJURED

Most of Those Killed Were In Observation Car When Rear End Collision Came--Wreckage Immediately Took Fire

Pittsburg, March 4.—In a rear-end collision last night, between two special passenger trains from Cleveland, on the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad, en route to Washington, six men and one woman were killed and 20 others injured.

The accident happened at Clifton station, eight miles west of here, and was caused by the first special stopping because of a hot box, while the second followed so closely that the flagman had not time to get back far enough to prevent the collision.

The first train carried a battalion of the Ohio engineers. It was made up of six coaches and a baggage car. The second train, with the same number of cars, carried the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland, with a band, and 25 or 30 women.

When the crash came the passengers in the rear car of the first train were the principal sufferers, and all of the fatalities were in that car. The wreckage took fire.

New trains were made up and sent to the scene to bring the dead and injured here.

Six bodies have been identified. They are: Captain William R. Henry, battalion surgeon; Lieutenant Donaldson Schofield, Corporal James Kehoe, Private H. K. Held, James Gray, negro cook; Frank Pinney, aged 10, son of Lieutenant Pinney. He was the only boy on the train. All the above were from Cleveland.

Two men died while being taken to the Beaver county hospital at Rochester. Their bodies will be brought to this city for identification.

E. T. Whiter, superintendent of the eastern division of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad, made the following statement this morning:

"Two special trains consisting of Pullman cars left Cleveland about 2 o'clock p. m. bearing the Tippecanoe club and a battalion of engineers of the National Guard, en route to the inauguration at Washington. The trains moved along smoothly to a point about half way between Clifton and Edgeworth stations, 7½ miles west of Pittsburg, when the first section stopped to give attention to a hot-box on one of the cars. When this train had been standing perhaps five or six minutes the second section ran into the rear car of the first train.

"The wreckage immediately took fire and three cars of the first train and two cars of the second train were totally destroyed. The engine of the second train was very badly damaged. The rear car of the first train was an observation car, and quite a number of the passengers were sitting in it. Six or seven of this number were probably instantly killed and their bodies were all badly burned.

"From the latest reports from the scene of the wreck received at this office at midnight, the above number were killed and five or six are seriously injured, and about 25 whose injuries are slight."

Government Takes Hart Case

Providence, March 4.—District Attorney Wilson has received a message from Attorney General Moody, instructing him to proceed with the investigation of the alleged murder of John A. Hart, who was killed on board the steamer Larchmont. The transfer of the case from the jurisdiction of the state to the federal authorities is due to the fact that the Larchmont was on the high seas at the probable time of the crime, and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the state.

Chadwick Case Developments

Cleveland, March 4.—Mrs. Chadwick, after a conference with her attorneys, has given up the idea of asking for a change of venue in connection with her trial. Iri Reynolds, formerly secretary of the Wade Park bank, who held a package for Mrs. Chadwick containing securities to the alleged value of $5,000,000, has been served with a subpoena as a witness for the government in the trial of Mrs. Chadwick.

Harper's Rapid Recovery

Chicago, March 4.—President Harper of the University of Chicago, who recently underwent an operation, left the Presbyterian hospital last night and was taken to his home. It is expected by his physicians that he will be able to be out of doors in a week or 10 days.

Eight Hundred Killed In Riots

Berlin, March 4.—The Lokal Anzeiger's Baku correspondent gives the number killed in the riots between Armenians and Tartars as 800. The belligerents, the correspondent says, have now buried the hatchet.

Sure to Please.

When the stage manager told the heavy man he was to play a certain part the actor said:

"I have never seen the play. Do you think I shall please the audience?"

"Sure," said the manager. "You die in the first act."

CHARLES F. CAMPBELL.

Do You Know Good Healthy Sleep?

A healthy person sleeps a healthy sleep when tired.

When you find that half the time you can't sleep in the same old healthy way then it is time to take care of your nerves.

Tired nerves won't let you sleep well and won't let you feel well. They are sick; they demand attention and they won't let you alone until they get it. No prescription has ever been formulated that produced such wonderful and rapid results in building up tired nerves as Paine's Celery Compound.

Sleeplessness is simply one of the many warnings that tired, sick nerves give. Feed them with Paine's Celery Compound and you will build them back to their real strength and find again that good, healthy sleep,—which should come as natural to-day as it did in childhood.

You can take Paine's Celery Compound once a day, or once a month, or four times a day, according to your need; and when the medicine has done its work and your system is again running in the complete harmony of true health, you can cease taking the medicine, and you will not miss it. The reason is that Paine's Celery Compound is a real food for the nerve. It feeds and strengthens the entire nerve fabric.

The force sent out by healthy nerves is nature's stimulus, to keep all the organs of the body working well.

It is by restoring the nerves and making new Nerve Force that Paine's Celery Compound works all its wonders.

Health, vigor, determination, courage—in fact, all that makes life worth living depends upon a healthy supply of nerve force.

Paine's Celery Compound makes new Nerve Force, it revives the old force and makes new. It not only does this, but by strengthening the nerves that control all the organs of the body, it cures the real cause of headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, malaria, and the many diseases coming from a run down condition of the nerves.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

It braces you up and you feel its marvelous effect almost instantly.

A case of extreme nervousness and lack of good healthy sleep is told by Charles F. Campbell.

"I would jump at my own shadow. I suffered so from extreme nervousness.

"Every spring my condition was worse than the previous year. I was completely fagged out from loss of sleep, and a nervous wreck. Something had to be done or I would surely have gone crazy.

"A member of my family had taken your Paine's Celery Compound, and just for luck I took a dose of it one day. The details of my own cure would take too much time to relate, but it is sufficient that I consider that dose brought luck indeed.

"I am better physically and mentally at this moment that I have been since boyhood."

"I beg to remain, yours respectfully, C. F. Campbell, 263 Washington St., Boston, March 18, 1904."

For 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world. Several years ago the formula was sent to every registered physician in the United States. It is constantly prescribed by physicians.

Think for a moment what this means and remember that Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicions America has ever known—Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University. Paine's Celery Compound is recommended and sold by all reputable druggists everywhere.

THE MILKSOP

[Original.]

"Louise," said Colonel Kilburn, "I have noticed young Cudlipp dancing attendance upon you, and I wish you to understand that I don't like it. There are several young officers at the post any one of whom would make you a good husband, and you have no need to take up with a citizen who is no more at home among army people than a dove in a nest of eagles."

Tommy Cudlipp had been brought up under disadvantageous circumstances. His father had died when he was a baby, and Tommy had never been anything more than a baby to his mother. She had kept him about her till she died. Then Tommy set out to see something of the world. He began by visiting the frontier, but fell in love with the first girl he saw—viz, Louise Kilburn, whom he met while he was looking over the fort her father commanded. In consequence of this enthrallment Tommy got no further. The girl seemed to be amused with him, and the officers of the fort made no end of fun at his expense. The truth is Tommy's mother had made a milksop of him. But that could hardly be considered his fault. It was rather his misfortune.

One morning the colonel was hurrying across the parade when he met young Dudlipp.

"Mr. Cudlipp," he said, "I would advise you to take a back track toward civilization. The Indians have broken loose, and we're going to have a hot time of it."

The colonel did not stop to note the effect of his words, but hurried on, and in two hours was moving at the head of all the troops under his command except a small garrison left in the fort to attack the savages.

Two days passed. Colonel Kilburn, who had spent most of his term of service in the artillery on the eastern coast and had no experience at fighting Indians, permitted himself to be drawn into an ambush in an almost impassable canyon. But he pushed on, resolved to beat them on their own ground. He was himself fighting in the advance under a deadly fire when, looking about him, he noticed that the men who had followed him were but a small portion of his command, and not a single officer had been able to withstand the murderous shower of bullets poured down upon them. Those who had not been picked off by the sure aim of the savages had fallen back with their men.

But who is this far below singly pressing forward? From rock to rock he leaps and climbs, traversing the rough ground with incredible rapidity. The colonel's heart stands still. Is the comer a messenger to announce that the Indians have attacked his rear? If so, not a soldier will escape. But as the man comes nearer it is plain that he is not a soldier. Instead of a soldier's felt alpine he wears a derby; instead of the blue with yellow facings of the cavalry he wears a gray traveling suit. Then when he comes near the colonel recognizes the milksop—Tommy Cudlipp. His hands are bleeding from the sharp rocks over which he has climbed; his hat is dented; his trousers are torn, revealing what in another case might be taken for a flag of truce. As he nears the colonel he starts, grasps one of his wrists and carries the arm that has been broken by a bullet.

"What in thunder"— roared the colonel.

"I've come, colonel"— began the young man and paused to hitch his wounded arm to a more comfortable position.

"Well," cried the colonel, "what have you come for?"

"After you went away I—I ventured to propose to Miss Louise, and she said I could come and ask you."

It might be expected that the colonel would stand mute with astonishment. Not so. In the first place he was in no position to do so, and in the second, with a soldier's quickness to seize upon opportunity, seeing that he had a valuable aid at hand whom he greatly needed, he flashed the words:

"Go back and bring up the command and you shall have her."

Down went Tommy Cudlipp, tumbling over stones, sliding down places too steep to walk on, moving far quicker than he came, till he reached a point of rocks behind which the command were huddled, their officers vainly endeavoring to drive them up the canyon.

To a soldier death is preferable to being outdone in the line of duty by a citizen. Every man sprang up the canyon. On reaching the colonel the united forces pushed forward, drove the Indians into a pocket from which there was no escape and exterminated every savage.

When the colonel returned to the fort the first person he sought was his daughter.

"What in the world did you mean by sending Cudlipp to me at such a time?" he asked.

"Why, papa, he finally got out his declaration, and I thought it would be a good joke to send him to the front for his answer. I never dreamed he would go."

"Go? He's a natural soldier, just the kind we want in the army. And in the army he'll be if I can get him there."

And so it was that Thomas Cudlipp became a "cit" appointment in the United States cavalry and in time married Louise Kilburn.

It is possible that a mother may make a milksop of her son, but if he breaks away from her influence early enough and his natural proclivities find opportunity he may still make a man of himself. But such cases are rare.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Make it your habit to search for the bright side both in others and in circumstances, so you shall have a heart of cheer, and "a cheerful heart seeth cheerful things."—Rev. Dr. Wayland Hoyt, Baptist, Philadelphia.

Happiness.

Happiness is not in things. It is not without, but within us. It can be attained by any one, and should be gained if he will only live the simple or, as I prefer to call it, the genuine life.—Rabbi Alexander J. Lyons, Brooklyn.

Motives.

There are four distinct motives that are competing for supremacy among men. The first is prudence or expediency; the second is honor; the third is sheer blank, unrelieved duty; the fourth is the love of God.—Rev. L. M. Clarke, Presbyterian, Brooklyn.

A Star of Hope.

The uncertainty of the future is the star of hope in human life. Who can covet the religious experience of him who stands still at the summit, simply waiting, but not advancing, because progress is impossible?—Rev. I. F. Russell, Methodist, New York.

Church Union.

The first step in church union is for all our churches to be so filled with fullness of the divine life that all petty distinctions may be swept away and the reign of the Spirit may be supreme in every life.—Rev. Frank Fox, Congregationalist, Kansas City, Kan.

Life's Test.

Life may always be tested by the principle. When a man dies we sum up his life in one work. He may have done many good deeds, but the final reckoning is made from the motives that prompted them.—Right Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, Bishop of Ripon, England, Episcopalian.

Mud Bombarding.

You can go into the hottest political campaign that ever blazed and wear white all the time and never dodge while the fellow who handles mud bombards you with the ammunition of the ditch, and at the end of the race you will be cleaner than when you went in.—Rev. R. J. Burdette, Baptist, Los Angeles.

Eternal Foundations.

Here are the three great principles which Christianity gives as the eternal foundations upon which you shall build up your life and character: Make love the supreme law; hold truth to be the supreme power; take holiness as the supreme ideal. Such is the teaching of the one who said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."—Rev. Percy Trafford Olton, Episcopalian, Greenport, N. Y.

Divine Compassion.

We may get some faint idea of the Father's love and compassion from our own heart feelings. We yearn to help and inspire to better things the young man who fritters away his life, the man who yields to temptation, the young girl who does not appreciate her privilege of beautifying and ennobling life. If this is human compassion and longing with its limited vision, how much greater must be God's!—Rev. Charles H. Small, Congregationalist, Cleveland, O.

Eternity and Immortality.

Time is the everlasting now. Only by an accommodation of terms may we speak of the past or future. Even cycles and eternities are not made up of many days, but of one. The present time is eternity. We are in eternity now just as much as if we had changed this world for another or put off our flesh and entered upon some new mode of existence. Death does not bring us immortality, but life does. The cradle and not the grave is the door of immortality. We are not to become immortal, if there is such a thing; we are immortal now.—Rev. W. J. E. Roberts, Church of This World, Kansas City, Mo.

A Liberal Church.

This is what the liberal church of today, what the liberal communions stand for—"glad tidings," and no "sad tidings," glad tidings, the absolute and real coming of the kingdom of God. This is their paramount office. It is in practice in our communities, what "differences" them from other communions—that is to say, the first work of a liberal church in any community is to bring that religion up to the standard of the kingdom of God. And a liberal church has no right to be, there is no sort of use in establishing it, unless in the very "hardpan" of its foundation there is the determination of those who found it that it shall "level up" the place in which it is set, bring it nearer to that standard of the kingdom of God.—Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Unitarian, Boston.

The World's Need of Morals.

What the world needs is a moral awakening—moral resolution, not more religion; moral perception, not religious frenzy—and it needs it now as it never needed it before. There never was a time in the history of mankind when the tide of intellect rolled so high, when the channels and agents of commerce, manufacture, trade and industry were so occupied and employed. There never was a time when the mind of the young was so eager and anxious and alert. There never was a time when the instruments for the dissemination of truth were so many and could be so cheaply employed. There never was a time when printing was so cheap and the distribution of literature could be carried forward with so little expense. And there never was a time when the moral natures of men needed to be appealed to as they need to be appealed to now. There never was a time when men needed religion less and morals more.—Rev. Dr. J. E. Roberts, Church of This World, Kansas City, Mo.

American Surety Company

is the largest Company in the world whose sole business it is to furnish Suretyship Bonds.

It does not engage in bank or trust business, but limits all its operations to the broad field of Suretyship.

This limitation, with its large capital of $2,500,000, makes its signature on a bond far stronger than any personal security that can be offered.

The fact that the American Bankers' Association have selected this Company as the sole guarantor of the money orders now being issued on their form, shows its standing with the leading financiers of the country.

When required to give security, whether fidelity bond, court, contract or probate bond, or any kind of security whatever, apply to

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Unloading The Golden Galleon

Copyright, 1904, by Charles B. Etherington

By..... WILLIS EMERY

HARLAND was a man of many enterprises, and his office was the lair of mysteries. His bank accounts were surprisingly, even suspiciously, numerous, and they were overdrawn every afternoon and made good every morning. He patched them up chiefly with notes which in the privacy of his sanctum he was accustomed to speak of as "wall paper," yet none of them went to protest. When not paid in full at maturity they were renewed in a perfectly regular and businesslike manner, and as the whirl of Harland's affairs became wider his credit miraculously improved.

Whenever I called at his office I wondered whether I should find him a bankrupt or a millionaire; but, upon the whole, I regarded him as steadily drifting toward sensational ruin. It was a pleasure to talk with him because he had so many worries which he bore so well. He was the only man of my acquaintance whose pecuniary affairs were worse tangled than my own, and, though his debts were greater than mine in the proportion of $10 to a penny, there was a certain similarity in our situations.

One day Harland said to me, "I've got some gold mines"—

"Gold mines!" said I.

He pulled the map out of the litter that always incumbered his desk and laid it before me. It was printed in several colors, and I saw the name "Golden Galleon" in black letters upon an assemblage of yellow parallelograms on the right hand side. I judged that the parallelograms were the separate claims that made up the Golden Galleon mine.

"I've seen this Golden Galleon stock advertised for sale," said I; "but, of course, I didn't know that you were the bunko steerer behind it."

Harland was frowning at the map.

"This is the old one," he said and pulled out another from a drawer. The Golden Galleon in this revised presentation had moved to the exact center of the picture, and there were startling alterations in the adjacent territory.

"If you can write us a slashing good prospectus," said he, "we'll pay real money for it. These clippings of our advertising will show you the line of talk that we like, and if you need any more facts"—

"Any more what?"

"Facts," said he impressively. "If you need any more facts, Mr. Adams, our superintendent will give them to you. He happens to be in town at this time."

I went to see Mr. Adams, who was as pleasant a liar as ever I had met with up to that time. He had a bright, breezy style and an air of sincerity that were hard to resist. Against all reason, judgment and experience I began to believe in this mine, but the impression faded as soon as I turned my back upon Adams. That evening in my humble boarding house I had much trouble in persuading myself to take up the task of writing the prospectus. I have enough conscience to make me uncomfortable, but not nearly enough to make me virtuous.

"WE'LL PAY REAL MONEY."

The prospectus was finished on the third day, and by that time I was far beyond the pale of moral obligations. The whirl of imagination and literary effort inside my head and the grinding pressure of pecuniary troubles from without had reduced my whole fabric of conscious existence to an aching pulp, and the necessity for haste had been like an enormous spoon stirring the aforesaid pulp more and more frantically. Harland was in a hurry for the prospectus; I was in a hurry for his money in order that I might pass it to various people who were in the worst hurry of all. So when I took the copy to Harland's office I talked aloud to myself in the street car and pounded my legs with my clinched fists whenever there was a stop.

Harland liked the prospectus. He said that it was a ripping good story, and Adams heartily agreed with him. They were especially pleased with certain flights of fancy evolved by me in moments of torture more acute than the average. For instance, I had described a belt made of twenty dollar gold pieces around the slender waist of a beautiful girl, and then I had stated that the amount of yellow metal actually known to exist in the Golden Galleon mine would make a belt of that kind large enough to encircle the moon.

"Nobody will bother to calculate it," said Harland. "Let it stand. The women will like it."

I shuddered. It had not occurred to me before that women might be led to risk their money on the Golden Galleon. My imagination had pictured men with little, restless eyes and sloping foreheads drawn toward this lure of gold as rats are drawn toward a trap, more than half aware of the peril, yet unable to resist the promptings of their own greediness and the fragrance of the bait. The typical male investor is barely worthy of sympathy, but to women the passion for gold may be forgiven because they spend it with such delight upon the things which they believe to be beautiful.

I was recalled from such thoughts by the voice of Harland saying: "Pass me that check book, Adams, like a good fellow. No, not that one—the third from the bottom of the pile. That account is overdrawn only about a couple of thousand, so a little thing like this won't matter."

And he drew me a check for a hundred and fifty. My existence could have been preserved another day for half that sum, and I was speechless with gratitude. Moreover, Harland told me where I could get the check cashed, though it was then after banking hours.

My landlady was sitting on the stoop when I returned home after dining at a club with Harland and Adams. The lady in question is past fifty and has begun to feel the infirmities of age. She carries too much weight and is laden with many cares, mostly pecuniary, if one may judge from her conversation.

"How are you this evening, Mrs. Von Glahn?" said I cheerily.

"I never felt better nor had less," she replied, with a sigh. And then to show me that this remark had no application to my account with her, which had been piling up for two or three weeks, she gave me a very friendly glance.

Mrs. Von Glahn was a German by birth, but she had been in America long enough to speak the language almost like a native except when she was in a hurry. She was a woman of a generous heart and had done enough in unobtrusive charity to insure her a rich reward hereafter unless all our faith is vain. But in the visible affairs of her daily life she exercised an amusing parsimony. When her husband carved a steak for dinner she measured every piece with her eye and suffered great distress if he erred in the direction of liberality. The instant that the last person was "helped" the remainder of the steak vanished. A trained servant removed it with the celerity of a conjurer.

Mrs. Von Glahn worried about money, but I never regarded her as grasping or miserly.

"I have some money for you, Mrs. Von Glahn," said I, proudly displaying the fruits of my honest toil for Harland.

"Oh, me, oh, my!" said she, with an affectionate glance at the money. "Where did you find so much?"

"I dug it out of a gold mine," I replied.

"A gold mine!" she echoed, with a sigh. "I wish I had one. You own a part of it, eh?"

"No," said I. "I've been writing a little book for the owners. They are selling some of the stock in order to develop the property."

With that instinct which makes a woman shop when she does not wish to buy, Mrs. Von Glahn asked me about the price of this stock. I explained to her that the par value was a dollar a share and that the present price was 25 cents. Then, because my mind was loaded with the subject, I told some wild tales about the advance in the value of shares of other mines located close beside the Golden Galleon and working in ore which the best experts pronounced to be indistinguishable from that of the wonderfully rich deposits of the G. G.

In due time my prospectus was printed, and a very pretty little book it made, with a Spanish galleon on the cover. The vessel was in red gold on a dark green sea lighted by a pale gold moon. Harland was so pleased with it that he gave me another job and paid me liberally, throwing in a small block of the stock for good measure. I laughed at the gift of the stock, but Harland said, "You just wait!" in a tone that startled me.

About a fortnight later I was waiting for Harland in his office when a member of his staff approached me and asked if I had any Golden Galleon stock. I answered in the affirmative. The man put his forefinger into my waistcoat pocket.

"Spout your watch," said he, "and buy some more."

I was about to request an explanation when Harland entered hurriedly, as he always did, and the whirlwind accompanying his progress carried me along into his private room.

"Look at this," said he and laid before me a brief report from Adams, who was then at the mine. It was accompanied by figures of assays.

"Harland," said I after examining these documents, "is this story straight?"

"Straight as a string," he replied. And I knew that he was telling the truth.

"I want some stock."

"You can't have it at the old price, my son," said he, with a chuckle; "not today."

"Oh, yes, I can," I rejoined. "That price is open to me up to noon tomorrow."

Harland liked a bluff, and I knew it. He laughed.

"For how much stock?" he asked.

"Ten thousand shares," said I at a venture.

He hesitated a moment and then said, "It goes."

Ten thousand shares at 25 cents call for $2,500, and I couldn't raise a fifth of that sum. I had not spoken for myself alone, however. I had been thinking of good old Mrs. Von Glahn and her pitiful worries. Here was a chance to free her mind from care and give her peace for the remainder of her days. It was a perfect certainty that an investment in Golden Galleon shares at 25 cents would result in quadrupling one's money, for the stock would certainly go to par immediately upon the announcement of the new discoveries at the mines. Why should not this honest and kindly woman reap some share of profit from my present opportunity?

She was sitting in her accustomed place on the stoop when I reached the house, and my heart sank when I perceived that she was reading from a little volume bound in dark green with a picture of a golden ship upon the cover. The obvious falsity and exaggeration of that prospectus must be clear to any sane mind, as it seemed to me.

"WALL PAPER," SAID HARLAND.

"Is it true," said Mrs. Von Glahn dreamily as I approached—"is it true what you say here about those twenty dollar gold pieces reaching round the moon?"

I groaned.

"Don't you care what I've written in that book," said I. "Attend, if you please, to what I shall tell you now."

Mrs. Von Glahn attended, and the result was that I bought 8,000 shares of Golden Galleon stock for her before noon next day. Within a week from that date she could have sold the stock at par, and within a month there were bona fide sales as high as $3 per share. Unprejudiced persons familiar with such matters told me that the stock would go to $10 before the 1st of September. I had made my landlady's fortune.

Alas, we rarely know what is good for us or for others in this perplexing world! Instead of accomplishing the end which I had sought the result was precisely contrary. So far from conferring the blessing of peace upon my landlady, I had driven her almost to distraction. She could not sit still in a chair. She could not eat her dinner, but would sit with half shut eyes making calculations upon the tablecloth with the handle of a coffee spoon. She neglected her work and her personal comfort that she might sit on the stoop, even on rainy days, fretting for my return that I might tell her news of the Golden Galleon.

At last, to my inexpressible relief, her demeanor changed. She became calm. Whether some chance word of mine had accomplished this result or the lapse of days had brought an adjustment of her own powers of mental resistance I could not determine, nor did I give much thought to it.

My mind grew so easy about her that I ceased to visit Harland's office daily, and my reports to Mrs. Von Glahn were often imaginary. But one day I thought best to get a little authentic information.

"Where have you been?" demanded Harland when I entered his private room.

"Why—why"— I stammered in surprise.

"Why in blazes haven't you looked in?" said he. "I'd have put you on. But it's too late now."

"Too late?"

"Yep," said he. "We've unloaded. You see, there was a crowd trying to get control of the Golden Galleon, and they've been bidding up the stock. They thought they were buying from small holders, but really they've been getting mine and the holdings of other insiders through dummies that we fixed up for them. Now we're out of it, and they're stuck."

"Stuck!"

"Yes. The vein's pinched out. All gone."

"And the stock?"

"Wall paper," said Harland.

Mrs. Von Glahn was sitting placidly on the stoop when I came home.

"Well," said she cheerily, "how about the gold mine stock?"

I clung to the stone railing, as pale as a ghost.

"Busted, eh?" said she. "Gone up?"

"I'll make it good to you."

"Oh, neffer mind me," said she. "I sell him. Dr. Dahlen said I kill myself mit worry, so I sell out—to him on his advice. Don't you tell him I tolt you."

"The rascal!" I exclaimed. "He thought he was cheating you."

"Is it so?" she said, folding her hands serenely. "Well, I make pretty good. I sell him for $3 a share."

Rund 1500 Zeitungen und Zeitschriften in der Metropole gedruckt.

Ein halbes Hundert politischer Tagesblätter. Riesige Spezialisirung der Fachpresse—Periodische Druckschriften — Originelle Zeitungstitel.

In Berlin werden gegenwärtig rund 1500 Zeitungen und periodische Zeitschriften aller Art geschrieben, gedruckt und herausgegeben, eine Zahl, die etwa einem Drittel aller im deutschen Reiche erscheinenden gleichkommt. Darunter allein ein halbes Hundert politischer Tageszeitungen und ungefähr 30 sogenannte Bezirksanzeiger, Gemeinde- und Vorortzeitungen, die theils täglich, theils ein- oder mehrmals wöchentlich zur Ausgabe gelangen. Zweiundreißig, theils wöchentlich, halbmonatlich, monatlich erscheinende Zeitungen und Zeitschriften verfolgen rein politische oder sozialpolitische Ziele und greifen taktisch mehr oder minder scharf in das öffentliche Leben ein; und während über 60 Unterhaltungs- und Witzblätter das Bedürfniß nach zerstreuender Lektüre zu befriedigen trachten, stützen sich über 40 Frauenblätter fast ausschließlich auf die moderne Frauenbewegung.

Verhältnißmäßig klein ist die Zahl der rein literarischen Interessen dienenden Organe, es sind deren kaum ein Dutzend vorhanden, darunter mehrere Revüen. Weit größer an Zahl und konsequenter in der Betonung der einschlägigen Fragen sind die Blätter, die das Theater- und Musikleben zum Gegenstande der Erörterung machen. Es gibt 28 Theater- und Musikblätter in Berlin, die wöchentlich, halbmonatlich oder monatlich zur Herausgabe gelangen. Und auch die Bestrebungen für „Kunst und Kunstgewerbe" finden in einem viertelhundert Zeitungen und Zeitschriften einen Rückhalt. Daß die weitverzweigten Interessen der Soldateska in 25 verschiedenen Organen für „Militär und Marine" die mannigfältigste Vertretung finden, ist in einem Militärstaate kaum verwunderlich. Die Zahl der Blätter und Blättchen, die in der Forderung der tausendfältigen Interessen von Handel, Industrie und Gewerbe, Schifffahrt und Verkehr ihre Aufgabe erblicken, geht in die Hunderte. Es existirt thatsächlich kein Gebiet menschlicher Thätigkeit in Wissenschaft, Kunst und öffentlichem Leben, das sich nicht durch wenigstens ein Sprachrohr, ein Blatt, vertreten findet! Es ist für den Uneingeweihten kaum glaublich, wie sehr sich die Fachpresse spezialisirt hat. Religiöse, ethische, ästhetische Bestrebungen besitzen ihre Spezialorgane. Von der wissenschaftlichen Fachpresse hat sich besonders die medizinische überaus stark entwickelt. Befassen sich doch nicht weniger als 90 verschiedene Blätter mit Publikationen auf diesem Gebiete der Wissenschaft.

Aluminiumbronze.

Kupferne Gegenstände, geformte Körper, Stäbe und Bleche lassen sich nach folgendem Verfahren mit einem schönen Ueberzuge von Aluminiumbronze ausstatten. Sie erhalten an denjenigen Theilen der Oberfläche, die den Ueberzug tragen sollen, eine verhältnißmäßig dünne Auflage von Aluminium und werden dann geglüht. Bei Blechen walzt man das Aluminium auf. In der Hitze des Glühofens legirt sich das Aluminium mit dem Kupfer zu der schönfarbigen und dauerhaften Aluminiumbronze. Der Farbenton der Bronze ist abhängig von der Höhe des Aluminiumzuschlags. Man kann daher verschiedene Töne erzeugen und im Aluminiumzusatz ziemlich hoch gehen. Insofern ist das Verfahren von besonderm Werth. Denn aluminiumreiche Bronzen sind sehr spröde und nicht walzbar. Nach der vorliegenden Arbeitsweise aber bringt man kupferne Gegenstände in die endgiltige Form, legt Aluminium auf und glüht, bis sich die reiche Aluminiumlegirung gebildet hat.

Von den Einwanderern, die im verflossenen Fiskaljahre in der Zahl von 812,870 die Gestade Onkel Sams betraten, konnten 3953 lesen, aber nicht schreiben; 168,903 konnten lesen und schreiben; 168,903 konnten weder lesen noch schreiben; 103,750 waren bereits im Lande gewesen.

Miss Ethel Gordon Hersey entertained a number of her young friends and class mates at her home Wednesday evening, at a heart party in honor of her birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hersey threw open their beautiful home to the young folks and a most delightful evening was enjoyed. Miss Hersey was kindly remembered by her young friends and many dainty tokens serve as reminders of her host of young friends. During the evening ices were served.

Rev. Mr. Latimer of Salem, has been the guest of Rev. E. C. Butler this week.

The Quincy Women's club has started off well financially as members are already paying their annual dues so as to have a fund to work with. Very few clubs start off as auspiciously, with a club house and large charter membership.

Mr. George B. Dewson of Adams street is in Washington enjoying the inauguration ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant Fairchild, Jr., (Marion Bailey) of New York are receiving the condolences of their friends, their little daughter Gertrude Marion, born on February eighteenth, passing away on the twenty-second. It is hoped when Mrs. Fairchild fully recovers her health she will come on to Wollaston for a visit at her old home.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams, whose wedding took place a few weeks ago, are making their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. C. Willis, Thompson street, Quincy Point.

Mr. Charles R. Hendrie of Davis street gave a luncheon Wednesday for Mrs. Walter Pessels of Brookline.

The course of entertainments by the Cochato club of Braintree is nearing the end of the season for the next to the last one is scheduled for next Tuesday evening and will be a musicale by an instrumental sixtette from the Boston Symphony orchestra, with soprano soloist. A progressive whist party will close the season.

The engagement is announced of Miss Nellie Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Clark, and Mr. Harry P. Elden all of Milton.

Mrs. George Frothingham of Wibird street is entertaining her father for a few days, he having come on from Washington for a few days as a pleasant surprise for her.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth of Russell park is to occupy the pulpit of the First Evangelical Congregational church of Milton Sunday morning. The pastor of the church is spending several weeks in California.

* * *

Mrs. A. E. Sproul of Hancock street entertains the Friday club at her home next week Friday afternoon. The committee on the literary program is Mrs. W. E. Alden and Miss Elizabeth Souther and the subject, John Ruskin.

* * *

Mrs. Charles Dickerson of New York is the guest of her son, Charles Dickerson, of Wollaston.

The seventh meeting of the Smart Set whist club was held Thursday evening with Miss Nancy Woy of Botolph street. The tally cards were poignant reminders of the menagerie at the Zoo. Prizes were won by Miss Woy and Miss Corinna Wilde, Miss Ruth Bassett and Miss Laura Hall; Miss Emma King was tie with Miss Hall but lost by a cut of the cards. After the refreshments, stories were told, followed by music. For all the club are extremely modest young women, they have come to the conclusion they are a pretty fair looking set of girls taken as a whole. It would be a rare field for a male harvester to look over.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Patch of this city were in Florida this week.

Quincy women feel that they can hardly express in words their appreciation of the thoughtful kindness which prompted Dr. Brackett to offer his homestead on Presidents hill for a club house. It is hoped it will be the seed from which will grow an ever vigorous plant which will put for good fruit.

At the Celtic entertainment this afternoon and evening at Copley hall, Boston, the "pig woman" will sell replicas of the "lucky pig" that Mrs. Theo Ruggles Kitson, of this city, has modeled for the affair and generously presented to the committee. Kate Ryan of the old Boston Museum company is to do her famous barn-door jig with Lindsay Morison as her partner. Two Irish plays and other features all typical of old Ireland will make it one of the most unique entertainments ever given in Boston. Men from Harvard, Tech and the cadets are participating. The public is much interested and a large attendance is predicted.

At the next meeting of the Unity club on Friday, March 10, papers will be given by Miss Turner, Miss Johnson and probably by Miss Adams, who is an instructor in the Horace Mann School, Boston.

Committee Organized.

The committee authorized by the Master Builders & Traders' Association to tender their good offices to the Granite Manufacturers' and Cutters' Union in their present labor situation, organized last evening with Hon. Charles M. Bryant as chairman, and J. W. Pratt, as clerk. Numerous possible methods of settlement were discussed.

A report was received during the meeting that the conference in session called by the State Board of Arbitration, was working good results, which was enthusiastically received.

If you could lighten your labor, would you?

If you could make a better loaf of Bread with less labor, would you?

Today we are going to tell you why Jones' Superlative makes bread making easier.

And this is why: Flours milled entirely from Spring wheat are so strong that they require a ridiculous amount of kneading, good for the muscle if you can spare the time, but hard on the nerves.

Convince yourself—buy a bag or a barrel.

CITY BREVITIES.

Lent begins next Wednesday—Ash Wednesday.

B. P. Sturtevant leaves tonight for Halifax, where he will make a brief visit.

Rev. E. D. Webber, pastor of the Baptist church, Wollaston, is quite ill with tonsilitis.

The W. R. C. sewing circle will meet at home of Mrs. Ann Wright, Tuesday afternoon, March 7.

Rev. Preston Gurney, the former pastor, will preach at the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday morning

The price of eggs has begun to fall; later than usual this season, owing to the cold weather the past month.

Mr. Paul of Arnold street has the sympathy of his many friends in the death of his mother.

Miss Grace E. Lingham, a former Coddington teacher, is among those interested in the success of Miss Underwood, having forwarded a bunch of votes.

Next Saturday evening Founder's day is to be observed at the Woodward Institute, when at eight o'clock a play will be given in the school hall by the students.

Jerome Devine of this city has purchased the farm and buildings of the late William Porter of Randolph and is improving the place for immediate occupancy.

It is currently reported that the B. F. Curtis estate on the corner of Washington and Elm street has been sold to Henry E. Hardwick and will be occupied by Dr. Hardwick.

Major John T. Drumm will give an address on the Russian-Japanese war at a smoke talk of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, next Tuesday evening at Greenleaf hall.

Twenty-four members of the Wollaston Y. P. R. U. attended the midwinter meeting of the Boston Federation, at Neponset, last Sunday evening. It was the largest delegation there.

It is understood that the old steamer Surprise, which has been laid up at the Fore River ship and engine company's works, Quincy, for some time, has bee nchartered by New York parties.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Tracy, recently of Faribault, Minn., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick on Goffe street. Mr. Tracy has been appointed by the government an assistant weather observer for Boston and vicinity.

The regular meeting of the Y. P. R. U. will be held in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. William J. Harrington, president of the Boston Federation, will give an address upon "What the Federation stands for."

The ladies of the Fragment society have enjoyed the box luncheon parties which they have been holding every other Wednesday in the parlor of First church. They have been very social and many regret that the fair to be held in the chapel on the fifteenth, removes the necessity of having more of them. Some beautiful things have been made for the sale.

Lawrence Hayward of Marlboro, Mass., will preach at the Wollaston Unitarian church tomorrow. Mr. Hayward is a graduate of Harvard college 1904 and of Harvard Divinity School 1904. He is a son of the Rev. Edward F. Hayward, minister of the West Parish in Marlboro. Mr. Hayward has not yet been a regularly installed minister of a church.

☞ Miss Chadwell will meet her class in cooking on Monday next at 3 P. M. at Miss Spear's. Roast beef, Yorkshire pudding and Franconia potatoes will be prepared.

Stuck in Draw.

All trains were considerably delayed this morning owing to a barge becoming stuck in the railroad draw at Neponset. It was between 9 and 10 o'clock when the draw was opened to allow the passage of the barge.

Before getting through it stuck. The tide was coming in at the time, and it was necessary to wait until high water. It was nearly noon before the obstruction was cleared.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

are held in deposit by the Trust Companies of this country, and a considerable proportion of this sum is composed of the surplus and reserve funds of corporations and of moneys held by trustees. Deposits of this character are attracted both by the safety afforded by the Trust Company and by the interest allowed.

The example of those having custody of large sums is one which may well be followed by the individual depositor. The Old Colony Trust Company allows 2% interest on balances of $500 and over. Deposits may be made at either the main office in the Ames Building or the branch office at 52 Temple Place, and checks may be cashed at either office as desired.

The Temple Place branch in the shopping district is particularly convenient for suburban residents; especially for women, for whose use the entire second floor is reserved. A pamphlet descriptive of this office will be mailed on request.

A Mystery.

The remains of Hiram Shackley, a brother of Jonas Shackley of West Quincy, who died at Kansas City, Feb. 3, arrived at Decatur, Indiana, Feb. 12, and were taken to the residence of Daniel K. Shackley, a brother of the deceased, where funeral services were held. No further word has been received as to the cause of death, but the remains prove that Mr. Shackley was the victim of accident or foul play. One side of the head is crushed, one arm broken and the other badly mangled.

What the Rev. Wilson Fritch has to say of Parsifal—the great drama to be given tonight at Quincy Music hall: "I had the pleasure a few weeks ago of witnessing through the Kinetiscope the reproduction of the now famous Parsifal, Wagner's masterpiece, given in the Metropolitan Opera house.

It was artistic in the extreme and the effect on the audience was most pleasing.

The entire effect is beautiful and accompanied by high class vaudeville acts, illustrated songs makes an enjoyable entertainment.

BOX AND COX.

The Best Thing Yet by Local Talent.

Greeted by Very Large Audience.

It was a surprise to late comers last evening to find First church chapel filled to overflowing. As soon as the doors opened at seven o'clock, the place filled rapidly, and by half-past, it was most impossible to find a seat, and at eight standing room was at a premium.

A vaudeville entertainment was something new for the Social club, but every one was sure something good would be offered, and they were not disappointed.

The first number was an original farce, "Box and Cox" by Crayon, Savilini and Shoemaker, especially engaged for the occasion. The plot hinged on a greedy landlady renting the same room to two lodgers, one who worked nights and slept during the day, while the worked days and slept nights. The day worker not working one day led to various ludicious complications. The artists were recognized by the audience as Mrs. George G. Saville, Emery L. Crane and Houghton Schumacher.

Number two Haysarki and Arnolja, Japanese exponents of Jiu Jitsu gave a fine exhibition. The performers were Ralph Hayes and Allan Arnold.

Number three were the Wurtzburger twins, the Dutch language contortionists who made their first appearance making quite an impression on the audience. They distorted the Dutch language to perfection, sang a couple of songs, sprung a few local hits and retired amid loud applause, each with a cabbage tastefully decorated. The Dutch costumes did not disguise them from their friends, who recognized the artists as Edward Angier and Joseph Groce.

Number four was the beautiful number of the evening, the imperial court dancers, introducing Mlles. Stellade Barkerini, Constantino Barkisi, Alicia Clafloni, Molliere Harristala, Helena Rhinesky, Lela de Smithette, Flaffi Stilleto and Carlena Walkerino, late of the Opera Comique, assisted by Fraulein Edwina Schmidt, premiere danseuse.

The stage setting was dark green and the gowns were blue, pink, green and yellow, each carrying an arch of pink roses, while the premiere wore white. It was exceeding pretty and graceful. Fraulein Schmidt was given great applause and was easily a favorite receiving curtain calls.

Number five was Signorita Patcheesi, the vocal wrestler terpsichorean aerobate, late of the Bank Officers association, loaned for the occasion and sure to be returned. The Signorita was a rather large woman, of the brunette type with fine figure. She was gowned in white, cut decollette, which showed her beautiful white neck to great advantage. Her beautiful eyes flashed, and the dimples played hide and seek with each other as she smiled, which coupled with her naturally modest disposition captivated the audience even before she began to sing.

Her voice and the sentiments of the song brought the audience to her very feet—such rich full tones—such expression. One curtain call did not satisfy the audience and several were responded to. His best friends would hardly recognize Frank King Patch as the Signorita.

Number six was announced as the Tyrolean Yellers, in a repertoire of pathetic ballads and mother songs, and it was their last appearance here. The Yellers included: George E. Pfaffmann, Joseph C. Groce, Morton T. Swallow, Clarence Durgin, Russell A. Sears, C. Theodore Hardwick, E. E. Davis, A. F. Schenkelberger and Edward Angier. Their songs were interspersed with local hits and a most surprising stunt by Mr. Pfaffmann.

Number seven concluded the performance. It was called a Russian Salad, entitled "The Manager's Troubles" and given by the Anti Kamnia Komedy Four. The participants were:

Willie Grow, the Boy Wonder, Leslie Coffin.
Charlie Cole, a Plumber, Dr. Hunting.
Mr. Klawanger, a Manager, Mr. Crane.

This was a humorous skit and all were great in their make-ups and parts. Willie Crow, the boy wonder, was a wonder, for he was a six footer dressed as a little Lord Fauntleroy, with golden curls, knee pants and short stockings.

The endeavors of the various artists throughout the evening were rewarded with bouquets and hearty applause. Mullally's orchestra added to the pleasures of the show. Everyone pronounced it the best thing ever given by local talent in the city, and are hoping for a repetition at Music hall.

Donald Crane and Jack Pfaffman manipulated the cards announcing the numbers on the program, and seemed to enjoy their part of the performance.

DR. HIGGINS OF CHELSEA

Who Will Speak at the Y. M. C. A. Services on Sunday Afternoon.

DR. HIGGINS.

The Sunday afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building on Washington street promises to be an interesting and profitable service. The speaker is the Rev. John A. Higgins, D. D., pastor of the Central Congregational church in Chelsea. Dr. Higgins not only comes highly recommended as an earnest and forceful speaker, but also as a professional tenor soloist, having had charge of large choirs and of the music in churches in New York and Philadelphia before entering the ministry.

These meetings will provide a place so that the men of Quincy can spend an enjoyable hour on a Sunday afternoon. There will be good music, a short and earnest address by some noted speaker each Sunday. All men are invited to attend and no tickets or membership cards are required. The time of the meeting is 3.45 P. M. The attendance last Sunday was nearly 200.

BRAINTREE.

All the names on the official ballot for the town election next Monday are nominees of the Citizens' caucus except three as follows: Paul Monaghan of precinct one and William Allen of precinct three for selectmen, and Frank H. Palmer for school committee in precinct two. These three gentlemen run on nomination papers.

Wednesday the free delivery of mails went into effect in Braintree and the five carriers succeeded in their new field very well. The carrier in South Braintree, whose duty it is to collect the mail matter from boxes, was disappointed the first round to collect only two letters. Braintree and East Braintree boxes contained about thirty pieces.

We have no post masters in Braintree; Alverdo Mason is a tired-out mail carrier and Messrs. Torrey and Minchin are head clerks.

At the reception given Miss Cora Keith Tuesday evening we were glad to see nearly all her brothers and sisters present, a happy group. After five or six months visit Miss Keith will return to Japan.

Miss Bessie Thayer of Pond street started for North Carolina, Wednesday, hoping to recover her health in that climate.

The ladies' aid held their regular meeting in the M. E. vestry Wednesday. Thursday afternoon they met with Mrs. Royal Belcher to carry on their usual work.

Puritan lodge bowled the Wiley lodge at South Weymouth March first. The score was Puritan 1268 and Weymouth 1226. It was the last game of the season.

Rev. E. C. Stover attended the Boston Colby Alumni association banquet last Friday evening, at the American House, Boston. Seventy men were present. Good speaking and a general good time was had.

The Ladies' Mission Circle of the Baptist church met Wednesday for their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Holmes and elected officers for the next year.

Oscar H. Brann of Braintree was appointed to a position as conductor in the service of the Boston Elevated Railway Company on February 4.

Charles W. Ganzel, the well-known ball player, will be the guest of the members of the Braintree club, at a smoke talk this evening. Fred Tenney first baseman, and captain of the Boston Nationals will also be present.

Blue Hill lodge 203, A. O. U. W., held its regular meeting last Wednesday evening and took action on two applications for membership. P. M. W., C. V. Cottrell, who represented the lodge at the session of the grand lodge made an enthusiastic and interesting report of the two days' session.

Mrs. Edward Willoughby of Amherst, N. H., has been the guest of Mrs. M. L. Merritt.

A Pioneer Visitor.

Mr. H. P. Kittredge of Quincy, Mass., was in Jacksonville last night en route to Washington from a visit down the east coast of Florida, extending to Cuba, touching chiefly on his itinerary at Palm Beach and Havana. Mr. Kittredge will be present at the inaugural ceremonies and from Washington he will return home.

While in Jacksonville he was entertained by Mr. W. H. Dean, a shoe manufacturer of Quincy, who has apartments at the Windsor.

Mr. Kittredge is a pioneer visitor to Florida. He has been coming to the state every winter for twenty years, and nobody knows more about Florida than he.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

New Dentist Rooms.

By invitation this morning we stepped into the dental parlors of A. B. Packard in Johnson's new block on Hancock street, and was pleased to find him so well located for business. The rooms are large, airy and pleasant; furnished in the most modern manner for the convenience and happiness of his patrons. May success attend his labors.

Swedish Reception.

Rev. Victor Witting, one of the founders of the Swedish Methodist church and one of the oldest Swedish clergymen in this country, will be given a reception next Tuesday evening at Faxon hall. Rev. Mr. Witting was for several years pastor of St. Paul's Swedish church of this city.

Editors of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I noticed in your issue of Friday that my name was connected with the probable appointment to the superintendency of the Poor Farm.

I wish to state emphatically that there is not one iota of truth in the rumor, and if it were tendered to me I would not accept, because I consider the present incumbent much better fitted than I to administer to the wants of the inmates of that institution.

I appreciate the fact that possibly this with other rumors concerning me, may have gained their inceptions from the mite I did towards Mayor Thompson's nomination and election: that is voted for him for both.

If it be the present incumbent's misfortune to be ousted from his position, I hope that his successor will be a man with whom the inhabitants of Quincy have had some acquaintance and who has been a citizen here for at least years enough to know something about our people and their wants.

We have plenty of Quincyites who are capable of handling this institution satisfactorily.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Miss Eleanor Robson, whose long success in "Merely Mary Ann" in London and New York has made her one of the foremost international actresses of the day will be the attraction at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, for two weeks beginning Monday, March 6. Miss Robson has just returned from London where she has had one of the most remarkable engagements ever played by an American actress in the British metropolis. Opening at the Duke of York's Theatre, absolutely unknown to the English theatregoing public, she closed her engagement on December 15 to an audience that packed the theatre to the doors and cheered her performance to the echo and shouted for her speedy return to them. "Merely Mary Ann," the play in which Miss Robson has scored this wonderful success, is by Israel Zangwill and tells a simple and pathetic little story of life in a cheap London lodging house. The heroine is Mary Ann, a simple and innocent country girl, whose idol is Lancelot, a talented musician and the younger son of a titled family, who can find no publisher for his compositions.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Mr. E. S. Willard, who has been cordially welcomed back to Boston by large audiences, has only one more week to stop at the Tremont Theatre, and in response to almost innumerable requests, will devote it entirely to revivals of plays which he has presented during previous visits. On Monday and Tuesday evenings and at the Wednesday matinee, Mr. Willard will give his powerful impersonation of Cyrus Blenkarn in "The Middleman." It was in this role that the distinguished English actor made his first appearance in America, and so profound was the impression made by his remarkable work that the public still demands, whenever he returns to this country, that he again undertake the character of the grand old potter. On Wednesday evening, Mr. Willard's polished, graceful and fervent performance of "David Garrick" will be the attraction. Thursday and Friday evenings and the Saturday matinee will be given up to Barrie's delightful comedy. "The Professor's Love Story" and Saturday evening to Tom Pinch."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Jiu Jitsu, the Japanese art of self defense, which has sprung into such prominence by reason of its adoption at Annapolis, West Point, Harvard, and other leading universities in the country, and its commendation by President Roosevelt, will be exemplified by a troupe of Japanese acrobats at Keith's Boston theatre, the week of March 6, as part of one of the best vaudeville shows of the season. Among the surrounding entertainers are Sidney Grant, monologue comedian and mimic; the Doll troupe of acrobats, one of the greatest organizations of the kind in the world; J. A. Murphy and Eloise Willard, in an eccentric comedy sketch, with specialties, and the Delmore Sisters, talented instrumentalists and vocalists. Among the motion pictures to be exhibited in the biograph will be one showing Governor Douglas of Massachusetts, leaving his home, his factory and the State House.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre announce for next week's attraction at this popular play house Arthur W. Pinero's most amusing comedy "The Magistrate" which has not had a Boston production since it was last seen at the Castle Square Theatre nearly five years ago. "The Magistrate" is sufficiently described when it is said that it is a fare comedy patterned closely after "The Pink Dominos" model; it is the old story of martial sprees and splashes, freshened by novel incidents and with such unflagging spirit and unceasing drollery that the tale takes on new interest in all its scenes. The play is announced for only one week.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

A Catastrophe

Thomas was a very exemplary cat except for the fact that he was inquisitive. His cold nose would be stuck into all the jars and pitchers on the table until they gave him the name of "snoop cat," which hurt his feelings. It was Christmas eve when Thomas wandered into the dining room. "My! That's a funny looking box over there by the fireplace. Wonder what's in it?" said he to himself. "Been told not to touch things that don't concern me, but I'd certainly like to know what it is. Wonder if it 'd hurt just to push that hook back and look in? I'll die if I don't see what's in there."

Softly he stole up and pushed the wire hook back. "Must be some sort of a Christmas present for Bill. If I see it first that will be a joke on him, won't"—

Fizz! squeak! slap! slam! bang! wow! Up flew the cover and out of the box came the worst looking ogre that ever disgraced a fairy tale.

"What d'yer mean, you rascal?" shrieked the figure.

"Oh," grunted puss as he shrank back, trembling, "this is so sudden."

"I should say it was," said the ogre. "I had just settled down for the night, hoping to get some rest before those children got hold of me tomorrow, and here you come 'snooping' around and meddle with the hook, and my spring sprang, and now we're in a pretty mess, for I can't get back in the box by myself, and tomorrow is Christmas."

"What shall I do?" asked Thomas.

"Put me back, of course, you stupid"—

"But I can't get you back."

"That's just the moral of the whole affair," snapped the ogre. "One never can do over what they have undone, which is to say they can never undo what they have did, which is to say that"— But Thomas was so terrified that he did not wait to hear all the moral.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Six Great Men.

From 1730 to 1830 is the most memorable period in modern history. Six great men made their marks—Napoleon, whose chief feature was ambition; Nelson, courage; Washington, independence; Wellington, thoroughness; Pitt, statesmanship, and George Stephenson, ingenuity. Washington and Nelson have secured the affection of posterity, Washington and Stephenson have done the most for mankind, Wellington enjoys the respect of all, Pitt has our admiration, and Napoleon will forever excite the wonder of the world. Napoleon endeavored to remodel Europe; George Stephenson succeeded in doing so. Washington and Stephenson together had independence, observation and ingenuity—the three qualities which are of the most service to humanity.—London Truth.

Largest of All Bibles.

Largest of all Bibles in the world is the Kahgyur, or Buddhist scriptures of Tibet, which consists of 108 volumes of 1,000 pages each. Each volume weighs ten pounds and forms a package twenty-six inches long, eight inches broad, and eight inches deep. This bible requires a dozen yaks for its transport, and the carved wooden blocks from which it is printed need rows of houses, like a city, for their storage. A tribe of Mongols paid 7,000 oxen for a copy of this bible. In addition to the bible there are 325 volumes of commentaries, which are necessary for its understanding. There is also a large collection of revelations which supplement the bible.

The Paris Alibi Office.

In Paris there is an institution which calls itself an "alibi office." It undertakes to prove that when one is really hiding in Paris he is at Biarritz or some place equally remote. The patron of the "alibi office" writes letters ostensibly from any address and the "alibi office" has them actually posted there, so that when they arrive in Paris they bear the right postmarks. This agency, moreover, offers its subscribers the advantage of an address in "the most aristocratic quarter of Paris" to which their correspondence can be sent, which will be opened by the management when the subscription is not forthcoming.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

"Well, good people," cried Mrs. Ward, entering the room at this very opportune moment, "are you all here? Mr. Vane, I am pleased. Mr. Train, how good of you to come! Ah," Mrs. Ward sighed, "you have your dear mother's eyes, and lovely eyes they were!"

Having slipped in this compliment to put Leonard at his ease and throw him off his guard, Mrs. Ward delivered him to Dorothy and took Vane into a shady corner. "Dinner will be ready soon," she said, fanning herself, although it was a cold winter's night. "I hope you are hungry, Mr. Vane."

"I was," admitted her guest, "but I have to nurse my appetite carefully, you know, Mrs. Ward, and I am rather put out."

"Not by Mr. Train, I hope. He is a nice fellow, really, very nice, with money made out of pigs or whisky or something," said Mrs. Ward vaguely, for she was not certain. "What did he say?"

"He said nothing, but Miss Ward did."

Mrs. Ward shrugged. "Oh, well, you know, Dorothy has such odd ideas and all that sort of thing. I suppose it was something about books, or philosophies, or grammar, or something—enough to spoil any one's appetite, I'm sure."

"No. But I mentioned that Brendon—you know, the writing fellow"—

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Ward viciously and at once on the alert.

"Well, I said that it was rumored he was sweet on Lola Velez, and Miss Ward fired up. Is she so great a friend of his as all that?"

"Oh, by no means," responded Mrs. Ward vivaciously. "A mere acquaintance, you know. I'm sure he's dull enough. Lola Velez—oh, a perfect dear!

"Mr. Train—Mr. Vane."

How she can kick! So Mr. Brendon is in—well, I never should have thought it of him; but these quiet men are always the worst."

So Mrs. Ward rattled on in her incoherent manner, but perfectly clear in her own mind as to the good Vane's injudicious observation would do. If Dorothy once got it into her brain that George was an admirer of Lola, then there would be a chance of breaking the engagement. Before Vane could make any more remarks the gong thundered. "You take in Dorothy," she said to Vane, thus getting him off her shoulders, but not hoping to find Leonard a pleasant change. "I will take Mr. Train under my wing."

In this order they entered the dining room, Mrs. Ward trying to stifle a yawn and wondering how she would get through such a dull evening. Luckily, Vane mentioned that his grandfather had expressed his intention of looking in during the course of the evening. "If you will not mind, Mrs. Ward," he said politely.

"Oh, I'm rather glad," replied the little woman. "Such a delightful old gentleman! His anecdotes are quite in the best style. Do try this dish, Mr. Train. It is good."

Leonard did try it and did full justice to the merits of Mrs. Ward's cook. She kept a particularly good chef, as she knew the value of good cooking. "People like nice things to eat," she explained to Leonard, while Dorothy labored to entertain Vane. "One can break all the Ten Commandments if only one feeds the men." Then, thinking she had said too much, she added sweetly. "But of course I am only joking, Mr. Train, as one must be good and all that sort of thing."

"I'm sure you are all that is good and kind, Mrs. Ward."

"Now, that's really very nice of you. Mr. Brendon would never say a really nice thing like that. Of course he's a great friend of yours, isn't he? And he stopped with you when that poor woman"—

Leonard uttered an ejaculation. It seemed to him that he was pursued by the Amelia square tragedy. First Dorothy and now her mother. Was there no other topic of conversation? He would have answered an ordinary person rudely, being wearied of being questioned, but Mrs. Ward, having the key of the door which led into the fashionable world, was to be conciliated. He replied to her almost in the same words as he had used to Dorothy. "Mr. Brendon did stop with me," he said, "but we were asleep when the murder took place."

"How extraordinary!" said Mrs. Ward languidly, yet with a keen eye on the change in Leonard's face. "I wonder who killed her?"

"Oh, the police!" said Mrs. Ward, in a proper tone of contempt. "They never do anything except make love to cooks. Do you suspect any one?"

Leonard flushed. "I, Mrs. Ward? Why should I suspect any one?"

"Oh, I don't know. You have a clever face. Just the kind of a face that one would think a brilliant detective would have. You must have some suspicions?" Again her eyes searched his face.

"No," he protested. "I was asleep. I know nothing about the matter."

"How stupid of you!" said Mrs. Ward, beginning to think that her condescension in asking Leonard to dinner was wasted. "But you men are always so blind, poor dears! Did Mrs. Jersey and Mr. Brendon get on well together? I suppose Mrs. Jersey liked him?"

"I think she did," replied Leonard, on whose weak head the claret was beginning to take effect, "but she was rather startled when she saw him first. It wasn't at him exactly, but at a piece of yellow holly he wore in his coat."

"Yellow holly," repeated Mrs. Ward, with feigned surprise. "Why, of course Mr. Brendon wore a sprig. My daughter gave it to him."

"So he told me, Mrs. Ward."

"And I gave it to Dorothy," continued Mrs. Ward, who for some reason wished to make an explicit statement. "It is very rare, you know, and a man who lives in Devonshire sent me a bunch. Dorothy mentioned that Mr. Brendon had begged for a piece. Yes, he would naturally wear it on that night, as he had just left my house. But why was this unfortunate woman surprised?"

"I can't say, but she was," answered Train. "She turned white, and we all thought she was about to faint."

"Did she give any explanation?"

"No. In a few moments she recovered, and nothing more was said."

"Oh!" Mrs. Ward seemed disappointed. "Was that all?"

"Why"—Leonard turned his dull eyes on her flushed face—"what else did you expect to hear, Mrs. Ward?"

"Nothing! Nothing," she said hurriedly, for she did not wish to make him suspicious; "but it seems so odd. Dorothy giving the holly, you know, and that Mrs. Jersey should be upset. We must continue this conversation, Mr. Train. It is really most interesting. But you literary men are quite fascinating. After dinner in the drawing room, Mr. Train. Dorothy!" She signaled with her fan, and her daughter arose. "Don't be too long over your wine," said Mrs. Ward as she left the room. "We can't spare you, Mr. Train."

Leonard believed that all this attention was due to his own fascinations. His head was still heated with the wine he had drunk, yet he began to regret that he had said anything about the yellow holly. Certainly he had not promised George to be silent on this especial point, but he nevertheless thought it wiser to hold his tongue about all that had taken place in Amelia square on the night of the murder. Warned in this way by his mother sense, Train took no more wine, but after a rather dull conversation with Vane he went into the drawing room. Dorothy was at the piano, and thither repaired Vane. But Mrs. Ward, seated near the fire, called Leonard to her side. "I must introduce you. Lord Derrington—Mr. Train."

The grandfather of George was a huge man, burly, red faced, white haired and with a rather truculent expression. He was over seventy, yet carried his years like a boy. Under his bushy white eyebrows he shot a quick glance at Leonard from a pair of keen gray eyes and summed him up at once as a fool. But Lord Derrington had been a diplomatist many years before and knew that even fools are sometimes useful. Moreover, he had learned from Mrs. Ward's aimless chatter that Train was a great friend of Brendon's, and he knew more about George than George thought. However, Derrington, after that one glance of contempt, was very civil to Leonard.

"I am glad to meet you," he said, with a nod. "You go in for books, I understand from Mrs. Ward."

He had a deep, raucous voice like that of an early starling, and spoke in an abrupt staccato kind of way. Train, who stood before him like a rabbit before a snake, compared him in his own mind with Becky Sharp's friend, the Marquis of Steyne. Derrington was quite as wicked and savage and unscrupulous as that celebrated nobleman.

Derrington seemed to Leonard to have the instincts of a despot, and Leonard could imagine him slaying and burning and doing all manner of evil things. He wondered how Brendon ever came to have such a villainous grandfather. It was on the tip of his tongue to say something about Brendon, just to observe the effect on Derrington. At that moment fate intervened. The drawing room door opened, and a servant announced, "Mr. Brendon!"

The next moment George came face to face with his grandfather.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Its Fate Hangs on Result of Battle Now In Progress

IT MAY BE DECISIVE ONE

Armies Aggregating From 700,000 to 1,000,000 Men Engaged In Greatest Conflict of Modern Times--Eighty Miles of Fighting Front

London, March 4.—The greatest battle of modern times is now being fought in Manchuria, between armies aggregating from 700,000 to 1,000,000 men, and Oyama is reported to have flanked Kuropatkin on the east by getting his troops over the Hun east of Fushun and into Sinmintin on the west, in the meantime beating back the Russian centre and forcing a retirement on Tie pass.

These rumors will need confirmation. If, however, Japan can make this battle decisive—if she can destroy the Russian main army as a fighting force, and unless Russian stubbornness passes all bounds, peace should be in sight.

The only thing that could counteract a decisive defeat of the character described would be the destruction of Japanese sea power by the Russian fleet. Rojestvensky's aggregation, even on paper, is not considered equal to this task. If he were re-enforced sufficiently and should have a "streak of luck" he might accomplish Togo's destruction.

Apparently the fate of Russian prestige in the far east hangs on the result of the tremendous operations now under way along the Shakhe. Up to yesterday the fighting has been confined to minor engagements on the centre and flanks. On the east, or Russian left flank, the Japanese army, under Kurokin, succeeded in thwarting an attempt of the Russian forces under Rennenkampf to seize the fords of the Taitze, and drove it from some of its advance positions. On the centre the Russian attempt to seize the railroad bridge across the Shakhe was repulsed after the Russians had gained the Japanese side of the river and taken the trenches there.

Within the last two or three days the Japanese have poured an avalanche of shells from heavy siege rifles and mortars on Lone Tree and Novgorod hills and several times have attempted to take the former without success, and probably suffered great loss. On the west, four Japanese divisions, approximately 60,000 men, are at Sawnipu, 11 miles west of Mukden, in a turning movement against the Russian right. Japanese cavalry also is in Sinmintin, 30 miles northwest of Mukden.

It will be seen by this summary that up to today the position of neither main army has been uncovered, but the character of the operations indicate that Oyama believes that he has sufficient men with which to attempt the envelopment of the entire Russian position, from the Hun, on the west of the railroad, to the same Hun on the east of the road. There is fighting along a front of 80 miles. So extended is the front that there may be three or four battles going on at the same time.

Amherst Students on Strike

Amherst, Mass., March 4.—The senior class of the Massachusetts Agricultural college refused to attend chapel or class recitations yesterday, and has determined to remain out until the difficulties with the faculty have been adjusted to the satisfaction of the students. This action is the outcome of the suspension from college of three members of the senior class three weeks ago, due to disturbances in the classroom.

No Light on Rummo's Death

Portland, Me., March 4.—Coroner Littlefield and jury held an inquest on the death of Alfonso Rummo, who was found butchered in the rear of a block here. A verdict was returned that Rummo came to his death by being murdered by some person or persons unknown.

Favorable Business Outlook

New York, March 4.—R. G. Dun's Weekly Review of Trade says that trade reports are still somewhat conflicting, but on the whole improvement has followed more settled weather, and the outlook is considered favorable.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The Texas senate passed a bill that will place all pipe lines in Texas under the jurisdiction of the railroad commission. The bill now goes to the house.

Steamer Delta was burned at Hayward Island, La. All passengers were rescued. The boat was valued at $75,000.

The Amalgamated Peat Fuel company of New York city was incorporated at Albany with a capital of $500,000, to deal in natural and artificial fuels.

THE CZAR'S RESCRIPT

Important Step Toward the Long-Promised Reforms

St. Petersburg, March 4.—In the Alexandra palace at Tsarskoe-Selo, surrounded by the ministers and a few members of the court, and with the empress at his side, Emperor Nicholas yesterday afternoon affixed his signature to a rescript containing his decree to give elected representatives of the people an opportunity to express their views in the preparation of the laws of the empire.

This is the autocracy's final response to the agitation in favor of participation by the people in the government which has brought Russia in the last few months almost to the brink of a revolution. For the present at least it involves no change in the regime of autocracy, and it means neither a constitution nor a national assembly. At the same time it recognizes the principle of the people's right to be heard regarding laws under which they must live. Whatever the result may be, the document is sure to mark an epoch in Russian history, as important than the signing of the emancipation manifesto, the 24th anniversary of which it was intended to signalize.

Three Victims of Fire

Newburyport, Mass., March 4.—Three persons were terribly burned, one, and perhaps two, fatally, by the overturning of a kerosene lamp at the home of Frank Hudson last night. The lamp was upset by Hudson's 2-year-old son, who was enveloped in the flames that followed, sustaining injuries from which he died an hour later. His grandmother's clothing caught fire and she was herself frightfully burned. It is believed that she will die. A 3-months-old sister of the dead boy was badly burned, but will recover.

Stanford Mystery Unsolved

San Francisco, March 4.—Although every effort is being made to solve the mystery of the alleged poisoning of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford, in Honolulu, there are few developments in the case. The autopsy in Honolulu has not been completed. As yet no arrests have been made and the detectives engaged in investigating the matter have made no direct accusations, though the various members of the Stanford household are understood to be closely watched.

Rumor of $5000 Robbery

East Walpole, Mass., March 4.—It is rumored here that a big box containing $5000 sent to the Bird paper mill by a Boston bank, through an express company, was looted before it reached its destination. A box similar in size, shape and weight is said to have been received at the mills. When the paymaster opened the package it is said that he found nothing but brown paper. The greatest secrecy is observed regarding the matter.

Epidemic of Spotted Fever

New York, March 4.—An alarming prevalence of spotted fever in New York is a repetition of the epidemic of the first three years of the '70's in which there were many deaths. In January of this year there were 107 deaths from the disease and in February there were 149 deaths. According to the records of the health department, the epidemic of the '70s began among street car horses and spread to human beings.

Car Barn Destroyed by Fire

Manchester, N. H., March 4.—The main car barn of the Manchester Traction company, occupying an entire block, were destroyed by fire this morning. The loss will reach about $150,000. It is supposed that the fire was caused by the crossing of electric wires at the barn. Twenty-five closed cars, the big rotary and other snowplows were destroyed.

Serious Charge Against Hermann

Washington, March 4.—Binger Hermann, member of congress from Oregon, and former commissioner of the general land office, was indicted by the federal grand jury here on the charge of destroying public records. The indictment was found in the testimony of certain general land office employes and of the secretary of the interior.

One Train In Sixty Sections

New York, March 4.—Officials of the Pennsylvania railroad say that the inauguration traffic to Washington is the heaviest in the history of the road. The train leaving here at midnight was run in 60 sections, an unprecedented number. All freight trains between Philadelphia and Washington have been cancelled for the time being.

Loving Cup For Speaker Cannon

Washington, March 4.—Speaker Cannon was today given a massive solid silver loving-cup in token of the universal regard in which he is held by his fellow members. Democrats and Republicans alike joined in subscribing for the cup and it is said every member of the house contributed.

Drowned In Four Inches of Water

Pawtucket, R. I., March 4.—Mary A. Gill, aged 50, was drowned last night in a puddle of water not more than four inches deep in the yard of her home. She is presumed to have fallen in a faint face down in the water. The woman was dead when found.

Bad Characters at Large

Madisonville, Ky., March 4.—Three alleged murderers and two alleged thieves were freed in a jail delivery here. The delivery was made by some one from the outside cutting iron bars from a rear window of the jail.

Miners Killed by Gas

Berlin, March 4.—In the Oskar coal mine in the Ratibor district fire broke out, cutting off 15 miners, whose rescue was impossible, owing to poisonous gases. They all perished.

DIVINE TRANSMISSION.

Alfred Hart Tells How He Communicates With the Dead.

A MIRROR REVEALS MESSAGES.

Columbia University Photographer Says That In Letters of Fire Secrets of Other World Are Written on Its Surface—Asserts He Has Communicated With the Distinguished Dead Mentioned In the Bible.

Alfred A. Hart, seventy years old and for thirty years the official photographer of Columbia college, who lives in New York, asserts that he has discovered the secret of the divine transmission to earth of the Ten Commandments and that he has been able to communicate with the dead, says the New York American.

Although students of psychic research discredit the claims of Mr. Hart, the septuagenarian is persistent in his assertion that he has discovered the means of universal communication and says that ultimately the world will know what becomes of the soul. He declares he has had communication with the distinguished Biblical dead, including Moses, Solomon, the prophets and the disciples, and has written down their messages, which he says, were transmitted to him.

Mr. Hart says his is not an invention, but a discovery of the mechanism of the rock upon which the Ten Commandments appeared to Moses and the old Egyptian magic mirror, known as the Urim and Thummim, used by the priests in the temples of India, Egypt and the Holy Land.

The messages from the unknown were transmitted to him, he says, in letters of fire written upon the magic mirror, and they have been intelligible not only to him, but to his wife and daughter. He asserts that Shakespeare had the Urim and Thummim in his mind when in the scene of the witches in "Macbeth" he wrote, "And yet the eighth appears who bears a glass." Therein was written the prophecy, "Be bloody bold and resolute; laugh to scorn the power of man, for none of woman born shall harm Macbeth."

Mr. Hart said in his interview:

"For twenty-five years I prayed to comprehend the life of man. Then of a sudden—it was in 1879—I was awakened by three distinct raps. There was a bright light in the room. I read in letters of fire on the wall, 'Seek and ye shall find, knock and the door shall be opened.'

"The light disappeared, and there came another, above which was written, 'The law of heaven,' and under it, 'The law of earth.' Again there was a change, and I read, 'If you choose the law of earth you will be popular and wealthy; if you choose the law of heaven you will gain spiritual knowledge, but all your friends will turn against you.'

"Believing there was some sensitive plate, the same as nature had supplied to the ancients, that would register thought through electrical vibration, I set to work. Within a year I had discovered the secret in the shape of a sensitive black backed mirror. I held it in my two palms, appealed for a communication from heaven, and as I was being weighted down seemingly by a tremendous electric vibration there appeared in the mirror before me this message:

"'You ask for knowledge; it shall be given you.'

"This message was from the apostle Mark. I have since received hundreds of messages, all of which I have preserved in writing. These include a 6,000 line poem, which came to me at intervals."

Mr. Hart produced a book in which he had written down the poetry which he said had been transmitted to him from a divine source.

Dr. Isaac K. Funk, the noted scholar of psychic research, said:

"Doubtless Hart is sincere in his belief that he has communicated with the unknown, but such phenomena cannot be credited. The black mirror of olden days is merely an instrument of mythology. No scientific importance can be attached to Hart's claims."

PIGS AT MASKED BALL.

St. Louis Society Saw Novel Features at Union Club Dance.

During a masquerade ball the other evening at the fashionable Union club in St. Louis a drove of little ping pigs was turned loose, says a St. Louis dispatch. Instantly pandemonium prevailed, women screamed and pigs squealed. Finally the women became somewhat accustomed to the spectacle of the pigs in a ballroom, and the little animals became so uncomfortable and out of place on the slippery floor of the ballroom that they were affectionately petted by perfumed hands and jeweled fingers. The pigs romped about everywhere, tripping up dancers when they were not in the arms of some young woman or other.

The pigs were not the only novelty. Six "big Injuns" danced in single file about the room, emitting shrill war whoops. The committee of entertainment, dressed as "rubes," furnished to all the guests confetti. Another feature was an animal circus. Maskers representing every animal gave an exhibition of trained animal performances. Bears operated typewriters, dogs talked and roosters worked, while horses outdid Jim Key.

Austria's Wheat Crop.

Beerbohm says of the Australian wheat crop of 1904-05 that a total crop in the commonwealth of 50,000,000 bushels is considered to be certain, against 75,000,000 bushels last year.

Beware the Easy Shelter.

Years are but a fool's measure for youth, which is divine. They bring caution more often than wisdom and a certain belief in the unreality of joy. A man is quickly disillusioned, which commonly means that he has set up his own idea of what things should be by the side of what things are and sulks forever at the result. He then commits the folly of becoming old and prefers existence to life. He clambers into one or other of the many shelters that line the way, curls up within and smiles pityingly at the young of all ages pressing on to some end, no matter what, alive to the beauty of the sky and the clouds and the birds and the trees, alive even to the beauty to be seen in one another, breathing deeply of the air of strength, living and loving and beloved, until at last they are made one with nature. But the heart, like the liver, grows torpid without exercise; a gradual decay comes to the man in the shelter, a decay from which he is released, much against his will, by death. There are too many shelters.—Hugh de Selincourt.

Anne Boleyn In Spain.

After Henry VIII. divorced Catharine of Aragon, the favorite daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, and married Anne Boleyn there was intense disgust thereat in Spain, and to show their abhorrence they for years carried around annually in procession a huge alligator (la tarasca, which strictly means a serpent), and out of the back of this animal sprang a female figure intended for Anne Boleyn. This figure they called the "Anavolena" ((Anne Boleyn, the "b" and "v" being almost interchangeable in Spanish). The idea, of course, was Protestantism, personified by Anne Boleyn, springing out of the foul beast of the slime. The tarasca is shown to the curious, with the Anavolena complete, in the hall of the Gigantes, which is approached from the gallery round the cloisters of the cathedral, the most interesting one in Spain.—Notes and Queries.

Got the Tea and the Lady.

Disraeli was in love with a widow, Mrs. Wyndham Lewis. One day, when he went to call, the lady, sitting by the window, saw him approaching and ordered the servant to say that she was not at home. When the maid reached the hall the statesman was hanging up his overcoat.

"Mrs. Lewis, sir, is not at home," said the flurried maid.

"I did not ask for Mrs. Lewis," was the calm, statesmanlike reply.

"But I don't know when she will be back," urged the maid.

"Neither do I," philosophically replied Disraeli, "but I am going to wait till she comes back, so please make me a cup of tea."

He did wait, he got his tea, and he married the widow.

Why the Table Knife Was Rounded.

Table knives until the seventeenth century always had sharply pointed blades, a natural survival from the days when a knife was at once a dagger, hunting knife and table knife and fork combined. The rounded end was introduced from France. It happened that Cardinal Richelieu was compelled to entertain at his table Chancellor Seguier, a man of rude manners, who at the close of the meal proceeded to use his knife as a toothpick. This so upset the cardinal that he ordered the end of every knife in his possession to be rounded, and so great was Richelieu's influence that the fashion was adopted all over the country.

Travel In the Old Days.

Before the days of the railroad travelers from Philadelphia to New York went by wagon. The following old advertisement outlines the process: "John Butler, with his wagon, sets out on Mondays from his house at the Sign of the Death of the Fox, in Strawberry alley, and drives the same day to Trenton ferry, where Francis Holman meets him and proceeds on Tuesday to Brunswick, and, the passengers and goods being shifted into the wagon of Isaac Fitzrandolph, he takes them to the New Blazing Star, where Rubin Fitzrandolph, with a boat well suted, will meet them and take them to New York that night."

Willie's Reformation.

"Your son Willie seems to have got over being round shouldered. Every time I've seen him lately he's been standing up like a man."

"Yes; after years of scolding him for his stooping I tried a new plan."

"What was it?"

"I told him he had a magnificent chest."—Newark News.

The Open Fireplace.

I have seen respectability and amiability grouped over the air tight stove, I have seen virtue and intelligence hovering over the register, but I have never seen true happiness in a family circle where the faces were not illuminated by the blaze of an open fireplace.—O. W. Holmes.

Diplomacy.

Mamma—I hope Willie didn't tell a fib when you found he had been at the jam. Aunt Jane—Not at all! When I discovered that somebody had been at the jam he looked at Fido and said, "I didn't know, auntie, that dogs liked jam."—Boston Transcript.

INAUGURATION CEREMONIES

Witnessed by a Vast Throng of Loyal Americans

President Roosevelt came forth from between the massive pillars quietly and composedly. He was escorted by Chief Justice Fuller. With measured tread, in harmony with the dignified step of the chief justice, the president advanced in state down the long aisle of distinguished guests. By this time all were standing and nothing could be heard above the roar of thunderous welcome.

As the president passed down the aisle he bared his head and, with characteristic sweep of his hat, bowed in acknowledgment of the salutation from the stand and the ovation from the people. His manner was not that of a man incurring onerous responsibilities, three years in the White House having familiarized him with the duties of the high office to which he was to be inaugurated. While he waited for the applause to die out he stood in triumph, with nothing more disconcerting than a huge gathering of loyal Americans.

At a sign from Chief Justice Fuller the clerk of the supreme court stepped forward, holding a Bible. A hush fell over the crowd. The president raised his right hand and the oath to support the laws and Constitution of the United States was reverently taken amid deep silence. When this had been concluded there was practically no demonstration and the president began his inaugural address.

IN SENATE CHAMBER

Oath of Office Administered to Vice President Fairbanks by Senator Frye--President and Cabinet and Other Distinguished Persons Witnessed Solemn Ceremony--Senate of Fifty-Ninth Congress Installed

In the presence of as many of his fellow-citizens as could be crowded into the senate chamber, Charles Warren Fairbanks was at high noon today inducted into the office of Vice President of the United States. The ceremony was quickly followed by the final adjournment of the senate of the Fifty-Eighth congress, the beginning of a special session, an address by the vice president and the swearing into office of almost a third of the membership of the senate.

All these official acts took place in the chamber just before the inauguration of the president and were the prelude of the more important event. The installation of the new vice president was severely simple, and as brief as simple. It consisted of a promise, solemnly made with uplifted hand and bowed head, to perform the duties of the office and to support and defend the Constitution of the United States.

This was the oath of office, and it was administered by Senator Frye as president pro tempore of the senate. The two officials stood confronting each other on the elevated platform on which rests the desk of the preceding officer of the senate, practically on the same spot on which all the incoming vice presidents for the past 50 years have stood, and where a majority of American freeman have decreed that Mr. Fairbanks shall preside for the four years to come.

Plain and democratic though the ceremony was, it attracted to the senate a gathering of notable people. These guests included the foremost representatives of the official life of the Capitol city, foreign and domestic, civil and military, and also many other persons of prominence from all parts of the country.

On the senate floor, with his cabinet, were President Roosevelt, himself about to be inaugurated; the diplomatic corps, the supreme court of the United States, the house of representatives, the admiral of the navy, the lieutenant general of the army, the governors of states, and others distinguished by reason of position or achievement. These sufficed to tax the capacity of that part of the hall, and they were splendidly supplemented and surrounded by the attendance in the galleries.

Practically all the variety of hue and vivacity of scene came from the galleries, for aside from the decorations worn by the foreign representatives and the gold lace with which the uniforms of the few army and navy officers present were decorated, there was a dull level of black and brown on the first floor.

Senator Frye does all things with promptness and decision. The two official timepieces which front from the north and south walls of the senate chamber were agreed in proclaiming the hour of 12, when, according to the requirements made and provided, the Fifty-Eighth congress must come to a close, the Fifty-Ninth congress be started on its career, and the new presiding officer introduced and installed. Mr. Frye had already said farewell; the visitors were in their seats. Not a moment was lost.

Rising in front of the slender but towering form of his successor, the president pro tempore repeated to him in the form of an official oath the few impressive words which transformed the Indiana leader from the position of a senator to that of Vice President of the United States. The ceremony did not consume to exceed two minutes of time, but it was conducted with such dignity and solemnity as to make a lasting impression on all present. Profound stillness characterized the dense assemblage while it was in progress, none present apparently failing to appreciate that an act of sacred national import was being performed.

The oath concluded, the two leading participants shook hands and Mr. Frye spoke a few hurried words of congratulation. With the last positive thump of the gavel, the Maine senator relinquished his position as president pro tempore by announcing the final adjournment of the Fifty-Eighth congress. Without a look backward, he vacated the seat he had occupied for almost four years, stepped from the presiding officer's platform to the senate floor, and there took his seat to listen with other senators to the address of the new vice president.

CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

Mr. Fairbanks had no difficulty in being heard. He spoke deliberately and distinctly, his voice, so well tried during the past campaign, easily reaching all parts of the chamber.

The address received careful attention, and at its conclusion the vice president instructed the secretary of the senate to read the president's call for an extraordinary session of the senate. The reading accomplished and the senate of the Fifty-Ninth congress thus installed, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, the venerable chaplain of the senate, came forward to deliver the opening prayer of the first session. In response to a quiet signal from the chair, the senate and its guests rose and stood while Dr. Hale in his usual impressive manner uttered the invocation.

The organization of the senate was then completed by the swearing in of senators elected to serve for the next six years. They appeared in platoons of four in alphabetical order at the desk of the vice president, each being accompanied by his colleague. The oath was administered by Mr. Fairbanks, and in each case was immediately followed by signing the senate roll of membership. This ceremony concluded the day's session and the senate adjourned to the outside platform to witness with others the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

The official guests left the chamber in order the reverse of that in which they had entered, and were closely followed by the visitors in the galleries. The arrangement for exit was excellently contrived, the departure was without confusion or disorder, and only a few minutes were required to clear the hall.

Every Type of Citizenship

Great interest attaches to the grand parade, which is to start at 2 o'clock this afternoon. For the first time since the United States became a recognized world power, will she shine in all her glory.

Americans of every cast, from rock-ribbed Yankee Colonel Bill Sewell of Aroostook, Me., guide, philosopher and friend of the president, and who taught Theodore Roosevelt how to shoot moose, to the Igorrote, the whole series will be embraced.

Tawny Malays from far off Philippines will march beside the meek Porto Rican; coal black Africans will be with the Hawaiians, descended of missionary and cannibal.

Colonel Seth Bullock with the Rough Riders will move dignifiedly on his cayuse near the stately majors and colonels and generals who, until the advent of Roosevelt, would scorn such associations.

The newsboys, students, red men from the plains, Alaskans longing for tallow candle salad that mother made, cow-punchers, bankers, clergymen, Hibernians, Orangemen, fraternal orders, humble citizens, soldiers, sailors, children, suffragists, Prohibitionists, wine merchants—in fact, representatives of every phase of American life will be in the parade, riding behind the nation's chief, and every one of them first of all American citizens.

And well up in the front of the procession will be Theodore Roosevelt, culminating his marvellous career.

Congressional Decks Cleared

Washington, March 4.—Instead of the all-night sessions that were freely predicted, congress had time to spare for the closing business of the session. Contrary to expectations, an entirely satisfactory agreement on the river and harbor bill, the last of the supply measures to receive final consideration, was reached after a brief conference last night and before midnight both houses had dissolved to meet at 10 o'clock today to close out the session's business. It has been many years since congress finished business with so much time to spare and with none of the great supply measures still in dispute. Usually some agreements are not reached until the morning of March 4.

Statehood Bill Laid Out

Washington, March 4.—The statehood bill died at 9:30 o'clock last night. At that time the conferees on the bill parted, not to meet again during the Fifty-Eighth congress.

Between the Cutters and Manufacturers.

The two committees representing the Granite Manufacturers' Association and Granite Cutters' Union are hard at it today, arranging the details of settlement. Good progress was made Saturday by the two committees and when they convened this morning at 9 o'clock they went at work again on the bill of prices.

Outside in the corridor in the Adams building no word was heard of what was going on inside. This was an indication that things were moving satisfactorily. Clouds of tobacco smoke that found its way into the corridor also told that the pipe of peace was being smoked.

At 11 o'clock a recess of ten minutes was taken. At that time it was said that the two committees were at work on the bill of prices and that they were progressing.

The committees hope to complete their labors today, although there is considerable doubt if it can be done. It is probable that another session will be necessary tomorrow.

There is a well founded rumor that when the matter is finally adjusted that the agreement will run for five years. This is also good news, as it does away with a possibility of labor trouble for some time.

The committees adjourned at 12 o'clock this noon for lunch. They met again at 1.30 and immediately took up the matter of the price bill. The committee hope to complete their labors this afternoon.

The Cutters' Union will meet tonight, when the matter of approving the work of the committee will come up.

Reception at Brain'ree.

The reception to Miss Cora F. Keith last week was well attended and a very pleasant occasion. The chapel presented an attractive appearance the platform being decorated with potted palms and ferns and forming a pretty background for the receiving party while on either side of the chapel were tables where young ladies served lemonade and dainty crackers. In the rear of the room the desk recently added to the chapel furnishings by some of the men of the Sunday school was provided with conveniences for writing and a guest book in which all were expected to enter their names—the book to be afterwards presented to Miss Keith as a souvenir of the occasion.

Miss Keith was assisted in receiving by Mrs. T. H. Dearing, president of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and Rev. and Mrs. Burrows—Messrs. W. C. Harding, I. N. Holbrook, C. L. Kennedy and A. Carson serving as ushers.

In a few appropriate and well chosen words Mrs. Dearing welcomed the guest of honor, being followed by Mr. Burrows. Miss Keith responded in an easy and graceful manner.

Dr. Fillebrown kindly furnished music on the violin. Miss Helen Qualey presiding at the piano. A mandolin selection was also rendered by Master Harry Davenport with Miss Gladys Davenport at the piano.

The young ladies' choir were present and as always, rendered acceptable music under the direction of Mrs. Frank H. Dearing.

How Old.

There were several Atlantic school teachers comparing notes the other day regarding the age of their scholars and among them was one not of the profession. After the grammar grades had been gone over the primary teachers spoke up.

"Mine are seven years and up" said one.

"And mine are only five," asserted another.

The unprofessional one looked up very meekly and said naively: "And mine are still gumming it."

The wit of the crowd looked up and asked: "Which stage, first or last?"

It was a horrible slur on the age of the young matron.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Members Have Ripe Experience and Are Good Workers.

"When you make up your war map of the city be sure that you put on it the woman's clubs," Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, Mich., told the members of the school of Philanthropy of the charity organization society at New York on Thursday, says the Globe. The war map is a sketch which Mrs. Crane makes when she is working out or illustrating any kind of civic problem. It is an outline of the place, showing the evils to be combatted, the saloons, the overflowing cellars and water contamination; penal institutions—what not; and with these the institutions to be utilized to fight the evils.

"Many of us do not take women's clubs seriously," she said. "I am not much of a clubwomen myself, but I am going to be more of one. The clubwoman as the woman of the well-to-do classes in the woman of leisure. Most of the women in our clubs are over 40: they have brought up their children and sent them into the world; they are in their second youth, with the ripe experience which makes them tender and sympathetic workers and good city housekeepers.

"It is in the federated bodies that the best work can be done. This is illustrated by a little organization of 20 women in my own Celery City. They were colored women and we had helped them in every way we could, but they could never seem to get along, and sometimes they would get mad and wouldn't play at all. Then we took them into the federation and they have done beautiful work.

"The Chicago Woman's club, the finest club, I know (I don't know your New York clubs,) have done a great deal of civic work. I went into the juvenile court in Chicago and saw many women around as a matter of course. Sitting back of Judge Mack was another woman to whom the judge turned continually to ask 'what would you do with this case or with that.' This was Mrs. Bass, wife of Judge Bass, who spends two days each week at the court as an assistant without pay."

GIGANTIC BLAST.

One Hundred Thousand Tons of Granite Loosened.

The Long Cove granite quarry in St. George was the scene of a spectacular blast yesterday, says a Rockland, Maine, dispatch to the Globe. Nearly 6000 pounds of powder were used and the shock was so great that 100,000 tons of granite were loosened beyond the necessity of further blasting.

Preparations for the giant blast have been in progress since Dec. 21. At the base of a granite cliff 70 feet high a tunnel was dug into the solid rock a distance of 65 feet. At right angles a tunnel 35 feet long was dug on one side and one 14 feet long on the other. At the end of each arm was constructed a chamber which was made thoroughly water tight after it had been loaded with powder.

When all was in readiness the magazines were connected with a battery several hundred feet beyond the edge of the cliff and among protecting trees. The button was pressed by Miss Jane Seavey, a niece of James Smith, superintendent of the quarry.

A deafening explosion followed. Small pieces of granite shot skyward hundreds of feet and the immense mass of granite was lifted slowly in the air to what seemed a distance of 10 feet and fell with a terrific crash.

As soon as the gases cleared away an examination of the bank was made. Fifty feet from the face of the cliff was a crack two feet wide extending lengthwise about 300 feet.

This enormous mass of stone thus separated was cracked and broken so that the quarrying of it now becomes comparatively easy.

When a similar blast was made seven years ago it furnished so much stone that no more powder was used for three years.

Quincy Among Leaders.

Miss Julia E. Underwood continues one of the first three teachers in her district, in the Herald contest, and votes are coming in from every direction. All Quincy seems united and they have the assistance of many former residents.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Master Prescott continues the leading pupil in New England, being credited on Sunday with 720 votes. About 1000 more votes have accumulated.

SHIPBUILDERS CLUB.

Members Are Enthusiastic and are Having Good Times.

At the Shipbuilders' club, Quincy Point, each succeeding week brings additional success to the concerts held in the club headquarters. The growth of membership, too, is phenomenal, no less than one hundred members have been enrolled within the past four weeks, and the enthusiasm of the officers and members is quite in keeping with such extraordinary growth.

The head foremen of the works are also assisting the club in a thoroughly practical manner by defraying the cost of all refreshments, which make a pleasing aftermath to every concert held. W. S. Allen of Q department acted as host on Friday and was voted hearty thanks for his generosity.

A vigorous effort is being made to secure club rooms more adapted to the requirements of the members and it is hoped that a substantial sum of money will accrue from the exhibition of the new steamer "Providence" which the management of the works, in conjunction with the Fall River Line officials have graciously decided to throw open to the general public on Sunday next, the 12th inst., between the hours of 10 and 4 P. M.

On Friday evening, the club rooms were packed by an enthusiastic audience, the various contributors to an excellent programme being called upon for frequent encores.

The Rev. W. E. Gardner, one of the original promoters of the club, addressed the audience in a broad-minded manner upon club life and its influences for good, especially dwelling upon the temperance aspect. He pleaded strongly for every influence that would tend to elevate, instruct and amuse the members in their spare moments, and concluded with a fervent wish that the club might be the means of creating many sound friendships and much mutual good will and esteem amongst the members.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the various contributors to the program. A general meeting will be convened at an early date to confirm the constitution and by-laws drawn by the committee, and to receive the treasurer's report of the progress of the club, financially and numerically.

Success to the Shipbuilders' club.

A. O. H. Anniversary.

Division 13, Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H. celebrated its seventh anniversary at Braintree a few evenings ago. The initiation of twelve new members by the degree staff of Randolph assisted by the staff choir was the leading feature of the celebration. The division is fast nearing the century mark, as it now numbers eighty-seven active members banded together by the golden chains of "Friendship, Unity and Christian Charity" and its president, Mrs. Luther R. Barnes is an enthusiastic worker in its promotion and advancement. Its chaplain, Rev. Matthew F. McDonald is justly proud of the organization, as its members all of whom are affiliated with his church, are model wives, mothers and sisters.

The organizer of the division, Miss Katherine E. Sheridan, at present national vice president and queen of the degree staff, was presented a beautiful bouquet by the ex-president Mrs. David Buchanan to whom much of the success of the division is due.

A collation of coffee, cake, cream and fruit was furnished. Guests were present from Randolph, Quincy, and Weymouth. These were entertained by selections by the staff choir and by addresses from visiting members.

The "City of the Salt Mines," which is situated several hundred feet below the surface at Weilicska, Galicia, is a wonderful subterranean city, with a population of over 1000 men, women and children, scores of whom have never seen the light of day or the earth's surface.

SECRET OUT.

Electric Signal System Discovered.

In Club Building on Fire.

The fire department was called out at 5.10 Sunday morning by an alarm from Box 72 for a stubborn fire in the Tisdale stable on Washington street, Quincy, Point. The building is occupied in part by Mrs. Tisdale as a stable and the easterly end by Cain & Murphy, as a bowling alley.

The fire evidently started in a room over the street end of the bowling alleys. It was discovered by people living in the house of Thomas F. Merrill, which is situated but a few feet away. The flames were coming through the roof at that time and blazing fiercely.

The neighborhood was quickly aroused and gave their first attention to removing the horses and carriages in the stable. These were all removed in safety.

When the fire department arrived, in response to an alarm from Box 72, it looked as though the entire building was doomed. The Merrill house adjoining had also taken fire from the heat. One stream of water was immediately directed onto the house and kept it wet down while other streams were directed onto the main fire.

The building besides being an old one was well seasoned and dry and burned like tinder. The flames, however, could not withstand the powerful streams of water turned onto it and gradually gave way to its natural enemy.

The fire itself did not work down into the bowling alleys except on the street end and not much there. No fire reached the three alleys although they were wet down. Just how much they were damaged is not known. The fire did not reach the stable and when the fire was out the horses were taken back.

Mr. Cain, who with Mr. Murphy runs the bowling alley for Robert Johnson, was the first man to enter the building after the fire was discovered, and came near losing his life by being overcome by smoke. He was found on his hands and knees by Herbert Griffin of the Central station apparatus who had entered the building with a lantern. Cain was almost overcome by smoke.

Chief of Police Burrell, who was near at hand, found the electric light switch and turned on the lights. Cain was hastily taken into the air where he soon revived.

After the fire was out an electric push button was found hidden. Behind the walls there were a number of wires running to the button and the whole thing looked like an electric signal system.

The police raided these premises some time ago in search of liquors but found none. When the signal wires were found the police did not wonder thereat.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Rather cool weather.

City Council this evening.

Miss Beatrice Adams has accepted a position as bookkeeper at the Hardware Supply Co.

The Pine Tree State Association met with C. M. Chase of Edwards street on Thursday evening.

Mrs. William A. Hodges has returned from a month's visit with her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Hunt of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Henry Kolseth of Walker street has returned from Portland, Maine, where she has been visiting relatives.

Miss Margaret Farrell, bookkeeper for Frank F. Crane for several years, commenced her duties as clerk in the Tax Collector's office at City Hall this morning, in place of Miss Eva Maxim resigned.

After the thaw in the afternoon, the water floods the Squantum car tracks and freezes, so that in the morning the car has to hew its way along, which makes it first trip anything but a record breaker for speed.

COUNCIL BUSINESS.

Many Important Reports Are Expected at Meeting.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. A number of petitions will be received, including one relating to that part of the ordinance concerning the Woodward Fund that fixes the salaries of the treasurer, clerk and auditor.

The Committee on Water Supply will report on the order for $30,000 for water extensions.

The joint Committee on Police and Ordinance will report on the proposed amendment to the Police Ordinance, creating a lieutenant, sergeant, etc.

The Committee on Streets will report on a number of orders relating to attachment of wires, locations of poles, etc.

Reports may also be expected from the Finance Committee.

It is also possible that the High school enlargement matter may come before the Council in some form.

Country roads in China are never bounded by fences, but are entirely undefined. While the farmer has the right to plow up any road passing through his land, drivers of vehicles have an equal right, and they exercise it to traverse any portion of the country at large.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The address of President Roosevelt at the inaugural on Saturday was so short that most everybody has read it, and they endorse the optimistic views therein expressed.

There were many things about the Somerville banquet on Saturday evening which were pleasing. The appreciation of long service by public officials, the loyalty to city, and the fact that a Quincy born man was one of the four guests of honor.

Representative Robert Luce, who introduced Mr. George L. Baxter, said that the banquet was an example which other cities might well follow. In enumerating the widespread influences of Principal Baxter, for 37 years principal of the High School, he said: "No creator of citizenship deserves more gratitude on the part of the people than George L. Baxter.

Mr. Baxter described his coming to Somerville and his entrance upon the new field of duties. A number of humorous references to his work as instructor of some of the men at the tables provoked great applause. "When I came to Somerville," he said, "I felt as old as the oldest, now I feel as young as the youngest. I want to say that it is my sincere wish that Somerville daughters may be as good as their mothers and Somerville sons better than their fathers."

Ten members of the graduating class of Wellesley College made a request for a scientific lecture on "Reproduction." They were refused by every member of the faculty and were told that their request was indelicate. The attitude of the College on this subject is an astonishment to every thinking man and woman in the country. In determining as Bacon said, the relative value of knowledges, which is one of the efforts of education, can anything be considered of greater value than the information which will make of our boys and girls better and wiser parents. In classifying in the order of their importance the leading kinds of activity which constitute human life, Herbert Spencer placed second only to self preservation the activities which have for their end the rearing and discipline of offspring.

Drift of Opinion.

☞One of the latest benefactions of wealth is a donation of $1,000,000 in New York to build a model tenement house. After awhile the fear of dying rich will so spread upon the millionaires that they will even begin to demand to be assessed the full amount of taxes.—Baltimore American.

☞U. S. Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright is perhaps over enthusiastic in his belief that woman may successfully take man's place in "outside" employments. There are many lines of work for which woman is unfitted by nature, yet no one should deny her the opportunity to do that which she can do well. It is not safe to say that contact with the business and industrial world and her consequent independence, robs her of desire for a life of domesticity, for most women would exchange their independence and so-called freedom for love and home and real happiness.—Madame for March.

—The Copley Society of Boston, of which a number of Quincy people interested in art matters are members, is to open its annual loan exhibition on March 15. The collection this year will be devoted entirely to the works by the French impressionist painter, Claude Monet. Nearly all the art connoisseurs who own important canvases by Monet, have generously contributed to make this exhibition as notable in its way as the Whistler Memorial Exhibition of last year.

Carnegie Sees Famous "Asset" of Mrs Chadwick

WAS NOT SIGNED BY HIM

Woman Professes to Have Confidence That She Will Be Acquitted of Charge of Conspiracy Against Banking Laws

Cleveland, March 6.—Nathan Loeser, trustee of the Chadwick assets, and County Prosecutor Keeler called by appointment upon Andrew Carnegie here yesterday. Loeser brought with him the famous $5,000,000 note and the equally famous trust agreement. The officials obtained specimens of Carnegie's handwriting for the purpose of comparing it with the writing on the paper which Mrs. Chadwick used as security for many of her transactions.

Mr. Carnegie was amused when he saw the documents bearing his name. The dissimilarity between the signature which Carnegie wrote for Keeler and the signature which was reputed to be his on the bank paper was marked.

A second purpose of the visit to Carnegie was to learn if Carnegie could be dispensed from coming for the second trial which Mrs. Chadwick and her husband will have to undergo upon state indictments. Carnegie said that he was willing to come to Cleveland in the interest of justice as often as necessary.

Professor Gould, a handwriting expert, was present during the conference between Carnegie and the trustee and Keeler, and made some interesting comment upon the two styles of writing as shown by the alleged forgeries and the genuine signature of Carnegie.

Ex-Federal Judge Wing, who has been retained to assist J. P. Dawley in the defense of Mrs. Chadwick, said last night that he had no idea as to how long the trial would last, neither would he give any intimation as to what the defense would be.

Mr. Carnegie, in the course of his talk with Prosecutor Keeler and Trustee Loeser, repeated his former statements that he had never met Mrs. Chadwick; had never even heard of her until the financial crash in the woman financial affairs came. Inasmuch as Carnegie and the prisoner will meet face to face for the first time in court today, the scene is likely to prove a dramatic one. Mrs. Chadwick comes up for trial upon a federal indictment charging her with conspiracy against the United States banking laws.

In a statement made last night, Mrs Chadwick professes to have confidence that the outcome of the trial will be in her favor. She said:

"I have great hopes of the outcome. I am worried, but not in the sense you would imagine. This is a big event for me, and naturally I am all concerned and anxious, not for the result, mind you, but more because it is a great epoch in my life.

"I will be nervous, but that is not owing to the trial itself, but on account of the large number of people who will be there looking at me. That unstrings me. I can hardly stand it.

"They will say bad things about me, but I will not hear them. I will not be able to hear anything that is going on. You know I am hard of hearing.

"Mr. Carnegie's presence in the city is very good news to me.

"The probabilities are that I will not go on the stand in my own defense Tuesday."

Edgartown Embargo Raised

Edgartown, Mass., March 6.—The ice embargo of the harbor, which has continued for five weeks, was raised by the revenue cutter Mackinac, which forced her way through the ice and opened a channel. There was no serious inconvenience this winter by reason of the ice, as provisions were easily brought overland from Cottage City.

French Comment on Address

Paris, March 6.—President Roosevelt's inaugural address is the subject of much comment by the newspapers here. The Temps characterizes it as a triumphal hymn to the American nation's grandeur and prosperity, and adds that it smacks of Roosevelt as an imperialist, expansionist and militarist.

THE DAY NURSERY.

Mrs. Babcock Reviews the Work Being Done in Quincy.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The first meeting in the interests of the Quincy Day Nursery was held Jan. 19, 1903 in a vacant room in Adams block. The day was the coldest of the winter and but seven women were present, Mrs. Zenas Arnold, Mrs. W. R. Blanchard, Mrs. W. T. Babcock, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Kate E. Hayden, Mrs. Theophilus King and Mrs. Herbert Lawton. At that meeting furniture was promised and thirty-five dollars pledged. For the next meeting the Council Chamber at City hall was secured and through the courtesy and assistance of City Messenger Tirrell has continued to be at our disposal. There was a good attendance and the interest shown warranted the forming of a Day Nursery Association. Feb. 24, 1903, the matter was put in the hands of the following committee: chairman, Mrs. W. T. Babcock; secretary, Mrs. Joseph M. Sheahan; treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Blanchard, with Mrs. A. E. Sproul, Mrs. King, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Lawton, Mrs. E. Granville Pratt, Miss Elsie Russell, Miss Dora French, Miss Emily Wild, Mrs. Charles M. Bryant, Mrs. George H. Brown, Mrs. Percival Sears, Mrs. Frank Brewer, Mrs. Eliza Penniman, as directors.

Meetings were held once in two weeks until July 7, 1903 when the large results from the successful garden party at Mayor and Mrs. Bryant's brought the sum already in the treasury to an amount which warranted the opening of Day Nursery rooms. A place was very difficult to secure but after diligent effort on the part of those in charge two rooms were taken temporarily on Elm street, and on Oct. 16, 1903 the Quincy Day Nursery began its work. It is proper here to pay tribute to the interest and efficiency of Mrs. Harry Talbot the matron selected from several applicants. The fact that she was a widowed mother with young children, as well as her natural ability as a nurse and housekeeper made her services of particular value during the first hard months of establishing the nursery. In spite of an invalid child and her own home duties, she was always prompt and cheerful, her records carefully kept, and the Day Nursery a model of neatness and order. It was with regret the association parted with her and she took with her a letter acknowledging her excellent services.

After the rooms were opened the Association found it had reached proportions requiring a formal organization. Up to this time anyone willing to contribute advice, money, or furniture, or lend even a listening ear might belong to the Day Nursey committee, and were listed under the head of "endorsers." The work had been carried on as though all were sisters of one family. The day arrived for enlarging our boundaries and strengthening our stakes by reaching out into all the wards of the city, and in Nov. 1903 a constitution was adopted, and a new set of officers installed. The work and its value has increased slowly but surely from the beginning. Those best acquainted with it realize not only its present, but its future value.

We are with our excellent matron Miss Gove and her assistant, Miss Long, giving little children love and care as though they were our very own, and making men and women and citizens. We need larger quarters, a house all to ourselves, a sunny yard with a big tree, also a district nurse ready to go to the little children and mothers who cannot come to us. I want means to help not only the widowed mothers, but also the mothers burdened with ill health, small means and many little ones. I want room to establish a clothes exchange as a source of income to us, a relief to those with overfull attics, and as a help to needy mothers and children. The woman who washes and scrubs all day cannot sew evenings as a rule, and little children need many stitches.

Let us remember the words of good Bishop Brooks: "He who helps a child helps humanity, with a distinctness and immediateness and a kind of help impossible to give in any other stage of human life."

Frederica C. Babcock.

LIKE A HUGE BOW

Japanese Almost Surround the Russian Forces

THE LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Will Be Difficult For Kuropatkin to Retire to Tie Pass, Which Appears to Be a Necessary Move For His Safety

Tokio, March 6.—Field Marshal Oyama is continuing his great drives around both flanks of the Russian army. His front is now a huge bow, the base being on the Shakhe river, the right arm reaching a point east of Fushun and the left arm etxending to a point west of Mukden. He is steadily tightening the great cordon of men and steel.

General Kuropatkin is striving desperately to check the Japanese advances, contesting the flank encroachments and hammering the Japanese centre. The Japanese are making heavy gains of ground west of the railway, and have captured great quantities of stores and other spoils.

There has already been bloody fighting and heavy losses and this will be vastly increased when the masses of infantry meet. Field Marshal Oyama, reporting on March 4, says:

"A few days ago our force in the Hsienchuang direction pressed the enemy into his position at Tita, which is 15 miles southeast of Fushun and Manchuntun, 15 miles south of Fushun. The engagement continues in the Shakhe direction.

"The night of March 3 the enemy made four determined attacks against our positions at Housuntuoptzu and Tangshiatun. All were entirely repulsed. In the district east of the railway the enemy's frequent small attacks were all repulsed. In the district west of the railway our force is continuing fierce attacks and has occupied the districts of Wuchenying, five miles west of Shakhe village, and Laishonpao, three miles northwest of Wuchenying, and Shuhopao, the terminus of the new railway constructed by the Russians.

"The force on the right of the Hun river is dislodging the enemy northeast of Saiepeho, which is between the Hun and Liao rivers, and has advanced north. This force carried the enemy's defense line between Chantan and Shufangtai, and pursued the enemy fiercely. The line now is between Wochiaho, 15 miles southwest of Mukden, and Taitse, 13 miles west of Mukden, and Lamuho, four miles north of Taitse.

"During a previous engagement the enemy's casualties were heavy. The spoils we captured were great. No time to investigate. We captured large quantities of provisions at Wanchangpao and captured a clothing depot at Tahantai."

Estimates of General Kuropatkin's force between Shakhe and Tie pass, prepared here, give a total of slightly more than 400,000, composed of 335,000 infantry, 33,000 cavalry and 35,000 artillery, with 1504 guns. This estimate does not include troops at Vladivostok and other garrisons, railway guards and other employes. The grand total east of Lake Baikal is estimated at 700,000 men.

Peace Appreciably Nearer

London, March 6.—The intensely dramatic situation in Manchuria developed by General Nogi's rapid advance and its strategic possibilities has raised excitement in Europe to the highest pitch. It is believed here that General Kuropatkin is in a very tight place and the chances of his extricating his army are keenly discussed. His abandonment of Mukden is considered to be inevitable, the only question being whether he will be able to effect a retreat to Tie pass.

An immediate repulse of General Nogi's army, it is held, might save the situation; but failing in that, Kuropatkin will have committed to him the dangerous and difficult task of retiring northward, harrassed by flanking attacks by the Japanese army. Whatever may be the result, it is felt that peace is appreciably nearer.

St. Petersburg has word that affairs latterly have taken a turn for the better for Russian arms, and the tactics of Field Marshal Oyama, in sacrificing many of his soldiers in an attack on impregnable positions on the centre as a mere diversion while the real blows were being struck on the flanks, is criticised by Russian military officers These critics also point to the attenuation of the Japanese line as an element of peril for Oyama and of hope for Kuropatkin.

The losses on both sides have been heavy, but estimates even are lacking.

A feature of all accounts of the fighting reaching St. Petersburg is the emphasis laid on the awful carnage. There is reference after reference to dead piled high on the ground over which an attack was delivered, strewing breastworks, almost hiding abatis from sight, and even being used by the Japanese to construct hasty entrenchments.

Japs Close to Mukden

St. Petersburg, March 6.—The advanced guard of the Japanese left army was within 5½ miles of Mukden station Saturday, according to a telegram from General Kuropatkin. Other Japanese had captured Suchuzia and Lanscanpa the same day, while their attacks on Putiloff hill and 13 fierce assaults on Kandolesan were repulsed.

AMID SCENES OF SPLENDOR

Theodore Roosevelt Is Acclaimed as Chief Executive

NATION'S GREATEST INAUGURATION

Many Thousands Participate In Military and Civic Parade Which Outshone Those of Previous Years--City Transformed Into Fairyland at Night--Ball In Pension Building Winds Up Festivities--President, In His Inaugurat, Says We Must Face the Future Seriously, Without Fear

Washington, March 6.—The most brilliant and imposing inauguration which the citizens of Washington have ever prepared has passed into the history of the republic. Theodore Roosevelt did not ride to the Capitol, hitch his horse to a shade tree, enter the building, and take the oath of office booted and spurred. The traditional Jeffersonian simplicity was replaced by a pageant which has not been surpassed in the annals of the nation.

For a week the District of Columbia has been the host of the union. Presidential term after presidential term, citizens, without regard to party, unite with enthusiasm in preparing an inauguration that shall fittingly show forth the national respect for the executive officer. For the unparalleled demonstration of Saturday the sole credit is due to these citizens, the officials of the war and navy departments and the officers of the army and navy.

It was the first national inauguration since the Civil war. The south sent up its warriors and its state officials. Men who fought each other for years under different flags; men who fought together in the war with Spain under one flag; executive officers of the states who upheld the stars and bars, and those who stood for the flag of the union, marched together in review before their common president, a soldier of the republic. With these, to illustrate our new nationality, came marching representatives from the Philippines and Porto Rico, lands where the sunset fading from the flag in the far Pacific is the sunrise on its folds along the Atlantic horizon.

The committees on street decorations, street illumination and parks and reviewing stands worked together with artistic taste and transformed 2½ miles of the city's noted avenue into a fitting highway for the nation in its countless representative bodies to march as an escort to its president. Every square yard that was not black with people banked high from the pavement, crowding all windows, and fringing all roofs, was brilliant with the national colors. It was not a haphazard hanging of banners, but under the direction and advice of a competent committee the best effects were produced.

Heretofore the decorations of the avenue have been chiefly flags, streamers and bunting. To these were added palms of large growth, and in endless abundance, brought by carloads from the south and shiploads from Porto Rico.

The president's reviewing stand in front of the White House was the centre of the court of history, which extended two long blocks. Along each side of the avenue were noted historical figures in great numbers, from the St. Louis exposition.

When all was ready for the crowning ceremonies the sea of humanity was stilled. The president, with his hand upon the Bible held by the chief justice, reverently repeated the oath, kissed the book at the end, and Theodore Roosevelt became president by the votes of the people, following the unbroken line of soldier-presidents which has party has installed since the close of the Civil war. He then delivered his inaugural, which surprised his hearers by its brevity.

As the ceremony closed he was greeted by the roaring cheers of the immense throng.

Accompanied by his escort and followed by the troops and civilian paraders, he started for the White House. It was the most perfect column that ever marched in an inaugural parade, though its numbers were less. General Chaffee had insisted that a brigade of the National Guard from each state should be the maximum representation.

Never has there been so perfect a regular army column in any previous national pageant. Cavalry, infantry, artillery, engineers, marines, seamen, and, properly classed with all these, the Annapolis and West Point cadets, thrilled all beholders with this exponent of the perfection of our military arm.

The National Guards of states and of the district showed the marked improvement which the practical summer encampments and maneuvers, supervised by regular officers, have accomplished by the abolition of the former military picnics.

While the whole military column was a marvel and a delight, as indicated by the continuing tornado of cheers where it passed, there were elements of special interest. The Ninth cavalry, that splendid colored regiment, the heroes of many Indian battles and known to fame at San Juan hill, received merited attention. The crowds went wild over the section of Rough Riders which participated with the president in the wildness of the rush and joy of the victory at Santiago. It is not strange that there were a soldier's tears in a soldier's eyes as he bowed to the salutes of his comrades in war.

The scouts from the Philippines, and the Porto Rico battalion excited intense interest and they will never forget their welcome. The brigade of cadet battalions from many states, organized by General Chaffee, attracted universal attention and received unbounded applause.

The civic grand division of eight brigades in three divisions, made up of over 50 organizations, was in every respect better organized than ever before, and so, like the whole column, more interesting. There were governors and their gorgeous staffs, many noted political clubs from east and west, college and university men, high school cadets from north and south, several original Roosevelt clubs, Roosevelt home clubs, "Roosevelt's neighbors," anthracite miners, "rail-splitters," Italian clubs, Spanish veterans, secret societies, boys' brigades, newsboys, drum corps, bugle corps, church societies, cowboys, and clubs in great variety. It was a column in mosaic, fairly representing every prominent element of American civic life. In all its parts, it was an attractive spectacle worthy of the notable occasion.

The whole column, military and civic, under General Chaffee and his staff, marched with a steadiness and celerity hitherto unattained and, like every section of this unrivalled inauguration, its praises are on every tongue.

The chief feature of the parade was Captain Seth Bullock and his "bunch of cow-punchers." It was the time of their life and they were making the most of it. All of them know the president personally and as they passed the stand they shouted to him, waved their hats and cheered like wild men. One of their number added interest to the occasion by lassooing various persons along the route of the parade, including a big policeman. The diversion afforded him and the spectators the greatest delight.

"It was a great success. Great. And did you note that 'bunch' of cowboys. Oh, they are the boys who can ride. It all was superb. It really touched me to the heart." This was the comment made by President Roosevelt as he was leaving the reviewing stand for the White House at the conclusion of the parade.

On turning from the pageant of the day, the doubled population of the city disposed itself for the three imposing spectacles of the night, the promenade at the pension office, misnamed a ball; the fireworks on the White lot, and the dazzling street decoration.

The attendance at the ball was limited to the 12,000 or 15,000 which the building would hold. The street decorations were viewed by a solid marching column filling the wide pavements of the avenue and the street itself.

No such brilliant scene of decoration and illumination was ever witnessed before in this country, or any other, for here electrical effects had their origin, and have their greatest development. The dome of the Capitol stood white against the darkness, illuminated by searchlights from the top of the Washington monument, and the monument itself, by the same method, was made visible for many miles.

The fireworks exceeded all previous displays. There were no ordinary pieces. Rockets with their dangerous sticks were discarded. The set pieces were of large dimensions—such as a wheel more than 100 feet in diameter, a presidential piece 200 feet in length, and a national flag 300 feet long, carried up 1000 feet by balloon, and there developed in the sight of the city and beyond.

The decorations of the ballroom most successfully conformed to the agreement that every inauguration should exceed all previous efforts. All was accomplished that could be effected by extended masses of color, spreading about and over the immense room and its galleries, with miles of evergreen vines, carloads of cut flowers, flames in artistic combination; electric lights by the thousands upon thousands, and electric pieces large and small, with one of unrivalled proportions carrying 6000 lights of varied colors woven into a most beautiful design.

The inaugural gown of Mrs. Roosevelt surpassed in beauty and simple elegance all expectations. It was of pale electric blue satin, made with a train and decollette with short puff sleeves. It was delicately brocaded in gold thread which outlined flocks of doves, the blue and gold softly merging.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore in her hair a pale blue plume and carried a beautiful bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Around the neck of her gown was rare old point lace and she wore a magnificent necklace of diamonds.

Miss Alice Roosevelt's gown was of white satin made with train. The tails of the white satin coat extended to the edge of the train. In the back the dress was made princess and in front the coat was cut short like a zouave jacket. The jacket opened on a bodice of cloth of gold, and the skirt, which was cut full, was of cloth of gold, veiled with real lace net.

The instrumental music, and the trained chorus of 500 voices, filled the vast building to its remotest recesses with the perfection of musical attainment. In deference to the Sabbath all ceremonies stopped at midnight, but it was well toward morning before the lights were turned down on the most brilliant spectacle that Washington had seen in its long line of notable occasions. Till long after midnight, the gathered thousands walked wondering and enthusiastic along Pennsylvania avenue, through long reaches of fairyland. With the small hours the lights faded and the citizens rested from their months of labor. Grandly had the District of Columbia entertained the nation.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Our Attitude Toward All Other Nations, Great and Small, Should Be of Sincere Friendship--Wish Peace Not Because We Are Afraid--We Face Internal Perils of Modern Life

My fellow-citizens: No people on earth have more cause to be thankful than ours, and this is said reverently, in no spirit of boastfulness in our own strength, but with gratitude to the Giver of Good, who blessed us with conditions which have enabled us to achieve so large a measure of well-being and of happiness.

To us as a people it has been granted to lay the foundations of our national life in a new continent. We are the heirs of the ages, and yet we have had to pay few of the penalties which in old countries are exacted by the dead hand of a by-gone civilization. We have not been obliged to fight for our existence against any alien race; and yet our life has called for the vigor and effort without which the manlier and hardier virtues wither away.

Under such conditions it would be our own fault if we failed; and the success which we have had in the past, the success which we confidently believe the future will bring, should cause in us no feeling of vainglory, but rather a deep and abiding realization of all which life has offered us; a full acknowledgment of the responsibility which is ours; and a fixed determination to show that under a free government a mighty people can thrive best, alike as regards the things of the body and the things of the soul.

Much has been given to us, and much will rightfully be expected from us. We have duties to others and duties to ourselves—and we can shirk neither. We have become a great nation, forced by the fact of its greatness into relations with other nations of the earth; and we must behave as beseems a people with such responsibilities. Toward all other nations, large and small, our attitude must be one of cordial and sincere friendship. We must show not only in our words but in our deeds that we are earnestly desirous of securing their good will by acting toward them in a spirit of just and generous recognition of all their rights.

But justice and generosity in a nation, as in an individual, count most when shown not by the weak but by the strong. While ever careful to refrain from wronging others, we must be no less insistent that we are not wronged ourselves. We wish peace; but we wish the peace of justice, the peace of righteousness. We wish it because we think it is right and not because we are afraid. No weak nation that acts rightly and justly should ever have cause to fear us, and no strong power should ever be able to single us out as a subject for insolent aggression.

Our relations with the other powers of the world are important; but still more important are our relations among ourselves. Such growth in wealth, in population, and in power as this nation has seen during the century and a quarter of its national life is inevitably accompanied by a like growth in the problems which are ever before every nation that rises to greatness.

Power means both responsibility and danger. Our forefathers faced certain perils which we have outgrown. We now face other perils the very existence of which it was impossible that they should foresee. Modern life is both complex and intense, and the tremendous changes wrought by the extraordinary industrial development of the half century are felt in every fibre of our social and political being.

Never before have men tried so vast and formidable an experiment as that of administering the affairs of a continent under the forms of a democratic republic. The conditions which have told for our marvelous material well being, which have developed to a very high degree of our energy, self-reliance and individual initiative, also have brought the care and anxiety inseparable from the accumulation of great wealth in industrial centres.

Upon the success of our experiment much depends; not only as regards our own welfare, but as regards the welfare of mankind. If we fail, the cause of free self-government throughout the world will rock to its foundations; and therefore our responsibility is heavy to ourselves, to the world as it is today, and to the generations yet unborn. There is no good reason why we should fear the future, but there is every reason why we should face it seriously, neither hiding from ourselves the gravity of the problems before us nor fearing to approach these problems with the unbending, unflinching purpose to solve them aright.

Yet, after all, though the problems are new, though the tasks set before us differ from the tasks set before our fathers who founded and preserved this republic, the spiriti in which these tasks must be undertaken and these problems faced, if our duty is to be well done, remains essentially unchanged. We know that self-government is difficult. We know that no people needs such high traits of character as that people which seeks to govern its affairs aright through the freely expressed will of the free men who compose it.

But we have faith that we shall not prove false to the memories of the men of the mighty past. They did their work, they left us the splendid heritage we now enjoy. We in our turn have an assured confidence that we shall be able to leave this heritage unwasted and enlarged to our children and our children's children.

To do so, we must show, not merely in great crises, but in the everyday affairs of life, the qualities of practical intelligence, of courage, of hardihood and endurance, and above all the power of devotion to a lofty ideal, which made great the men who founded this republic in the days of Washington, which made great the men who preserved this republic in the days of Abraham Lincoln.

Clue to the Cheney Securities

Boston, March 6.—The Post says: A definite clue has been discovered in connection with the disappearance of the $285,000 worth of securities belonging to Herman S. Cheney of Southbridge, and, if this clue leads, as is expected, to the establishment of certain facts, Mr Cheney will be placed in possession of his securities, or the state police will be given information that will result in an arrest, and either of these events, it is said, will occur within the next 48 hours.

Japanese Squadrons Sighted

London, March 6.—The German steamer Nubia, according to the correspondent of The Daily Mail at Hong Kong, reports having sighted two Japanese squadrons on Saturday, 100 miles southeast of Hong Kong. The first squadron, comprising nine battleships and cruisers, was seen at 2 o'clock in the morning going at full speed with all lights out, and the second squadron of 13 large warships was sighted in the afternoon.

Murder of Chinese Laundryman

Taunton, Mass., March 6.—Charles Lee Pong, a Chinese laundryman, aged 60, who has resided in Taunton for more than 10 years, and who, according to his countrymen here, had no enemies, was found dead in the back room of his laundry with a bullet wound in the neck and one in the left temple. No weapon was found in the place, and the cash drawer was empty. There is no trace of the murderer.

A Hundred and Six Dead

Birmingham, Ala., March 6.—One more body has been recovered from the Virginia mine, which makes the total number of victims recovered at this time 106. The mine is still full of water and slow progress is being made in installing the pumping machinery. The last body found was in a dry place and was well preserved by the gases in the mine, but fell to pieces on striking the fresh air.

Fifteen-Foot Fall Caused Death

Boston, March 6.—James M. Claxton, an insurance agent, died from the effects of injuries caused by a fall in the postoffice building. Claxton had found his way to what is known as the "inspector's platform" overlooking the mailing room, and, losing his balance, fell to the floor, 15 feet below. Claxton sustained oedema of the skull, fractures of three ribs and a fracture of the spine.

Oldest Indian Passes On

Shawnee, O. T., March 6.—Kathlo Harjo, a Seminole, known as "Old Fish," said to have been the oldest Indian in America, is dead at the age of 110. He was born in the Everglades of Florida and fought in the war of 1812 against this country as well as in the Seminole wars. He enlisted as a volunteer soldier of the United States during the Civil war and served with distinction.

Probing Alleged Oil Trust

Washington, March 6.—Commissioner Garfield of the bureau of corporations, in response to a resolution of congress, has instituted a rigid investigation of the operations of the oil industry in Kansas and contiguous states. The report of Garfield will be made directly to President Roosevelt. Whether it will be made public will lie within the discretion of the chief executive

Two Raids on Tramps

Boston, March 6.—"Debs' shanty," a building near the Mystic river in Charlestown, which for years has been resorted to by tramps, was raided last night by the police and 21 men were arrested on charges of vagrancy. Last night the police made a second descent upon the resort and arrested 19 more men on similar charges.

Alleged Mail Robber Caught

Lynn, Mass., March 6.—Word was received here of the arrest at Norfolk of Fred Beaupre of this city, who is wanted here on a charge of rifling a registered letter mail pouch on Oct. 18 last. Beaupre was a driver of a wagon for a local mail carrying contractor, and disappeared on the day of the robbery.

Suicide of Police Officer

Malden, Mass., March 6.—The body of Clement A. Seltrup, aged 42, a police officer, who was arrested Saturday night on a serious charge and later released on bail, was found Sunday in a lot adjoining his home, with a wound in his mouth and a revolver by his side, he having committed suicide.

Incendiarism by Robbers

South Britain, Conn., March 6.—After rifling the money drawer and taking a few small articles, burglars set fire to the building occupied by Mitchell & Williams as a general store. The loss is $6000. The robbers escaped.

Rebuilding Quickly Begun

Lisbon, N. H., March 6.—The rebuilding of the 12 lumber kilns of the Parker & Young company, which were burned Saturday night, together with 1,000,000 feet of lumber, commenced today. The loss was $25,000.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

John H. Starr of Revere road is quite ill, having been confined to the house past two weeks.

The Quincy Day Nursery association meets tomorrow afternoon in the Council chamber at City Hall.

C. W. Carter left this morning for a business trip through Connecticut, New York and Philadelphia.

The Pickwick club will meet with Mrs. Alden this evening. The subject will be "Our Dependencies."

Mrs. Beatrice Porterfield will give a matinee whist at her home on Granite street on Thursday afternoon,

The small patch of ice in Holbrook's field, back of Walker street was taken advantage of Sunday by several skaters.

Miss Florence Hill of Walker street returned Monday from a week end visit in Everett, as a guest of Miss Claire Sears.

"Quincy has a women's club" was the startling scare headline in a Sunday newspaper. It was the caption for the club news.

Edgar G. Cleaves has opened a real estate office in the Hancock building. He also has an appointment as an auctioneer.

The many friends of Charles Cummings are pleased to see him out again, after an illness of six weeks with rheumatism and the grip.

Tickets for the minstrel show to be given in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry Mar. 22, went on sale at Eben Hardy's, Newport avenue, this morning.

The Sunday morning service at the Quincy Point church was added greatly to by Mr. Joseph Bryne's tenor solo. The selection was from the Oratorio of Elijah.

Miss Bessie Thayer, formerly of Quincy Point, left Wednesday last for North Carolina. She intends writing a series of letters for a Boston paper if her health permits. She remains south three months.

W. A. Dow of Braintree mourns the death of his father, Abel Dow, which took place on Saturday at Canobic Lake, N. H., in his 81st year. He leaves a widow, to whom he was married 55 years ago.

Franklin Faxon contemplates the erection of a brick apartment house on up-to-date plans on the Nancy Brackett estate, front of Dr. Gordon's, which he purchased a year or two ago. Quincy needs just such buildings.

The basket ball game on Saturday evening between the St. Marys and the East Boston High was closely contested, the victory going to the visitors near the close on a foul by P. Crowley. The score was 11 to 10. The second team of the visitors also won 19 to 8.

Another City Square sale of importance is announced, the balance of the Dr. French estate upon which are the store of F. F. Crane and the office of F. F. Green, having been purchased by Fred B. Rice. It is said the property will be improved if Maple place is extended.

The Y. P. R. U. the Wollaston Unitarian church held a meeting in the vestry Sunday evening. After the usual services William G. Harrington, president of the Boston Federation of the Y. P. R. Unions gave an interesting talk upon what the Federation stands for.

A. R. Baxter of Trenton, N. J., formerly of Quincy, is in town on a brief visit.

Councilman Newman Savage is quite ill at his home on Franklin street with pneumonia.

Mrs. George Ewell is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ewell of Foster street for a few weeks.

FIFTY CENTS

IN some conditions the gain from the use of Scott's Emulsion is very rapid. For this reason we put up a fifty-cent size, which is enough for an ordinary cough or cold or useful as a trial for babies and children. In other conditions the gain is slower—health cannot be built up in a day. In such cases Scott's Emulsion must be taken as nourishment; a food rather than a medicine. It's a food for tired and weak digestions.

THAT DISTANT HILL.

Do Not Attempt to Climb It Until You Come to It.

Never climb a hill until you get to it, advises a writer in Medical Talk For the Home. We remember as children that in riding through the country we had a dread of high hills. How often we saw far ahead of us on the road a formidable looking hill. How high and rough and steep it looked, and how we feared it? How hard it would be for the horse to carry us up such a hill? We were sure he would slip and fall and maybe upset the carriage, and so, with the greatest apprehension, we would approach the dreadful hill. But how surprised we were as we came nearer to find the hill receding, growing flatter and really not a hill at all when we reached the point that seemed so high and craggy and dangerous?

So it is with many of life's perplexities. How darkly they loom up before us! What a black pall they spread around us? But when we get close up to them they have vanished entirely. We spoil so much of life in fear and foreboding. We let slip the beautiful moments that are ours and spoil them by dreading the moments of the future with which we have nothing to do. We ride over the nice, level country, forgetting its beauty, unmindful of its delight, dreading the hill that never comes.

DISRAELI AND GLADSTONE.

Two Mountains, the Two Men and Two Characteristic Letters.

When the English Admiral J. Moresby discovered two mountains in New Guinea he named one Mount Gladstone and the other Mount Disraeli. He wrote to the two statesmen asking permission to use their names, and their replies, which he gives, are characteristic of the humor of one and the want of humor of the other.

Gladstone wrote:

Hawarden Castle, Chester,
Aug. 12, 1874.

Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of June 24 and to return my best thanks for the compliment you have paid me, little deserved as it is, in naming after me the highest peak of the Finisterre range in New Guinea.

Allow me to subscribe myself, sir, your most faithful servant,

W. E. GLADSTONE.

Captain Moresby, R. N., H. M. S. Basilisk.

Disraeli wrote:

10 Downing Street, Aug. 17, 1874.

Dear Sir—Allow me to acknowledge the compliment you have paid me by planting my name on the northeast shores of New Guinea and in selecting a godfather so distinguished for the peak which faces Mount Disraeli. I am, dear sir, faithfully yours, BEN. DISRAELI.

Captain Moresby, R. N., H. M. S. Basilisk.

Later Disraeli wrote:

I hope we shall agree better in New Guinea than we do in the house of commons.

EGGS AS FOOD.

Why They Are Valuable as a Diet For the Sick.

Eggs without doubt stand next to milk in available food material for the sick, as they are easily digested and absorbed if raw or properly prepared. Physiological chemists tell us that 97 per cent of the albumen and 94 per cent of the fat are absorbed into the blood stream. These same chemists tell us that eggs are a complete food for all young mammals, as they contain in correct proportion the tissue building material, in form of albumen (white) and mineral matter, in the form of phosphorus, lime, potassium, iron and sulphur; the heat and energy material in the form of oil (fat) in the yolk, and a large amount of pure water.

Owing to the lack of starch and sugar an egg cannot be called a complete food for the adult; hence bread, rice or some other starchy food must be served with eggs. To render the food complete the sick must be fed as children are—that is, with foods that are easily and quickly digested and absorbed, for the digestive organs are always weak. Eggs therefore are among the most valuable of foods for this purpose.

The Island of Pearls.

The Venezuelan island of Margarita, whose name is the Latin word for pearl, and whose gems were fought over by the early Spanish explorers, is an interesting spot. About 2,000 men find constant employment in this business, which has its thrilling moments, since the opening of a shell dredged from the pearl oyster banks may disclose a jewel of great price. The Margaritan pearls are of fine quality, usually white or yellow, with an occasional black one, and such a one is greeted with joy, for it bears a high value. About $600,000 worth of pearls are found near Margarita every year.

The Last Chapter.

She shook her head. "No," she said sadly, but firmly, "I cannot trust you."

With a groan of despair, he sprang to his feet.

"Goodby forever!" he muttered. "I'll bet I can find a landlady that will. I don't have to board here, you know!"

In another minute he had gone, carrying his trunk with him.—Cleveland Leader.

"What are the things that touch us most as we look back through the years?" asked a lecturer impressively.

There was a moment's pause, and then a small boy in the audience answered:

"Our clothes."

Heading Him Off.

The Yellow Holly

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

CHAPTER X.

IT was a most awkward meeting. Dorothy, Train and Brendon knew the truth, but Mrs. Ward and Vane were ignorant. As to Lord Derrington himself, George was not sure. After his conversation with Lola he had a vague idea that, since Bawdsey was connected in some way with his grandfather, Lord Derrington must have somehow learned that Brendon was the name his grandson had taken. There was no other way of accounting for the mention of Derrington's name by the private detective.

However this might be, Lord Derrington was too clever a man to betray himself. George felt that the old man knew who he was, but he could not be sure, for Derrington welcomed him with a well bred air, as he would have done a stranger. Mrs. Ward watched the meeting curiously, and Brendon noticed her inquiring gaze, but he put this down to his knowledge that Derrington knew he was a suitor for Dorothy's hand and wished the girl to marry Vane. Leonard was the only person in the room who displayed any visible disturbance. He grew red and restless. Brendon was perfectly calm.

"How delightful of you to come, Mr. Brendon," said Mrs. Ward, rising and apparently forgetting that she had forbidden him the house. "I must introduce you. Lord Derrington—Mr. Brendon, and you know Mr. Train."

"We are old friends," said George calmly. "Miss Ward"—he bowed to Dorothy, who emulated his serenity, although she felt anxious. But when she saw her lover's composure she knew that nothing disagreeable would occur, and her apprehensions were relieved.

There ensued a general conversation relative to the weather, to the doings of a certain politician and to sundry other subjects more or less vague. George talked excellently and was conscious that Derrington was listening with approval. Again and again he wondered if the old man really knew who he was, and again and again he failed to arrive at any conclusion. After a time Leonard went with Dorothy to the piano, where she played for his delectation, and Mrs. Ward seized the opportunity to show Vane some new photographs of herself. Derrington and Brendon were practically alone, and the old lord appeared anxious to make himself agreeable.

"I have heard of you from Mrs. Ward," he said in his harsh tones, which no amount of politeness could render agreeable, "but I do not think we have met before. Are you related to the Brendons of Shropshire?"

"No. I have not that privilege."

Derrington chuckled at this reply. He thought George had a good deal of the man in him when he answered thus fearlessly. "I have seen your name somewhere lately," he observed, "but I can't recall where or in what connection."

Brendon laughed, quite at his ease, although he did not know if this was an attempt to make him speak out. However, he did speak out, with the idea of seeing what would happen. "I can supply the connection," said he lightly, but keenly observant of the old man's face. "My name appeared as a witness at an inquest a week or so back."

"Ah, now I remember, Mr. Brendon. Quite so. It was that Amelia square murder."

"You have a good memory, Lord Derrington."

"In this case you flatter me, Mr. Brendon. There is no difficulty in my remembering the especial case, as Mrs. Jersey was a tenant of mine."

George was not supposed to know this and displayed suitable surprise.

"Indeed," he said; "then you have lost a good tenant."

"Possibly," replied Derrington, rather grimly. "She always paid her rent regularly. You saw her?"

"Yes. My friend, Mr. Train, was stopping in the house"—

"That young man." Derrington cast a look in Leonard's direction. "I did not know he was there on that night."

"He was a witness also," said Brendon significantly.

"I can't remember all the names, sir. Well?"

"I stopped for the night with Mr. Train and during the night Mrs. Jersey was murdered."

"You heard nothing—saw nothing?"

"I was sound asleep the whole time," said Brendon calmly.

"Humph!" Derrington pulled at his gray mustache in the very same way as George did when he was reflective. "What a pity. You might have discovered the assassin."

"I don't think the assassin will ever be discovered."

"That's lucky for the assassin," rejoined the old lord cynically. "You appear to be very certain, Mr. Brendon."

George shrugged his shoulders. "No more certain than the police are," he replied. "They examined every one in the house, and no one could be accused—there was absolutely no evidence."

Derrington for some reason appeared to be rather relieved. "I read all that in the papers," he said roughly. "You are telling me nothing new. But there, you didn't say you would. By the way, do you know a Miss Bull?"

George nodded. "She told my fortune," he said.

"She told Mrs. Jersey's fortune also, and a very true fortune did she tell," said Derrington grimly. "What did she prophesy about you?"

"There were trouble and enemies and the promise that I should get my wish," said Brendon, with a quick look.

Derrington laughed. "What is your wish?"

"If I tell it I won't get it," replied George, also laughing, "but I don't believe in fortune telling. It is rubbish."

"It wasn't in Mrs. Jersey's case," said the other, who appeared to be a trifle superstitious.

"Oh, that was a mere coincidence. But you asked me about Miss Bull, sir. Do you know her?"

Derrington nodded. "She came to me on behalf of Mrs. Jersey's niece and wished the lease renewed. I heard her story and consented. I dare say the niece will be quite as good a tenant as the aunt."

This conversation was all very well, but there was nothing to be learned from it on either side. Brendon could not discover if his grandfather knew to whom he was speaking, and Derrington found it impossible to learn if George could tell him anything of the case which had not been reported in the papers. For some reason Derrington wished to know what had transpired, and Brendon felt convinced that this anxiety was more than that of a landlord for the loss of a good tenant. He wondered if Derrington knew that Mrs. Jersey had written out a confession and that it was missing. He would have liked to find out, but since he could not reveal himself as Derrington's grandson there was no chance of getting this information. Besides, Derrington appeared to grow weary of discussing the murder. "It is worn threadbare," he said. "All the papers have been talking about it. I agree with you, Mr. Brendon, that the assassin will never be discovered. However, there are pleasanter subjects to talk of. What about yourself—your aims, your ambitions, your chances of success?"

"Are those pleasant subjects?" laughed Brendon.

"To an old man such as I am," nodded the other. "I like to hear of the castles in the air which youth builds."

"I am afraid my castles will never turn to bricks and mortar," said Brendon, with a sigh.

However, he was not averse to showing his grandfather that he was no fool, but a man with a head on his shoulders. George had a quick brain and a strong will and a considerable fund of information. He had taken a good degree at Oxford, and his literary articles always received praise from the public and from his brethren of the press. Moreover, George was fond of politics and could converse excellently on that fascinating subject. He laid himself out to please Derrington, knowing that the old tyrant was disappointed in the languid Vane, who was chattering commonplace to Mrs. Ward. In a short time Brendon and Derrington were engaged in a discussion about Ireland and Irish home rule.

"You ought to be in the house, Mr. Brendon," said the old lord.

Derrington was about to speak and fastened his little eyes on the keen, handsome face of the younger man, but he suddenly changed his mind and turned away to talk to Mrs. Ward. Brendon knew that he had succeeded in pleasing the old gentleman and was glad that so much was accomplished. If Derrington found that he was clever and presentable and likely to add luster to the family name it was not improbable that he would recognize the marriage. But by this time George had it in his mind that Derrington knew who he was and had been talking advisedly under the cover of pretended ignorance so as to see what manner of man his unacknowledged grandson was. "Well," thought Brendon, "he has learned that I am no fool, at all events."

Mrs. Ward came across to George and left Derrington talking to Dorothy, for whom he professed a great admiration. He knew that Dorothy liked Brendon, as Mrs. Ward had told him so, and he frankly acknowledged to her that Brendon was a clever man.

TOWN MEETINGS.

Braintree Elects a New Selectman.

All Neighboring Towns No License.

Results in Milton, Weymouth and other Towns.

Monday was town meeting day in Braintree and in spite of an ideal day only 849 ballots were cast, out of 1,400 voters. Last year 1,108 ballots were cast.

J. Parker Hayward of East Braintree, who has served the town ten consecutive years as Selectmen, refused to run another year, and his chair is now filled by Henry M. Storm who defeated William Allen by 18 votes. Mr. Storm is also chairman of the Republican town committee.

The interest in the election was for school committee, the fight being made for Frank H. Palmer and Herbert F. Kneeland. The latter won 589 to 250.

ANOTHER DAY

To Adjust the Cutters Bill of Prices.

Blacksmiths' Bill Will Come Next.

The Blacksmiths' Union Have a Different Committee.

The two committees, representing the Granite Manufacturers' Association and the Granite Cutters' Union, were unable to complete their work on the details of the bill of prices at Monday's session. Another session was therefore necessary today.

The committee hope to finish the Cutters' bill today, after which the blacksmiths' bill will be considered. The same committee of the manufacturers will consider this bill but the workmen's committee is a different one from that on the cutters bill.

The meeting of the Cutters' union to have been held Monday night did not take place, as the committees had not finished their work.

THE SPY SYSTEM.

It Is the Very Soul of the Government In Russia.

Russia is pre-eminently the land of spies. In Moscow in the streets agents of the police are stationed every 500 yards. In addition secret agents watch the houses day and night, one being allotted to every four houses, and in every house is another spy—the porter. Go where you will, you are never out of the watchful eye of the police. You brush against spies in your hotel, as in the theaters; in a restaurant, as in the drawing room of a friend. It is ridiculously easy to recognize those you meet in the fashionable resorts. They have evidently been instructed to disguise themselves as gentlemen, and for one of them the livery of a gentleman is a frock coat, a silk hat and always, by rain or sunlight, an umbrella. The famous third police! A stranger might fancy that in an open cab, talking French or English to his friend, he would at least be safe from surveillance. But his friend will touch him significantly and speak of the weather. The fat cabby on the box, somnolent, with white hair and good paternal eyes, may be a spy more skilled in the languages than the traveling stranger, and if the cabman has been found loitering near the great clubs, the hotels or the embassies the chances are strong that he is. A subtler police than that of the third section—the okrana, which has its ramifications in every capital in Europe and America—completes this great system of espionage. Its mesh is over every man in Russia. —Success.

DUE TO CRITICISM

Resignation of Wyndham, Chief Secretary For Ireland

EARL OF DUDLEY NEXT

Healy Says Ireland Will Be Run From Orange Lodges--Wyndham's Failure of Well Meant Efforts Generally Deplored

London, March 7.—Premier Balfour announced in the house of commons that Mr. Wyndham, the chief secretary for Ireland, had resigned.

In announcing the resignation the premier said Wyndham's principal reason for resigning was the fact that the recent controversy inside and outside the house had greatly impaired, if not altogether destroyed, the value of the work he could perform as chief secretary for Ireland.

Asked at the rising of the house of commons whether the Earl of Dudley (lord lieutenant of Ireland) or others had resigned, Sir Alexander Acland-Hood replied that obviously he "was not aware of resignations when they were tendered, but only when they had been accepted."

This equivocal statement is held to imply that the tale of resignations is not yet complete, but that Wyndham will be followed into retirement by the Earl of Dudley, who at the present moment is taking a holiday in Paris, while, if Sir Antony MacDonnell, the under secretary, does not resign, the new secretary will probably dispense with his services. The Ulster Unionists are not likely to be satisfied with anything less than this.

As a matter of fact it is understood that the Earl of Dudley tendered his resignation on personal grounds before the MacDonnell affair came into prominence, but was asked and consented to stay till the end of the Dublin season.

MacDonnell has a powerful friend in Lord Lansdowne and Balfour's prolonged but useless fight against the Ulsterites to retain Wyndham is believed to have been inspired by the knowledge that if MacDonnell were sacrificed to Orange rancour Lansdowne also would resign from the foreign office.

Altogether the premier's difficult task is in no wise surmounted with the mere resignation of Wyndham. Timothy Healy, who was interviewed last night, said the logical outcome of the situation would be to run Ireland from the Orange lodges and that every Catholic official in Ireland should be dismissed and replaced by Orangemen. There are, he said, only two ways of governing Ireland, either according to the views of the Irish people or according to the views of the Orange minority.

The real cause of Wyndham's downfall, Healy added, was the treasury. If the government had given away another judgeship or two and paid for Bann drainage the Orangemen would not have revolted; but the treasury spent $10,000,000 chasing the Mad Mullah and refused a few thousands to save the chief secretary. But the government could not last, said Healy; it was obviously moribund.

In the Irish privy council yesterday the Marquis of Ormond was sworn as lord justice for the government of Ireland during the absence of Viceroy Dudley.

The Ulster Unionists naturally are elated over the success of their campaign against Wyndham, but elsewhere the greatest sympathy is expressed by press and public for the failure of Wyndham in his well meant effort for Ireland. It is generally considered that he would have done better by courageously upholding under Secretary MacDonnell instead of trying to please everybody.

Lady Long, wife of the prospective new chief secretary for Ireland, is an Irish woman, the daughter of Lord Cork.

Resignation of Federal Judge

Washington, March 7.—John J. Jackson, United States judge for the northern district of West Virginia, has tendered his resignation and it has been accepted. To succeed him, President Roosevelt will nominate Representative Dayton of West Virginia. Dayton has served in the 54th, 55th, 56th and 57th congresses, and was re-elected to the 58th congress.

Alleged Bribery In Colorado

Denver, March 7.—Senator Morgan (Rep.) announced at the joint convention of the general assembly that $1500 had been offered him and $750 had already been given him for his vote for Governor Adams in the contest for the office of governor. A committee was appointed by the general assembly to investigate the charges.

Reappearance of Sun Spots

Toledo, March 7.—Rev. F. J. Hillig, professor of astronomy at St. Johns college, this city, has discovered a group of spots in the upper left quadrant of the sun, visible with the naked eye. Hillig predicts some magnetic or atmospheric disturbance in the near future as a result.

Wreck of Mail Steamer

Cairo, March 7.—The Italian mail steamer Cairo was wrecked at the entrance of the harbor of Alexandria. Her passengers have been landed and it is hoped that her mails will be recovered.

NINE REPUBLICAN CITIES

Two Democrats Successful In Maine Mayoralty Contests

Portland, Me., March 7.—Republicans were successful in electing chief magistrates except at Lewiston and South Portland in the municipal elections held in 11 of the 20 Maine cities, and obtained control of all except the Saco and Lewiston city governments. Of the three mayors who were nominated for re-election all were successful.

The closest contest was at Saco, where the Citizen-Democratic organization lost the head of its ticket by two votes, but retained a majority of the aldermen and councilmen.

The sharpest contest was at Waterville, where the Republicans, who lost control of the city's affairs two years ago for the first time in 10 years, elected their mayor by 10 votes and carried four of the seven wards. The cities electing Republican mayors were Auburn, Bath, Eastport, Ellsworth, Gardner, Hallowell, Rockland, Saco and Waterville.

Four Thousand Saw Boxing Bouts

Boston, March 7.—The feature of the Amateur Athletic union boxing championships in this city was the defeat in the 158-pound class of Charles Mayer of New York, winner of the Olympic championship last summer, by Mack Egan of Bryn Mawr, Pa. Egan, however, was defeated later for the championship of the 145-pound class, to which he was eligible, by H. L. McKinnon of this city, the bout being stopped by the referee in the third round and the dicision given to McKinnon. The principal bouts came off last evening before an audience of 4000 people.

Boston the Apple Port

Boston, March 7.—Boston's apple exports this season are nearly 100,000 barrels in excess of New York, which held the record last year, while the other Atlantic ports come trailing along far behind the leaders. In the grand total of shipments from all ports there is a falling off from last year of nearly 1,000,000 barrels, and while all other ports have lost heavily, Boston has shipped 616,333 barrels this season, or within 20,000 as many barrels as in the corresponding period of 1903-1904.

Heavy Receipts of Fish

Boston, March 7.—A record in fish receipts was established at T wharf yesterday when a fleet of 21 vessels brought in fares from the fishing banks aggregating 1,444,000 pounds. These receipts, added to the 20 trips arriving since the closing of business at noon Saturday, swelled the total to 2,088,100 pounds. These enormous receipts caused a sharp drop in prices, the price of haddock dropping to 2 1-4 and 3 cents.

Manslaughter Charge Falls

Stamford, Conn., March 7.—An unconditional nolle has been entered in the case against Charles Bahan, accused of manslaughter. Bahan was engineer of an express train which ran into a local train and caused the death of Conductor Howland of the local. Action against Bahan could not be sustained because of lack of evidence regarding the condition of a certain signal when Bahan passed it.

Axe Wound Causes Death

Plymouth, Mass., March 7.—Charles Hallen of East Carver, who was struck on the head with an axe, said to have been inflicted by Emil Sauri, died in the hospital here last evening. The alleged assault took place in the home of Sauri last Friday. It is said that the two men quarreled and that Sauri grasped an axe and struck Hallen. Sauri claims it was done in self-defense.

Brothers Held For Burglary

Unionville, Conn., March 7.—Nicholas and Henry Cummings, brothers, are held for the superior court on the charge of burglary. They are alleged to have been companions of the unidentified burglar who was shot and killed at the railroad station here last Thursday by Station Agent Burnham.

License Commissioner Loses Job

Gloucester, Mass., March 7.—Mayor MacDonald has removed License Commissioner Londergon, as a result of charges filed against him. Lack of business experience is advanced as one of the reasons for the dismissal. Londergon claims that his removal was due to political opponents.

Boy Killed Baby Brother

Natick, R. I., March 7.—Medical Examiner Christie has been notified of a fatal shooting near this village. A 10-months-old child of A. Spirito was shot and killed by its 6-year-old brother, while the latter was playing with a gun. The boy disappeared after the accident.

One New Cabinet Member

Washington, March 7.—The president sent a large number of nominations to the senate, including all of the members of the present cabinet, except Postmaster General Wynne. George B. Cortelyou was nominated for that office. The nominations include the names heretofore announced as ambassadors and Senator Cockrell as interstate commerce commissioner.

Taft Has Charge of Canal Zone

Washington, March 7.—Owing to the failure of congress to provide new legislation for the government of the canal zone, Secretary Taft was confronted with the question as to whether he could continue to administer the affairs of the canal zone. This question he has decided in the affirmative.

Czar's Heir Is Sick

London, March 7.—The Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent reports that the czarevitch is suffering with a severe attack of croup.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

CHADWICK TRIAL

No Time Lost In Getting It Under Way

THE DEFENDANT FAINTS

She Is Subjected to Close Scrutiny by Andrew Carnegie, Who Is Criticised by Woman's Counsel--Eleven Farmers on Jury

Cleveland, March 7.—A complete nervous collapse by Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick brought the first day of her trial to an abrupt close at 3:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

E. H. Haller of Oberlin, the second witness called by the state, was on the stand, and had answered but two questions, when Mrs. Chadwick whispered to her attorneys that she would be compelled to leave the room. She passed out quickly, and upon reaching the anteroom sank into a chair in a faint. Two trained nurses who were in the courtroom were hastily summoned and in a few moments Mrs. Chadwick was revived. She was in no condition to return to the courtroom, however, and Judge Tayler adjourned the trial until today.

It was an exciting day for Mrs. Chadwick, and she took the keenest interest in all the proceedings. Seated close beside her attorneys, she scanned the face of every juror summoned, and frequently expressed her opinion of them to her lawyers. When District Attorney Sullivan outlined the case he expects to prove against her, Mrs. Chadwick's eyes did not leave his face for a second. She rested her chin in her hand, in the palm of which she held a lace handkerchief, and drank in every word. When he ceased speaking, and her counsel, J. P. Dawley, rose to state her side of the case, her face brightened, and she followed him as eagerly as she had listened to Sullivan, and apparently with far more pleasure.

The trial made rapid progress. The jury was accepted within two hours, and the taking of testimony begun. Mr. Dawley was busy with the third juror when the door opened and Andrew Carnegie, followed by S. T. Everett, at whose home he is staying, entered the room. Mr. Carnegie gave a quick glance at Mrs. Chadwick and then walked quietly past her to a seat on the east side of the courtroom.

Mrs. Chadwick apparently took no interest in Carnegie. The latter, on the contrary, subjected her from time to time to close scrutiny. "Did you read an article in the Cleveland morning papers in which Andrew Carnegie gave his evidence before being called into court?" asked Dawley of one talesman. This referred to a statement by Carnegie that he had not written the Carnegie notes held by Mrs. Chadwick. Mr. Carnegie raised his head slowly, surveyed Dawley's back in a disapproving manner, but was otherwise unmoved by the implied criticism.

Twenty-eight witnesses have been subpoenaed by the government by the defense. The attorneys for Mrs. Chadwick, Messrs. Dawley, Wing and Kerruish, are confident that the government will be unable to prove its case, and, although they will not discuss their plans, it is generally thought that they expect to secure the acquittal of their client more because of a feeble attack than through a strong defense.

Eleven of the jury are farmers and one is a real estate dealer. Shorn of its legal phraseology, the charge on which Mrs. Chadwick is arraigned is conspiracy against the laws of the United States—the conspiracy, as defined by the government, resting in the agreement between her and the officials of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., to issue and negotiate certified checks, when she had no money in the bank.

Spanish Anarchists Making Trouble

Madrid, March 7.—Revolvers were fired and stones were thrown during a demonstration of the unemployed at Barcelona. A bomb discovered in front of the palace of Marquis de Puebla here was removed in time to prevent an explosion. The government believes that the incidents at Barcelona are part of a general anarchist plot which developed there before the arrangements at other centres were complete.

After "Commercial Highwaymen"

Topeka, March 7.—The Kansas senate adopted a resolution denouncing the report of Commissioner Garfield on beef packers. The resolution says: "We request the president to reject this report and appoint some man with experience, with independence and nerve, that shall qualify him for the task of investigating this gang of commercial highwaymen known as the 'Beef trust.'"

Found Traces of Poison

Honolulu, March 7.—At a coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford, Dr. Wood, one of the autopsy physicians, testified that the symptoms found by him and other physicians indicated that strychnine poisoning was the cause of Mrs. Stanford's death. The different organs, he said, failed to show any sufficient cause for death from disease.

Election Day In Vermont

Burlington, Vt., March 7.—The question of liquor selling will again be the feature of the March elections, which are being held through the state today. A vigorous campaign has been waged by both the Anti-Saloon league and the high license parties.

CITY BREVITIES.

New moon.

Fair weather continues.

Lent begins tomorrow.

The Quincy Adams depot is being reshingled.

The days are increasing about three minutes each day.

The ice in the streets is slowly but surely disappearing.

Patriots' day comes on Wednesday this year, six weeks from tomorrow.

There are six more dates for the Old Colony bowling league, and the eighteen games to be rolled by each club may affect the standing.

A quantity of books belonging to the library of the late Rev. James E. Bagley, are for sale, and may be seen at the Wollaston Unitarian vestry, until sold.

A meeting of the Pine Tree State Association will be held Thursday evening, Mar. 9, at 7.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chase, Edwards street.

At the billiard tournament at the Granite City club Monday night John Curtis beat Benjamin Johnson 125 to 94, and Dr. F. E. Jones beat Dr. C. B. Marstin 125 to 116.

The Ladies' Benevolent society will meet with Mrs. A. T. Leavitt, Lincoln avenue, Wednesday at 2.30. Business of special importance will come before the ladies and a large attendance is desired.

The walks at the Public Library are a disgrace. It seems a pity that such fine walks should be buried beneath ice and snow when other sidewalks about the city are bare and dry. Is it necessary?

Just note in the temperature summary today the warm week at this time in March two years ago. From March 3 to April 5 there was no noon temperature below 40 and on March 20 the mercury climbed to 74.

At a pretty home not many mile from City Square, a few days ago, the family was gathered around the table for their morning meal, and the young American of the group aged two years was given a shredded wheat biscuit. After eating it he put up his plate and said he would like another bale of hay. Quite a comparison.

"Historic Scenes," under the auspices of the Massachusetts Society of the Colonial Dames of America will be given for the benefit of the Quincy House Historical Museum at Quincy and the Boston City History Club, at Potter hall, Boston, March 23, at 8 o'clock. On the committee are Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Harold C. Ernst, Mrs. Charles E. Grinnell, Mrs. Richard W. Hale, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Miss E. W. Perkins, Miss Sarah S. Perkins, Mrs. William W. Vaughn and Mr. Holker Abbott.

Patchouly.

The introduction of the perfume called patchouly was caused by the desire of French shawlmakers to deceive their customers. When shawls were first brought from India they were perfumed with patchouly, an extract of an Indian plant. The French soon learned to imitate the shawls to perfection, but the patchouly bothered them, as they could find no substitute for it, and this fact was used as the surest means of distinguishing the genuine India shawls from the French counterfeits. At last somebody discovered the secret and brought a quantity of patchouly to France. For a time the discoverers kept the matter to themselves and reaped a harvest. Then some one gave away the secret. The perfume soon became popular and has never since passed completely out of use, though several times superseded temporarily by other perfumes.

A Northern Venice.

The old city of Ghent, Belgium, is built on twenty-six islands, which are connected with one another by eighty bridges. Three hundred streets and thirty public squares are contained in these islands. Ghent is famous because Charles V. and John of Gaunt were born there. It has been the scene of many treaties, insurrections and revolts, and it was there the treaty was made terminating the war of 1812 between this country and England.

His Queer Question.

Mudge—What an aggravating habit Wickwire has of answering a question by asking another! Yabsley—I never noticed it. Mudge—Now, for instance, last night I asked him if he would lend me $10. He didn't say whether he could or not, but asked me if I took him for a fool.

Proved Her Sense.

"Sensible girl, that!"

"Never thought her so."

"Well, when she rejected me the other night she said she was sensible of the great honor I did her, and I call that being pretty sensible!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Worms

Hundreds of children and adults have worms, but are treated for other diseases. The symptoms are:—indigestion, with a variable appetite; foul tongue; offensive breath; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow fever; and often in children, convulsions.

TRUE'S ELIXIR

is the best worm remedy made. It has been in use since 1851, is purely vegetable, harmless and effectual. Where no worms are present it acts as a Tonic, and corrects the condition of the mucous membrane of the stomach and bowels. A positive cure for Constipation and Biliousness, and a valuable remedy in all the common complaints of children. Price 35 cts. Ask your druggist for it.

FIGHTING GOES ON

Russian Forces Are Still In a Critical Position

JAPS NORTH OF MUKDEN

Tenacity of Russians May Prove Equal to Strategy of Japanese, Who Are Said to Have Half a Million Men Engaged

London, March 7.—There is no cessation of the fighting between the Russian and Japanese armies in Manchuria. Russian reports state that at a distance the tide of battle in the immediate vicinity of Mukden seems to be ebbing. The most that the war critics at St. Petersburg seem to hope for at present is that General Kuropatkin has succeeded in re-establishing his line of retreat in the direction of Harbin.

Word has reached Newchwang, which, however, has no confirmation from other sources, that the Japanese are already north of Mukden with a large force and that the Russians are facing disastrous defeat.

There appears to be a possibility that General Kuroki has drawn off a portion of his army from the centre and sent it to reinforce the divisions engaged in flanking movements. General Kaulbars, the most trusted of Kuropatkin's officers, is personally in command of the Russian forces in the triangle between the railway and the Hun river, which vital position the Japanese have been assailing for several days.

Russian reports admit that 12,000 men have been wounded, but make no mention of the number killed, and at the same time assert that the Japanese have lost 30,000 in killed or wounded.

General Nogi's third army, from Port Arthur, has advanced far on the left wing and swept all before it. Nogi's men are reveling in the field work, which they regard as child's play after the siege of Port Arthur.

The meagreness of information regarding the progress of the fighting and the contradictory character of Russian and Japanese dispatches, together with the lack of essential topographical knowledge, renders it impossible for the military critics of the London papers to form an accurate judgment, and, although their sympathies incline them to a belief in the continuance of Japan's successes, it is admitted that Russian tenacity is making a fine fight and may prove equal to Japanese strategy, and that the eventual outcome is largely a question of physical endurance.

According to a usually well informed Japanese correspondent of The Morning Post, the rumor that Japan's new fifth army is going to invest Vladivostok is quite improbable. The correspondent alleges that a large portion of this army is engaged in the battle now in progress under General Kamamura, to whom has been entrusted the developments of Field Marshal Oyama's plans to the northwest of Mukden, and that this development may prove as astonishing to the Russians as were General Nogi's operations on the northwest.

The correspondent contends that numerical superiority now is with the Japanese, who have at least 500,000 men engaged, reinforcements having left Japan continuously of late in order that the intended operations should not fall for the lack of sufficient men.

From Tokio, Shanghai and other points the papers here publish rumors that the Japanese have already seized the railway and that Kuropatkin's retreat has been cut off and that he is in a perilous position, none of which, however, is confirmed.

Port Arthur Vets In Evidence

Paris, March 7.—The Journal's Mukden correspondent states that General Linevitch on Monday repulsed 13 consecutive Japanese attacks on the Russian centre. The correspondent also states that the Russian right wing was unable to stop the Japanese movement northwest of Mukden, where Kaulbars' Siberians oppose Nogi's Port Arthur veterans.

Russians Facing Defeat

Berlin, March 7.—Colonel Gaedke, who recently returned from the seat of war, writes to The Tageblatt today, taking a pessimistic view of General Kuropatkin's situation. Basing his opinion exclusively on Russian news, Gaedke thinks it probable that the Russians are about to suffer a defeat which will prove disastrous. He expresses a very unfavorable judgment of Kuropatkin's generalship in letting the Japanese extend their flanking movement so far to the northward around the Russian right without undertaking energetic measures to check ther .

The Gripenberg-Kuropatkin Row

St. Petersburg, March 7.—The extraordinary session of the council of war which was to have been held yesterday did not take place. It is said that the czar himself has decided the question arising from the dispute between Generals Gripenberg and Kuropatkin.

Supervising Customs Business

Washington March 7.—James B. Reynolds of Boston, formerly secretary of the Massachusetts Republican state committee, has taken the oath of office and entered on his duties as assistant secretary of the treasury. He will have charge of the customs business in the treasury department.

GERTRUDE JENKINS.

New Strength— Increased Vigor.

It is easy to get into a run down state and stay that way and forget what real health is.

We never appreciate real health when we have it.

After feeling all run down, nervous and tired out, month after month, most people simply hope against hope that they will feel better soon.

Instead of trying to do something to help themselves feel better, they depend on hope.

Health, vigor, determination, courage—in fact, all that makes life worth living depends upon a healthy supply of Nerve Force.

Paine's Celery Compound builds up the supply of Nerve Force, it revives the old force and makes new. It not only does this, but by strengthening the nerves that control all the organs of the body, it cures the real cause of headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, malaria, and the many diseases coming from a run down condition of the nerves.

Gertrude Jenkins allowed herself to gradually sink into nervous prostration, one of the final states that tired, abused nerves reach. Her experience is valuable to all those who feel "run down," "tired out" and are not helping themselves to get back to real health.

"Paine's Celery Compound cured me of nervous prostration when I was so weak and used up that I had to lie down part of each day. The doctor advised me to go away and take a vacation to build up, but I could not give the time or money. Paine's Celery Compound built me up within two weeks,—my headaches disappeared, my appetite returned and the aches and pains gave way to new strength, life and increased vigor. I enjoy perfect health today and used less than five bottles of Celery Compound, so know by experience how valuable it is."—Gertrude Jenkins, 714—63d St., Chicago, Ill. (Member Ladies of the Maccabees.)

"Nervousness," "nervous prostration," "nerve decline,"—that run-down, worn-out feeling,—nine times in ten are simply the result of prejudice, carelessness, or ignorance.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, was the first physician to enunciate the principle which to-day is recognized as one of the foundations of the science of medicine,—the great enlightening truth, that the nerve system rules all the body's health.

He sought and found the food that builds up and restores the nerves—his celery formula, which has become famous as Paine's Celery Compound—the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic.

Paine's Celery Compound is giving New Nerve Force to thousands every day by feeding and restoring the nerves to their full strength. It never fails to build up the run down system to full, ruddy health.

Two days' treatment proves its marvelous power. It braces you up. You feel better at once.

For over 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

Remember this,—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, and all reputable Druggists sell and recommend it.

BIG STRIKE IS ON

New York's Subway and Elevated Systems Are Tied Up

New York, March 7.—The long threatened strike of the employes of the Interborough company, operating the subway and the elevated railroads of Manhattan, was determined on at a meeting held last night of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. This action followed the receipt from General Manager Hedley of the Interborough company late last night of a letter declining to agree to the terms of an amended demand made by the representatives of the men at a conference held with the officials of the company in the afternoon. It was voted unanimously to strike at 3 o'clock this morning, to be put in full operation at 4 a. m.

About 5000 employes of the subway and elevated systems are affected by the strike, which has tied up all traffic in Manhattan except on the surface trolley lines. The utter impossibility of the multitude of travelers in the upper part of the island reaching their places of business down town this morning was one of the most serious features of the situation.

All police reserves were summoned on duty and strong guards were placed at all stations on both the subway and the elevated roads.

Echo of Marriage Failure

New York, March 7.—Former Vice President Levi P. Morton has brought suit to set aside a contract by which he transferred to the Morton Trust company the Morton building in Nassau street, in order that his daughter, Helen, might, with her husband, derive a separate income after their marriage. Miss Morton in 1901 wedded Count Perigord. The count and countess separated and she obtained a divorce from him last July in France. Mr. Morton contends that the dissolution of his daughter's marriage has put an end to the purpose for which the trust was created by him.

An Aerial Performer's Mishap

New York, March 7.—While making a backward dive from the top of the 120-foot tower at Luna park Coney Island, Mlle. Adeline Antonio, who recently came here from Europe, received injuries which it is feared will prove fatal. The accident took place at a private exhibition. The centre of the net into which the woman made her dive gave way and she struck the ground. H. former partner in aerial feats was killed by falling out of the same net in Calcutta last fall.

Duke Marked For Death

St. Petersburg, March 7.—Grand Duke Vladimir, it is reported, has again been picked for assassination, in spite of the promises contained in the imperial rescript issued on March 3. The sentries about the grand duke's palace have been doubled and ordered to exercise special watchfulness. A terrorist disguised in the uniform of a general attempted to gain access to the grand duke. On being searched the man was found to be armed with a loaded revolver.

Double Murder and Suicide

Chester, Pa., March 7.—Mrs. Isaac Abrams was found dead upon the floor at the home of her son-in-law, John E. Chatham, a druggist, and the latter's wife was found dying at her mother's feet. Both of their skulls had been crushed in with a hammer. Chatham was found dead in an adjoining room with bullet wounds in his head and a revolver clutched in his hand. An infant child of the Chathams had been struck with a hammer, but was not seriously injured.

Will Hurt Yankee Fishermen

St. Johns, March 7.—In view of the fact that the Hay-Bond treaty has not been ratified by the United States senate, local fishing interests are urging the colonial government to cancel the modus vivendi and enforce the provisions of the bait act against American fishermen. The government is considering the most effective means of proceeding against American fishermen.

Boy Kills His Mother

New York, March 7.—Richard Wakeman, aged 18, who had been an inmate of an insane asylum at one time and who was regarded as simple-minded, killed his mother with an axe and then shot his father twice at their home in Glen Ridge, N. J. The father may not recover. The boy is under arrest. The attack was made without warning.

Official Cares Cast Aside

Washington, March 7.—President Roosevelt last night attended the theatre for the first time in some weeks, finding need of relaxation. He witnessed May Irwin's production of "Mrs. Black is Back." The president laughed heartily at the topical and coon songs.

Distinguished Visitor Held Up

San Francisco, March 7.—R. Hayashi, commanded by the government of Japan to study the jurisprudence of England and Germany, is detained with his wife on board the steamer Mongolia. Both he and his wife are afflicted, it is said, with trachoma.

Mob Killed Chief of Police

Byelostok, Poland, March 7.—District Chief of Police Jeletschin was shot and killed while attempting to disperse a crowd of workmen who had met outside the town.

FAD IN CHICAGO SOCIETY.

Eames MacVeagh, man of fashion, clubman and cotillon leader, has introduced a new fad for society's diversion this winter, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. At a reception at his home on the Lake Shore drive he danced a Chinese pantomime that has set north shore society people talking.

As a fancy dancer and lightning change artist, so accurately representing an oriental as to defy recognition, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh amused, entertained and instructed his mother's guests.

In one of the national descriptive dances he was assisted by his instructor, Dr. Yameii Kib, a Chinese woman who is a guest at the MacVeagh home. And now Eames is the social hero of the hour. His friends are talking of nothing else, and the debutantes who were present declare that in grace he rivals Faversham and Hackett, not to mention Sothern.

The dance was very stately and descriptive, representing the farewell of a young Chinese soldier to his sweetheart. The dancer demonstrated with a heavy sword the deeds of courage which he would perform before returning to claim her, and she, with a pretty fan, would beg him to be merciful rather than cruel.

The costume which disguised MacVeagh, it is said, beyond recognition for a time was a long gown of the intense blue peculiar to the dyes of the orient, combined with yellow. The home in the drive is spacious and luxurious, and the settings for the dance were not out of keeping with the splendor of the oriental costumes. Mrs. MacVeagh's friends were delighted. Not for twenty minutes were the guests undeceived, and then only at the young millionaire's call for "air."

"Has that got out?" laughed young MacVeagh when asked about the dancing which has made him famous. "Why, there isn't much to tell. A Chinese woman is visiting my mother, and once before when she was stopping at our country place in New Hampshire she taught me some of the characteristic dances. Then when I was abroad later I picked up the costume for fancy dress parties.

"The dancing was proposed at the reception the other day, and so we went through the soldier's farewell, which is a very stately pantomime. Dr. Yameii Kib of course took the opposite part. She is a mistress of the art. Her own dance, the Japanese prayer blossom, really was the success of the afternoon."

MacVeagh was introduced to the party as Hip Si Wau Lung, a professional artist from Canton.

Gladstone and Little Dorothy.

Good housewives often have trouble with servants who cannot get up, but I doubt if it ever occurs to them, as it did to Miss Dorothy Drew when she was not more than seven, that the Scriptures emphasize the vanity of early rising, says the London Tatler. Dorothy positively refused to get up, and her grandfather, Mr. Gladstone, had to be called to overawe the rebel.

"Why don't you get up, Dorothy?" he asked.

"Because the Bible doesn't approve of early rising, grandfather," was the unexpected reply.

"Really, Dorothy," said the astonished statesman, "you must be mistaken."

"Oh, no, I'm not," she persisted. "Here it is." And she turned up the second verse of the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Psalm, "It is vain for you to rise up early." The old parliamentarian had nothing more to say. The argument floored him.

WON'T ACCEPT BAIL

Montreal Magistrate Commits Gaynor and Greene to Jail

Montreal, March 7.—When Messrs. Gaynor and Greene, charged with alleged embezzlement in connection with Savannah river contracts, were brought before Magistrate Lafontaine, the extradition commissioner, Mr. Taschereau, their counsel, filed an objection to the jurisdiction of the magistrate. The latter thereupon agreed to a postponement of the case until March 14, in order to give an opportunity to get witnesses here. The question of bail was brought up and the magistrate announced that he had not the power to accept bail.

Judge Lafontaine refused to allow the prisoners to be given into the care of Detective Carpenter, as suggested by Attorney Taschereau. He said the usual procedure must be followed in its entirety. Governor Vallee of the jail was in the courtroom and Gaynor and Greene were turned over to him. They were driven to prison, where they will be allowed the usual privileges extended to those awaiting trial.

It is not unlikely that an application will be made to a superior court judge for a ruling on Judge Lafontaine's decision that he has not the power to accept bail.

Confessed to Killing Woman

Philadelphia, March 7.—Two men who have been under arrest on charges of robbery have confessed to the murder of Clara McGonnell, a cripple. The men met Miss McGonnell on the street, gave her whisky and inveigled her into a side street, after learning that she had $11 in her stocking. Being unable to secure the money in any other way they attacked her and beat her into insensibility. Then they carried her to a stable and threw her into the pit. Whether she died from the effects of their blows or was smothered in the refuse pit will be determined by the coroner's inquest.

Story of Forged Mortgages

New York, March 7.—Six alleged forged mortgages were found among the records in the register's office in Jersey City by counsel for the estate of the late Andrew H. Green and of the Ogden estate, of which Green was executor, who are prosecuting an inquiry into the operations of Lyman S. Andrews, formerly private secretary to Green, who is now under indictment for embezzlement in connection with the administration of the two estates.

Emperor and Huns at Odds

Vienna, March 7.—Judging by reports from Budapest, a conflict between the crown and the Hungarian nation appears probable. The contending interests cannot agree on the matter of military reforms, and particularly on the use of the Hungarian tongue in the Hungarian army as the language of command, Hungarians declaring that this reform must be instituted, and the emperor that it is impossible.

Mormons Disfellowship Cannon

Salt Lake City, March 7.—Former United States Senator Cannon has been disfellowshipped by the Mormon church for "unchristianlike conduct and apostacy." The charges were based on editorial utterances of The Tribune, including "an address to the earthly king of the kingdom of God." Cannon, who is editor of The Tribune, admitted the authorship.

St Petersburg Workmen Idle

St. Petersburg, March 7.—More than half the workmen of St. Petersburg are out on strike again. The Schidlovski mixed commission has been paralyzed by the refusal of the men to participate in a conference with representatives of the employers, and the attempts to settle the questions at issue, upon the projected basis, has been practically discontinued.

King's Compliment to Admiral

London, March 7.—As Rear Admiral Davis, the American member of the international commission on the Hull incident, was embarking at Dover, a letter was handed him from King Edward congratulating him upon the success of the commission and regretting that time did not permit of Davis passing through London.

All the Shops Closed

Vilna, March 7.—A general strike has been inaugurated here. No newspapers appeared today. All shops have been closed for fear of looting. Troops are patrolling the streets.

NEWS IN BRIEF

H. Rider Haggard, the English novelist, has arrived at Philadelphia for the purpose of studying the work of the Vacant Lots Cultivation association. Haggard has undertaken the mission on behalf of the British government.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Henry P. Kittredge returned this morning from his southern trip.

S. of V. Auxtlary will hold a whist party in G. A. R. hall Wednesday evening.

Miss Crafts of Somerville was a guest of Miss Ethel Hill of Walker street last week.

G. Wesley Sargent of East Howard street is fully enjoying his visit in Georgia.

Friends of Mrs. E. C. Page are glad to learn that her mother who has been seriously ill, is convalescing.

The Home Missionary society of the Quincy Point church will meet with Mrs. A. A. Harlow, Mill street, on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Lucinda Perry, mother of Mrs. C. C. Hodkinson, passed away suddenly early this morning at her residence on Bigelow street.

This is the season of the year that shoes need repairing. Ike Shane will repair them for you at his shop at 1514 Hancock street opposite Music hall.

Tickets for the supper to be served at the fair of First church next week Wednesday, are in great demand. A fine supper is always served by the ladies of this church.

Miss Marion Carver of Billings street has been taken to the Quincy hospital. Miss Carver has been ill for some time and the last few weeks has evinced very little improvement.

Mrs. Connor of South street has the sympathy of her many friends in the loss of her son George, whose death occurred Sunday night. This is the second death in the family within a year.

Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., will have as guests this evening Old Colony lodge of Hingham and Cohasset lodge of Cohasset. The first degree will be worked by the degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge.

Mrs. McDonald, proprietor of the Riverside House at 668 Washington street, reported to the police on Monday that some one had robbed her of $675 A little later word was received that the money had been found.

The sympathy of the business men of Quincy is with L. M. Pratt, for years one of Quincy's leading grocers, who because of nervous prostration has been ordered by his physician to give up all business cares for several months.

These mild afternoons, the Atlantic playground is a miniature pond. For those who have to cross it to reach the Quincy cars, it would be a grand idea to have a little swan-boat that would carry passengers across for a few cents, thus saving them from getting wet feet and so encouraging the grippe—which needs but small encouragement at best.

The Wollaston Male quartette and assisting artists are to give a concert Thursday evening in the Wollaston Baptist church. In the quartette are: E. E. Bullock, A. R. Moulton, H. Y. Follett and H. I. Hahn and those to assist are Miss Lena Ellen Cooper, reader; Miss Irene Grasser, child entertainer; Mrs. Moulton, piano and Leon Van Wleit, 'cello.

TOWN MEETINGS.

The town also voted hereafter to carry its own insurance.

Swansea voted to accept the offer of Mrs. Frank S. Stevens to build a stone schoolhouse, and pay the school committee $2.50 a day each for their services.

Middleboro by a decisive vote chose a committee to investigate the municipal lighting plant. Authority to purchase a $7,500 gas-producing plant was refused.

Hyde Park had seventeen candidates for the five places on the board of selectmen and it was midnight before the result was announced. The town increased its usual majority for no-license by 50 votes, the total reaching 1,158. The yes vote was 633.

At Cohasset Ezekiel L. James, candidate for selectman, raised an important question which he promises to carry before the courts. The question is on the legality of the vote, as candidates served as election officers.

ADAMS CHAPTER

Desire Help in Purchasing Painting of President Adams.

Monday was the annual meeting for the election of officers of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, and the members met at three o'clock at the birthplace of President John Adams. Interesting reports of the doings of the past year were read by the secretary, treasurer and historian, all showing considerable work done and financial prosperity.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Regent, Mrs. Nelson V. Titus; vice-regent, Miss Annie Lincoln Prescott; secretary, Mrs. Frank F. Prescott; treasurer, Mrs. William F. Porter; historian, Mrs. E. Granville Pratt; on the council with the officers, Mrs. Charles Belcher of Randolph, Mrs. F. Eugene Dyer and Mrs. Susan J. Wilde of South Braintree, Mrs. Frank Brewer and Miss Harriet B. Pierce of Quincy.

A fine oil painting of President John Adams was on exhibition, hoping it would be purchased by the chapter and hung in the old house. This picture is a copy of the famous Copley portrait, and was exhibited in the Massachusetts room of the New England building at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo.

The chapter is much pleased with the idea of having the portrait at the John Adams birthplace and hope the Quincy people will assist them in securing it as the price asked is more than the chapter feels it can afford to give for it.

THE NEW LAW.

Smoking and Spitting in Street Cars Must Stop.

The street railway officials started in earnest this morning to enforce the rules relative to smoking and spitting in the street cars. The greatest trouble has been with the gang of Fore River workmen who come from Neponset. These men have in the past showed little respect for decency, and it has been necessary to thoroughly clean the cars after they have used them.

This morning the company had fifteen officers and railroad men, all in citizens dress, and who were unknown to the crowd, board the cars at Neponset and go through with them to Newcomb square.

When the workmen boarded the car they were warned by the conductor of the rules prohibiting smoking and spitting.

All went well until after the cars had reached Scammell street, when one of the workmen, Edward J. Barry, thinking that the danger line had been passed drew out his pipe and lighting it prepared to have a good smoke. Barry was a little off in his reckoning, however, for Officer Hinchon was on one side of him and a railroad man on the other side.

The result was that Barry did not report for work this morning, but was lined up before Judge Avery in the district court. The case was continued for hearing until Wednesday morning.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Walter F. West for larceny was called and the case placed on file, restitution having been made.

The next meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club will be held March 14 at 6.45 o'clock, in the vestry of the Unitarian church, and will be observed as ladies' night. Guy Ham, Esq., of Boston, Assistant District Attorney, will address the club on Abraham Lincoln.

Leads All New England.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Already 2000 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 3000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

The editor of the Daily Ledger would like to hear from all the former pupils of Miss Julia Underwood, especially in the early years—1855 to 1875. He would also be pleased to read reminiscences of her former pupils, and hopes to gather many letters before the 50th anniversary March 31.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

"I wish my grandson had his brains," said Derrington regretfully. "Do you like Brendon?"

Dorothy did not see why she should conceal her feelings. "I love him," she said quietly and firmly.

"Ha!" replied Derrington, showing no surprise. "Mrs. Ward hinted at something of that sort, but I thought that Walter"—

'Please say no more, Lord Derrington."

"Well, then, I won't." Derrington's eyes rested wrathfully on the withered young man he called grandson. "I don't wonder at your choice, my dear. What Walter requires is a nurse."

"That is a profession I have not taken up," said Dorothy, laughing. Derrington said no more about Brendon, but Dorothy noticed that his eyes were rarely off the face of her lover.

Meantime Vane joined Mrs. Ward, and Dorothy, seeing that Leonard was alone, beckoned him to approach. Derrington was not particularly pleased at having his conversation with a pretty girl interrupted, but he was polite, and, on learning that Train knew Brendon intimately, he began to ask him about his friend.

"But really, you know, she is a great artist," Mrs. Ward was saying to Brendon. "There is something so original about her."

They were speaking of Lola Velez, and it was Vane who had introduced the subject. George, to whom the subject was distasteful, tried to avoid the discussion, but Mrs. Ward would return again and again to the topic.

"They say you know her very well," she declared.

"I am not sorry to put you right on that point," replied Brendon, his eyes hardening. "Many false rumors are about, to one of which you alluded the other day, Mrs. Ward. This is another. What I know of Senora Velez and how I know her can be put in a nutshell." And George quietly related his rescue of the dancer.

"Then you did make her the success she is?" cried Mrs. Ward when he ended. "Oh, yes, it's no use denying it. You picked a jewel out of the gutter and gave it a chance of shining."

"Perhaps I did that much. But she made a success by her genius."

"I hope she is grateful," murmured Vane, with a malicious smile.

Brendon turned on him sharply. "I don't know what you mean by gratitude," he said deliberately.

"Well," drawled the little dandy, "she is pretty and"—

"She is not at all pretty, Mr. Vane, and were she as lovely as Cleopatra it would not matter to me. My connection with her ceased when she made her success." George quite forgot the presence of Mrs. Ward and spoke vehemently. "Can't you understand that a man may do a kind action without being biased by the beauty of a woman?"

"Some men can," said Mrs. Ward politely, "and I am sure you are one, Mr. Brendon. But suppose the woman"—

"I don't suppose anything, Mrs. Ward. I know. Senora Velez was poor. I helped her to attain to the position she now holds because I endeavor to follow the preaching of Christ, and she is to me a grateful friend. There is no more and no less to be said," and, a trifle ruffled, George turned on his heel to join Dorothy.

"Well, I'm sure," murmured Mrs. Ward, "and in my own house too!"

Vane sniggered. "There must be something in it," he said. "She's too pretty."

So these two scandal mongers talked on, and George had only made matters worse by his explanation. However, he believed that he had nipped the scandal in the bud, and strolled into the next room with Dorothy to quiet his mind. Behind them they left Derrington talking to Train and rather enjoying himself.

"Do you think Lord Derrington knows who you are?" asked Dorothy as she and George seated themselves on a divan.

"I am not sure," replied George, who did not want to tell her what he knew lest he should have to introduce the name of Lola Velez. "I have an idea that he does."

Dorothy shook her head. "I don't think so. If he knows you he must be aware that you know him, and about the relationship, and would not speak so freely. I think he is taken with you, George."

"Well, he has been putting me through my paces. I only hope that our chance meeting of tonight may bear fruit. What is Train doing here? Your mother only had him in her house once before, and she does not like him."

"I can't make out why she asked him," said Dorothy. "He is a dull young man, though harmless enough. But my mother made a point of asking him to dinner."

"Humph! I wonder what that's for," said Brendon, wrinkling his brows, for he knew well that Mrs. Ward did nothing without expecting an equivalent return. Then he recollected her questions about the crime and wondered if she had invited Leonard so as to pump him.

And that is what she was doing at the very moment. Almost as soon as the lovers had disappeared into the yellow boudoir Lord Derrington had taken his departure. He insisted that Vane should accompany him home, and they left together.

This was an excellent opportunity to find out what Mrs. Ward wanted to know. Taking Leonard's arm, she led him to a chair some distance from the door of the boudoir.

"Now let us have a nice long talk, dear Mr. Train," she said. "We can renew our pleasant conversation."

"I don't think it was very pleasant," said Train unwillingly.

"What an ungallant thing to say!"

"I mean to talk about crime"—

"Is most amusing—I mean instructive. Oh, yes, I have read many of

EIGHTY YEARS.

Reception to Rev. Victor Witting.

Founder of Swedish Methodist Church

Both in America and Sweden---Remarkable Lecture.

Rev. Victor Witting, the founder of the Swedish Methodist church, was given a reception Tuesday evening at Faxon hall by the people of the Swedish Methodist church, of which he was formerly a pastor; the reception was in honor of his eightieth birthday and was very largely attended.

Rev. Mr. Witting was assisted in receiving by Rev. S. L. Carlender, D.D., the present pastor of St. Pauls church, and the ushers were Oscar Sandberg, John Olson, Theodore Hermanson and John Carlson.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Rev. Mr. Witting was escorted to the platform, and the exercises opened with a selection by the combined choirs of St. Pauls and the Swedish Lutheran churches.

Rev. Dr. Carlender presided and delivered a congratulatory address in which he referred to the long and faithful services in the ministry. He also read letters of congratulation from the churches in New York and elsewhere.

Rev. Mr. Witting responded briefly and then delivered an address on "A Few of the things which the Swedes have done in the World's History."

Mr. Witting spoke for about an hour and three quarters, holding the closest attention. Our citizens of Swedish ancestry realize more than ever that they have been prominent in the affairs of the world.

There was also a short address by Rev. Charles Widgren, presiding elder of Worcester, vocal solos by Rev. H. E. Whyman and Miss Mary Witting, and piano solos by Miss Emma Witting.

A bouquet of flowers was then presented to Mr. Witting by Charles Erickson in behalf of friends and by Miss Hermana Carlson, from members of the church.

Rev. Mr. Witting was born in Malmo Sweden March 7, 1825. He received his early education in the schools of his native town and at the Malmo Latin school from which he was graduated in 1842. Leaving school he obtained employment in a drug store. Later he shipped as a seaman on a vessel sailing to foreign ports.

In 1847 he came to America landing in New York. From that city he went to Chicago, where was employed as a druggist.

From Chicago he went in 1848 to Bishops Hill, Ill., one of the first Swedish settlements in that state. During the following two years he was employed days in the druggist business and devoted his nights to fitting himself for the ministry.

In 1850 he went to California and spent two years in the gold fields. He then went to Victoria, Ill., where he formed the Peoria, now central Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

He then went to Victoria, Ill., and organized the first church of that denomination in this country. He labored there until 1855 when he went to Peoria, Ill., and organized a church there, remaining three years. From then until 1867 he filled pastorates at Andover and Rockford, Ill., organizing churches at each place.

In 1867 he visited Sweden, as Superintendent of Missions in that country. Soon after arriving he organized the first M. E. church in that country. He remained in Sweden eight years and organized seventy churches.

He returned to America in 1876, and became pastor of a Chicago church, where he remained until 1880. The next two years he spent in Texas organizing new churches.

In 1882 he started the first Swedish religious paper in this country, known as Sandebeedent, of which he was editor until 1889. That year he became pastor of a church in Quissigamand, Mass., and in 1894 he came to Quincy as pastor of St. Pauls church.

In 1897 he again visited his native country where he remained two years, lecturing. He returned to Quincy in 1899 where he has since resided.

He suffered a paralytic shock in 1900 and was confined to his home for two years. During this time he wrote a book giving a history of his life and the results he had accomplished. During his ministry he was instrumental in organizing nearly 300 churches.

He was married Sept. 12, 1849, and observed his golden wedding in 1899. Nine children have been born, five sons and four daughters, all of whom are living.

Mrs. Witting died Sept. 12, 1901.

The Blacksmiths' Bill.

The committees of the Granite Manufacturers' Association and Granite Cutters' Union practically completed their work on Tuesday, as far as the Cutters' branch of the Union is concerned.

Another session, however, was necessary today as the blacksmiths' bill must be adjusted. That meeting is being held this afternoon.

This week is now so far advanced that it is not believed work will be resumed before next Monday morning.

Remarkably Smart.

Miss Esther Hunt, sister of J. Eliphas Hayward of East Braintree, who resides near Newcomb Square, Quincy Neck, returned Tuesday from the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

She went to Washington unaccompanied, and returned alone. She is very smart, although 88 years old. She has been to Washington and seen every President inauguration since Grant. In fact she has travelled considerably and is unusually smart for an old lady.

Five New Ones for Quincy Each Way.

New Trains Which Will be Popular.

To Be Put On by N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Next Week.

That the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. wants to do what is right for Quincy and needs only an occasional reminder, is shown by the quick response after the presentation of facts by the committee of the City Council of which E. R. Stone was chairman.

City Solicitor Thomas and Ex-City Solicitor Blackmur materially assisted the committee in the presentation of the needs of the city.

As already noted, T. E. Brynes, the assistant to President Mellin, received the committee very cordially, and took a keen interest in the needs of Quincy as set forth.

It is unusual for a railroad to make a great change in its schedule just for one station, but the management realized that the city of Quincy with 30,000 people, was not well accommodated and was quick to act. On and after Monday next, therefore, Quincy will have five new expresses each way between Quincy and Boston.

A change like this, between season, involves a great expense for new timetables, notices to all stations and trainmen, etc., etc., and clearly shows that the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., wants to accommodate and please its patrons at all times.

The South Shore section of the trains heretofore leaving Boston, week-days, at 10.43 A. M., 12.43 noon and 3.43 P. M. will leave two minutes later, making additional stops at Quincy 11.02 A. M., 1.02 and 4.02 P. M. respectively.

Returning, the South Shore section of the trains heretofore leaving Braintree, week-days, at 10.58 A. M., 12.58 noon and 6.58 P. M. will leave four minutes earlier, stopping at Quincy 10.59 A. M., 12.59 noon and 6.59 P. M., due Boston 11.15 A. M., 1.15 and 7.15 P. M., respectively.

CITY SOLICITOR THOMAS

Trains leaving Boston, week-days, at 9.43 and 11.43 A. M, will make additional stop at Quincy 9.59 and 11.59 A. M.

Returning trains due Boston, week-days, at 9.16 A. M. and 12.17 noon will make additional stop at Quincy 9.01 A. M. and 12.02 noon.

Train leaving Boston, week-days, at 5.19 P. M. will make an additional stop at Atlantic 5.32 P. M.

INWARD TRAINS.

The new trains, as scheduled above, will give Quincy fast express trains when they will be appreciated, viz:

Between 8.46 and 9.13 A. M.
Between 10.13 and 11.09 A. M.
Between 11.09 and 12.13 P. M.
Between 12.13 and 1.13 P. M.
Between 6.43 and 7.13 P. M.

OUTWARD TRAINS.

New trains for Quincy will leave Boston

Between 9.25 and 10.27 A. M.
Between 10.27 and 11.25 A. M.
Between 11.25 and 12.27 P. M.
Between 12.27 and 12.57 P. M.

ENDEAVORERS

Of the East Norfolk Union Hold Their Annual Banquet at Bethany Church.

Miss Cora Keith of Braintree the Guest of Honor.

It was a large and happy gathering of young people which gathered at the annual banquet of the Norfolk Union of Christian Endeavorers, held with the Bethany church society on Tuesday evening. Fully 175 were present representing the South Congregational and Baptist societies of Braintree, the Baptist of Randolph, the Congregational of Holbrook, the East Milton Baptist and the Milton Congregational, the Atlantic Congregational, the Wollaston Congregational and Baptist, the South Quincy Presbyterian and United Presbyterian, the Quincy Point Congregational and Bethany Congregational. Most of the societies were accompanied by pastors.

The members assembled in the chapel and enjoyed themselves early in the evening, adjourning at 7 P. M. to the banquet room, which was very attractive with its festoons of red, white and blue and C. E. bunting. There were ferns and flowering plants and the tables.

In the absence of President Whitehouse of East Milton, Robert Pinkham, the vice president, called the assemblage to order. All arose and sang the Doxology and Rev. W. B. Barr offered the blessing.

The menu included escalloped potatoes, salads, cold meats, baked beans and pickles, olives, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee.

President Whitehouse who was detained at home by a severe cold, sent a letter of regrets, and the union passed a vote of sympathy, and agreed to send a bouquet to him.

Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church took his place as toastmaster, and seemed to have an inexhaustible supply of stories, telling at least a dozen good ones. In this, however, he was not excelled by other speakers. It was almost a story telling match.

Rev. N. J. Sproul of the Water street church was first introduced. He spoke of the great possibilities for the Endeavorers in the religious revival in Boston and vicinity, and emphasized the importance of a stand for the church, and the need of personal work.

Rev. L. H. Austin of the Quincy Point church, spoke of the patriotism of '76 and '61, and said we are all soldiers in service. There was just as much to be done under the Christian banner for Christ and his church.

Mr. Paine of Holbrook said Christian Endeavor was very dear to him, and told what it had done for him.

Miss Cora Keith of Braintree, who is at home on a furlough from the missionary fields at Japan was the last speaker. When introduced she was very heartily received and was given the Chatauqua salute.

She said it made her very happy to be with the East Norfolk Union, as it was with the Christian Endeavorers that she began her Christian life. She paid a tribute to Mr. Thompson, the first president of the Braintree society, and thanked the union for support given her, and for their prayers for her when in Japan. That nation is truly being taught Christianity, she said, and the Americans are in great favor. Again she thanked the societies for constant interest.

After singing "Blest be the tie which binds," an adjournment was made to the chapel, where a business meeting was held in one room, a social time in another, and an informal reception by Miss Keith in another.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Contemporary society is morally much purer than was society in the times before the development of the modern newspaper. Abundant and easily accessible evidence of the condition of the past society of every country of civilization, including prominently our own, demonstrates that improvement empbatically. The days when highwaymen and burglars were elevated by the imagination into mysterious popular heroes have passed away since the newspaper began to prevent such scoundrels as the coarse and cowardly ruffians they really are.—New York Sun.

☞As has been said before, the Massachusetts legislature is still a believer in close punctuation, and regards the semi-colon as one of the most important of all the characters in the list. It may be that the house of representatives has become convinced that what was originally a blunder is a bulwark of temperance, but we can hardly offer such an affront to its common sense as to impute to it such an idea. The members of the house may be reasonably presumed to have some knowledge of men and of things, and they can hardly be possessed with the idea that sobriety depends to any great extent on the closing of the hotel bars at eleven o'clock p. m. More probably the general court acted as it did out of a reluctance to do anything positive in liquor legislation. —New Bedford Standard.

☞One of our present misfortunes is that there are so many able men in the country who have not fitted themselves for anything except making money, and who pursue that phase of activity with quite unnecessary zeal because it is the only amusing thing they know how to do. Reproach them for it, and they are apt to say that there is nothing else to do that is worth while, except charity and politics, and that political opportunity does not readily offer. It is a pity. We hope it is not a permanent American condition, for it is one of the causes of our excessive materialism, which in turn is one reason why so many able rich men are hoggish money makers, whose voracity all the doctors of economics are wondering how to restrain. — Harper's Weekly.

☞Probably no disease is more feared by the majority of thinking men than pneumonia. People who regard an epidemic of smallpox with comparative indifference are mortally afraid of pneumonia and we suspect that sometimes this fear contributes to the fatality of the disease. But the observation of an exchange to the effect that "a man past middle life who has for years eaten and drunk too much and is fat and flabby is a bad risk in pneumonia" is probably as much to a practical point as anything that a layman is likely to say. The reflection that the ailment worst afflicts those who live high and go the pace is borne out by observation, and the counsel that "a temperate life and plenty of fresh air will best enable most persons to avoid the disease" is in accordance with sound judgment. It looks very much as if the best time for the successful treatment of pneumonia is long before it makes its appearance.—New Bedford Standard.

BIG RAILWAY STRIKE

Serious Rear-End Collision Marks Its Inauguration

MANY PASSENGERS HURT

Million or So of New Yorkers Put to Great Inconvenience--Mayor Offers His Services In an Effort to Settle the Trouble

New York, March 8.—Reports this morning show that traffic on the Second and Ninth avenue elevated roads was at a complete standstill because of the strike instituted yesterday against the Interborough Rapid Transit company. In the subway and on the Third avenue elevated and on the Sixth avenue elevated trains were running irregularly. They managed, however, to get the late up-town passengers to their homes.

There has been little violence, although rumors were rife of disturbances on all lines. It was said that two men had been killed on the Third avenue elevated owing to a disturbance, but this proved untrue. There were small disturbances and a few fights among those gathered at the stations, all due to arguments over the strike situation.

With one collision in which 25 persons were injured but none killed, and some minor casualties due to the abnormal conditions, the sum total of the day was annoyance and vexation to a million or more people usually dependent upon the Interborough company's lines for transportation to and from their business.

The annoyance to the multitude was increased by a wet snow which began falling in the afternoon. Service on the elevated roads and subway, while not tied up, was badly crippled. Trains were run on irregular schedules in the underground beginning with the early morning, but the elevated lines did not fare so well.

The accident at Twenty-Third street was a rear-end collision, due, it is said, to the inexperience of the men on the trains. Two cars had their ends smashed in, there was a panic among scores of passengers and of the injured many were so severely hurt that they had to be sent to the hospitals. Traffic was delayed for over two hours, from 5 o'clock until after 7.

A five-car local train was in charge of Motorman Miner of Louisville and Conductor Beyer, both new men. The train was crowded when it reached Twenty-Third street. The last car of the train was one of the new steel cars and the car ahead of it was of the wooden type, with copper sheathing. Samuel T. Bradford, a strike-breaker, was the guard between these two cars. The front platform of the last car and the rear platform of the car ahead were so crowded that Bradford had difficulty in operating the sliding doors.

The train had just drawn into the Twenty-Third street station and some of the passengers were about to alight when there was a crash, as a train which had left the bridge only 30 seconds after the first train, dashed into it. The steel car on the first train was forced into the rear of the car just ahead. All of the lights of the first train went out and a moment later were heard the cries of the injured and panic-stricken passengers. Those who were standing in the two rear cars of the first train and in the first cars of the second train were thrown to the floor.

The passengers standing on the platforms of the last two cars of the first train were caught as in a vise. It was here that all of those who were hurt received their injuries. Policemen and firemen were summoned to chop the cars apart and rescue the imprisoned. It was 15 minutes before the first of the victims was released.

The firemen worked for over an hour before they were able to cut the last of the injured passengers out of the car. Five ambulances responded to the call for aid and several physicians were also called. About half an hour after the accident, while the firemen were still working at the wrecked cars, and policemen, trainmen and others were scattered along the tracks, the current was turned on again and the train was lighted.

A five-car train on the Ninth avenue elevated line ran away going north early this morning and with scarcely any lessening of speed rounded two curves which form an "S" over 100 feet from the ground at 110th street. The train was brought to a stop one block south of the 116th street station. The motorman was so crazed that he attempted to jump to the street. He was restrained by a policeman. Women fainted and men shouted when the train was in flight.

Mayor George B. McClellan late yesterday afternoon reached the conclusion that transportation conditions had assumed such a serious aspect that it would be necessary to bring the two factions to some speedy agreement. He accordingly addressed a letter to both the Interborough company and the Amalgamated association to this end.

Every precaution has been taken to protect the power house and men working there. The men are supplied with meals in the power house and cots have also been placed there for them.

One-third of the police force of Brooklyn was drafted over to Manhattan to aid in handling the strike situation. Two strikers were arrested for interfering with non-union men

FIREBUG AT WORK

Railroad Has Sixteenth Fire Within Four Months

Boston, March 8.—Another attempt to burn the Boston and Maine freight sheds in the Charlestown district was discovered last night in time to prevent the blaze, which had been set in a roll of oil-soaked waste, in shed 14, off Warren avenue, from spreading beyond the room in which it was started.

Chief Cheswell of the fire department immediately ordered the whole yards placed under police patrol for the rest of the night, lest other attempts be made to set other buildings on fire. The officials of the Boston and Maine have doubled the number of watchmen in the yards.

In nearly every fire which has been set in the yards oil-soaked waste has been found to have been used. The police believe that all the fires were set by the same person.

Last night's blaze was the 16th in Boston and Maine property here within four months. The fire of Nov. 18 last caused $600,000 damage, while a loss of $2,000,000 was incurred in the fire of Feb. 21. The others were not serious.

Mill Fire Causes $1,500,000 Loss

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 8.—The plant of the American Cereal company, the largest of its kind in the world, comprising two entire blocks of brick and iron structures, was destroyed by fire last night, with the exception of a small group of cooper shops, storage and packing rooms. The loss is estimated at $1,500,000. Two persons are known to have lost their lives in the fire. It is feared that several others lost their lives, but this is not definitely known. The mill employed 800 men. The fire started in the hull grinding room of one of the elevators.

May Have Real Swords

Washington, March 8.—The officers and cavalrymen of the of the American army are to have sharpened swords hereafter if they want them. Heretofore the accepted type of military sword here has been rather blunt, a considerable element in the army maintaining that the spirit of the rules of modern warfare was opposed to a keen-edged sword. But modern practice is the other way and the Japanese sharpen their cutting swords so that they split a man down from his shoulder to his heart or chop off an arm with ease.

Perjuror and Bigamist

Knoxville, March 8.—Rev. Benjamin W. Ashley, a minister of the Christian church, was given a sentence of 15 months in the penitentiary in federal court here for violating the pension laws. Investigation proved that Ashley married his first wife in 1865, and never had obtained a divorce, but had abandoned her 30 years ago, marrying a second time. He pleaded guilty of perjury, and may be prosecuted for bigamy when he has served his federal sentence.

Exhibits Bring $400,000 In Customs

St. Louis, March 8.—Announcement is made by Judge Gallenkamf, surveyor of customs at St. Louis, that the United States treasury department will realize over $400,000 net receipts from duties paid on foreign exhibits at the World's fair. More than one-half of the exhibits were returned to the countries whence they came, thus not becoming subject to the payment of customs duties.

Suspicion of Foul Play

New York, March 8.—Rosie de Pietro, the young Italian matron recently acquitted of murder when placed on trial for killing an Italian who had made improper advances toward her, is dead at Long Island City. Mrs. de Pietro gave birth to a child two weeks ago, but apparently was making a satisfactory recovery. An investigation is being made and it is possible that an autopsy may be performed.

Seeks to Evade Punishment

Washington, March 8.—Captain Kirkman, Twenty-Fifth infantry, who is being tried by court martial at Fort Niobrara, Neb., on charges of a serious character, has tendered his resignation as an officer of the army, and the question of its acceptance is under consideration by the president and the secretary of war. It is said to be unlikely that he will be allowed to leave the service without punishment.

Indications of Strychnine

Honolulu, March 8.—High Sheriff Henry says that the chemists, in a test of the contents of Mrs. Stanford's stomach, found a color which, indicated strychnine, and that they will so testify at the inquest. He says that the chemists found strychnine in the bi-carbonate of soda, of which Mrs. Stanford partook on the night of her death.

Worcester Man Died In Jail

St. Louis, March 8.—The body of a prisoner who committed suicide in the St. Louis jail has been identified as that of a Worcester (Mass.) man. The prisoner was convicted under the name of John Mulvey, but in a letter to a jail guard he stated that that was not his name and asked that no effort be made to find his family.

Witte Tired of His Job

Berlin, March 9.—The Lokal Anzeiger's St. Petersburg dispatch says that M. Witte, president of the committee of ministers, has tendered his resignation to the emperor on the plea that the latter has evinced a lack of confidence in him.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

Order on Receiver's Motion to fix a time limit for presentation of Claims and for authority to sell Assets.

This cause came on to be further heard upon the motion of the Receiver to fix a time within which claims may be presented and heard by the Receiver and upon the petition of the Receiver for authority to sell certain assets and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the Receiver give notice by sending by mail to all known creditors of the Co-partnership of Berry Brothers, a duly addressed notice of the time and place where claims shall be presented and heard.

It is further ordered that the Receiver shall hear and pass upon all claims that shall be presented and return his finding to this Court and that all Claims not so presented to said Receiver prior to the tenth day of April, 1905, shall be forever barred, unless the Court for good cause shown shall otherwise order.

The Receiver is ordered to give notice to all persons interested to appear before said Court at Dedham, in said County, on the first Monday of April, 1905, then and there to show cause why the Receiver should not be authorized to sell the property set forth in said Receiver's petition, dated, February sixth, 1905, of said Co-partnership, at public auction. Such notice to be given by publishing an attested copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be at least fourteen days before said first Monday of April, 1905, and also by sending by mail, postage prepaid, forthwith a printed copy hereof to the defendant George L. Berry, and all creditors of said Co-partnership known to said Receiver.

THE CHADWICK TRIAL

Two Instances In Which Prosecution Gets a Setback

Cleveland, March 8.—Nine witnesses were examined in the Chadwick trial yesterday and the defense established the fact that the claim of the government that Mrs. Chadwick had no money in the Oberlin bank at the time of drawing checks which were certified by Spear and Beckwith was incorrect in two instances at least.

It was shown by the general journal of the bank that on Nov. 3, 1903, when Mrs. Chadwick received a certified check for $10,000, an entry crediting her with that amount was made on the journal of the bank and a deposit slip for $10,000 was made out in her name. The entry and the slip were in the handwriting of Cashier Spear. Another entry of a similar nature amounting to $5000 was also found.

These facts were brought out on cross-examination by counsel for Mrs. Chadwick after long and tedious questioning of H. H. Avery, assistant cashier of the Oberlin bank. Avery at first testified that Mrs. Chadwick, at no time, had either money in or credit at the bank.

It is doubtful if Andrew Carnegie will take the stand. District Attorney Sullivan said: "It is not my present intention to put Mr. Carnegie on the stand, and I do not think that he will be called upon to testify unless his evidence should be needed in rebuttal of something introduced by the defense."

Japs Poaching Our Salmon

Seattle, March 8.—A protest has been sent to the department of commerce and labor by influential fishermen of Washington and Oregon, calling attention to the fact that Japanese fishermen are coming across the Behring sea and catching salmon by the shipload off the Alaskan coast. The demand for fish in Japan is increased by reason of the war, so that the poachers are cutting off a good market for the American fishermen.

Inaugural Committee Did Well

Washington, March 8.—The committee having in charge the celebration of the inauguration of President Roosevelt has paid all expenses and has a surplus of about $3000. The only sources of revenue the committee had were the sale of tickets for the ball and concerts and the granting of certain privileges. These have exceeded expectations. The total receipts approximated about $82,000 and the expenses about $79,000.

Confesses Quadruple Murder

Danville, Ark., March 8.—James Kence was brought back to jail here after a visit to the scene of the crime, near Whiteley, where, confronted with the dead bodies of his wife and three children, the latter ranging in age from 4 months to 4 years, he broke down and confessed to killing them, saying that it seemed impossible to make a living for his family.

Humble Worker Achieves Fame

McKeesport, Pa., March 8.—As a recognition of his services for flagging an inaugural train Sunday and preventing a collision, Thomas Bain, a coal digger of Shanner, will receive a medal of honor from the government. He has been notified that President Roosevelt will bestow the medal soon. The railroad will also recognize Bain's services.

Palma's Advice to Cabinet

Havana, March 8.—The members of the new cabinet have assumed their offices. President Palma, in an address to them, said he hoped their best patriotic endeavors would be in the direction of the consolidation and progress of the Cuban people and toward the furtherance of the friendliest relations with all nations.

Missouri Railroad Legislation

Jefferson City, Mo., March 8.—The senate passed the maximum rate bill by a bare constitutional majority. The bill is considered the most important railroad legislation passed by the Missouri legislature in years. The measure reduces the rate on live stock $4 a car and makes various other reductions.

Memphis Railway Changes Hands

Memphis, March 8.—The formal transfer of the Memphis Street Railway company has been made to Ford, Bacon & Davis, engineers and capitalists of New York. The price paid for the property is more than $5,000,000. The entire capital stock of the company passes to the new owners.

Two Students Stabbed

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 8.—In the annual campaign of hair cutting among the students of the University of Michigan last night two sophomores suffered stab wounds in the encounters. One was stabbed over the heart and the other three times in the back. Both will recover.

COMBAT AT MUKDEN

It Is Now Believed to Be In Its Last Stages

RUSSIANS IN RETREAT

All of Kuropatkin's Ability Will Be Required to Extricate His Army From Its Present Predicament--Troops Suffer From Ten Days' Fighting, During Which Time 80,000 Lives May Have Been Lost

London, March 8.—For 10 days the Japanese and Russian armies in Manchuria have been engaged in a mighty conflict, the issue of which has not yet been reached.

Although the most of the news from the scene of the battle comes through Russian sources and consequently may be supposed to present the facts in as favorable a light as possible for the Russian arms, it is evident that the Japanese made some gains yesterday.

St. Petersburg has an unofficial report that General Kuropatkin's centre has been broken and that 13 siege guns have fallen into the hands of the Japanese. These guns, which are of six and eight-inch calibre, were given permanent emplacements on the line of the railroad north of Shakhe station, the fact evidencing the confidence of the Russians that the Japanese could not penetrate thither.

In St. Petersburg it is generally believed that Kuropatkin was yesterday fighting a rear guard action to cover his retreat, and that the right will have witnessed a large withdrawal of troops toward Tie pass. All of the commander-in-chief's ability, it is considered, will be required to extricate his army from its present predicament.

The issue, it is expected, will be decided today, and much unquestionably depends upon the comparative ability of the opposing armies to resist the effects of hunger and fatigue, the limit of human endurance having, evidently, been nearly reached on both sides. Beyond the statement that the casualties exceed those of the battle of Liaoyang there is little known as to the number killed or wounded.

Kuropatkin fought desperately all day yesterday to cover his retreat, but Mukden wired late last night that firing was plainly audible far to the northward, indicating the presence of a formidable Japanese body, which may be enabled to prevent Kuropatkin reaching his final base at Tie pass. It is feared that encirclement has been complete, and tidings of Oyama's triumph are hourly expected. The issue will be known with exactness, it is expected, today.

The soldiers of both armies are nearly exhausted, prisoners in both camps being ravenous, eagerly devouring food. They say that hunger stalks in many divisions. While the outposts have been enduring awful privations, however, the main body of the Japanese has been supplied by trains from Sinmingti.

Great depression was expressed at St. Petersburg at the report from Kuropatkin that the Japanese had captured many of his six and eight-inch guns, well mounted on commanding emplacements, and were being used against their former owners with dread havoc. Great gallantry is reported. Kuropatkin's entire centre is reported to be demoralized, while his left and right are no longer capable of exact maneuvering. The Russian military spirit is well-nigh shattered and pessimism is general.

Mukden is felt to be a second Liaoyang, and the death list is reported to be appalling, the 10 days' fighting having cost, according to careful estimates, more than 80,000 lives, thus placing the present battle at the head of the world's most famous battles as regards casualties.

General Kuropatkin's critics among military men are increasing in number, the burden of complaint being that in every action he has shown a lack of initiative. With defeat now, whether disastrous or otherwise, they declare his star will set. On the other hand, it is believed that Field Marshal Oyama's daring strategy, if successful in this battle, will entitle him to rank as one of the greatest war captains of the age.

Politically, the result may determine the question of continued prosecution of the war. An overwhelming disaster, it is believed, will surely bring Russia to terms.

St Petersburg Scents Defeat

St. Petersburg, March 8.—That the battle of Mukden will go down in history with Liaoyang in the long list of Russian defeats is the almost universal belief in pessimistic St. Petersburg, which has forgotten the meaning of the word victory. The war office does not admit that the issue of the great battle, which already exceeds in magnitude of operations and losses that of Shakhe, has been decided, although it is positively stated in high quarters that General Kurepatkin has telegraphed to the czar that it will be impossible to hold Mukden and that the withdrawal of the army northward has already been begun.

NO-LICENSE GAINS

Anti-Saloon League's Campaign Bears Fruit In Vermont

Burlington, Vt., March 8.—At the March elections throughout Vermont interest again centred in the question of permitting the sale of intoxicating liquors under the local option law adopted three years ago.

The Anti-Saloon league waged a vigorous campaign in all the cities and also in those towns which last year favored license or which appeared to be wavering on the question.

In the six cities of the state the contest on this question resulted in a draw. Barre turned from license to no license, the majority in favor of liquor selling in Burlington was reduced so materially as to give hope for ultimate success for the league next year, while in Montpelier the license majority was also cut down.

On the other hand, Rutland changed from a no-license city to one in which liquor will be sold the coming year, and the majorities in favor of license in St. Albans and Vergennes were increased.

Of the mayoralty contests that in Rutland was the feature, J. F. Manning, the president of a local marble company, defeating J. F. Carder, one of his own cutters and the present mayor. In Burlington, Barre and Montpelier the present mayors were re-elected.

The no license advocates had much better success in the town elections throughout the state than in the cities and in the coming year only 31 will have licenses. Last year the number of license towns was 41, and the year before the number was still larger.

General Miles' Hope

Taunton, Mass., March 8.—General Miles was the chief guest and speaker at the annual banquet of the Taunton Board of Trade last night. He deplored the condition of affairs in the far east, where, he said, nearly a million young men were struggling for an aim in which they were not interested, but were following the dictates of two haughty monarchs. He expressed the hope that this war might be the last one and that there would be a congress of the nations to settle all future disputes.

Clergy Interested In Politics

Providence, March 8.—The Episcopal clergy of the Rhode Island diocese met in the Grace church vestry here and passed resolutions concerning the alleged existence of corruption and bribery in this state. The resolutions say that "in view of the admitted existence of corruption in the body politic, we believe that the time is ripe for the wide and thorough banding together of men of public spirit for action."

Veteran Meets Death by Fire

Waterford, Vt., March 8.—George Williams, a veteran of the Civil war, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed his home here. Williams lived alone, and there were no other persons about the house when the fire started. It is believed that Williams lighted the kitchen fire with kerosene oil, and that an explosion resulted.

Murder Charge Preferred

Plymouth, Mass., March 8.—Emil Sauri, charged with assault upon Karl Hallen, was brought into court here and arraigned on a charge of murder, Hallen having died. An autopsy revealed that death was due to a fracture of the skull, caused by a blow from an axe. Sauri was held for a preliminary hearing.

Hustling on Peary's Boat

Bucksport, Me., March 8.—It is announced by the builders of Commander Peary's Arctic exploration steamer that the vessel will be launched on March 23 from their yard here. A large crew are working extra hours by electric light to get her ready.

Oyster Dredgers at Work

Warren, R. I., March 8.—For the first time since the commencement of the ice embargo over six weeks ago, oyster dredgers are about as usual in the Warren and Kikimutt rivers, all the ice having gone out. Practically all the beds are bare of ice.

No Scarcity of Fish

Boston, March 8.—Not for years has such an enormous quantity of fresh fish reached this city as has been landed during the past 48 hours. Twenty-one more vessels all brought in very heavy fares and raised the total for two days to 3,013,200 pounds.

Three Months on Three Days' Trip

Fall River, Mass., March 8.—Schooner William R. Huston, from Philadelphia, reports that she was three months in making the trip which, under ordinary conditions, consumes three or four days. Heavy ice was the cause of the delay.

Arrest In Ross Murder Case

Newport News, Va., March 8.—A man giving the name of Brooks and claiming to be a shipwrecked sailor was arrested in York county on the charge of being implicated in the murder of Mrs. Hannah Ross at Montclair, N. J. He is said to answer fully the description sent out of the missing coachman.

Noted Theatrical Man Dead

New York, March 8.—A. M. Palmer, the theatrical manager, who was stricken with apoplexy Monday, died yesterday afternoon. Mr. Palmer was for years the most prominent theatrical manager in America. He was 67 years old and was a native of Stonington, Conn.

Minister Under Indictment

New Brunswick, N. J., March 8.—Indictments for assault and battery and abandonment were found by the grand jury against Rev. F. F. Cordova, who is charged with assailing his wife and with eloping with Miss Julia Bowne.

Committee Will Report the Santo Domingo Treaty

FIGHT COMING IN SENATE

All Chances of Its Being Made a Party Question Are Removed--Bacon Will Aid by Modifying His Amendment

Washington, March 8.—Without determining any question of policy in regard to the Santo Domingo treaty, the senate decided that the treaty should be reported as soon as possible from the committee on foreign relations and the entire question fought out in executive session. This was the sentiment of the foreign relations committee as well as the senate and in two sessions of the committee the proceedings were with a view to reporting the treaty today if possible.

The amendments offered in the committee were confined to a reduction of an alleged surplusage of words. They were offered verbally and taken down by a stenographer. They are to be printed and considered when the committee meets today. By a tacit understanding the policy involved in the treaty was not taken up by the committee and it was understood that the action in submitting amendments in this manner did not commit any senator to the support of the treaty. The program was merely to facilitate action and remove all chances of its being made a party question in the committee.

The prompt action of the foreign relations committee undoubtedly will result in a much earlier decision in the senate. Nearly every senator who discussed the treaty expressed a desire that the measure be kept from becoming a party question.

To prevent this, Senator Bacon offered to withdraw his resolution concerning the protocol of an agreement entered into by the United States in January, 1903, in reference to the Santo Domingo Improvement company scheme and modify it. When he again offers it the resolution will be general in character and ask that the foreign relations committee inquire and report whether the executive has the authority to make an agreement by which the United States takes charge of the customs of another country.

The resolution will not mention any particular case, but it will ask that the senate committee inquire if there is any form of convention, treaty, protocol or agreement by which the president might proceed to the collection of claims of a citizen of the United States against a foreign power. He took the position that the executive could look after the interests of citizens of the United States through diplomatic channels, but that to take charge of customs houses might be charged as an act of war. He declared that the procedure was unconstitutional unless it was submitted first to the senate.

Fire In Madison Sqnare Garden

New York, March 8.—Fire was discovered in Madison Square garden last night a short time after the thousands who had been attending the Sportsmen's show and the audience in the Garden theatre had left the building. The fire started in some rubbish in a storeroom and worked its way up to the second balcony, on which were cages containing exhibits of birds and wild animals. The bears and wildcats and a pair of tame wolves fought madly to escape. One of the bears and a wildcat perished. The loss is $15,000.

Message Somewhat Delayed

New York, March 8.—A message asking for assistance which was sent from Franz Joseph land by balloon by Evelyn B. Baldwin, the Arctic explorer, just prior to his return from the Arctic regions in the summer of 1902, has just been received by Mr. Baldwin. It was picked up two months ago by a fisherman at Tanafjord, Norway, on the east side of the North cape.

Hunger and Grip Rampant

St. Johns, March 8.—Pitiful accounts have reached here of suffering at St. Pierre, Miq., where a degree of destitution that is unprecedented prevails. The French government is taking measures for the relief of sufferers from hunger and the ravages of grip. The failure of the fisheries for the past three years has been a severe blow to the prosperity of the place.

Countess Short of Funds

Florence, March 8.—The Countess Montignoso (formerly Crown Princess of Saxony) has been obliged to give up her villa at Papiniavo and has taken rooms in a hotel at Fiesole. The countess states that the change is necessary until her former husband (King Frederick Augustus of Saxony) pays her the allowance agreed upon at the time of her divorce.

Decision Affecting Porto Ricans

Washington, March 8.—The court of appeals of the District of Columbia has decided that a Porto Rican in this country possesses the necessary qualifications as to citizenship under the civil service regulations to make him eligible for employment in the government service.

Dismasted Fisherman In Port

Yarmouth, N. S., March 8.—Schooner Onato of Boston, which was dismasted in a gale on the Georges Banks, was towed in here. The schooner has 105,000 pounds of fish which will be shipped to Boston.

SECOND RENAISSANCE.

Another Revival of Art, It Is Claimed, Is Needed.

In order to reform our present stereotyped methods of art we want a second renaissance. For long years we have done nothing but turn out from our colleges young men stuffed with useless scientific lumber, and they very quickly lose it all, and there is nothing to take its place. This is not to be wondered at when throughout Europe there is such a neglect of art in our education. It may be replied to me that the inventions of science compensate for the deficiency, but these inventions are almost exclusively if not quite a mere increase in the power of the bodily senses and faculties—the telegraph in that of the tongue, the telephone in that of the ear, the railway in that of the legs, the photographic science in that of the eye—and these inventions leave in ignorance the more intellectual part of the individual. Your portrait can be taken, your voice boxed up—this is extraordinary—but the soul which commands, the god which is in the head, is forgotten.

And yet the means for altering this state of things is near at hand, is beneath our eyes. We have still the same nature that inspired those anonymous sculptors to give us the Gothic; we still have a sufficient number of Gothic masterpieces intact—so many epitomes of nature, as I have said—to show what can be done by the man who starts with his vision open to her teaching.—Auguste Rodin in North American Review.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Rainy this afternoon.

B. P. Sturtevant returned Tuesday from his trip to Halifax.

The Council committee on Fire Department will meet this evening.

C. H. Bingham and family of Chestnut street have moved to their cottage at Adams shore.

Mrs. Shirley F. Nutting of Chestnut street is spending a fortnight with relatives at Cotuit, Mass.

L. M. Pratt & Son have assigned to Jeremiah J. McAnarney. Their liabilities are $17,000; assets, $20,000.

The Crayon Educational Concert Company will give a free entertainment at Hancock hall tonight and tomorrow night.

Mrs. Mary W. Carter, accompanied by her daughter Nan, left Tuesday for the Cape, where she will visit another daughter, Mrs. W. B. Crosby.

The meetings of City Council Committees announced for this week are: Fire Department and Police, tonight; Finance, Thursday night; Streets, Friday night.

Charles Goss met with a slight accident at the shipyard Tuesday. While at work in the top of one of the buildings, he fell and injured his foot. He will probably be able to resume his duties in a few days.

Rev. Peter MacQueen and Rev. Leon H. Austin will exchange pulpits some Sunday next month. It is reported that Rev. Peter MacQueen will also give an illustrated lecture on Russia at the Point church some time in April.

Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows entertained Old Colony lodge of Hingham and the lodge from Cohasset on Tuesday evening. The first degree was exemplified and received great praise from the visitors. A banquet followed.

Tuesday workmen on the Bracket estate on South Central avenue, Wollaston, unearthed an Indian hatchet. It is fashioned out of stone and has probably been buried for years. It must have weighed several pounds and was quite sharp.

The New England branch of the Amalgamated Street Railway Employes, of which the Quincy men are affiliated, are meeting in Boston today, arranging their working agreement for the coming year. No important changes are expected from the egreement now in force.

William Barclay of Barre, Vt., who did so much for the pleasure and comfort of the Quincy granite manufacturers on their visit to that city last summer, has been reelected to the office of Mayor. Mr. Barclay has many warm friends in Quincy who extend congratulations.

JOHN EVANS

Writes of the Presidential Inauguration.

A Great Admirer of Roosevelt.

Promises Another Letter on Parade and Grand Ball.

Washington, D. C.
March 4, 1905.

We reached here 4 A. M. Thursday, and to my utter astonishment, we found the streets covered with snow and ice. They were so slippery we could hardly walk. But toward noon the sun came out full strength and with it the ice and snow melted. We all hoped that the weather would keep in line with everything else to make our popular President happy, and sure enough it did. The last three days have been as fine as if the strenuous President had made them to order.

Under a cloudless sky, with his head bared to the wind in which there was still a touch of winter, Mr. Roosevelt took the oath of office as Chief Magistrate of the best country and happiest people under the sun.

It is safe to say that since the days of Lincoln no President has attracted so much popularity by his personality as President Roosevelt. He was elected last fall with a majority unequalled—over 2,500,000.

The day dawned with promise of perfect weather. The morning sun was so warm that I neglected, to my sorrow, to put on my overcoat. The sun was warm when the President left the White House for the Capitol, escorted by clattering cavalry. He rode in an open carriage and I noticed that our Senator Lodge, sat opposite him. While he was in the Capitol the sky darkened and the black clouds gathered. The multitude of people started on a run to a place of safety from the incoming tempest. It seemed that winter long enthroned would not yield, even for Theodore.

Happily the clouds disappeared, and once more the sun shone brilliantly. There was no warmth though in its rays. The wind was pitiless and made the multitude shiver in its icy blast. But there was cause for thankfulness in the fact that the sun was shining when that venerable old chief justice Fuller administered the oath, both being bare headed. I couldn't help notice the contrast in the two figures. The President with his form sturdy and the picture of health, and Chief Justice Fuller with white hair and full of dignity although small in figure.

The President repeated the oath in a firm, clear voice. Then he delivered his inaugural address. The address was short and to the point. We all know what it was. There were only few that heard it, for the wind blew a gale and drowned his voice almost as soon as it left his lips.

I will give later a description of the afternoon parade, the fireworks and the inaugural ball; also my impression of the Porto Ricans and the Philipino troops as they appeared in the big parade, and how the cow boys lassoed the fellows when they insisted on crossing the avenue. I have also collected short accounts of the inauguration of all our presidents from the Congressional Library, which I will be glad to give to the readers of the Daily Ledger in the near future. John Evans.

The judges were Gen. P. A. Brigham of Somerville, manager and director of the Boys' Brigade, Gen. W. H. H. Geary of Beachmont and Col. A. G. Cullis of Somerville.

The company was divided into two squads, and so close was the excellence of the drill that each squad was put through, it was a difficult matter for the judges to select the winners, as all were almost perfect.

The judges, however made the awards as follows:

First prize to Sergt. Auhey Chisholm.
Second prize to Sergt. Roy Neily.
Honorable mention Sergt. Henry Welsh, Sergt. Kenneth Blake and Corp. Dennis Le Blace.

The ice on Bent's creek is considerably broken up, making it impossible for the boys to gather the driftwood as they have been doing for the past weeks.

Consumption

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house.

This was an excellent opportunity to find out what Mrs. Ward wanted to know. Taking Leonard's arm, she led him to a chair some distance from the door of the boudoir.

"Now let us have a nice long talk, dear Mr. Train," she said. "We can renew our pleasant conversation."

"I don't think it was very pleasant," said Train unwillingly.

"What an ungallant thing to say!"

"I mean to talk about crime"—

"Is most amusing—I mean instructive. Oh, yes, I have read many of those novels—what do they call them?—detective novels. I have often thought how nice it would be if one could really try to find out who killed a person. Now, in this case, Mr. Train, I am sure you heard something or saw something"—

"Upon my word, I neither saw nor heard," protested Leonard. "I was in bed all the time."

"But you must have heard the fall of the body or the shutting of the door as the—ah!" Mrs. Ward saw from the expression of Leonard's face that she had touched upon something. "You did hear"—

"No, no!" he stammered, wondering how he was to get out of confessing about the opening of the front door without appearing rude.

"Nonsense! Confess! Confess, you silly man!"

But Leonard was too loyal. To lead her away from the point he asked a question. "Mrs. Ward, that yellow holly?"

"Yes. What about it?" She leaned forward eagerly.

"Did you give a sprig of it to any one else?"

"No. I only gave a bit to my daughter, and she"—

"She gave it to Brendon. Yes, I know. But did Miss Ward give any of it to a third person?"

"Certainly not. To do so she would have had to get it from me. But beyond the sprig which was given, and which Mr. Brendon had, no holly went out of this house."

"You are accusing Mr. Brendon."

"It is very rare, is it not?"

"I believe so I dare say there wasn't another bunch in London on that particular night. Of course there might have been; still—but why do you ask all this?"

"Well," said Leonard, "it seems to me that the yellow holly has something to do with the crime."

Mrs. Ward drew a long breath, but said no word. He was speaking half to himself, and she did not wish to interrupt his train of thought. But she listened with all her ears. Leonard continued: "I found a berry in the room where she was killed. Yes. They took us in to see the body, and a horrid sight it was. I turned my eyes to the floor, and there I saw—just by the table—a kind of amber bead. I dropped my handkerchief so that Quex might not suspect, and I picked it up. When in my own room I examined it. It was one of the yellow holly berries."

Mrs. Ward threw herself back with a kind of unholy triumph. "Do you know what you are saying, Mr. Train?" she said in a half whisper. "You are accusing Mr. Brendon"—

"No, no!" Train started to his feet. Mrs. Ward pulled him down again and pointed with her fan toward the boudoir.

"Hush! He might come out," she whispered. "But can't you see? Brendon wore the sprig in his coat on that night. He must have been in the room and have dropped the berry. What was he doing there if it was not to"—

"No," said Train hoarsely. "I half thought of that myself, but it is quite impossible, I tell you. He could not have got out of his room unless he had come to me."

"How do you mean?"

"I locked the door of the sitting room, which was between his bedroom and mine. There was no exit from his bedroom, and to get out and down the stair he would have had to open the sitting room door. Now, the key was under my pillow, and the door was locked in the morning. No, Mrs. Ward, Brendon is innocent."

"He might have stolen the key while you slept."

Train shook his head. "Impossible. I sleep very lightly, and on that night I hardly slept at all."

"Why? Was anything wrong?"

"I can't tell you that, Mrs. Ward, without violating the confidence of my friend. Indeed, I have said too much. Promise me you will not speak of what I have told you."

"I promise, but I am quite sure that the holly berry was dropped by George Brendon and that he was in Mrs. Jersey's sitting room on that night. He is the criminal."

"I tell you he is not, Mrs. Ward."

"Don't excite yourself, Mr. Train. Here are Mr. Brendon and Dorothy." She sailed toward them with open hands. "Finished your talk? We must say good night." And to herself she murmured, while smiling, "I've got you at last—I've got you at last!" And Brendon shook hands with Madame Judas, quite unconscious of her premeditated treachery.

Pupils Should Unite.

Concerning the School contest the Herald says today:

"The Greater Boston grammar division, is still growing and today the Coddington school, Quincy, has a tight grip on the "place," while Miss Underwood the teacher, has more than that. The Glenwood of Malden, Kelley of Cambridge, and Lincoln of Brookline, are well to the front. All four illustrate the striking advantages of concentrated effort, all voting for one teacher, one for one pupil and the two others for only a few pupils, who will undoubtedly come to some arrangement later."

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Already 2000 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 3000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

The editor of the Daily Ledger would like to hear from all the former pupils of Miss Julia Underwood, especially in the early years—1855 to 1875. He would also be pleased to read reminiscences of her former pupils, and hopes to gather many letters before the 50th anniversary March 31.

PLATE CONTRACT.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has transmitted to the House reports from the various bureaus of the department relative to the delivery of material to the battleship Connecticut, being constructed in the New York Navy Yard in competition with the Louisiana, being built in a private yard, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Times.

The information is in response to a resolution of the House introduced by Representative Fitzgerald, (N. Y.) His inquiry was caused by a complaint made by the Central Federated Union of New York in March, 1903.

This complaint distinctly charged that armor plate intended for the Connecticut was being delayed in order to make it appear that the building of battleships could not be done as expeditiously in Government yards as in private yards.

The reply from the Bureau of Ordnance refers to a letter complaining of the delivery of armor for the Connecticut from the Naval Constructor at New York, Sept. 1, 1904. The complaint states: "It is evident that up to Aug. 27th the delivery of armor for the Louisiana was three times as great as that for the Connecticut."

It is stated in the correspondence that the Carnegie Company did cause some delay on the Connecticut. In fact, the story shows that when the Carnegie Works got so much behind, the department took the contract from them and turned it over to the Bethlehem Works. This action involved 2,161 tons. This occurred the latter part of last July, and since that time there has been no further occasion for complaint.

Naval Constructor Baxter, who has charge of the work on the Connecticut, states in his letter that the delivery of armor for the eight and ten inch barbettes was so slow that considerable delay occurred, and after the deliveries were made the armor could not be installed as expeditiously as it could have been had it been delivered on time.

Chief Constructor Capps, reviewing Constructor Baxter's letter, says that after the action of the department in transferring the contract for the 1,161 tons to the Bethlehem works, the armor for the Connecticut was forwarded so promptly that as a matter of fact the Connecticut really enjoyed a preference over all other ships under construction.

Mr. Capps also states that the contractors for the Louisiana made a complaint that there were serious delays in the delivery of nickel steel armor for the protective decks of that ship.

The correspondence shows that there have been serious delays in the deliveries of armor and that on the whole these delays have been greater probably on material intended for the Connecticut than for the Louisiana. The Navy Department is of the opinion, however that there is little ground for the statement that the armor plate makers purposely held back deliveries for the Connecticut so that the Louisiana could be finished sooner.

Jury Reform Needed.

A Boston paper reports that out of a venire of six sent out for the criminal term of the Middlesex court, Assistant Clerk of Courts John L. Ambrose has been able to secure only two jurors from Cambridge. The officer who was sent to serve summonses reported that one had not been at the address given for over a year, another had died last September, while another could be found in Canada, and anyway he could not speak English.

The clerk was no more successful in securing civil jurors. The return on the back of one summons reads: "David H. Sullivan, superintending prize fight in California."

N. E. O. P. Grand Lodge.

One hundred and six past wardens were admitted at the annual session of the Grand lodge, N. E. O. P., in Boston on Wednesday, and given the degree. Frank A. Rice of Cambridge was elected grand warden. About six hundred attended the banquet at noon.

Because of License.

Because the town voted license on Tuesday, E. B. Ellis of the Ellis granite works at Northfield, Vermont, has decided says a Herald dispatch, to move the concern to Bethel. The Ellis works employ 300 men, and their removal will be a severe blow to Northfield. The concern is now filling three large government orders.

THE PROVIDENCE.

New Palatial Steamer to be open for Inspection.

It is expected that 2,000 to 3,000 people will avail themselves on Sunday of the privilege of inspecting the palatial new steamer Providence, which has been built for the Fall River line by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

The only approach to the steamer will be from Washington street via of a pontoon bridge over the creek. Members of the Shipbuilders' club will act as guide and it will be a very favorable opportunity to inspect the boat.

The steamer is a fine product of the Quincy company and will be an honor to the company, the employes and to the City of Presidents.

The hours are not limited, but at any time at your convenience on Sunday, you may take the cars to Quincy Point, and for a small fee which is going to benefit the Shipbuilders' club, you may visit this magnificent steamer which will soon be making regular trips between Fall River and New York.

The Mayor and City Council have accepted invitations to inspect the steamer at this time.

Working Man's Opportunity.

TO Get a Home at one-half its value. One two family house, $2,100; rent for one side enough to pay taxes and interest. You can live in the other side, rent free. Also half of a house at Wollaston, six rooms, near schools, churches and depot. A chance of a life time, $1400. Come and see me and get full particulars.

DRAMATICS.

Delightful Entertainment by Denison House Auxiliary.

The Denison House Auxiliary held its annual dramatic entertainment in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry, Wednesday evening. The program was in three parts, two short sketches, "Which Will Have Him?" and "The Trouble at Satterlee's," and "A Japanese Love Song."

The first sketch, "Which Will Have Him?" was admirably given by Misses Rena Grant and Mollie Brown, Mr. Loring kindly assisting. The costumes in this sketch were quite a feature, Miss Brown wearing black net with red picture hat and red roses, and Miss Grant, white silk with green trimmings, and a large green hat with black plumes.

The second feature was a very pretty Japanese song by Misses Augusta Lehman, Mattie May Mitchell, and Persis Thompson. The young ladies were arrayed in pretty Japanese costumes.

The third part of the program, "The Trouble at Satterlee's," was a little play, the scene being laid in a girl's seminary. The stage was decorated with posters and flags, to resemble a college room. The young ladies were very natural in their parts and received well merited applause.

In the cast were: Miss Marjorie Fay, Miss Alice Dow, Miss Bula Loud, Miss Ethel Parker, Miss Susie Page, Miss Louise Waterman, Miss Mabel Loughead, Miss Grace Bishop, Miss Beulah Hatch, Miss Lulu Cochrane and Miss Leona Robbins.

The school girls were, Miss Hattie May Mitchell, Miss Persis Thompson, Miss Gertrude Brennan, Miss Mabel Garnett, Miss Gladys Parker, and Miss Elsie Snow.

On the whole, the entertainment was decidedly successful and it reflects credit both upon those who took part and upon Mrs. Gurney under whose direction it was given.

Oath That Binds the Burmese.

Perjury having been rife in Rangun courts because no form of oath existed which the Burman considered binding, the government prescribed a formula which is a queer admixture of Buddhism, Brahminism and Shamanism. Here are phrases from it, picked at random: "If an untruth passes my lips, may all the gnats that live in lakes, ponds and brooks and the gnats of the five great rivers of India destroy me. May curdled blood pass my lips rather than a lie, and may I die vomiting blood, my body bent in two."—Rangun Gazette.

A Caustic Retort.

Prince Herbert Bismarck had the reputation of having a decidedly brusque manner in society. Once at a royal reception he bumped roughly against an Italian prelate, who looked at him indignantly. "You evidently don't know who I am," said the German prince haughtily. "I am Herbert Bismarck."

"Oh," answered the prelate, "if that doesn't amount to an apology it is certainly a perfect explanation!"

THE TERMS

Of Agreement with the Granite Cutters.

Will Run for Three Years.

The Blacksmiths' Bill is Now Being Adjusted.

The committees representing the Granite Manufacturers' Association and the Granite Cutters' Union, who have been hard at work for the past few days on the bill of prices and agreement, completed their labors Wednesday afternoon. All matters between them have been peacefully adjusted, and nothing now remains to be done but to be approved by the Cutters' Union.

This will probably be done at a meeting of the union some day this week, possibly today.

The Blacksmiths' bill, however, is not yet adjusted. The workmen's committee is different from that which has been handling the Cutters' bill. Now that the cutters have agreed it follows that the blacksmiths will soon fall in line. Their bill will probably be adjusted this week.

The minimum wage to be $3 per day of eight hours.

Any workman physically incapable of earning that amount may work for less. The amount he shall be paid to be based on what he can earn by the piece bill on a stone that figures not less than $12.

There is also a provision that in case of a dispute the wage of this man shall be fixed by a joint committee of the two organizations.

There shall not be more than three apprentices to a gang of 13 men. If a firm employs but three journeymen outside of members of the firm he may put on three appentices, but no more up to thirteen men. Over a gang of thirteen men one apprentice is allowed for every four journeymen.

On the bill of prices there is an average increase of seven per cent. over the 1900 bill. As Quincy has been paying a five per cent. increase over this bill since 1903, the net increase by the new bill is an average of two per cent.

The other important matter was the length of time the new agreement should run. This was fixed for three years.

The new bill and agreement are being typewritten to-day, after which they will be signed by both committees.

The Blacksmith's bill will be taken up to-night at a joint meeting of the two committees, and it is thought that an agreement will be speedily reached.

THREE DAYS' TRIP.

A Novel Entertainment at Atlantic Tuesday Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Baker of Walker street gave an original evening's pleasure to many of their friends Tuesday evening, in the form of a parlor trip to Mt. Monadnock for three days. The guests bought their tickets with a handclasp and the first day of the journey was devoted to a trip to Troy, during which five questions were under discussion: Are men more extravagant than women? the latest book; the weather; frenzied finance, and an original topic. This interchange of conversation made the trip very interesting.

On the second day, the morning was given up to botanical search, and each traveller hunted for flowers, a prize being offered for the collector of the greatest number correctly named; in the afternoon, a mountain was climbed by strings going all over the house, each one taking a string and following it to the bitter end no matter over what obstacle it led.

The last day, everyone bought souvenirs of odd articles to carry home, the price of them ranging from one smile to twenty. Then all the guests fished—for partners—and went to a delightful picnic in the dining room which was trimmed with cut flowers and ornamented accordingly for the feasting.

Before the ex[illegible] period, there was a farewell r[illegible]ption during which there were solos by Mrs. Harry Howard Lyons of Randolph, and Mrs. Warren Hayward of Neponset; piano selections by Miss E. Mabel May of Avon and readings by Miss Sadie Gifford of Dorchester.

The trip was charming in all its details and much praise is due to the host and hostess for their originality and hospitality.

Miss Underwood Leads.

Miss Julia E. Underwood leads in the School contest to-day, and has a reserve vote of over 1000. If Quincy people continue to interest all their friends in town and out of town the chances of success are good.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Already 3000 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 5000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

Support for Miss Underwood has already been received from the High school, the Adams, the Wollaston, the Massachusetts Field and the Willard, and the other buildings are said to be gathering votes.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Maria W. Robertson, widow of Dr. Thomas S. Robertson, was found dead in bed this morning at the residence of her sister, Miss C. S. Hubbard, with whom she has made her home since the death of her husband some few years ago. Mrs. Robertson has not been in the best of health for some time. She was about Wednesday, however, and when she retired that night was apparently as well as usual. She passed away sometime during the night from heart trouble. Mrs. Robertson leaves three sisters and a brother, Miss C. S. Hubbard, Mrs. Estelle Dyer of Dorchester, Mrs. Jennie Weeks who resides in New Hampshire, and Henry Hubbard.

The death of Mrs. Robertson recalls the happy reunion of all the brothers and sisters last Thanksgiving with Miss Hubbard. The family had not all been together at one time for many years, and the gathering was one of great pleasure to all as well as one long to be remembered.

Morrison---Bertram.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of Frederick E. Goss on Hancock street, when his cousin Miss Emma Bertram of this city was married to Mr. Theodore Morrison of Northfield, Vermont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Barr, pastor of the United Presbyterian church. The bride wore a brown travelling suit. After the ceremony dainty refreshments were served. A number of relatives and friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left for their new home at Northfield, Vermont, where Mr. Morrison is engaged in business.

Drift of Opinion.

☞With significant irony French slang refers to the regalia of so called "decorative" orders as "crachats," and the proper place for a "crachat" is not on the breast of an American citizen.—New York Herald.

☞Scituate has voted for license. The margin was mighty narrow, and it is not necessarily a fact that the selectmen will heed the wishes of that slender majority. Plymouth after again trying license, has voted to oust the saloons again. Plymouth is more or less erratic along this line, but she has the right idea this year. A growing summer resort for a fine and homelike class of people, including large numbers of women and children, is not the place in which to install open saloons, with all that open saloons in a small town imply. Scituate, if it opens drinking places in May, will doubtless regret it. The only excusable place for the open barroom is in a large city, where the bar and its results are in a measure lost in the crowd. In a country villiage it is as much out of place as an elephant in a canoe.—Brockton Enterprise.

A MINISTER TO VANITY.

Men and Women and Their Attitude Toward the Mirror.

It is not always for the mere gratification of personal vanity that we should attentively study our mirrors. Socrates advised all young people to look often in their looking glass to ascertain if they were good looking; that if they were so they might strive to make their mental attainments correspond, and if they were not then they might endeavor by the superior accomplishments of their minds to make up for their personal shortcomings.

This is excellent advice for vanity possessed moderns, but it is improbable that the high mental attitude of Socrates is appreciated by them. How the elaborate toilet of today could be accomplished without the aid of the mirror it is impossible to imagine. It is popularly supposed that the mirror is the woman's pet possession, but man is by no means averse to contemplating his manly charms as reflected therein. A woman frankly confesses her interest in the alluring combination of glass and quicksilver, but the man, while voicing his scorn, proves his superior vanity by his concealed and secretive study of it. He jeers at his wife's cheval glass. But was anything more entirely provocative of human vanity ever invented than the many sided shaving glass?—London Chronicle?

A Bran Pie.

Alfonso, king of Aragon, attended by several of his courtiers, called on a jeweler to inspect some of his wares. No sooner had he left the shop than the proprietor came running after him and complained that he had been robbed of a diamond of great value. The king returned to the shop and ordered a large vessel filled with bran to be brought and placed on the counter. He then commanded each of his courtiers to insert his hand closed and then withdraw it open. He was the first to begin, and after all had had their turn he asked the jeweler to empty the vessel on the counter. By this means the diamond was recovered and nobody was disgraced.

Improvement In New York Railway Situation

CRASH ON THE ELEVATED

Green Motorman Became Nervous and Gave Passengers a Bad Shaking Up--Fifty Policemen In Rear-End Collision

New York, March 9.—A very decided improvement of traffic on the subway and elevated railroads marked the second day of the strike of the employes of the Interborough company. This was especially so on the subway, on which, by the time the evening rush hours came, express service had been established and affairs had almost resumed their normal aspect. On the elevated lines service was more irregular but continued to improve. There was practically no disorder and only a few minor accidents occurred during the day.

Officials of the Interborough company express confidence that they have the situation well in hand and that a few days will see a full resumption of service on all lines. The officials announce that they have received assurance of the intention of 50 percent of the strikers to resume work as individuals and that 40 of the old motormen have already been taken back. This is denied by President Pepper of the Amalgamated association, who declares that he can account for every one of the men who had gone on strike and that there has been no sign of dissatisfaction in the ranks.

Rumors are afloat that the strike is expected to execute a grand coup by inducing the employes in all the power houses to join them in a sympathetic strike. This would result in an immediate interruption of traffic on all lines. Officials of the company are disposed to ridicule the possibility of the power house men striking, but say that, even should they do so, the trouble will be of short duration, as the places of all could be filled within four hours.

All trains throughout the day carried three policemen, one guarding the motorman, another in the centre of the train, while the third stood upon the rear platform.

A green motorman's nervousness was responsible for an accident which interrupted traffic on the Third avenue elevated road for a short time during the afternoon and narrowly escaped being attended by fatal results. A southbound train on the Westchester branch had just swung onto the main track at 149th street at a rate of speed that almost derailed it at the switch. When the motorman caught sight of the rear of a train ahead, he clapped on the emergency brakes and began to back almost as rapidly as he had gone ahead.

The shock of the sudden stoppage hurled all the passengers forward in heaps and a minute later they were all jerked in opposite directions when the train brought up against the switch, which had been reset after the passage of the train. The rear car was derailed and thrown on its side across the track and a panic ensued among the passengers, all of whom, however, escaped unhurt and walked along the tracks to the nearest station.

In a rear-end collision at the terminal of the West Farms elevated branch of the subway last night, 50 policemen, sitting eating in two cars used as a waiting room, narrowly escaped being precipitated to the roadway 50 feet below. All of the glass in the cars was smashed to pieces, and six policemen were injured. Only 12 passengers were on the train which ran into the waiting car, and all escaped injury. The motorman said he was unable to stop the train.

Mysterious Explosion In Church

New York, March 9.—The mysterious explosion of a heating boiler in the basement of the Greenwood Baptist church, Brooklyn, instantly killed Richard Hall, 21 years old, and seriously injured Raymond Denton, 16 years old. Hall was nearly decapitated. The explosion lifted the floor three feet and blew out several large plate glass windows. The cause of the explosion is being investigated.

Standard Oil Strikes a Blow

Independence, Kan., March 9.—The Prairie Oil and Gas company, the Kansas branch of the Standard Oil company, has issued an order to the effect that hereafter no Kansas oil testing below 30 degrees gravity will be bought by the company. This affects nearly two-thirds of the Kansas production. The gravity of Kansas oil is 20 to 34 degrees, the average 28.

Hazing May Result Fatally

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 9.—Harold H. Corson, one of the two sophomore students stabbed during a haircutting hazing episode, is in a critical condition. The knife penetrated the membrane sheathing the heart. L. A. Warren, who was stabbed in the back, is also in a critical condition. One knife thrust penetrated his lungs. No arrest has been made.

Where Telegraphing Is Difficult

Washington, March 9.—A detailed report of the operations of the Alaskan telegraph system during January shows that the wireless worked uninterruptedly 107 miles across Norton sound. The land lines of 1500 miles in length had various interruptions from snow and severe storms averaging less than three hours per station.

GREAT NAVAL MAGAZINE

New England Coast to Have One In the Near Future

Boston, March 9.—About 900 acres of land situated on either side of Fore river in Plymouth county, and owned by about four score of people, has been bonded by the United States government, and as soon as possible will be purchased by the bureau of ordinance of the navy department at Washington for use as a naval magazine. The proposed magazine will cost about $1,000,000.

The bonded land is in the towns of Hingham and Weymouth, and is easily accessible both by land and water. For several years the navy department has been making efforts to secure a proper site for a great magazine somewhere along the New England coast. Last year congress gave the matter consideration and set apart a small appropriation which has been used to secure temporary title to the land and for surveying expenses.

Destroyed Naturalization Papers

Boston, March 9.—Former Representative James H. McInerney of this city was convicted in the United States district court of fraudulently destroying the record of his naturalization and was sentenced to serve one year in the house of correction. Execution of sentence was stayed pending the determination of a bill of exceptions filed by the prisoner's counsel. McInerney was released on bonds of $3000.

Police Looking For Firebug

Boston, March 9.—At the request of the officials of the Boston and Maine railroad, the state police are endeavoring to learn who, if anyone, is responsible for the destruction of thousands of dollars' worth of railroad property by repeatedly setting fire to the company's buildings in Charlestown. President Lucius Tuttle says he has no doubt that an incendiary has been at work.

Dynamite For Salvationists

Pawtucket, R. I., March 9.—In the articles which the local Salvation Army branch found among donations received by them was a package in which was carefully wrapped up a stick of dynamite. The explosive was thrown into the Blackstone river after consultation with the police. The dynamite was sent anonymously.

Child Labor Legislation

Providence, March 9.—The state senate passed to be engrossed a child labor act making the legal age limit for the employment of children 13 years until Jan. 1, 1907, when it shall become 14 years. The law does not affect children employed in domestic or agricultural pursuits. There is no educational qualification.

Suicide of Worcester Man

Worcester, Mass., March 9.—Hiram N. Fobes, 28 years old, committed suicide last night by shooting at the home of his mother. He recently had a shock of paralysis while attending Johns Hopkins university, but had partially recovered.

Struck and Killed by Slab

Sterling, Mass., March 9.—Edgar Rugg, of the firm of Rugg Bros., chair manufacturers, was killed while operating a large circular saw in their mill. A slab from a log was thrown forward by the saw, striking him in the face.

Was Frozen Up For Five Weeks

Bucksport, Me., March 9.—After an ice embargo of five weeks, navigation has oponed from Winterport to the sea. The western bay and Belfast harbor are still frozen solid, but the eastern bay is clear to the sea.

Methodist Minister Unfrocked

Atlantic City, N. J., March 9.—Rev. J. F. Cordova, the eloping minister, was unceremoniously unfrocked by the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal conference. Cordova was charged with immorality and with the desertion of his wife and family. The vote was unanimous, even the minister voting aye who came here to defend the divine.

To Investigate Contracts

Washington, March 9.—An investigation of certain contracts for twine and the Bundy time clock, which the post-office department purchased under the administration of J. M. Masten as chief clerk to the first assistant postmaster general, is being conducted under specific orders from President Roosevelt. These contracts are declared to be lacking in detail, whence the special investigation at this time.

Gas Wrecked Meeting House

Salt Lake City, March 9.—An explosion of illuminating gas in the cellar of the Mormon meeting house at Granger caused the death of one young woman and seriously injured 26 other persons, mostly young women and children. The meeting house was wrecked. The lights had gone out and a boy went into the cellar with a lamp to see what was wrong and the explosion followed.

Murderer Saved From Gallows

St. Louis, March 9.—Governor Folk has commuted the sentence of Fred Williams, a negro, sentenced to be hanged tomorrow for murder, to life imprisonment. Governor Folk says he is satisfied that if Williams had been properly defended the jury would not have imposed the extreme punishment of death.

Stanford Inquest Near Completion

Honolulu, March 9.—The inquest into the death of Mrs. Stanford will be completed by tomorrow. Sheriff Henry says he has traced the history of the bottle containing the bi-carbonate of soda since it was packed in San Francisco and he is positive poison was not put into the bottle here.

Senators Are "Doctoring" Santo Domingo Treaty

MONROE DOCTRINE GUISE

Efforts to Prevent Its Use by Other Countries Because of Precedent--Dominican Territory Might Become Part of United States

Washington, March 9.—The Santo Domingo treaty has been practically perfected by the senate committee on foreign relations, so far as phraseology is concerned, and without regard to the principles involved in the procedure proposed by the Dominican convention. The committee progressed so far that it was agreed to take a vote on the treaty this afternoon to determine whether the report will be in favor of ratification or rejection. What that report will be cannot be determined positively, although it is believed it will be favorable.

The Democrats on the committee have expressed themselves as against the treaty fundamentally, although they took an active part in the presentation and adoption of amendments. All of the amendments adopted by the committee are with a general aim of making the question covered stand alone and of removing all chance of it being used as a precedent for like procedure in other countries under guise of being required by the Monroe doctrine.

For instance, one of the first amendments strikes out that portion of the second paragraph of the preamble which has been construed as a definition and application of the Monroe doctrine to the Santo Domingo case. That part of the preamble which declares that the Dominican government is in "imminent peril and urgent menace of intervention on the part of nations whose citizens have claims" is stricken out, and the preamble left to read that the proceeding is on the ground of having debts "which burden the republic."

In the first article, which describes the character of the claims this government proposes to adjust, an amendment was adopted to include obligations "liquidated and agreed upon." This amendment is for the purpose of giving the present treaty application to the adjustments of the claims of the San Domingo Improvement company, the payment of which has already been entered on by the agreement under which the United States has taken charge of a number of customs houses under the protocol of Jan. 31, 1903.

A provision placing the employes of the United States who will be charged with carrying out the provisions of the treaty under the Dominican government was amended so as to declare that such employes shall not be subject to the civil and criminal jurisdiction of that republic.

The article which declared that the government of the United States, at the request of the Dominican government, shall grant the latter such other assistance as the former may deem proper to restore the credit, preserve the order, increase the efficiency of the civil administration and advance the material progress and welfare of the Dominican republic, was amended so as to permit the government of the United States to grant this additional assistance if it desires, but it is not bound by treaty obligation to do so.

A new article was added which provides that whatever is done under the treaty shall be binding on succeeding governments in the Dominican republic. A number of rather immaterial amendments have been adopted.

The probability of the treaty being brought up in the future as a precedent was discussed freely in the committee and it was predicted that the procedure was a forerunner of what may be expected to take place in regard to Venezuela. It was declared, too, that this government may have to take over the Santo Domingo country as territory of the United States. In that connection an amendment will be offered in the senate striking out that part of the preamble whereby the United States agrees to respect the complete integrity of the Dominican republic. This amendment was suggested in the committee, but was regarded as against the policy of the government and this, it is believed, will be the judgment of the senate. At the same time it was pointed out that Santo Domingo lies between the United States and Porto Rico, and that the government as now constituted is a bad neighbor.

Discussion of the Santo Domingo treaty in executive session of the senate was complicated by a protest submitted by Senator Teller from members of the Haytien and Dominican colonies in Europe. It was dated in Paris and was directed against the protocol which was negotiated immediately prior to the present protocol, but never was submitted to the senate. It is asserted by the protestants that President Morales of the Dominican republic is a dictator and, by entering into this agreement with the United States, is indirectly attempting to cede to the United States territory which he fears he cannot hold.

The two pretty American girls had met two delightful Englishmen on the way across and had given a cordial invitation, warmly seconded by their mother, to Sir Charles and his friend to visit them at their country home.

One day a message came saying the two men would arrive that afternoon. The family was thrown into a fever of excitement, and many plans of entertainment for their guests were suggested and abandoned. It was finally decided that, as Englishmen are notoriously fond of a "tub" and their guests were coming directly from the train, they should first be invited to take a bath. After that the hostess would rely on the inspiration of the moment.

The young men arrived promptly and after some demurring were hurried off to the bathroom. In about an hour they emerged and went immediatly to their hostess, saying, "We are sorry to leave so soon, but we only came to make a call, and our train leaves in fifteen minutes."—Lippincott's.

Rice Eaters and Wheat Eaters.

Some writer once classified the population of the world into two groups—the rice eaters and the wheat eaters. With rice goes fish, and with wheat goes meat. Chemical analysis shows that each of these combinations forms a perfect diet, embracing all the necessary food elements. But, while the wheat and meat diet requires an elaborate and expensive preparation to make it ready for use, the rice and fish diet is cheap and simple. It needs no slaughter houses, mills or bakeries, with dozens of other adjunctive factories. Fish and rice can be prepared for food by the simplest processes within fifteen minutes after they are brought to the pot. And so the rice eaters are able to live on a few pennies a day and yet thrive and become big and populous nations.—Kansas City Journal.

For People of Thirty.

"If you reach the age of thirty without having had any serious illness you will be likely to live till seventy or more," said a physician. "All the old folk I know reached thirty without any alarming maladies scored against them.

"From thirty on all you need do is to be careful, to observe a few simple rules of health. I should say that these rules are simple and good:

"Eat fruit at breakfast and at luncheon.

"Avoid pastry, muffins, hot bread and buttered toast.

"Eat potatoes only once a day.

"Do not drink tea or coffee.

"Sleep eight hours."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

REVERSE TO RUSSIAN ARMS

Kuropatkin's Army Is Once More on the Run

A RETREAT NORTHWARD

Japanese Thundering at Gates of Mukden, Which Russians Are Prepared to Evacuate--Not Improbable That They Will Be Cut Off In the Race For Tie Pass--Threatened on Both Flanks, the Left Wing Being Entangled In Mountainous Region--Japanese Utterly Reckless to Sacrifices--Enormous Losses on Both Sides

St. Petersburg, March 9.—The battle of Mukden has resulted in a Russian defeat. Field Marshal Oyama has once more proved himself one of the greatest masters of offensive strategy since Napoleon, while General Kuropatkin is now engaged in endeavoring to defend his title as a master of successful retreats and bring off his army, with its immense train, safely to Tie pass, where a position was long ago prepared with this contingency in view.

The problem before the Russian commander-in-chief is much more difficult than the one he met successfully at Liaoyang, since now he is threatened on both flanks, his left wing being entangled in a mountainous region far from the railroad.

General Kuropatkin yesterday abandoned positions south and southwest of Mukden, burning such of his supplies as he could not carry with him. The Japanese artillery is thundering at the very gates of Mukden, which position the Russians still hold, but which they are admittedly prepared to evacuate, changing their base to Tie pass, which is 40 miles north of Mukden. So far as the retreat has progressed it has been orderly.

What the Japanese may have in store for the defeated army on its retirement northward remains to be disclosed. There are reports that General [illegible] pass.

The retirement unquestionably cost the Russians dear in the matter of supplies and heavy guns. Neither commanders nor correspondents have yet ventured to estimate the number killed or wounded in the 11 days of fighting. The Russian casualties in the fighting Tuesday on the left flank are admitted to have been fully 7000.

Only to the initiated is the news of the reverse positively known at this time. Emperor Nicholas and high military officers were of course informed by Kuropatkin's telegram of Tuesday, stating tersely that Mukden must be abandoned, and they received details of the beginning of the withdrawal as they appeared in excised portions of the official dispatches given out yesterday.

Last evening a newspaper contained a vague report of doubtful origin, credited to Chinese sources, but the first positive statement was derived from a press dispatch from General Kuroki's headquarters, the contents of which was quickly telegraphed to many Liberals from friends abroad. The report was not printed in this morning's papers, the government, true to its policy of breaking bad news gently, only preparing the way by authorizing the publication of a number of premonitory telegrams. The news, however, is only what was expected, ultimate retirement having been discounted from the moment Oyama inaugurated his brilliant move westward.

It is known by the press that Kuropatkin contemplated retiring before the beginning of the battle, and that he had hoped to accomplish it without serious combat. The Japanese, however, forced him to accept battle. The double turning movement compelled him to send the major part of his reserves to the fighting line, rendering an effective counter stroke out of the question, and the decision to retire was immediately taken on March 6. Withdrawal was actually begun during the night.

The great question now, and the one over which the general staff burned its lights late into the night, is whether Field Marshal Oyama has entangled the Russians in his strategic net sufficiently to prevent a successful retreat to Tie pass. General Rennenkampff's force, to the eastward, admittedly is in great danger of being cut off, and a considerable force of Japanese appears to be operating on the Russian right well toward Tie pass. If the Japanese succeed in reaching the railroad and interrupting traffic, if only for a few hours, it may have the greatest consequences for Kuropatkin, who is now engaged in a literal race with the Japanese to reach a naturally defensible position 40 miles northward. Thus far he has stood off all attacks directly against the flanks of his army, and holds the way of retreat open. He undoubtedly was forced to abandon a number of siege guns in his Shakhe positions.

All reports indicate that the Japanese were utterly reckless of sacrifices, making attack after attack against machine guns and infantry fire which literally mowed down the advancing columns, making human flesh so cheap that the survivors could bastion themselves behind piles of corpses.

After this action Kuropatkin's deposition may be regarded as certain. A strong faction of the army, those high in influence about the czar, opposed Kuropatkin from the first, and though his early defeats were condoned because it was realized that Kuropatkin was doing all that man could do with the tools at his command, it is now felt that after twice having had the opportunity to show what he could do with a powerful army, and having failed to accomplish victory either time, his removal is advisable. A high military official said last night that the emperor had had enough of a general whose interpretation of victory was a successful retreat.

Where Knropatkin Is "Lame"

St. Petersburg, March 9.—A general who has just returned from the front says that General Kuropatkin's faults as commander-in-chief are due to his bureaucratic training and his desire to keep all the reins in his own hands. Instead of relying on the judgment of the army commanders to carry out his general orders, he made of them simply orderlies for the transmission of specific orders to individual units and kept constantly before him a map showing the location not only of the corps, but of the brigades and regiments, and undertook to control the movement of every unit. "The genius of Napoleon," the general referred to added, "could not accomplish the task Kuropatkin set himself."

Russia May Desire Peace

London, March 9.—No confirmation has reached London of the report that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron is returning from Madagascar to Jibutil. Should the report concerning Rojestvensky be confirmed, it will be regarded here as a strong indication of Russia's desire to arrange terms of peace with Japan.

Russia Orders Shrapnel Shells

London, March 9.—The Times' Paris correspondent telegraphs that the Russian government has placed an order with a French firm for 80,000 three-inch shrapnel shells.

President Entertains Cowboys

Washington, March 9.—Captain Bullock and his company of cowboys, whose picturesque appearance was a feature of the inauguration day parade, were given a reception last night by President Roosevelt. They remained at the White House for an hour having an informal chat and a smoke with the president. The reception was the outcome of the presentation by the cowboys to Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., of one of the ponies they brought with them. With the pony also went a complete outfit.

Anarchy In the Caucasus

London, March 9.—Anarchy and open defiance of the authorities, according to The Daily Mail's correspondent at Batoum, is spreading in the western Caucasus. The situation is so serious that an expeditionary force has been mobilized to enter the disaffected districts of Georgia. The Georgians threaten that the first shot will be the signal of a revolution. Foreigners are threatened with death if they act in opposition to the revolutionary committee.

Loss of Home Caused Suicide

Lexington, Ky., March 9.—Macajah Brook, 80 years old, blew out his brains because the trustees of the Baptist church at East Hickman had notified him that he would have to surrender the parsonage building to a new minister. Brook had been living in the parsonage for a number of years.

Presidential Plum For Democrat

Washington, March 9.—It is stated that President Roosevelt has tendered the office of United States district attorney for the northern district of Georgia to former Representative Tate of Georgia. Tate is a Democrat. The office is now held by E. A. Angier, Republican.

Spanish Coat of Arms Preferred

San Juan, P. R., March 9.—The legislature has adopted the coat of arms used under the Spanish regime, replacing the one adopted by the first legislature under American civil government. The bill failed in the executive council, but was reconsidered and passed.

Died From Fractured Skull

New York, March 9.—The police are investigating the death of Michael McGrath, a well known horseman, who died last evening from a fracture of the base of the skull. The police and McGrath's friends are of the opinion that he came to his death by violence.

Cabinet Complications

London, March 9.—It is rumored that Mr. Long and others have declined the post of chief secretary for Ireland and that fresh troubles have arisen in the war office which it is not unlikely will involve the resignation of Secretary Forster.

Porte Dislikes Salvationists

Jerusalem, March 9.—General Booth of the Salvation Army has arrived here. He intends to hold a series of meetings. The porte has directed the local authorities to prohibit Turkish subjects from attending these meetings.

AIDED MRS CHADWICK

Oberlin Bank Gave Her Checks When She Had No Deposits

Cleveland, March 9.—The case of the government against Mrs. Chadwick was completed yesterday afternoon. One witness for the defense, an expert accountant, was sworn, but an adjournment was taken before he had given any testimony.

The most important point made by the state in its entire case was gained when District Attorney Sullivan secured the admission as evidence of two drafts, aggregating $80,000, issued by the Oberlin bank in favor of Mrs. Chadwick, Aug. 24, 1903. On this same date Mrs. Chadwick obtained from the bank a certified check for $12,500 and Receiver Lyon testified that there was nothing on the books of the bank to show that, at the time of receiving the drafts and the checks, Mrs. Chadwick had a cent of money in the bank or was in any way entitled to credit. The drafts were entered on the books of the bank one month and five days after being issued. During this time the books of the Oberlin bank showed that the money was held to its credit at the Importers and Traders' National bank in New York, while it was, in reality, in the possession of Mrs. Chadwick.

The defense objected to the introduction of the drafts as evidence, on the ground that they were not mentioned in the indictment for conspiracy of which Mrs. Chadwick is being tried. The district attorney contended that the drafts and the check were part of the conspiracy between Beckwith, Spear and Mrs. Chadwick, and refated to the same transaction. The decision of Judge Tayler was in favor of the government, and the drafts were admitted.

Colorado's Gubernatorial Muddle

Denver, March 9.—Proceedings in the joint convention of the general assembly indicate a deadlock in the gubernatorial contest. Twenty-two Republicans have joined forces with the Democrats on a test vote, and these Republicans have agreed to stand together in favor of seating Lieutenant Governor McDonald as governor. There are 44 other Republicans that can be depended on to vote for Peabody, the contestor. This is five less than a majority. The Democratic vote of 31 will be cast solidly for Governor Adams.

Overcharges Run Rather High

Topeka, March 9.—During the year ending June 30, 1904, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company paid back to shippers $1,198,352 as overcharges. This fact was developed in the examination before the attorney general, who is taking depositions in the case he has instituted to ascertain whether or not the Santa Fe is violating the anti-trust law of Kansas. It will be the aim of the state to show that these overcharges are in reality rebates to the Standard Oil company and other big corporations.

Tried to Poison Family

Lynchburg, Va., March 9.—Mrs. Sallie M. Hanna, who administered poison to a family of six persons, because the family had given shelter to the husband of the prisoner, from whom she had run away, waived trial by jury and threw herself on the mercy of the court. The judge took the matter under advisement.

Fainted During Discussion

Paris, March 9.—During the discussion in the chamber of deputies of the budget, Daudry D'Asson, while protesting, admidst constant interruptions, against the government's anti-clerical policy, fainted and had to be carried from the house. The budget was adopted by a vote of 488 against 47.

American Admiral Dies Abroad

Lancaster, Pa., March 9.—A cablegram received here announces the death at Lausanne of Rear Admiral Edwin S. Houston, U. S. N., retired, aged 60. He was a native of this city. Admiral Houston had recently been residing in Washington and was sojourning in Switzerland for his health.

Demands of Russians

Paris, March 9.—The Tribune Russe publishes the text of a resolution which it is said is being extensively signed in the rural communities in Russia, demanding the nationalization of land and industries, liberty of the press, a representative parliament, universal suffrage and the immediate cessation of the war.

The Missouri Deadlock

Jefferson City, Mo., March 9.—At a caucus of the Republican members of the house it was decided to fix the date of the sine die adjournment of the legislature for March 31. It is believed the announcement of this date will have the effect of settling the senatorial deadlock.

More Beef Trust Subpoenas

Chicago, March 9.—Twenty additional subponeas for witnesses in the special grand jury investigation of the so-called beef trust were sent out yesterday. Subpoenas will be issued at intervals until March 20. About 225 subpoenas have already been served.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The date of the pope's next consistory has been fixed for March 27.

The Pygmy Hippopotamus.

One of the animals least known to the outside world is the pygmy hippopotamus of west Africa. It is just what its name implies, a pygmy hippopotamus. It is much smaller than the common hippopotamus, being no larger than an ordinary or fair sized hog. It differs somewhat from the common hippo in the character of its teeth, and instead of spending its time in the rivers and lakes in large herds it wanders about through the jungles singly or in pairs, much after the manner of swine in search of mast.

Healthy Mentality.

A large, healthy, normal mind will see the good in another much more quickly than the evil, but a narrow, belittling mind has an eye only for faults, for the unlovely and the crooked. The clear, the beautiful, the true and the magnanimous are too large for its vision. It delights in tearing down or destroying, but it is incapable of upbuilding.—London Answers.

The Ready Repartee.

"This book"— began the agent who had pushed his way into the office.

"Don't want it!" snapped the busy merchant. "I wish I knew some sure way to keep you fellows out of here."

Ambitious.

"Do you think, professor," inquired the musically ambitious youth, "that I can ever do anything with my voice?"

"Well," was the cautious reply, "it may come in handy in case of fire."

The Start of the Row.

Dorothy—Say, auntie, is religion something to wear? Aunt Julia—My dear, why do you ask such foolish questions? Dorothy—'Cause papa said you used your religion for a cloak.

An Open Question.

An advertiser asks, "Has the man grown or the flannel shirt shrunk?" That depends upon which of them was washed.

Climate and Politics.

The climate of Australia is the chief factor in fashioning Australian politics. If it is advanced it is because the sun there has forced an early development. Girls here reach maturity two or three years earlier than in America, and countries count by generations. Meanwhile perpetual summer and continual sunlight are sapping individual energies. Even the American who comes here soon finds that sustained hustling is a physical impossibility. Let him spend three or four years in the country, and he will cease to wonder at the laws for an eight hour day and the early closing of shops. The winter is only another summer—cooler, it is true, but not cold enough to be invigorating.—Burriss Graham in Booklover's Magazine.

Sarcastic.

A North Carolina lawyer was trying a case before a jury, being counsel for the prisoner, a man charged with making "mountain dew." The judge was very hard on him, and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The lawyer moved for a new trial. The judge denied the motion and remarked, "The court and the jury think the prisoner a knave and a fool." After a moment's silence the lawyer answered: "The prisoner wishes me to say that he is perfectly satisfied. He has been tried by a court and a jury of his peers."

At the fourth annual indoor meet at Hartford, Conn., last month, in which Amherst won the college cup from Trinity, Thayer came in third in the mile run, his time being 5 minutes, 2 seconds.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucinda Perry was held this morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Hodgkinson of Bigelow street. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. N. Hardy and two hymns were sung by Mrs. E. E. Miller and Mrs. Ernest Fitts. There were several beautiful floral tributes. The body was taken to her old home in Maine for interment.

The Quincy Women's club reached its limit of 300 at ten o'clock Tuesday morning and all names received by Mrs. Marsh, the corresponding secretary, since then have been put on the waiting list in the order received. If any fail to qualify by not paying the annual dues before May the waiting list will be considered. It is also probable that the by-law concerning the limit will be amended at an early date.

A GREAT ANNOYANCE

[Original.]

Herbert Chandler and William Bruce met for the first time in years at Norfolk, Va. Chandler was a bachelor of thirty-five. Bruce was a married man of forty who had left his family at Point Comfort and come down on the boat for the day. The two friends talked over times they had spent together as boys and mutually agreed that in the future they would not again lose sight of each other.

"What can we do to bring ourselves together occasionally?" asked Chandler.

"Don't know," replied Bruce. "Perhaps something will turn up."

By the next mail after their separation Chandler received a letter from his friend, in which, among other things, he said: "We are much worried about Joe's health. I recommend a trip to the south, but at present neither my wife nor I can go. Indeed we must leave here for the north within a few days."

To this Chandler replied that he had chartered a schooner and with a few friends was going for a cruise to Florida. He would be very glad to take Joe along. He would sail from Virginia Beach on the following afternoon.

To this a reply came in the shape of a telegram that Joe would arrive at Norfolk the next day by the morning boat in charge of the captain. Chandler, who was busy getting stores aboard, sent one of his crew to the boat to meet the boy, with orders to bring him by rail to the beach.

All was ready on the schooner, and Chandler was impatiently waiting the arrival of the boat with Joe. Presently he saw the boat coming, and, to his astonishment, in the stern sat a girl. She was apparently about eighteen years old.

"What in the name of conscience"—began Chandler and stopped.

The boat came alongside, and the girl stepped on the gangway, ran up the stairs and met Chandler on the deck with a pleasant smile. If she was an invalid, she was not conscious of the fact.

"I'm Joe," she said.

"Joe?" exclaimed the astonished man.

"Why, yes. Wasn't it all arranged between you and father?"

"My dear young lady, there has been a mistake. I supposed you were a boy. You'll have to go back. We are all men on board this schooner."

Joe began to cry. "How can I get back? I've no one to take me."

"Confound it!" muttered the host. "What are we going to do? I must sail at once or break into all my plans. Besides, I have no one to send with you. Did your father suppose there were to be ladies in the party?"

"Perhaps. Please don't send me back. I don't mind the absence of other ladies if you don't."

Chandler's friends were three plain men of business who were interested with him in a riprap contract, and he was going with them to Florida to lay plans for the work. He put them in forward rooms and gave up his own cabin to Miss Josephine Chandler, taking one amidships himself.

Now, it is a very different cruise a lot of men will make cooped up in a small vessel having a woman aboard from what it would be without her. Every man looked annoyed. The moment Miss Josephine knew that she would be permitted to remain she was braced by the novelty of the situation and was in high spirits. She seemed either unconscious that she was unwelcome or didn't mind if she was.

Instead of maintaining a dignified reserve she was all over the ship, asking questions about the compass, the anchor, the captain, the ropes, and at one time when no one was very near her she ran up the ratlines, chattering and laughing like a monkey. The schooner was rolling considerably, and before she could be got down she lost her grip and was overboard. The steersman brought the ship about. Chandler plunged in and held the girl above water till they were dragged on board, she laughing as if she considered the affair very funny.

But gradually Joe came to be considered something unique. Bittersweet perhaps is the best word to explain how she was regarded. She was always in the way, but somehow the men liked to have her in the way, though none of them would admit it. They would heap no end of abuse upon her when out of earshot, but obey her slightest wish when present. As for Chandler, from feeling disgruntled at her presence he first came to tolerate her, and by the time they reached the Florida coast he would have considered the vessel a desolate abode without her.

The investigation that had brought the party south was over, and the schooner's prow was turned northward, but Miss Josephine, happening to come on deck at the time and being told that they were going home, put down her foot, declaring that she should not go home. Chandler, instead of ignoring her wishes, consulted with his friends, but they declined to interfere. The result was that the schooner now was turned about and sailed for New Orleans. On reaching that port Chandler left the schooner with his charge and, fortunately meeting with a married lady going north, determined to send Joe with her. Next he concluded he would go home by rail himself, and when he handed Miss Bruce over to her father he said:

"The 'something to bring us together' has occurred." And he forthwith laid his fortune and himself at Miss Bruce's disposal.

All the larger firms of champagne makers at Reims use only the juice from the first pressing of the grape for champagne.

The juice is taken in barrels to the cellars and poured into large vats. The wine remains in these vats from October until January, when the mixing takes place. This mixture is called the cuvee, and it stands again until April or June, when the great operation of filling the bottles takes place.

First, the bottles are thoroughly tested and well cleaned. Then the long pipes are extended to the bottles from the mighty vats that hold the cuvee, and as the bottles are filled, corked and wired they are lowered in baskets to the caves below, where they are stacked.

These bottles are now left from one to two years, when they are put in small racks, necks downward, and for two or three months each bottle is given daily a gentle little shake by an experienced workman. In this way the sediment is brought gradually to the cork and the wine becomes perfectly clear.

One man can shake about 30,000 bottles in a day. Upon the expertness of the shakers depends in large measure the quality of the wine.—Philadelphia North American.

EUGENIE'S ESCAPE.

As soon as the hot headed citizens of Paris learned in September, 1870, that their emperor, Napoleon III., had surrendered to the Prussians at Sedan these Parisians rose in a riotous mob and made posthaste for the Tuileries. They were armed and after royal blood and plunder. The empress had to flee for her life. Assisted by the Austrian and Italian ministers, she made a hurried flight from the palace, but found the mob ahead of her in the garden, back again and then out by a secret way into a side street, where they entered a carriage. A street gamin recognized the empress here, but the shouting of the mob was so great that the boy's cry of warning was not heeded.

Once the carriage was stopped by a mob, but the party alighted and managed to escape. Finding themselves near the residence of Dr. Evans, the American dentist, they took refuge there, and the doctor took upon himself the responsibility of Empress Eugenie's safety. The empress put on a dress belonging to Mrs. Evans and, with Mme. Breton, her friend, was driven by Dr. Evans to the suburbs. Dr. Evans explained that the women were a patient and her attendant whom he was taking to a sanitarium. Two days later the fugitives reached a coast town, whence they escaped to England.

Teeth and Temperament.

"I don't suppose many people stop to think that the formation of their teeth is an indication of their temperament," said a dentist the other day.

"Did you ever see a person with long, narrow teeth who had not a very nervous, high strung temperament? Did you ever see a person with short, broad teeth who was not somewhat phlegmatic and cheerful? I often wonder when the pretty girl opens her mouth to show her ivory white teeth if she realizes that some of us are sizing up her disposition.

"I unconsciously fall into the habit of looking at the teeth of the people I meet socially and choosing my acquaintances accordingly. That is one of the reasons why false teeth ought to be made exactly like the original set. They have to fit the temperament of the wearer."—Philadelphia Record.

First Jewelry Store.

It may interest women to know that the first jewelry store was started in the city of Changon about 3,000 years ago. The Celestial millionaires of that period knew nothing of the fascination of diamonds, because diamonds were not in vogue at that B. C. period.

Pearls and jade and coral and other unpolished mineral substances had to content them, and as if to make good the glitter of rivieres and tiaras the princesses of Changon employed artisans to fashion them the most wonderful gold and silver ornaments, which in themselves were far more costly than diamonds.—Boston Herald.

Books and Their Making.

"At present the American people are divided into two classes," said the head of a well known publishing house in New York, "those who forget to read and those who read to forget. A book was formerly a thing put aside to be read, but now it is a thing read to be put aside. I am not sure which is the better both for us bookmakers and the public, but it is certainly a fact that bookmaking is now a manufacture, while it used to be a science."

Pick the Winner.

Once on a time two youths were suitors for the hand of a good, beautiful, sensible, bright, tactful, candid, soulful, womanly girl.

One youth made love.

The other made money.

A Sure Remedy.

Mother—Have you told Olga that if she insists on marrying that lieutenant who is so deep in debt you won't give her a penny? Father—No; I guess I will tell the lieutenant instead. That will be more effective.—Fliegende Blatter.

The Yellow Holly

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey.

CHAPTER XI.

UNDER the rule of Miss Bull—for Margery was a mere figurehead—the house in Amelia square was much more lively, but in spite of the air which certainly pervaded the house all things were very proper. Miss Bull was a lady and saw that things were kept decent. The boarders feared her bright black eyes and her sharp tongue and were always glad when she retired to her sitting room. But Miss Bull was also liked, as she was a very affable hostess. Margery was now, as ever, her docile slave, and Miss Bull governed with a rod of iron.

Among the new boarders Miss Bull took most notice of Bawdsey, who occupied the rooms formerly inhabited by Train. On his arrival he had asked particularly for these rooms, saying that he had once lived in them when he stopped with Mrs. Jersey many years before. After some thought Miss Bull remembered the man. He had boarded in the house and had been a great favorite with madame, but had later gone to America and for some time had remained away. He expressed the greatest sorrow for the death of the old lady, but declared that he was very pleased with the house as managed by Miss Bull. The little woman liked him, as his conversation was amusing and he was most polite, but had she known that he was a private detective she might not have approved of him so much.

What Bawdsey was she never inquired, as she was the least curious of women. His habits were certainly eccentric, for sometimes he would remain away for a week and at other times would stop constantly in the house. He often remained in bed for the day and had his meals brought to him. This he called his bed cure and stated that he suffered from nerves. He told Miss Bull quite gratuitously that he had a small income. "I am simple in my tastes," said Mr. Bawdsey, "and what I have keeps me in luxury. But a man even of my age must be up and doing. Better to wear out than rust out."

Miss Bull assented. She liked to hear Bawdsey tell of his travels, and frequently asked him into her sitting room for that purpose. He seemed to have been everywhere and to have seen everything. It appeared from his own confession that he began his travels at the early age of seventeen, when he went to Milan. And the man talked freely about himself—so freely that Miss Bull, in spite of her suspicious nature, never dreamed that all this chatter was for the purpose of throwing dust in her sharp eyes.

A week after the little dinner at Mrs. Ward's, Bawdsey sent a note to Brendon asking him to call on a certain afternoon, and when George, anxious to continue the acquaintance and curious to know how Bawdsey had procured his address, arrived, he was shown up to the well known room. Bawdsey welcomed him with enthusiasm and much in the same style as Lola did, but in a less theatrical manner.

"My preserver!" said Bawdsey, shaking hands vigorously, and George laughed.

"You put me in mind of a lady I know," he said. "She uses the same term—quite unnecessarily, as it happens."

"I don't agree with you," answered Bawdsey, to the astonishment of his visitor. "When a woman is rescued from starvation she has a right to call her good Samaritan the best of names."

"Oh," said Brendon, taking a seat, "so Lola has told you."

Bawdsey nodded. "I guess so," said he, with a pronounced American twang—somewhat too pronounced, George thought. "She told me all about your visit the other night."

"Did she never speak of me before?"

"Why, of course she spoke. I tell you, sir, that the girl is just bubbling over with gratitude."

"Yet you said when last we met that she meant me harm."

"Jealousy, Mr. Brendon, sheer jealousy. I heard her talking of you and wishing to marry you. You see, I love her."

"So she told me."

"Quite so, and she informed me that she had informed you. Well, I was a trifle jealous, as I'd lay down my life to make that lady Mrs. Bawdsey. But when I learned that you admired and were almost engaged to Miss Ward"—

"You seem to know a great deal about me," said Brendon, nettled.

"I made it my business to find out, sir."

George looked at him helplessly. He found it difficult to understand what all this meant. "Of course I know, from what Lola said, that you are a private detective," he remarked, with hesitation.

"Vidocq & Co.," said Bawdsey briskly, "23 Augusta street, Strand. That's me, Mr. Brendon, but you needn't mention it in this shanty."

"Will you answer a few questions, Mr. Bawdsey?" asked George.

"Yes. Fire ahead."

"You are a private detective?" asked George.

"That's so. Vidocq & Co.—an attractive title, I guess."

"And you were employed by Lola to watch me?"

"I was. Love will do anything for the object of its affections."

"Humph! There are different ways of looking at that. But you were also engaged by Lord Derrington to watch me?"

Bawdsey did not display the least surprise. "That's very creditable to your observation, Mr. Brendon. It's true."

"How did Lord Derrington find out that I was passing under the name of George Brendon?"

"Well, sir, if you will shove advertisements into the paper asking about the celebration of the marriage of Percy Vane and Miss Rosina Lockwood you must expect to be dropped upon."

"And you looked me up?"

"Quite so. I have had you under observation for the last six months. Any more questions, sir?"

"Only one," replied George. "Will you tell me exactly what you are doing here?"

"Certainly. You shall have the whole story, Mr. Brendon, but in the first place I shall ask you a question in my turn. Do you know why I asked you to come and see me today?"

Brendon shook his head. "I have not the least idea," he confessed.

"I'll enlighten you," was the other man's reply. "To warn you that you are in danger of arrest."

"I in danger of arrest?" George jumped up. "What do you mean?"

"Oh, my meaning is clear enough. There is a chance that you may be accused of having murdered Mrs. Jersey."

George dropped back into his chair with a white face. "You must be mad to say such a thing. Who accuses me?"

"Lord Derrington."

"On what grounds?"

"On certain information he obtained from Mrs. Ward. She is your bitter enemy. You see, Mr. Brendon, it is not her game that you should marry the daughter. Mrs. Ward knows that you are a clever man with a will of your own and that she will not be able to twist you around her finger, which is what she wishes to do with any son-in-law who may come her way. She will stick at nothing to get you out of the way."

"My preserver!"

"But she doesn't know that I claim to be Lord Derrington's grandson?"

"Indeed, she does," replied Bawdsey quickly. "Derrington told her all about it."

"Why?"

"Now, that," said Bawdsey, shaking his head and looking puzzled, "is one of the things I can't make out."

George thought for a moment. "I was at Mrs. Ward's the other evening," he said slowly. "Lord Derrington was there. Did he know then that I was his grandson?"

"He did. He has known ever since you put the advertisement in the paper and I looked you up."

"And Mrs. Ward knew also who I was?"

Bawdsey nodded. "Yes. And after that evening she came to see Lord Derrington to suggest how you should be got rid of."

"Ah!" George was now perfectly cool as he saw that Bawdsey, being so frank, was ready to be his friend. "And how did she propose to do that, Mr. Bawdsey? By having me arrested"—

"With the alternative that you should give up all attempts to prove your birth and go to Australia."

"And surrender my claim to Miss Ward's hand?"

"Was Lord Derrington agreeable to this suggestion?"

"Yes. He hates you and told me to see you and put the matter to you. You have a week to think over it, and at the end of that time, Mr. Brendon, if you don't leave England you will be arrested."

KUROPATKIN'S FORCES ARE DOOMED.

NINETY MILES OF BATTLE LINE

Troops Along Its Entire Length Constantly Exposed

JAPS NORTH OF MUKDEN

Combat Now Reaching Point Where It Is a Question of Strength, Energy and Cartridges--Oyama Promises Fall of Russian Base of Supplies Today--Greatest Battle In the Worlds History Bids Fair to End In World's Greatest Mill-[illegible] Disaster.

London, March 10.—[illegible] yesterday [illegible] Russians. Fu pass, 12 miles [illegible] ward, on the Hun river, a vital point for General Kuropatkin in the retreat of his eastern wing, was bombarded by the Japanese for an hour early in the day, Russian artillery replying vigorously.

The outcome at this point seems to be in doubt. A wind storm of hurricane fury was in progress during the day. No reports from the commander-[illegible] Wednesday have [illegible] so much for the Russian army, is seriously threatened, if, indeed, it has not already been cut.

The evacuation of the Shakhe position involved several hundred miles of field and overland railways and telegraphs, enormous defensive works, Red Cross supplies, towns, fuel and forage stores, the latter of which it was necessary to burn. The military roads covered 500 square miles. The smoke of battle and fires are everywhere obscuring the lines and it is almost impossible to longer distinguish the conflagrations.

Only sunlight and the mildness of the weather prevents indescribable suffering among the wounded and the supports and reserves, who are obliged to dig deep on the wide, shelterless plain, and lie widely extended in order to escape the shrapnel which is sown broadcast for 15 miles on the west of Mukden, while all the troops on nearly 90 miles of battle line are constantly exposed.

Midnight closed the 10th day of the titanic struggle for the possession of Mukden and the mastery of a vast empire, the 10th day of unceasing conflict under exploding shrapnel, the roar of cannon and the whistling of bullets; the 10th day of succeeding sleepless nights and foodless days. The combat is fast reaching a point where it is a question not so much of turning columns, of tactics and of strategy, as of whose strength, energy and cartridges will last the longer.

Gray-coated Russians, patient, uncomplaining, strong of soul, clung doggedly to positions against an enemy whose attacks go to the very point of insanity and desperation. For 48 hours the Japanese have not eaten. They are starving and exhausted, but Field Marshal Oyama himself has told them that the city will fall and the slaughter stop today, and their confidence in their leader has increased their strength ten fold.

In the opinion of English military critics Kuropatkin's forces are doomed to complete disaster. Careful study of all the avenues of possible escape, and the dispositions of the victorious Japanese armies, leads to the conclusion that the best he can hope for is to save a mere remnant of his army after sacrificing whole divisions to slaughter.

Much importance is attached to General Kwamura's mysterious unlocated army, which is momentarily expected to complete the closing of the net around the defeated host by appearing somewhere in the extreme east, in the neighborhood of Yingfan, thus blocking the sole remaining route from Yingfan to Tie pass through Wankiakou pass.

The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial article well reflecting the general opinion here, says: "The greatest battle in the world's history promises to end in the world's greatest military disaster. Even if Kuropatkin succeeds in snatching half his host from the terrible ring of fire how can Russia hope to send out another army to replenish his ranks? The sword is being wrested from Russia's fumbling hands. Kuropatkin's disastrous defeat ought to mean the end of the war unless the czar's blindness is incurable and he waits for further sledge hammer blows to fall, inevitable as those of fate."

The correspondent at Tokio of The Daily Telegraph says on official authority that fully 200,000 Russians are enveloped, and he hears that Russia's central army is almost annihilated.

In the lobby of the house of commons last night it was rumored that General Kuropatkin had asked for an armistice, but the report could not be traced to any reliable source.

According to the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph a telegram from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky not yet published states that four of his warships are incapacitated for firing because they are too heavily armed, and that the problem of coaling has become so difficult that he feared he would be unable to proceed to the far east.

No further news has reached London concerning Rojestvensky's squadron, but reports are current at Dover that all the ships of the Baltic fleet have been ordered to return to the English channel pending further instructions.

THE BIG PARADE

Grand Inaugural Pageant at Washington

As Seen by John Evans of Quincy.

Great Enthusiasm, and Many Amusing Incidents.

Washington, March 6, 1905.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I promised your readers a little account of the biggest and most enthusiastic inaugural procession in the history of our country.

For nearly four hours last Saturday afternoon Pennsylvania avenue was the stage upon which was bent the vision of all the people of all the United States.

The wide thoroughfare, crowded by multitudes of eager watchers, was the scene of a pageant which in many respects surpassed any the United States has ever known. Men from all parts of the country, and its farthermost possessions, marched by the President's stand, inspired by music from hundred bands.

The horses pranced proudly beneath the weight of patriots, and above all the noises rang the huzzas and shouts of acclaim to Theodore Roosevelt.

There were in the line of march the sons of Maine, the men of Porto Rico, the troops of Florida and the scouts from the Philippines.

When the cadets from West Point and Annapolis passed, I thought that they could not be beaten in the world, and that we can hold our own against any nation. Then I couldn't help thinking that war is hell, when such a noble band of young men, would have to face another in battle.

The cowboys on their ponies, clothed in their rough way, went wild with devotion to the man who has always loved the life of the frontier, and throughout the whole line of march from the West Point and Annapolis Cadets to coal miners from Pittsburg, there was the same enthusiasm.

There were military bands, brass bands and fife and drum corps. One band as it passed the Peace monument, struck up Dixie, just where I stood. I could not understand for a moment what was up, for instantly, the immense crowd was wild. Men threw their canes into the air, women waved their handkerchiefs to shreds, boys yelled, and old men beat the ground with their canes, I never saw such enthusiasm. You can explain it for yourselves, I myself, instantly interpreted it, for I joined heartily.

The cowboys created a great deal of interest. They made only pretense of keeping in line and flirted with every girl that looked twice at them. Especial opportunities were afforded the westerners when they were brought to a temporary halt. The boys made the most of their chance and waved their sombreros at any and every pretty girl in sight.

It was due to the suggestion of one of these same girls that a negro, clad in Prince Albert and high hat, found a rope around his neck and himself being dragged toward the middle of the avenue. He had been lassoed by one of the cowboys. Once released the negro lost no time in disappearing.

I heard a great shout, "Here comes the Japs." But when they came nearer we found they were not Japs, but Filipinos and Porto Ricans. The little brown men of whom one has heard so much in the fighting in the jungles of the far Philippines, in uniform distinctive from that worn by Uncle Sam's regulars, had the appearance to belong elsewhere. They looked very much like the Mikado's infantry and after their training they look every one of their few inches, efficient soldiers.

One thing that I took notice of was, that out of the many bands present, not one of them played "Marching through Georgia."

The crowd on the President's stand, however, stood up and took off their hats when "America" was played by the Burgess band of Albany.

John Evans.

GATES ORDERED.

Will Soon Be Located at Saville Street Crossing.

Gates will probably be in position at the Saville street grade crossing within a few days. Councilman Stone, chairman of the special committee of the City Council on Railroads, had a conference on Thursday with T. E. Byrnes, assistant to President Mellen of the New York and New Haven.

The subject of gates at this crossing was brought up, and Mr. Byrnes immediately issued the order to have them put in.

When the new summer timetable is issued in May, all stations in Quincy will have better service than ever before.

New I. O. O. F. Hall.

Past Grand Charles H. Wood and suite composed of members of Mt. Wollaston lodge, attended the dedication of the new Odd Fellows' hall at South Weymouth on Thursday evening. Fully 400 Odd Fellows were present, representing all the surrounding towns. Grand Master Fuller with the assistance of the other grand officers dedicated the large and handsome new hall, which is richly furnished. The entertainment also included addresses and selections by a quartette and reader.

LABOR RECORD.

Rather an Eventful Year for Quincy.

No Prolonged Strikes However.

Report of the State Bureau of Statistics.

Part 3 of the annual report of the Bureau on Statistics of Labor for the year ending Sept. 30, 1904, issued today, contains much of interest to labor unions and others, relative to strikes and lockouts, wages and hours of labor, trade unions, industrial changes, workingmen's benefits, etc.

The new labor laws of Massachusetts passed in 1904 are found in the appendix.

STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS.

In November, about 90 heater boys employed at the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., struck, alleging that poor quality of coal was furnished them; in two days, returned to work without concessions.

From April 18 to April 22 a general strike was inaugurated at the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., involving about 2,600 employees; certain men struck because of the summer schedule of hours, they being requested to work 55 hours a week instead of 54, with pay for extra hour and with Saturday half-holiday; the men alleged that it was an attempt on the part of the company to return to the 10-hour day schedule.

Within one week, many of the men had returned to work; at a conference of interested parties to the controversy, the company suggested that if the men would return to work immediately on the 55-hour basis, it would submit to arbitration the question of whether or not the proposed hours were unfair in comparison with those of its competitors in the same line of business; on May 2, it was reported that about 1,200 men were at work; one week later, the business men of Quincy petitioned the Fore River Ship & Engine Co. to grant conference with strikers, claiming that nearly a thousand men had left Quincy on account of the strike and that this had perceptibly hurt business; strikers gradually returned to work.

On May 25, representatives of Boiler Makers Union held conference and agreed to return to work on 55-hour basis for Summer and 54-hour schedule in the Fall; about 800 boiler makers and helpers returned on May 27, 80 drillers and tappers having returned to work the day previous; the shipwrights and caulkers remained out until June 3 when they also voted to return.

WAGES AND HOURS.

Since the formation of Shipwrights, Joiners, and Caulkers No. 68 the nine-hour day has been in force in that craft, the hours being from 7 to 12 A. M., and 1 to 5 P. M., Saturday included.

TRADE UNIONS.

In January, Shipwrights, Joiners, and Caulkers No. 68 organized and affiliated with international body.

February—Steam Engineers No. 79 established sick benefit fund allowing members $5 a week for 13 weeks; in May, reported that about 90 percent of local engineers were affiliated with the union.

April—Union of Italian lumpers and laborers was organized.

September—Street Railway Employees No. 253, after joint conference with Union No. 235 of Brockton in regard to the recognition of union and other grievances on the Old Colony Street Railway, decided, after receiving an unsatisfactory communication from the officials of the road, to hold strike action in abeyance.

INDUSTRIAL CHANGES.

Fore River Ship & Engine Co. added submarine torpedo boats to its product; plant sold to reorganization committee; in September, reorganized company incorporated as Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

July—Merry Mount Granite Co. increased capital from $15,000 to $35,000.

INCORPORATED.

In July the Translucent Fabric Co., a private firm, was incorporated under Massachusetts laws with an authorized capital of $10,000, to manufacture translucent fabric, glass, etc.

In September the Fore River Shipbuilding was reorganized under Massachusetts laws, with an authorized capital of $4,800,000. With one exception this was the largest corporation chartered in Massachusetts during the year.

EXTRA

MASS MEETING

Is Called by Unions for Saturday.

Blacksmiths' Conference Tonight.

Progress Being Made on Bill of Prices.

The Granite Manufacturers' and Blacksmiths' committee met Thursday evening to settle the differences between the two bodies. The meeting was a long one and it was nearly 11 o'clock before an adjournment was reached.

An agreement had not been reached at that time, but another meeting was called for this evening at 7 o'clock, and it is believed that an agreement will be reached today.

A mass meeting of the cutters, blacksmiths and tool-sharpeners' unions has been called for Saturday at the Celiseum to ratify the work of the committee, so that work in the yards may be resumed Monday.

Silver Service for Galveston.

The new United States cruiser Galveston, recently completed and placed in commission at the Norfolk Navy Yard, will sail from Norfolk next Wednesday for Galveston, Texas, to receive a silver service to be presented by the citizens of Galveston. Upon her return the cruiser will have her "free route" trial trip over the measured course off Newbort, R. I.

Vaudeville Tomorrow.

Extra Cars to Steamer.

The hours for the inspection of the Steamer Providence on Sunday have been limited from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. The only entrance will be from Washington street near the Quincy Point bridge, via pontoon bridge. Extra cars will be run on Washington street every few minutes.

Working Man's Opportunity.

TO Get a Home at one-half its value. One two family house, $2,100; rent for one side enough to pay taxes and interest. You can live in the other side, rent free. Also half of a house at Wollaston, six rooms, near schools, churches and depot. A chance of a life time, $1400. Come and see me and get full particulars.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The five new express trains each way to be added to the Quincy and Boston service next Monday are sure to be popular. They are at hours when they will be appreciated, and also very quick trains. Two of the new trains to Boston will make the run in fifteen minutes and the other three in sixteen minutes. The new trains will be found in the revised schedule published in today's paper. A new express train from Boston about 11 P. M. would make the schedule almost perfect, and it will probably be added soon.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Commissioner Garfield's report that the alleged beef trust did not exist and that if it did exist it never made any money, runs up against the obvious fact that the men who control the the meat business of this country give every evidence of possessing large wealth. it may be true that they have been misrepresented when they have been charged with making mammoth profits out of the neccessities of the people; but it is sufficiently clear that they have come into the control of both money and power in large degree. Conclusions drawn from the evidence may not be strictly logical; they are, however, drawn.—New Bedford Standard.

☞A verdict has been set aside because one of the jurors had a record of 36 convictions. How such a man could get on the jury list is one of the wonders of town or city politics. Judge Bell has decided that in a case where a non-union man brings suit for breach of contract against an employer who was forced by the labor element to discharge him, no member of a trade union can sit upon the jury. Under this ruling two members of the panel were excused from jury duty. The jury system is under observation just now to a greater extent than usual, and reforms are being instituted that have long been needed,—Lynn Item.

☞The business prestige to be derived by Provincetown by building the Pilgrim monument appeals to many, and especially to those who consider every subject from a pecuniary point of view. With the Pilgrim monument at the "tip end," Provincetown will at once become a star feature with the tourists. They will at once get out their maps, locate the place, observe that the first landing place of the Pilgrims was at this point, and upbraid the publisher of the guide book if he does not include it in the entourage, acknowledging their own stupidity at not observing before that their history mentioned the fact. With the building of the monument will come the tourist in re-inforced numbers. The souvenir vender will take due notice, the railroads will observe the increase in travel and Provincetown, whose praises have been sung for three generations as the hospitable home of many representative Cape Codders, will gain importance and affluence and the world at last will believe that history was told in truth when it recorded the first landing and signing of the social compact in Provincetown harbor.—Yarmouth Register.

Carnegie Is Eliminated From the Chadwick Trial

MOTION BY THE DEFENSE

Asked That the Case Be Taken From Jury and Verdict of Acquittal Directed--Court Refuses to Do So

Cleveland, March 10.—Andrew Carnegie is now definitely out of the present trial of Mrs. Chadwick. If she should be acquitted this time, Mr. Carnegie might appear at a subsequent trial, but as far as the existing case is concerned, his pay as a witness is waiting for him and he is at liberty to go home.

United States Marshal Chandler made out a check for $64.40 to Carnegie's order, and it is held in the marshal's office pending Carnegie's call for it. If he does not call, it will be mailed to him.

The defense made a determined effort yesterday to have the case taken from the jury, and a verdict of acquittal rendered by the court. After arguments lasting through the greater part of the day Judge Tayler, just prior to the afternoon adjournment, overruled the motion. The defense also attacked two counts of the indictment, and asked that certain parts of the testimony offered by the government be stricken out.

An admission from the judge that he did not regard the two counts as "good" was the extent of the satisfaction secured by the defense. The acquittal of the defendant was asked on the ground that the indictment charged her with conspiring to commit an offense against the United States, in that she conspired with Beckwith and Spear to certify, illegally, checks of the Oberlin bank.

It was claimed by the attorneys for the defense that Mrs. Chadwick, not being an officer of the bank, could not certify checks, and that she could not be charged under the law with conspiring to commit an offense in conjunction with others, which she had not the power to commit alone.

"Now let me get at this," said Judge Tayler. "Suppose a married woman conspired with a married man to marry that man to another woman, thus contracting a bigamous marriage. It is impossible for the woman conspiring to marry the other woman. Do you therefore claim that she could not be punished for conspiracy to commit bigamy, because it was impossible for her, in that particular case, to commit bigamy herself?"

"That is exactly my contention," replied Judge Wing, counsel for Mrs. Chadwick.

Mrs. Chadwick's counsel also asked that the letters submitted Wednesday, in which Mrs. Chadwick sought to make arrangements for the certification of checks, when she had no money in the bank, and as a result of which one check was certified several days before it was signed by Mrs. Chadwick, be taken from the testimony. It was argued that, although Mrs. Chadwick had written them, there was no evidence in the case to show that she had ever mailed them; nothing to show that they had been received by Beckwith or Spear, or had influenced them in any way.

Judge Tayler in deciding the motion, asking the removal of the case from the jury, declared that under a decision of the court of appeals, in a somewhat similar case, the motion was therefore overruled. The letters, Judge Tayler said, were competent evidence. There was nothing in the case to show that they had ever been received by Spear or Beckwith, but they were, however, statements made by the prisoner and he would allow them to remain, declaring that he would in his charge instruct the jury concerning them. It is probable that the case will be given to the jury this evening. If the arguments are not finished, however, the case will go over until Monday.

School Suffered $150,000 Damage

Philadelphia, March 10.—The new boys' high school here, considered one of the finest structures of the Norman type in the country, and built and furnished at a cost of more than $1,500,000, was damaged by fire and water to the extent of about $150,000. The fire began after all the classes had been dismissed and was caused by defective electric wiring.

Crusade of Purification

Jackson, Miss., March 10.—Governor Vardaman has issued a strong address to the peace officers of the state, declaring that the situation in Mississippi is becoming critical, that crime is rampant in all quarters of the commonwealth, and urging officers at once to begin a crusade to clean out the dives and haunts of criminals.

Havoc Wrought by Plague

Calcutta, March 10.—The deaths from the plague in India last week numbered 34,000. The infection recently spread to Burmah, where it is making rapid strides. This season of the year always favors a spread. The deaths are said to be 90 percent of those infected.

Woman Poisoner Sent to Prison

Lynchburg, Va., March 10.—Mrs. Sallie M. Hanna, who confessed to poisoning six persons here and waived trial by jury, was sentenced to five years in the state prison.

"AGGIES" STILL OUT

Must Resume Studies by March 16 or Be Expelled

Amherst, Mass., March 10.—The senior class at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, the 27 members of which have recently remained away from the classrooms as a result of the suspension for misbehavior of three members of the class, have been notified by the faculty that unless studies are resumed by March 16 all will be expelled. In the notice sent to the senior class no reference was made to the three students who were suspended.

The trouble between the faculty and senior class arose over a disturbance in a classroom, following which three seniors were suspended. The class, claiming that all of its members were equally guilty, demanded that the suspended students be reinstated. This was refused and the class left their studies. A few days later the local alumni persuaded the class to return and also to make public apology. At this time, the seniors claim, it was their understanding that the suspended men were to be immediately reinstated. The failure of the faculty to reinstate the three seniors caused the class to again desert their work.

Murder Suspect Arrested

Hyde Park, Mass., March 10.—Hyde Park police have arrested Guiseppi Sabatino on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Alfonso Tull in Readville last Saturday. Sabatino is 45 years of age and lives near the railroad, where the murder occurred. He has had no regular occupation for some time and has been under surveillance for several days. Tull was killed by a blow from an axe while in a freight car.

Alleged Political Corruption

Hartford, March 10.—Rev. Newman Smyth, D. D., informed the judiciary committee of the general assembly, which is considering a corrupt practices bill, that, after careful investigation, he had found that in the last campaign "money met money at the caucuses in considerably more than 100 of the 168 towns of the state." He figured that the total sum used might have reached $150,000.

Murder Remains a Mystery

Montpelier, Vt., March 10.—On recommendation of Attorney General Fitts and State Attorney Jackson, Judge Munson ordered that the charge of murder against Charles Corey of Worcester be nolle prossed. Corey was charged with having murdered Charles McLaen on the evening of March 12, 1904. Suspicion is now not directed toward anyone and the murder of McLaen remains a mystery.

Plea of Self Defense

Bridgeport, Conn., March 10.—Paul H. Schmidt, aged 18, who is on trial, charged with the murder of William Taylor, went on the witness stand and gave a clear recital of the events of the day of the tragedy, declaring that he shot Taylor in self-defense during a quarrel for the possession of a gun which Taylor had taken from the house on the farm where both men were employed.

Long-Felt Want Supplied

Rutland, Vt., March 10.—It is believed that the back of one of the severest winters experienced in Vermont in many years has been broken by the thaw of the past two days, which has opened the streams and put an end to the water famine. The mild conditions began with a warm rain and the melting snow swelled the brooks and rivers as not for months.

Bryan Won't Get the $50,000

Hartford, March 10.—In a decision handed down by the supreme court, the judgment of the superior court, in declaring that the sealed letter in the Philo S. Bennett will containing a bequest of $50,000 to William J. Bryan is not a part of the Bennett will, is upheld. The case went up on Bryan's appeal from the superior court decision.

Child Upset a Lamp

Bangor, Me., March 10.—The youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O. Torrey was burned to death last night. While asleep it rolled from a couch, upsetting a lighted lamp on the floor and setting its clothes on fire. Although quickly seized by an older sister, the little one lived but an hour, being badly burned about the face and body.

Vessels In Ice Field

Provincetown, Mass., March 10.—The great ice field which has been growing steadily for months at the head of Barnstable bay broke away yesterday and, moving before a strong southerly breeze, swept into Provincetown harbor, blocking it completely, and capturing five coasting fishermen and one coasting schooner.

Soldier's Record Considered

Rutland, Vt., March 10.—In consideration of distinguished army service in the Philippines, John D. Salisbury was given the minimum sentence for counterfeiting by Judge Wheeler in the district court at Brattleboro and will serve eight months in the house of correction in this city.

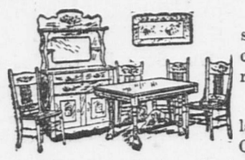

Peasants Burning and Looting

London, March 10.—A dispatch from Kieff to The Daily Mail says that an army of 300 peasants from the Orlovka district is advancing southwesterly. Burning and looting of estates is in progress. Eighteen estates have already been sacked. A strong military force has been sent to suppress the rising.

Police Official Fatally Shot

Warsaw, March 10.—One of the assistant commissioners of the police was fatally shot last night by an unknown assailant, who escaped.

DOMINGO TREATY

Senate Committee Reports It as Amended

LONG DEBATE EXPECTED

Republicans Need Votes of Democrats to Carry the Measure--New Form Gains Favor of Some Former Opponents

Washington, March 10.—The Santo Domingan fight has begun in the senate. It promises to be the most determined waged over any treaty since that which concluded peace with Spain, involving the acquisition of the Philippines. It was voted out of committee by a strict party vote, with every member of the foreign relations committee present. If this means unbroken party lines in the senate, or any close approach to it, the treaty is doomed to defeat.

The Republican leaders fell reasonably sure of holding their own ranks solidly. Senator Hale of Maine, the one most commonly quoted in opposition, is said to be satisfied with the instrument in its amended form. How many Democrats can be brought over by the arguments which will be presented remains to be seen. Rayner of Maryland is said to be awaiting evidence that this country was genuinely invited by a real government of the Santo Domingo republic to accept this task. Republican leaders assert that if this is all he desires, his vote should ultimately be on their side.

Several far western Democratic senators profess to be waiting to hear the arguments. There has been considerable talk of a Democratic caucus to hold the party in line, but so much opposition has developed to this course that the proposal may be abandoned.

The older senators realize that few treaties could ever be ratified again, while the constitution lasts, and the party system survives, were all the minority party to follow a caucus majority. The great Republican argument in the debate will be: "What do you propose to do, in defeating this treaty?" Can we object to German warships going into Santo Domingo, and proceeding as they please, short of territorial acquisition, if we kill this compact?"

The Democrats realize that they must go before the country eventually and that it might be embarrassing to take the record of defeating this treaty unless they ... sure that they have the necessary strength to succeed. Ordinarily, the closed doors of an executive session do not stimulate senatorial oratory, but in the present contest there will be many reasons for extended discussion. The Republicans expect to make votes by explaining their plans.

The belief is general that the amendments made in committee to the treaty have disarmed much of the opposition which would otherwise have shown itself.

The treaty as submitted contained no provision binding the claimants to accept any award that our tribunal might make. There was no provision in the original instrument that the foreign claimants should come through their respective governments, and backed by them. Without such a stipulation there would be nothing to interfere with an individual claimant's getting what he could directly, and then appear to his government to take up the case.

Now, it will be made clear that our adjudication of a claim makes an end to all litigation, as well as protecting the United States government against claims of those, here and abroad, who might be dissatisfied with our action. These changes strengthen the treaty without vitiating the essentials of the president's plan. They make it a better treaty, in the opinion of the Republican leaders, as well as an easier one to ratify.

Investigating Alien Conditions

Washington, March 10.—Secretary Metcalf has appointed Richard K. Campbell, law officer of the bureau of immigration, as a member of the department commission to investigate the general subject of the naturalization of aliens with a view to recommending changes in existing laws and regulations on the subject.

Seal Hunters Set Sail

St. Johns, March 10.—Ten of the 22 ships comprising the sealing fleet left here yesterday afternoon and several followed today. They are bound for various ports along the northern coast, the owners fearing that the 4000 seal hunters in vessels would strike for higher wages if the ships remained here any longer.

Kirkman's Resignation Declined

Washington, March 10.—Secretary Taft has declined to accept the resignation of Captain Kirkman, Twenty-Fifth infantry, now under trial by court martial at Fort Niobrara, Neb., on charges of scandalous conduct. Additional charges of a serious character have been filed against Kirkman.

Seven Killed In Colliery Accident

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 10.—While seven men were being hoisted in the carriage in the Clear Spring colliery at West Pittston the rope broke and the men were hurled to the bottom, a distance of 250 feet. All were killed.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivaled by Human Hair When Dandruff Is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. NINETY MILES OF BATTLE LINE

Preparing For Today's Fight

Mukden, March 10.—Uneasily slept Mukden last night. In the main street lamps burned dimly. Along dark roads in heavy dust were marching columns. The cool night was full of the low rustle of movement. Near the station, in over-filled hospitals, are heard low groans. The wounded arrive in a never-ceasing stream of carts, and another stream of ambulances moves northward, for the place must be cleared for today's victims. The eternal pines whisper above the tombs of Chinese emperors. In the fields watch-fires are burning. The sky is lighted with the glare of burning stores and evacuated villages. The forces are gathering for today's fight.

Poland's Love For Russia

Warsaw, March 10.—A report which reached Warsaw that Mukden had fallen was received with ill-concealed pleasure. The newspapers wished to publish the report, but were peremptorily forbidden by the censor to do so. It was quickly circulated, however, and was the subject of almost jubilant comment.

St Petersburg In the Dark

St. Petersburg, March 10.—St. Petersburg knows little more of the outcome of the battle of Mukden than it knew Wednesday night and little more of the fate of Kuropatkin's beaten army. It is not even known whether the railroad has been cut and communications destroyed.

Dogger Bank Incident Closed

London, March 10.—Count Benkendorff, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, has paid $325,000 to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne in settlement of the North sea claims, and the incident is thus closed.

Detectives Want to See Women

Honolulu, March 10.—The fact that Bertha Berner and May Hunt, secretary and maid respectively to the late Mrs. Jane L. Stanford, will not leave Honolulu on the steamer China today, is due to police instructions to the two women. Attorney General Andrews suggested that they should not be allowed to leave before the arrival of the

To Test Foxhounds' Ability

Richmond, March 10.—The controversy as to the relative merits of English and American foxhounds has resolved itself into a wager between H. W. Smith of Worcester, Mass., who has laid $1000 even that his Grafton pack of American foxhounds can rouse and catch more foxes in a day than the English foxhounds of the Middlesex hunt, of which A. H. Higginson of Boston is master. Higginson has accepted the wager made by the master of Grafton. The trials will take place in Loudon county, this state.

A Possible Exposition Scandal

Washington, March 10.—Charges of scandal are made in the affairs of the St. Louis Exposition company. Senator Carter, who has resigned his place as chairman of the government commission, says it is claimed that through the failure of the exposition company to fairly describe the property for sale a profit of more than $1,000,000 was given to the favored bidders, which would involve a loss to the United States of one-third of that sum.

New Cruiser In Commission

Philadelphia, March 10.—The cruiser Pennsylvania, built by the Cramp Shipbuilding company of this city, was officially turned over to the United States government at the League Island navy yard. There was no formality. A receipt was given for the cruiser and the American flag was flung to the breeze.

Six Shots For Governor

St. Petersburg, March 10.—Colonel Progoulbitsky, governor of the province of Kutais, was the object of an attempted assassination by two men at Sukhum. Six shots were fired at the governor, but he was not struck. The motive of the attempt is believed to have been political.

Halt In Gubernatorial Contest

STRIKE UNAUTHORIZED

Declaration of Head of Union to Which Motormen Belong

New York, March 10.—The most interesting development in the subway and elevated railway strike situation in New York was the stand taken by some of the national labor leaders in repudiating the action of the local leaders, who ordered and are conducting the strike.

The first intimation the public had that the strike was not endorsed by the national unions came in a statement from Grand Chief Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, to which the motormen belong. Mr. Stone insisted that the strike was a violation of the laws of the national union, the men having broken their contract with the Interborough company. He ordered the men to report for duty, failing which, expulsion from the organization is threatened.

The executive committee of the joint bodies of the Amalgamated and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, after a meeting last night, issued a statement denying that Stone had ordered the men to return to work and adding that the strikers would fight until they won. President Pepper and Messrs. Jencks and Madden, the latter secretary of the engineers, supplemented the committee's statement with attacks on Stone, declaring that the local unions were quite independent of the national union in this matter.

W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated association, took practically the same stand as Stone. The strike, he said, was declared against his advice, for in addition to the demands for better conditions, the document presented to the company contained the endorsement of the local division of engineers (motormen) which violated the agreement that organization had with the company.

Early last evening several of the old subway motormen were found in charge of their regular trains, and admitted that they had taken Stone's advice.

The service in the subway was almost perfect. On the elevated lines the service was not so good.

Death of Senator Bate

Washington, March 10.—United States Senator William Brimage Bate of Tennessee, twice governor of his state, a veteran of both the Mexican and Civil wars, rising from private to major general in the latter, and for 18 years a conspicuous member of the upper house of congress, died at his hotel apartments here, aged 78. Death was due to pneumonia and defective heart. Senator Bate attended the inauguration ceremonies on March 4, and his death is believed to be [illegible]

...apsed to Heathenism

Huntington, Ind., March 10.—The executive committee of the missionary board of the United Brethren in Christ has dropped from the rolls of the church Daniel F. Wilberforce, a native African who was brought to this country as a child, and after being educated was returned by the board to his old tribe as a missionary. After a service of 25 years as a missionary, the negro minister has been lured back to heathenism, has become chief of his old tribe of devil-worshippers and has contracted plural marriages in the wilds of Africa.

British Cabinet Still Shaky

London, March 10.—Walter H. Long, president of the local government board, has accepted the office of chief secretary for Ireland. It is still possible, however, that a hitch may occur, as it is stated that War Secretary Forster, who is dissatisfied with the constant criticism of his work, has determined to resign, in which case Mr. Balfour may be obliged to have recourse to a re-shuffling of the cabinet seats.

Recovering From War Strain

London, March 10.—The reduction of the bank rate to 2½ percent, the lowest in seven years, is the subject of intense satisfaction, as expressed in most of the newspapers, as showing that the country at last is recovering from the strain imposed by the South African war.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Wilkie Collins' Fat Villain.

Here is a story that was told by Hall Caine concerning Wilkie Collins: "The most successful character in 'The Woman In White' was not a woman, but a man—Fosco, the fat villain. When the book was produced everybody was talking about the fat villain. While the author was staying with his mother a visitor came. The lady said to Collins:

"'You seem to have made a great success with your villain in "The Woman In White." I have read the book. I have studied this villain, but he is not half a villain. You don't know a real villain, and the next time you want to do a villain come to me. I am very close to one. I have got one constantly in my eye—in fact, it is my own husband!'

"Wilkie Collins often told this story, but withheld the name of the lady. It was the wife of Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton."

The Long Eared Bat.

The long eared bat puts itself to bed in wraps not only of its own wings, but supplemented by the folding of its own enormous ears. This little British mammal, the body of which is only two inches long from the tip of the nose to the base of the tail, has the largest ears, in proportion to its size, of any animal in the world. They are an inch and a half long and three-quarters of an inch broad, and when their owner proposes to go to sleep it bends them outward and then backward, folding them down on either side of its head and shoulders before bringing up the wings to cover its sides. When waking up it is quite a business for the little bat to get its tall ears straightened out and into position again. They remain for some time at "half cock" and then are gradually set up and erected to serve the animal while awake.—London Nature.

The Expression "Great Scott!"

Correspondents of the London Academy have been discussing the origin of the American expression "Great Scott!" One thought it arose in some obscure way from the name of General Winfield Scott. Another writes: "Surely the connection of this with General Winfield Scott, mentioned by your correspondent, is doubtful—probably a mere volksetomologie or story invented to account for a word not otherwise understood. Russell's 'Current Americanisms' merely defines it as a 'euphemistic oath of no great force and very uncertain origin.' He must have been acquainted with the Winfield Scott story and (as he is elsewhere very hospitable to fancy derivations) must have had reasons for rejecting this one, but it is odd that he did not record the fairly obvious corruption of the German 'Gruss Gott!'"

Warlike, but Polite.

Ernest Vedel, a Paris literary man, was once a lieutenant in the French navy. At one time he commanded a small warship charged with the duty of preventing the entrance of foreign vessels into a Siamese harbor. A Scandinavian ship, with a Siamese commodore who called himself Armand Duplessis de Richelieu, attempted to enter by the alleged authorization of the French minister at Bangkok. M. Vede wrote a note in these terms: "If you don't desist, I shall open fire." Then he learnt that Mme. Richelieu was with her husband, and he tied the note to a magnificent bouquet. The commodore with the illustrious name desisted and thanked the polite lieutenant profusely for the flowers.

Gray Eyes and Lovelight.

There are no finer eyes in the world than those clear gray eyes of Quaker gray that now and then we see in some good woman's face. Somehow or other they fill you with a vague desire to pray. They are the eyes that shine with lovelight (a beautiful old word), the light of an exceeding kindness for all living things.

The green iris has had a bad reputation. Shakespeare speaks of eyes "green as leeks" and jealousy as a "green eyed monster." A person with green eyes is often stigmatized as "cat eyed" and is supposed to possess all a cat's purring and ingratiating insinuation.—Brown Book.

A Scotch Transaction.

A highlander who sold brooms went into a barber shop in Glasgow to get shaved. The barber bought one of his brooms and after having shaved him asked the price of it. "Twopence," said the highlander. "No, no," said the other. "I will give you a penny, and if that does not satisfy you take your broom again." The highlander took it and asked what he had to pay. "A penny," said the barber. "I will gie you a bawbee, and if that doesn't satisfy you pit on my beard again."—London Tatler.

The Schemers.

"Don't you sometimes think that you are too much attached to money?"

"No," answered Dustin Stax. "If you knew all the schemes to pry a man loose from it you'd realize that he has to be closely attached."—Washington Star.

Experience or Reminiscence.

The Author's Wife—How can you write an up to date sea story when you haven't been on the water for years? The Author—Well, I've been married for twenty years, and yet I can write a love story.—Life.

The Bitter End.

A pupil in one of the New York public schools was asked to write a sentence containing the words "bitter end." He turned in the following: "A dog chased a cat and bitter end."

Without the Silence.

Snacks—Did your wife's mother treat you with silent scorn? Jacks—No such luck; she just treated me with scorn.

THE END OF IT

[Copyright, 1904, by Richard B. Shelton.]

Vandyne stood very stiff and straight, with folded arms. Outlined against the background of dull sky and gray water his figure seemed almost heroic. Despite his clothes of conventional cut, there was something suggestive of the bronze age about him—some hint of rugged, primitive strength. Miss Desboro realized suddenly that the mask of conventional restraint had been thrown aside and that there stood before her all of the rugged, primitive man that lay beneath that mask.

A moment ago she had been inclined to laugh. Now there was a strange sensation tugging at her heart, but whether it was pity or fear she could not tell. This was the stage of the game she generally found most enjoyable—this climax, where she always expressed her surprise and sorrow and bound up the wounded heart with the balm of good sisterly advice. She had particularly enjoyed the anticipation of giving this sisterly advice to Vandyne, but somehow the realization bade fair to fall short of the anticipation. Vandyne's eyes seemed to search the secret corners of her soul, and beneath that calm, stony scrutiny she was stunned and helpless. She seemed to feel rather than hear Vandyne's deep voice saying, with quiet bitterness:

"I congratulate you, Miss Desboro. I have seen the game before, but never played like this. You have thoroughly mastered all its fine points."

She looked up with an appealing glance. That same appealing glance had saved the situation for her many times before this. But for once it failed. The primitive man before her was unmoved by its eloquence.

"Do you think you are quite fair to me?" she asked, with an attempt at hauteur that fell pathetically flat.

Vandyne smiled slowly. "Do you think you have been fair to me?" he said.

The girl pulled her gloves nervously. "I don't know what you call fair," she said. "You grasp at straws. You take possibilities for certainties."

Vandyne laughed harshly. "In other words, I have made the ghastly mistake of thinking you imbued with all the qualities of the perfect woman, when in reality you are a heartless trifler."

The girl sprang to her feet, her eyes ablaze.

"You are going too far, Mr. Vandyne!" she said heatedly. "You are saying things quite beyond bounds of courtesy or—or decency!"

Vandyne was unmoved by the outburst. He looked at her with a calm that was almost contemptuous.

"I am not speaking with the intention of being courteous or decent. I am simply stating the truth as I see it. If it hurts, I am sorry, but you deserve it."

The girl flushed.

No man had ever before spoken to her in this fashion, but beneath her anger was a wholesome respect for the courage and candor of the man.

"Of course you have the right to say all this," she said bitterly.

"You have given me the right," he returned.

"Oh, it's always the girl's fault, of course," she said. "A man mistakes her motives, and then she must suffer for his mistakes."

"Motives, I think you'll admit, are rather hard to understand sometimes," said he.

The girl turned from him. "I am going back to the house," she said. "I had hoped we might be friends; but, since we can't, perhaps it's best not to try."

She started to walk away, but Vandyne's voice stopped her.

"Wait a moment," he said curtly. "You shall hear a few things I have to say before you leave."

She turned. "Well?" she asked wearily.

"I want to say that it is such women as you that make misogynists—women who lead men on to laugh at them and make sport of them." He paused.

"Is that all?" she asked coldly.

"I have known little, very little, of women in my life," he went on, "and I have always placed them mentally in a shrine as something holy and sacred. Perhaps I should thank you for undeceiving me."

She turned away again. Vandyne could not see the tears in her eyes.

"It's an ill wind that blows no good," he went on cruelly. "At least you have taught me that what seems to be and what is are very different matters. That is all. Permit me to congratulate you again, and—goodby."

He turned on his heel and strode down the bank toward the water. The sound of unrestrained sobbing made him turn back. The girl was standing quite still, with her hands over her eyes. He hurried up the bank and stood before her, repentant and helpless before her stormy grief.

"Good Lord!" he gasped contritely. "What have I done?"

"You—you have made me love you; that's what you've done," she sobbed.

And the bronze man suddenly became very human.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. Minnie Sturgis has returned home to Cotuit after a pleasant visit with relatives in this city.

The W. R. C. sewing circle and executive committee will meet at the home of Mrs. Ann Wright on Saturday afternoon.

The regular weekly prayer meeting will be held at the Point church this evening. All are cordially invited to be present.

Albert Behrend, formerly of this city, is now located at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He is enjoying the western life exceedingly.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jenness of Quincy and Dr. and Mrs. Fred Towle of Rye, New Hampshire, have gone on a six weeks' trip through the South.

Readers of the Daily Ledger will enjoy to-day the Washington letter of John Evans, and will be eager for No. 3, which will tell of the Inaugural ball.

The regular meeting of W. R. C. will be held at G. A. R. hall Tuesday, March 14 in the afternoon. Supper will be served in the evening at 6, after which whist will be played.

Mrs. Ida Paine Humphrey has the sympathy of her many friends and pupils. Her aged father fell on the ice, near Elm street one day this week, and broke his hip. He was removed to the Quincy hospital.

The Wollaston Yacht club began rehearsals at the clubhouse Thursday evening for their annual minstrel show which will be given April 27. If the club does as well as last year the public will be satisfied, for it was a big show.

"An inventory of life" will be Rev. C. H. Emmons subject at the Universalist church Sunday morning, and Rev. Dr. Harmon will preach in the evening on "God in our life. Dr. Harmon is professor of New Testament at Tuf's Divinity school.

The Boston Transcript says there appears to be some possibility that the government may take unto itself considerable property at Hull now owned by Miss Floretta Vining, widely known as a property holder and club woman. Her holdings in Hull are large.

The funeral of the late George Connor was held Wednesday morning from his old home on South street. The floral tributes were many and included set pieces and bouquets. The services were largely attended. The burial was at West Quincy.

There were seven tables of whist at Mrs. Porterfield's Thursday afternoon and the souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. William Westland, Mrs. Phelan, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. J. Young, Mrs. W. Pratt, Mrs. I. Davidson, Mrs. J. Robertson, Mrs. M. Thomas, Mrs. Wilscher and Mrs. Annie Hobart.

Death of Veteran.

The flag on the Coddington school building is at half mast today out of respect to Elijah S. Brown, for many years the janitor of the building, who died at his home 607 Washington street this morning, aged 70 years. Mr. Brown has been ailing with heart trouble for some months, although his death was unexpected.

Mr. Brown was a carpenter by trade which he followed for many years. At the time of the Civil war he was in California and promptly enlisted in Co. A of the 5th California Volontrer infantry. He returned to Quincy at the close of the war and has resided here ever since. He was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. and leaves a widow.

THE NEW LODGE

Commandery of Knights of Malta Instituted.

George H. Jacques the Commander.

Starts With a Membership of Sixty-five.

John Adams Commandery, No. 355, Ancient and Illustrious Order Knights of Malta, was publicly instituted and its officers installed Thursday evening at Greenleaf hall. There were a large number present including many women.

Among prominent members of the order were Grand Recorder Frank K. Hayden and Past Supreme Commander John W. Hicks. Representatives were also present from commanderies at Brockton, Whitman, Attleboro, Dorchester, Boston, Somerville, Medford, Hyde Park, Worcester and Chelsea.

Grand Commander Vedeto of South Framingham opened the exercises and with full staff of grand officers instituted the commandery. The commandery was then turned over to the installing staff, who installed the following officers:

Commander,—George H. Jacques.
Generalissmo,—Rufus W. Billings.
Captain General,—Alfred C. Smith.
Prelate,—John D. Mackay.
Recorder,—B. Russell McQuinn.
Treasurer,—Horace A. Feltis.
Senior Warden,—Henry R. Askew.
Junior Warden,—H. G. Johnson.
Warder,—Samuel Muirhead.
Sentinel,—Robert B. Muirhead.
Assistant Recorder,—Noah Cummings,
Standard Bearer,—Harry L. Ford.
Sword Bearer,—Carl J. Johnson.
First Guard,—Charles W. Chute.
Trustees,—James W. Murray, Dr. W. J. Middleton and Richard Newcomb.

The new commandery starts off with a membership of 65. This number, it is expected will be swelled to 100 by March 23, on which date the Red Cross and Sepulchre degrees will be worked in full form.

Surprise Party.

The residence of Arthur Picard of Trafford street, South Quincy, was visited Thursday evening by twenty of the young friends of Miss Blanche Picard. All were made welcome by Mrs. Picard and very soon made themselves at home. Songs and games followed. A collation was served. Then Miss Margaret Raleigh stepped forward and very prettily presented Miss Blanche with a gold chain and cross. The hostess was so overcome she could only say thank you. Then followed the dressing of the new woman and Miss Mary McDonald took first prize for girls and Master Norman Souter the first for boys. Master James Walsh took the booby.

Painters Organized.

District Organizer F. J. Kneeland met thirty or more painters in this city Thursday evening and reorganized local 633. These officers were elected: President, Andrew Mischler; vice-president, Charles Kimball; treasurer, Henry Brown; financial secretary, Joseph White; and recording secretary, Cornelius Shugrue.

THE FIRST PRIZE.

The Odd Fellows bowling league composed of teams from John Hanoock lodge of Wollaston, Mt. Wollaston lodge of Quincy, Puritan of Braintree, Wildey of South Weymouth, have rolled their final games and the John Hancock team was the winner of the first prize, with the team from Wildey lodge a close second.

The individual prizes went to Mr. McLeod of John Hancock, for the highest three string total; to Mr. Johnson of Puritan lodge, for highest average; and to Mr. Woodworth for highest single string.

The entire contest has been marked by that feeling of good fellowship and fraternity that always prevails among the brothers of the "mystic links," and plans have already been started to form another league next season.

The teams from each lodge are to participate in a banquet at a later date.

The following is the standing of the teams in games won and lost:

	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.

GRAND CONCERT.

Wollaston Male Quartet Have a Large Andience.

A very enjoyable concert before a large and appreciative audience was given in the Wollaston Baptist church Thursday evening by the Wollaston male quartet, E. E. Bullock, tenor; A. R. Moulton, second tenor; H. Y. Follett, baritone; H. I. Hahn, basso. The quartette was assisted by Miss Leno Ellen Cooper, reader; Leon Van Vliet, cellist; Miss Irene Grasser, child artist; and Mrs. Mira Richards Moulton, accompanist.

The quartet was most cordially received and gave "Gay Hearts," Plantation Melodies," and as a closing number, "Good Night," the last being particularly pleasing and well rendered.

Mr. H. Y. Follett splendidly rendered a baritone solo, "The Song of the Sword," and Mr. E. E. Bullock, tenor soloist, gave "The Wandering Knight" and "I Love You, Sweet," in his usual good style. Both these artists are very popular with a Wollaston audience, and they were enthusiastically received.

The cello solos of Mr. Van Vliet were a most delightful part of the program. This artist is well known, and his reception was very cordial and enthusiastic.

His first number was in two parts, "Traumerei" by Schumann and "La Cinquantaine" by Gabriel, both of which were much enjoyed. His second selection was "En Sourdine."

The reader of the evening, Miss Leno Ellen Cooper, contributed two numbers on the program, giving a selection from "Les Miserables" with much feeling and for her second selection a humorous monologue called "A Woman in a Shoe Store."

Little Irene Grasse, the child artist, a dainty little maid of nine years, gave a descriptive song, "The Burglar and His Child," in a very pleasing way, accompanied by her sister at the piano. Her second number, "Tommy," given with the quartet, was surprisingly well done for a child of her years.

Mrs. Moulton, the accompanist of the evening played in her usual pleasing manner, her work with the cello being particularly fine.

From first to last, encores were demanded, to which all of the artists most graciously responded.

The concert was a great success in every way, and much credit is due to Mr. E. E. Bullock under whose management it was carried out.

Robbed and Murdered.

Jonas Shackley of West Quincy has received word from his brother Daniel at Decator, Indiana, which throws some light on the death of their brother, Hiram Shackley, which occurred at Kansas, City, February 3. It seems that a stock commissioner at Kansas City has interested himself in the case and has found the following facts and imparted the same to Mr. Walters:

He states Shackley was knocked down near the Union depot at that place aad dragged up an alley, where he was no doubt robbed, as all papers were taken from his person and nothing found on him except a railway ticket for Decatur, Ind., and $4.25 in money. The police found him in an unconscious condition and transferred him to the hospital, where he died.

Daniel Shackley is now of the opinion that his brother had sold out his business and had started for Decatur where he expected to make his future home, and that the robbery was committed by men who knew exactly what he carried. Mr. Shackley stated that they would use every means possible to apprehend the criminals and give them over to justice.

Among the Leaders.

Miss Julia E. Underwood is near the top to-day, and has a reserve vote of over 1000. If Quincy people continne to interest all their friends in town and out of town the chances of success are good.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Already 3000 votes have accumulated for Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald contest. It is important that her total shall reach 5000 before Sunday.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

Support for Miss Underwood has already been received from the High school, the Adams, the Wollaston, the Massachusetts Field and the Willard, and the other buildings are said to be gathering votes.

Submarine Contracts.

The Secretary of the Navy has made a contract with the Electric Boat Company for the construction of two submarine torpedo boats, one to cost $250,000 and the other to cost $200,000, to be completed within eighteen months. With these two vessels the navy will include ten submarine torpedo boats.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy an[d] vorable impression on h[er] Mrs. Ward learns from T[rain] later found a yellow hol[ly] the body of Mrs. Jersey.

CHAPTER XI—(Co[ntinued])

"No," replied Brendon [I] not be arrested. Setting [aside the fact] that there is no eviden[ce] which implicates me in the crime, Lord Derrington, for his own sake, will not have his grandson arrested and his dirty linen washed in public. Whether there was a marriage or not, I am his flesh and blood. Why does he hate me?"

"I can't say, sir. He never explained, but he does hate you."

"Humph! I see no reason. A man can't help his birth, and I am quite as presentable as Walter Vane."

"Much more so," said Bawdsey quickly. "He is a fool and a miserable little beast. He sent a bracelet to Miss Velez."

"Oh, and naturally you think the worst of him. Well, it is no use my conjecturing the reason of Lord Derrington's dislike, but I can well understand why Mrs. Ward wishes me out of the way. On what grounds does she accuse me of being concerned in this crime?"

"On the strength of a story related by a friend of yours, who"—

"I knew it," interrupted Brendon, starting up and beginning to pace the room. "That was why she asked Leonard Train to dinner."

"She got out of him that you had been in the sitting room of Mrs. Jersey at midnight."

"That is untrue," began George violently, when Bawdsey stopped him.

"So it is, to Mrs. Ward, to Lord Derrington and to the public; but, so far as I am concerned, Mr. Brendon, it is a fact. You were in Mrs. Jersey's room about the time she was murdered."

"How can you prove that?" asked George quickly and very pale.

"Oh, I can prove it easily enough, and I will soon. But confess."

"That I killed the woman? No; I never laid a finger on her."

"I believe that," said Bawdsey. "If I thought you were guilty I should—no, not even then. You saved my life, and I'm grateful."

"I believe you are my friend," said George gloomily, sitting down.

"You would have been arrested by now were I not, Mr. Brendon."

"No. I tell you neither Mrs. Ward nor Lord Derrington will go so far. They will try to intimidate me, but they won't succeed."

"You'll fight them?"

George set his face. "While there is breath in my body."

"I knew you were a plucky one," said Bawdsey admiringly, "but you must be aware that your position is perilous."

"One moment," said Brendon. "Why does Train believe that I was in Mrs. Jersey's room?"

"He found beside the table a yellow holly berry, and you wore"—

George started. "I did—I did," he muttered. "It must have been brushed off the sprig when I stooped to touch her."

"Ah!" said Bawdsey in a voice of triumph. "Then you admit you were in the room?"

"Yes, to you, but to no one else."

"I'm glad you trust me so far," said Bawdsey, genuinely pleased. "Your confidence is not misplaced, Mr. Brendon. And you saw Mrs. Jersey?"

"I saw her body. She was dead."

"At what time was that?"

"About 12 o'clock."

"Why did you not give the alarm?"

"What?" George smiled derisively. "You think I should have put the rope round my neck?"

"No, but—well, no matter. We can talk of that later. But as to getting out of this room when the door was locked?"

"I didn't get out of this room, Mr. Bawdsey. I"—

"Wait a bit. Come into the room you slept in," said the detective, leading the way. "I have made a discovery."

The bedroom was in the same condition as when Brendon had last seen it, with the exception that the wardrobe was moved to one side. The wall at the back, which divided the room from the passage, appeared a blank, but on touching a spring a masked door opened. Shelves were revealed and it was evident that this door formed the back of a cupboard that was in the passage—a cupboard used by the housemaid, as was apparent from the dust shovel and brooms lying within it. For a moment Bawdsey left the door open and looked at Brendon with quiet triumph. Then he snapped the door to and the wall appeared in its former blank condition. No one, without making a close examination, would have suspected the presence of that secret door. "A housemaid might open the cupboard door in the passage at any time," explained Mr. Bawdsey, accounting for his action, "and it would never do for her to look through the back of the shelves into this room. She might talk, Mr. Brendon, and then there would be trouble. Yes"—Bawdsey rubbed his nose and looked at the astonished Ge[orge]

COURT.

Thomas Smith was arraigned for assault on Thomas P. Cleary at Weymouth and was fined $5.

—Some years ago a medical student, who had paid more attention to billiards than to anatomy, was brought before a professor for examination, when the following question and reply passed:—"What would you do first in the case of a man who was blown up by gunpowder?" "I should wait till he came down."

LARGE LOSSES OF GUNS AND AMMUNITION.

RUSSIANS IN HASTY RETREAT

Start Northward After the Evacuation of Mukden

FATE IN THE BALANCE

Certain to Have Lost Many Guns and Large Quantities of Ammunition and Supplies--Appearance of Kawamura's Army Would Render Kuropatkin's Efforts Useless--Loss of Men Has Reached Enormous Proportions--Belief That Peace Will Follow Japanese Victory

London, March 11.—The fate of the Russian army of upwards of a quarter of a million men and the 2000 pieces of artillery with which it was confidently expected General Kuropatkin and his lieutenants could prevent the advance of the Japanese beyond the Shakhe and Hun river positions, is still in the balance.

They have been driven from those positions and are now rushing northwards towards Tie pass, around which are high hills, which were prepared for defense after the battle of Linoyang in September, there being no hope at that time that the Japanese would allow the defeated army to rest south of Tie pass.

That the Russians have lost many guns and large quantities of ammunition and supplies is certain, for with but a single-track railway to the north, it would be impossible to remove the large stores which had been gathered together at Mukden. These, it seems, have been destroyed.

The Japanese have not yet reported the capture of guns, which they generally do almost immediately, but it seems hardly likely that Kuropatkin could have removed all of his artillery. On Jan. 1, according to correspondents who have just returned from Mukden, the Russians had in position along the Shakhe and Hun rivers 1500 guns, including a number of six and eight-inch guns on cement foundations straddling the railway just north of Shakhe station. In addition many guns arrived in Mukden during January and February, so that the Russian artillery, when the big battle started, must have numbered nearly 2000 pieces. It is likely that Kuropatkin has sacrificed some of these and is bending all his energies to extricating his army.

The result of Oyama's great turning movement depends almost entirely upon Kawamura's army, which has not yet been definitely located, although supposed to be moving from the east towards Kuropatkin's line of retreat. Should he reach the military road, which runs almost in a direct line from Fushun to Tie pass, before the passage of the Russian army, the circle will be complete, as Nogi's guns already command the railway and should soon control the Mandarin road, which is but a short distance east of the railway and runs parallel with it.

The army of General Kaulbars, which has been pressed back across the western plain, fighting every inch of ground, is moving northward to protect the line of retreat from the attacks from the westward, while General Bilderling is protecting the rear against Generals Oku and Nodzu, and Linevitch is doing his best to hold the military road against Kuroki. They have numbers against them, but have succeeded against odds in similar retreats before.

The appearance of General Kawamura would render futile all their efforts. General Rennenkampff's force of somewhat less than 10,000 men, which has been operating on the extreme left, is in a precarious position, but the force is a mobile one and the officers know the mountains well. With the exception of this latter force all the Russian troops are now concentrated on the roads leading northward and it may take another 24 hours before their fate is decided. The army which General Gripenberg turned over to Kaulbars when he left Manchuria, and a portion of which Bilderling commanded, extended from the Liao river to the Mandarin road. General Linevitch's army held the important positions at the bend of the Shakhe river, including Erdagou hill.

The welcome notes of the robin heard a few days ago are surely a harbinger of spring.

THE CUTTERS' BILL IS RATIFIED.

A HITCH.

And Work May Not be Resumed Monday.

No Agreement with the Blacksmiths.

The Apprentice Clause the Bone of Contention.

A mass meeting of the Granite Cutters' Union was held this morning at the Coliseum, to hear the report of its conference committee on the new agreement with the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

The meeting was held at 9 o'clock. After hearing the new bill read, the meeting voted to approve the action of its committee.

Nothing now remains but to sign the bill which will be done today.

Work, however, cannot be resumed until a settlement has been reached with the blacksmiths.

Last night's conference between the Manufacturers' and Blacksmiths' committees did not result as favorably as desired, and there were some doubts this morning whether work would be resumed next Monday as anticipated.

The blacksmiths asked for an increase from $2.90 to $3 per day, and for a clause that should provide that in dull seasons a firm which employed a journeyman and apprentice, and found it necessary to reduce help, should retain the journeyman and discharge the apprentice.

It is understood that the Manufacturers committee granted the ten cents increase per day in wages that was asked, but the hitch came on the apprentice clause.

On this clause the committees could not agree and the meeting adjourned without date.

The Manufacturers' committee are now waiting for the Blacksmiths to make the next move. They say that they are ready to meet them again at any time they desire. Unless there should be an agreement reached with the blacksmiths before Monday it will be impossible for the cutters to return to work.

The Social Realm.

"Man wants but little here below:
Nor wants that little long."
'Tis not with me exactly so:
But 'tis so in the long.
My wants are many, and if told
Would muster many a score;
And were each wish a mint of gold
I still should long for more.
—John Quincy Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, of Winthrop avenue left this week for a trip to Jamaica.

A series of three foreign talks have been arranged to be given by Miss Edith Randall during Lent on Tuesday afternoons March 14th and 28th and April 4th, the first on Westminister Abbey at the home of Mrs. George H. Brown, Elm street; the second on Germany and German Life, at the home of Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick, Chestnut street; and the third and last on Jacobite Ballads or Swiss Folklore, at the home of Mrs. Frank Brewer, Summer street.

Friends of the Woodward Institute are anticipating with much pleasure the Founder's day exercises this evening in the school hall. Besides the usual fine musical program under the direction of Mr. John D. Buckingham the romantic play "The Romancers" by Edward Rostand, author of Cyrano de Bergerac, will be given by the girls of classes 1905, 1906 and 1907. The Woodward girls have the reputation of always doing things well and a fine presentation is expected.

Points of Interest.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

Even should Kuropatkin extricate his army, it is believed in European capitals that peace will soon follow this latest Japanese victory. The calling to St. Petersburg of M. Iswolsky, Russian minister to Denmark, who was formerly in Tokio, is most significant. No time will be lost in starting the negotiations as soon as Russia intimates her wish to close the war. Shortly after the fall of Port Arthur a high official of the Japanese foreign office arrived in London with authority to take up the negotiations so soon as Russia declared her desire for peace.

The losses in the operations preceding the battle and those in the battle proper must have reached enormous proportions, but up to the present neither side has attempted an estimate. They will certainly exceed the Shakhe losses, in which the Russians alone lost in killed, wounded and missing, 67,000 men.

Field Marshal Oyama arranged his attack so that the Chinese city of Mukden should not come within the range of battle. The Russians had no positions immediately around the city, as was the case at Liaoyang, and the Russian town is two miles from the outer walls of the old city. The western imperial tombs were under shell fire, but no account has been given of the damage, if any, that they suffered. The eastern tombs, around which the Russians had elected positions, apparently did not come within range of the Japanese shells.

There is intense anxiety in London to learn the fate of Kuropatkin's forces and whether the chain Oyama has drawn around them will be strong enough to hold them. The Russian forces must be in a terrible plight, and a repetition of all the horrors of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow is regarded as among the possibilities. On the other hand, exhaustion of the Japanese armies might possibly enable Kuropatkin to gather his forces and break through. He is said to have been a spectator at Sedan, and the memories of those days may suffice to convince him of the hopelessness of the struggle.

Admires Japanese Genius

Berlin, March 11.—Lieutenant General Baron Von Gavl, Count Von Waldersee's second in command in the China expedition, at a meeting of the German Asiatic society last night, said: "What that island people accomplished in the past few days merits the highest astonishment. It was absolutely a phenomenal achievement, considering the fearless, brave opponent that the Japanese army brought to this pass. The leadership was that of genius, and words fail for the bravery and devotion of the troops."

Austrians Have No Sympathy

Vienna, March 11.—The Viennese press, commenting upon the occupation of Mukden by the Japanese, shows no note of sympathy with Russia. In some quarters the defeat at Mukden is believed to mean that Russia's cause in Manchuria is lost.

To Probe Stanford Poisoning

San Francisco, March 11.—The fact that the coroner's jury at Honolulu decided that Mrs. Jane Stanford was murdered by means of strychnine has added interest to the mysterious case. A conference was held here between District Attorney Byington and Mr. Wilson, attorney for the late Mrs. Stanford, at which it was determined to probe the matter to the bottom. No intimation of the proposed course of action has yet been given out.

Won't Hang on St Patrick's Day

Jefferson City, Mo., March 11.—Governor Folk has granted a respite of 30 days for William Rudolph, sentenced to be hanged on March 17 in St. Louis for the murder of Detective Schumacher, a petition for the respite having been signed by large numbers of Irish Catholics, who claimed that an execution on St. Patrick's day would cast a gloom over the celebration they had planned.

Student Crippled by Hazers

San Francisco, March 11.—A helpless cripple from hazing, Albert De Rome, a young student, made his way into Police Judge Mogan's court on crutches and swore out warrants for the arrest of the Hopkins institute art students who made him the victim of their sport. Judge Mogan issued the warrants for the arrest of three alleged ringleaders in the hazing. The charge against them is battery.

Mining Suit For $37,000,000

New York, March 11.—A suit for $37,000,000 has been brought by the Johnstown Mining company against the Boston and Montana Mining company in the courts of New York state to recover the value of copper ores alleged to have been taken by the latter company from lands on which the other claims to have had prior location and patent.

Corset Stay Saved Girl's Life

Elmira, N. Y., March 11.—George Fenton, a street car conductor, fired two shots at Ada Howes on the street at 2 o'clock this morning after returning from a party. Thinking he had killed the girl, he sent a bullet through his own head and fell dead. The bullet intended for the girl was turned aside by a corset stay.

LIFE AT GOLDFIELD MINES.

Miners In Nevada Town Live In Electriy Lighted Tents.

W. H. Thomas, a Denver attorney, who is interested in the mines at Goldfield, Nev., where the latest gold fever has broken out, recently arrived at Kansas City, Mo. He says that the camp, although only fifteen months old, has a population of 10,000 now.

"The majority of the inhabitants live in tents," said Mr. Thomas to a reporter of the Kansas City Times, "yet these crude dwellings are lighted by electricity. Running water is another of the modern improvements furnished. While the community is without a railroad, it is supplied with automobiles, big motor cars being used as stage-coaches between that town and Tonopah, the terminus of the nearest railroad.

"Already stone buildings are being constructed. We have four banks and two newspapers, while the other business institutions needed in a town are already installed. So great has been the yield that prospectors have come in droves until the country is now staked out for 100 miles around. Ore has been shipped that brings $30,000 a ton, a phenomenal figure. As there is no railroad and the ore has to be carted twenty-six miles in wagons, nothing is shipped that bears less than $100 a ton, and thousands of tons of this are piled up there waiting for the building of stamp mills.

"Remarkable stories are told of the fortunes that have come to many. Two of the first persons in there were Harry Weber and Marvin Ish, newspaper men out of work. They rode the "bumpers" out of Portland and went to Goldfield because they knew nowhere else to go. Today each of those boys can write his check for half a million dollars and cash it, and they will be worth millions when their properties are further developed.

"One feature of the gold mining of this camp is the ease by which the ore can be had. It is close to the surface, so close in fact that men have built high fences about their mines to prevent persons from running away with the ore. So rich is the ore in gold that it is frequently shipped as express instead of freight."

SAVING SOUTHERN PINES.

Bureau of Forestry's Progress In Methods of Turpentining.

The old system of boxing southern pine trees for the production of turpentine and resin has very greatly reduced the pine timber wealth of the southern states, says a Washington dispatch. Three years ago the bureau of forestry determined that something should be done to eliminate so destructive a method of procuring naval stores.

Its three years of experiments toward this end have demonstrated that a new system of turpentining which requires the use of earthen cups and metal gutters not only greatly conserves the life of the timber tapped, but also gives an increased yield of resin and therefore a greater profit than is possible by boxing.

The bureau of forestry feels that a still more conservative method of turpentining can be found which, consistent with a maximum yield of turpentine, will inflict the smallest possible injury upon the trees. With this in view the bureau has begun an entirely new line of field experiments in order to determine to what extent the wound now made in tapping the trees can be lessened.

Through the co-operation of a land company in Jacksonville, Fla., a stand of about 40,000 pine trees in Clay county, Fla., with other facilities, have, without cost to the government, been placed at the disposal of the bureau for experimental purposes.

TO MAKE WAR IMPOSSIBLE.

What Santos-Dumont Predicts For Aerial Navigation.

In an article in the new French magazine Je Sais Tout (I Know Everything) M. Santos Dumont says that the present generation will see a perfect flying machine which will make war impossible. There will also be transcontinental aerial expresses, with Paris as the great aerial station. He adds:

"What would you say if I told you that next summer I am confident of giving a new impulse to aerial navigation; that I myself hope to be able before ending my experiences to cruise over Europe for a week at a time, without descending to earth, in a yacht that will be in itself a flying house?"

Special Stamps For Soldiers.

The Italian government has introduced what may be called military picture stamps, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Each regiment of the Italian army is now provided with a specially designed stamp for the exclusive use of its own soldiers. The stamp of one regiment shows the portrait of its colonel, another bears the regimental colors, another the regimental motto and so on. The Russian war office is adopting a similar idea, and it is believed that these stamps increase regimental esprit de corps and civilian interest in the army.

Worm Farm to Feed Song Birds.

G. Buettel of West Somerville, Mass., is making "big money" from a worm farm where he breeds thousands of them to be used for food for song birds, says a Somerville (Mass.) dispatch to the New York Tribune. The worms are bred to a large size on meal and when big enough are shipped to New York dealers. Thence they find their way chiefly into the homes of the Germans who have song birds. Mr. Buettel says that birds living on worms make better and clearer singers than those fed on prepared food.

O. M. PEARSON.

Build Up Your System!

Neglect and carelessness are the general causes of all disease.

People never become dangerously sick until after nature has given them many warnings.

The great mistake is not paying attention to these warnings.

When you feel "run down," "used up," "nervous," tired most of the time—it means that something is wrong and nature is warning you.

You need more nerve force to build up your system.

Strengthen your nerves, increase your nerve force and your health will take care of itself.

Science with its unerring methods of research has proved that the various organs and tissues of the body continue in health and perform their work properly as long as their nerve supply retains its vigor and strength.

But if the nerves degenerate or lose power from poor nourishment or any other cause, the entire physiological mechanism of the body is thrown out of gear and we have as a result some "run-down" condition or disease.

The heart, the stomach, the liver, all have their great nerve centres which supply them with the power to work properly. When these nerve centres are weakened these important organs cannot act properly.

"For five years I was in very bad health and the doctors and medicine failed to help me, until I became seriously ill, and then I began using Paine's Celery Compound. I derived great benefit from it at once. I commenced to gain in weight and gained thirty-nine pounds in three months. It gave me great strength and built up my entire system. I have recommended it to some of my friends and it did them a great deal of good."—O. M. Pearson, Seattle, Wash.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, was the first physician to enunciate the principle which today is recognized as one of the foundations of the science of medicine,—the great enlightening truth, that the nerve system rules all the body's health.

The nerves must have food to keep up their strength. Their food is not the same food that we usually know.

He sought and found the food that builds up and restores the nerves—his celery formula, which has become famous as Paine's Celery Compound—the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic.

Paine's Celery Compound is giving new nerve force to thousands every day by feeding and restoring the nerves to their full strength. It never fails to build up a run down system to full, ruddy health.

Two days' treatment proves its marvelous power. It braces you up. You feel better at once.

Sick headache, palpitation, dizziness, and heartburn are usually relieved by a single dose of Paine's Celery Compound.

Remember this,—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, and all reputable Druggists sell and recommend it.

The Claim of Patrick O'Mara

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1904, by Charles W. Hooke

THERE was a great crowd along the avenue, and it was particularly dense at Fifty-first street, where a foolish millionaire in a bright red automobile had tried to cross ahead of the procession. Several policemen were reproving the automobilist, who was replying acrimoniously. The crowd was jeering good naturedly and had closed in so thickly behind the car that it could not be backed without creating carnage, and the odds were large that the impatient occupant would have to stay where he was until about three miles of Irishmen paraading in honor of St. Patrick had passed that point.

The incident is of no importance in this narrative except that it resulted in blocking the path of Edmund Halloran, who was on his way to the University club. Mr. Halloran was a Democrat as a matter of intellectual conviction, but he was an aristocrat at heart. He disliked crowds, and with reason, for they are nearly always undignified. Dignity was Mr. Halloran's most conspicuous characteristic; he had so much of it that as a lawyer he could impart it even to the proceedings of the typical New York court.

Observing a vacant place upon the steps of the cathedral, Lawyer Halloran took advantage of it and for a moment was out of the press, but the people surged up and presently drove him into the sacred edifice. As he was entering he observed a tall, broad shouldered fellow who at the first glance impressed Halloran as a perfect picture of robust and sturdy youth. An elderly woman, obviously his mother, stood at his right and a pretty girl at his left. When the three turned to ascend the steps the woman and the girl took each an arm of the young man and helped him along. He walked with a peculiar lameness, as though the soles of his feet had been red hot. The mother's tenderness and solicitude were beautiful to behold, but the girl seemed impatient and a little out of temper.

Lawyer Halloran vaguely wondered what was the matter with the young man, never having seen anybody limp in precisely that way. It was a passing thought, and the matter would never have crossed his mind again, but a few minutes later, while he was enjoying the comparative seclusion of the vast and splendid edifice, he saw the mother enter and take an obscure seat. Immediately she began to pray with great fervor. The deep simplicity of her faith seemed to radiate into the atmosphere, and in its circle of influence the lawyer found himself assuming a more reverent spirit. The thought of his errand at the club and the annoyance of the delay were forgotten, and he was glad to be in the great church on the saint's day.

The woman remained at her devotions for perhaps ten minutes and then arose and moved toward the door, but immediately returned, as if she had forgotten something. She had, indeed, forgotten where she had been sitting, and, observing this, the lawyer thought it his duty to point out the error. He was one who had a nervous dread of mixing in the affairs of strangers, and it was with some difficulty that he brought himself to address this woman.

"You were sitting here, madam," he said.

His dignity quite overshadowed her. She looked up timidly and thanked him in a tone so humble that Halloran was ashamed of himself, for he felt that he must have assumed some sort of superiority. Therefore he replied with the greater courtesy, and poor Mrs. O'Mara was completely overwhelmed, for she perceived that this must be some personage of exalted distinction. She was so embarrassed that she could not see the very flat little purse that lay upon the seat, and Halloran was obliged to pick it up for her, perceiving as he did so how meager were its contents.

A memory of her very earnest devotions was in the lawyer's mind as he escorted her toward the door, and by way of farewell he ventured to express a hope that her prayer would be answered.

"I was praying for my son," said she. "I have asked the blessed saint to cure him of his lameness."

The lawyer's curiosity was revived, and he inquired the cause of the young man's affliction.

"He was hurt in a railroad accident," replied Mrs. O'Hara. "It's likely you may have heard of it—at Berkeley last summer."

The accident in question had been no great disaster, but it happened that Mr. Halloran remembered having read of it.

"Has your son recovered damages for the injury?" he asked. And at that moment he perceived that young O'Mara and the pretty girl had approached within hearing.

It was O'Mara himself who answered Mr. Halloran's question, and within half a minute the lawyer was repenting deeply of the sin of curiosity. O'Mara backed him against the massive masonry of the arched portal and proceeded to tell him the story of the accident, with infinite attention to detail. The pretty girl was on one side and the fragile, sweet faced woman upon the other, and there was no escape.

The worst of it was that O'Mara had no sooner got fairly started upon his story than the shrewd lawyer perceived that there was something wrong. O'Mara immediately began to speak of injuries and sufferings which were wholly inconsistent with his attitude at the moment. It was his feet which had sustained the damage. They had been touched by fire while he was pinned down by wreckage; they had never got well; in fact, they became worse every day, and the doctors could do nothing. Yet O'Mara stood upon those very feet as sturdily as any man ever did. Only when he referred directly to his present sufferings did O'Mara wince and lift his feet, first the right and then the left, with a peculiarly distressing affectation of agony.

Out of the corners of his eyes Halloran could see now and then the pretty girl and Mrs. O'Mara. The mother's expression was tenderly, yearningly sympathetic, but the girl was ashamed. Her face grew redder and redder; she clinched her hands nervously. From time to time she tried to break off the story or to remedy some obvious absurdity.

"We can't get hold of an honest doctor," said O'Mara. "That's what's the matter. They're afraid, every mother's son of 'em—afraid of the big corporation. And my lawyer's no better; he's done nothing for months."

"You see," said Mrs. O'Mara timidly, "we haven't much money"—

"Money!" echoed the son. "Why, we'll have plenty of that if this case ever comes to court. Don't you worry, little mother. You'll live in ease and comfort the rest of your days or I'm greatly mistaken."

"I think we ought to go now," said the pretty girl.

Halloran was thinking hard. He understood the case well enough. It was only a little worse than some others that he had seen. This young man, who had doubtless been the support of his mother, had become utterly worthless as the result of his dream of gold. He had perceived the opportunity of extorting damages from the railroad company, and this vision of "easy money" had destroyed his appetite for hard work, if indeed he had ever had any. Upon this latter point the lawyer had considerable doubt. For O'Mara himself Halloran would have done nothing, but Mrs. O'Mara had somehow won his sympathy. He doubted the possibility of doing anything with the suit for damages because it seemed certain that, even if the young man had sustained any real injury, he had entirely recovered from it so that no reputable doctor would testify for him. Probably the best that could be done for him was to drive the dishonest delusion out of him by proving that his case was hopeless.

"Who's your lawyer?" he demanded suddenly, interrupting a flow of O'Mara's eloquence.

"Well, it's John M. Dolan," said O'Mara, "and I'm a good deal in doubt about him."

He was going on to state the whole case over again when Halloran asserted himself.

"I haven't another minute," he declared. "Here's my card. Come to see me."

The pretty girl stepped aside to let him out, and under the influence of his nervous irritation he thrust himself through the crowd, cut the procession like a knife and made his way to the club, where he immediately began to be remorseful because he had taken so churlish a leave of Mrs. O'Mara.

"O'Mara's a fakir and a fraud," said he to himself. "I suppose that girl's engaged to him. Well, he's lost her; I can see that. He's lost her love, sure enough; but he'll never lose his mother's, confound him!"

The matter was still upon his mind next day, and one of the first things that he did after reaching his office was to call up his learned friend John M. Dolan by telephone. Mr. Dolan was not in the front rank of the profession, and he felt flattered that so great a man as Edmund Halloran should have deigned to look up his number in the telephone book.

"This fellow O'Mara," said he, "wasn't really hurt much so far as I can find out, though I believe that he was unconscious when they found him, probably from fright. His feet were burned a bit, and they still show the scar, but I can't get any doctor to say that the man isn't as well as he ever was. If O'Mara could tell the truth under oath I could get him a few hundred dollars, but if you have seen him you know what sort of an appearance he'd make on the stand. He'd lose any suit. I've abandoned the case."

"All right," said Halloran. "I want to take it up."

He had scarcely hung up the receiver of the telephone when he was informed that Miss Edith Patten wished to see him. Halloran was not aware that he had ever had the pleasure of meeting Miss Patten, but when she entered his office he recognized the pretty girl of yesterday's adventure. She had come to beg him really to do something for Mr. Patrick O'Mara, whom she seemed to understand thoroughly. He had been a splendid fellow before this lust for damages had taken possession of his mind—an earnest, industrious, promising young man. Now he did nothing at all except talk of the money that he would win from the railroad company and the great pain in his feet, for which this money would requite him.

The young woman did not express it quite so bluntly. It was her opinion that the desire to give his mother ease and comfort and to make a home for herself had been at the root of Patrick's folly. So there was good behind the evil, as happens nearly always in this world.

Halloran frankly told Miss Patten what he intended to do.

"I know a doctor," he said, with a grim smile, "who is the most formidable of created beings. His name is Stone, and it suits him very well. When Mr. O'Mara comes to see me I'm going to take him to see my friend Stone, and when Stone gets through with him he will know that he is well enough to go to work."

"HOW DO YOU DO, YOUNG MAN?"

That very afternoon O'Mara appeared at the office. Impressed with its magnificence, his own idea of the damages that he would get out of the railroad company grew bigger than ever and he limped very painfully as he entered Halloran's private room.

Without waiting for the young man to begin his interminable story, Halloran sprang up and took him by the arm.

"Come right along with me," he said. "I'm going to take you to an honest doctor."

An electric cab conveyed them swiftly to the office of Dr. Stone, with whom Halloran had had a long talk by telephone immediately after Miss Patten's visit. Stone was a tall, thin, high shouldered man, having a face triangular, like a cat's, and glaring, yellowish green eyes. A tangled mass of iron gray hair tumbled over his forehead, which was broad and bulging. Altogether he was a fearsome fellow, and at sight of him O'Mara stopped limping

"How do you do, young man?" said Stone in a rasping voice. And then he stopped, though it was evident that he had meant to say much more.

There was a moment of silence, and then Stone advanced with his gaunt right arm extended and a pointing finger. He laid the finger upon a little white line that could be seen on the left side of O'Mara's head, a small injury where the hair had not grown again upon the scalp.

"Where did you get that?" asked the doctor.

"In the smashup," replied O'Mara. "It doesn't amount to anything. But, doctor, I've got the most terrible pair of feet that"—

"Sit down here," said Stone, forcing him into a chair. "I want to look at this scar; never saw one quite like it before. We'll attend to your feet by and by."

Half an hour later the doctor and the lawyer were alone in the office, while O'Mara was riding home luxuriously in the electric cab.

"Sue for anything you want to," said Stone. "He ought to have $50,000. That man's a monomaniac as the result of that crack on the head. All this business about his feet is a delusion, of course, but it's a delusion that the railroad people will have to pay for because they're responsible. Rely on my testimony. You know me."

"If you say that this is so," said Halloran, "by jingo, I believe I can get $50,000, and I'm glad for his mother's sake. Yet the poor woman would rather have him sound and well than twice that money."

"She'll have him sound and well before I'm through with him," said Stone. "Go and bring your suit. I want to observe this case for a month perhaps, and then I'll operate on the boy's head, and you'll see the result."

There is need of but a word in conclusion. Halloran brought his suit and forced it to a satisfactory settlement out of court, for the company's lawyer couldn't stand the combination of two such men as Halloran and Stone. Shortly thereafter Dr. Stone performed one of the neatest operations on the records, relieving the pressure on Pat O'Mara's brain and restoring him completely to himself. And simple hearted Mrs. O'Mara believes to this day that it was all an answer to her humble prayer in the great cathedral on the good St. Patrick's day.

Direct Inheritance Tax

Boston, March 11.—In the house of representatives, the adverse report of the committee on taxation on the direct inheritance tax bill was overturned and the bill substituted by a vote of 58 to 23. The bill provides for a tax of 2 percent on direct legacies, with an exemption of $15,000 worth of real and $5000 worth of personal property.

Murder Charge Against Him

Portland, Me., March 11.—Inspector Dawson of the Portland police force arrived here last evening from Brooklyn with Carime Nevarro, who was arrested in that city, charged with the murder of Alphonso Rumo in Portland. Nevarro was brought here on requisition papers. He is said by the police to have confessed the crime.

Held on Murder Charge

Dedham, Mass., March 11.—Guisette Sabbatino of Hyde Park was arraigned before Judge Grover, charged with the murder of Alphonso Turi, who was killed in an old passenger car at Readville by being struck over the head with an axe. He pleaded not guilty. Sabbatino was committed to jail without bail.

Doctor Charged With Larceny

Boston, March 11.—Charged with the theft of three valuable books from the Boston public library, Dr. Alfred J. Boyle of Providence was arrested by inspectors of Chief Watts' staff and brought here to answer to the charge. Specifically he is held on the charge of the larceny of three books valued at $20.

Railroad Buys Trolley Link

Hartford, March 11.—The purchase of the Hartford street railway by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, which was announced yesterday, blocks definitely the proposed long-distance extensions of rival companies toward Boston and to the southward.

Provincetown Harbor Blocked

Provincetown, Mass., March 11.—The harbor is blocked with craft coming from outside, a north wind having only partially driven the ice out into the bay. One pier 50 feet in length was crushed by the ice, and several others were considerably damaged.

Ultimatum to Strikers

New London, Conn., March 11.—The local council of the International Builders, Contractors and Dealers' association has taken a hand in the situation in which bricklayers and plasterers employed by two firms are out on strike, and has issued an ultimatum that unless the strike is called off by Monday noon, all union bricklayers and plasterers in the employ of members of the association will be locked out.

Charged With Murdering Brother

South Londonderry, Vt., March 11.—After a preliminary hearing given here, Fred Johnson of Bondville was held without bail for the grand jury on the charge of having murdered his brother, J. Johnson. The testimony tended to show that the shooting was the result of a family quarrel. The prisoner was taken to Bennington jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Woodsman Met Highwaymen

Lewiston, Me., March 11.—William Bagley of Portland, who has been working in the woods at Phillips, and who came to this city, claims to have been knocked down and robbed of his watch and between $50 and $60 in money. He says the assault and robbery took place on a main street, where he was later found in a semi-dazed condition.

Harvard Wins at Gymnastics

Cambridge, Mass., March 11.—Harvard won the dual gymnasium meet with Princeton last night, scoring 29 points to Princeton's 28. From the start Princeton kept a lead of from 5 to 12 points. H. H. Coryell and C. H. Emery, however, rose to the occasion for the crimson team, winning first and second places in tumbling, the deciding event.

Bomb Exploded Unexpectedly

St. Petersburg, March 11.—At 4 o'clock this morning an explosion in the centre of the city blew out the interior of an apartment house, killing four men and four women. It undoubtedly was the accidental explosion of an anarchist bomb, killing those who intended to use it.

Towns Threatened by Flood

Pittsburg, March 11.—The ice gorge in the Allegheny river has began to pile up at Rosston island. Several small towns in the Allegheny valley are in danger of being inundated.

The Weather Forecast

Now that the Quincy granite cutters have ratified the agreement reached by the committees, the prospects are excellent for a great boom in the city this spring. Certainly the better judgment of the blacksmiths will prevail, and it is hoped that there will be speedy adjustments with labor in all other lines of work, particularly building. Quincy needs hundreds of new houses. There is a very urgent demand for them in nearly every ward of the city, but particularly in Wards One, Two and Five.

New houses will bring a large increase in population, as many desirable people have for sometime found it impossible to rent houses in Quincy. New houses will make land more profitable, give employment to carpenters, painters, masons and other contractors; increase the trade of local merchants; and make Quincy more prosperous generally.

The Daily Ledger feared that a labor trouble would work to the disadvantage of Quincy when the 1905 census was taken in May, as it did in 1900, but now Quincy men will find plenty of employment at home at good wages, and the census of 1905 will probably surprise many people.

Mrs. Charles A. Spear of the Quincy Charitable Society writes:

"I am heartily sorry for Mr. L. M. Pratt's illness and financial trouble, not that I am personally acquainted with the man, but have been kindly treated by his salesmen. And when I learn that the Quincy Charitable Society have not paid bills I have been ordering for needy people, the only wish is that the assignee will exact twenty per cent. for every dollar that has remained unpaid beyond one month."

The regrets of Mrs. Spear seem to be general. On every hand we hear sympathy for Mr. Pratt, and but for his illness his friends would rally to his financial assistance, as he is a long established merchant. Probably the Charitable Society is not open to as much criticism relative to the payment of bills as many others, for there are many who never intend to pay their bills if they can help it.

Little bills in the aggregate, in a business like that of this firm amount to thousands, and the failure to make prompt payment reduces the ready capital which merchants very much need in making advantageous purchases.

There is need of a great reform in the payment of bills, and more vigorous measures against those who beat their bills.

A half-hour service will be held on Friday afternoons, during Lent, at St. Chrysostom's church, at 4 o'clock. The pastor will conduct these services, and make a short address.

THE QUEEN

Of the Fall River Line Steamers.

Providence Open for Inspection.

Description of New Boat Built at Quincy Plant.

It is not often that such a favorable opportunity is afforded to inspect a million dollar passenger steamer like the "Providence," as will be given on Sunday. The steamer will be open to the public from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Entrance will be from the Quincy Point bridge only, across a pontoon bridge to the steamer. An admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged which will go toward swelling the building fund of the Shipbuilder's club.

The "Providence" has been rightly named the "Queen of the Fall River line fleet." She is certainly a handsome looking craft, and a lasting credit not only to the Fore River Co., but to the workmen whose skill has fashioned steel and wood into a thing of beauty. Her great white hull is pretty to look upon, but the interior arrangements and decorations must be seen to be fully appreciated. Her interior finish is ivory white and gold. The woodwork of the finish is pine and is carved, frescoed and gilded.

It is nearly eight months since the steamer slid gracefully off the greased ways into her native element. The launching was a most successful one and was witnessed by thousands of people who lined both shores of the river. Since then she has been tied up to the wharf in Bent's creek. A large gang of men has been constantly at work putting on the finishing touches. She is now about completed and soon will be put into commission on the line between Fall River and New York.

She has accommodotions for 2500 passengers. Every possible precaution has been taken to make her a comfortable as well as safe and unsinkable vessel.

She is built of steel with double hulls similar in construction to the big fighting warships built for the government. The prime consideration has been safety from chances of sinking or burning, with sufficient strength to meet the working strain without vibration.

Her length over all is 397 feet, and on the twelve-foot water line, 378 feet, six inches. The breadth of her hull, moulded, is 50 feet, breadth over guards 88 feet, and her moulded depth 21 feet.

She has a cellular bottom, four feet deep at the keel and extending 288 feet admidship. There are also six water tight bulkheads extending athwartship up to the main deck.

She is a side wheeler with twin screws, this type having been found to be the speediest and most comfortable for smooth waters. Her paddle boxes are built into the superstructure, so that they do not show outwardly.

Her main engines are of the double inclined compound type, having two high pressure and two low pressure cylinders. With a steam pressure of 160 pounds, and the engines making 26 revolutions per minute, she will develope 5,500 horse-power, which will drive her at a speed of nineteen miles an hour.

The engines and boilers are in a steel enclosure, with a steel deck over them. She will be steered by steam.

She is lighted throughout by electricity, the lighting plan being capable of supplying current for 1600 incandescent lights in addition to a big search light.

She is ventilated throughout on the plenum system and a pressure water system, supplied by a special pump, is connected with the plumbing.

She has a complete fire extinguishing service under control of the engine room, with connection in every part of the boat, supplemented by separate powerful fire pumps.

She carries life-boats and life-rafts sufficient for 1,200 passengers, in addition to the life-preservers, also a Lyle gun, like those used in the U. S. life-saving service for shooting lines.

All told there are 404 staterooms, 10 bridal chambers, and 1202 berths.

Her furnishings are not yet aboard as they are not covered by the Fore River Co. contract.

Hundreds of tickets for the inspection have already been sold, and the indications now are that there will be thousands of visitors on Sunday. Members of the Shipbuilders club will be in every part of the boat to act as guides and to explain everything to the uninitiated.

CITY BREVITIES.

Quite a change in the weather from what it has been for the past two days.

A freight train broke down at South Quincy last night and caused a little delay.

Mrs. Frank Eldredge of East Weymouth was the guest of Quincy relatives on Friday.

Edmund J. Cleveland has been temporarily engaged as assistant at St. Chrysostom's church.

Young people of the city will be sorry to learn of the sudden death of Miss Bessie House, formerly of Quincy Point.

The Rev. Charles E. Stowe of Bridgewater, the distinguished son of Harriet Beacher Stowe, preaches tomorrow morning at Bethany Church.

Friends of Mrs. Robert Clegg of Quincy Point will be sorry to learn that she has been taken suddenly ill and removed to the Quincy hospital.

The Rev. John L. Howie will occupy the pulpit at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday. Mr. Howie is a native of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina.

The Wollaston Woman's Temperance Union will meet Tuesday with Mrs. G. A. Litchfield. The subject will be the F. E. Willard Settlement and the speaker is to be Mrs. H. D. Black.

The program for the choir at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday consists of the anthem "O Taste and See" by Marstin, and the response "I cannot always trace the way" by Dow.

The funeral of the late Elijah Brown, which is to be held from the Universalist church, Sunday afternoon, will be attended by the members of the Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and a delegation from the W. R. C.

This flour is not only the best, but it is uniformly the best. That is, it is the same today, tomorrow and always. This is a fact well worth bearing in mind.

If you are looking for the best flour, there is absolutely no choice, it is Jones' Superlative.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Quincy Women's club is planning for an afternoon later in the month when Dr. Jeffery R. Brackett, who has so kindly given them his home for a club house, will be present and address the club. It will be interesting for the members to have Dr. Brackett outline some of the work he would like the club to take up. The subject of a district nurse is to be considered.

Something new in the way of a club is the Boston Cat club which recently organized with Miss Helen M. Winslow of Winslow farm, Shirley, as president and Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford of Newburyport as first vice president. Other officers are Mrs. H. Franklin Perry of Weymouth, treasurer and Mrs. Florence Dyer and Mrs. J. Forrest Torrey of South Weymouth as directors. Among the honorary members are Lady Marcus Beresford of Bishopgate, Winsor, England, and women from various cities in the United States.

The Athol Woman's club cleared $401 on a charity ball in the Academy of Music, March third, for the benefit of the Associated Charities. The proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the needy poor in Athol.

The Brightbelmstone club is interesting itself in the approach to the Whitney school at Allston, which is in such bad condition that the children have had to wade through ice, snow and water all winter. The town has neglected this thoroughfare so long that the patience of the citizens has become exhausted. As members of the club have children attending the school they have decided to take an active part in demanding an abatement of the nuisance.

So great has been the interest shown in forming a large club of women in Quincy that the Braintree club known as the Philergians are talking of increasing their membership which is now limited to forty. They have done a fine work for several years, belong to the federations and it would seem to be a wise move to enlarge and let more Braintree women enjoy the club work and meetings.

The Heptorean club of Somerville hold a reciprocity meeting this afternoon, at which there will be addresses, music and a social tea.

The executive board of the Quincy Women's club met Thursday morning in the parlor of hotel Greenleaf and arranged the various committees for carrying on the club work. Mrs. E. C. Bumpus was unanimously elected chairman of the special committee to get the club house ready for occupancy. There are committees on philanthropy, education, art and literature, arts and crafts, house, civics, music, program, printing, etc. These committees will include some fifty women besides the officers of the club so that all parts of the city will be well represented.

Over 1,000 Today.

Over 1,000 votes for Miss Underwood in the School contest were forwarded today and her total tomorrow will be above 3,000, with a large reserve.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

Support for Miss Underwood has already been received from the High school, the Adams, the Wollaston, the Massachusetts Field and the Willard, and the other buildings are said to be gathering votes.

THE UNITY CLUB.

Three Interesting Papers at the Regular Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Wollaston Unity Club was held in the vestry of the Unitarian church last evening. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. G. Cummings, and there were three papers, "Provisions for Homeless Children," "Child Labor" and "Training of Abnormal Children." The papers were exceedingly interesting and instructive, and showed a comprehensive knowledge of the subject.

The first paper on "Provisions for Homeless Children" was given by Miss Johnsor, of Wollaston. She spoke of the "Marcella Street Home" which was founded in 1887. It was a bare, desolate place and was not used after 1898. The office for the finding of homes for orphans and destitute children is now at 30 Tremont street.

Children whose case needs attention are placed in good families, some boarded, others taken free of charge and some working for their board. All must go to school and care is taken that they are placed in families where they may keep their own religion.

The children who are being cared for, come under four classes: the juvenile offenders of ages ranging from seven to seventeen, neglected children, dependent orphans and infants.

The good work is being carried on today by two Boston societies, the Massachusetts Infant Association and the Children's Aid, the latter keeping up the work of the former as soon as the children reach a certain age.

Many of the babies whose fathers or mothers have died are sent to the Massachusetts Infant Asylum at Jamaica Plain, if they cannot be cared for at home. A close investigation of the means of the parent or guardian is made and he or she pays what can be afforded.

The second paper on "Child Labor" was given by Miss Turner, of Wollaston. Miss Turner told briefly the state of affairs in this country in regard to "Child Labor," and read from several papers articles which illustrate its horrors.

In spite of the laws in regard to "Child Labor" many children of few years spend a great part of their time in work which ends in delinquency. Little boys from seven years of age sell papers and black boots on the streets of crowded cities. Hundreds of children all over the country are employed in the canning industry, glass making, cotton manufacture and so forth.

Some foreigners have no conception of the worth of education for their children and to evade the carefully made laws prevaricate in regard to the ages of their children.

Many cases of child labor have ended in crime and to pay for this the child has perhaps made fifteen or twenty cents a day.

During the last year 17,196 children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen were employed in Massachusetts factories.

After a short intermission the program was resumed with a paper on "Training of Abnormal Children" by Miss Adams of Quincy.

Miss Adams said that she was only going to speak about deaf children and she didn't like to call them abnormal. There are schools for deaf children all over the country. "The American Asylum" at Hartford, a school at Northampton and the "Horace Mann school" of Boston are a few of the most important in Massachusetts.

Miss Adams teacher in the Horace Mann school and she limited her talk to the children of this school. The school was intended for Boston children but as far away as Marblehead are represented there. For those children who do not live in Boston the state pays $105 per capita, and all transportation expenses annually.

There are three kinds of deaf children the deaf mutes who were born totally deaf, the semi deaf, whose hearing is affected in some way, and the semi mutes who have had perfect hearing and have become totally deaf. Miss Adams explained the methods of teaching the deaf children which are employed in the Horace Mann school and told and illustrated the difficulties of lip reading.

The music of the evening consisted of several selections by a chorus of twelve eighth grade pupils of the Wollaston school, and a solo by Master Fred Bullock. The music was in charge of Mrs. Moulton.

President Crocker appointed Mrs. Chandler N. Smith, Mr. Charles E. Finch and Mr. Lacey as a committee to nominate the officers for next year. Before adjournment, it was voted not to conclude the season with a banquet as has been the custom.

John S. Mitchell, granite salesman, returned Tuesday of this week from a business trip through New York and the middle states. He will leave tonight for several months trip, and intends to carry the name and fame of Quincy granite to states bordering upon the Pacific ocean.

The local markets are displaying early vegetables such as cucumbers, dandelions, etc.

Two years ago the Old Colony Trust Company erected at No. 52 Temple Place, midway between Tremont and Washington Streets, a four, story fire-proof building, which is entirely devoted to the uses of the Company.

The basement contains the safe deposit vaults; on the ground floor is the banking room; the second floor rooms, furnished with desks, stationery, magazines, telephones, etc., are reserved for women; while the committee rooms on the fourth floor are at the disposal of depositors and renters of safe deposit boxes. This branch office was established both for the use of business men in the neighborhood and to provide banking facilities for women in the shopping district.

Residents of towns surrounding Boston have found this office very useful. Signature cards are kept in duplicate, one at the main office in the Ames Building, and the other at the Temple Place office, so that deposits can be made and checks cashed at either office.

A pamphlet illustrating and describing the Temple Place office will be sent upon application.

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY . BOSTON

Danger In Artificial Extracts.

HOUSEWIVES ALWAYS AFRAID OF IMITATED FLAVORING.

At Last They Can Have the Natural Fruit in Liquid Form.

FOSS' PURE EXTRACTS OF VANILLA, LEMON and ORANGE.

Refuse all Unwholesome Imitations However Attractively Put Up.

The great difference between the best thing of its kind and the next best, is well shown in the case of Flavoring Extracts.

Now the very best extract, as illustrated by Foss' Vanilla, has the peculiar natural odor of the Vanilla Bean, and the delicate, delicious flavor that is unmistakable to those who have ever used the Vanilla Bean itself. But in the case of inferior and low grade Vanilla Extracts made hastily from poor and mouldy beans, colored by burnt sugar to deceive the housekeeper, a rank unpleasant flavor is had, which sets all the housewives skill and good-luck at naught.

The superiority of Foss' Vanilla over all other extracts is due in a measure to the extreme care that is taken in selecting the soundest, most perfect and finest flavored Vanilla Beans the world affords.

Secondly, all the virtue and flavor of the beans are taken out by a natural, slow process, that carefully preserves both the aroma and flavor.

Thirdly, there is absolutely no adulteration, either in strength or flavor. Thus Foss' Vanilla, for all those qualities which go to make up a perfect extract, has no equal.

There is something better than the old-fashioned artificial extracts. Foss' Extracts are fruits in liquid form. Not only are these modern extracts more delicate, purer and from every consideration of health more satisfactory, but they are much more economical, as less is required.

Mrs. Lincoln in her recipe for Ice Cream, on Page 364 of her Boston Cook Book, orders Foss' Pure Extract of Vanilla, simply because it is fruit in liquid form, and the best. Try it and you will agree with her.

Monday Evening Club.

At the meeting of the Atlantic Monday Evening club, March 6, Mr. Charles P. Sinnott, instructor in geography at the Bridgewater Normal School, spoke on "The Commercial Rivalry Among Nations." Mr. Sinnott had a splendid knowledge of his subject, and his comparisons were so simply yet fully and forcibly drawn that his audience gained a valuable knowledge of the relative commercial importance of the nations of the world.

Many friends and former pupils of Mr. Sinnott were present to whom the intermission afforded an opportunity for greetings.

The fifteen-miuute paper on "Taxation" was given by Mr. Theodore Parker. The subject was one difficult to treat in a popular manner, but the club, recognizing the vital interest of the theme, followed closely Mr. Parker's finely-prepared paper.

Mrs. Harry Read and Mr. Charles Cherrington had the music in charge. The club cordially welcomed as old friends Mr. and Mrs. Briggs (born Hattie Read) of Cambridge, and, as usual, greatly enjoyed their solos and duetts.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 20, when Mr. Henry Sherwin, chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission, will address the club on the "Practical Working of the Massachusetts Civil Service Law."

Miss Isabel F. P. Emery will read a fifteen-minute paper on "The Peace Conference of 1904."

Mrs. Sanford Small and Mr. James Churchill are the music committee for the evening.

The attendance at the last meeting was one hundred sixty-nine.

LATEST ENEMY

Seen on Goffe and Elm Streets.

Can Not be Met Too Quickly.

The Brown Tail Moth Has Begun Work in Quincy.

An active member of the Civic Commiteee of the new Quincy Women's club has discovered work which demands prompt attention. She writes as follows:

We are surprised and pained to learn that a persistent and insidious enemy has come to Quincy and is already busy in its work of destruction, and unless immediate and merciless action be taken, our beautiful trees must go, for this enemy is no other than the brown tail moth.

We have read with sincere sympathy the stories of the devastation brought about in other places by this deadly pest, and have congratulated ourselves that our city was spared, but now that we know our own danger there is only one thing to do and that is to face it and erradicate it without a moments delay.

It is said that this harmless looking insect multiplies so rapidly as to challenge belief, and that even the eggs are so imbued with life as to make it almost impossible to destroy them even by fire; but ways and means are known and understood by experts, and I am sure we will all agree that we should adopt the methods of other places where successful work has been done.

One of the greatest beauties of this historic city is its trees, and any menace to this beauty cannot be met too quickly or too strenuously. I am told that Elm and Goffe streets are both threatened and probably other streets as well.

To mention an evil, and not suggest a remedy, is folly, but I am convinced that the united wisdom and effort of the city officials, the schools, the Women's club and indeed of each individual property owner of Quincy is only needed to effectually stop the work of the brown tail moth. Money is needed—money is always needed to promote a good work—but the expense might be met if, with what the city could afford to appropriate, two hundred citizens would contribute one dollar each for this purpose. K.A.W.

DESTROY THE NESTS.

A gentleman greatly interested in Qnincy writes:

I am informed that the brown tail moth has begun to get a hold in Quincy, and has been discovered at several points. The only way to stop this pest is to destroy all nests wherever found, and everybody should take hold of this, especially the school children.

SPRAY THE TREES.

The Daily Ledger is informed to-day by a employe of a nursery, who knows well about the best method of exterminating the brown tail moth, that the best time to destroy them is just when the foliage is beginning to start in the spring and the bugs are beginning to come out of the nest. We can then spray the trees with a preparation that will kill the moth. They cannot be destroyed to advantage later.

The preparation above noted is composed by mixing a quart of kerosene to a barrel of soap and water, soap being put in to allow the kerosene to mix with the water properly. This can be sprayed with a force pump.

The Massachusetts Forestry association at 1118 Tremont building, Boston, could probably give any additional information necessary about the pest.

Y. M. C. A. Service.

Rev. W. W. Bustard, who is to address the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting tomorrow afternoon, is the popular young pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist church, who was, during his collegiate course at Brown University, best known for his marked ability in the athletics of the University, being an "all around crack man."

His Sunday afternoons have been entirely taken up this winter addressing men's meetings throughout the state. His subject will be "A Good Grip." All men are invited to hear him. Mr. A. L. Hayden will assist in in the service with vocal solos.

The Alliance.

A meeting of the Quincy Branch Alliance will be held Monday. March 13th, at three o'clock in the parlor of First Church.

The winter series of "Great Religions" will be continued. Miss Harriet Johnson of Boston will speak on the Gods of Greece and Rome.

Various important matters of interest to Unitarian women are to be considered and a large attendance is especially desired.

NOT OVERLOOKED.

More Trains for West Quincy by Spring Schedule.

There has been considerable complaint among West Quincy people because that section did not come in for a share of the additional train service and improvements. Because West Quincy is not to have additional train service just at present does not mean that it was forgotten by the committee.

There were a number of things that were asked for West Quincy. These included in addition to better train service, that depot should be better lighted; that it be kept open a half hour before train time up to 10 o'clock at night instead of being closed early in the evening; that something should be done to abolish the loafing nuisance; concrete walks and shelter over the walks in front of the depot, etc.

All of these things have been agreed to by Mr. Byrnes and will be granted immediately.

As for train service it was impossible at this time to do much in that line, but it was promised that West Quincy would be looked after when the spring time table was issued.

Pine Tree Club.

The meeting of the Pine Tree State Association which was held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chase, was very well attended notwithstanding the rain. The meeting was the largest of the winter, over fifty being present.

A fine musical program was very successfully rendered and greatly enjoyed by all. The reciting of one of Longfellow's beautiful poems by Master Elton Chase is also worthy of mention.

A table in the center of one room was graced with a large bouquet of pinks, directly from Maine; they were sent especially for the occasion.

Delicious refreshments were served.

The membership of the Pine Tree State Association is increasing, new members being added at each meeting. The members are making an effort to reach any people from Maine now residing in Quincy, who are not members of the association. Any such who will present themselves at the next meeting will receive a cordial welcome.

The next meeting will be held March 23, at 65 Independence avenue.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

THE SNAKE LAUGHS HIMSELF TO DEATH

"Please don't eat me!" said Mr. Frog as he was grabbed up by Mr. Snake.

"Well, I am really not hungry," said Mr. Snake, "and I'll make you a proposition. If you will tell me a good funny story, I will let you go."

So Mr. Frog sent for all his friends, and he gave each of them a tickle stick. Mr. Snake stretched himself straight out on the ground, and there was a long row of frogs with tickle straws on each side of him.

"LEMME SEE," SAID MR. FROG.

"Lemme see," said Mr. Frog reflectively.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Mr. Snake, and all the frogs tickled him with their tickle straws.

"Once upon a time," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him! Tickle him!" he cried to the frogs. "There was a man."

"He! he! he! hi! hi! hi!" laughed Mr. Snake.

"He lived in a little red house," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him! Tickle him!"

"Ho! ho! ho! hu! hu! hu!" laughed Mr. Snake.

"On a hill," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him! Tickle him!"

"Hi! he! ho! ho! hi! he!" laughed Mr. Snake.

"And a lightning bug flew in the window," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him!"

"Hiyi! hiye! hiyi!" laughed Mr. Snake.

"And set fire to the house," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him! Tickle him!"

"Hahaha! hahaha! hahahi!" laughed Mr. Snake.

"And the man put out the fire with a bucket of soup," said Mr. Frog. "Tickle him! Tickle him!"

Now, this was so absolutely funny to Mr. Snake and the frogs jabbed him so fiercely in the ribs with their tickle straws that he went into regular spasms of laughter, twisting up into knots and squirming around on the ground until he got tied up so that he was simply choked to death.

All of which shows that you should never let any one tickle you when he is telling a funny story.—Detroit Journal.

Judicial Bonds

When called upon to give bonds in Judicial Proceedings, apply to the American Surety Company.

Should you require Probate Bonds, or Bonds in Insolvency Proceedings, we will provide them on the shortest notice, and without red tape.

We also issue the various Court Bonds used in the collection of debts and the recovery of damages, and, through our agents, will furnish them quickly to responsible parties at any point in the United States.

The fact that many of these bonds involve great risk, forms a strong argument against their being assumed by personal sureties.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey.

"I congratulate you on your cleverness, Mr. Bawdsey," said Brendon when he had somewhat recovered. "You have discovered my secret. I should like to know how you discovered it."

"Well," said Bawdsey, pushing the wardrobe back to its place with an effort, "you see when I learned through the advertisement that George Brendon was the grandson of Lord Derrington I told him of it. He related your history."

"Including the murder of my father?"

"Yes, including that," replied Bawdsey, with a queer expression, "but that has nothing to do with the matter in hand, Mr. Brendon."

"I'm not so sure," retorted George. "I should not be at all surprised to find that Mrs. Jersey was murdered to keep her quiet on that point."

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, she was in San Remo at the time my father was murdered. She loved him, and I dare say, in spite of having been discharged, watched him. She might know who the lady in blue—But I forgot, you are ignorant of all these things."

"Not at all. Don't I tell you that Lord Derrington told me the whole story? I see what you mean. You think that Mrs. Jersey might know who killed your father, and for the sake of shutting her up the assassin committed the second murder."

"That is my idea," said George coolly.

"It's ingenious, but it won't hold water. However, we can talk of that on another occasion. In the meantime I wish to tell you how I discovered the secret door."

"There's no need to. Derrington told you that I knew this house, as my grandfather had brought me up in it. When you knew through Mrs. Ward that I had passed a night here and learned through her, by means of Train, that the yellow holly berry had been found in the woman's sitting room, you set to work to find out how I escaped from this room. You knew that Train had locked the door."

"Yes," answered Bawdsey, "he told Mrs. Ward that."

"He seems to have told her everything. However, to make a long story short, you hunted for an exit and you found it."

"That's so," replied Bawdsey quietly. "And now we had better return to the sitting room and talk over the matter quietly."

"One moment," said George, "have you told Lord Derrington or Mrs. Ward of this discovery?"

"No, and I won't tell them, either. I wish to get you out of trouble, Mr. Brendon. They haven't the least idea that you could leave the room, and the impression with them is that Train is screening you. If I am to help you I must know all."

"Then you shall know—whatever I can tell you." George hesitated, and Bawdsey guessed that he was not going to be so frank as was necessary. However, he made no remark, and Brendon continued: "I came to this house to see Mrs. Jersey and get the truth out of her. It was my intention to speak to her the next morning. However, in the drawing room she stated that she wished the company to disperse at 10 o'clock, as she had business to attend to. Also, she came up to this room to see if I and my friend were in bed at 11. I guessed that she intended to see some one, and, wondering if the expected person had anything to do with my business, I determined to see her on that night. When Train was asleep I locked my bedroom door and made use of the cupboard. As a boy I discovered the cupboard, and I am ashamed to say that I sometimes made use of it in my teens to go to the theater unbeknown to my grandfather. On that night I used it again and went to the sitting room of Mrs. Jersey. It was about 12 o'clock. The door of the room was closed. I opened it and saw her sitting at the table, dead, as she was discovered in the morning. In stooping over her to see if she still breathed the berry must have fallen."

"What did you do after you found that the woman was dead?"

"I returned to my bedroom and said nothing about it. You see, since I wanted something from Mrs. Jersey, and that desire might have come out in the evidence, there was every chance that I would be accused of having murdered her. There was certainly motive enough."

"I don't agree with you," replied Bawdsey; "however, I quite understand that under the circumstances you lost your nerve. You returned to your room and expressed suitable surprise the next morning."

George nodded. "Quite so, and then Train's having locked this door made me think that all was safe. Had he not told"—

"Oh, he has told very little," rejoined Bawdsey. "After all, nothing can be done if I hold my tongue."

"Nothing will be done in any case," said George grimly, "but I thank you for warning me, Mr. Bawdsey. What are your plans?"

"I have none at present. Lord Derrington asked me to watch you."

"That you certainly have done, and if you choose you can go on watching me. But why do you stop in this house?"

"Oh, I knew Mrs. Jersey some years ago and returned here for old times' sake."

George shrugged his shoulders. He felt convinced that Bawdsey was not speaking openly. But then Brendon, on his part, had held something back. Neither man was sufficiently sure of the other to be perfectly frank.

George rose to go.

"Well, how do we stand?" asked Bawdsey.

"Much as we did before," replied George, "save that I know you will hold your tongue and not get me into trouble."

"I shall certainly do that. But remember Mrs. Ward."

"Lord Derrington can stop her mouth."

"Ah, but will he?" asked Bawdsey dubiously.

"I shall call on Lord Derrington and see," answered Brendon, and, with a nod, left the room.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit. Mich.

PASSING OF OKLAHOMA

Celebration to Mark Territory's Farewell to Old Life.

SPECTACULAR AFFAIR PLANNED.

At 101 Ranch In Oklahoma Typical Scenes of Early Life Among Indians Will Be Shown—Cowboys to Ride, and Buffalo Meat Will Be Served at Monster Barbecue.

General Miller, one of the three brothers who own the famous 101 ranch in Oklahoma, whose annual celebrations have become famous, has recently been staying in Hot Springs, Ark., as the guest of Colonel William Maurice, says a Hot Springs correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Plans for this year's celebration, which will take place June 11, have been made on a scale which surpasses everything heretofore attempted, 2,500 guests being expected to attend. In conversation Mr. Miller stated:

"It is anticipated that fully 25,000 people will be there to attend the celebration, and the entertainment prepared will be something the like of which has never been attempted before. The event will symbolize the passing of Oklahoma as a territory. Chiefs representing every tribe of Indians in existence have signified their intention of attending. A great buffalo will be killed. Beeves will also be killed, and a great barbecue will be held at which thousands of people will be fed. There are at present twenty-one buffaloes at the 101 ranch.

"The following tribes of Indians will have representatives in attendance: Sioux, Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Caddoes, Utes, Ponces, Missouras, Osages, Kaws, Nez Perces and Otoes. The Indians will participate in the buffalo hunt and will also have a part in the remainder of the programme.

"The National Editorial association will hold its annual convention at this time and will attend the celebration with 600 delegates.

"The greatest thing on the programme will be the representation of the evolution of Oklahoma. The good-by to the old life as a territory and its greetings as a state will be given. This will be a spectacular affair which the people will travel hundreds of miles to see. The first part will be a portrayal of Indian life in the territory's earliest days. The Indian will be seen moving his tepee across the country on the drag poles with the bands of squaws in the rear.

"The second part of the programme will introduce the scouting parties and soldiers of the army. Then will come herds of cattle and 'cow punchers,' also the buffalo. At this celebration will be seen probably for the last time a herd of 5,000 cattle.

"Next will be seen the old fashioned stagecoach which was used in crossing the prairies. The farm wagons will then come and last of all the automobiles.

"Another feature of the programme which will attract thousands will be a representation of the opening of the Cherokee strip. Hundreds of vehicles of all kinds, horseback riders and every method used in the run for the claims will be on hand at a given time, and at a signal the run for the homesteads will be made. This will give those who failed to witness the famous run a chance to realize what it must have been like. Other features have been arranged, and little in the line of entertainment will be lacking. There are 400 men employed on the 101 ranch, and this day is their annual holiday."

"SOLESTRY" A BOSTON FAD.

Lines on Soles of the Feet Interest Society Women.

Boston society has a new fad, and the fad keeps society women very busy these days, says a special dispatch to the New York Press. It is called "solestry," or the science of character reading by means of the lines on the soles of the feet. Corns and bunions are barred and don't count. Solestry has become very popular with women who like to pry into the future. It is the sister branch of the art of palmistry, and Miss Ethel H. Saunders of Boston is one of the pioneers in the cult.

"It is a very old science," she said the other night, "but not for obvious reasons so well known as palmistry, but a subtle and fascinating study, well worth the time and attention of any one interested in the occult sciences. A foot sole covered with a fine network of lines indicates a high strung, nervous temperament and the absence of such lines the reverse. To the young woman with the large star on the hollow of the sole I say beware. It is one of the worst signs, for it indicates marriage to one who will bring unhappiness and perhaps poverty and disgrace. Then there are other signs, the shape of the feet indicating character, while stars, crosses, circles and arrows on the feet all have their significance."

Track Clearer For Automobiles.

On the principle that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," a Boston genius has designed a new form of guard to protect pneumatic tires from puncture, says the Automobile. The device consists of a series of V shaped steel pieces connected by a central bar and dragged on the road just in front of the rear tire by means of a chain attached to the fender or other convenient support. The action is similar to that of a snowplow, small loose objects being thrown aside clear of the tire.

WITH EIGHT WORDS

Kuropatkin Sends Sorrowful News to the Czar

A PERIOD OF SUSPENSE

St Petersburg In the Dark as to Extent of Disaster In Manchuria--Its Effect on Internal Disorders Is Dreaded

St. Petersburg, March 11.—"Last night all our armies commenced to retreat."

The greatest defeat in the history of the Russo-Japanese war was made known in St. Petersburg last night, but only in the paltry eight words from General Kuropatkin to Emperor Nicholas, which were flung about the streets in newspaper extras and passed from mouth to mouth. Two thoughts formed instantly in the minds of everyone, and two words were on every lip—surrender—peace—the former dreaded, the latter hoped.

General Kuropatkin is no maker of phrases; his words never are quoted like the famous "all is lost save honor," but his laconic message hides more than probably any other sentence in the literature of war. St. Petersburg knows nothing of the extent of the disaster, not even the lines of Kuropatkin's retreat; whether the route to Tie pass is still open, whether he is endeavoring to cut his way through to safety, or whether, as many of the pessimistic believe, he has taken to the mountains. If it be the latter he will inevitably be hemmed in and starved into surrender.

The dispatch has been studied as closely as was ever the most abstruse text of Scripture over which dogmaticians have wrestled, and from the words "all our armies" the optimistic draw the deduction that the bulk of the Russian forces got away clear, the commander-in-chief sacrificing, however, the devoted rear guard, who flung themselves as prey to the Japanese wolves, who were closing in on their trail, and sacrificing also, it is conceded on every hand, the greater part of his heavy artillery, especially the siege guns, and enormous quantities of supplies and munitions.

Of the present situation of the army—whether it is utterly routed or merely beaten; of the proportion of Russians left in Japanese hands, or of the prospect of the escape of the remainder—St. Petersburg at this moment knows less than the smallest hamlet in America.

Everyone is now discussing peace, which many of the staunchest advocates of the war, bureaucrats and officers, now declare to be inevitable. It is openly bruited that Rojestvensky's fleet has been recalled and is now on the way homeward. It can be stated, however, that no overtures for peace have yet been made and none are likely to be made for a few days, before the extent of the disaster has developed.

Aside from peace, defeat may bring other consequences in its train. That an enormous impetus has been given to the reform movement is plain to even the most reactionary conservatives; but the immediate result chiefly dreaded is the effect on internal disorders, not only in the capital, but also, since St. Petersburg is not Russia, upon the millions of peasants in the vast agricultural regions, among whom the spirit of revolt is now incubating and already has hatched pillage and arson in a few districts.

Outwardly St. Petersburg takes the defeat unconcernedly. A stranger in the streets would never know that armies defending the honor and prestige of Russia had just sustained a crushing reverse. The government made no attempt to palliate the shock or explain the significance of the retreat, but simply sent the dispatch, when it was issued by the general staff late in the evening, direct to the papers with authorization to print.

Generally the defeat cuts deeply and is keenly felt, especially by families represented in the endangered army. The spirit of unpatriotic exultation will do the Liberals no good this time, as the defeat, which one Russian correspondent describes as "slaughter, not battle," entails the sacrifice of so many thousands of Russian lives that the people fear to count up their losses. It is realized that in the fighting before Mukden was evacuated the death roll of the battle of Shakhe must have been far exceeded, and the streets of St. Petersburg, where now every third woman wears crepe, will present a sombre sight when the casualty lists arrive.

The Business Outlook

New York, March 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that confidence has become more general through resumption of outdoor work, opening of spring trade and expectation that the war will soon terminate. Weather conditions are favorable in most sections of the country.

Church Declared Unsafe

New York, March 11.—The Fifth Avenue Baptist church has been declared to be unsafe, after investigation. No more services will be held in it until repairs are made. The church is the one where John D. Rockefeller, Jr., conducts a Bible class.

Many Miners Killed In Explosion

Cardiff, March 11.—A terrible explosion has occurred in the Cambrian colliery, in the Rhondda valley. It is feared that 20 or 30 miners have been killed. The pit is afire. Many of those rescued from the mine are badly burned.

MEN ARE RETURNING

New York Elevated and Subway Strike Is Almost Broken

New York, March 11.—Although the local leaders are continuing the fight, despite the fact that the national leaders have repudiated their action in calling the men out, the strike on the subway and elevated system has passed the acute stage, and trains are run with little delay. The strike breakers are quickly learning their new duties, while a number of the old men are back in the positions which they left on Tuesday morning last. Some 300 men in all were reinstated. The company states that not more than ½ of 1 percent of the strikers will be re-engaged.

Discouragement, discontent and upbraiding of their leaders characterized last night's slimly attended meetings of the strikers. Some questions were asked of Jencks and Pepper, the strike leaders, but they elicited only the stock replies. To "what are we going to do?" of the men, they replied: "We'll pull you through; everything is going splendidly; we've got them licked so badly that they don't know where they're at."

Shipping Clerk Weds Heiress

Boston, March 11.—The fashionable Gilman school on Commonwealth avenue was thrown into perturbation yesterday by the discovery that one of the star pupils was no longer Miss Elizabeth Chase, heiress to $1,000,000, but Mrs. Victor D. Papineau, with a 17-year-old husband. She is 19. Both the contracting parties came from Webster, Mass. Papineau is the son of Dr. L. J. Papineau and is employed as a shipping clerk in this city. The bride is the daughter and sole heiress of the late Frederick T. Chase, the millionaire mill owner of Webster.

Awaiting Court's Answer

Denver, March 11.—Further consideration of the Peabody and Adams gubernatorial contest has been postponed by the general assembly until Monday next for the purpose of obtaining an opinion from the state supreme court as to the right of the joint convention to declare a vacancy in the office of governor and the effects of such an action. Three questions were submitted to the court, the answers to which may have an important bearing on the decision of the contest.

Yale Wins at Wrestling

New Haven, March 11.—Yale and Columbia wrestlers met last night for their second wrestling contest, six matches being scheduled, of which Yale won three and Columbia two, the other one being a draw after three 10-minute bouts. From the point of view of good wrestling, the heavyweight contest between F. S. Escheverria of Columbia and W. S. Howe of Yale was excellent, the former winning by two falls to Howe's one.

Hotel Man's Fat Reward

New York, March 11.—The supreme court has handed down a decision affirming the judgment of the lower court in awarding to John H. Atwood the entire sum of $5000 which had been offered as a reward for the arrest of Cornelius L. Alvord, Jr., the paying teller of the First National bank of the city of New York. Atwood was the proprietor of a small hotel in Boston, where Alvord stopped after his flight in 1900.

Alleged Confession Doubted

Somerville, Mass., March 11.—The police of this city are holding Frank Burns, who says that he is wanted in New York for the larceny of a diamond brooch, valued at $4000, which, he says, he snatched from a woman coming out of the Empire theatre on the evening of Feb. 9 or 10.

New York, March 11.—The New York police deny knowledge of any robbery such as is described by Burns.

Charge Not Sustained

Boston, March 11.—Lawyer F. W. Peabody and W. G. Nixon, a promoter, charged with the larceny of $2500 by false pretences from Edward W. Parker of Little Rock, were discharged in court yesterday by Judge Adams. It was alleged that the defendants had induced Parker to invest $2500 by false pretences in a match-making machine investment.

Want Ticket Scalpers Enjoined

Chicago, March 11.—Charging that the ticket scalpers of the United States have combined in a trust for mutual protection and promotion of the sale of cut rate tickets, officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company have filed a bill in the United States circuit court seeking an injunction against 67 ticket brokers.

What Santo Domingo Owes

Washington, March 11.—Data compiled by Senator Morgan relating to the debts of Santo Domingo and negotiations that have been had looking to their settlement has been printed by the senate as a public document. It gives the total indebtedness of Santo Domingo as $24,643,387.

QUEER FINANCES

Mrs Chadwick Got $104,000 From Bank In One Day

THE LAW WAS VIOLATED

Bank Could Legally Loan but $6000 to One Person--Woman Did Not Have Any Money on Deposit In the Institution

Cleveland, March 11.—Today will see the close of the present trial of Mrs. Chadwick and the case probably will be given to the jury sometime during the afternoon. Just before adjourning court yesterday, Judge Tayler announced that it was his intention to keep at the present case until it is finished, and he directed that all other court business be passed until Monday morning.

The entire day was given over to arguments, half of the total number having been disposed of. These, however, were but the light artillery, and the oratorical siege guns will be in use today. Assistant District Attorney Garry spoke in the morning and Judge Wing, for Mrs. Chadwick, took up all of the afternoon with the exception of one-half hour just before adjournment, which was taken by J. P. Dawley, senior counsel for the defense, who is to deliver the main argument for Mrs. Chadwick. After him will come District Attorney Sullivan, who will close for the government.

It was a trying day for Mrs. Chadwick and her pale face and nervous manner showed that the strain of the trial is telling on her. During the greater part of the afternoon she sat back in her chair as if greatly exhausted. The attack made by Garry upon her financial methods disturbed her greatly. When he showed the jury by her own checks, that without any money in the bank, she had secured loans amounting to $187,000, and $104,000 of it in one day, when the total amount which the bank could legally loan to one person was but $6000, the prisoner sank back in her chair as if she believed that the statements of the attorney must have great effect on the minds of the jurymen.

She was greatly discouraged at the time of the midday adjournment, and said: "I have about given up all hope. I haven't any chance in this court."

During the afternoon when her own attorneys were making arguments she brightened up much. Her troubles will not be over, however, even if acquitted in the present case. District Attorney Sullivan said that in that event he would probably bring about a second trial on another indictment immediately.

Judge Wing, in speaking for Mrs. Chadwick, elaborated at length the theory held by the defense from the beginning of the trial, that Mrs. Chadwick could not be guilty of conspiracy because she had not entered any prearrangement to commit an offense. Whether or not she did commit the offense, he said, was not the point at issue. The claim of the government was that she had agreed with Spear to certify checks. She had procured their certification, but she had not arranged for it, prior to the time of asking that the checks be certified.

This assertion brought on a colloquy between the attorney and Judge Tayler which at times bordered on the psychological. "Supposing," said the judge, "that a man having no money in a bank comes to the cashier of that bank and asks him to certify a check and the cashier certifies it. Do you claim that there is no conspiracy? No agreement to certify?"

"I claim that there is no conspiracy," replied the attorney. "The commission of the act may be wrong, but there is no previous arrangement. The agreement is simultaneous with the act and there can be no conspiracy."

"Don't you think," asked Judge Tayler, "that there are two distinct operations of mind involved? Before the cashier agrees to certify he decides in his own mind that he will certify, and for an instant before he performs the act of certification the mind of the man who asked the certification and the mind of the man who makes the certification are in accord. When he agrees to grant the request, is there no agreement?"

"I hold," replied Judge Wing, "that all things at that time are involved in the commission of the act, and that there is no agreement to commit any offense."

In the afternoon Judge Wing carefully analyzed the evidence submitted by the government, claiming throughout that, while it might prove that Mrs. Chadwick secured the certification of the checks when she had no money in the bank, it failed utterly to show that she had arranged in advance to secure the certification.

The Congress of Mothers

Washington, March 11.—The triennial convention of the national congress of mothers, which is to continue with daily sessions for a week, began here last night with a general meeting. The attendance was very encouraging and the expectation is that the present gathering will be a notably successful one.

Destructive Prairie Fire

Ellendale, N. D., March 11.—A great prairie fire has just swept past this place. Many thousand tons of hay have been destroyed and thousands of head of stock have been burned to death. Many farm houses in the path of the fire have been destroyed.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Those who make no sacrifice receive no appreciable blessing. This is the law of grace. This is the law of justice.—Rev. Father Haslam, Roman Catholic, Chicago.

Making the Best of Things.

You never make the best of things until you make the best out of things or, better still, until you make things the best.—Rev. Frank Newhall White, Congregationalist, Chicago.

Expressions of Gratitude.

High thinking, noble living, humble searching for the true life—these are the expressions of gratitude that are most pleasing to God. In them is the hope of the nation.—Rabbi Stern, Washington.

Music of Our Lives.

Life's music is never in the white keys nor black, but in the soul that sweeps them with skilled fingers. Rail not at the keys, but gird your soul to the divine mastery.—Rev. Gardiner S. Eldridge, Methodist, Brooklyn.

A Church's Strength.

The strength of the church is not merely in the foundation. It is in the superstructure, not merely in the gravity of faith which holds the building to the ground, but in the cohesion of love, which binds its parts together.—Rev. Dr. Harry P. Dewey, Episcopalian, New York.

A Definition of Religion.

Religion is not a slippered, cushioned, cloistered refuge from life's turmoil; it is not a sugared hocus pocus, as the latest religious fad of the boulevards would have us believe; it is not only something to live by, it is something to die for.—Rev. Dr. Frank Crane, Unitarian, Worcester, Mass.

Soul Introspection.

Every man owes it to himself to thoughtfully review life and examine his inmost thoughts. Every man should live for the best that is in him. The duty to do that is an imperative command that thunders loudly through the chambers of conscience.—Rev. J. H. Boyd, Presbyterian, Evanston, Ill.

Responsibility as a Tonic.

Observation and experience tell us there is no tonic like responsibility. Men are accountable not simply for the seeds they sow, but for the bundles and sheaves that are reaped, and this thought of responsibility for the harvest sobers men and braces them.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

Love's Power.

Love is a power because it is intense. All other powers fail. Pharaoh had numbers, Alexander had skill, Napoleon had both, yet all three failed in the great expectation of their lives. The kingdoms which they sought to establish have vanished from the earth. But Christ adds daily to his conquests through the power of love.—Rev. Louis M. Potashinsky, Baptist, Pueblo, Colo.

A Christian's Great Duty.

Character building is the first great duty of a Christian. An important consideration is to examine the foundation before beginning to build. Paul covered the ground for all time when he said, "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Not only is the development of Christian character demanded of every Christian, but for this every Christian is now held responsible personally.—Rev. Z. M. Silbaugh, Methodist, Pittsburg.

The Value of Praying.

Prayer is the noblest and most sublime act in which man can be engaged, because it exercises the highest faculties of the soul, the intellect and the will. It brings us in communication with the greatest of beings, God himself. It is the channel of heaven's choicest blessings. It gives all access to our heavenly Father at all times, in all places and under all circumstances. In a word, prayer renders us co-operative with our Creator in the moral government of the world, since many of the events of life are shaped by our entreaties. The affairs of mankind are decreed from all eternity, and the eternal decrees themselves are determined by the prayers of his servants. Prayer moves the hand that moves the universe.—Cardinal James Gibbons, Roman Catholic, Baltimore.

Many Incarnations.

Incarnation is limited only by capacity to hold the divine. I think of it in this way: Along our 26,000 miles of seacoast how many bays and inlets there are! Each has a separate name, as though each were separate and distinct from every other. And yet all are at one with the great ocean that sweeps into them all with its tides. There are countless forms of creation. We give them separate names, as though each were separate and distinct from every other. And yet all are at one with the divine presence that sweeps into them all and fills them as full as each can hold of God's being. In the lower inlets, far down the coasts of creation, he sweeps as force, energy. Into another inlet farther up he sweeps as life as well as force, and there are grasses, trees and the flowers of the field. Near by is another and larger inlet of the animal world, and here the divine tides of life rise higher. And then still farther up is the glorious inlet of human souls, and with what a mighty sweep the divine tides pour in! Here is the highest, hollest incarnation. Here are thought and moral will and noble aspiration. Here the capacity to hold the divine seems to have no limits. Thus is God with us. All these inlets differ only in capacity to hold the divine. God is no more truly in one than in another, but in each there is so much of God as its nature can hold, and in humanity that capacity is at its largest and highest. For that reason humanity is son of God.—Rev. Minot Simons, Unitarian, Cleveland, O.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Henry E. Smith of Pratt avenue, North Weymouth, moved to this city early in the week.

Twenty-one new members were received at the Water Street Presbyterian church last Sunday.

The Wollaston Glee club is preparing for their seventh annual concert to be given the last of this month.

A meeting will be held in the Baptist church, Wollaston, on Monday afternoon, to organize a "Mothers' club."

J. W. Stancombe who has been quite seriously ill, was taken to the Quincy Hospital last evening, where a speedy recovery is hoped for.

A business meeting of those persons interested in forming a Mothers' Club, will be held in the Baptist Church, Wollaston, on Monday at 3 P. M. All women interested in this work are invited to attend.

Miss Savil will speak on "Cotton" to the Reapers of Christ church and their friends at the residence of George H. Brown, Elm street, this evening. There will also be music appropriate to the Lenten season.

The preacher at the Wednesday evening service at St. Chrysostom's church next week will be the Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, archdeacon of the diocese. A large part of the choir, both men and boys, have volunteered to sing at these services during Lent.

The Young People's Religious Union of the First church will meet Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the church parlor. Alan Arnold has charge, the subject being "Success." Papers will be read by members of the union. A large attendance is desired.

The series of entertainment by the First Church Social club comes to an end next week Friday evening when a dance will be held at Faxon hall. In the course were three dances, a children's party which closed with a dance, a pop concert, dramatics and a vaudeville entertainment. The attendance has been large especially at the entertainments.

For several months the Fragment society of First church has been preparing for a fair and next Wednesday afternoon and evening the chapel will present a pretty scene with beautifully decorated booths laden with articles fancy, useful and desirable. A specialty has been made of handmade underwear and the mystery and homemade candy booths always attract.

The house of Caleb Chase on Beacon street, Brookline, was entered Sunday morning but nothing was taken as the coachman heard them and attempted unsuccessfully to capture them. This is the second time the house has been entered by burglars, the first time over $3,000 worth of plate and jewelry were carried off. The Chases are relatives of the James Stetsons of this city.

The annual social of First Church Sunday school was held in the chapel on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. The children were amused with games etc., until the march to supper which was served at six o'clock. Six hundred sandwiches and gallons of hot chocolate were quickly consumed as was also the delicious ice cream contributed by Mr. Faxon and the abundance of cake. It was a grand good time for the children.

—The Winthrop church at Holbrook has called Rev. J. O. Paisley of Cambridge as pastor.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Maxine Elliott, in the successful Clyde Fitch comedy, "Her Own Way" will return to the Hollis Street theatre Monday, March 13th for a two week's engagement, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The return of Miss Elliott in day this comedy, which enjoyed the prestige of a run at four different theatres in New York in succession, and which scored one of the pronounced hits of the year at the Hollis last season, is one of the important events of the season, and the box office indications are that Miss Elliott's engagement will be quite as successful as it was a year ago. Miss Elliott has just concluded a long tour to the Pacific Coast, and has presented, "Her Own Way" in every important city of the country with uniform success. It is announced that this will be her farewell Boston appearance in "Her Own Way." "Her Own Way" is a story of modern life, and the characters are all representative American types, such as one might meet in real life. The atmosphere and treatment are distinctively American. Georgiana Carley, played by Miss Elliott, is a splendid type of the modern independent American girl, while the role of Dick Coleman, her lover, and Sam Coast, the unscrupulous millionaire, are true examples of reality.

PARK THEATRE.

The eminent English comedian, Charles Hawtrey will be seen at the Park Theatre Boston, for two weeks only, beginning March 13. Two years ago Mr. Hawtrey achieved a phenomenal success with this comedy at the Boston Museum, where it was played for seven weeks to audiences that taxed the capacity of that historic playhouse. Its success here has been followed by two runs in New York which together with its first season in that city make a record of over 325 performances In all, Mr. Hawtrey has acted the part of the hero, Horace Parker more than 1400 times, and the play has been presented in every English-speaking country. The piece starts in briskly and runs along swiftly and smoothly to the end. It constantly keeps the attention and it has the great merit of teaching its morality in a comdey vein. It has little of the melodramatic about it; that which might perhaps at first be considered of this quality is really of a spectacular sort. "A Message from Mars" is certainly unique. Mechanical device are admirably used to point the moral and adorn the tale. The dialogue is of the brightest, snappiest sort, with many a delightful turn and twist. Matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

COLUMBIA MUSIC HALL.

One of the oldest and most famous of all the big burlesque companies, The Black Crook, Jr., is at the Columbia this week, and patrons of the handsomest burlesque theatre in the world are enjoying a veritable treat in the way of lovely women, funny comedians and catchy music. The production has an elaborate vestment of special scenery and costumes, and is, in fact, one of the most gorgeous burlesque shows ever given at this theatre. For next week the Metropolitan burlesquers, another splendid company, is announced. With them comes a European sensation, Henrietta de Serris, basreliefs and living statuary, their first appearance in America.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The first of the big musical productions to be made in Boston this season is "The Filibuster" which will be given for the first time (by a professional company) at the Majestic Theatre on March 20. It will be recalled that this is the comic opera in which the Bank Officers scored such a great success a short time ago. Since then, however, the book has been completely rewritten and altered to suit the needs of a professional organization — there being necessary limitation to an amateur production. The story has been changed, several of the characters eliminated and others added. It is needless to add that the changes are all for the better—indeed, the new book is said to so sparkle with brilliancy and fun that the amateur one seems tame by comparison. William Loraine has gone over the musical score and added several new numbers, notably a new waltz song with a catchy refrain which Miss Louise Gunning will sing in the last act. A company of exceptional ability has been gathered together by Manager Rork. There will be a chorus of 60 pretty girls and six lively young women will give the "Julep Dance," which promises to be a sensation.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The program at Keith's Theatre for the week of March 13 will contain a number of attractions of special interest to juvenile theatregoers, beside the usual strong list of vaudeville entertainers. Heading the bill is Harry Howard's troupe of trained ponies and dogs, one of the most attractive animal acts in the varieties.

Jewell's electric manikins is the greatest miniature theatre exhibited on the stage in this country. Included in the surrounding show are the Village Choir, a mixed quartet of talented vocalists late of "Way Down East" company; Hill and Silviany, who present a most sensational bicycle act; John Zimmer, skilful Juggler of rubber balls; Loney Haskell, one of the brightest monologue comedians and parody singers in vaudeville; Martain Brothers, expert xylophone players; the "Female drummer" quartet, a pleasing organization of colored vocalists and Burton and Brooks, in the amusing comedy sketch, "A Can of Humor". The ever-enterest. ing biograph will show an entire new list of motion pictures. Underlined for the week of March 20 are the Six Musical Cuttys, one of the best instrumental organizations in America.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Following closely on the heels of a vaudeville show which for every quality desirable in high class vaudeville won universal approval, will come another, at the Empire theatre, formerly Boston Music Hall, the week of March 13. That the Empire theatre is making an enviable reputation by reason of the splendid entertainments which it is offering week after week cannot be denied; in fact the daily attendance at this popular and handsome place of amusement is the best commendation it could have. And the further fact that a noteworthy proportion of this attendance, especially at the matinees, is composed of children, is of significance to parents who desire an eminently clean and wholesome resort in which the little ones may be amused. The artistic event of the vaudeville season, to date, will be the presentation of 'The Queen's Fan," the daintiest conceit ever offered in the varieties. This operetta has some distinguished names connected with it.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The announcement of a revival of Boucicault's famous Irish play "The Colleen Bawn" at the Castle Square theatre next week will be pleasant news for the patrons of this play house. The rare skill of Boucicault in showing the characteristics of the Irish peasantry finds a brilliant example in this interesting drama and the love story it tells is as attractive today as when it was a novelty to play goers of a generation ago. "The Colleen Bawn" is announced for only one week, with the usual free distribution of souvenir boxes of chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee and on Monday, March 20th the Castle Square company of players will be seen in one of the most elaborate productions of "Romeo and Juliet" seen here in recent years.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Klaw & Erlanger's wonderful production of "Humpty Dumpty" will be seen at the Colonial Theatre in a limited engagement, beginning Monday, March 20th, with matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays, and the engagement will offer the only opportunity to people of New England to witness the greatest spectacle ever presented on any stage in the world. The company contains over 400 artists, and the scenery, costumes and electrical and mechanical devices, fill six sixty-feet baggage cars.

"Humpty Dumpty" is admittedly the greatest indoor entertainment in the world, and its scale is one of such elaborate splendor as to baffle all description. The production cost over $109,000, and its many scenes are of the most wonderful character.

WAR ON MOTH.

Need of Prompt and Active Work.

Good Suggestions of Atlantic Man.

The City and All Citizens Should Be Interested.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The article in your issue of March 10 on the brown-tail moth, calls attention to a condition of things evidently not fully realized and already long neglected by the people generally. Though we are not threatened with famine or pestilential disease, still the presence of this insect is a fact not pleasant to contemplate, and vigorous and concerted action in regard to the matter is essential to the best interests of the city, and the comfort and well being of its people.

Winter nests of the brown-tail may be seen on trees in all parts of the city, but Houghs Neck and Quincy Point seem to have had the heaviest visitation. Nearly two hundred were taken recently from seven pear trees in the Fore River district. These nests are occupied by from fifty to two hundred and fifty young moths, hatched from eggs which were deposited in the late summer and early fall of last year. As soon as the leaf-buds break these worms spread over the tree and begin their work of devastation. If undisturbed they, in their turn, will become parents and in another year will have multiplied many fold.

If, like the tent-caterpillar, they confined their work to one section of the tree they might be reached after leaving the nest; but as they are upon every part of the tree, the proposition becomes a more serious one, if left until then. The nests which are plainly visible while the tree is bare are usually upon the extremity of a twig and may be cut off without mutilating the tree to any great extent.

Dr. W. G. Kendall, Thomas Gurney and W. B. Glover of Atlantic, who take great interest in and care vigilantly for their trees, have had the nests taken off and destroyed. Perry Green of the Monatiquot greenhouses and Mr. Smith of the Vermont house have taken similar action. Doubtless others have been awake to the situation and taken proper action.

Fear trees seem to be the first choice of this insect with apple trees a good second. Stone fruits such as cherries, plums and peaches are almost entirely free from them in Quincy at present.

By providing himself with a Waters' tree pruner, having a ten foot pole and costing one dollar, any owner or tenant of a place having trees could get off the nests himself, or he could hire a man who was used to the work and had the proper appliances. In this way most of the fruit trees in Quincy could be cleaned of the brown-tail moth's nests, at a comparatively small outlay to each owner and the more elaborate and expensive method of spraying, to a great extent be avoided.

The shade trees present a more difficult proposition to deal with. The maples are not as a rule infested, but the elms contain a great many nests many of which are in the highest places and upon the extreme tips of the branches. These can be reached only by expert tree climbers furnished with proper equipment.

The outlay will be necessarily larger than in dealing with the lower growing trees and the sooner intelligent and energetic action is taken, the smaller the outlay will be.

There is a company in Boston, which takes contracts for clearing trees by expert men fully equipped with all modern appliances. They insure their own men and the charge is $10 a day for a gang of three. Some such method as this may be the most effective way of treating the tallest and difficult trees.

Whatever information there may be in this article has been gained by the writer through observation and inquiry and is not offered as authoratative but suggestive.

Evidently tree-owners have a duty to themselves and to the community and the fact that the city is by far the largest tree-owner is significant in this connection. G. H. Higgins.

A FORTY-NINER.

Eventful Life of the Late Elijah Stone Brow.

The funeral services of Elijah Stone Brown, conducted by the Rev. E. C. Emmons, were held Sunday at the Universalist church, where Mr. Brown had been a member for many years.

Paul Revere Post of the G. A. R. was represented and paid tribute to their fellow-comrade at the church and at the grave. Mr. Brown was the chaplain of Paul Revere Post for many years. Many beautiful flowers showed the love and sympathy of friends.

The W. R. C. was also well represented. During the service Frank A. Varney sang "Face to Face" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

After the services the remains were taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where the burial service of Paul Revere Post were performed. The bearrs were Mark E. Hanson, John W. Herse, James H. Webb and William J. Young.

Mr. Brown was born in Jay, Maine, spending his boyhood dys at Newton and Quincy, Mass. When the great news of the California gld fields was spread abroad he was among the first to venture forth. He worked at mining and farming until 1860.

When the Civil war broke out he quickly enlisted as a volunteer in the 5th California Infantry. Here he served under Kit Carson and Gen. Carlton, both in protecting Southern California from the Confederates and in putting down the Indian revolts. Later it became his duty to carry the U. S. mail over the Rocky mountains.

After the war was over he came to Quincy and entered into the carpentering business. He was forced to give this up on account of ill health.

Twenty-two years ago he became janitor of the Coddington school, also serving as sexton at different periods in this time at the Universalist and Congregational churches.

He married Miss Clara Sophia Newcomb of Quincy in 1869, who still survives him. There were seven children only three of whom are living.

Mr. Brown was a much respected citizen of Quincy. Although he lived quietly he was beloved by all, even the little children with whom he came in contact daily. During his last illness he was a great sufferer, but through it all he spread about him an atmosphere of love and cheerfulness. As he fought for our nation and flag with an ever loyal heart so he lived his life each day endearing many friends to him.

—Mary Baker G. Eddy has grown weary of hearing the term "Mother" applied to herself, and has given notice to her followers that its use is to be discontinued by them. Mr. Farlow, speaking in her behalf, says that "it has never been the fault of the newspapers, but of the Scientists themselves that the word has come into so unsatisfactory use," and adds that he wishes the papers would discontinue it also.

There was quite a lively row at 11 Revere road on Sunday afternoon, between Thomas F. Kearns and Lawrence DeCoste. Both were under the influence of liquor, and it is said having an argument which grew warmer and warmer, until it finally came to blows, and a good sized scrap was on. Word was sent to the police station and Office Murray was sent to the house. The fight was over when he arrived but the two men were locked up for drunkenness. In court they contributed $3 each.

AT EARLY DATE

Settlement is Expected With Tool Sharpeners.

Committees Will Meet Tomorrow.

Work Will Not Be Resumed Until Agreement is Reached.

Work was not resumed this morning in the granite district for the reason that no settlement had been made with the blacksmiths and tool sharpeners.

It is believed, however, that a settlement is not far off and that work will be resumed in a few days.

A meeting of the two committees was held Saturday, but no definite results were reached. It was of brief duration.

When the meeting adjourned it was until Tuesday, at which time it is possible that an agreement may be reached.

Serious Runaway.

There was quite a serious runaway accident on Hancock street early Saturday evening near the High school. Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Packard were in an extension top carryall drawn by a pair of horses driven by Henry T. Brown. The accident was caused by the pole breaking. The horses ran and Mr. Brown was thrown out, striking on his head. He was quite seriously injured.

Before the horses cleared themselves, the carriage was overturned burying Mr. and Mrs. Packard in the debris. They were soon released, however, and escaped with a few bruises, and a general shaking up.

The horses ran as far as the Woodward Institute where they were stopped. The carriage was quite badly smashed. Driver Brown was removed to his home.

Long before the doors of the Woodward Institute were open Saturday night people were gathering, and by half past seven the hall was well filled. Founder's day is a most important event at this school. Of recent years the girls have given plays and so well have they acted and carried out the arrangements, that all their friends are anxious to secure admission tickets.

Promptly at eight o'clock the pupils marched in and occupied the seats reserved for them in front of the stage. A short musical program preceded the play, three songs being sung under the direction of Mr. John D. Buckingham, musical instructor at the school. Pupils come and go but the high musical standing of the school always seems to be maintained, and one is lead to ask what magic Mr. Buckingham has to always obtain such good results.

The selections sung were: "Serious Again to Thy Dear Name," by Kate Llewellyn, with solo by Miss Celina Beliveau; "The Gallant Troubadour," by Michael Watson; and "Good Night Beloved," by F. N. Lohr.

The play was "The Romancers" by Rostand, author of Cyrano de Bergerac. There were three scenes, the place being the adjoining gardens of Bergamin and Pasquin, fathers of the hero and heroine of the play.

There were the usual lovers, Romeo and Juliet sort; the fun determined apparently to so them, a villian and [illegible] [illegible] necessary to a good presentation.

All the parts were taken by the girls of the school, there being representatives from classes 1905, 1906, 1907 and 1908. The play was prettily set, the gardens being full of flowering shrubs. The costumes were all correct in every detail and rich and beautiful. Those taking the parts of men wore mustaches and all the "etcs" necessary to the sterner sex; the bravo looking particularly fierce in black waxed mustache and Vandyke beard. Miss Helen King took this part and was unquestionably the star of the evening, carrying the part with a dash and swing, in fact in the true bravado spirit.

The play opened with the lovers on the wall dividing the two gardens, and planning how they can wed and escape from the wrath of their fathers. Later the fathers meet and congratulate each other on the success of their plans, as they wish the young people to marry. They pretend they are enemies and against the lovers meeting. They plan with the bravo to arrange a mock abduction of the daughter, where the son is to rescue her and then the parents forgive and arrange for the wedding.

Everything went as arranged but the bravo was so anxious to be paid the bill for his work and expenses that the plot was discovered by the lovers who quarreled and separated. All ended happily however as the bravo plots again and succeeded in bringing the lovers together again.

The lovers carried their parts well and were easy and natural. Miss Spear was a dainty little Sylvette. The two fathers quarrelled and plotted and sustained the roles with much credit. All the minor parts were carefully acted in all the little details, and it was a thoroughly good peformance throughout reflecting credit on the actors and the school.

Trip to California.

Mr. F. E. Hayward of Quincy avenue, East Braintree, who is expected home March 21 writes from Los Angeles, Cal. as follows:

"Just now Los Angeles is my headquarters and passing [illegible] fully scented farms and orange groves at Pasadena brings me to wading through the snow of Mt. Lowe, after a very terrifying ride. We were drawn up the steep side of the mountain for 3000 feet—over half a mile, by means of a steel wire cable. There we got on a little platform, thence into a small open trolley car and climbed up and around the outside of the mountain for seven miles, over bridges and framework [illegible] to up the side of the mountain, [illegible] another way in which to go, road twisted and turned in every [illegible] direction and nearly every foot of the seven miles was thrilling. An accident would mean a fall of half a mile.

Reaching the end of the line we found a climb of three miles, either on foot or on bronchos. Part of our party plodded on through the snow, some tried riding, some gave out the rarefied air and the exertion of climbing making them dizzy.

I never felt better, and, the view from the top was magnificent. We could see for miles away the farms, groves, houses, of this country and thirty miles beyond in the Pacific ocean Santa Catalina Island in full view. I came down another trail with another party who arrived just after we had started—as I wan'ed to see both sides of the mountain. Our ride down was grand, but simply awful no power on, nothing but the brake to hold us. We squeaked and ground round the curves frightened yet held by the wonders. Some stood up the better to see the views, but all breathed more freely when we had alighted. It was a most fearful experience, but few cared to go over it again.

Yesterday we passed on Santa Catalina island and enjoyed the trip there in a glass bottomed boat. Such beautiful clear water I have never seen. Things down a hundred feet could be seen as well as though but a foot or two. The big rocks covered with marine growth, plants in flowers, all kinds of fishes playing about the rocks, gold fishes ten times as large as I had ever seen, blue fish, green fish, speckled fish in fact fish and foliage of all kinds, from scattering groups to hundreds together, the sun shining clear to the bottom making lights and shrewdness, as in the woods. There were old anchors, bottles, tin cans, shells, everything in fact could be clearly seen.

Once on shore, and a tramp around the island with a walk over the hills completed my day's work on the island. While we were waiting for the boat to start two boys paddled out in a skiff dressed in bathing suits and the passengers would toss nickels in the water for them to get. Very few of them got to the bottom, before the boys got them."

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is not luxury or refinement of living on the part of the rich, but extravagance in the display of wealth that is the chief evil. It is not that the rich build beautiful homes, patronize the arts and maintain a delightful hospitality which is demoralizing, but the wild excesses and extravagances and the throwing to the winds those considerations of morality which are the basis of national prosperity.—Wall Street Journal.

☞The State troops will not go to Manassas this year. Gov. Douglas intends to mobolize them in July, somewhere within the limits of the Commonwealth. He wants national troops to be with them and assist in the study of the art of war. No doubt the government will order a force of regulars to come to Massachusetts for the purpose indicated. The 10 days' evolutions will form a military spectacle such as is seldom seen in times of peace.—Lynn Item.

☞General Miles is already beginning to realize the difference between managing a militia force and a regular army. His order calling for the mobilization of the Massachusetts militia force in the first week of July meets with strong opposition from officers and men in business who cannot get away at that time. Regular soldiers obey orders. But militiamen resign if they do not find things convenient and they have to be consulted.—Philadelphia Press.

☞We recall a needy family that once came into the unexpected possession of a ten-dollar bill. It needed clothes, coal and other such things more than anything else; and yet it spent the greater part of the money on getting its pictures taken! That is the reductio ad absurdum of what Lowell is pretty apt to do whenever the chance arises. We spend too much money for what we can obviously get along without just as well. Some few functions we can hardly cut down on at all, in the nature of things. In some lines we must even spend more than before, because of the natural growth of the city and the greater needs of the people. But some things, if given up for a year, we should not miss in proportion to what we should gain in economy.—Lowell Citizen.

☞Are lawyers more moral than business men; ordinary men of affairs than trust magnates; journalists than politicians; and so on through the grades and divisions of society? Such questions arise constantly in discussion. Formerly the politicians were blamed exclusively for much bad legislation that is now charged in part to the business men who influence legislation. The role taken by the ablest lawyers in making legislation ineffective is being more vividly expounded than it ever has been before. Our law—to take an example—forbid rebates and all kinds of discrimination between shippers. The railway men in general admit the desirability of such law. Yet they, and the shippers, and the attorneys for both, devote themselves to discovering devices for outwitting the law. There is no moral standard which restrains either lawyers or business men from any secret practice intended to help them escape from laws the passage of which they favor. The public faces the necessity of contriving laws so drawn that the very ablest minds in the country can invent no trickery to beat them, but probably public opinion on such matters is being educated by all the experiments now being made. The struggle for money is losing something relatively, and moral standards slowly make a corresponding gain.—Collier's Weekly.

—Many Chinese are becoming Christians because they have discovered that the provincial magistrates, in disputes between Christians and non-Christians, incline to favor the former, says the Hong Kong Press.

WITH REMNANT OF HIS ARMY

Kuropatkin Is Struggling to Reach Tie Pass

HE MAY YET BE CUT OFF

Has Lost In Killed, Wounded and Missing More Than a Third of His Men -- Overwhelming Force of Japanese Pressing Him Closely and May Cut Off Line of Retreat--Departure From Mukden Conducted In Wonderful Manner--Oyama's Promise to Take the City on Certain Day Was Carried Out

London, March 13.—While General Kuropatkin has apparently succeeded in saving more of his artillery than seemed possible, his losses in men, ammunition and commissariat in the battle of Mukden are far greater than earlier reports indicated, and even that portion of his army which he succeeded in extricating from the positions around Mukden is still in serious danger.

The Japanese generals, realizing that with a little more speed they could have inflicted a crushing defeat on the Russian army after the battle of Liaoyang, determined not to again allow an opportunity to pass and are following after the defeated and sorely tried Russian forces.

While a small portion of Kuropatkin's army has reached Tie pass, the greater part of those who escaped from the battle of Mukden are still struggling northward, being at last accounts between 12 and 16 miles from their goal, with the Japanese, flushed with victory and reinforced by fresh men, harrassing them from all sides.

Even should the remnant of the army reach Tie pass, it is hardly possible for it to make a stand there against the overwhelming force opposing it, especially as the Russians must be worn out and weakened by the loss of men, guns and ammunition. It is more likely that Kuropatkin will fall right back to Harbin with what he can save and wait there for the reinforcements that St. Petersburg already has promised him.

A possible obstacle to this plan is General Kawamura's army, which has not yet been located and which may also be heading for the northern capital.

General Kuropatkin admits that 1190 officers and 46,931 men are not responding to rollcalls. This is rather vague. It may or may not include the thousands of wounded who have been sent north and again it may not include the losses suffered by the third army, with which the commander-in-chief was not in communication for some time. The figures given by the Japanese war office appear more reasonable, namely, 40,000 prisoners; 20,500 dead left on the field and 90,000 killed or wounded, the latter of course including the dead found by the Japanese. The Russian losses, therefore, total over 100,000 men, or more than one-third of the whole army.

The fact that the Japanese report the capture of only 60 guns indicates that Kuropatkin, at the last moment, succeeded in sending a considerable portion of his artillery northward on the railway. The Japanese losses up to this morning were reported as 41,222, not including the army which pushed north between Mukden and Fushun.

Official information from the Russian headquarters in the field, supplemented by dispatches from press correspondents with the army of the czar, show that Kuropatkin, after suffering by far the most severe defeat of the war, has succeeded, as he did after the battle of Liaoyang, in extricating the remnants of his army from a position which military experts 24 hours before believed would result in its annihilation or surrender. The retreat from Liaoyang has been considered the most masterly ever executed, but it is far overshadowed by this latest feat of the Russian general, who has taken personal command of the troops.

After fighting for nearly three weeks, Kuropatkin gathered what was left together north of Mukden and is taking them towards Tie pass, through a rain of shrapnel, which is being thrown on them from both right and left. This he seems to have been able to accomplish by resorting to the same tactics which saved his army at Liaoyang.

As early as Tuesday last he began sending his artillery north by rail and road, and Friday morning the retreat was ordered, strong forces protecting the rear and flanks. Even the hospitals, containing the more seriously wounded, were left behind so as not to hamper in any way the movement of the army.

This movement began Friday morning and as the Japanese forces on the east, which were to join hands with the western army and cut off the retreat, did not cross the Fushun-Mukden road until Saturday morning, the Russians had a full day's start of their pursuers and, having no guns or baggage to delay them, seem to have made good their escape. Should General Kawamura's army take a hand in the battle and should they strike the Russians at Tie pass or cut their communications to the northward, the disaster to Kuropatkin's once fine army will be complete.

The shrapnel under which the Russians are again retreating was found in the retreat from Liaoyang not to have very serious effect, as the army was scattered and straggling, which undoubtedly holds good in the present case. So if Kawamura fails Oyama and Kuropatkin's rear guard can hold back the pursuers, the losses suffered in the battle will not be greatly added to in the retreat.

What part of his army the Russian general has saved is apparently not even known at the Russian headquarters, as all dispatches indicate that part of his force has been cut off. Kaulbars seems to have extricated his corps, likewise Bilderling, but not so Linevitch. The press correspondents refer to the Japanese separating the first and fourth Russian corps and add that help could not be sent them. Their fate is not recorded and the inference is that they have suffered either defeat or capture. The censor ho doubt took out of the dispatch what really happened to these corps.

The confidence of the Japanese is shown in the statement issued by Field Marshal Oyama to his army early in the week that they would be in Mukden Friday morning. He was true to his word, for early that morning the old Chinese capital was in their hands.

Oyama's Spoils of Battle

Tokio, March 13.—Field Marshal Oyama, reporting Sunday, says: "Prisoners, spoils and the enemy's estimated casualties against all our forces in the Shakhe direction follow, but the prisoners, guns and spoils are increasing momentarily.

"The prisoners number over 40,000, including General Nachmoss. The killed and wounded are estimated at 90,000. The enemy's dead left on the field number 26,500. The spoils include two flags, about 60 guns, 60,000 rifles, 150 ammunition wagons, 1000 carts, 200,000 shells, 25,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, 75,000 bushels of cereals, 275,000 bushels of fodder, 45 miles of light railway outfit, 2000 horse, 23 cartloads of maps, 1000 cartloads of clothing and accoutrements, 1,000,000 rations of bread, 70,000 tons of fuel and 60 tons of hay, besides tools, tents, bullocks, telegraph wire and poles, timber, beds, stoves and numerous other property. No report from the Singking direction has been received."

The battle has been officially named the battle of Mukden.

Madness to Continue War

London, March 13.—The London newspapers are occupied by the question of whether Russia can continue the campaign. It is contended that Kuropatkin's great army no longer exists as a concrete fighting force, and it is believed the Japanese, after a few days which are required to rest and reorganize, will compel him to fight another battle in his present exhausted and denuded condition at Tie pass. In short, the general opinion is that in the face of financial and other difficulties an attempt to continue the war would be almost madness.

End of Miser and His Hoard

Fort Byron, N. Y., March 13.—The body of Robert Kidney, an aged miser living about six miles from here in a cabin in the woods, was found lying in a pool of blood. He had been murdered and his home robbed. The murderer is thought to have secured several thousand dollars in cash, but he overlooked $1800 in gold in the house and several hundred dollars in paper currency. There is no clue to the murderer.

St Petersburg's Bomb Episode

St. Petersburg, March 13.—The explosion of a bomb in the Hotel Bristol has been followed by many arrests, both in St. Petersburg and in the Baltic provinces. The papers found in the room included numerous revolutionary papers and pamphlets, drawings of infernal machines and other evidence completely establishing the connection of McCullough with the terrorists.

Wives Victims of Lockjaw

New York, March 13.—Mrs. Mary Carlton, wife of the chief commissary of the Brooklyn navy yard, died at her home in Brooklyn from lockjaw, caused, it is believed, by stroking a cat shortly after Mrs. Carlton had pricked her finger with a needle. The cat was suffering from a skin disease. Carlton's first wife died of lockjaw less than a year ago.

Ready For Seal Hunt

St. Johns, March 13.—A sealing fleet of 22 steamers, carrying 3800 men, sailed at daylight today in the annual hunt for hair-seals among the ice floes along the coast. Twenty will cruise north in Labrador waters and two will enter the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It is expected the cruise will prove an arduous one.

Steamship on Sea's Bottom

Charleston, March 13.—The captain of the fishing smack Verona reports having seen the topmasts of a steamer in 14 fathoms of water about 30 miles south of Charleston light, off Bulls bay. The water was clear, and the smack sailed near enough to see the funnel and derricks below the surface.

Miners' Terrible Fate

Cardiff, March 13.—All efforts to stop the burning of the Cambrian pit at Clydach Vale have proved unavailing and the untiring efforts of relays of rescuers have failed to reach the entombed miners. There is scarcely the faintest hope that any of the men in the pit survive.

HELD UP TWO MEN

Membership of Band of Thugs Reduced by Death

Boston, March 13.—Two men were held up, beaten and robbed by three negroes during Saturday night on the outskirts of the city. Four hours later a negro named Matthew Hunt was arrested, and another, whose identity is not known, was taken to the city hospital with a bullet wound in his head. The wounded negro, who was shot by Captain Page of the Brookline police department, died last night.

Frank H. Lincoln was held up and beaten by three negroes. Lincoln had but little money on his person, but what he had was taken. Twenty minutes later three negroes held up C. A. Birtwell in Brookline, just over the Boston line. After beating Birtwell, the three men robbed him of a gold watch and a small sum of money.

Both robberies were reported to the police of Boston and Brookline. Early Sunday morning a negro answering the description of one of the highwaymen was arrested in Brookline as he was about to board a Boston-bound electric car.

Against Sunday Performances

Lawrence, Mass., March 13.—Hundreds of church attendants yesterday signed petitions requesting the city government to take measures to suspend permanently Sunday performances in the three local theatres, except such as come within the law and are given for religious or charitable purposes exclusively. These petitions are to be presented to the mayor and board of aldermen.

Wanted Free Trip to Gotham

Somerville, Mass., March 13.—The man who, giving the name of Frank Burns, surrendered to the police here, saying that he was a New York diamond thief, was identified as Albert J. Rooney of Boston. The police state that he wished to make a trip to New York and conceived the plan of connecting himself with the diamond robbery in the hope that he would be taken there.

Highwaymen Got No Booty

Salem, Mass., March 13.—While returning home near midnight Rufus P. Archer was waylaid near his home by three men, who beat him almost into unconsciousness, fired two shots at Frank Woodward, who raised his window on hearing Archer's cries, and finally made off with half the neighborhood behind them, but without any booty.

Alleged Postoffice Thieves

Providence, March 13.—William Brown and James Allen, arrested in Woonsocket while endeavoring, it is alleged, to sell postal cards and stamps, were arraigned here on the charge of breaking and entering a postoffice. Both pleaded not guilty and were held in $2000 each for the federal grand jury.

Death in Trip Across Ice

Burlington, Vt., March 13.—William B. Howard started on foot across Lake Champlain for Fort Kent, N. Y., a distance of 10 miles. When nine miles of the trip had been put behind him he was overtaken by a storm and frozen to death. He leaves a widow and three children here.

Bishop Hall Shows Improvement

Burlington, Vt., March 13.—Bishop Arthur C. A. Hall of the Episcopal diocese of Vermont, upon whom an operation for appendicitis was performed, is reported as resting comfortably. The action of the bishop's heart has become nearer normal than at any time since the operation.

Soldier Killed by Gas

Providence, March 13.—Will Null, aged 21, a private in the coast artillery stationed on Dutch island, in Narragansett bay, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas in a lodging house in this city. From appearances Null did not completely turn off the gas when he retired.

Long Stretch by Wireless

Newport, R. I., March 13.—It is announced by the officials in charge of the wireless station at the government torpedo station on Goat island that messages have been successfully exchanged with the wireless station at Cape Henry, Va., a distance of about 350 miles.

Suicide From Ferryboat

Boston, March 13.—An unknown man, about 35 years of age, committed suicide by leaping into the harbor from the deck of an East Boston ferryboat. The boat had left her slip but a few moments when the man jumped into the water. He was not seen again.

Reconciled to It.

The car was crowded to its full capacity, and the two who had just entered were compelled to hold to the same strap.

"We seem to be sentenced to hang," observed the maid.

"Yes," whispered the young man as his fingers closed over hers. "Capital punishment."—Chicago Tribune.

A Little Mixed.

"Johnson wants to borrow some money of me. Do you know anything about him?"

"I know him as well as I do you. I wouldn't let him have a dollar."—New Yorker.

All the Way Round.

Margie—If you don't quit teasing me I'll tell memma, and she'll tell papa, then papa will whip you. Harry—Then I'll cry, and grandma will give me some candy, and I won't give you any.

If you don't see what you want in this world you can ask for it, but the chances are that you won't get it.—Portland (Ore.) Journal.

CITY BREVITIES.

Alliston J. Darling, formerly with C. C. Mueller, is now the assistant of C. Frank Randall at his tonsorial rooms on Saville street.

Gustave R. Sandberg of this city has passed his examinations for the service of the Boston Elevated Company and has been taken on as a motorman.

The junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution held their March meeting on Saturday at the birthplace of President John Adams. It was voted to hold a cake and candy sale at the house in a few weeks. A good time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Henry Strong Thayer.

After a brief illness, Mr. Henry Strong Thayer passed away Wednesday evening March 8, at his late residence at Braintree. He was born in Braintree Feb. 3d, 1840, the only son of Elisha Strong and Maria (White) Thayer.

Mr. Thayer lived quietly. His interests centering in his home and his church, the First Congregational, of which he has been a valued member for nearly 30 years. In the 80's he served as superintendent of the Sunday school and for the past three years as deacon of the church. He was a valuable member of the church, a deep Christian, friendline[ss], a reliable presi[dent], whose work was characterized by broad and conscientious thinking.

Outside of the church, he was a valued and respected citizen, although he had but little to do with public affairs. His integrity and worth were universally recognized, and his death is a sorrow to a very wide circle of personal friends. He leaves a widow and four children.

The funeral services were held at the family residence Saturday afternoon at 2.30.

Complimentary Dinner.

The friends of Hon. Samuel L. Powers, as an expression of their personal esteem and appreciation of his distinguished services as a Representative to Congress, have arranged to tender him a complimentary dinner after his retirement. Many of the New England members of Congress are expected to be present, as well as Senator Lodge, Senator Crane and the entire Massachusetts delegation.

The dinner will be held at Hotel Brunswick, Boston, on the evening of Thursday March 16, at six o'clock. Tickets will cost five dollars each, and may be had by addressing Mr. Edward W. Baker, treasurer, Brookline, Mass.

Massachusetts Audubon Society.

The purpose of the society is to discourage buying and wearing for ornamental purposes the feathers of any wild bird, and to otherwise further the protection of our native birds.

We would awaken the community to the fact that this fashion of wearing feathers means the cruel slaughter of myriads of birds, and that some of our finest birds are already decimated, and may ultimately be exterminated by the demand for their feathers.

The society, organized in January, 1896, has now over four thousand members. It was the first state society. There are now twenty-five state societies, aggregating a membership of some thirty-six thousand persons.

Further information relating to the society will be given on application to the Secretary, to whom also requests should be made for the various pamphlets and circulars prepared for free distribution, also for the purchase of the Audubon calendars and bird charts published by the society.

All donations and subscription fees for the society should be sent to the Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Harriet E. Richards, care of Natural History Society, Boston.

The Constant Wearing of a Hat Propogates Dandruff Germs.

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet if the scalps of these same men once became infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of air. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing as well as a dandruff cure and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. TO CARRY ON WAR

Such Is the Determination of Official Russia

FURTHER MOBILIZATION

Real Hope For Anything Like Successful Termination of War Is That Russia Can Exhaust Japan Financially--Kuropatkin Is to Resign

St. Petersburg, March 13.—The immediate answer of the Russian government to the defeat at Mukden is the announcement that a new army will be raised and the forces in the far east reorganized; that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky will be ordered to sail on and try conclusions with Togo, and that the war will be prosecuted to the bitter end.

This is the present temper of the czar and his dominant advisers, voiced in a firm official announcement that the position of Russia is unchanged and that the initiative for peace can [illegible] "exceptionally favorable" [illegible] ...aversary as ...ar east, peace could ...anged; but the voice of her ...omacy in various parts of the world indicates that she is not ready to do this, and the Russian government, with the full magnitude of the disaster at Mukden still undetermined, but with the 1905 campaign seemingly already compromised, retreat to Harbin inevitable, and Vladivostok practically lost, declares that the time has not yet come when Russia can be forced to humble herself.

It is reported that the dispatch of two new army corps, including the Fourteenth from Poland, and several smaller units, has already been determined upon and that plans for further mobilization are under discussion.

But while this is the official attitude, nothing but peace talk is heard in St. Petersburg. The difficulties of another mobilization on a large scale will be enormous; in fact, it is stated in some quarters that it will be impossible. Nevertheless, it might be accomplished. The real hope, however, for anything like a successful termination of the war is admitted to rest upon the prospects of the financial exhaustion of Japan. Russian resources, it is figured, can stand the drain better than those of Japan, and a protracted campaign, it is hoped, will bring about Japan's financial ruin.

The Russian capital is still in ignorance of the nature and extent of the reverse in Manchuria. The only information of its magnitude is that which has been derived from the few Tokio telegrams that have been allowed to be published here. To the censor at Tie pass the word "prisoner" does not exist, and not the slightest intimation of what, if any, units and organizations have been cut off and captured has reached this city, either in General Kuropatkin's official dispatches or in reports from correspondents at the front.

Aside from the reports given out by the war office, there is practically no further information of the progress of events, the newspaper dispatches received yesterday being principally those filed before the retreat began and transported to Tie pass among papers of the telegraph office.

It is declared that at the moment that General Kuroki's wedge, aided by the dust storm and taking advantage of the failure of small Russian organizations to occupy appointed positions drove itself deep into the Russian flank, it disarranged all the plans of Kuropatkin, who was on the point of launching a momentous counter-stroke; but where or how it was to be accomplished is not stated.

General Kuropatkin has telegraphed to the czar assuming himself all the responsibility for his defeat, making no excuses except that the strength of the Japanese was miscalculated. This manly course and the general's personal exertions in directing the retreat will, however, hardly save him. His reputation as an offensive strategist is gone, and, though the czar's military advisers know not where to look for a better general, his resignation will be accepted.

In losing Kuropatkin the army will lose the idol of the private soldiers, an officer who, in spite of the intrigues of his generals and his failure to win a battle, has won their confidence and affection.

Three Senatorial Aspirants

Chattanooga, March 13.—The Democratic caucus of the Tennessee legislature will meet Wednesday night for the purpose of nominating a successor to the late United States Senator Bate. It is believed that Governor Frazier and ex-Governors McMillen and Taylor will be in the fight.

Many Cases of Spotted Fever

New York, March 13.—That cerebro spinal meningitis, or "spotted fever," is killing about 40 persons a week in this city was asserted last night by Commissioner Darlington of the health department. The dread disease kills about 50 percent of all those attacked by it.

Jail and Occupant Burned

Felbenthat, Ark., March 13.—The jail two miles from this town was destroyed by fire, cremating its only occupant, John Creasy, held for a minor offense. The fire is supposed to have started from a cigar which Creasy had been smoking.

ON SEVEN COUNTS

Jury Finds Mrs Chadwick Guilty of Conspiracy

COMPOSURE DESERTS HER

Violently Repels Deputy Marshal and Son--Shouts "Let Me Go, I Am Not Guilty"--Counsel to Enter Motion For New Trial

Cleveland, March 13.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was found guilty of conspiring to defraud the United States by conspiring to procure the certification of checks on a national bank, when there were no funds in the bank to her credit. She was found guilty on every count of the indictment upon which the jury was at liberty to judge her—seven in all.

The original indictment contained 16 counts. Two of these were ruled out during the trial by Judge Tayler and of the remaining 14 one-half charged her with securing the certification of checks without having the proper entries made upon the books of the bank. Judge Tayler, in his charge, directed the jury to disregard these counts and consider only the remaining seven, which related to the certification with no funds on depesit. On all of these the jury found against her.

Under the law she can be fined on each count, not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than two years on each count, or she may be fined a maximum of $10,000 and also imprisoned for two years on each count. The jury left the courtroom at 3:33. It was announced two hours later that a verdict had been reached, and the jurors asked to be taken out to dinner. Word was sent to Judge Tayler at his hotel, and he set 8:30 as the time at which he would appear in court to receive the verdict.

The jury went out at 6:15 and returned at 7:30. Count was opened promptly at 8:30, and the verdict read at 8:33. Mrs. Chadwick came into court about five minutes before the jury. She was accompanied by her son, Emil Hoover, and two nurses. She sank into the seat she has occupied during the trial and rested her face in the palm of her right hand—a position she had almost constantly assumed throughout the sessions of court.

The jurors sat silently in their chairs waiting for the appearance of Judge Tayler and around the dim, ill-lighted courtroom stood perhaps 30 people more—newspaper men, bailiff's and attaches of the office of the district attorney.

After the jurors had responded to a rollcall, Clerk Carleton unfolded the verdict and read: "We find as to count one—guilty. We find as to count three—guilty." The same sentence was repeated for the five remaining counts.

Judge Tayler thanked and dismissed the jury. Mrs. Chadwick is slightly deaf, and as Clerk Carleton read the verdict in a tone so low that it was nearly inaudible 10 feet away, it was not until, as the people around her began to move and talk, that the prisoner grasped the fact that her fate was decied. She turned half around to look at her son and flushed deeply, raising her hand in a bewildered fashion to her head.

"The government moves for sentence, your honor," said District Attorney Sullivan.

"We desire to enter a motion for a new trial," said Judge Wing.

"I will, at a future time, set a date for the argument on the motion for a new trial," said Judge Tayler, "and I presume the matter can rest until that time."

Attended by Deputy Marshal Clobitz, Emil Hoover and Judge Wing, Mrs. Chadwick walked steadily to the hallway to take the elevator. It was not there, and in the slight delay, Mrs. Chadwick's composure deserted her utterly. She violently threw off the arm of Clobitz and that of her son, exclaiming: "Let me go, oh my God, let me go, I'm not guilty," and then, with all the energy gone from her voice, she moaned again and again. "Oh let me go; let me go; I'm not guilty. I tell you. Let me go."

Mrs. Chadwick's counsel say they will appeal to the highest courts.

Balfour Makes Changes

London, March 13.—Official announcement is made of the appointment of Walter H. Long, president of the local government board, to succeed Mr. Wyndham as chief secretary for Ireland. Gerald Balfour, president of the Board of Trade, succeeds Long; the Marquis of Salisbury, lord of privy seal, becomes president of the Board of Trade, retaining his former office.

Venezuelan Plot Unearthed

Philadelphia, March 13.—The Record says that a formidable insurrectionary movement aimed against the Castro regime in Venezuela has been uncovered in this city by agents of the Venezuelan government, and so alarming is the nature and strength of the revolutionary plot that a formal protest has been sent to President Roosevelt by the Venezuelan consul here.

Engine Tipped and Killed Driver

Syracuse, N. Y., March 13.—In responding to an alarm of fire, engine No. 3 of the Syracuse fire department slipped on the icy pavement, struck the street car tracks and was overturned, fatally injuring the driver, George R. McDermott. He died in an ambulance on his way to a hospital 15 minutes after the accident.

STRIKE A FAILURE

Many Old Employes of Interborough Company Lose Jobs

New York, March 13.—Though traffic conditions are somewhat better on the subway and elevated systems, the service is far from being normal. At times the elevated trains run regularly and again there are long delays, there being at times intervals of from 15 to 30 minutes. The service in the subway is better. There were a few minor accidents yesterday as a result of the inexperience of the motormen and guards. The company has more men at work and officials are busy examining old employes seeking reinstatement.

Realizing that their fight against the Interborough company has been lost, the old employes have crowded the offices of the company, seeking their former positions. Over 3000 men have applied for reinstatement, but not more than 500 have been accepted. All applicants were notified that they would have to pass the physical examination and go to work as new men, which means that those who went on strike will lose their seniority and the increased pay they had won for length of service.

Messrs. Jencks and Pepper, the strike leaders, admit that the fight has been lost. Jencks held the press responsible for the result, contending that the papers had aroused a hostile sentiment. The strikers bitterly denounce their leaders, saying they were deceived by them.

Five Dead In Denver Tragedy

Denver, March 13.—George Schistler shot and killed Mr. and Mrs. K. Fill and their son in their home here. He then set fire to the house. When attempting to arrest Schistler, Police Captain Bohanna and Police Surgeon Dulin were shot by him and seriously wounded. Schistler held a large force of officers at bay for several hours, many shots being exchanged. The desperate man was finally killed by Under Sheriff O'Neill. Mrs. Schistler dropped dead when she heard of the tragedy. There had been trouble between Schistler and the Fills over a lawsuit.

Unionism's Great Gain

Pittsburg, March 13.—President Buchanan of the National Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who is here in connection with the hoisting engineers' strike, says that permission has been granted to labor leaders to organize all government workmen who may wish to become members of labor unions. President Roosevelt, he says, has given consent for representatives of the unions to go among the government workmen for the purpose of discussing unionism, but no force is to be used.

Carefully Prepared For Death

New York, March 13.—After writing letters to the coroner making provision for his cremation, to his wife and other relatives and friends, and packing up and addressing his possessions to those whom he desired to have them, Gustave Jacobi of Chicago, 48 years old, a tobacco expert, turned on the gas in his room and was found dead there.

Story of Utah Land Frauds

Salt Lake City, March 13.—The Salt Lake Herald states that hundreds of thousands of acres of valuable coal lands in Utah have been acquired by corporations by questionable methods. Vast tracts of coal land are said to have been filed on and patented as agricultural and grazing land and then transferred to coal companies.

Had to Put Back to Port

Queenstown, March 13.—Steamer Lucania, which sailed yesterday morning, returned to this port last night with her starboard hawse-pipe and a plate below it broken. The damage occurred 100 miles west, in a heavy headsea. Repairs are proceeding with the utmost dispatch, and the steamer may be able to re-sail today.

Ambassador Meyer's Quarters

St. Petersburg, March 13.—George Von L. Meyer has leased the famous Kleinmichel palace for his residence during his term as American ambassador here. It is an imposing structure and its interior is one of the most gorgeous in St. Petersburg. The place has been the scene in the past of many famous entertainments.

"Throws Up" Vice Presidency

Bogota, March 13.—General Valencia has renounced the vice presidency. This action causes general satisfaction here, as it anticipates action by the national assembly. Political prisoners have been set at liberty. The prospects are bright for President Reyes' government.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Frank Foster of Augusta, Me., aged 33, was struck by a freight car at Bangor, Me., and died in a short time.

Joseph Leahey, aged 35, of Providence was struck and instantly killed by a train at Deposit, N. Y.

During an inspection of a new blast furnace near Middlesborough, Eng., a gas tank exploded and H. S. Pollard, an American engineer who was in charge, was killed.

Mrs. Celia Hitchcock of Northfield, Vt., a widow who has been bed-ridden for some years, in attempting to move a lamp, upset it and was probably fatally burned.

Miss Sarah J. Baker, principal of the Dillaway school, Boston, since 1861, is dead. She was the first woman to occupy the position of principal in a Boston public school. She was born at Brooklyn in 1835.

Rev. Lewis Grout, for many years a Congregational missionary in South Africa, and an authority on the Zulu language, died at Brattleboro, Vt., aged 91. He leaves no near relatives.

The "Air Line."

Street railway men and the public are beginning to see the benefits of up-to-date equipment with good organization. The newer and progressive roads are making use of the experiences and troubles of the old established lines.

The leader of the progressive roads, the Boston & Worcester Trolley Air line, shows the results obtained from the latest equipment and its excellent organization. From the start, the roadbed and the overhead line was made of the best, and with a very small amount spent in its maintenance, can be kept in the pink of condition.

Profiting by the experiences of steam roads, the system is divided into four sections, each section in charge of a foreman who has had long service in steam railroad work, and these sections are in charge of an experienced road master, who is thoroughly familiar with steam and high speed electric roads. The results from this organization are of the most satisfactory.

The equipment of the road is the latest type and as fast as any new devices have proven themselves a better one they are adopted by the company. Regular inspectors and cleaners thoroughly test and clean the cars every day. The public have the results of their systematic care, which keeps the rolling stock at all times in the best of condition.

The power station is capable of handling the heaviest business with ease, and at present power is even being supplied to the Natick & Cochituate Street Railway from the junction of its tracks with the "Air Line" at Sunnyside, to Wayland and Saxonville. A new sub-station has taken the place of the power station at Malboro, with the results that the Marlboro-Hudson division is having excellent power and the public is getting the benefit of much better results.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Auctioneer Goss will have a sale of household goods next Monday.

The annual parish meeting of First church is to be held this evening in the chapel at eight o'clock.

T. C. Hewson of Newcomb Place has been on a business trip to Damariscotta, Maine, the past week.

Miss Ruth Burrage of Middleboro was in town Sunday to attend the funeral of the late Elijah S. Brown.

[illegible] Poland, will give another of her enjoyable whist parties at the Norfold Downs hall, on Friday evening.

It is a pretty custom that the G. A. R. now has of sending a silk flag instead of flowers to funerals of the comrades.

There will be no meeting of the City Council tonight. The meeting next Monday night, however, will be an important one.

Mr. and Mrs. Pietsch of Marlboro street, Wollaston, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter.

W. P. Bennett, who underwent an operation at the City Hospital three weeks ago, is rapidly improving and has returned to his home.

The St. Marys defeated the Milton A. C. team at basket ball Saturday evening 26 to 11. The second team of St. Marys also won 32 to 7.

The regular meeting of W. R. C. will be held at G. A. R. hall tomorrow afternoon. Supper will be served in the evening [illegible], after which whist will be played.

At the sale at First church chapel Wednesday afternoon and evening the ladies are to serve a turkey supper at half past six for which tickets are in great demand.

The committees of the Granite Manufacturers' Association and Granite Cutters' Union were entertained at dinner at the Greenleaf Saturday evening by Luther S. Anderson.

D. D. Nellie E. Hallett of Charlestown and a delegation from Waverly lodge will be the guest of Maple lodge, K. and L. of H., at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening at Wilson's hall.

Rev. G. M. Harmon, D. D., of Tufts College Divinity School preached very acceptably at the Universalist church, Sunday evening. His subject was: "God in Our Life." Miss Ewell contributed vocal solos.

Col. John S. Rockwood of Dorchester will speak at the meeting of Bethany Brotherhood tomorrow evening on his personal experiences among the Indians in the west. A general invitation is extended to men.

The annual banquet and theatre party of the Granite City club will be held Tuesday evening, March 28. The dinner will be served at 5.30 at the United States hotel. Following the dinner the members will attend the Majestic theatre and witness "The Filibuster."

At the funeral services of Elijah S. Brown at the Universalist church Sunday afternoon there was a beautiful array of flowers mute testimonies of his many friends. Among them was a bouquet of pinks from the Universalist church; callas from the Quincy Point church and from the W. R. C. flowers in red, white and blue.

The pupils at the Coddington school sent a beautiful mound of violets to the funeral of Mr. Elijah S. Brown. There were several thousand violets in the mound and it was a most fragrant testimonial to the faithful janitor who for twenty-two years, through sunshine and storm, had attended to his duties at the school. The teachers sent pinks.

Members of the classes of the Wolston Unitarian Sunday School taught by Mr. Page and Mr. Parker, Mrs. Gurney, Mr. Rollins, and Mr. Park, also the teachers and officers of the school, have been invited to attend a social to be held in the vestry on Friday evening at 7.30. The young ladies of in Mrs. Chandler W. Smith's class will be the hostesses.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

A certain restaurant on Howard street kept a graphaphone playing all day Sunday.

Miss Louise Nash of Worcester spent the week end with Miss Emma King of Clive street.

Master Walter Parker of Winthrop avenue is fast recovering from his recent illness and is able to be out again.

Miss Marion Carver of Billings street, who is at the Quincy hospital, is reported better, which is cheerful news to her friends.

Many of the people who visited the steamer on Sunday thought that the entrance was to be through the main gate of the yard.

Miss Nellie Powers, Miss Mary W. Blake and Miss Annie McLaughlin are on a weeks pleasure trip to Philadelphia and Washington.

The Lord Family announce their sixth annual concert to be given tomorrow evening. They have no difficulty in filling Faxon hall.

Merrymount lodge, A. O. U. W., will install officers at their meeting on Tuesday evening. The district deputy will be present and there will be an entertainment.

The new express train service between Quincy and Boston went into effect today. All of the morning inward express trains were well patronized. They will become more so when their leaving time is generally understood.

Died With No One Near

Nashua, N. H., March 13.—Frederick Ford, aged 50, was found dead in his home in Amherst by neighbors. Medical Referee Greely reported that death was due to natural causes. Ford had been dead nearly a week. He was a farmer and lived alone.

Worried Over Failing Eyesight

Bath, Me., March 13.—Leonard E. Gowell, aged 76, the oldest steamboat engineer in Maine, committed suicide by shooting. Despondency over failing eyesight is given as the probable motive for the deed.

About 1300 People Inspect New Steamer Providence.

Over 1,200 people availed themselves on Sunday of the privilege of inspecting the palatial steamer Providence at the Fore River shipyard, and the Shipbuilders' club will net about

The management report that it was a very orderly crowd, and that little or no damage was done. Everything was so satisfactory that it is probable that at some later day arrangements can be made to open one of the battleships for inspection, the proceeds to go to the Quincy Hospital, or some other charity. The Ledger is informed that $4,000 was netted abroad one day at such an inspection.

The Ledger has been reqested not to "write up" the steamer, because the Fall River line are preparing an illustrated souvenir of the floating palace, but a few general remarks are necessary.

The Providence on Sunday was in charge of Henry R. Curwen of the Shipbuilders Club, who was held responsible for damage. All the members of the club entered so enthusiastically into the plans, that the arrangements were excellent. None who visited the steamer were disappointed, and it was a very favorable opportunity to make an inspection.

Members of the club, who are well acquainted with the work which has been done on the Providence, acted as guides, and kept the crowd moving in one direction.

The outside painting of the steamer is one of the last things to receive attention, so that a view of the exterior was not particularly inviting. While the inside is not complete it is well advanced.

The saloon is very attractive, being rich in stacco work and colors but not gaudy or vulgar. When the rich carpets and electric fixtures are in place it will certainly rival the sister boats on the Fall River line.

The drawing room is commodious and the decorations are in excellent taste. One could visit the silver room, the ice cream room, the well appointed kitchen and the directors' dining room.

The social hall and smoking room are also attractive. The purser has an excellent office. The barber shop is opposite.

There are commodious quarters for the frieght, very good sleeping quarters for the crew, and good arrangements for immigrants, although the line does not encourage these travellers.

There are staterooms of all kinds and sizes including several bridal chambers.

The electric plant is large and attracted attention.

Visitors were impressed with the great precautions that have been taken for safety, both from fire and accident.

The Providence is a mammoth boat. Her breadth is only eighteen inches less than the opening in the Quincy Point bridge, a leeway of only nine inches on each side. The pilot-house with its big wheels is 60 feet above the water. One can easily get lost in going about the vessel.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co. has certainly done a very creditable piece of work on the Steamer Providence.

THREE ARRESTED.

New Constable Roughly Handled by Gang of Italians.

It takes but a little thing sometimes to start a row and cause a lot of trouble. An example of this saying was given Sunday on Water street. The trouble started when Arthur B. Hultman, a constable, attempted to arrest Frank Yovanna for drunkenness.

Yovanna resisted and his companion pitched into Hultman. A crowd of Italians soon gathered, and things became interesting. Hultman was roughly handled. Word was sent to the police station by Supt. Austin of the Electric Light Co., and the wagon with Officers Cahill and Olsen was soon on the way. Before they arrived Chief Burrell joined them.

Officer Hultman pointed out the house where the prisoner and his rescuers had entered. The officers entered and a lively scrap took place, during which some of the Italians were handled without gloves. One of the men grabbed Officer Cahill and before he let go he had badly torn the coat. The officers took away Frank Yovanna, the man arrested for drunkenness and Joseph Macalini, who assaulted Officer Cahill.

Later Yovanna's father came to the police station to bail his son and he was also locked up on the charge of rescuing a prisoner.

The three men were arraigned in court this morning. Frank Yovanna for drunkenness and assault on Constable Hultman; Fred Yovanna for rescuing a prisoner and Joseph Macalini for assault on Officer Cahill.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Bromy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey.

CHAPTER XII.

ORIGINALLY Lord Derrington had started life with a sufficiently imperious will, and, thanks to his position as a titled and wealthy orphan, he had been enabled to exercise it at a very early age. The habit of seeing every one terrified at his mere glance grew upon him, and he became unbearable not only to live with, but even to meet. His wife, after presenting him with two sons, had died gladly, seeing no other way of escaping her tyrant, and the report went that he had browbeaten her out of existence. Derrington would have married again for the sake of his boys, but he could find no one willing to endure his yoke. Consequently he became something of a woman hater and entered the political world. In this he met with a certain amount of opposition, which did him good and might have trained him into a moderately decent member of society but that his reformation was cut short by his being appointed ambassador to a prominent European power. Here his temper had full swing, and he bullied everybody for three years. At the end of that time he nearly caused a war and was recalled. There was some talk of his being appointed viceroy for India, but those in power had sufficient pity on the country not to send him.

Falling, from his reputation, to get another appointment, Derrington took to quarreling with his sons. Percy, the elder, had a spice of the paternal temper and refused to submit. Consequently he was forbidden the house and crowned his iniquities in the old man's eyes by marrying Rosina Lockwood. The younger Vane was a fool and completely cowed by his terrible father. He married an equally meek lady, and the two were crushed by the old tyrant. Finally both died as gladly as the late Lady Derrington had done and left Walter Vane to carry on the title. The old lord detested Walter as a milksop, but he refused to acknowledge George, preferring the fool to the clever man from sheer hatred of Brendon's father.

The meeting with George at Mrs. Ward's had touched the old man deeply. He had never set eyes on Percy's son before, and had no idea that the young fellow was so handsome and clever. Derrington felt that he could take some pride in George as a man who would not permit himself to be bullied. He had as strong a will as his grandfather, and the older man respected him. Moreover, George's refusal to accept an income when he took a feigned name and his determined fight for his birthright pleased the despot. But for his pride and hatred of the father, Derrington might have acknowledged the marriage. He knew in his own mind that such a marriage had taken place, and that George was legitimate, but he did not know where the ceremony had been celebrated. The sole evidence he possessed was a letter, written by Percy from Paris, stating that he had married Rosina Lockwood. Derrington at the time accepted the fact, and had never thought of inquiring about details from his son, and of course when Percy died it was too late. Mrs. Jersey knew, and Mrs. Jersey had made use of her knowledge, but she never told Derrington anything. Had she done so, her hold over him might have waxed feeble, although, owing to her knowledge, and to the old man's determination not to acknowledge George, it could not be done away with altogether.

One afternoon when a card was brought to Derrington he nearly jumped from his seat when he read the name of George Brendon. At first he was inclined to tear up the card and send the pieces out to the insolent young man who thus dared to trespass on his privacy. But on second thoughts he decided to accord him an interview. He knew that by this time Mr. Bawdsey must have informed George that his grandfather knew him as Brendon, and the old autocrat wished to see if George would behave as pluckily at their second interview as he had done at the first. Moreover, he could not forget the good looks and clever conversation of the young man. It would be absurd to say that Derrington's heart yearned over this unacknowledged twig of the family tree, for according to common report he had no heart. But he certainly felt an unwonted emotion when Brendon, tall and handsome, composed and ready for battle, stepped into the room. Derrington knew that the young man was ready for battle, for he saw the light of war in his eyes.

When the door was closed and the two were alone Derrington took his station on the hearth rug with an impassive expression of countenance. He waited for George to open the war of words, and after a polite greeting he waited in silence. George was not at all embarrassed. He knew perfectly well that he had a difficult task before him and did not choose to shirk it.

"I am sure you are not surprised to see me, Lord Derrington," said Brendon, with his eyes fixed on the old man's grim face.

"Not half so surprised as you were at seeing Bawdsey," said Derrington, not to be outdone in coolness.

George smiled. "I was not at all surprised at seeing the man," he said calmly. "It was my happy lot to rescue him from an accident, and it was my intention to call on him."

"For what reason?" asked Derrington, who could not help betraying astonishment in spite of his self control.

"You must excuse my not answering that question."

"Oh, certainly," replied Lord Derrington, with ironical politeness, "but you are not so diplomatic as I thought."

"Because I decline a reply?"

"Because you allow me to see that you are on good terms with the man I employ. A clever diplomatist would have allowed me to think that Bawdsey was hostile and so have used the man against me."

"There is no need for me to stoop to such crooked ways," said Brendon, with some scorn, "and I always find the truth tells in the long run."

Derrington sat down and leaned his elbows on the table. His temper was rising, as he was not accustomed to be treated in this offhand way. "Come, sir, let us understand one another. State the situation so as to clear the ground for a proper argument."

"Certainly," said George, with frigid politeness. "You know who I am, I understand."

"No, I don't. So far as I know you are George Brendon. I met you at Mrs. Ward's, and"—

"And were good enough to hold a long conversation with me," finished George smartly. "I see, sir, it is necessary for me to be explicit."

"It's the best course," rejoined Derrington, looking at him with hard eyes and secretly admiring his self control.

"Then I have to state that my name is George Vane, and that I am the son of Percy Vane and Rosina Lockwood."

"Indeed! What proof have you of this?"

"The evidence of my nurse, Jane Fraser, who attended to me when my father, your eldest son, was alive. The testimony of my former guardian, Mr. Ireland, who took charge of me after the death of my mother's father. Finally, my certificate of birth, which I will show you whenever you choose."

Derrington was confounded by this calm answer. He would have blustered, but George's politeness gave him no chance of losing his temper, and without fuel it would not blaze up.

"You seem to be well provided with proofs," said he grimly. "Let us admit, for the sake of argument, that you are my grandson. But the marriage"—

"Ah, that is the difficult point! And it is unpleasant for me to talk of the subject. In justice to the memory of my mother I hold that there was a marriage."

"And in justice to my family I hold that there was none."

"In that case, Lord Derrington, we join issue."

"You are quite a lawyer, sir," sneered the old man.

"I thought of studying for the bar at one time."

"Indeed, and why did you not?"

"I had no money to pay my fees," said George coldly.

The old lord winced. "You could have had money had you chosen," said he roughly.

"I know. For that reason I changed my name to Brendon."

"Well," said Derrington irritably, "let us come to the point. You say you are my grandson. I admit that, as I am aware of what evidence you can bring forward. But I decline to admit that you are my heir. The onus of proof lies with you."

"I am prepared to discover the proof if your lordship will behave in an honorable manner."

"What!" roared Derrington, rising with a fierce look. "Do you mean to say, you jackanapes, that I am behaving dishonorably?"

"Extremely so," said Brendon coldly. "You have had me watched by a detective, you threaten through him to have me arrested for a crime of which I am innocent if I do not give up my attempts to gain my birthright and here George leaned forward—"Dorothy Ward. Do you call these actions honorable?"

"Do you know who I am?" questioned the other, blustering.

"Very well. You are the man who is keeping me out of my rights."

The two faced one another without blenching. Derrington tried to cow George, and George refused to be cowed. It was the old lord's eyes which fell first. Brendon had youth as well as will on his side, and these dominated Derrington. For the first time in his tyrannical life he gave way.

"I am willing to hear what you have to say," he grunted.

BRAINTREE.

Henry Arthur White celebrated his seventeenth birthday by entertaining a party of his friends, and was the recipient of many gifts from them.

Mr. T. E. Brynes, assistant to President Mellen of the New Haven road, promptly responded to recent requests made for improved train service and prepared a schedule which will greatly accommodate Braintree and Quincy citizens.

Miss Hemingway, a missionary from Singapore who has been spending a few months furlough in the United States, is about to return to her field of labor. A cablegram has just been received urging her immediate return and she will probably sail this week from New York to London and thence to Singapore.

Roy Chapman of Hancock street, who was recently treated for pneumonia at the Malden hospital, has recovered enough strength to leave that institution and is resting at his brother's home in Malden.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha G. Annis were fortunate in winning prizes at the whist party given in G. A. R. hall by the ladies auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans.

Constable Charles A. Hobart picked two pansies Friday. Summer must have arriven at 691 Washington street.

The Select Twelve whist club met with Mr. Thomas and Miss Frances Stetson in Randolph. They were right royally entertained and departed on the last car.

Amana Rebekah lodge held its regular meeting in I. O. O. F. hall Thursday night. Because of the inclement weather there was a somewhat smaller company present than hoped for. The special business was appointing a committee to make arrangements for the anniversary of the order, April 27th. A supper was served and a social time enjoyed by all.

The Boston Alumni Associatien of Coburn Classical Institute will hold its tenth annual reunion at Berkley Temple, Boston, Monday evening, March 20th for all graduates, former pupils and their friends. Rev. Eben C. Stover, class of 1878, is president, J. Colby Bassett, class of 1892, secretary.

Eben Denton of Dorchester a former resident of this place and for years treasurer of the Weymouth Savings bank was in town Thursday, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Crane.

—The women of savage tribes have not infrequently a wardrobe consisting of furs which would be worth from $5,000 to $10,000. Grundeman, the explorer, relates how one fair Greenlander wore a dress of sealskin with a hood of that costly fur, the silver fox. The garment was lined with fur of the young seal otter and there is a fringe of wolverine tails. About $6000 is probably the average worth of the dress of Indian women on the Columbia and Fraser rivers.

Look at Your Pear Tree.

The brown-tail is with us, and the nests are plainly to be seen on the elm and pear trees. As the pear is not a large tree they can be readily seen and destroyed. Look at your pear tree and if you see something that looks like an old brown leaf which has forgotten to blow off during the winter, then you are pretty sure to have found the brown-tail. Cut off the twig and examine it and you will find a cocoon full of eggs. These clear cool days are the days to get to work, for when the days grow warmer, and the eggs hatch, it is impossible to stop the work of destruction of these pests. After cutting the cocoon from the tree be sure and burn it not letting an egg escape. Start on the good work today.

MORE FILTH.

Lepers as Well as Sewage.

Yachtsmen and Others Kicking.

Quincy Does Not Take Kindly to the Idea.

Not content with dumping all the sewage of Metropolitan Boston in the bay, the State is now talking of establishing a leper colony on Hangman's island. It has been the misfortune of several of our local yachtsmen to become shipwrecked on this little island, but something worse than shipwreck may await them if this scheme is allowed to go through. Yachtsmen at Wollaston and Atlantic are much exercised and will enter a protest.

The Boston Journal says: "A refuge for lepers that may be properly equipped at a reasonable expense has been found in lower Boston harbor, Hangman's island is the place, and some of the members of the State Board of Charities think it would be a good plan to establish a retreat on this little isolated isle.

Three islands, owned by private parties, have been offered for sale for the establishment of a lepersarium, but the principal difficulty was the cost. One of them was offered for $40,000, and other two for $60,000 each. Members of the State board have been trying to find an island owned by the State so as to save the expense of buying land, and Leontine Lincoln of Fall River, chairman of the board, yesterday learned that Hangman's island is State property.

"But little is known by the general public of this little island. It is located about a mile and an eighth southwest of Peddock's island, and a mile and a quarter southeast of Moon head in Quincy bay. It is off the track of steamers and is far enough from land to provide the precautions demanded by the public. At the same time it is near enough to be readily supplied with everything necessary from the mainland.

"At the present time the island is inhabited by a few Portuguese fishermen, who lease it from the State, paying a nominal rent. They have been there for several years. The State authorities have been very willing to let them live there, as they are an orderly set and have saved several lives since they have been on the island."

In an interview yesterday Mr. Lincoln, the chairman of the State Board of Charities, said:

"It has been a matter requiring considerable attention. Several plans have been proposed. We thought of sending the lepers we have in Massachusetts to Tewksbury, but there was such a protest from the people there that we gave up the idea. At one time we had hopes that there would be built a national leper hospital. The bill providing for such an establishment passed the United States Senate, but was defeated in the House, so we were deprived of that hope.

We have had the purchase of one of three islands under consideration, but they are rather expensive. If we can get the State to give us the use of Hangman's island in Boston harbor it will greatly simplify matters, that is, if we find it is large enough for our purpose. It would be necessary to erect two buildings, one for the doctor and his staff and the other for the patients. This could be done at an expense not exceeding $10,000. I think the Legislature would be perfectly willing to appropriate that amount.

"As a matter of fact, leprosy is not the dreaded disease that most people think it. It is not so contagious as some people suppose, but there is a strong sentiment against it, as one can see when we suggest establishing a lepers' hospital anywhere on the mainland. In order not to go too much against the wishes of the people we must get an island."

TODAY'S COURT.

James McLaughlin of Quincy was brought into court on a default warrant for drunkenness and fined $15.

Peter Casett was arraigned for assault at Weymouth. Case continued until next Tuesday.

Mysterious packages will be sold at the Unitarian sale tomorrow night, but there will be no mystery about the supper.

Serious Charge.

Rose Young aged 20 years was placed under arrest Monday night and taken to the City hospital under police survelance. It is alleged that the woman strangled to death her new born infant. The woman originally came from Nova Scotia. Last summer she was employed as a domestic, but lately in a wrapper factory.

Last Friday she obtained a room and board at a house near the Canal. Here her child was born on Sunday, which it is alleged, she strangled to death. Medical Examiner Jones, who viewed the body of the child, said that it was born alive.

The young woman was taken to the City Hospital, and today a warrant for murder will be taken out against her.

—John Hume and Miss Blanche Gilbert, of Bath, Me., eloped to Portsmouth, March 1, and were wedded. Mr. Hume is the son of Ezra Hume, foreman of the loftsmen at the Bath iron works.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Clerk of Council Spear Passes Away.

In Public Office Since Year 1882.

Veteran of Civil War and Highly Esteemed Citizen.

It was a shock to the citizens of Quincy this morning to learn that Christopher A. Spear, a life-long citizen of Quincy and clerk of the City Council, had passed away. Few even knew that he had been ill. In fact his illness was of but brief duration.

He first complained of illness Sunday but it was not until Monday that he took to his bed. He remained in bed all day Monday, but it was not thought that his illness was of a serious nature. He had severe neuralgia pains in his arm. During the night he grew worse, the neuralgia going to his heart, and he passed away shortly before 6 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Spear was born in Medford on Christmas day in 1839, and came to Quincy when a child. He was educated in our public schools. His first business was that of a clerk in the dry goods, furnishings, clothing and furniture store of George Saville. He later was employed in the book store and bindery of George L. Gill.

C. A. SPEAR,
When he had whiskers.

Mr. Gill at that time was town clerk, and during his absence Mr. Spear performed the duties of the office.

When the war broke out Mr. Spear at the age of 22, enlisted for three months in Co. H., 4th Mass., under Capt. Frank Curtis, and was in the battle of Great Bethel. After the expiration of his term of enlistment, he entered the navy and from the frigate Roanoke saw the famous engagement between the Monitor and Merrimac.

After the war he went on a foreign cruise, visiting South America and Africa. On his return he entered the employ of Joseph W. Lombard, then a custom tailor, becoming a partner and finally succeeding him in business, which he carried on for many years.

He had held many offices in the gift of the town. He served on the board of Selectmen in 1882, 1883, 1884, and 1885, each year as secretary. He also served on the board of Registrars of Voters and trustees of the Woodward Fund.

With the inauguration of the city government Mr. Spear was appointed City Clerk, which office he filled until February, 1894, when he was removed by Mayor Hodges. He was also elected Clerk of the first City Council, and served continuously in that capacity until his death.

When the office of clerk of committees was established, Mr. Spear was elected to that office. It is somewhat remarkable that during all the seventeen years Mr. Spear has served as clerk of the city council, he has been absent at but two meetings.

Mr. Spear was married in 1878 to Miss Kate Hughes, who survives him. He was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and one of the charter members of the Knights of Pythias when that order had a lodge in Quincy.

The orderliness of the visiting crowds on board the "Providence" on Sunday, was distinctly gratifying to everyone concerned. One sentry was heard deploring the lack of healthy excitement—not a drunk or rowdy to "fire off the ship" nor even a tumble overboard!

Parish Meeting.

The bell on First church summoned members of the First Congregational society to the annual parish meeting Monday evening in the good old fashioned way. John Q. A. Field was elected moderator and the business was expeditiously transacted.

These officers were elected:

Moderator,—J. Q. A. Field.

Assessors,—Henry M. Faxon, Luther S. Anderson and James H. Stetson.

Treasurer,—Luther S. Anderson.

Clerk,—George B. Dewson.

Collector,—George H. Field.

Trustees Adams Fund,—Charles H. Porter, L. H. H. Johnson and Charles A. Price.

Flower Committee,—Mrs. Lewis Bass, Miss Alice K. Prescott, Miss Beatrice Tisdale and Mrs. Emery L. Crane.

Shipbuilders' Club.

A delightful entertainment was given by the Committee of the Shipbuilders' Club on Friday evening of last week and some ninety members and friends proved how quite adequate the premises are for club functions of any description.

Among those present were H. G. Smith, Manager of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., J. Drinker, forge engineer; Mr. Greser, transportation agent, Councilman Hynes, and many other prominent members.

Mr. Lassell ably carried out the duties of chairman. The program was of a lengthy and varied description, and undoubtedly the best yet rendered in the club, and it is no exaggeration to say that such vocalists as Messrs. Warmington, Hodge, Hendry, Williams, Dornan, Kennedy, Walker and Enright, with that brilliant elocutionist, J. Brown, together with such well known instrumentalists as Messrs. Luce, pianist; Meadows, mandolin; Bradley, violinist; and Foley, flutist, would draw a full audience to the best hall in Quincy at any time.

General Manager Smith made an appropriate speech, dwelling at length upon the utility and cosmopolitan nature of such clubs, and reiterated his readiness at any time to assist the club in every possible way likely to increase its popularity and success.

The genial foreman over "I" department who generously provided the refreshments, was unable to be present, but the thanks accorded him were none the less genuine on that account.

Members were invited to assist in keeping order on board the "Providence," whilst open to the general public on Sunday, nearly fifty readily responding. The usual thanks for their services were accorded all who had contributed to such an excellent program.

UNION MEETING.

Tool Sharpeners to Meet Today.

Conference Last Night was Futile.

A conference was held Monday evening between the committees representing the Granite Manufacturers' Association and Blacksmiths' Union. The meeting, however, was without result, nothing being accomplished.

The whole trouble is over the change desired relating to the employment of apprentices during the dull season.

At Monday night's conference the union committee said, after adjournment, that they would call a meeting of the union today and bring the matter before the members.

The meeting adjourned without fixing any date for another conference. One will probably be held, however, shortly after the men's meeting.

Among the Leaders.

The latest announcement of the vote in the Herald contest shows Miss Julia E. Underwood to be one of the three leaders in her district, and also in New England. Only united and hearty support by all the people of Quincy can keep her at the top. Any division of the vote or lukewarmness for teacher, school or pupil will prove disastrous to all concerned.

Thus far most of the support of Miss Underwood has come from the pupils of the Coddington school, from out of town teachers and former pupils, from the Adams school, the Wollaston school, the Massachusetts Fields, and the High, with a few scattering votes from the Willard and Washington. The contest should interest people in all parts of the city, if they desire to see Quincy at the front occasionally.

Friends of Miss Underwood should see that votes intended for her do not go astray. Only three teachers can win in the district.

If Miss Underwood wins, the Coddington school waives all claim to the art collection, and agrees to a division of the same among the other schools of the city according to support given. Therefore a vote for the Coddington is really a vote for all the schools of the city.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

Moths at Salem.

Salem has adopted the plan of Lynn and other places to get rid of the brown tail moth. Through a contest being carried on by the Salem News the city is being rid rapidly of the millions of nests of the brown tail moth that would soon develop enough caterpillars to eat up the entire neighborhood.

Saturday more than 80,000 nests were delivered at the office by boys and men of the city. Three young men have each turned in about 20,0000 nests apiece, and as each nest is destroyed with its hundreds of eggs, it means the death of many moths.

Great work is being done by the citizens of the city this week, for soon the warm weather will hatch the eggs, and the ravenous caterpillars will be crawling over everything eatable. If the ratio of nests being destroyed every day continues until the end of the week, it is estimated about 750,000 nests will have been collected and destroyed.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The attorney of the Beef Trust cries: "We demand justice!" Well, if you get it, you will not want anything more in this life.—Mexican Herald.

☞ In New York the rashness of the runner for the train is daily and hourly emulated by racers for wealth and more wealth, for position and higher position, for a desperate "keeping up" with some equally foolish courser. The pace is such that no custom could harden one to it. The contestants multiply marvelously. It is too much to expect a warning board of health bulletin to stop the chase. But for all that, the simple life is not merely a fad.—New York World.

Petitions to Enforce Law

Lawrence, Mass., March 14.—Mayor Lynch and the board of aldermen were last night presented with petitions signed by 500 Protestant churchgoers, requesting the enforcement of the law forbidding theatrical performances on Sunday except for religious and charitable purposes. The petitions were referred to the city government committee on licenses.

Stafford Mill Weavers Out

Fall River, Mass., March 14.—Yesterday afternoon 144 out of 150 weavers employed in Stafford mill No. 1 struck. They claim that they can earn but 80 cents a loom weekly, and that eight-loom weavers can make but $6, and 10-loom weavers about $7.50. This is the second strike in the Stafford mills since settlement of the general strike.

Double Killing by a Train

Putnam, Conn., March 14.—William Duprey of North Grosvenordale and Emil Gareau of this city were struck and instantly killed by an express at Mechanicsville. Both bodies were horribly mangled. The engineer of the express says that the men paid no attention to the whistling of the engine.

Offered "Home Employment"

Burlington, Vt., March 14.—C. J. Beauchamp of this city was arrested here on an indictment charging him with using the mails with intent to defraud. Beauchamp, it is alleged, operated largely in the west with an endless chain plan offering home employment.

Charged With Robbing Stores

Randolph, Vt., March 14.—Thomas Blake of New York, aged 20, was arrested here, charged with burglary committed at Bethel. Two stores were entered and the alleged stolen property was found in Blake's possession.

Rowley's First License Vote

Rowley, Mass., March 14.—For the first time in its history this town at its annual meeting voted to license the sale of intoxicating liquors during the year beginning May 1. The vote on the license issue was 99 yes; 73 no.

CLEANLY WOMAN.

Erroneously Thinks by Scouring Her Scalp That She Cures Dandruff.

Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scouring the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. She may wash her scalp every day, and yet have dandruff her life long, accompanied by falling hair, too. The only way in the world to cure dandruff is to kill the dandruff germ, and there is no hair preparation that will do that but Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide by killing the dandruff germ, leaves the hair free to grow as healthy Nature intended. Destroy the cause you remove the effect. Kill the dandruff germ with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

MAY FORCE A NEW BATTLE

Oyama Plans to Catch Russians North of Tie Pass

NEW TURNING MOVEMENT

Kuropatkin's Army Considered Unlikely to Hold Pass In Face of Overwhelming Forces of the Enemy--Russians Have Lost About 155,000 Men, With Two Armies Not Accounted For--Japanese Losses Comparatively Light--How Kuropatkin Lost Battle of Mukden

London, March 14.—The Russian general staff reports that "the main body has already completed its retreat and the rear guard southward are falling back slowly." What either the "main body" or the "rear guard" consists of has not been definitely fixed, but, from the dispatches from press correspondents with the Japanese and Russians, the two combined must be but a small portion of the army which General Kuropatkin had gathered along the banks of the Shakhe and Hun rivers.

As yet those who have reached Tie pass, worn out from days of fighting and retreating, are not out of danger, the Japanese, it is reported, having already started another turning movement which will force the Russians on to the plains north of Tie pass, where, in their disorganized state, they would be easy prey for the victory-flushed soldiers of the mikado.

The men who escaped are strengthening the fortifications in Tie pass, but it is hardly possible that the pass can be held in the face of the overwhelming forces opposed to the Russians, and it is not likely that Oyama will rest satisfied with his victory at Mukden as he did after Liaoyang.

There will be no uneasiness as to the food supply as long as communications are maintained to the northward, as large bands of cattle roam the plains under Cossack herders and every station on the railway is a huge commissariat department. The Russian soldier is always well fed, the soup kitchens on wheels always keeping in touch with the men.

As to the losses, Kuropatkin now admits that 50,000 wounded were carried off the field. The 40,000 prisoners and the wounded left in the hospitals come somewhat nearer the latest Japanese estimate that the total Russian losses were 155,000. At this rate Kuropatkin cannot have more than 100,000 effective fighting men with him.

The army of General Linevitch seems to have made the best retreat, but this no doubt was due to the stubborn fight made by General Rennenkampff on his extreme left, and the equally fierce resistance of General Kaulbars on the right, the latter general losing 28,000 men.

Neither the army of Kaulbars nor of Rennenkampff has yet been accounted for by the dispatches. After his defeat around the western tombs, Kaulbars, finding his retreat directly northward cut off, made a detour to the eastward, where he was still fighting at last accounts. Rennenkampff must also still be in the hills to the eastward, as it took the press courier three days to reach Tie pass.

The Japanese report the capture of 24 more guns, 66 in all, a rather small number considering the decisive defeat and the number of men captured. The Japanese losses have been remarkably light in view of the length and severity of the fighting.

The press correspondent with General Kuroki's army tells how the battle of Mukden was won. The Russian general was deceived as to where the blow was to be struck, and, after massing his forces on the Japanese right, found when too late that his right was the objective of the Japanese.

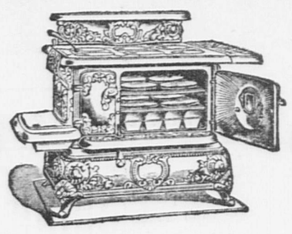

In all the speculation as to peace, the one point that is coming to the front is that Russia would prefer to settle directly with Japan without the aid of any third nation. This is in line with the dream of many leading Russians that the natural allies in the far east are Japan and Russia, they being the only nations whose domains border on Korea and Manchuria, both having other interests there besides those of trade.

A Spirit of Jubilation

New Chwang, March 14.—Just as the Koreans celebrated the Japanese victory at the battle of the Yalu, so the Chinese at New Chwang are celebrating the fall of Mukden. There is a great display of fireworks, Chinese lanterns, transparencies and banners of the guilds, and the streets are crowded with merry-makers. Japanese and Chinese are parading the streets hand in hand.

Handicapped by Strike Breakers

New York, March 14.—Traffic, not only on the elevated roads but also in the subway, was handled in a manner that failed to give adequate service during the rush hours yesterday. A number of the old employes have been reinstated and they were given charge of the expresses, but the irregularity of the locals, driven by strike breakers, rendered the efforts to improve the service fruitless. Several accidents of a minor nature occurred during the day.

CITY BREVITIES.

The City Council Committee on Finance meet Thursday night.

A large addition is being built to the store of R. J. Barry at Atlantic.

James Flaherty is building an addition to his house on Quincy avenue.

The Loyal Temperance Legion, meets in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church on Friday at 3.30 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley T. Perry, who have been boarding on Spear street, have gone to housekeeping on Upland road.

Miss Pearl Cunningham of Roxbury has been the guest of Mrs. W. M. Maiden of Coddington street the past week.

Rev. Peter McQueen will lecture on "Russia," at the Quincy Point church, April 24. Perhaps there will not be any Russia then.

Friday evening at 7.45 Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church will begin a series of talks anticipatory of Easter.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. G. F. Pinkham, 111 Warren avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. T. C. Hewson will entertain the Brownie whist club at the home of Mrs. M. A. H. Crane, Washington street, on Wednesday afternoon.

Charley Gould of V department is the next to act host at the Shipbuilders' club and will not only pay the piper, but do some whistling himself.

The Hancock street bridge has been called, "The bridge of sighs," a sobriquet earned by the complaints of those plodding through the mud from car to car.

In the billiard tournament at the Granite City club Monday night, Dr. C. B. Marstin beat John Curtis, 125 to 115; and Dr. F. E. Jones beat W. S. Anderson, 125 to 104.

The monthly business meeting and social of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held at the home of Mr. George E. Thomas, Newton street, Thursday evening, at eight o'clock.

The degree staff of Manet encampment exemplified the Patriarchal degree for Wompatuck encampment at East Weymouth on Monday evening. A collation was served by the home encampment and it was a good time for all.

Henry W. Porter, now of Lexington, was elected secretary and treasurer of the Middlesex Schoolmasters' club on Saturday. J. S. Emerson of Somerville, formerly of Wollaston, is on the executive committee.

Walker street, which did not receive its pruning last fall after its trial with the gravel teams, is in even more deplorable condition at present. It will need a great deal of rolling and grading to equal it up to its former excellence.

About 150 were present Sunday afternoon at the men's meeting under the aupices of the Y. M. C. A. The meeting opened with a fifteen minute praise service led by A. D. Albee. The address was by Rev. W. W. Bustard of the Dudley Street Baptist church. His subject was "A Good Grip." The address an interesting one was closely followed by his hearers. During the services A. L. Hayden sang two solos.

The Monday night whist club gathered at Mrs. Henry Pineo's home this week for their usual weekly play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Pineo and Mr. Richard Barry. The playing was the most exciting so far this season. Ice cream and cake were passed by Mrs. Pineo and appreciated by all save one whom could not be found to claim the booby prize. The club meets at Mrs. E. G. Hayden's 58 West street, next Monday evening.

HELD IN $10,000

Alleged Holdup Man Gives Way to Emotions In Court

Boston, March 14.—Matthew Hunt, arrested as one of the three negroes who, it is alleged, held up Frank H. Lincoln and Charles W. Birtwell in Brookline, was held in $10,000 for the April term of the grand jury in the Brookline municipal court. When Judge Parker announced his disposition of the case Hunt sank to the floor in a swoon.

During the arraignment he testified that the holdups had been planned, but he denied any intimacy with the other two negroes, one of whom lies dead in the city hospital. The pocketbook and envelope found on Hunt were identified by Birtwell as his property.

The body at the city hospital morgue was identified by two colored women as that of Isaac Williams of 35 Kendall street. Captain Paige, who shot Williams, expresses deep regret for having killed him.

Williams was arrested in Cambridge March 6, 1901, on the charge of larceny. He was sentenced to the Concord reformatory and committed.

Must Stop Work on Training Ships

Washington, March 14.—Owing to the failure of congress at the session just closed to grant the request of the navy department for an appropriation to complete the two training ships now under construction at Boston and Mare Island, the department has been obliged to stop work entirely on the Cumberland at the Boston yard and to consider the necessity of taking similar action in the case of the Intrepid at the Mare Island yard.

All For a Piece of Soap

Huntington, W. Va., March 14.—Quarrelling over a piece of soap, Joseph Thompson last night became enraged at his lifelong partner, Jim Gaines, in a cabin near Welch, and discharged a loaded shotgun into the side of Gaines, inflicting fatal wounds. Gaines cut Thompson's throat and then dragged Thompson's body and threw it into Tug river. He then crawled nearly a mile to the cabin of a neighbor.

Bridge Succumbed to Flood

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—The Seventh street bridge over Los Angeles river fell, carrying with it into the river 15 persons, two of whom were drowned. The high water had attracted a number of sightseers to the bridge, the buttresses of which had been weakened by the flood, and when a sudden rise of the waters came, the supports were carried away and the bridge collapsed.

City Depopulated by Plague

Valparlso, Chile, March 14.—Pisagua, with a population of 20,000, is being abandoned by the inhabitants owing to the fact that hundreds of people there have died of bubonic plague. Houses seemingly deserted have been opened by the police and found to contain bodies in an advanced state of putrefaction. The city has been totally rebuilt within 30 years.

Steamship Company Fined $22,000

San Juan, P. R., March 14.—Under instructions from Secretary Metcalf of the United States department of commerce and labor, Collector Causten has advised the New York and Porto Rico Steamship company of the imposition of $22,000 fine on account of the sailing of the steamer Arkadia without having cleared.

Telephone Rates to Come Down

New York, March 14.—The finance committee of the state senate has notified the Merchants' association that they have decided not to investigate the telephone business in this city, inasmuch as the New York Telephone company has agreed to have the prices for telephone service reduced about 20 percent.

Strength Nearly Exhausted

Liverpool, March 14.—Rev. Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren) has resigned the pastorship of the Sefton Park Presbyterian church. Dr. Watson says he is worn out and cannot go on. He says he has had to do his work with hindrance from bodily weariness, and now his strength is nearly exhausted.

Fire Perhaps Covered Murder

Marysville, Cal., March 14.—The charred remains of Mrs. Joseph Nance were discovered in the ashes of her home in this city. Her husband is under arrest, pending an investigation. It is believed that the woman was murdered and her body burned to conceal the crime.

He Stole Clark Jewels

Cooperstown, N. Y., March 14.—William Coleman, whose theft of the Clark jewels from the office of the Clark estate in July last created a great sensation, withdrew his plea of not guilty in court and was sentenced to 6½ years in Auburn prison.

Wind a Hundred Miles an Hour

San Francisco, March 14.—The southwest gales, accompanied by rain, which have prevailed over the Pacific coast since Saturday, reached their climax yesterday, when the wind at Point Reyes reached the velocity of 100 miles an hour.

Lockjaw Kills $100,000 Horse

Lexington, Ky., March 14.—J. R. Keene's Cormando, b. h., 7 years old, died at Castleton stud of lockjaw. It is said that $100,000 would not have been taken for him. He picked up a stone while exercising 10 days ago.

DUTIES OF WOMEN

Harder Than That of Men, but They Bring a Reward

MOTHERS GIVEN ADVICE

President Roosevelt Says Those Who Deliberately Forego the Blessings of Children Merit Contempt -- Points Out Unpleasant Tendencies In Life

Washington, March 14.—An address by President Roosevelt was the feature of last night's session of the National Congress of Mothers now holding its triennial convention in this city. The president read his speech from a copy which he held in his hands, but now and then departed from the text and interjected some extemporaneous remarks when he wished to emphasize a point. The president said:

There are certain old truths which will be true as long as this world endures, and which no amount of progress can alter. One of these is the truth that the primary duty of the husband is to be the home maker, the breadwinner for his wife and children, and that the primary duty of the woman is to be the helpmeet, the housewife, and mother. On the whole, I think the duty of the woman the more important, the more difficult, and the more honorable of the two; on the whole I respect the woman who does her duty even more than I respect the man who does his.

No ordinary work done by a man is either as hard or as responsible as the work of a woman who is bringing up a family of small children; for upon her time and strength demands are made not only every hour of the day, but often every hour of the night. She may have to get up night after night to take care of a sick child, and yet must by day continue to do all her household duties as well; and if the family means are scant she must usually enjoy even her rare holidays taking her whole brood of children with her. The birth pangs make all men the debtors of all women. Above all our sympathy and regard are due to the struggling wives among those whom Abraham Lincoln called the plain people, for the lives of these women are often led on the lonely heights of quiet, self-sacrificing heroism.

The woman who is a good wife, a good mother, is entitled to our respect as is no one else; but she is entitled to it only because, and so long as, she is worthy of it. Effort and self-sacrifice are the law of worthy life for the man as for the woman; though neither the effort nor the self-sacrifice may be the same for the one as for the other.

Into the woman's keeping is committed the destiny of the generations to come after us. In bringing up your children you mothers must remember that while it is essential to be loving and tender it is no less essential to be wise and firm. Foolishness and affection must not be treated as interchangeable terms; and besides training your sons and daughters in the softer and milder virtues you must seek to give them those stern and hardy qualities which in after life they will surely need. Some children will go wrong in spite of the best training; and some will go right even when their surroundings are most unfortunate; nevertheless an immense amount depends upon the family training.

Teach boys and girls alike that they are not to look forward to lives spent in avoiding difficulties but to lives spent in overcoming difficulties. Teach them that work, for themselves and also for others, is not a curse but a blessing; seek to make them happy, to make them enjoy life, but seek also to make them face life with the steadfast resolution to wrest success from labor and adversity, and to do their whole duty before God and to man. Surely she who can thus train her sons and her daughters is thrice fortunate among women.

There are many good people who are denied the supreme blessing of children, and for these we have the respect and sympathy always due to those who, from no fault of their own, are denied any of the other great blessings of life. But the man or woman who deliberately forgoes these blessings merits contempt as hearty as any visited upon the soldier who runs away in battle, or upon the man who refuses to work for the support of those dependent upon him, and who, though able bodied, is yet content to eat in idleness the bread which others provide.

The existence of women of this type forms one of the most unpleasant and unwholesome features of modern life. If any one is so dim of vision as to fail to see what a thoroughly unlovely creature such a woman is I wish they would read Judge Robert Grant's novel, "Unleavened Bread," ponder seriously the character of Selma, and think of the fate that would surely overcome any nation which developed its average and typical woman along such lines.

Unfortunately it would be untrue to say that this type exists only in American novels. That it also exists in American life is made unpleasantly evident by the statistics as to the dwindling families in some localities. It is made evident in equally sinister fashion by the census statistics as to divorce, which are fairly appalling; for easy divorce is now, as it ever has been, a bane to any nation, a curse to society, a menace to the home, an incitement to married unhappiness and to immorality, an evil thing for men and a still more hideous evil for women.

These unpleasant tendencies in our American life are made evident by articles such as those which I actually read not long ago in a certain paper, where a clergyman was quoted, seemingly with approval, as expressing the general American attitude when he said that the ambition of any save a very rich man should be to rear two children only, so as to give his children an opportunity "to taste a few of the good things of life."

The way to give a child a fair chance in life is not to bring it up in luxury, but to see that it has the kind of training that will give it strength of character. Even apart from the vital question of national life, and regarding only the individual interest of the children themselves, happiness in the true sense is a hundredfold more apt to come to any given member of a healthy family of healthy-minded children, well brought up, well educated, but taught that they must shift for themselves; must win their own way, and by their own exertions make their own positions of usefulness, than it is apt to come to those whose parents themselves have acted on and have trained their children to act on the selfish and sordid theory that the whole end of life is "to taste a few good things."

The intelligence of the remark is on a par with its morality, for the most rudimentary mental process would have shown the speaker that if the average family in which there are children contained but two children the nation as a whole would decrease in population so rapidly that in two or three generations it would very deservedly be on the point of extinction, so that the people who had acted on this base and selfish doctrine would be giving place to others with braver and more robust ideals.

To sum up, then, the whole matter is simple enough. If either a race, or an individual prefers the pleasure of mere effortless ease, of self-indulgence, to the infinitely deeper, the infinitely higher pleasures that come to those who know the toil and the weariness, but also the joy, of hard duty well done, why, that race or that individual must inevitably in the end pay the penalty of leading a life both vapid and ignoble.

The man is but a poor creature whose effort is not rather for the betterment of his wife and children than for himself; and as for the mother, her very name stands for loving unselfishness and self-abnegation, and, in any society fit to exist, is fraught with associations which render it holy.

The woman's task is not easy—no task worth doing is easy—but in doing it, and when she has done it, there shall come to her the highest and holiest joy ever known to mankind; and having done it, she shall have the reward prophesied in Scripture; for her husband and her children, yes, and all people who realize that her work lies at the foundation of all national happiness and greatness, shall rise up and call her blessed.

Don't Like Anti-Compact Law

New York, March 14.—The national board of fire underwriters, at a special meeting here, resolved to withdraw all fire insurance business in the state of Arkansas if the anti-compact law is enforced by the Arkansas legislature. The new law to which the insurance companies object is an anti-trust measure, which is designed to prevent, among other things, agreements upon uniform rates of fire insurance by companies doing such business in Arkansas.

Distressed Steamer In Port

Halifax, March 14.—Steamer Montivedio, bound to Spanish ports from New York, arrived here in tow of steamer Toronto, with her shaft broken. For nearly two days she was at the mercy of winter storms, wallowing helplessly in the trough of the seas, her hatches battered down and her 70 passengers cooped up below the frequently washed decks.

Big Guns May Lose Jobs

Washington, March 14.—Plans have been practically perfected for a complete reorganization of the working force of the Panama canal commission, involving changes from top to bottom. The changes will be in line with the president's declared purpose to dispense with unnecessary officials of high grade.

Holy Ghosters In Politics

Lewiston, Me., March 14.—Leader Sandford of the Holy Ghost and Us society at Shiloh, and Charles E. Holland, who claims to be Moses, with 80 followers, attended the Durham town meeting and practically decided its transactions. One of their members was elected to the school board.

Against Separate Presbyteries

New York, March 14.—The Presbytery of New York has rejected the Cumberland union overture after an excited meeting, during which nearly every one of the 150 members present spoke. The Cumberland plan favored separate presbyteries for whites and negroes.

Robbery Under Noses of Police

Colon, March 14.—The municipal treasury of Colon was robbed last night of $3000. The money was taken from a safe, notwithstanding the fact that the building was guarded by police, and that it adjoined the prefecture of police.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The navy department has officially adopted the Western Union telegraphic code, and copies are to be placed on all the ships of the navy.

Rev. Andrew N. Adams, formerly a Unitarian minister, but for the past 40 years a marble manufacturer, died at his home at Fairhaven, Vt., aged 75. He represented his section in both branches of the legislature and held several town offices.

Paine's Celery Compound Makes Nerve Force

Nerve Force rules the world.

Health—the satisfaction of living,—is the right of every man and woman born into the world.

Health is a question of keeping all the organs of the body working together in fine, smooth, harmony.

The force that rules them all—that makes them work as nature meant and makes them keep in harmony—is Nerve Force.

Without Nerve Force there can be no health at all—no success—no joy in living.

The center of life is in the nerves.

Neglect the nerves and they will make you feel this neglect in many ways, they control all of the organs of the body and must be kept healthy and strong to do their work properly,—tired nerves cannot keep the organs of the body working in that harmony which is essential to real health.

This is why Paine's Celery Compound is able to bring health in so many different forms. Paine's Celery Compound feeds and nourishes the nerves. It makes new Nerve Force. It makes pure, rich blood, a clean active liver, a stomach that acts quietly and strongly upon all the food that is given to it, bowels that throw away promptly and surely all the ashes from life's engine room.

It makes the heart beat true and evenly, it makes the brain clear and vigorous.

Best of all it makes that buoyant life-spirit, the thrill of health, that is the secret of happiness and the keynote of individual success.

This is the work of Paine's Celery Compound. It is the most celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

We give the testimony of many individual cases, simply that you may know their experience in their own words.

"I am a man of more than 60 years, and for the past 20 years I was a great sufferer with acute stomach trouble and rheumatism. I tried a number of specialists, but their efforts were unavailing and I felt as though life was not worth living, and I had given up all hope of being a well man again. My wife, who also had stomach trouble, at the suggestion of a friend, tried two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and was fully restored to health. She then encouraged me to try the same medicine; I did so, and now I am a sound and well man, able to work every day. I bless my good wife every day for my good health, as she got me to take Paine's Celery Compound, in my opinion the greatest medicine ever given to the world for nervousness, stomach trouble, rheumatism and kindred ailments. Yours very truly,"—Martin Baldwin, 610 North 10th St., St. Joseph, Mo. Feb. 25, 1904.

Doctors know and value this prescription and make constant use of it in their practice.

The patient feels this at once and gains confidence by it.

The Nerve Force begins at once to make each organ of the body do the work that nature expects of it.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

Remember this,—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, and all reputable druggists sell and recommend it.

CZAR'S EYES OPEN

Diplomats Think He Considers It Time For Peace

RESULT OF OYAMA'S BLOW

Japanese Would Consider Peace Proposals Direct From Russian Government, but Assurances Must Be of Most Positive Character

Washington, March 14.—When the czar calls his war council today he will be able to inform them that Japan will welcome peace on reasonable terms and will promptly name her conditions provided she receives trustworthy assurances that they will be seriously considered.

This the emperor has learned from friendly chancelleries in Europe, as well as the general terms acceptable to Japan. These, it is said, include the retention by Japan of Port Arthur, a Japanese protectorate over Korea, and an indemnity.

From a high official it is made known that Russia has recalled her second Pacific squadron.

An attache of a Russian embassy in Europe is quoted as expressing the belief that Kuropatkin's recent defeat will force Russia to ask for peace.

Briefly, these are reports current in the diplomatic corps and as a result of this important information official Washington believes that Russia and Japan are on the verge of peace. If it be true that the second Pacific squadron has been recalled, even the most optimistic of Russia's friends admit that this is a strong indication that Oyama's mighty blow has made for peace.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, is the notable exception in the group of foreign envoys here. "However generous the terms which Japan might offer," the ambassador said, "Russian prestige is not among them. That is one thing for which the war will be fought to the end. Victory for the Russian arms will alone make for peace. If not at Tie pass, then at Harbin Russia will assemble another army mightier than before and with that army she will settle the issue. It may be six months, a year, or perhaps two years. Time will be no consideration."

At the Japanese legation it is declared that St. Petersburg, and not Tokio, is the capital from which the world must hope for peace proposals. Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, said in the most emphatic manner that Japan had not directly proposed peace. He did not deny that neutral powers, through their envoys, from time to time had sounded Japan as to the terms on which she would accept peace, but those, he said, necessarily changed with the progress of hostilities, the intimation being that Russia could have obtained better terms after the fall of Port Arthur than after the capture of Mukden.

If the Japanese government were assured that peace proposals would be considered by Russia there is authority for the statement that Japan would respond immediately. But she will insist that these assurances shall be of the most positive character. Japan's experience in the negotiations preceding the war, it is said, will make her exceedingly cautious in the future. She will insist that such assurances shall come from the Russian government and not from this or that party, or this or that friend of the czar.

Officials here expect that by today St. Petersburg will have fully comprehended the extent of Oyama's victory and then will make known its decision regarding the continuance of the war in the face of Mukden's fall.

To Fight Beef Combine

Chicago, March 14.—The Daily News says: War to the knife between the "big five" of the beef combine and 23 firms and corporations classed as independent packers will, it is asserted, begin when the special federal grand jury begins its investigation of the affairs of the alleged beef combination. A fund of $3,000,000 has been raised to carry on the fight against the alleged beef combine and set the claims of the independent packers squarely before the public.

Peculiar Case of Hysteria

East St. Louis, Ills., March 14.—Thrown into violent hysteria by an encounter on the street Saturday night with a footpad who robbed her of $10, Mamie Powers, aged 18, is unable to recognize those about her and is quieted only while songs are sung to her. The attending physician thinks that the soothing influence of the music will eventually restore her to health.

Dowie Denies Rumors

Chicago, March 14.—John A. Dowie, who is now in the City of Mexico, in a communication to his people, denies the report that he will never return to Zion City, headquarters of the church. He says: "Zion City will continue to be the headquarters of the Christian Catholic church. The estate of Zion shows a balance of $21,000,000 over all present and future liabilities."

Hustling on Dominican Treaty

Washington, March 14.—The senate will do its utmost to complete the Santo Domingo treaty, ratify it and adjourn this week. It is conceded that if the vote is delayed beyond that time a quorum of the senate could not be maintained.

MAINE CITY ELECTIONS

An Overturn at Bangor, Where Democrats Are Successful

Portland, Me., March 14.—The surprise of the day in the municipal elections held in five Maine cities was the Democratic landslide at Bangor, where the Democrats elected their candidate for mayor with a plurality of about 250, and five of the seven aldermen.

Except for this loss the Republicans were victorious in each city. There were no opposing tickets at Brewer and Belfast. The Democrats made large gains at Augusta and carried three of the eight wards, it being the first time since 1893 that they carried more than one ward. The feature of the election at Biddeford was the absence of a contest. Republican mayors were re-elected at Biddeford, Belfast and Augusta. The mayors elected in the five cities were as follows:

Bangor, William B. Peirce; Augusta, Charles H. Hichborn; Biddeford, Nathaniel B. Walker; Belfast, Lendall T. Shales; Brewer, Hadley C. Clapp.

Drunkenness No Excuse For Crime

Montpelier, Vt., March 14.—After a scathing denunciation of persons who commit crime after drinking intoxicating liquor, Judge Munson gave Carl Lindeloff the maximum sentence, not less than five nor more than six years at hard labor in state prison, for an assault on his landlord, John Bartlett, with intent to kill, to which charge Lindeloff had pleaded guilty. Lindeloff's counsel made a long plea for clemency, on the ground that his client was intoxicated at the time the assault was committed.

Held Unauthorized Autopsy

Boston, March 14.—For holding an unauthorized autopsy upon the body of his minor son, Louis Bromberger of Cambridge was awarded a verdict for $1000 against Superintendent Howard and Dr. Flagg, a physician at the Massachusetts general hospital, in the superior court. Joseph Bromberger, the son, aged 7, had sustained injuries from burns and died at the hospital. Subsequently Flagg performed an autopsy with the consent of Howard, but without Bromberger's permission.

Quarreled Over Barn Door

East Dorset, Vt., March 14.—James and Frank Bushee, brothers, were sent to the Rutland hospital suffering from numerous, but not necessarily dangerous, gunshot wounds. William Mason, from whom the Bushees rented a logging camp, is in Bennington jail, charged with the shooting. The shooting is said to be the result of a quarrel over a barn door in the camp, which Mason had taken off and which the brothers were trying to rehang.

Newspapers Decrease Crime

Melrose, Mass., March 14.—"The trees of Maine, cut up and manufactured into pulp and printed into newspapers, will do more to decrease crime than the same trees cut up into policemen's clubs." So said Alderman McCullough last night, in urging upon the board of aldermen the advisability of passing his order for a reduction in the present number of police officers. It was voted, 17 to 4, that the order be not adopted.

Negroes Regret Boutwell's Death

Boston, March 14.—Resolutions on the death of former Governor Boutwell were adopted last night by the Boston Literary and Historical association, an organization of negro people of this city. The resolutions declare that the crowning achievement of Boutwell's life was the drafting of the 13th, 14th and 15 amendments to the federal constitution, and that he was a consistent and eloquent friend.

LAWYER DEAD.

W. W. Jenness Passes Away Rather Suddenly.

In Quincy Practice Since 1890.

Largely Interested in Real Estate in the City.

William Whittier Jenness, a well known member of the Quincy bar, died at his home on Whitwell street, shortly before midnight. Mr. Jenness had ptomaine poison last Christmas, and has been in poor health ever since. He was able to be out, however, a week ago. Last Saturday he took a sudden cold. Complications set in which developed into double pneumonia, from which he died.

Mr. Jenness was born in Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 25, 1861. He removed to Alton Corner, that state, when a young child. Here he passed his early years receiving his education in the public schools and at Bates college from which he was graduated in 1885. Leaving college he taught school for a year, and then entered Boston University from which he was graduated in the class of 1888.

He was admitted to the Massachusetts and New Hampshire bars and practiced law for a year in Lancester, N. H.

He came to Quincy in 1890 and associated himself with Judge E. C. Bumpus. He remained with Judge Bumpus for a number of years. Of late he has been associated with George W. Abele, Esq., with offices in Quincy and Boston.

Lawyer Jenness was also largely interested in real estate in Quincy and owned a farm in New Hampshire, where he passed his summers.

He married Ella A. Becker of Chelsea June 29, 1899, who with one son survives him.

He was a member of the Quincy Bar association and the Granite City club.

Funeral services will be held on Friday from Christ church. The burial will be at Alton Corner, N. H.

GRACIOUS MRS. ROOSEVELT

Courteous Act of the President's Wife at the Inauguration.

Perhaps the prettiest incident in connection with the whole inauguration parade was admired by the fortunate hundreds nearest the pavilion from which the president reviewed the troops and civic marchers, says a writer in the New York Press. It happened so quickly after President Roosevelt's arrival in the pavilion that many who might have seen it doubtless missed it. A murmur of appreciation ran through the fashionable throng in the White House grand stand, however, at the sight of it, and one European diplomat remarked loudly enough to be heard by dozens of neighbors that it was the most graceful act he had seen in his whole career. Yet it was only the moving of a chair. That chair was moved, however, by Mrs. Roosevelt, and the impulse inspiring the act was so transparent that it was recognized instantly.

When the president still was bowing to the cheering multitude Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt advanced toward the front of the pavilion, where chairs had been placed for them. The committeeman who put the chairs there arranged them so that Mrs. Roosevelt's was almost a foot closer to the rail than that of her stepdaughter. Mrs. Roosevelt noticed that, and as she sat down she unostentatiously moved Miss Roosevelt's chair forward until it was several inches in front of her own. It was a graceful deed, because as the president's wife Mrs. Roosevelt would have been entirely justified in taking the position next in prominence to that of the chief executive. By yielding place to the younger woman she displayed the gentle courtesy for which among other reasons she is loved by her many friends.

SEA IN A DESERT.

Wide Inundations In Lower California and Arizona.

The Salton sea, the phenomenon which led to so much talk a few years ago, has again appeared, and there is once more a vast inland sea in the Colorado desert, says a San Francisco dispatch. This time the men who are engaged in engineering work in bringing the waters of the Colorado river under control for irrigation purposes are blamed for the inundation. The Colorado river, which is high, has simply backed up in the canals and in the new river and thus forced its way into the heart of the desert, which is 300 feet below sea level.

The oasis is thus filled. The sea stretches from Ocean Beach to Walters. There is a complete tie-up of salt works at Salton. This, however, cannot be called a disaster, for when the sea came in for the first time it helped enormously to increase the output of salt, as it enabled the managers to use gang plows to cut deep into the salt layers.

In Arizona, where there was never known to be any water, great lakes have been formed, and the presence of this water is said to have changed the climate considerably. These lakes prove the value of irrigating, for since the appearance of this water there have come into existence vast fields of grass, which proves that the soil under irrigation would be capable of supporting crops.

Kentuckian's Homemade Violin.

H. H. C. Q. James of Bullitt county, Ky., who is an expert performer on the violin, finished making a new violin recently, says the Salt River Tiger. He played on it the next day and thinks it has got the best tone of any that he ever heard. The lightest touch of the bow will produce a clear, even and well sustained sound. He made the top of cedar and the back and ribs of maple. Two years ago he cut a cedar tree that was known to be seventy-five years old and sawed from the first cut the piece with which he made the top of the violin, and at the same time he cut the maple, and after thoroughly seasoning he has with a specially shaped knife and a file made what he considers one of the finest toned violins he ever heard. All of his friends are congratulating him on his success, and as the violin ages Mr. James expects it to improve in tone.

The World's Work.

Out of the darkness of blind superstition,
Out of the chaos of myth and disorder,
Fearfully, timidly over the border
Into a land of ample fruition
Man is advancing.

Dim as when mists on some midsummer morning
Veil the first gleams of the sun in his glory;
Dim, through the vapors of dogma and story,
Truth is arising, the daylight is dawning
Over our darkness.

Through the black darkness of dogmas misleading
Thousands have toiled with a faith single hearted,
Brave hearts have bled—not in vain—and departed,
Leaving to others the fruits of their seeding—
Martyrs to duty.

Is it a dream, a fantastical notion—
This that our search after truth is a duty,
This that our children may bask in her beauty
Worshiping truth with undoubting devotion—
Truth the eternal?

Else is the work of the world unavailing;
Naught but a war against want and privation,
Naught but a struggle of nation 'gainst nation,
Man against man—where the strongest prevailing
Lives but to perish.

Out of the chaos of myth and disorder
Into the glories of truth the eternal
To the possession of pleasures supernal,
Led by the toil of the world o'er the border,
Man is advancing.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey. XI—George visits Bawdsey, who is employed by Lord Derrington to watch the young man. Bawdsey warns him that he is suspected of Mrs. Jersey's murder.

CHAPTER XII—(Continued.)

"I don't think I have any more to say," said Brendon.

"Then why did you come here?"

"To ask you if you consider it honorable to threaten me. I have already done so. There is no more to be said on my part. I wish you to recognize my mother's marriage and to state that I am your heir."

"Anything else?" sneered Derrington.

"Yes; you will publicly recognize me, you will allow me an income sufficient to maintain the dignity of my real name of George Vane, and you will order Mrs. Ward to keep silent."

"Mrs. Ward? What have I to do with her?"

"A great deal, apparently. You told her my story, and as she does not want me to marry her daughter she will move heaven and earth to ruin me by using her knowledge."

"How can she ruin you?"

"I think you understand, sir. The story told by my friend Train"—

"Friend! Judas, rather."

"No. He is only a weak man who is as wax in the hands of a clever and pretty woman. But Mrs. Ward got sufficient out of him to place me in a somewhat perilous position."

"Were you in the room where the woman was murdered? Speak plainly."

"I came here purposely to speak plainly," rejoined Brendon dryly, "for your safety as well as for my own."

"Safety, sir?" Derrington grew crimson. "What do you mean?"

"I mean that I can speak freely to you, as I know perfectly well that for the honor of our family you will not take these matters into court. I was in the room of Mrs. Jersey. I saw her dead!"

"And you know who killed her?"

"No. I can't say that for certain." George looked keenly at his grandfather. The old man appeared uneasy. Suddenly Brendon spoke. "I should like to know what you were doing in Mrs. Jersey's house on the night she was murdered?"

"Do you mean to say that I am behaving dishonorably?"

Derrington dashed down his pen furiously and rose. "You go too far, sir! You go too far!" he roared.

"Not any further than you intended to go. If you threaten me I have a right to protect myself."

"In what way?"

"By telling you that if I am in a perilous position you are also."

"Do you mean to say that I murdered the woman?"

"By no means," said Brendon quickly. "I should not think of doing such a thing. But I do say you were in that house after 11."

"I was not," panted the old nobleman savagely, and he glared at his grandson with bloodshot eyes.

"You were," insisted Brendon. "There is no need to tell you how I got out of my bedroom unbeknown to Train, but I did. I came downstairs to see Mrs. Jersey at half past 11 or thereabouts. I crept down the stairs and saw you standing in the light of the hall lamp. You had on a fur coat, and I recognized you by your unusual height; also by the color of your coat. Some months before you wore that coat—it is a claret colored one trimmed with sable—at a race meeting. You were pointed out to me, and it was the first time I had set eyes on you. It was you in the hall."

"Did you see my face?" asked Derrington.

"No. But the coat and the height and my knowledge that you were connected with Mrs. Jersey"—

"I wasn't connected with the jade!" flashed out Derrington. "She came to me years ago and said she could prove the marriage. I tried to get out of her the name of the church where it took place. She refused to give it and said if I did not pension her off she would go to your guardian, Ireland, and get him to help her to prove that you were legitimate. I hated your father, sir, and as to your mother"—

"No," cried Brendon, rising, "not a word against my mother."

"Only this, that she was not well born—the daughter of a music master, not the wife for my son."

"She was his wife, however. Leave my mother's name out of it and go on, sir. You say that Mrs. Jersey could have proved the marriage."

"Yes," growled Derrington, rather cowed by Brendon's manner. "I did not wish her to do so, for the reasons I have stated."

"Very unworthy reasons," said George.

Derrington looked as though he could have struck George. "Never mind that," said he, controlling his temper. "I bought that house from your mother's father—the music master," he sneered, "and gave it to Mrs. Jersey rent free. I also allowed her an annuity. She held her tongue for many years. Then she saw that confounded advertisement in the papers and threatened to tell you the truth on the chance of getting more money out of you when I was dead. I refused, and she then told me that she had written out a confession"—

"I thought as much," interrupted George. "But that has been stolen."

"By whom?"

"By the assassin."

"And who is the assassin?"

"I can't say. But if use is made of that confession either you or I will learn who killed Mrs. Jersey."

"Why you or I?"

"Because we alone can make use of the confession and pay money for it. The thing would be of no use to any one else. But I now understand Mrs. Jersey's possession of the house. Were you in it on that night?"

Derrington looked at Brendon and hesitated. Then in strange contradiction to his usual manner he turned away his face. "I decline to answer that question," he growled.

"But I saw you," persisted George.

"You saw— There is nothing more to be said. Hold your tongue."

"Willingly," said George politely, "if you will silence Mrs. Ward."

"I have no influence with the woman."

"Oh, I think so. She wishes Dorothy to marry my cousin."

"Your cousin!"

"Can you deny the relationship?"

Derrington shirked the question by assenting to Brendon's request. "I may be able to make Mrs. Ward hold her tongue," he growled.

"I am quite sure she will do anything you tell her in the hope that you will approve of a match between my cousin and her daughter."

"And you wish me to approve?" sneered the old man.

"As to that, it matters little. Mrs. Ward wishes Dorothy to be Lady Derrington and to have your very excellent income. Whether she marries me or Vane, it comes to the same thing. I can't understand Mrs. Ward's dislike and mischief making, since that is the case."

"I can," snapped Derrington. "You are too clever for her, and Walter is a fool."

"Perhaps so. However, as I shall marry Dorothy it doesn't much matter."

"How can you marry her, situated as you are?"

"I shall be George Vane some day, sir, and then Dorothy will be my wife."

"I believe she will," muttered Derrington, looking at the firm face of the young man. "Humph! So you intend to look for the certificate of marriage?"

"No; for the confession of Mrs. Jersey. Afterward for the church which will be mentioned in that confession. The register will prove the marriage without the necessity of the certificate."

"How will you set to work to get that confession?"

George wrinkled his brows. "There is only one way, sir. I must find out who killed Mrs. Jersey. If you can help me"—

"I can't. I know no more who murdered the woman than you do."

"Yet you were in the house on that night."

Derrington grew wrathful. "Don't talk rubbish, sir. If I was I should not mind admitting the fact. As it is"— He broke off, gnawing his lip and avoiding Brendon's eyes.

That the old man knew something vital to the case Brendon was certain. That he would never confess what it was George felt perfectly sure. He abandoned the point, as he did not wish to make Lord Derrington incriminate himself, and he might do so. Brendon was satisfied that he had seen him in the house on the night when Mrs. Jersey was murdered.

"There is no more to be said," he remarked, taking up his hat.

"No. Except that I'll give you a fair chance of finding the church. Bawdsey shall watch you no more."

"Thank you. And Mrs. Ward?"

"She shall be made to hold her tongue."

George bowed. "I am obliged to you, sir. I now see that you intend to fight fairly. Good day." And he departed.

Derrington stood where he was in deep thought. Suddenly he struck a mighty blow on the desk. "By heaven, he's a man after my own heart!" said the old scamp. "He shall be my heir; he shall marry that girl, but to exercise his wits he shall fight every inch of the way to attain his ambition."

LADIES' NIGHT.

Of the Wollaston Unitarian Club.

Address on Abraham Lincoln.

Guy A. Ham, Esq., the Speaker of the Evening.

It was a problem to find accommodations at the annual ladies' night of the Wollaston Unitarian club, for just 112 attended the grand banquet Tuesday evening in the vestry of the church. It was a full dress party, the ladies being prettily gowned in the latest creations.

On the head table was a vase of beautiful Lawson pinks with long stems, and on the other tables in pots were azaleas, tulips jonquils, and other spring flowers from Patterson's greenhouses.

A very substantial menu was served by H. J. Seiler which gave excellent satisfaction. It included bouillon, roast beef and gravy, salads, croquettes and spaghetti, rolls, ice-cream, frozen pudding, sherbets, cake and coffee.

While the guests were assembling in the church auditorium there were organ selections, and during the banquet, there was delightful music by the mandolin club of Wollaston.

At the business meeting President Sprague appointed as the committee to nominate officers for next year: J. Q. Litchfield, J. H. Broughton and Rufus Poole.

The club also accepted a large bust of Lincoln, the work of William Ordway Partridge, and voted hearty thanks to the unknown donor.

President Sprague's fame as a presiding officer is well known by club members, and he was particularly good at the post prandial exercises on this occasion. He told stories, paid the ladies a pretty compliment, and gave the speaker of the evening a good introduction.

Guy A. Ham, Esq., of Dorchester, the able assistant United States District Attorney, was the guest of honor, and his subject was Abraham Lincoln. As a preface, he told several stories, mostly his personal experiences, which met with great favor.

He did not attempt to sketch the life of Lincoln, but spoke mainly of his elements of character, saying the prominent ones in Lincoln's life should be found in every public man and private citizen. Reference was made as to the time of his birth, and he was considered a man of destiny, raised up by providence.

Justice and honesty predominated in the life of Lincoln. He had the courage to stand for what was right. The speaker without the aid of notes made several quotations in support of the above assertions.

The purpose of Lincoln was to preserve the American institutions, to preserve liberty of all the people. Our government is not always conducted for the majority, but sometimes for the favored few, but the nation which stands for mankind receives divine support. President Roosevelt has called the attention of the people to the dangers of today. There have been new evidences of persons seeking special privileges not allowed to all.

We should drive forth individuals who seek to deride and debauch the laws. Remember the characteristics of Lincoln—love of fellow man, love of God, love of country.

The address of forty minutes was frequently applauded.

President Sprague had a few kind words for Rev. Frank W. Pratt, the founder of the club, who will soon move to Hopedale to assume his duties as pastor, regretting very much that he was going, and concluding by presenting a mysterious little package. But valuable articles are often concealed in small packages, and ere this Mr. Pratt has found a valuable pair of gold cuff buttons and also a set of studs.

Mr. Pratt was embarrased at the unexpected turn of affairs but expressed sincere appreciation of the mysterious gift. He also was pleased at the gift of the bust of Lincoln for the vestry, and spoke briefly of Lincoln, and his great trait of character—simplicity, which we should all emulate. He left the club with the feeling that good work was going on.

Walter E. Simmons did not propose that he should leave the club, and upon his motion the club voted to continue Mr. Pratt as a life member.

Upon motion of F. H. Bishop hearty thanks were also given Guy A. Ham, the speaker of the evening.

At the head table were President Eugene H. Sprague with the guest of the evening, Guy A. Ham, Esq., on his right, and Mrs. Sprague on his left. Also School Attendance.

The average daily attendance at the public schools of the city for the four weeks ending March 3, was upwards of 5,000. Because of sickness the percentage of 90.3 is below the average. The percentage of the High, the John Hancock, and the Cranch were considerably above the average of the city. But one case of tardiness was reported at the Gridley Bryant, only 4 at the John Hancock, and the Willard with 800 pupils reported only 6.

Annual Concert.

A large audience was present at Faxon hall Tuesday evening at the sixth annual concert of the pupils of Frederick H. Lord, teacher of the mandolin, violin banjo and guitar. The program was a lengthy one, a greater part of the numbers being encored.

The program opened by two selections by an orchestra of seventy members all of whom were pupils of Mr. Lord. Other numbers on the program included trios for the banjo, mandolin and guitar, banjo duets, and solos on the several instruments. Other numbers were some very pleasing readings by Miss Mabel N. Simmons, and delightful vocal solos by Frank E. Conant.

The work of the pupils was very fine, and their execution showed the thoroughness of Mr. Lord their instructor. It was the best program that he ever presented in this city.

GIVEN POWER

Committee of the Tool Sharpeners

Now Have Authority to Settle.

An Early Conference Is Expected.

There are no new developments today in the situation between the granite manufacturers and the blacksmiths. There are indications, however, that a settlement of the differences is near at hand.

The Blacksmiths' Union held a meeting on Tuesday, at which its committee were given full power to settle. Up to the present time the committee were practically without power and everything they did had to go back to the union for final action.

The Manufacturers' committee also have full power to settle, and it is now believed that when the committee again meet for a conference that an adjustment will be reached.

Just when the next conference will be held is not definitely known. It is probable, however, that it will be at an early date.

All a Joke.

A well known character, disguised as a Hebrew, who acted as if he was crazy, created considerable excitement in City Square at midnight Monday night. Although he was known to the officers he led them and the crowd a merry chase through the square and the yard of the Savings Bank building. He finally eluded his pursuers and made his escape into a stable on Washington street. Two special officers who were about drew their guns and stood guard over the stable.

They declared that they would have the fellow if they stood there all night. While they were watching the fellow had thrown off his disguise and leaving the stable walked by the two limbs of the law, leaving them standing on guard.

Before this, however, Officer Goodhue had caught and recognized him. Then, understanding the joke, he allowed him to escape.

Sudden Death.

West Quincy also had a sudden death on Tuesday, William Hall, a tool sharpener living on Larry place, passing away. He has not been in good health for some time, but had been regularly at work up to the time of suspension of work in the granite industry March 1.

NO LEPERS.

Hangman's Island Not Contemplated for Hospital.

So Mayor Thompson Ascertains.

His Authority Clerk Wells of the State Board.

Quincy people will be glad to learn from good authority that a leper colony will not be established at Hangman's Island.

The article in Tuesday's Ledger, taken from a Boston paper, stirred up a hot bed of protest. Citizens all over the city immediately became aroused, and vigorous steps were contemplated to stop it.

Mayor Thompson became thoroughly alive to the situation. He felt that the establishing of such a colony so near Quincy would become a great damage to the city. He lost no time in looking into the matter and began an investigation.

He kept his telephone line hot for a time communicating with parties at the State House. It was a most discouraging job. He was constantly referred from one party to another until he finally landed on Rev. John D. Wells a former resident of Quincy, who is secretary of the State Board of Charities.

From Mr. Wells, Mayor Thompson learned that Hangman's island had not been considered, and that there was no truth in the story.

Another thing that would prevent this island being taken is its smallness. It is doubtful if it would be large enough, as its greatest breadth is only about fifty feet.

Representative Freeman, when seen by the Daily Ledger, said that this matter was one which came before the Legislative committee of which he was a member, and he could assure the citizens that there was nothing in the story, as Hangman's Island was not being considered. The island contemplated is being kept secret for the present.

Bar Association Meet.

A meeting of the Quincy Bar Association was held this morning to take action on the death of William W. Jenness, Esq. W. G. A. Pattee presided and Frank A. Tirrell was secretary.

Upon motion of Hon. E. C. Bumpus, it was voted that a committee of five, including the chairman, be appointed to attend the funeral and procure a floral piece.

The chairman appointed Everett C. Bumpus, John W. McAnarney, Walter S. Pinkham and Paul R. Blackmur.

George E. Adams was elected treasurer of the association and it was voted to assess members $2 each, so that the association might have a contingent fund on hand.

A Dearth of Water

Morrisville, Vt., March 15.—The supply of water in the town's main reservoir is so low that it has been necessary to take water from the supply stored in a small basin for use in the case of fire. Farmers in this vicinity have been hauling water for their stock nearly all winter. A warm rain alone will relieve the situation.

Shaker Burned to Death

West Pittsfield, Mass., March 15.—While Conrad Smith, 75 years old, a member of the Shaker society of this place, was sleeping in his room in the storage house of the society, a fire broke out in one of the lower rooms. Smith was burned alive and the building completely destroyed, causing a loss of $12,000.

A Faithful Mother's Sacrifice

Burlington, Vt., March 15.—Exhausted from nursing her son, sick with typhoid fever, Mrs. Franklin C. Barnes, a widow, 76 years old, was overcome by the cold, and was found yesterday in an adjoining room with her hands and feet frozen. She died later from the effects of the exposure.

Bishop Hall Passes Crisis

Burlington, Vt., March 15.—Bishop A. C. A. Hall, who was operated upon for appendicitis last Saturday, passed successfully through the third, and what is generally considered to be the critical day, and is now believed to be on the road to recovery.

Investigating Mysterious Death

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

SAFE AT THE PASS

Russians, However, Fear Japanese Turning Movement

A POINT TOWARD PEACE

Czar's Inability to Secure Loan From French Bankers May Have Greater Effect Than Reverse at Mukden

London, March 15.—By delay in pressing his pursuit of Russia's defeated and demoralized army to Tie pass, Field Marshal Oyama has afforded General Kuropatkin time to sort out the disorganized units of his command and restore his forces to at least a semblance of order.

So far as known there is no considerable force of Japanese nearer Tie pass than six or eight miles, but in Russian quarters there is a feeling of apprehension that some turning movement, of which there is no definite information, is in progress. From Japanese sources it is reported that many straggling parties of Russians, cut off from their commands in the retreat from Mukden, are surrendering upon the appearance of Japanese troops.

The council of war summoned by the czar is reported to have decided yesterday that the war must be carried forward. The all-important question of financial means, however, is said to have reached no solution, the situation being complicated by the reported decision of French capitalists not to negotiate the loan recently offered by St. Petersburg.

The probability as regarded in St. Petersburg seems to be that when General Kuropatkin has completed the task of reorganizing what is left of his army he will be permitted to return to Russia and that the command in Manchuria will be entrusted to General Sukhomlimoff, whose war apprenticeship was served under General Dragomiroff, who has been regarded as the foremost of Russia's scientific soldiers. It is possible, however, that the command will go to Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch.

The revolt of the French bankers is considered by the London newspapers as the most hopeful and important news of the day, promising an early conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan. Apparently the proposed loan has not been absolutely refused, but only "postponed." This, however, is regarded here as being tantamount to a refusal, and is expected to speak louder to the Russian war party even than Kuropatkin reverse at Mukden.

It is the general belief that by the death of M. Germain, the late governor of the Credit Lyonnais, Russia lost her strongest financial friend in France, and that had he been alive no difficulty would have been experienced. With the American and English markets closed to her, it is thought that Russia can only turn to Germany, who is not likely to be much more responsive than France, and the only alternative would seem to be to make peace.

Reports are current here that Japan will now demand an indemnity of between $500,000,000 and $750,000,000.

Difficulty In Mobilizing

London, March 15.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of The Daily Telegraph predicts that the Russian authorities will have to battle with an angry sea of troubles in connection with the mobilization of a new army. The correspondent relates as an example that a few days ago an attempt to mobilize Cossacks in the Kuban district of the Caucasus met with flat disobedience and that the employment of force led to serious bloodshed.

No Loan Without Peace

London, March 15.—The Daily Mail declares that the French government has given Parisian banking houses clearly to understand that they must not conclude the proposed Russian loan unless Russia is prepared to negotiate for peace.

Peasants Destroying Property

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The peasant movement is spreading to the northwest provinces. Serious disturbances are reported in the provinces of Vilna and Kovno, where the estates and property of government officials and others have been sacked and burned, necessitating the employment of the military to suppress the revolt.

Students' Strike Continues

Warsaw, March 15.—The authorities were unsuccessful in an attempt to reopen the commercial and technical schools. The educational situation is causing much concern. In consequence of the peasant agitation, the censor has issued an order prohibiting the press from referring to agrarian questions.

Damage of Over $500,000

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—The great storm that raged almost incessantly along the southern coast for the past 48 hours is over. As far as has been learned but one life has been lost as a result of the storm. The total damage, scattered over a wide stretch of territory, is conservatively estimated to be in excess of $500,000.

Demented Man Slept In Snowdrift

Deposit, N. Y., March 15.—John Ryan, aged 50, died at his home here as a result of exposure. While suffering from mental derangement, he undressed and lay down in a snowdrift, thinking that he was at home and going to bed. When found his legs were badly frozen.

TREATY IN DANGER

Santo Domingo Proposition Is Likely to Fail

DEMOCRATS SOLIDIFIED

Brought Into Line Under Leadership of Gorman--Investigation Suggested -- Republicans Weakened by Absenteeism

Washington, March 15.—The discussion of the Dominican treaty, in executive session of the senate, has resulted in the drawing of party lines. The Democrats who have been reported as likely to support the treaty will return to the fold, it is said, and on both sides of the chamber it is admitted there is little prospect that the convention will be ratified.

The Republicans have been depending on some Democratic support, and have counted as certain the votes of Senators McEnery and Foster and Clarke. Senator Gorman, the minority leader, gave notice yesterday that these senators are now pledged against the treaty, and it is stated that Senator McEnery today will recall his telegram authorizing Senator Cullom to pair him for the convention. It is not expected that either he or Clarke will return to Washington to vote. Senator Foster will remain in Washington and vote with his party.

The Republicans had planned to recall their absentees, but it is reported that even with the full Republican strength here the necessary two-thirds for ratification cannot be mustered if there is no defection of Democratic votes. The depletion of the Republican ranks by reason of the vacancies in Missouri and Delaware, the absence of Senator La Follette, who has not taken the oath of office, and of Senators Aldrich and Knox is felt greatly by the Republicans, who are striving for favorable action on the treaty.

A canvass of the senate has not developed the necessary two thirds affirmative vote, even counting all of the Republicans as present or paired. If the statement of the Democrats that there will be no division in their party proves correct, or if the two Louisiana senators and Clarke of Arkansas should vote against it, there is no chance for the ratification of the treaty.

Because of the doubt of ratification, which is now talked seriously for the first time, the suggestion is made that action should be postponed until after an investigation has been made of all the conditions in Santo Domingo, including the character of the claims and the stability of the Dominican government and the force that would be required to keep it intact. This proposition comes from the Democrats, and credit for originating it has been given to Senator Gorman.

It has not met with favor, largely because of the indifference as to the fate of the treaty which was expressed by a number of Republican senators. So far as the propriety of the senate making an investigation is concerned, it is said that step would be unprecedented and that an inquiry, if one is to be had, should be made through the president. It is understood that the subject of appointing a commission to make the inquiry has not been presented to the president, and it seems assured that there will be no postponement of the vote unless such action meets the approval of the president, which is not deemed likely.

The affirmative and negative on the treaty took on a decided partisan bias yesterday. Several Democrats opposed the treaty and criticised the administration severely. The first speech was made by Senator Teller, who asserted that the administration could not be blameless in permitting Commander Dillingham to exercise so much authority. Fault was found particularly with Dillingham for his action in taking control of the port of Monte Cristi. Into this discussion there was interjected many pointed questions in which practically all of the Democrats participated.

So harsh was the criticism of the administration that Senator Spooner devoted nearly half an hour to a general defense of the course of the department of state. He disclaimed for the department responsibility for a great part of the procedure of the naval officer. Senators Foraker and Cullom followed along the same lines.

Senator Bacon started to address the senate at 5 o'clock, but had proceeded only a few minutes when he was seized with a severe attack of gastritis and was unable to go on. Senator Gallinger, who is a physician, prescribed for the ailing senator, who was himself in a few moments, but had his carriage called immediately and went home. The senate then adjourned.

Last Thought Was of Mother

Long View, Tex., March 15.—Julius Stevens, a negro imprisoned in the jail here, charged with assault upon Carl Anderson, was shot to death in his cell by a mob. The mob forced the jailer to deliver the keys. The negro asked and received permission to write to his mother, returning to the cell door, where he fell with a pistol bullet in his heart.

Penitentiary For Mail Thief

Baltimore, March 15.—Sydney Adams, chief clerk of the general delivery division of the Baltimore postoffice, pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the mails and was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary. Adams had been a clerk in the postoffice for 20 years.

FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

Noted Sugar Merchant of Boston Dies Away From Home

Boston, March 15.—Henry R. Reed, who was found dead in the Grand Union hotel at New York, was one of Boston's most prominent merchants, his business activity being chiefly directed in the sugar industry. He was senior member of the firm of Nash, Spaulding & Co., one of the oldest concerns in the city engaged in the sugar trade and which controls the Revere Sugar refinery.

Reed was also a large stockholder and a director in the Pullman Parlor Car company, and a director in the Oregon Navigation company. He was a member of the board of directors of the State National bank of this city. Reed was also prominent socially, being a member of the Somerset, Algonquin, Country and other leading Boston clubs and societies. He was born 62 years ago in New Ipswich, N. H. He is survived by a widow and four daughters.

Mr. Reed went to New York Sunday, after having been confined to his home for a week on account of illness. Mrs. Reed, his widow, says that she understood her husband had visited New York in connection with business.

Charles B. Rogers, the druggist whose business label was found upon a bottle of white powder in Reed's room at New York, said that he had no record of a sale of such substance to Reed. The members of Reed's family were in the habit of trading at his store, he added. Rogers had no knowledge that the merchant had been troubled with heart disease.

His Own Executioner

Boston, March 15.—While boring through a brick wall with a drill, Augustus Bohm was electrocuted by a live wire which came in contact with the tool which he was operating. Bohm was at work on the Edison Electric Illuminating company's building at 29-31 Hawkins street, and he was boring a hole through a brick wall when the accident happened. When the drill reached the outer wall it struck the live wire, and he was instantly killed.

Had Exciting Experience

Boston, March 15.—The British steamship Ras-Bera, which was under fire at Port Arthur in the bombardment by the Japanese on Feb. 8, 1904, has arrived at this port from Manila and Cebu. The vessel brought 2500 bales of hemp and has a crew including Chinese, Japanese and one Filipino. After being under fire during the bombardment the Ras-Bera was permitted by the Russian officials to leave port.

Conference on Hart Mystery

Providence, March 15.—United States secret service officers, who have been detailed on the case of the murder of John A. Hart, who was found dead on steamer Larchmont upon its arrival at this city from New York, are in conference here with District Attorney Wilson. The case was discussed at length, but the exact nature of the conference was not disclosed.

Valuable Racer Poisoned

Chicago, March 15.—Jacob Klein, Jr., has sought the aid of the Chicago police to find the poisoner of the racehorse Huganetta, winner of the Alois derby at Springfield, Ills., and entered for the coming Harlem national. The horse was found dying in its stall. A reward of $2000 has been offered for the arrest of the alleged poisoner.

Predicts Famine In Ireland

London, March 15.—In the house of commons, John Redmond, in supporting Mr. Hayden's motion charging the government with failure to anticipate the distress in the west of Ireland, urged the government to take immediate steps to avert impending famine. Unless a remedy be found, he said, there will be no peace.

Complete Collapse of Strike

New York, March 15.—Apart from irregularity in the running schedule, trains in the subway and on the subdivisions of the "L" system accommodated the crowds that sought transportation during the rush hours last night with something like old-time facility. No accident occurred.

Two Deaths and an Arrest

Syracuse, N. Y., March 15.—An express train killed Proctor Pinau and R. W. Smith at Dewitt. They had stepped from an accommodation train to cross to the station and walked in front of the express. Arthur Stewart, seen in company with the dead men on the train, was arrested.

Brothers Lynched by a Mob

Selma, Ala., March 15.—Ed and Will Ptomey, negroes, who shot and fatally wounded Professor Hardy at Pine Apple, were caught by a mob of citizens in a house near Allenton, where they had barricaded themselves, and were taken to a nearby swamp and hanged.

West Quincy people should not blame their councilmen because they did not get additional trains just at present. Councilman Hughes, who was on the special committee, did what he could, and received a promise of improved service when the new spring timetable is made up.

The residents of Copeland street near the old Granite engine house, wish to thank Commissioner Burke through the columns of the Ledger for his prompt work in repairing the damaged roads which have been causing flooded cellars and yards in the vicinity during the past week of spring weather.

Easily Explained.

What did you say was the trouble with my old man's stomach? asked an old woman a few days ago, of the doctor who had been called in to prescribe for her husband.

The doctor replied "that the most annoying symptoms seems to be water brash, or pyrosis, as we doctors call it, and he must be more careful regarding the food he eats."

"That is just what the matter is with him—pierosis,"—said she; "He's the biggest hand for pie you ever saw. He eats most three pieces every meal. It surely am pierosis he is suffering with."

PATRICK IN COURT

Condemned Man Hears Argument In His Behalf

NEW TRIAL IS ASKED FOR

Assertion That No Murder Had Been Committed and That Millionaire Rice Died From Natural Causes

Albany, March 15.—While senators, assemblymen and state officers were being turned away from the door on account of lack of room inside, Albert T. Patrick sat before the robed judges of the court of appeals and heard David B. Hill argue his appeal from the judgment convicting him of the murder of William M. Rice, the New York millionaire.

The unusual event of a condemned murderer attending the argument of his own case before the highest state court brought crowds of people to the capitol, but only a small proportion of them were successful in getting a sight of the prisoner. Patrick's original intention was to address the court, but upon the advice of his counsel he remained silent, contenting himself with listening to the argument and making notes which he used afterward in advising with Mr. Hill regarding the rebuttal, which will probably occur today.

Patrick's case was not reached until late yesterday afternoon. He was defended by ex-Senator Hill and Samuel B. Thomas of New York. Assistant District Attorney Gans was assisted in the prosecution by former Supreme Court Justice Landon.

Mr. Hill argued that the judgment of conviction should be reversed and a new trial granted, first, upon the ground that no murder had been committed, and that Rice had died, as the attending physician testified, as the result of old age and a weak heart, as a remote cause with indigestion and diarrhoea with mental worry as the immediate cause. He declared that the congested condition of the lungs might have easily been caused by the embalming fluid and not by chloroform, as the prosecution alleged. He pointed out that the conviction of Patrick rested solely upon the evidence of Valet Jones, a confessed murderer, whose testimony, for that reason alone, should have been disregarded. In this connection, he attacked the district attorney's office for letting Jones go free without punishment of any kind, and alleged that Jones' present immunity from punishment was due to a bargain between him and the prosecuting attorneys.

Mr. Hill declared that the evidence regarding the condition of Rice's lungs before the body was embalmed rested solely upon the testimony of two coroner's physicians who were not the "disinterested public officials" they were represented to be by the district attorney. As proof of this he said that it had been discovered since the trial that these witnesses had been privately retained by the prosecution and paid several thousand dollars for their services in making experiments in the effect of chloroform upon the human lungs.

The prosecution will be heard today, and it is expected that the case will occupy the attention of the court for at least two days.

Palma In Auto Which Kills Boy

Havana, March 15.—An automobile in which President Palma was riding ran over and killed Manuel Palomera, a 14-year-old Spanish boy. The machine is owned by Louis Marx, an American tobacco planter, who, with General Montavlo, Senor Portundo and a chauffeur, was with the president at the time of the accident. The automobile was proceeding slowly through a crowded section, when the boy ran between a street car and the automobile.

Greason May Have New Trial

Philadelphia, March 15.—The supreme court has decided to send the Greason case back to the court of oyer and terminer of Berks county and allow that body to use its discretion in granting a new trial. Greason and Mrs. Kate Edwards were convicted of the murder of the woman's husband, Greason being convicted on the woman's testimony. Mrs. Edwards subsequently exonerated Greason from all blame.

Commerce Commiss on Defied

San Francisco, March 15.—The law departments of the Southern Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroads have decided to ignore the recent decision of the interstate commerce commission, which decided that the rate of $1.25 on oranges from California to all eastern points was unreasonable and should be reduced to $1.15.

Disbelieves Poison Theory

Honolulu, March 15.—President Jordan of Stanford university emphatically expresses the opinion that Mrs. Stanford's death was not due to strychnine poisoning. He has been assisting the detectives by suggesting questions as a physician during their inquiries regarding her symptoms and results of the autopsy.

Imprisonment For Soldier

Washington, March 15.—The president has approved the sentence in the case of Lieutenant Boone, Nineteenth infantry, who was convicted by court martial at Vancouver barracks on the charge of desertion, absence without leave, breach of arrest and non-payment of debts. He will serve one year's imprisonment.

Order on Receiver's Motion to fix a time limit for presentation of Claims and for authority to sell Assets.

This cause came on to be further heard upon the motion of the Receiver to fix a time within which claims may be presented and heard by the Receiver and upon the petition of the Receiver for authority to sell certain assets and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the Receiver give notice by sending by mail to all known creditors of the Co-partnership of Berry Brothers, a duly addressed notice of the time and place where claims shall be presented and heard.

It is further ordered that the Receiver shall hear and pass upon all claims that shall be presented and return his finding to this Court and that all Claims not so presented to said Receiver prior to the tenth day of April, 1905, shall be forever barred, unless the Court for good cause shown shall otherwise order.

The Receiver is ordered to give notice to all persons interested to appear before said Court at Dedham, in said County, on the first Monday of April, 1905, then and there to show cause why the Receiver should not be authorized to sell the property set forth in said Receiver's petition, dated, February sixth, 1905 of said Co-partnership, at public auction. Such notice to be given by publishing an attested copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be at least fourteen days before said first Monday of April, 1905, and also by sending by mail, postage prepaid, forthwith a printed copy hereof to the defendant George L. Berry, and all creditors of said Co-partnership known to said Receiver.

AUDIENCE IN A PANIC

Fire Scene on Moving Picture Machine Became a Reality

Lynn, Mass., March 15.—While a fire scene was being thrown on a screen by a moving picture machine in Cole's auditorium last night, the machine caught fire, burning the operator and proprietor, George A. Cole, quite seriously, and sending the audience of 200 people down the stairs and out into the street panic-stricken, but untouched by the flames. The fire was confined to the rear of the theatre, but two business firms on the street floor lost heavily from water. The loss is about $9000.

The picture machine was perched on a tall, box-like structure in the rear of the auditorium, and was being manipulated by Cole. Suddenly a spark flew out and ignited one of the celluloid films. The whole machine flashed into a mass of flame, Cole's clothes also taking fire. He jumped down to the floor, and some of the spectators put out the fire in his clothes, but not until he had suffered so severely as to necessitate his being taken to the hospital.

The fire necessitated the cutting of electric wires in the vicinity and another variety theatre a few doors away was thrown into darkness, which, with the noise of the fire engines, caused the audience to leave hastily, but without injury.

The audience started up as the flames flashed from the machine and at once there was a rush to the door, which was located at the rear. The crush down the stairs to the street was intense for a minute or two, but eventually all reached the ground, Mrs. Annie Russell, who fainted, and a boy, George Miller, who was hurt slightly, being carried along with the crowd.

Little Tot Assaulted and Killed

Philadelphia, March 15.—The body of Mary Deluka, a 4-year-old Italian child, was found last night in a stone quarry about 20 miles from this city. Beside the body was found the 7-year-old brother of the girl, who was unconscious from injuries he had received. The girl had been criminally assaulted and murdered, and it is supposed that the boy received his injuries while attempting to defend his sister. The boy is in a hospital, in a dying condition. A posse is searching for the murderer.

Something New In Trust Line

St. Louis, March 15.—H. C. Pierce, reputed to be a multi-millionaire, has organized his estate into a trust, the first corporation of the kind in Missouri and possibly in the country. The trust is capitalized for $5,000,000. Pierce holds all of the 50,000 shares of stock except four. One share each is held by C. A. Pierce, son; Eben Richards, son-in-law; Stephen Johnson, brother-in-law, and J. D. Johnson, Pierce's personal attorney.

Wynne Won't Get Punch Bowl

Washington, March 15.—Former Postmaster General Wynne has declined the gift of a solid silver punch-bowl tendered him by former subordinates in the postoffice department because of his conviction that it would be a violation of the law prohibiting government employes from making gifts to their superiors. The bowl had been purchased and the presentation was to have been made today.

Mint Employes Discharged

Philadelphia, March 15.—With the entire available supply of silver bullion completely disposed of, and no immediate indication of future receipts from the treasury department at Washington, 125 employes in the counting and weighing departments at the mint, mostly women, have been suspended. There are 104,000,000 silver dollars stored in the mint.

Cubs to Enforce Demands

Princeton, N. J., March 15.—Two hundred Italians employed on the Carnegie lake declared a strike, and in an organized body marched through the lowland with clubs, forcing every laborer to stop work. The men demand an increase of wages from 17 cents to 20 cents an hour.

For Use on Japanese Railroads

Schenectady, N. Y., March 15.—Twelve locomotives were shipped to Japan last evening from the local plant of the American Locomotive company, consigned to Mitsui & Co. of Tokio. They were shipped in parts and will be assembled by Japanese workmen.

Prohibits Gambling on Races

Jefferson City, Mo., March 15.—The senate passed the house bill which makes pool selling and book making on horse races illegal. The bill makes such acts misdemeanor.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions announce a gift of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller.

A bill to compel every life insurance company doing business in Wisconsin to adopt the mutual plan has passed the assembly and will now go to the senate.

Philip Greusil, an American, trainer at Newmarket for Lord Carnarvon, Richard Croker and others, died in Switzerland of consumption.

Mrs. Shaw, wife of the secretary of the treasury, was operated on at Philadelphia for a serious ailment. The operation was reported to be successful.

NINETEEN DIED IN FIRE

Quickly Overtaken by Flames In Tenement House Death Trap

New York, March 15.—Nineteen persons were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the five-story tenement house at 105 Allen street. More than 40 were injured and only a few of the sleeping inmates escaped unhurt. Several of those who perished were roasted to death in plain view of thousands in the streets.

Coroner Goldenkranz declared, after an investigation, that he had reason to believe the blaze was the work of an incendiary. He issued subpoenas for the fire marshal, tenement house and building inspectors and health and police officials to appear before him at an inquest.

The fire started in the basement and spread with frightful rapidity to the roof. The victims were caught in traps of flames, the halls and exits being rendered impassable a few minutes after the blaze started. The building was one of the usual crowded tenements on the East Side. The district attorney's office has begun an investigation to place the blame for the great loss of life.

Chief Croker of the fire department asserts that the police and the tenement house departments are to blame for the disregard of the fire escape law. The tenement house department officials, however, say that the blame is on the shoulders of the fire commissioner. The fire was started by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

Apparently Dead, Yet Recovered

St. Louis, March 15.—After having been pronounced dead by two physicians and a nurse, Mrs. Charles A. Sweet, wife of a provision merchant, who suffered from gastritis, has been restored by the infusion of a salt solution into her veins and is now believed to be recovering her health. Her heart had ceased beating and respiration stopped. A third physician, however, decided to try a salt solution infusion and there followed signs of animation. The operation was continued and Mrs. Sweet revived.

Minister Abandoned Wife

New Brunswick, N. J., March 15.—The jury which tried J. F. Cordova, the former South River (N. J.) minister, who eloped with Julia Bowne, one of his choir singers, on a charge of abandoning his wife, last night returned a verdict of "guilty as indicted." Cordova appeared to be greatly shaken by the verdict. He probably will be sentenced on Saturday. The second indictment against Cordova was at once called. It accuses him of assault and battery upon his wife.

Arraignment of Mormonism

Washington, March 15.—Senator Dubois of Idaho talked to the mothers' congress last night on "The Purity of the Home." His speech was chiefly a historical review of Mormonism in the United States and a severe arraignment of the doctrines and practices of the Mormon organization. He declared with emphasis that there should be no toleration of the present teachings and practices of the Mormon hierarchy.

Charges Against Union Officials

Washington, March 15.—Charges have been filed with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor which are said to reflect on the integrity of individuals connected with the subway and elevated railroad strike in New York. Gompers says the charges will be investigated. The officials of the union, it is declared, received, or expect to receive, a large reward for bringing about the strike.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The Mr. Fletcher before the District court on Tuesday was from Quincy not Braintree.

The W. R. C. sewing circle will meet at the residence of Mrs. Ella Hayden, River street, Thursday.

There will be a supper in Memorial church, Atlantic, for the Christian Endeavor boys this evening, at five o'clock.

Mr. Arthur W. Harris, who for several years has been associated with R. H. Stearns & Co., Boston, has accepted a position with Chandler & Co. as buyer and manager of their cloak, suit and waist department.

Over thirty brown-tail moth nests were removed from the fruit trees at the residence of George W. Prescott, Spear street, Tuesday. Other trees in the vicinity have nests and united action is necessary to get rid of the pests.

An expert fortune teller is to tell fortunes tonight at the fair in First church chapel. A turkey supper is to be served at half past six and at the various fancy booths will be found on sale, stocks, bags, fancy and useful articles household goods, homemade candy and mysterious articles.

The Brotherhood.

The experience of Col. John S. Rockwood among the Indians of the west, as related Tuesday evening at the meeting of Bethany Brotherhood, greatly interested the men assembled. He spoke for over an hour.

Those who do not attend the monthly meetings are missing some fine talks, which are both instructive and interesting.

At the April meeting the annual banquet will be held and ladies' night will be observed. The speaker will be Mr. Allen Stockdale.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Milligan and John Knightly were sentenced to thirty days in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

Michael J. Grey was fined $3 for drunkenness at Randolph.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

TWO FIRES.

One Alarmed Many City Square Merchants.

Good Work by the Fire Department.

Italian Quarters on Fire Also for Second Time.

The alarm from Box 26 at 10.30, Tuesday night caused a crowd to hurry toward City Square. A bright illumination in the sky was warning enough that there was a prospect of a good fire.

The fire was in a building on Chestnut street situated on the Willis estate. The building was occupied by the Quincy Sporting Goods Company.

Officer Goodhue turned in the alarm, and the Central station apparatus never made a quicker run to a fire.

In a remarkably short time a stream of water was being thrown into the building and the flames that for a few minutes had been leaping high into the air quickly died down. There was yet considerable fire on the inside and it was some further time before it was all out.

The fire was caused by an explosion of gasoline in the rear part of the store. There was an automobile there, as well as several bicycles that had been left for repairs. It appears that Mr. Lawson the proprietor had been at work trying to find a leak in the gasoline tank of the automobile.

He struck a match to light a cigar and a loud explosion followed. Mr. Lawson was enveloped in flames. His clothing took fire and he had hard work getting out. In a second, almost, the whole interior of the rear store was a mass of flames.

Officer Goodhue was near at hand and while he sprinted for the fire alarm box others entered the front part of the store and succeeded in removing some of the contents to the sidewalk.

The fire was confined to the rear part of the store which was badly gutted. The all out sounded about 10.45, it being a remarkably quick job.

The loss on the building is estimated at $500. Of the contents the loss on the automobile under construction is estimated at $300, and on bicycles and other stock $200.

The Morning Fire.

A telephone call summoned the apparatus at the Central station to a fire at Bracketts wharf about 7.30 this morning. Chief Williams found it was more than a few men could cope with and promptly ordered Box 25 pulled.

The fire was in a house occupied by an Italian family named Mairanna Pagnotta, and owned by Charles McLaughlin and was badly damaged by fire some months ago. It evidently started in the cellar and worked through the walls to the attic and it was some time before the firemen got at it.

The loss was about $300. Eleven Italians have been occupying the house, and were intending to move today. Five had gone to work at the shipyard before the fire was discovered.

Burning of the Vanities.

Savanarolo once marked his strong condemnation of luxury by collecting a large number of articles which he regarded as vanities during the carnival to be burnt in the Piazza della Signoria, Florence, on Shrove Tuesday, 1497. In this "burning of the vanities" were included fancy costumes, carnival masks, false hair and rouge pots, cards and dice boxes, books and pictures, together with casts and valuable sculptures of questionable character. Built up into a pyramid of seven stages—signifying the seven deadly sins—the pile was burnt by lighting fagots placed in the center, while children standing round sang hymns before the assembled crowds.

Japanese Ladies and Suicide.

While Japanese ladies never committed harakiri, the honorable equivalent was death by a stab in the neck from her own dirk, a weapon which she generally carried in her girdle to be used in time of need.

Where a Roman dame would in ancient times have plunged her dagger into her own heart, a Japanese heroine preferred to thrust the weapon into her neck, and there is no record of either male or female in Japan ending existence in the fashion that is so often depicted in western novels and less frequently perhaps in real life.—Nineteenth Century.

Tides on the Great Lakes.

In theory there must be lunar tides on the great lakes, although they may be too small to be detected in bodies of water so much more affected by winds and by differences in barometric pressure. This latter influence is so potent that in Lake Michigan it sometimes causes disturbances resembling tidal waves when the surface of the water is otherwise quite calm.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey. XI—George visits Bawdsey, who is employed by Lord Derrington to watch the young man. Bawdsey warns him that he is suspected of Mrs. Jersey's murder.

CHAPTER XIII.

DOROTHY was by no means of a jealous disposition. Moreover, her love for George was so deep and pure that she trusted him entirely. Nevertheless, having learned from the few words dropped by Vane that Brendon knew Lola, she felt desirous of seeing the woman. That Lola was her rival she never for one moment believed, but the fact remained that Brendon's name was coupled with that of the dancer, and this incipient scandal annoyed Miss Ward.

There was no need for her to ask George why such a report should prevail, for she knew that he would be able to explain in a satisfactory manner, and, trusting him already, it was useless to demand details. Her feelings would remain the same after the telling of his story as they were now; therefore she avoided the disagreeable subject. Nevertheless, she was woman enough to desire a sight of Lola, and induced her mother to take her to the music hall. Mrs. Ward was very pleased to do so, but she was too clever to hint that she guessed Dorothy's reason for making this request.

"Certainly, my dear," she said briskly. "I am very glad that you are coming out of your shell. Men hate a woman who can't talk of everything, and nothing is talked about but Lola."

"I must educate myself to please men, then," said Dorothy dryly, "so I may as well begin with the dancer. On what night can we go?"

"Oh, Friday will do. Mr. Vane has invited us to dine at the Cecil, so I'll ask him to get us a box."

Dorothy would rather have gone with any one than with Mr. Vane. However, there was nothing for it but to accept, since she had brought it on herself. With a smile which encouraged her mother to think she would behave sensibly toward Vane, she agreed to the proposed dinner party and companionship, and Mrs. Ward wrote a note at once.

"I hope when she sees Lola, and hears the stories about that Brendon man, that she may refuse to have anything more to do with him," was Mrs. Ward's remark as she sealed her note. "I don't want to get the Brendon man into trouble by having him arrested for murder. And I don't think Derrington would let me if I did wish it."

Her last speech was prophetic, for the next day Lord Derrington paid a visit to Curzon street and had a short interview with Mrs. Ward, the gist of which was that she must hold her tongue.

"Brendon called to see me the other day," explained Derrington, looking grim, "and he showed me plainly that he had nothing to do with the matter."

"But how about the holly berry?"

"That is easily explained," replied Derrington, who, anticipating the question, had prepared an answer. "Brendon was one of the first to see the body, and in touching it the berry fell from the sprig. Afterward—mind you, afterward—Mr. Train found the berry and, not knowing that Brendon had seen the body that morning, thought he had been in the room on the previous night.

"I'm sure he was," insisted Mrs. Ward.

"You are sure of nothing of the sort. Brendon could not have got downstairs without the connivance of Train, and you heard what Train said."

Then he asked after a pause, "Why did you tell Dorothy to give the sprig of holly to Brendon on that night?"

Mrs. Ward shrugged her shoulders and looked down nervously. "Oh, it was the merest kindness on my part," she said, trying to speak quietly. Derrington contradicted her at once.

"It was nothing of the sort," he declared, with roughness. "You wished him to have the yellow holly in his coat when he saw Mrs. Jersey so that the woman might betray herself."

"I knew nothing about Mrs. Jersey at the time."

"Oh, but you did! With regard to the holly, you knew from me how it was used in connection with the death of my son at San Remo, and what I did not tell you you learned from other people. But how did you know about Mrs. Jersey?"

"That's my business," cried Mrs. Ward, becoming imprudent. "You are right about the holly. I sent to Devonshire expressly to get some. It was my intention to inclose a sprig in a letter to Mrs. Jersey so as to frighten her"—

"What good would that have done?"

"My business again," snapped Mrs. Ward, becoming bolder. "I had my reason for wishing to recall your son's death to her mind, and I knew that the yellow holly would do so most successfully. When Dorothy came from the park and told me that Brendon was to stop with his friend at Mrs. Jersey's boarding house, I thought that it would be better to let George wear the sprig. And I managed it in such a way that neither Dorothy nor George guessed how I planned the business. And I succeeded. Mrs. Jersey saw the sprig and nearly fainted. I knew then that"— Here she stopped.

Derrington saw that it was useless to question her further. She would only lie and had been telling lies, for all he knew.

"I shall ask you nothing more," he said, rising to take his leave. "You have some reason for all this intrigue, I have no doubt. What your intentions are matters little to me. I came merely to warn you that Brendon is to be left alone."

"You won't have him arrested?"

"No. And, what is more, I won't have him spoken about in connection with that crime."

Mrs. Ward forgot her desire to conciliate Derrington, forgot her desire to marry Vane to Dorothy, forgot everything in a sudden access of rage. "I shall do what I choose!" she cried.

"No," said Derrington quietly and looking her full in the face. "You will obey me."

"Obey you, Lord Derrington?"

"Yes. I have tried to conduct this interview quietly, Mrs. Ward, and to hint that your wiser plan is to be silent, but"—

"I don't want hints. I wish for plain speaking," raged the little woman. "How dare you address me like this?"

The old gentleman leaned forward suddenly and whispered a short sentence in her ear. Mrs. Ward's face turned pearly white, and she tottered to a chair, closing her eyes as she fell into it. Derrington surveyed her with a pitiless expression.

"You will be silent about Brendon?" he asked.

"Yes," moaned Mrs. Ward. "I will say nothing."

At the meeting at the Cecil Mrs. Ward was herself again. She had quite got over the fright given to her by Derrington, and when she saw him later treated him in her old manner. On his side the old gentleman made no difference, but he wondered how she was carrying herself so boldly. At once it occurred to his suspicious mind that there was some reason for this defiant behavior, and he determined to watch her. For this purpose he joined the party.

"It is the first time I have been to a music hall for years," he explained to Dorothy. "But Walter has been talking so much about this new dancer that I felt I must see her."

"Why did you not dine with us at the Cecil?" asked Dorothy.

"I always prefer to dine at home, my dear young lady. Besides, it does not do for an old man to wag his gray beard uninvited among the young."

Meantime Mrs. Ward was chatting amicably to Vane and to a vapid war office clerk who had formed a fourth at the Cecil dinner party. The box was large and easily held the party. Mrs. Ward had a position directly in front, where she could see and be seen, but Dorothy kept herself behind the curtains. She could see the stage excellently, but did not wish to be recognized by any chance acquaintance. In an opposite box sat a red haired man in immaculate evening dress. Derrington recognized him as Bawdsey, but did not think it necessary to show his recognition. He sat at the back of the box between Vane and the war office clerk and kept a watchful eye on Mrs. Ward.

That little woman sparkled like a diamond. She criticised the house, admired the decorations and applauded the comic songs. It might have been that this indifferent attitude was one of defiance, as she must have known that Derrington was watching her. But she acted her part consummately, and he could not help admiring her coolness. "What an admirable actress," thought the old lord, "and what a dangerous woman!"

The ballet came at the end of the first part of the programme. When the curtain rose Dorothy was so anxious to behold Lola that she leaned forward so as to show her face to the whole house. Bawdsey saw her and put his glass to his eye. He smiled slightly, and Derrington wondered why he did so. But at that moment, and while the stage was filling with dancers, he arose to receive some newcomers. These were none other than Miss Bull and Margery, for whom Bawdsey had procured the box. The little old maid was whiter than ever and wore her usual gray dress. Margery was smartly gowned in green, and with her light hair and stupid red face looked anything but beautiful. She placed herself in the best position, being evidently directed to do so by Miss Bull, for that lady preferred the shade. At all events, she secluded herself behind a curtain and kept her beady black eyes persistently on the stage. On seeing that the two were comfortable, Bawdsey disappeared and did not return till the end of the ballet. Derrington saw all this, but no one else in Mrs. Ward's box took any notice. And why should they? Bawdsey an his party were quite unknown to them.

Dorothy could not say that Lola was handsome, but she had about her a wild grace which was very fascinating. When dancing she seemed to think of nothing but the revels in which she was engaged. She never cast a look at the house, and Dorothy noticed this. She was therefore somewhat surprised when, during the second scene, she saw Lola deliberately look in the direction of the box and stare at her piercingly for quite a moment or two. Rather confused by this sudden regard, the girl drew back. Lola noticed her no more, but continued to dance.

"Let us go now," said Dorothy, when the wild dance of Lola was at an end. "I wish I had not come."

She was interrupted by an ejaculation from her mother. Mrs. Ward also was standing up, but her eyes were fixed on Miss Bull. The little old maid, as though feeling the influence of that glance, slowly looked in Mrs. Ward's direction. The eyes of the two women met. From those of Miss Bull flashed a look of hate, and she withdrew behind the curtain of the box. Mrs. Ward was white and shaking. Clutching Vane's arm she requested to be taken to her carriage. "It's too much for me," she said, alluding to the ballet.

OCEAN RACING YACHTS

Solid Comfort on Vessels Entered In Kaiser's Cup Contest.

FITTED LIKE FLOATING PALACES

Luxurious Appointments of the Great Atlantic, One of the Most Formidable Competitors—All Contesting Ships Have Made Trips Abroad and Are Perfectly Seaworthy.

Every mention of the ocean race for the kaiser's cup causes thousands of people to wonder what it will be like, says the New York World. There are those who think that a score of millionaires are going to risk their yachts for the sake of sporting glory and others who go further and think these sailing craft will be tossed like corks on merciless seas. But, in truth, the trip to Europe on any one of them will mean a voyage abroad in a roomy floating palace.

Allison V. Armour's Utowana has made various trips abroad. The Earl of Crawford's Valhalla has been all over the world, as has Lord Brassey's Sunbeam, and Henry S. Redmund's Ailsa and Edmund Randolph's Apache, though both now fly the New York Yacht club flag, were built abroad and sailed over here.

The Fleur de Lys, although the smallest yacht in the race, has always been a rover. She plowed through the waters of the North sea in one of the most notable cruises ever made by a sailing yacht and cruised among the icebergs far above Norway. She is best in a turbulent sea and strong airs, demonstrating this during several ocean races. Once during a storm off the African coast, when scores of craft were lost, she survived the turmoil without even parting a rope yarn.

Wilson Marshall's Great Atlantic, considered by many the most formidable entry in the race, is luxuriously appointed. Her main saloon is as large as the parlor of an ordinary New York city private residence. Besides the main saloon, a dining saloon, a chart and smoking room, she has two double and three single staterooms and a deck saloon.

The main saloon is finished in colonial style, with mahogany furniture, upholstered in green. The dining saloon is finished entirely in oak of Gothic design and upholstered in red. The smoking room is finished with white mahogany. The staterooms are in plain white, with mahogany furniture.

The Atlantic is equipped with an electric lighting plant and an auxiliary acetylene gas system. Tiled bathrooms, running water, steam heat and a refrigerating system are among the conveniences, and the accommodations for the officers and crew are in keeping with the general appointments of the yacht.

No boat that sails from New York is more thoroughly equipped for cruising than Robert E. Tod's Thistle. From stem to stern, above decks and below, she is fitted with every modern appliance for long or short voyages. She is lighted below by acetylene gas supplied from a cylinder similar to that used for calcium lights. All the staterooms, the main saloon, which occupies the entire width of the yacht amidships; the chart room and the officers' and crew's quarters are illuminated with this powerful light.

Commodore Tod's cabin, which is located aft, having a separate companionway leading up to the wheel, is under the poop deck and extends the width of the vessel at that point. All the furniture is of highly polished oak, and among the articles in the main saloon is a large piano, with an extensive collection of popular music.

The Endymion is handsomely fitted and complete for cruising. From the companionway one goes first into the chart room, which contains a sofa, extension chart table, a place for chronometers and a drop desk for calculations. Aft of this is a double stateroom extending the full width of the yacht. This room has a small dressing apartment aft and a connecting bathroom forward. It is finished in mahogany, with red carpets and upholstery. Two large guests' staterooms are forward of the chart room on the starboard side. They are finished in oak and fitted with green carpets and upholstery.

On the port side are another stateroom and a bathroom. Forward of these is the saloon, the width of the ship. It contains even a fireplace and is fourteen feet long. The officers' rooms and the forecastle are large and comfortable.

Perhaps more comfort can be found on the Sunbeam than on any other yacht which will start in the race. She is virtually an attractive home on the water. Her deck house is a museum of souvenirs of travel. In one corner is a triangular writing desk covered with interesting and curious ornaments. Like all the furniture, it is ebonized. In the corner opposite the desk is a divan made "comfy" with pillows.

The companionway just outside the deck house has two flights of winding steps at the tops converging to one halfway down, and this leads into a small passage opening into the dining saloon directly under the deck house. At the head of the steps in the companionway is an organ.

The dining saloon is spacious, with a large round table in the center. The walls are lined with pictures, except for a few hanging bookcases. In a corner is a circular divan, and over it are two bookcases. Opening directly from the dining saloon is Lord Brassey's private cabin, with a divan, writing desk, chairs and pictures. The trip on the Sunbeam will surely be one of solid comfort.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted on the Death of Clerk Spear.

The City Council to Attend Funeral.

Also Appoint a Committee and Send Floral Tribute.

Twenty members of the City Council were present on Wednesday evening, at the special meeting called by Mayor Thompson to take action relative to the death and funeral of Christopher A. Spear for many years the Clerk of Council and clerk of committees.

The absentees were Councilmen Gearwar, Savage and Stone.

George T. Magee of the Daily Ledger staff was elected clerk pro tem.

The Council is convened tonight in extraordinary session. A modest, faithful public servant of our city has passed to his great reward.

There is nothing that we can say at this time that will add in the slightest degree to the record of Christopher A. Spear—the veteran soldier—the town official—the city clerk—the respected and beloved clerk of the Quincy City Council.

That record of a plain, honest and useful life, which placed him, and which places his memory in highest esteem in the estimation of his associates and of his fellow citizens, he himself established by the sincerity of his character and fidelity of his every day life, covering a long term of years in this community.

It is fitting at this time that the Council take some action in recognition of the loss we sustain, and of the public service and private life of our departed friend.

The chair awaits the pleasure of the Council.

RESOLUTIONS.

Councilman Bass moved the appointment of a committee of five on resolution which was voted.

President Nichols named Councilman Bass, Chamberlin, Polk, Chase and Sidelinger. The committee retired and the Council took a recess. After due deliberation the committee reported as follows:

Be it resolved by the members of this Council, duly assembled at a special meeting called by His Honor the Mayor to take appropriate action in memory of our late Clerk of the Council, Christopher A. Spear:

That we hereby record in permanent form our great appreciation of the high character, the faithful and untiring services of our beloved Clerk of the Council, Christopher A. Spear, and express our profound sorrow on account of the loss of one whose death will be most keenly felt and whose place in this community no other can hope to fill, and be it further

Resolved, that this resolution be spread on the records of this Council, and that an engrossed copy be forwarded to his family.

The report was accepted, and the motion of Councilman Bass was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

Upon motion of Councilman Polk it was voted that the Council attend the funeral of Clerk Spear in a body, and that the City Messenger procure a suitable floral emblem.

Upon motion of Councilman Piper it was voted that the President appoint a committee of three to make all arrangements to attend funeral.

The committee are Councilmen Piper, Sidelinger and Burgess.

Adjourned at 8.20.

Quincy to Remain Only City.

The Committee on Cities of the Legislature reported leave to withdraw on Wednesday on the petition for the incorporation of the City of Hyde Park. Thus Quincy will continue the only city in Norfolk county.

FANNY CROSBY DAY

Her Hymns to be Sung and Sermons Preached Mar. 26.

As March 24 is birthday of Fanny Crosby, the blind hyma writer, whose hymns have been sung around the world, it is planned to observe Sunday, March 26 as "Fanny Crosby Day," in many churches where her best hymns will be sung and pastors will preach upon the "Power of Religious Music."

The Transcript gives this sketch:

Miss Crosby was born in New York State, March 24, 1820, when six weeks old she was deprived of her eyesight through the negligence of the attending physician. In 1835 she entered the New York Institute for the Blind, graduating with highest honors in 1842. In 1847 she returned to the institution as an instructor of the higher branches, and remained in that institution until her marriage in 1858 to Professor Alex M. Van Alystyne, a talented teacher of music, who was also blind.

In 1851 Miss Crosby united with the Methodist church, and in 1844 published "A Blind Girl and Other Poems." In 1853 her Songs were first set to music by George F. Root, the well-known musical composer, the most popular being "There's Music in the Air." In forty years she has composed over six thousand hymns. Many of these are in the Moody and Sankey collection. Some of her best have been published under various nom de plumes.

The most popular of her earlier hymns were, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Rescue the Perishing," "Hiding in Thee," "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour." Her own favorite, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," was sung in Westminster Abbey at the funeral of Lord Shaftsbury. She is accustomed to carrying a hymn in her mind until the whole is complete and then dictating to an amenuensis, and a friend states that she has known her to carry forty hymns in her mind, in this manner.

Of her later and most popular hymns she says: "Blessed Assurance" was written under the inspiration of the thought that perfect peace was possible at all times. "Saved by Grace" was written at Northfield, on the news of the death of a friend.

Miss Crosby says her talent for composition is due to the effort of her old instructor, Hamilton Murray, who used to oblige her to paraphrase passages from Addison, Cowper, Milton and Shakespeare.

During her long life Miss Crosby has been intimately acquainted with Presidents Taylor and Van Buren, William H. Seward, General Winfield Scott and Henry Clay. On the death of a son of Henry Clay, Miss Crosby wrote a hymn expressive of her sorrow, which greatly comforted the stricken parent.

Miss Crosby says she has never regretted she is blind, as it shuts her in with God. Notwithstanding published statements to the contrary she has never been in reduced circumstances, although only comfortably well off, whereas she might have been wealthy if she had not been so generous to the poor.

She calls Bridgeport, Conn., her home, but is in great demand as a speaker and of late has been speaking in Massachusetts. She has just completed her autobiography, which will be published next summer.

Patent Medicine Bill.

Representatives Nicol and Freeman were on opposite sides on Wednesday on the patent medicine bill, the former voting in favor of substitution for an adverse report, while the latter opposed. The bill was substituted by vote of 109 to 88 and after debated passed by the House to be engrossed. The bill requires that the amount of alcohol contained in patent and proprietary medicines be stated on the bottles, the amount being larger than generally supposed.

Efficient Department.

The quickness with which the brisk blaze at the Chestnut street store was extinguished Tuesday night, continues to be one of the nine day wonders. Geo. H. Field, the insurance agent, who was near the building when the shout of fire was first made, says it was only nine minutes from that time until the fire was out. Yet it was a blaze which many thought might cause a conflagration. Certainly Quincy has a very efficient department.

GREAT SUCCESS

Large Sum Netted at the Fragment Society Sale.

A Turkey Supper Was Served.

The Booths Attractive and Well Patronized.

From the time the doors of First church chapel opened on Wednesday afternoon until into the evening, there was a constant stream of people who generously patronized the various booths. No attempt was made at special decoration, but potted plants, pretty things on the booths, and all the attendants in white, made the chapel look most attractive.

The parlor was arranged in Japanese style, hung with peach blossoms, and decorated with Japanese sunshades, fans and screens loaned by W. M. Hatch & Co., of Summer street, Boston. Here mysterious packages wrapped in Japanese napkins found ready sale. "Maggie" in Irish peasant costume divided the honors of the parlor, and told fortunes by tea grounds, and cards. She was surrounded all the evening, many wishing to see into the future.

To the left of the parlor were the bag and stock and fancy booths, on the right the Sunday school and home-made candy tables, while at the foot was the household table loaded with useful things.

At 6.30 a turkey supper was served to about two hundred at the first setting, and fifty to a hundred at the second table. Besides turkey there was cold meat, macaroni, rolls, hot coffee, cranberry sauce, fancy pies and cake. The tables were prettily spread, the decorations being in green in honor of St. Patrick's Day. There were bon bon dishes of shamrock shape filled with nuts and candy, little flags of Ireland and the floral decorations all carried out the color scheme as did also the paper napkins. It was a pretty idea and well carried out.

After supper the booths were again surrounded with buyers and most of them were soon depleted of the stock. The fancy table as usual carried off the honors of taking in the most money, about two hundred dollars being received. The household and bag and stock booths also had fine sales. Every one likes home-made sweets and over eighty dollars were expended at that booth.

The Sunday School table did well, realizing over twenty-five dollars. All the mysterious packages were disposed of with good financial results. Over seventy-five dollars were realized by the sale of supper tickets.

It is thought the net sum from the sale will be over six hundred dollars, which is most pleasing to the ladies of the Fragment society and their assistants, who have been working for the past few months.

Thosee in charge of the various booths were:

Oriental mystery,—Mrs. Edward B. Marsh, chairman; Mrs. Ross K. Whiton and Miss Flora Underwood assistants.

Bags and stocks,—Mrs. Emery L. Crane, chairman; Mrs. George G. Saville, Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Mrs. John L. Gow and Miss Jane Reed assistants.

Fancy — Miss Florence R. Emery, chairman; Miss Alice K. Prescott, Mrs. W. W. Adams, Mrs. A. H. Doble, Mrs. R. A. Sears, Mrs. P. R. Blackmur, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. Henry Hall, Mrs. E. H. Angier, Mrs. Sylvester Miller, Mrs. A. E. Sproul, Mrs. Perry Lawton, Mrs. C. A. Price, Mrs. G. E. Plaffman, Mrs. L. M. Glover and Mrs. Parker assistants.

Sunday School, — Miss Mildred Huston, chairman; Miss Marguerite Davis, Miss Stella Barker, Miss Irma Tilton, Miss Carlena Walker, Miss Muriel Rogers, Miss Grace Spear, Miss Olive Huston and Miss Miriam Marsh, assistants.

Candy,—Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, chairman; Mrs. Fred E. Drake, Mrs. E. E. Davis and Mrs. E. W. H. Bass, assistants.

Domestic,—Miss Mary Holden, chairman; Miss Maria Whitney, Miss Lucy Spear, Miss Carrie Crane, and Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, assistants.

Supper,—Mrs. Thomas Fenno, chairman; Mrs. Annie Pierce, Mrs. Osborne Rogers, Mrs. Henry Wright, Mrs. E. G. Pratt, Miss Eva Sherburne, Mrs. C. F. Pettengill, Mrs. C. H. Johnson, Mrs. F. A. Skinner, and Miss Elizabeth Newcomb, assistants.

Waiters, — Gordon Adams, Sidney Carr, A. C. Sproul, Clark Saville, Harry Drake, Frank K. Patch, Edward Morse, Eaton Pierce, Ralph Winslow, Miss Abigail Waldron, Miss Muriel Rogers, Miss Mollie Rogers, Miss Grace Spear, Miss Edna Smith, Miss Katherine Saville, Miss Stella Barker, Miss Mabel Lovejoy and Miss Gertrude Thompson.

The Revere Plan.

A Boston daily says the Lend a Hand Society has a rival in the Lend a Pruning Hook committee of Revere. Owing to the indifference shown by many in that town in cleaning their trees from the nests of the brown-tail moth, a committe from the Women's Club has purchased several pruning instruments with long handles with which to reach the nests.

These are placed in the custody of five members, Mrs. E. G. Swift, Mrs. Eben Dewing, Mrs. C. A. Adams, Mrs. L. K. Washburn and Mrs. E. G. Tutein.

Each of these women have in charge one of the instruments, and any person in the town having trees can have the loan of one of the bug destroyers on application.

E. J. Davenport, the tree warden is all smiles at having received such strong support from the Women's Club in his efforts to rid the town of the pest. The committee do not purpose to confine their efforts alone to the residents of the town, and have sent circulars to non-residents property holders stating their scheme, and asking co-operation in ridding the town of the moth nuisance.

From now on it will be war to the death on the moths by the committee and the tree warden.

Back From Cuba.

Gilbert M. Miller, city expressman, who has been in Cuba, the past winter, returned on Tuesday as happy, and brown as a nut. During the ten weeks he was there he traveled largely over the island, that is, the cultivated part, and was surprised at the great progress that had been made since he was there some three years ago. Where there were nothing, but tents, there are now handsome buildings, and large orange groves. He was informed that a little mulberry trig struck into the ground had grown twenty-two feet high in one year. The temperature was very even, and delightful during the day and night.

AGREEMENT.

Reached With the Tool Sharpeners.

All Men to Return to Work.

Peace Now Expected in the Granite Industry.

The differences between the Granite Manufacturer's Association and the various unions have now all been settled, and the strike which has been in progress since the first of March is at an end. The new bill will be signed today and work will be resumed in the yards at once.

The differences between the manufacturers and quarrymen and cutters was settled some days but there was a hitch with the blacksmiths. This was adjusted at a conference Wednesday evening. As the blacksmiths' committee had been given full power all that now remains is to sign the new bill.

The main trouble with the blacksmiths was over the apprentice clause. The union wanted it arranged so that in dull times when it was necessary to reduce help that the journeyman should be retained and the apprentice discharged. The clause relating to this question, as agreed upon, reads as follows:

"No firm to employ an apprentice unless a journeyman and five or more cutters over a journeyman's gang is employed and, in event of a reduction in the force, the journeyman may be discharged and an apprentice kept at work.

"But when this apprentice has served two years or any part thereof (it being understood that he may have one month's trial before signing an agreement) no other apprentice can be taken on for three years, unless a journeyman has been steadily employed by the day during the two years the apprentice was serving his time."

The other matter of interest was the wage scale. As now arranged this schedule provides that the price paid for piece men shall be 25 cents. The price per day men shall be $3 for a gang of thirteen men, and 24 cents for each an over a gang.

Ex-Selectmen Nash.

The funeral of Henry A. Nash at Weymouth on Wednesday was largely attended by town officials. The Rev. R. J. Haughton officiated and the pall bearers were Augustus J. Richards, Charles P. Hunt, Francis H. Cowing, Arthur E. Pratt, George H. Bicknell and Charles A. Hayward.

PUBLIC HEARING.

NOTICE is hereby given that a public hearing will be held at the Council Chamber City Hall, at 8.40 o'clock, on the 20th day of March, 1905, on a petition dated March 4, 1905, of Charles C. Hearn, that he be granted a Liquor License of the sixth class, commonly known as a Druggist's license.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ California—Railroads were induced by Standard to raise freight rates on oil, and an independent pipe line to sea-board is projected.

Illinois—Resolution introduced asking legislature to investigate laying of pipe lines through Illinois by trust, and to have committee confer with Kansas legislators as to methods of regulating such lines.

Indiana—Anti-trust bill, introduced in behalf of oil men, will give damages to persons injured by Standard Oil company and require forfeit of charter.

Kansas—Both branches of legislature called on president, secretary of the interior, and congress to annul leases made to Standard Oil company eight years ago by Osage Indians. Fraud is charged. Independent investigation of trust likely. Action on anti-discrimination bill deferred until Friday.

Missouri—Bill to subject Standard Oil company pipe lines to restriction is being prepared.

Nebraska—Bill recommended for passage to protect independent dealers.

Oklahoma—Measure will be introduced to require all oil dealers in territory to sell product at same price.

Pennsylvania— Government officials investigating at Pittsburg in belief old "rebate system," which killed independent refiners' business still is in operation between railroads and Standard Oil company; contracts for oiling cars the scheme. Independent pipe line company to fight Standard Oil in Scranton.

Texas—The Legislature is taking steps to make all pipe lines common carriers, and give state power to fix rates.

Wisconsin—Wholesale grocers, who suffered from trust discrimination, will move for more stringent legislation; anti-trust bill now in legislature.—Chicago Tribune.

TIE PASS IS TAKEN

Said to Have Fallen Into Hands of Japanese

TOGO IS ON THE ALERT

Fleet of Twenty-Two Warships In the Track That Would Be Used by Rojestvensky In Attempt to Make Vladivostok--Russia's Talk of Putting New Army In the Field a Bluff

Newchwang, March 16.--The Japanese occupied Tie Pass Wednesday midnight.

London, March 16.—Meagre reports have been received from a Russian source of a fight eight miles south of Tie pass between a Russian force under General Mistchenko and a Japanese column, the identity of which is unknown. The latter was repulsed, it is said, with a loss of 1000 killed.

The rumor that after the evacuation of Mukden 80 foreigners, including an American newspaper correspondent, had been murdered by Chinese, is discredited by the fact that the correspondent in question reported to his paper on March 14 that he had been captured by the Japanese and was being taken to Kobe.

A steamer arriving at Singapore reports having passed a squadron of 22 Japanese warships about 20 miles east of the entrance to the Straits of Malacca. Two Japanese cruisers and two auxiliary cruisers previously arrived at Singapore. Presumably these vessels are on the way westward in search of the Russian second Pacific squadron, last reported in Madagascar waters.

The appearance of Vice Admiral Togo's fleet in the track that would be used in any attempt by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky to make for Vladivostok is the most interesting news of the day. It is not known whether Togo himself is with the fleet. According to The Daily Mail's correspondent at Singapore, who visited the fleet, the officers were unusually reticent. Two Japanese officers landed and conferred with the Japanese consul and the squadron shortly sailed again. The presumption here is that Togo acquired some information concerning Rojestvensky's intended movements.

So far as known in London, Rojestvensky's squadron is still off the coast of Madagascar, but as the ice in the harbor of Vladivostok is probably beginning to give, the Russian admiral must soon make a decision whether to dash for Vladivostok or return to Russia. Naval experts here believe that Togo will not come much further in quest of the Baltic squadron, on the ground that he cannot afford to run unnecessary risks.

No further news has been received of the fighting on the Fan river, and little importance is attached to this isolated repulse of the Japanese.

London papers continue in the belief that, to all intents and purposes, the campaign is closed; that it will be next to impossible for Russia to put a new army in the field and that the talk of doing so is mere bluff, intended to influence the inevitable negotiation of peace terms. It is also believed that the French government has utilized the financial lever to convey to Russia her view that it is the proper course to see to arrange terms. The rumor persists that Russia has acquainted France with her willingness to discuss terms, but not on the basis of an indemnity, which Russia contends would ruin her prestige, claiming that she will rather continue the war than submit to such a demand.

Discussing peace prospects, The Morning Post warns Great Britain to be prepared for Russia making a determined effort to renew the combination with France and Germany which compelled Japan, at the conclusion of her war with China, to abandon Port Arthur, in order in this case to influence the terms of settlement.

To Fortify Italian Frontiers

Vienna, March 16.—The report from Rome that the Italian war minister proposes asking for $40,000,000 to fortify the eastern and northern frontiers of Italy is considered in Vienna as evidence of Italy's growing distrust of Austria and is characterized as the indirect result of the weakening of Russian power in the far east, and the consequent loss of Russian influence in the Balkan peninsula.

Whitecaps on the Rampage

Nashville, March 16.—Whitecappers have made their appearance in Marshall county and the negroes are panic-stricken. It is reported that night raiders have gone recently to the cabins of several negroes, taken the men to the woods and flogged them.

NINE YEARS IN PRISON

Sentence Imposed Upon a Youth For Killing Fellow Employe

Bridgeport, Conn., March 16.—Paul H. Schmidt, 18 years old, on trial for murder in the first degree, was found guilty of manslaughter last night. Schmidt was accused of murdering William Taylor on the Crittenton farm in Sherman, Aug. 22. Judge Wheeler sentenced him to not more than 10 years nor less than nine years in the state prison, and fined him the nominal sum of $1. The maximum sentence for manslaughter in this state is 10 years.

Schmidt and Taylor were employed on the Crittenton farm and the day of the supposed murder all the members of the household were absent. The accused man, it was charged, broke into the safe, robbed the house of many valuables and while doing so was caught by Taylor, whom he shot to death with a shotgun. Schmidt fled, pawned the stolen articles and several weeks later was arrested in Paducah county, Kentucky. Counsel for the prisoner attempted to prove self-defense.

Cordova's Second Conviction

New Brunswick, N. J., March 16.—J. F. Cordova, who was on Tuesday convicted of abandoning his wife and children, was yesterday found guilty of assault and battery upon his wife. Cordova twice eloped with Miss Julia Bowne, a choir singer in the Methodist church of which he was pastor. On the first time he returned of his own accord and a partial reconciliation with his wife was effected. The next time he was arrested at Washington with Miss Bowne and brought back here for trial.

Plum For Newspaper Man

Washington, March 16.—The president sent to the senate the nomination of Peter V. De Graw as fourth assistant postmaster general. De Graw has had great experience in newspaper work, in the telegraph business, and as a manager of large corporate interests. Postmaster General Cortelyou says that he was largely influenced in selecting De Graw for this important post by his extensive acquaintance with public men and his knowledge of public business methods.

President's Good Offices Sought

Columbus, O., March 16.—The Ohio missionary convention of the Methodist Episcopal church last night adopted by a standing vote a memorial to President Roosevelt, urging him to use his good offices in an effort to bring about peace between Russia and Japan. Discussing the war in the far east, Bishop Hamilton said that it meant the banishment of paganism in the Orient and new religious and social enlightenment in Russia.

Passengers Got a Fright

New York, March 16.—Fire broke out in the ferryboat Kentucky and there was almost a panic among the 50 women and children, who ran back and forth on the decks. The fire was among the life preservers in the men's cabin and dense smoke issued from the boat. The flames were extinguished after nearly 10 minutes' fight. The fire occurred in mid-stream in the East river.

To Banish Gambling Devices

Cincinnati, March 16.—An order has been issued by Mayor Fleischmann directing the removal of all slot machines in Cincinnati in which money is deposited and there is an element of chance as to whether there is a return of value to the depositor. It is estimated that 10,000 of the machines are operated in Cincinnati, doing a daily business amounting to $35,000.

Inaugural Committee's Good Work

Washington, March 16.—At a meeting of the inaugural committee the report of Chairman Glover of the finance committee showed that after all the expenses of the inaugural committee, amounting to about $82,000, are paid, there will be a surplus of $66,000. There were 180,000 visitors in the capital on March 4.

Police Official a Grafter

Pittsburg, March 16.—Police Superintendent Campbell of Allegheny was found guilty of accepting money to aid and abet in the maintenance of a house for the sale of liquor without license and for immoral purposes. This is the first to be tried of 125 "graft" cases which include three other Allegheny city officials.

Conspirators Punished

Warsaw, March 16.—Reservists who were waiting in the barracks at Wolkowsk formed a conspiracy to foment organized disturbances among the troops in order to avoid being sent to Manchuria. Five of the offenders were executed, four were sentenced for life and eight to 20 years of penal servitude.

Soon Tired of Duke

New York, March 16.—Mrs. Alice W. Duke has brought suit in the supreme court for a separation from her husband, Brodie L. Duke, on the ground of abandonment and non-support. Duke's marriage to Mrs. Webb a few weeks ago was followed by a series of sensational incidents.

Both Were Good Shots

Charlotte, N. C., March 16.—Earl Carpenter shot and killed A. M. Kale at Dardin. Before the fatal bullet was fired Kale shot Carpenter, who is expected to die. The two men quarreled over the employment of mill help and when they met in the public road a duel ensued.

Why do you suppose Jones' Superlative is used by more housekeepers and sold in more stores in Greater New York, the largest market in America, than any other brand?

Why do you suppose this has been true for more than half a century?

Why do you suppose the capacity of our mills is 11,000 bbls. daily?

Why do you suppose many of the principal grocers in New England have made Jones' Superlative their leading flour for twenty-five years?

Why do you suppose that at the great bread-making contest at the Taunton Agricultural Fair, with eight hundred and fifty loaves in competition, of the six prizes offered Jones' Superlative took five, including the first?

Why do you suppose that wherever exhibited Jones' Superlative has always had first place?

Why do you suppose we guarantee every barrel of Jones' Superlative to give perfect satisfaction in every respect?

STANFORD DEATH

Apparent Anxiety to Disprove the Poison Idea.

"WHOLLY INCOMPATIBLE"

Strychnine In Bicarbonate of Soda Not In Excess of Usual Medicinal Proportions--Cable Message Is Cancelled

Honolulu, March 16.—Dr. David S. Jordan, president of Stanford university, and Timothy J. Hopkins of the board of trusteers of the university have signed a joint statement regarding the death of Mrs. Stanford, which they left with Judge Smith, with instructions to make it public after they sailed yesterday on the Alameda for San Francisco. The statement follows:

"In our judgment, after careful consideration of all the facts brought to our knowledge, we are now fully convinced that the death of Mrs. Stanford was not due to strychnine poisoning nor to intentional wrongdoing on the part of anyone.

"We find in the statements of those who were with Mrs. Stanford in her last moments no evidence that any of the characteristic symptoms of strychnine poisoning were present.

"We think that death was due to combination of conditions and circumstances. Among these we may note, in connection with her advanced age, the unaccustomed exertion, the surfeit of unsuitable food, and the unusual exposure at the picnic to which she went on the day of her death.

"The conditions were somewhat aggravated by the presence of strychnine and other drugs in the medicinal capsule and possibly also by the presence of the small amount of strychnine contained in the dose of bicarbonate of soda.

"The occurrence of this strychnine in the bicarbonate of soda has not yet been explained. The fact that it was not in excess of usual medicinal proportions suggests that its presence was due either to the error of a pharmacist, or else that the combination was prepared for tonic purposes.

"We must recognize that the preliminary hypothesis of accidental poisoning seemed a natural one under the extraordinary circumstances. We regard it, however, as being without foundation and wholly incompatible with the evidence in our possession."

Judge Smith received from Dr. Jordan a message to be sent by cable to Mountford S. Wilson, at San Francisco, immediately after the sailing of the Alameda, to the effect that Miss Berner took the same dose of bicarbonate of soda administered to Mrs. Stanford and also one of the cascara capsules at the same time that Mrs. Stanford did, without showing any signs of distress. Just before the sailing of the Alameda, however, Judge Smith received by telephone from Dr. Jordan, at the wharf, a message instructing him to withdraw the dispatch from the cable office, or if it had been sent, to contradict it.

The remains of Mrs. Stanford were escorted yesterday from the undertaking establishment where they have lain since the morning following the death to the Congregational Central Union church, where the services were opened by Rt. Rev. W. H. Kincaid, and the Episcopal burial service was read by Bishop Restarick. The choir sang favorite hymns of Mrs. Stanford.

At the conclusion of the service the cortege, which included the pall-bearers, the choir, Revs. Restarick and Kincaid, the police escort and many prominent citizens, proceeded to the wharf, where there was an immense gathering of people. The remains were placed on board the steamer Alameda. Miss Berner and Miss Hunt were escorted on board the vessel by Deputy High Sheriff Rawling. President Jordan and Trustee Hopkins also followed the remains. The Alameda then left the wharf and began her voyage to San Francisco.

From Governor's Chair to Senate

Nashville, March 16.—Governor Frazier was nominated for United States senator by the Democratic caucus of the state legislature. The vote was by acclamation. Frazier's election to succeed the late Senator Bate is assured. He will be succeeded by Speaker Cox of the state senate. Until elected governor in 1902, Frazier had never held public office.

"Butcher" May Not Get Pension

Madrid, March 16.—The newspapers here energetically oppose the government's proposition to give General Weyler a pension of $2000 and the grand cross of the Order of San Fernandino in recognition of his services as governor general of Cuba. The press opposition foreshadows a lively contest in the cortes.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it, Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. TO SHELVE TREATY

Republicans "Lie Down" In Santo Domingo Controversy

TO CHECK ROOSEVELT

Senators Find Him a Dangerous Popular Leader In Measures to Come Up In October, and Decide to Clip His Wings

Washington, March 16.—Republican leaders of the senate are all at sea respecting the action advisable to take in regard to the Santo Domingo treaty. Recognizing that the Democrats control more than one-third of the votes and that two-thirds are required to ratify the convention, the sentiment of the Republican leaders is that the treaty should be withdrawn by the president. On this subject the senate and the president do not agree and the idea prevails that after one or two days more of inconsequential discussion the special session of the senate will be allowed to adjourn without date and the treaty lapse.

Republicans of the senate, it is evident, were perfectly willing to "lie down" in the Santo Domingo controversy. They could ratify the treaty if they wanted to by well known parliamentary devices, but instead they are only too glad to administer a rebuke to Roosevelt with his schemes of tariff readjustment, railroad legislation and reform in public land laws, ready to press on congress in an extra session.

The way to weaken Roosevelt for his extra session campaign is to break his influence with the country. A series of defeats in treaties affords an excellent opportunity for this, because the blame can so plausibly be attached to the Democrats. With the two-thirds rule, the responsibilities for defeat would be technically theirs.

There is rather good understanding between Gorman, as the Democratic leader, and the dominant Republican senators. Their seeming antagonism is often for public effect, because it looks better for Democrats to oppose a Republican president's policy. The Republican leaders would do as much for Gorman, if a Democratic president were pushing a tariff reform bill. It was Gorman technically who killed Panama canal legislation, by holding the senate conferees resolutely against the house plan, which was also the president's plan, for reorganizing that body. Gorman was working for Allison, whose identification with Admiral Walker is so close that they are commonly spoken of as brothers-in-law.

With this treaty, there are plenty of the Republican influences which would be effective in making Democratic support, did the dominant senators actually want the treaty to succeed. Senators Cullom and Lodge want it ratified, and so do a small group of the president's friends outside the foreign relations committee, but the larger number of Republican senators, taking a broader view of Roosevelt's policies, tariff, railroad, land and civil service reform, see that his defeat now would be of the utmost strategic value to them in October.

It is an axiom of senatorial procedure that the side of a case which has the necessary votes is always ready to fix a time for the rollcall; the side which knows it will be beaten pleads for further debate and delay. Sometimes, as in the recent statehood contest in the senate, both sides were so sure of their ground that there was common agreement for a rollcall, and the results were so closely drawn as to justify the discrepancies in the estimates. The Republicans for the last week have persistently announced their readiness to vote on this treaty while confessing a lack of the necessary two-thirds majority.

If they would maintain the debate, many influences might be brought to bear in favor of the treaty. The unpaired absentees could be hurried home. The spectacle of a party entitled to 58 senators going into a critical fight of this kind with a probable vote of 51 is sufficiently illustrative of Republican faint-heartedness.

It should be acknowledged that many of the Republican senators of the Spooner type have a wholesome distrust of the present treaty, fearing that it will establish a bad precedent. The same might have been said of the Philippine treaty with redoubled force, but the great difference in the situation is in the attitude of the senators toward the president. They are finding Roosevelt a dangerous popular leader, not so much now as in the measures to come up in October, and they have decided to clip his wings. Gorman is only too ready to become nominally responsible for such a movement.

Marine Barracks In Canal Zone

Washington, March 16.—General Elliot, commander of the marine corps, has arranged for the construction of two barracks buildings in the Panama canal zone for the accommodation of the United States marines. These buildings will accommodate about 200 marines and the cost of their construction will be defrayed out of the Panama canal fund.

Brought Down by Sentries

Vancouver Barracks, Wash., March 16.—Lieutenant Boone, whose conviction by court martial was made public yesterday, made a desperate attempt to escape from the barracks and was shot by sentries. Two serious wounds were inflicted. Boone is in a delicate state of health and blood poisoning is feared.

MRS L. F. MULRAY.

"Nervous Headaches—Run Down."

Tired, sick nerves cause nervous headaches.
The nerves stop doing their work properly.
They protest against neglect and abuse.
Their tired, sick condition is shown in many ways, sometimes one way, sometimes another.
Health, vigor, determination, courage—in fact, all that makes life worth living depends upon a healthy supply of nerve force.

Paine's Celery Compound makes new Nerve Force, it revives the old force and makes new. It not only does this, but by strengthening the nerves that control all the organs of the body, it cures the real cause of headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, malaria, and the many diseases coming from a run down condition of the nerves.

For 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world. For 18 years—think of this fact and realize what it means.

Read the experience of Mrs. L. F. Mulray after La Grippe:

"Following a severe attack of La Grippe my general health seemed to be seriously affected. I suffered from constant nervous headache and was so unstrung that everything irritated me until I was in a precarious condition. I also was troubled with sleeplessness and would rise in the morning more weary than when I went to bed. As my medicine did not seem to help me any, the doctor advised a complete change, but, as I was unable to go away, a neighbor advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound. I used it faithfully for a week, feeling that I daily grew better and stronger and my health kept gradually improving until I had used three and a half bottles, when I was in perfect health, with no trace of my former troubles. A number of my friends who saw what Paine's Celery Compound had done for me have used it since, and they all feel as pleased with results as I am. Yours very truly."—Mrs. L. F. Mulray, Fifth and Mercer streets, Seattle, Wash. Treasurer Skoogay Country Club.

Thousands of grateful patients tell of the unfailing effect of Paine's Celery Compound as a nerve vitalizer and tonic. Physicians, the world over, use and prescribe it and testify to wonderful cures.

One bottle will prove its wonderful properties—it gives almost instant effect.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day.
It braces you up at once.
See how much better you feel.
See how much more easily the trials roll away.
Let Paine's Celery Compound strengthen and restore your nerves, nourish your system, purify your blood and help you back to vigorous, buoyant health.

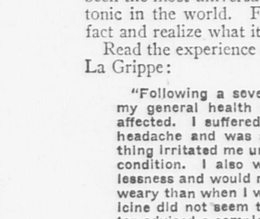

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians America has ever known—Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

SENATOR BATE'S LEG.

How the Tennessee Veteran Saved It From Amputation.

When the civil war came the late Senator William B. Bate of Tennessee cast in his fortunes with the secession movement and enlisted as a private in a Tennessee regiment, but when the regiment went to the front he was its colonel, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Times. He put to use what he had learned of drill and discipline in the Mexican war, and the Second Tennessee Confederate infantry became known as a crack regiment. He led it at Shiloh, where he was badly wounded and given up to die. His bravery there gave him the soubriquet of "Old Shiloh," which he ever after wore. It is an interesting fact that 500 men of Bate's regiment at this battle had unexpired furloughs in their pockets, having at his appeal agreed to stay and fight.

During a great part of the next year Bate commanded a brigade, although he was obliged to walk on crutches. At Shiloh the surgeons held a consultation and decided to amputate his leg. Bate suspected that this would be proposed, and he told old Jim, his negro servant, to put his pistols under the pillow. When the doctors came in he greeted them cheerily and said:

"Gentlemen, what are you going to do? You have held your consultation, and I want to know what you purpose now to do."

One of the surgeons said that to save his life they must take off his leg. The doctor's last word was hardly out of his mouth before Colonel Bate pulled a pistol from under his head and said, "You are all my friends, but the first man who puts a knife to this leg to cut it off will die."

Senator Bate told a friend only the other day of this experience and wound up his story with the remark, "This is a pretty game old leg, and it looks bad in the senate, but it is a whole lot better than the best wooden leg I ever saw."

JET IN STYLE.

White Variety the Latest Paris Novelty In London.

Jet of all kinds is scintillating into fashion again in London, but the jewelry novelty of 1905 is pure white jet, which has been introduced from Paris, says a London cable dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

White jet resembles highly polished ivory, but sparkles more, and when it is carefully cut the effect is dazzling.

High dog collars in a delicate tracery of glistening white stones, wonderful rivieres and long chains, with pendants set with sparkling jet, are among the neck adornments in the new stone.

Beautiful tiaras of white jet have been ordered in Paris by dark haired women. Fair women prefer the sparkling black stones.

Old jet is being unearthed from family treasure chests and reset. Among the many well known women who possess magnificent jet ornaments is Princess Victoria of Sleswick-Holstein, who inherited the greater part of Queen Victoria's valuable collection.

A "Dope Party" In Chicago.

Professor Frederick Starr, the anthropologist of the University of Chicago, gave a "dope party" a few evenings ago for men and girl students, says a Chicago dispatch. The principal attractions were cigarettes compounded from "dope" used by the ancients, a sort of clay that when smoked immediately causes dreams, and unlimited quantities of ice cream. In addition to these attractions, the professor produced his 1,000 plaster skulls. Much interest was displayed in the skull of the microcephalic idiot. Professor Starr explained that the microcephalic had been most unfortunate in that his head was thick—thicker even than that of the dullest pupil in the professor's class.

Crimea Tartary's Awakening.

The ferment in Russia has had a curious sequel in a racial ferment among the Tartars of the Crimea for the restoration of their ancient kingdom, says the London Globe. A pretender has even appeared, styling himself Sabal Girez Khan and claiming to be a descendant of Seachin Garez Khan, the last of the independent khans, who submitted to Russia in 1783. The pretender, who appears among the Tartar villages with an armed bodyguard, has even issued a manifesto claiming the restoration of the khanate. Troops have been sent from Sevastopol to Buchaschisaraj, the ancient capital, and the mosque where the khans of old were inaugurated is under military guard.

The President's Namesakes.

From the best information obtainable on the subject it is believed that already about 3,000 children have been named after President Roosevelt in Missouri, says the Chicago Post. If this estimate is anywhere near correct it is fair to expect that by the end of the presidential term beginning on March 4 the chief magistrate will have a tremendous number of namesakes in the state named.

Remember, It's Lent.

Be very careful what you eat;
Eschew at once the sinful meat—
It's Lent.
Deny yourself your favored dish
And breakfast, lunch and dine on fish—
It's Lent.

Cut out the bonbons, too, my dears,
Although you give them up with tears—
It's Lent.
And dances now you all must shun;
Be good as can be, every one—
It's Lent.

Go leave indulgence in the lurch
And hurry off at once to church—
It's Lent.
You all must mend your sinful ways,
Be good at least for forty days—
It's Lent.

Strike In All Fall River's Cotton Mills May Result

Fall River, Mass., March 16.—The contest between the weavers in the cotton mills and the manufacturers over the 10-loom system is rapidly nearing an acute stage. At a meeting of the union last night the Stafford mill strike was not only endorsed, but the weavers in all the other mills were given permission to adopt similar tactics. It was also decided not to hold any more conferences with the manufacturers unless they would agree to return to the eight-loom system, long bobbins, and 17.32 cents per cut of 46 yards.

Secretary Whitehead of the union says that the situation has passed beyond the argumentative stage, and that the refusal of the manufacturers means a strike of weavers in all of the cotton mills of Fall River the coming summer.

"What the weavers demand," he said, "is a living wage. The introduction of the long bobbin is not an improvement, but only an experiment for which the weavers are called upon to pay."

Cargo Damaged $50,000

Boston, March 16.—Fire which broke out from some unknown cause on the steamer Wildenfels of Bremen at Mystic wharf caused damage to its cargo estimated at $50,000. In addition to the damage to the cargo the steamer itself suffered from the fire, many of her plates being warped and her compartment walls being damaged. The Wildenfels carried a general cargo aggregating in value about $1,000,000.

TO SHELVE TREATY

Republicans "Lie Down" In Santo Domingo Controversy

TO CHECK ROOSEVELT

Senators Find Him a Dangerous Popular Leader In Measures to Come Up In October, and Decide to Clip His Wings

Washington, March 16.—Republican leaders of the senate are all at sea respecting the action advisable to take in regard to the Santo Domingo treaty. Recognizing that the Democrats control more than one-third of the votes and that two-thirds are required to ratify the convention, the sentiment of the Republican leaders is that the treaty should be withdrawn by the president. On this subject the senate and the president do not agree and the idea prevails that after one or two days more of inconsequential discussion the special session of the senate will be allowed to adjourn without date and the treaty lapse.

Republicans of the senate, it is evident, were perfectly willing to "lie down" in the Santo Domingo controversy. They could ratify the treaty if they wanted to by well known parliamentary devices, but instead they are only too glad to administer a rebuke to Roosevelt with his schemes of tariff readjustment, railroad legislation and reform in public land laws, ready to press on congress in an extra session.

The way to weaken Roosevelt for his extra session campaign is to break his influence with the country. A series of defeats in treaties affords an excellent opportunity for this, because the blame can so plausibly be attached to the Democrats. With the two-thirds rule, the responsibilities for defeat would be technically theirs.

There is rather good understanding between Gorman, as the Democratic leader, and the dominant Republican senators. Their seeming antagonism is often for public effect, because it looks better for Democrats to oppose a Republican president's policy. The Republican leaders would do as much for Gorman, if a Democratic president were pushing a tariff reform bill. It was Gorman technically who killed Panama canal legislation, by holding the senate conferees resolutely against the house plan, which was also the president's plan, for reorganizing that body. Gorman was working for Allison, whose identification with Admiral Walker is so close that they are commonly spoken of as brothers-in-law.

With this treaty, there are plenty of the Republican influences which would be effective in making Democratic support, did the dominant senators actually want the treaty to succeed. Senators Cullom and Lodge want it ratified, and so do a small group of the president's friends outside the foreign relations committee, but the larger number of Republican senators, taking a broader view of Roosevelt's policies, tariff, railroad, land and civil service reform, see that his defeat now would be of the utmost strategic value to them in October.

It is an axiom of senatorial procedure that the side of a case which has the necessary votes is always ready to fix a time for the rollcall; the side which knows it will be beaten pleads for further debate and delay. Sometimes, as in the recent statehood contest in the senate, both sides were so sure of their ground that there was common agreement for a rollcall, and the results were so closely drawn as to justify the discrepancies in the estimates. The Republicans for the last week have persistently announced their readiness to vote on this treaty while confessing a lack of the necessary two-thirds majority.

If they would maintain the debate, many influences might be brought to bear in favor of the treaty. The unpaired absentees could be hurried home. The spectacle of a party entitled to 58 senators going into a critical fight of this kind with a probable vote of 51 is sufficiently illustrative of Republican faint-heartedness.

It should be acknowledged that many of the Republican senators of the Spooner type have a wholesome distrust of the present treaty, fearing that it will establish a bad precedent. The same might have been said of the Philippine treaty with redoubled force, but the great difference in the situation is in the attitude of the senators toward the president. They are finding Roosevelt a dangerous popular leader, not so much now as in the measures to come up in October, and they have decided to clip his wings. Gorman is only too ready to become nominally responsible for such a movement.

Marine Barracks In Canal Zone

Washington, March 16.—General Elliot, commander of the marine corps, has arranged for the construction of two barracks buildings in the Panama canal zone for the accommodation of the United States marines. These buildings will accommodate about 200 marines and the cost of their construction will be defrayed out of the Panama canal fund.

Brought Down by Sentries

Vancouver Barracks, Wash., March 16.—Lieutenant Boone, whose conviction by court martial was made public yesterday, made a desperate attempt to escape from the barracks and was shot by sentries. Two serious wounds were inflicted. Boone is in a delicate state of health and blood poisoning is feared.

MRS L. F. MULRAY.

"Nervous Headaches—Run Down."

Tired, sick nerves cause nervous headaches.
The nerves stop doing their work properly.
They protest against neglect and abuse.
Their tired, sick condition is shown in many ways, sometimes one way, sometimes another.
Health, vigor, determination, courage—in fact, all that makes life worth living depends upon a healthy supply of nerve force.
Paine's Celery Compound makes new Nerve Force, it revives the old force and makes new. It not only does this, but by strengthening the nerves that control all the organs of the body, it cures the real cause of headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, malaria, and the many diseases coming from a run down condition of the nerves.
For 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world. For 18 years—think of this fact and realize what it means.
Read the experience of Mrs. L. F. Mulray after La Grippe:

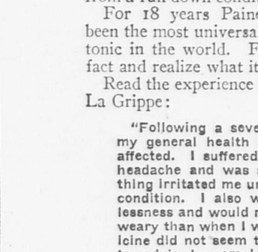

"Following a severe attack of La Grippe my general health seemed to be seriously affected. I suffered from constant nervous headache and was so unstrung that everything irritated me until I was in a precarious condition. I also was troubled with sleeplessness and would rise in the morning more weary than when I went to bed. As my medicine did not seem to help me any, the doctor advised a complete change, but, as I was unable to go away, a neighbor advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound. I used it faithfully for a week, feeling that I daily grew better and stronger and my health kept gradually improving until I had used three and a half bottles, when I was in perfect health, with no trace of my former troubles. A number of my friends who saw what Paine's Celery Compound had done for me have used it since, and they all feel as pleased with results as I am. Yours very truly."—Mrs. L. F. Mulray, Fifth and Mercer streets, Seattle, Wash. Treasurer Skoogay Country Club.

Thousands of grateful patients tell of the unfailing effect of Paine's Celery Compound as a nerve vitalizer and tonic. Physicians, the world over, use and prescribe it and testify to wonderful cures.
One bottle will prove its wonderful properties—it gives almost instant effect.
Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day.
It braces you up at once.
See how much better you feel.
See how much more easily the trials roll away.
Let Paine's Celery Compound strengthen and restore your nerves, nourish your system, purify your blood and help you back to vigorous, buoyant health.
Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians America has ever known—Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.
All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

TOOK COPIOUS NOTES

Lawyer Patrick Listens to Points Made by Prosecution

Albany, March 16.—The second day of the Patrick murder case brought still larger crowds to the court of appeals. Ex-Senator Hill, senior counsel for the defense, finished his argument and the presentation of points for the prosecution gave the prisoner plenty to do. With a pad on his knee and a fountain pen, he took notes continually, afterwards turning them over to his counsel.

Patrick's family accompanied him to the courtroom in the afternoon, but when Assistant District Attorney Gans began his description of the manner in which the defendant is alleged to have brought about the death of the aged millionaire, William M. Rice, they left the room. His two little daughters played about the lower corridor, where the guides pointed them out to curious tourists.

Patrick's wife, whom he married in the Tombs prison a year or more ago, came up from New York and joined him, his mother, sister and children following. Mrs. Patrick expressed perfect confidence in her husband's innocence and final acquittal. The prosecution probably will close today.

Charged With Terrible Crime

Philadelphia, March 16.—Riccardo Forte, the Italian who is wanted in connection with the assault and murder of 4-year-old Rosie De Lucca, whose body was found at Howellville, was arrested at Downingtown and lodged in jail at Westchester. Dominick De Lucca, the 10-year-old brother of the dead girl, who was beaten and choked into insensibility by the child's assailant, may die. The prisoner denies having committed the deed and asserts he was at his home at the time the crime was committed. His wife refutes his statement.

Sensational Gambling Raid

New York, March 16.—The police raided a poolroom and gambling house in Forty-Second street which they declare was patronized almost exclusively by wives of wealthy New Yorkers. The entrance of the police was followed by a scene of wild excitement, the women screaming and attempting to escape by the windows and doors. After they had given their names and addresses, the women went to their private carriages and automobiles which were waiting around the corner.

All Classes Chipped In

Kingston, Ja., March 16.—Captain Baker, founder of the United Fruit company, was presented last evening with a handsome silver service by Jamaica admirers in recognition of the great benefit conferred on the colony through the inauguration and development of the banana trade. Subscriptions to the fund were received from all classes of the community.

Girl on Spree Died In Cab

Brooklyn, March 16.—Mamie Savage, 26, had been out on a spree with Thomas J. Deegan, 30, a clerk. They had been at several saloon hotels and drank gin steadily for several hours. Then they got in a cab maudlin, and started for another hotel. Before they got there the girl was dead and the man ill. Both belonged to good families.

Riotous Demonstrations

Vienna, March 16.—Serious disturbances arising from a strike by carpenters occurred last night. The strikers resisted numerous attempts to disperse them, attacked the police with stones, destroyed wooden benches in the parks and broke windows in the masters' houses. Several arrests were made.

Libel to Call White Man a Negro

Columbia, S. C., March 16.—In a case brought before the supreme court of South Carolina on a demurrer, a decision was handed down declaring that it is libelous to publish a white man as a negro. Two newspapers referred to a white man as "colored." He entered suit against each for $10,000.

Good News For Mill Workers

Natchez, Miss., March 16.—The Natchez cotton mills, employing 400 operatives, gave notice last night that, commencing next Monday, the time for a day's work for all employes would be reduced from 11 hours to 10 hours, without reduction of wages.

Need Not Pay $22,000 Fine

San Juan, P. R., March 16.—Secretary of Commerce Metcalf has informed the collector of customs here that the fine of $22,000 imposed on the steamer Arkadia, on account of the vessel sailing without having cleared, has been remitted.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Thomas E. Pepper, aged 59, the multimillionaire whiskey manufacturer, whose home is in Lexington, Ky., and Miss Grace Appleby of Providence, aged 29, were married in the Arcade hotel, Springfield, O.

Owing to numerous complaints the Vatican has withdrawn from Mgr. Broderick, auxiliary bishop of Havana, the mission entrusted to him to urge the American bishops to increase the collection of Peter's pence.

The isthmian canal commission has approved the recommendation of the chief engineer for the creation of 462 positions in connection with the prosecution of the canal work.

The general endowment fund of Lawrence university, Appleton, Wis., has been increased by the receipt of a check of $10,000 from the estate of Samuel Jones of Natick, Mass.

Emperor William of Germany has bestowed the great gold medal for science upon Manuel Garcia, aged 99, the professor of singing who invented the laryngoscope.

SENATOR BATE'S LEG.

How the Tennessee Veteran Saved It From Amputation.

When the civil war came the late Senator William B. Bate of Tennessee cast in his fortunes with the secession movement and enlisted as a private in a Tennessee regiment, but when the regiment went to the front he was its colonel, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Times. He put to use what he had learned of drill and discipline in the Mexican war, and the Second Tennessee Confederate infantry became known as a crack regiment. He led it at Shiloh, where he was badly wounded and given up to die. His bravery there gave him the soubriquet of "Old Shiloh," which he ever after wore. It is an interesting fact that 500 men of Bate's regiment at this battle had unexpired furloughs in their pockets, having at his appeal agreed to stay and fight.

During a great part of the next year Bate commanded a brigade, although he was obliged to walk on crutches. At Shiloh the surgeons held a consultation and decided to amputate his leg. Bate suspected that this would be proposed, and he told old Jim, his negro servant, to put his pistols under the pillow. When the doctors came in he greeted them cheerily and said:

"Gentlemen, what are you going to do? You have held your consultation, and I want to know what you purpose now to do."

One of the surgeons said that to save his life they must take off his leg. The doctor's last word was hardly out of his mouth before Colonel Bate pulled a pistol from under his head and said, "You are all my friends, but the first man who puts a knife to this leg to cut it off will die."

Senator Bate told a friend only the other day of this experience and wound up his story with the remark, "This is a pretty game old leg, and it looks bad in the senate, but it is a whole lot better than the best wooden leg I ever saw."

JET IN STYLE.

White Variety the Latest Paris Novelty In London.

Jet of all kinds is scintillating into fashion again in London, but the jewelry novelty of 1905 is pure white jet, which has been introduced from Paris, says a London cable dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

White jet resembles highly polished ivory, but sparkles more, and when it is carefully cut the effect is dazzling.

High dog collars in a delicate tracery of glistening white stones, wonderful rivieres and long chains, with pendants set with sparkling jet, are among the neck adornments in the new stone.

Beautiful tiaras of white jet have been ordered in Paris by dark haired women. Fair women prefer the sparkling black stones.

Old jet is being unearthed from family treasure chests and reset. Among the many well known women who possess magnificent jet ornaments is Princess Victoria of Sleswick-Holstein, who inherited the greater part of Queen Victoria's valuable collection.

A "Dope Party" In Chicago.

Professor Frederick Starr, the anthropologist of the University of Chicago, gave a "dope party" a few evenings ago for men and girl students, says a Chicago dispatch. The principal attractions were cigarettes compounded from "dope" used by the ancients, a sort of clay that when smoked immediately causes dreams, and unlimited quantities of ice cream. In addition to these attractions, the professor produced his 1,000 plaster skulls. Much interest was displayed in the skull of the microcephalic idiot. Professor Starr explained that the microcephalic had been most unfortunate in that his head was thick—thicker even than that of the dullest pupil in the professor's class.

Crimea Tartary's Awakening.

The ferment in Russia has had a curious sequel in a racial ferment among the Tartars of the Crimea for the restoration of their ancient kingdom, says the London Globe. A pretender has even appeared, styling himself Sabal Girez Khan and claiming to be a descendant of Scachin Garez Khan, the last of the independent khans, who submitted to Russia in 1783. The pretender, who appears among the Tartar villages with an armed bodyguard, has even issued a manifesto claiming the restoration of the khanate. Troops have been sent from Sevastopol to Buchaschisaraj, the ancient capital, and the mosque where the khans of old were inaugurated is under military guard.

The President's Namesakes.

From the best information obtainable on the subject it is believed that already about 3,000 children have been named after President Roosevelt in Missouri, says the Chicago Post. If this estimate is anywhere near correct it is fair to expect that by the end of the presidential term beginning on March 4 the chief magistrate will have a tremendous number of namesakes in the state named.

Remember, It's Lent.

Be very careful what you eat;
Eschew at once the sinful meat—
It's Lent.
Deny yourself your favored dish
And breakfast, lunch and dine on fish—
It's Lent.

Cut out the bonbons, too, my dears,
Although you give them up with tears—
It's Lent.
And dances now you all must shun;
Be good as can be, forty one—
It's Lent.

Go leave indulgence in the lurch
And hurry off at once to church—
It's Lent.
You all must mend your sinful ways,
Be good at least for forty days—
It's Lent.

Strike In All Fall River's Cotton Mills May Result

Fall River, Mass., March 16.—The contest between the weavers in the cotton mills and the manufacturers over the 10-loom system is rapidly nearing an acute stage. At a meeting of the union last night the Stafford mill strike was not only endorsed, but the weavers in all the other mills were given permission to adopt similar tactics. It was also decided not to hold any more conferences with the manufacturers unless they would agree to return to the eight-loom system, long bobbins, and 17.32 cents per cut of 46 yards.

Secretary Whitehead of the union says that the situation has passed beyond the argumentative stage, and that the refusal of the manufacturers means a strike of weavers in all of the cotton mills of Fall River the coming summer.

"What the weavers demand," he said, "is a living wage. The introduction of the long bobbin is not an improvement, but only an experiment for which the weavers are called upon to pay."

Cargo Damaged $50,000

Boston, March 16.—Fire which broke out from some unknown cause on the steamer Wildenfels of Bremen at Mystic wharf caused damage to its cargo estimated at $50,000. In addition to the damage to the cargo the steamer itself suffered from the fire, many of her plates being warped and her compartment walls being damaged. The Wildenfels carried a general cargo aggregating in value about $1,000,000.

Got In Electric Car's Way

Providence, March 16.—An unidentified man was struck by an electric car here last night, sustaining injuries resulting in his death. Motorman Almond was held, but later released by order of the coroner. Almond says the man suddenly walked onto the tracks about 25 feet in front of the car and stopped. Before the momentum of the car could be checked appreciably, the man was knocked down.

Waterville a Water Town

Waterville, Me., March 16.—Mayor Purinton and City Marshal Adams yesterday called on all places in the city where they had reason to suppose that intoxicating liquor had been sold and informed the proprietors that they must obey the prohibitory law or take the consequences. So far as known all those who were visited have complied with the order and the town is "dry."

In Interest of Public Health

Portland, Me., March 16.—At the instance of the local board of health a number of markets were visited by a force of police and deputy sheriffs and several butchers' wagons were also examined. The result was the seizure of about 200 pounds of what is declared to be "bob" veal and the arrest of half a dozen dealers.

Britishers Have Advantage

Boston, March 16.—When the first day's play in the international checker tournament, in which American are pitted against British players, was concluded last night, the visitors had won nine games, while the Americans were victorious in but three games. Twenty-eight games were drawn.

Must Answer Murder Charge

St. Albans, Vt., March 16.—An indictment for murder in the second degree was brought in by the Franklin county grand jury against Giovanni Viscono, charged with killing Francisco Philippi at Swanton Junction. It is alleged that the shooting followed a quarrel.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. William Hayden of River street entertains friends at whist this evening.

The third alarm of the group, all within 36 hours, came this morning.

The members of the Granite Cutters' Union received strike pay on Wednesday.

The Social club closes their season tomorrow night with a dancing party at Faxon hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kolseth of Walker street are making preparations for a trip South.

Rev. Ernest W. Hunt of Boston will preach at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday.

The Unity club gave a whist party in the club rooms at Quincy Point Wednesday evening.

The prompt arrival of the Quincy library books in Atlantic on Thursday last week was appreciated.

Benj. French of Washington street entertained a number of his friends at his home Wednesday evening.

At the vesper service on Sunday the choir of the Wollaston Baptist church will be assisted by the Arlington male quartet.

A public hearing will be held before the City Council next Monday evening on the petition of Charles C. Hearn for a sixth class liquor license.

The "picketing bill" was again rejected by the Senate on Wednesday, 15 to 20 with one pair. Senator Nevins of this district was recorded against.

The Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany Church preaches this evening in Randolph in a series of preaching services held in the Congregational Church.

There will be a monthly business meeting Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Baptist church this evening at the home of Mr. G. E. Thomas, Newton street.

The books from the library of the late Rev. James Bagley of Wollaston, which have been on sale at the vestry of the Unitarian church, have all been disposed of.

The state society of the Daughters of the Revolution hold their annual meeting Friday at Chipman hall, Tremont Temple, Boston, beginning at ten o'clock and lasting all day.

The White ball to be given in Atlantic Music hall on March twenty-fourth bids fair to be one of the greatest successes of Miss Lena Crane's unusally prosperous dancing parties.

Bowling has become popular on Wednesday afternoons at the North Quincy club and many young women are taking advantage of the excellent alleys and are improving their muscles.

The Mayor and department officials of the city will attend the funeral of Christopher A. Spear, late Clerk of Council, this afternoon. They have also forwarded a beautiful floral emblem. City Hall was closed at 2.30 for the day.

Mr. Spaulding of Belmont street, who has been ill for the past week is slowly recovering. It is hoped that he will be well enough to be in the minstrel show next week as many are looking forward to his part of the program with great anticipation.

The Ladies' Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church held its regular meeting in the vestry Wednesday afternoon. After the usual opening exercises and a business meeting, Mrs. Frank S. Davis of Quincy read an exceedingly bright and interesting paper on Confucius.

SUMMER TRAVEL.

Brockton People Want to Come to Quincy.

But Trains Are Not Convenient.

Move in Brockton for Better Service.

That Quincy has not had the best of train service in the past is again emphasized by the fact that the Brockton board of trade is moving for better summer service on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. between Brockton and Quincy, that the shore resorts of Quincy may be reached with greater ease than during last summer.

By the train schedules that have been in effect in recent years Quincy has been cut off from Brockton, Plymouth, the South Shore, and all points south, because it was necessary to make changes and stop over some time at Braintree or South Braintree.

It seems by the Brockton movement that they do not like the schedule any better than Quincy people.

The facts seem to have been overlooked that Quincy is a city of 30,000 and that Weymouth and North Weymouth people use the Quincy station. Daily sessions of the East Norfolk court are held in this city, also sessions of the Probate court for Norfolk county. Braintree and Milton people also do their banking in Quincy, and it is a trading centre for the Weymouths, the Braintrees and Milton.

Better service between Quincy and Brockton will mean more express trains both ways between Quincy and Boston. But few trains should pass Quincy without a stop. Like Lynn on the Boston and Maine R. R., Quincy and Brockton should both be stopping places for most all trains.

Mothers' Day.

Mothers' afternoon has become very popular in the Lincoln school district. Last year this plan was introduced and met with so great success that the mothers and children were delighted to have it repeated. Each grade has an appointed Friday afternoon and the mothers receive written invitations from the children. The regular work of the grade, with singing and recitations, forms a very enjoyable program. Mr. Crocker, the principal of the school, may feel well pleased with the success of his plan.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick Cain was arranged for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until March 23.

Fred Hammant was arranged for assault at Quincy. Case continued until April 1.

—Miss Helen Stuart Wilson of Seattle, Wash., has been selected to name the armored cruiser Washington, to be launched at Camden, N. J., on Saturday.

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

BRAVE RUSSIAN AMAZON

Mme. Smolka's Scouting Experiences In Manchuria.

HOW SHE FOILED A BANDIT BAND

By Her Vigilance and Knowledge of the Chinese Tongue and Customs She Saved Some Frontier Guards From Death—Incidents of Her Life In the War With Japan.

The attention of the crowd of people throwing the railway station at Harbin, in Manchuria, was attracted recently by a Cossack with rosy cheeks and whose beardless face and woman's voice told clearly that the soldier's garb was being worn by a woman, says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Globe. The Russian amazon was a Mme. Smolka, and a member of the staff of the Messenger de Harbin has gathered from her own lips and from some of the inhabitants the following highly interesting details concerning the life of the heroine:

Helene Mikhailovna Smolka, the daughter of a Jewish soldier of the days of Nicholas I., was a young girl of seventeen years of age when during the disorders in China she resolved to enlist in the ranks of the frontier guards. As she had lived from her girlhood at Nikolsk-Ussurilsk in the company of Chinese and Koreans she had a perfect knowledge both of Chinese and of Korean, and she hoped that she could be of use during the trouble with China. Having clothed herself as a man and having taken the name of Michel Nicolaievitch Smolka, this eccentric and brave girl passed with great distinction the examination as interpreter held at the school of interpreters at Vladivostok. Toward the end of 1900 the girl was serving as interpreter and frontier guard at the station of Ninguta, in Manchuria. She had taken part in all the scouting and skirmishes and had learned how to handle her rifle and sword. In 1901 Smolka was sent at the head of about a hundred frontier guards to reconnoiter at Kaiga. Overcome by a hard day's work, the men went to sleep in a peasant's house. The chunchuses were not far off, and the traiterous Chinese told them that the Russians were resting for the night. The chunchuses resolved to profit from the night and their greater numbers and to attack the house in which the Russians were sleeping. However, they had overlooked Smolka's vigilance. In moving among the Chinese Smolka had got wind of the plot. She aroused the frontier guards in time to let the chunchuses approach the house. Then, as the latter came near, the Russians rushed out and fired upon them and put them to flight. During that little skirmish Smolka received her first wound, which was on the right arm close to the shoulder.

As a reward for all the services rendered by her during the campaign in China Smolka received a silver medal and a sword with a silver hilt and bearing the inscription, "To the interpreter Smolka for courage displayed at Kaiga."

Immediately after the outbreak of war with Japan Smolka sent a request to the commander of the forces to ask him to allow her to be enrolled among the volunteers. Without waiting for a reply Smolka went to Harbin, with a view of supporting her request at the hands of General Volkoff, but she did not receive the desired permission. Then this brave woman disguised herself as a man, hung her medal round her neck and sought a favorable opportunity for undergoing all the risks and perils involved in serving with the army in southern Manchuria. At that time railway tickets were given only to such persons as had special authority to travel by rail. Still Smolka was undaunted, and she resolved to reach Liaoyang at all costs. So she slipped into a cattle truck, and in that way she reached the headquarters of the army, where she met many of her former comrades. Thanks to their aid, she managed to get enrolled in the scouting detachment of the Second Cossack regiment of Nerchinsk, under Lieutenant Vichniakoff, and once more she was able to bestride her charger.

She accompanied the detachment when it was sent out to reconnoiter the outskirts of the town of Kuangensian. Again, owing to her knowledge both of the Chinese language and of Chinese customs, she was able to find out in good time the approach of a considerable body of Japanese and to warn her comrades thereof, with the result that the detachment had to defend itself while rejoining the main body. After that expedition a report of the affair was drawn up and handed to General R., and this led to Smolka being enrolled in the Second regiment of Nerchinsk as a volunteer interpreter under the name of Michel Nicolaievitch Smolka. Thenceforward she took part in many dangerous pieces of scouting, but she was wounded only once slightly in the foot.

During all the time that she has been on active service Smolka has shared the privations and hardships of her comrades in arms. She used to go to sleep without taking off her clothes. Wearing the same uniform as her comrades, she rode her horse like a man. She ate her rations with the rest, standing around the Cossacks' huge kettle. She sang their soldiers' songs with them. She wrote letters for those who were unable to write them, and all she asked was that they should treat her as if she were a man. But the young and intrepid Smolka, in spite of all her seriousness, has not been able to prevent certain of her comrades and even some of her superior officers from seeing in her a charming woman.

The Cossacks and the ordinary soldiers were very fond of her, and they used to call her Makalle Nikolaievitch. In short, she became quite accustomed to her position, and sometimes she forgot even that she was a woman.

Smolka recently arrived at Harbin to look after some business connected with her regiment, and she showed a very practical business spirit in dealing with it. She had to make some important purchases. As she possesses no female attire, she has been the butt of certain ladies at Harbin. However, she pays no attention to their remarks. Quite recently she appeared at the theater at Harbin. She was wearing her ordinary uniform. During one of the intervals Smolka walked deliberately into the ladies' retiring room, and of course the presence of a soldier caused a great deal of bother, for the ladies took the young amazon to be an officer.

NOVELTIES IN A HOME.

Attractive Dining Room and Moonlight Den For Kansas City House.

The new residence of C. R. Hunt, a Kansas City man, to be erected at 3614 Gladstone boulevard, is to be of cut stone, with slate roof and to cost $35,000, says the Kansas City Star. The house will be two stories in height and have fourteen rooms. One of the most attractive and interesting rooms will be the dining room, which is to be wainscoted to the tops of the doors, with heavy studding to break the ceiling. The wainscoting is to be of a series of vertical panels, the moldings on the panels to be of leather attached with bronze stud nails. Illumination will come from cut glass electric globes, each six inches in diameter, suspended from the ceiling. China and glass closets in the room will be made of opalescent glass, with plate glass shelves. Electric lights within will shine through.

An octagonal library on the first floor will be paneled in oak, with a fireplace surrounded by high seats. Bookshelves will extend almost entirely around the room.

Above the library on the second floor will be a den of the same form. In this the finish and lighting will be with the design of giving a moonlight effect. Panels in gray tint will extend part way up the walls, the remainder of the space to the ceiling to be covered with silk squares sewed together and put on with the raw seams out. Lights placed behind partitions will shine through in greenish blue color, heightening the moonlight effect.

The foundation of the house has been completed, and the building will be ready for occupancy this fall.

A SOAP TREE.

Features of an Algerian Bush to Be Imported to America.

The United States consul at Algiers sends to the state department a wonderful account of "the soap tree of Algiers," says a Washington dispatch to the Brooklyn Eagle. This is a remarkable bushlike growth, the berries of which when dried possess the essential elements found in soap that we buy at the drug stores at the rate of 5 cents a cake.

The consul reports that the soap tree will grow in certain districts in the United States, so Secretary Wilson has decided to import a few. He will then put some of his bright young scientists at work and endeavor to cultivate the tree so that its leaves may be used as washrags.

If the experiments are successful they should prove a great boon to the poor in the crowded cities and in conjunction with the public baths may solve the problem of the great unwashed.

A Revolver For the President.

President Roosevelt has a new weapon for his armory in the gift from Mart Allen, brother of "The" Allen, of a revolver of service only to its owner, says a Washington special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Attempts to fire it unless one is familiar with its combination are vain. Allen invented this peculiar type of firearm while a convict in Sing Sing prison. The idea was suggested when two fellow convicts escaped by obtaining the warden's revolvers and holding him at bay by threatening him with instant death if he interfered.

Cowboys at the Inauguration.

Boys, I been to Washington and talked with Teddy too.
Started with a little coin, but what I had is blew.
Owned the capital awhile, with lots o' cash to burn.
Had to sell my pinto when I started to return.
It was worth the money, boys; I say it with a will,
For Teddy grabbed me by the hand and says, "God bless ye, Bill!"

Talk about yer grand parades—say, it was more than swell.
Carriages and uniforms from Cripple Creek to hell,
Injun chiefs and senators, militiamen and khakis,
Me and Hay and congress and a mile or so of jackies—
This was mighty pleasant, boys, but it was grander still
When Teddy seized this flip o' mine and says, "God bless ye, Bill!"

Zinc Tooth Mike and Sandrock Ike, Yipping Siwash Hank, Bad Land Phil, and Deadwood Bill, and Bitter River Frank,
We was all invited, so we hit the trail and went,
After the procession, just to see the president.
There he stood upon the porch—I think I see him still—
Boys, he shook this hand o' mine and says, "God bless ye, Bill!"

Never taught a Sunday school while livin' in the west—
Guess I've done my boozin' and my shootin' with the rest—
But, say, if Teddy come around and made the proposition,
I'd jest switch my politics and vote for Prohibition!
Me for him and him for me, I says, and with a will,
Since Teddy took me by the mitt and says, "God bless ye, Bill!"

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter I. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey. XI—George visits Bawdsey, who is employed by Lord Derrington to watch the young man. Bawdsey warns him that he is suspected of Mrs. Jersey's murder. XII—Lord Derrington is visited by Brendon, who tells his grandfather that he saw him in Mrs. Jersey's house on the night of the murder. Brendon demands that his grandfather silence Mrs. Ward.

Derrington stood on the pavement when the brougham rolled away bearing the mother and daughter, both silent, both pale. He was alone, as Vane and the war office clerk were back again in the hall. "Humph!" said Derrington, his eyes fixed on the retreating carriage. "So you know that little woman who called to see me about the lease. I wonder how that comes about. Miss Bull knew Mrs. Jersey, and you, Mrs. Ward, sent that yellow holly. I wonder"— The old man stopped. He could not quite understand what Mrs. Ward was doing, but he repeated his former observation. "A dangerous woman," said he "I shall speak to Bawdsey about her." And, making up his mind to this, he went in search of the detective.

All that night Dorothy was haunted by strange dreams, in which the figure of Lola played a prominent part. Usually calm and self possessed, Dorothy slept like a child, but the fierce music, the mad dancing, the knowledge that George knew this woman, caused her to sleep brokenly. She was up early, and after a breakfast that was a mere farce she took her way to the park. It was her usual custom to walk in a lonely part about 8 o'clock in the morning, but on this occasion she was at her usual spot by half past 7. This was a seat under a spreading tree in the center of a wide lawn. Few people came there at so early an hour, and Dorothy often read for an hour before returning home. In a mechanical manner she took a book out of her pocket and tried to read. But it was impossible. Before her inner vision passed the wild, flushed face of Lola Velez, and Dorothy could not drive it away. While endeavoring to do so some one came to sit on the seat. Dorothy, rather surprised, looked up. She saw Lola staring at her intently.

The dancer looked pale and worn. About her there was none of the influence of the previous night. As the morning was cold, she wore a sealskin coat and toque, with a scarf of red silk twisted round her throat. This touch of color was all that was about her likely to suggest her foreign origin. With her pale face and piteous mouth and appealing eyes she looked like a broken hearted woman.

Lola began to speak without any preamble. "Mr. Bawdsey pointed you to me at the last night," she said in her imperfect English. "He declared you did walk early, and I have been with my eye on your mansion since 6 hours—what you call o'clock. I see you come, I follow you, I am here, Mees Vard, I am here."

"What do you want?" asked Dorothy calmly, her nerves much more under control than Lola's were. Yet both were agitated.

"Ah," cried the foreign woman, throwing back her head, "give him to me! I love him—I worship him! Give him to me!"

"Of whom do you speak, mademoiselle?"

"Ah, mademoiselle—so he speaks when angry. But I am no French. I am senora—I am Spanish. I have warm blood here in my heart." She struck her breast fiercely. "And if you take him from me I will kill you! Yes, I will give you the death—quick, sure, sudden!"

Her face drew near to Dorothy's as she spoke, and the girl could feel her hot breath on her cheek. But Dorothy had a brave heart of her own and did not flinch. For all she knew, Lola might intend to stab her at the very minute. The park keeper was some distance away, and it was useless to create a scandal by calling him to her assistance. Lola was just the kind of mad creature to make a scene. Retaining control of herself, though her heart was beating rapidly, Dorothy fixed her eyes firmly on those of Lola. "Sit a little farther away," she said, "and we will talk calmly."

"Are you not afraid?" asked Lola, surprised. She had always found the savage attitude so effective.

Dorothy laughed. "I was never afraid of anything or of any one in my life," she said coolly. "And I am not going to begin now. What do you want, mademoiselle? Why do you threaten me?"

"If you take him from me I will kill you!"

"Bah!" cried the other, but moving back a little as requested. "You know, you blond white cat, you. It is George."

"What about George?"

"He is mine. He loves me. You would take him from me."

"If you are speaking of George Brendon"—

"Of who else should I speak? You know—ah, you know!"

"Yes. I know. I heard some rumors as to how he helped you. But I do not believe for a moment that he loves you."

"He does. You dare ask that he loves."

"I shall do nothing of the sort. We may as well understand one another, as you have no right to thrust yourself upon me."

"I do do what I do please," said Lola sullenly.

"This sort of thing is not allowed in England. I am sorry for you, and so I speak. Otherwise I should call the park keeper."

"I want not any sorrow. I do want my own George."

"Mr. Brendon is engaged to marry me," said Dorothy deliberately.

Lola sprang to her feet with flashing eyes. "It will not be!" she almost shouted. "I love him!"

"Sit down," said Dorothy, much in the same tone as she would have used to a fractious child, and Lola resumed her seat immediately.

"But I will have my George," she muttered.

"Listen to me," said Dorothy quietly. "I have no right to answer your questions. But I am sorry for you. I will speak to Mr. Brendon."

"No"—Lola looked up in terror—"you must not do that. He will be very angry—oh, much—much enraged."

"Then that shows me you have been speaking untruths. Mr. Brendon does not love you"—

"But I say yes—yes—yes!" Lola sprang to her feet again and poured forth her wrath. "Ah, you think he will be milor, and that you will marry him, but"—

"What do you know about that?" asked Dorothy, rising indignantly.

"Oh, I do know much—much," Lola snapped her fingers. "Yes, I know that which I do know. I can stop him from being milor, and that I will—I will. If he is milor he will marry—you—you. But as my George he will make me—me"—she struck her breast again—"me, Lola Velez, madame his wife."

"You are talking nonsense," said Dorothy coolly, though she felt annoyed and puzzled. "What can you know?"

"That which I do know. Wait—oh, wait a day—one day, two day, three day, and then"— She snapped her fingers. "You see—yes—you see how clever I am. I go, I go, you white cat. I go to get my George."

Lola darted away at a run, which slackened to a rapid walk as she neared the park gates. Dorothy sat down again, too amazed to follow.

NEW REGIME.

N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to Work to Please,

New Man at the Boston End.

T. E. Byrnes Proving Right Man in Right Place.

By his interest in better train service for Quincy, and probably other places, Mr. T. E. Byrnes, the new man on the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. seems to be winning favor. The Globe says: A little over three months ago the public of Massachusetts and New England were interested in a brief newspaper announcement which, signed by Pres. C. S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, read as follows:

"Mr. T. E. Byrnes is appointed assistant to the president, with office in Boston, Mass. He will represent the president in all matters requiring his attention, and in all such matters will act with the full authority of the president."

A few days after this announcement Mr. Byrnes appeared in Boston and quietly entered upon the performance of his duties. He took the offices set apart for him at the South station and has been "at home" to callers practically every hour since. The public was quick to realize that Mr. Brynes was here on a mission and it was equally quick to appreciate that it was a mission really in the interest of the public. Comparatively little has appeared concerning the president's assistant in the daily prints since his arrival, but this must be charged rather to his own innate modestly than to the negligence of the newspaper men.

When Mr. Brynes came to Boston there was a fairly well-defined sentiment against the New Haven road in these parts and the sentiment had been the growth of years, during which it was not felt by the people of this state generally that the road was making any special efforts to satisfy its patrons here, or even discuss or consider very seriously grievances put forth.

When Mr. Mellen became president of the company he saw at a glance the situation as it existed, and he also recognized the problems involving both passenger and freight service. And he appreciated something more than this, namely, that the existing situation could not be straightened out from any New Haven standpoint, but that the man to unravel the tangles and placate public feeling must be "on the spot" and he must view conditions with that most essential of faculties—the "local eye."

He selected for the important duty a man whom he knew thoroughly, one with whom he had labored in other railroad fields in the great northwest, and one who, from nature and attainment, was equipped for the work.

Although he has been in Boston but a very few months it can be said that Mr. Byrnes has impressed those with whom he has come in contact. He has already won the confidence of the business men of Boston and Massachusetts. He has spent no time in apology for conditions, but, with characteristic energy, has gone about remedying them. He has studied the situation earnestly. The spirit with which he entered into the work first attracted attention of those most interested in its success. Then his fairness and ability won for the New Haven road friendships that were very new in Massachusetts.

A few weeks ago Mr. Brynes addressed the Boston merchants' association. He admitted that he was working 16 and 17 hours a day to master the problems here. He said that Boston was now his home and he desired to know and meet people; that he was ready at all times to hear the complaints of the merchants of the city and to do all in his power to correct wrongs. This was pleasing to the business men of Boston, and the enthusiasm with which the words of the speaker were greeted must have impressed him that at least he had fallen among kindly enemies who only wanted the chance to be friends.

But perhaps that which most gratifies the traveling public, as well as the business men, is the fact that there is now in Boston a man armed with full authority to take up and adjust the difficulties that so frequently arise here in connection with transportation on the New Haven road. Mr. Byrnes apparently not only has the power and the ability necessary in the premises, but he has the disposition to see to it that the public is treated fairly by the big corporation of which he is now so essentially a part.

Our new "minister plenipotentiary," as he has been facetiously called, is an excellent type of citizen. New England gave him birth, as she did so many other illustrious men of the iron, and like those others he too wandered forth to the woolly west, to return later in life when successes had stamped his efforts.

Mr. Byrnes was born in Bellows Falls, Vt., in 1855. At the age of nine he went with his parents to Minnesota, where his father became a prosperous farmer. He attended the public schools and then entered the university of Minnesota, from which he graduated in 1879. Then he studied law at the Columbia law school in New York, and in 1882 was admitted to the bar in Minnesota. The general practice of his profession attracted him at first, and his success was early noted. In 1893 he returned to railroad law and made a specialty of this branch.

Till 1897 he was engaged as a counsel for the various railroads of that state. In that year he entered the service of the Northern Pacific as the special representative of the president of that road, Mr. Mellen, and had supervision over all questions, executive, operating and traffic. He remained in that service until he came to the New Haven road.

His lifework was directly mapped out for him. His scientific training at the university of Minnesota, his deep legal training and practical railroad experience eminently fit him both for the details of railroad operation and the handling of the broader questions affecting the public.

In November, 1903, New England won back Mr. Mellen, and three months ago, through Mr. Mellen, she regained Mr. Brynes.

As has been intimated above, Mr. Byrnes has now made Boston his home. With his wife he makes the Touraine his present abode, while three sons are off in the west at school, but will soon join the family here. Personally the president's assistant is most pleasing. He is rugged physically as mentally. A well-shaped head set on broad shoulders and a firm, resolute chin are noticeable.

There is something, but not too much, of the "glitter of the steel" in the eye of this railroad man. His nature is warm and generous. His friendships are many and strong. He enjoys the acquaintance and personal friendship of many of the most prominent men in public life. He has no fads. It cannot be said that he has any hobbies, except perhaps, hard work. He works longer and harder than his assistants—and he doesn't expect them to labor as he does.

His mind is clear at all times. He knows how to say "no" as well as "yes." He has promised to do much for the people of Massachusetts. What he has already accomplished he says is but an earnest of what he will do. He prefers to work on without newspaper commendation, but he says "I want the public to be satisfied."

The general sentiment of the community is that the New Haven road took a long, if a belated, step in the right direction when Mr. Byrnes was sent to Boston.

☞The Metropolitan Amusement Company direct from an engagement at the Union Hill theatre, Gloucester, will again appear at the Quincy Music hall, Friday, March 17th. Their two previous dates here have given the best of satisfaction, under the popular management of Mr. G. B. Toomey.

CITY OFFICIALS

Well Represented at the Funeral of Clerk Spear.

Many Beautiful Floral Tributes.

City Council Escort Body to Mount Wollaston.

The funeral of Christopher A. Spear, for so many years clerk of the City Council, was held Thursday afternoon from his late residence on Newcomb street. The services were of a simple nature in accordance with the wish of family, and were conducted by Rev. William E. Gardner, rector of Christ church.

The casket was almost hidden beneath a wealth of beautiful flowers. These included a standing cross and crown from the City Council, a large bunch of roses from the departments at City Hall, and an emblematic piece from the Weymouth lodge, Knights of Pythias. There were also many beautiful flowers from the family and friends.

There was a large attendance of present and former representatives of the city government, including two of the five living ex-Selectmen, Hon. Charles H. Porter and George H. Field.

All but five of the present City Council attended the services. They met at City Hall, and headed by City Messenger Tirrell marched to the house, and escorted the remains to Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The bearers were President Nichols, Councilmen Piper, Hughes and Bass, George H. Field and George W. Morton.

Among the others present were Mayor James Thompson, City Treasurer H. G. Fay, City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, Commissioner Thomas F. Burke, City Solicitor William R. Thomas, City Engineer Hamilton Flood, Chief of Police Frank E. Burrell, Chief Engineer Peter J. Williams, Assessors Charles H. Johnson, Julius Johnson and William B. Glover, Overseer Fred F. Green, ex-Mayors Charles H. Porter and John O. Hall, ex-City Treasurers Horace B. Spear, Clarence Burgin and James F. Burke, ex-Commissioner W. W. Ewell, ex-Chief of Police Joseph W. Hayden, ex-Selectman George H. Field, ex-Councilman F. L. Jones, and Postmaster Charles L. Hammond.

ELECTION CONTEST.

Was Annual Meeting at Cohasset Legal?

A greater part of the town officials of Cohasset will be in attendance at the District court at Quincy tomorrow morning, when an inquest inquiry will be held before Judge Avery on the recent town election. The inquest will be to determine the legality of the recent election of town officers.

After the vote had been declared, one of the defeated candidates entered a protest and gave notice that he should contest the election. His grounds for protest were that Philander Bates, a candidate for office, served as one of the election officers. The Australian ballot was used for the first time at this election.

NEW TEACHER

At the Blueberries Corner District School.

The District School at Blueberrie Corner held another session at Bethany chapel on Thursday evening, that the parents and friends might witness for themselves the wonderful development of the pupils of that section who are now noted far and wide. There surely has been a great awakening at Blueberries Corner.

The cast was much the same as a few weeks ago, but because of the fact that the big boys make it uncomfortable for all teachers in that district, there was a new teacher. This, however, is expected, and the parents as well as the pupils were anxious size-up Henry Hayward who wielded the rod.

Master Hayward secured the position after a rigid competitive examination, and promises to hold the position until the end of the term at least. The pupils got off several local hits, and out up the usual pranks, and it was an enjoyable entertainment for the large number assembled.

Miss Mila Bates contributed piano solos which were very pleasing.

A goodly sum was also realized by the Sunday school from a candy sale.

Association Foot Ball.

The Quincy foot ball team defeated the Harvard University team at association foot ball on Thursday evening by a score of 7 to 6. The Quincy team is composed of Robertson, o. r.; McDonald, o. l.; McLeod, c.; Craik, f.; and Smith, g.

The Quincy second team also won 6 to 5. Mr. Prichard was referee.

League Bowling.

The Quincys lost all three games in the Old Colony bowling league on Thursday evening to the Holbrooks by scores of 461 to 433, 459 to 421, and 449 to 421. Westland did the best work for the Quincys,

The Quincy Pointers forfeited their games to the South Braintrees, and the Weymouths won two out of three from East Weymouth.

—Henry L. Crane, who died in Bridgewater on Thursday, was especially well known in the 24th Masonic district, as he served as district deputy grand marshal on the staff of District Deputy Grand Master, Charles F. Mann of East Bridgewater, and he held the position for a number of years. He also held the position of district deputy high priest.

—The Brockton Y. M. C. A., will send General Secretary Benjamin F. Pierce as a delegate to the world's convention in Paris April 26 to 30, with all expenses paid. He has been secretary ten years, and will be away six weeks.

William Anderson Youngson prominent in the Granite Cutters' Union at Milford, and Miss Margaret Mitchell Frazer of that town were united in marriage on Thursday by Rev. D. T. Magill.

Gypsy and Brown Tail MOTHS.

CITY OF QUINCY, March 17, 1905.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

The Board of Health of City of Quincy have received numerous complaints of the existing within this city of the Gypsy and Brown Tail Moths.

The Board wish to warn the inhabitants of this city against this growing plague, the most destructive known to the life of trees.

We would advise the immediate pruning and destruction by FIRE of nests found on all trees at once.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

John Morrison known as the king of tramps is again at large. Quincy people should look out for him.

It was only by the most strenuous efforts of the entire force of the Daily Ledger office that the paper came out on time yesterday. One of those misfortunes which occur once in a great while happened at 1.55 P. M. when one of the pages of the paper was being lowered on the elevator from the composing room to the press room. The elevator stopped suddenly and the form fell over, all the type going into pi. Without a page proof it was a case of hustle which only practical printers can understand, but at 2.55 the page had been reset, and the Daily Ledger went to press.

It was, fortunately, one of those days when the Ledger was prepared for an emergency, having the composition of the paper well in hand, but it was an experience which the publishers hope will not happen again for at least ten years.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Neglect of moth nests on the part of owners of trees will bring trouble to them and to their neighbors. This nest removal is a matter that all property owners should unite in, and if they would, the curse would be removed. The warm weather is approaching, and it will not not be many weeks before the worms will begin to leave the nests. To wait for the city to do the work means to leave the trees to the destruction of the caterpillars. It is better to attend to this matter at once, and if no better way is open, give the boys a chance.—Lynn Item.

A CAMEL'S STOMACH.

In Four Compartments It Carries Water to Last a Journey.

The stomach of a camel is divided into no less than four compartments, and the walls of one of these are lined with large cells, every one of which can be opened and closed at will by means of powerful muscles.

Now, when a camel drinks it drinks a very great deal. Indeed it goes drinking on for such a very long time that really you would think that it never meant to leave off. But the fact is that it is not only satisfying its thirst, but is filling up its cistern as well. One after another the cells in its stomach are filled with water, and as soon as each is quite full it is tightly closed. Then when the animal becomes thirsty a few hours later all that it has to do is to open one of the cells and allow the water to flow out. Next day it opens one or two more cells, and so it goes on day after day until the whole supply is exhausted. In this curious way a camel can live five or even six days without drinking at all and so is able to travel quite easily through the desert, where the wells are often hundreds of miles apart.

Colorado Gubernatorial Contest Is Settled

HE PROMISES TO RESIGN

Pledged to Turn Chair Over to Lieutenant Governor Immediately After Being Seated--Doubt Whether He Will Do So

Denver, March 17.—James H. Peabody has won his contest for the office of governor of Colorado, from which he retired on Jan. 10, after serving a term of two years, but his victory was achieved after he had given his pledge to resign and surrender the chair to Lieutenant Governor McDonald, Republican. Governor Peabody took over the office of governor from Adams last evening.

The vote in joint convention of the general assembly by which Governor Adams, Democrat, was ousted and Governor Peabody, Republican, installed, was 51 to 41. Ten Republicans voted with the Democratic members for Adams. Peabody maintained that Adams was elected only by fraudulent ballots, cast for the most part in Denver.

Although the Republican majority on joint ballot is 35, it has been found impossible to gain for Peabody enough Republican votes to reinstate him as governor for the remainder of the biennial term ending in January, 1907. Twenty-two Republican members of the general assembly refused to be bound by any action in caucus on the contest, and entered into a compact not to vote for Peabody. Finally the leaders of the opposing Republican factions arranged a compromise by which Peabody would be vindicated by being declared elected and McDonald would be made governor.

At the conference at which the bargain was made pledges were given to the independent Republicans by active supporters of Peabody that he would retire after being seated and permit the lieutenant governor to take the office of governor.

Governor Adams, who had spent yesterday packing his effects, surrendered his office to Peabody shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Scores of letters, telegrams and telephone messages had reached the executive chamber during the day urging Adams to hold his seat by force, but he decided to ignore this advice. He said he felt outraged at the action of the general assembly, and expressed surprise that Peabody should become a part to what he termed a conspiracy to secure the office of governor for a man who had no claim whatever to the place.

Governor Peabody will not resign the governorship, according to D. B. Fairley, state Republican chairman. Chairman Fairley said Peabody had signed a tentative resignation, but that nothing would be done with this resignation, he thought. Governor Peabody, in addressing the state assembly at his inauguration and in speaking to a crowd of citizens at his home last night, made no reference to a possible resignation.

Alva Adams was inaugurated governor of Colorado Jan. 10, the canvas of the election returns by the general assembly having shown a plurality of 9774 votes for him. Two days later James H. Peabody filed a contest for the office, which he had reluctantly surrendered.

On Jan. 17 the general assembly, in joint convention, authorized a committee of 27 members, 18 Republicans and 9 Democrats, to hear evidence in the contest and report its conclusions. This committee consumed more than a month in considering the evidence and preparing for its reports, which were submitted to the joint convention March 8.

Fourteen Republican members of the committee signed a report submitted by Peabody's counsel, which found a majority of 2280 for Peabody in the state, by rejecting the entire vote of 104 election precincts in Denver and 28 precincts in other counties on the ground of fraud and conspiracy on the part of the Democrats.

The nine Democratic committeemen presented a report declaring that Peabody had failed to prove his election and recommending dismissal of his contest. William H. Griffith, chairman of the contest committee, and three other Republican members reported that there was much fraud shown in 48 precincts of Denver, but that the allegations of fraud in the 56 other precincts, which Peabody had asked to have thrown out, had been disproved, and recommended that the contest be dismissed.

Senator Alexander, one of the signers of the majority report, also presented another report, which recommended that the election of governor be declared null and void and that Lieutenant Governor McDonald, Republican, be seated as governor. This method of settling the contest the supreme court pronounced illegal.

Business Man Killed by Car

New York, March 17.—Joseph E. Seigall, a buyer for a big department store and proprietor of a cloak and skirt manufacturing establishment, was struck and instantly killed by a surface car in Broadway. He was attempting to board the head car of a train of two cars when he fell from the step and was crushed by the car behind.

DRUGGED IN FIELD

Young Woman the Victim of an Unknown Assailant

Waltham, Mass., March 17.—Helen Teslerau, 18 years old, was found last night unconscious from the effects of an unknown drug and bound hand and foot behind a bill board in a field off Lexington and near Curve streets. By her side was a small vial containing a liquid, the nature of which has not yet been determined.

Upon regaining consciousness the girl declared that she came here from Boston in search of employment and that while walking along Lexington street she met a young man of whom she inquired the way to Lincoln street.

Miss Teslerau said that the man replied that he was himself going to Lincoln street and would personally direct her. She says that they walked together until they reached an unfrequented spot, when her companion suddenly seized her and held a handkerchief over her face until she lost consciousness.

The girl was removed to a hospital, where it is said she will recover. The police began an investigation upon the theory that the woman had attempted suicide, though they were puzzled as to how her hands became tied, as they were fastened behind her back. Upon hearing her story they began a search for the man whom she described.

Accidentally Killed Chum

Gardiner, Me., March 17.—Andrew S. Goodwin, aged 15, was accidentally shot and fatally injured by the unexpected discharge of a gun carried by Carney Robinson, a companion. The boys were hunting in the woods at South Gardiner. Robinson carried a double-barreled shotgun which, without warning, was discharged. The charge of shot entered the right side of Goodwin, who died 20 minutes later. Coroner Andrews decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Alleged Misuse of Mails

Boston, March 17.—Charged with using the mails unlawfully, Mrs. H. K. Ellis of Malden was arraigned before Commissioner Fiske, pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 bonds for a continued hearing next Monday. Bail was furnished by her husband. The postal authorities claim that Mrs. Ellis has been sending prohibited articles through the mails.

Avoided Holdup This Time

Providence, March 17.—A measure incorporating the Worcester and Providence Street Railway company, a proposition heretofore held up by several general assemblies, has been favorably reported in the state senate, the bill permitting the construction and operation of the proposed line on a running schedule of about two hours with a fare of about 50 cents.

Weavers' Strike Unsettled

Fall River, Mass., March 17.—The controversy over the 10-loom system in the Fall River mills, against which the weavers have protested, and because of which 300 weavers in the Stafford mills have actually struck, seems no nearer adjustment, although the manufacturers appear disposed to grant concessions and raise wages.

Administrator an Embezzler

Putnam, Conn., March 17.—Henry E. Simmons, 71 years old, last night was convicted of embezzlement of funds of the estate of Charles S. Hawkins, of which he was administrator. Simmons' embezzlements amounted to $7080.22, according to the items in the counts on which he was found guilty. He will be sentenced later.

Labor Bills Reported

Boston, March 17.—The legislative committee on labor voted to report a bill to prohibit the overtime employment of women and minors in manufacturing establishments between the hours of 6 p. m. and 6 a. m. It was also voted to report a bill providing for an eight-hour workday for state and county employes.

"Wild Man of Borneo" Dead

Waltham, Mass., March 17.—Henry W. Davis, 80 years of age, one of the original twins who for many years toured the country as the "Wild men of Borneo," died at his home here last night. General debility, incidental to old age, was the cause of death. Davis is survived by his brother, John Davis.

Channel Open to Bucksport

Bucksport, Me., March 17.—The first sailing vessel to arrive in port for the past six weeks was the schooner Mary Brewer, from Rockland. The channel of the eastern bay is clear to the sea, but the ice in the western and Belfast bay remains solid. Teams are crossing from Belfast to Islesboro.

Britishers Lead In Checkers

Boston, March 17.—The American checker team, competing against the 10 experts from England and Scotland, more than held their own on the second day of the international tournament. The total score for the two days' play is: Britishers, 14; Americans, 9; drawn, 57.

Lineman Electrocuted

Lancaster, N. H., March 17.—Fred C. Waters, a lineman employed at Groveton, was found lying unconscious in a vacant lot there. He had received a shock from a transformer put in for the purpose of thawing frozen water pipes. He died without regaining consciousness.

Hanged Herself In Cellar

North Easton, Mass., March 17.—While temporarily insane over the removal of her young son to an insane asylum, Mrs. Fannie A. Conant, 40 years old, committed suicide in the cellar of her home here by hanging.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Monkeys at Play.

"Nothing is more instructive," said the zoo keeper to a Baltimore Herald reporter, "than to watch young monkeys at play. These interesting creatures investigate everything with insatiable curiosity. They do things startling enough to convince me that they have almost human minds.

"I had in India a young monkey that learned to put the key in the lock and unlock the chain that fastened it to a pole. Near this monkey there always lay a brush with a handle that unscrewed. In time the monkey learned to unscrew the handle and then to screw it in again.

"A friend of mine had a monkey that he kept chained just out of reach of the hearth fire. This monkey learned to tear strips from newspapers, roll them into long tapers and light them in the flames."

AGGIES' "STRIKE" ENDS

Submit to Decision of Faculty and Return to Studies

Amherst, Mass., March 17.—The return of 15 members of the senior class at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, the intimation that others would return soon, and an announcement by the faculty that the threatened suspensions would be delayed for a few days have, it is believed, brought to a practical close the controversy between the faculty and the striking seniors.

The senior class went out on a strike three weeks ago because of the suspension for discipline of three of their members. Recently the faculty announced that unless the students resumed their studies not later than March 16 they would be subject to suspension. Some of the members will not return, it is understood, as they have permanently given up their college work.

The trouble grew out of a disturbance in the class room following which three seniors were suspended. The class maintained that all of its members were equally guilty and demanded the reinstatement of the suspended men. This was refused by the faculty and the seniors have since absented themselves from the class rooms.

Philippines Ours For the Present

Washington, March 17.—In order to allay any misapprehension relative to the policy of the administration with respect to the future of the Philippines, Secretary Taft states very plainly that it is the indefinite retention of the Philippines, "for the purpose of developing the prosperity and self-governing capacity of the Philippine people." What shall be done when the Filipinos have reached a condition when they can safely be trusted with their own government, the secretary believes to be a question which doubtless will have to be settled by a future generation.

Story of a Sea Serpent

New York, March 17.—The log of the British four-masted bark Howard D. Troop, from Kobe, Japan, tells of the sighting of what appeared to be the lifeless body of a snake floating on the surface of the ocean off the west coast of Africa, several degrees below the equator. The thing, which the curious sailors emphatically declare was a sea serpent, was 60 feet in length and a big white seagull was perched upon its back. The incident furnished the sole excitement of a tedious voyage of 138 days.

Back In Murderers' Row

Albany, March 17.—Albert T. Patrick last night returned to his cell in "murderers' row" in Sing Sing prison. The three days' argument of his appeal from the judgment convicting him of causing the death of William M. Rice came to an end at 6 o'clock. Decision in the case is not expected for several weeks. The testimony is the most voluminous ever submitted to the court, and it will require weeks for the judges even to read it through.

Against Hanging of Women

Trenton, March 17.—Assemblyman Matthews will introduce in the New Jersey legislature a bill abolishing the death penalty for women convicted of murder. The measure will provide for the resentencing of any women now under sentence of death. The bill, it is said, is an effort to save Mrs. Anna Valentina from the death penalty.

Price of Coal to Be Reduced

New York, March 17.—The presidents of the coal-carrying railroads have decided to make the usual spring reduction of 50 cents a ton on the tide water price of anthracite coal. This reduction will go into effect April 1 and will make the price of anthracite coal at the shipping points $4.50 a ton.

Subway Employes Killed

New York, March 17.—Two employes were killed in the subway last night. Charles Berg, an assistant foreman, who was walking the track, was struck and instantly killed by a train. George Brown, a track-walker, was killed in precisely the same manner.

Copper Company Defies Court

Redding, Cal., March 17.—Notwithstanding an injunction order by the United States court, the Mountain Copper company has started furnace No. 3 of the Big Keswick smelter. The company will strenuously fight the injunction in the higher courts.

Wreck Menaces Shipping

New York, March 17.—The wreck of an unknown sunken vessel, lying 11 miles east of Sandy Hook, was reported by the tank steamer Deutschland. The wrecked vessel is in the path of many passing vessels, constituting a serious menace to navigation.

No News From Sealers

St. Johns, March 17.—The sealing fleet along the northern coast has not been reported since leaving Monday at daylight. No sailing vessels attempted to engage in the gulf seal fishery this year, owing to the unusual extent of the ice fields.

Diamonds.

Previous to the discovery of the Brazilian mines in 1727 diamonds were found chiefly in India and Borneo. The most valuable Brazilian diamond was the Southern Star, found in 1854, which weighed 254 carats in the rough and 124 carats after cutting. The South African diamonds do not equal the Brazilian for purity on the average. Other countries where diamonds are known are the United States, British Guiana, Russia, China, Sumatra and Australia. In the United States the stones are found only occasionally in alluvial material and drift. The great lakes region is one of the districts in which they are found.

Owing to the peculiar circular or oval form of the deposits in which diamonds are discovered in South Africa it is considered that these deposits mark the vents or pipes of ancient volcanoes, and it is therefore considered that the presence of diamonds is connected with volcanic activity, the stones either having been brought up from the interior of the earth or having been formed where found under the influence of molten rock in connection with carbonaceous shale.

A Colossal Idol.

Two miles from Kamakura and about twenty from Yokohama, in Japan, on a terrace near the temple sits the most gigantic idol in the world. It is the brazen image of a deity and dates from the reign of the Emperor Shomu, who died A. D. 748. The dimensions of this idol are colossal. His height from the base of the lotus flower upon which he sits to the top of his head is sixty-three and a half feet. The face is sixteen feet in length and nine and a half feet wide, the eyes are three feet nine inches from corner to corner, the eyebrows five and a half feet and the ears eight and a half feet. The chest is twenty feet in depth, and the middle finger is exactly five feet long. The fifty-six leaves of the lotus throne are each ten feet long and six feet wide.

GROSSCUP ON REBATES

Chicago Judge's Views on Roosevelt's Railroad Policy.

URGES FORMATION OF RATE BOARD

Advises Railway Men to Join the President In Establishing Just Tribunal—Sees Serious Danger Unless Question of Control Is Handled Delicately—Pleads For Equality.

Judge Peter S. Grosscup of Chicago in commenting upon the president's railroad rate policy at a recent dinner of the Economic club in Boston said he saw serious danger in the whole question unless it was handled delicately not only by President Roosevelt, but by the railroad men. The latter, he said, while insisting that there should be no confiscation of their property or supervision that in the long run would amount to confiscation, should join with the president in establishing a tribunal through which the nation's power could be honestly exercised.

Continuing, Judge Grosscup said:

"Whatever may be its legal status, a policy of discrimination that gives to one set of persons in a community rates that are refused to the balance of that community or to certain communities rates that are refused to other communities is a policy of injustice, unjust both to the persons and communities discriminated against and unjust to the people of the United States as an entirety.

"It is none the less unjust that the means used to accomplish the discrimination may have been indirect. Secret rebates are as unjust as direct differences in rates. Arrangements by which the private cars of a particular shipper are hauled at a reduction that substantially overmeasures the capital invested by the shipper in such cars and arrangements to divide rates with shippers who pretend to be operating independent railroads that in fact are only switches in a ratio not measured by legitimate switch charges—all these and all other devices of their kind are equally unjust, for the injustice of the thing, whether it be accomplished directly or by circumlocution, is in the fact that one set of shippers are thus enabled to get their goods into a market at a cost that competitive shippers cannot obtain.

"This injustice is one that it is the business of our people as a nation to look after, for practically it is armed intervention by the railroads of the nation that in these days of small profits turns the fortunes of the contest. If, as some of our courts have held, lesser rates under the law as it stands today may be given to the larger shippers an unjust thing to the people of this country is being done by the law. I know the argument on which this discrimination is based.

"Now, in these days of universal commerce the rates charged by the railroads is one of the conditions upon which an individual's business will succeed or fail. To a very substantial extent, too, these rates are conditions authorized by the nation itself, for the railroads are the nation's carriers and within the nation's reasonable control, so that any difference in rates permitted by law, even though based on the bulk of the tonnage handled, is a direct and effective blow by the nation itself at the principle that every man, whatever his present business size, shall be given equal conditions and equal opportunity. To destroy that principle is to destroy competition and further concentrate wealth in fewer hands.

"What is new in the present agitation is that at its head is the president of the United States; that the people of the United States, regardless of their interest individually as shippers, have come to look upon the subject as a national concern. And what is new in the present agitation, and full of danger, too, is that from its being a question of proper relation of the railroads to the public on business and political principles it may become a movement under cover of which the social and political revolutionists will push forward their assault upon the present order of American institutions. Already they are climbing over the wheels into our conservative president's wagon, determined to ride just as far as he is compelled to carry them on his way to a just solution of this problem. Already they are claiming this whole movement as their movement. Herein lies the embarrassment and the peril of the president. Right here, too, rises that grim menace that no friend of the institution of private property anywhere can afford longer to ignore.

"The big brained railroad man has, it seems to me, his hour of opportunity now. Let him insist that there shall be no confiscation of his property or no arrangement of control or supervision that in the long run will amount to confiscation. Behind him on such an issue the country will be found to stand.

"But let him recognize, also, that in the nation there resides the reserve power of supervision and control, a power that the nation must exercise in the interest of equal citizenship, and let him join our president in establishing a tribunal through which the nation's power can be honestly and at all times promptly and adequately exercised. That will bring peace, with justice. No other peace would last."

Spring's First Bloom In Colorado.

The first anemone of the season was recently found by Donald Dewitt of Colorado college while tramping the hills on the east slope of Cheyenne mountain, says the Colorado Springs Telegraph. The flower was in full bloom.

IN SOUTHERN MANCHURIA

Entire Section Now In the Hands of Japanese

THE TIE PASS VICTORY

Gives Oyama an Opportunity to to Envelop Shattered Russian Army, Whose Evacuation of Tie Pass Left the Enemy In Possession of Valuable Mines and Railroad Shops--Last Depot of Supplies Was Taken In a Night Attack--Kuropatkin Loses Command of the Army

St. Petersburg, March 17.—With the evacuation of Tie Pass Wednesday night the Russian army abandoned the last stronghold in southern Manchuria and definitely turned over the section to the Japanese for the campaign of 1905.

At least no other strategy is possible for General Kuropatkin, in view of his scanty supplies of ammunition and stores, the shattered condition of his army and the wide enveloping movements which the Japanese have continued almost without a stop since the Russian defeat at Mukden.

Nothing has been heard of the part which General Kawamura's army is taking in these operations, but Generals Nogi and Oku, operating in the low hills of the Tie Pass gorge, were themselves sufficient to turn the shattered Russian army out of the fortifications which had been prepared with a view to being held by the army after it should have been withdrawn from Mukden.

The Japanese evidently are doing their utmost to accomplish the envelopment of the Russian army, which all but succeeded at Mukden; but Kuropatkin, with the railway for a line of retreat, probably will be able to keep ahead of his pursuers. A constant succession of delay from the rear guard encounters may be expected.

Military men here have but the haziest ideas as to where the next stand will be made. Apparently there are no more fortified positions in readiness, and the retirement probably will not stop short of Kirin or Kuanchentzy, on the railway line; and if the Japanese press the pursuit the Russians may retire beyond and up the Sungaro river, there to await new levies, the mobilization of which will begin immediately in Russia.

The evacuation of Tie Pass involves the loss of the coal mines in that vicinity, which, with the Fushun and Yentai mines gone, is a severe blow. The railway shops at Tie Pass and more supplies were sacrificed.

Oyama took Tie Pass in a night attack with an army from the west, which struck the position from the north. While making a desperate assault on the Russian advanced centre on the Fan river, 13 miles south of Tie Pass, as a feint, the Japanese commander executed a flank movement from the west either with fresh troops or with the men who already have been fighting for more than three weeks—a remarkable exhibition of endurance.

If Oyama has planted himself firmly astride the railroad and the highway that runs in the same direction, northeast, to Kaiyuan and Harbin with a branch just south of Kaiyuan running to Kirin, he will get immediately most of the Russians left south of a line drawn east and west through Tie Pass. It may be, however, that Kuropatkin left only a body of his picked troops in the Tie Pass positions, and that the bulk of his army has been retiring toward Kaiyuan and Harbin.

It is difficult to see how any material part of the Russian army can escape capture, hampered as they are with wounded and transport.

The capture of Tie Pass means that the Russians must have lost virtually all of their supplies. On the meagre information at hand it would seem that the Russians have met their Sedan.

General Kuropatkin and the remnants of the army which was defeated by the Japanese on the Shakhe and Hun rivers and again around Mukden and Tie Pass are now in the mountains a few miles north of the southern entrance to the pass trying to shake off their pursuers, who apparently are not going to repeat the mistake of Liaoyang and allow the Russian army to escape.

Kuropatkin has been reinforced by the garrisons of Tieling and other northern towns and a few new troops, who were on their way from Russia when the battle of Mukden began. But even with these there seems little hope for him. True, he has some 30 or 40 miles of hilly country, extending from Tie Pass to Fenghuatsien, which might enable him to hold off the enemy for a time, but once out of the hills he has before him nearly 300 miles of flat, open country and innumerable rivers and streams to cross.

This is what is termed the Great Valley of the Sungari, but is in fact an immense plain bounded on the east by high mountains and extending northward into Siberia and westward into Mongolia. Kirin, east of the railway, and Harbin, the most northerly point on the railway where it branches off to Vladivostok eastward, and to Siberia westward, are the centres of this wonderful rich country, resembling in many respects the northwest territories of Canada.

The distance from Tie Pass to Harbin is very little less than 300 miles, every acre is under cultivation or supporting herds of cattle, sheep and horses. So far as the commissariat is concerned the Russians need have no fear. Hardly a pound of last year's crop of beans, millet or wheat left the country, the Russians buying it all, but storing it at stations along the railway, immense shelters being erected for its reception. They also purchased all the cattle and horses and had Cossacks herding them.

Linevitch to Succeed Kuropatkin

St. Petersburg, March 17.—It is officially announced that General Kuropatkin will be replaced by General Linevitch as commander-in-chief of the Manchurian army.

Retirement Became Flight

London, March 17.—From a dispatch from Sinmintin, descriptive of the fighting around and the fall of Mukden, it appears that General Kuropatkin left for Tie Pass on horseback March 8, his staff following by train the next day. On March 10 Cossacks began looting in Mukden and, maddened with drink, committed the wildest excesses and robberies and killed numerous civilians. The Russians' retreat from Mukden station was well executed until it was discovered that the cordon of Japanese in the rear, 2½ miles from town, was nearly complete, when the retirement became a flight.

A Plea For Peace

St. Petersburg, March 17.—Prince Mestchersky, in an article in The Grashdanin, advises the government to promptly conclude peace and says: "Let us have the heroic strength to confess defeat before the world. Better conditions will be obtainable now than later, when Vladivostok and Sakhalin have fallen into the hands of the Japanese, and the conclusion of peace will prove the salvation of the country by averting internal shipwreck." These words from such an influential reactionary as Prince Mestchersky have caused a sensation.

Thinks War at an End

Warsaw, March 17.—One of the highest officials in Poland, in the course of a conversation last night, said: "It is all very well to talk of continuing the war; but, with no leaders, no generals, no soldiers, no guns and the theatre of war so far away, we are unable to transport troops quickly and the war now appears to be ended. All is quiet in Poland now, but let orders for mobilization be given and we will have a revolution."

Threats Cause Uneasiness

St. Petersburg, March 17.—Considerable alarm has been caused here and at Moscow by the receipt of anonymous letters announcing the intention to blow up public buildings. The threat as to Moscow applied particularly to the depots of army stores destined for Manchuria.

Bomb Hurt Nobody

London, March 17.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg reports that late last night a bomb exploded on the tramway line close to the residence of M. Pobedonostseff, procurator general of the holy synod. Nobody was injured.

Cape Cod Canal Assured

New York, March 17.—Officers of the Boston, Cape Cod and New York Canal company have completed the financing of their enterprise to provide for the purchase of the right of way for the canal. The company is empowered to build a canal for the 7½ miles from the shore line of Buzzards bay to the shore line of Massachusetts bay, together with 4½ miles of approaches. Three years' time and $12,000,000 will be required to complete the work.

The Blustering Castro

Caracas, March 17.—President Castro's attitude is reflected in a pamphlet just issued through one of his advisers, in which plans for sending 30,000 Venezuelans against New Orleans are disclosed. The pamphlet urges the public to avenge the insults offered to Venezuela by the Americans and declares that the invasion of the Mississippi valley would be the most effective means of curbing the power of the United States.

Woman Murdered In Hotel

Newark, N. J., March 17.—A young woman was apparently murdered in a hotel here which had its license revoked a week ago, but which was still doing business because the limit of license had not expired. The woman is supposed to have been choked to death by a man companion, who left the hotel after locking the door behind him. No one saw him leave.

Turbine Steamers Are Efficient

Glasgow, March 17.—The Allan line's turbine steamer Victorian was given a trial on the Clyde and made a speed of 19½ knots an hour. She will sail on March 23 from Liverpool for Montreal. Chairman Dunlop of the Allan company says all doubts as to the efficiency of turbine steamers have now been removed.

Stock Exchange Seats Come High

New York, March 17.—Two seats on the New York Stock Exchange, at $83,000, the high record figure, have been transferred, one to Francis C. Carley and another to John D. Chapman. One of yesterday's purchasers of an $83,000 membership was E. D. Godfrey of Philadelphia.

Charges In Connection With Santo Domingo Treaty

CROMWELL INTERESTED

Senator Morgan Says Man Who Was Prominently Connected With Panama Canal Sale Heads a Syndicate Holding Large Claims

Washington, March 17.—Senator Morgan occupied practically the entire time in the discussion of the Santo Domingo treaty in executive session of the senate. He made a sensational speech, in which he charged that William N. Cromwell of New York, who was prominently connected with the sale of the Panama canal property to the United States, was the prime mover in a scheme to influence the United States in the financial affairs of the Dominican government.

Mr. Morgan asserted that Cromwell was actuated by a desire to frustrate a plan of a Mr. and Mrs. Reader, natives of Alabama, who are operating under the name of the Reader syndicate, to get certain concessions from the Dominican government, and to promote the interests of a syndicate he represented which, it is alleged, holds a mass of claims against Latin-American republics, including a large part of the debts against the Dominican government.

The alleged disclosures were debated all day and the senate is divided as to whether Morgan made a case. The Democrats insist that he did, while the leaders among the Republicans declare that the charges were made up of a mass of matter which contained no conclusive evidence that Cromwell had used any undue influence. The speeches were made behind closed doors. Senator Morgan held his audience to the conclusion of his remarks.

The tentative program of the senate continues to be adjournment without date on Saturday without permitting the Dominican treaty to come to a vote. It is probable that it will be recommitted.

Among the senate leaders a new plan was advanced in regard to San Domingo, but it deals with the next session of congress. It has been suggested that if the whole matter is allowed to go over a joint resolution might be passed by congress to authorize the president to do the things that are proposed by the treaty. If this course were pursued a majority vote is all that would be required to place the entire matter in the hands of the president.

It is understood that the plan found favor when it was suggested at the White House by senators who called there. Some doubt was expressed as to the constitutionality of dealing with this question except by treaty, but the case of the annexation of Hawaii, which was done by joint resolution, was used as a precedent and Republican leaders believe it to be feasible.

Adjournment of the session cannot be had until Saturday because of the situation in relation to nominations for judgeships in Illinois, which cannot be determined before that time. Treaty discussion will go on for the two days the session is expected to continue and something more may be expected of the charges made by Senator Morgan. It is probable that the question of the appointment of a commission to inquire into Santo Domingo's affairs, particularly as to the character of her indebtedness, will come up in a variety of forms, but the adoption of any such plan is not considered likely.

Sees Bright Irish Prospects

London, March 17.—John E. Redmond, speaking at an Irish banquet last night, said the political prospects of Ireland were never brighter and the Irish question now dominated parliament. He likened Lord Roseberry to the cuckoo, which was heard every spring, but which none needed. He said the Irish party never would support or keep in office any Liberal government which took Roseberry's view of home rule.

No Hazing at Annapolis

Washington, March 17.—Superintendent Brownson of the naval academy denies the accuracy of statements relative to hazing by midshipmen at Annapolis. He says that there has been no violation by the middies of their part of the compact which they made with him soon after he assumed charge at Annapolis to refrain from hazing.

Pennsylvania Railroad Pensions

Philadelphia, March 17.—Statistics prepared by the Pennsylvania Railroad company giving the operations of the pension plan for the first five years show that in that period the company has paid $1,614,087 in pensions to its retired employes. This sum does not include the expense of operating the department, which is borne by the company.

Trains Many Days Overdue

Los Angeles, Cal., March 17.—Heavy rains are falling throughout Southern California, causing still further damage to the already sorely tried railroad systems. Several additional washouts are reported. Trains on the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific are now three and four days overdue. No trains on either line are leaving the city.

BOER TOBACCO.

Natives Use It, but It Is Too Much For White Men.

After Transvaal tobacco, but a long way after, comes Boer. The name is in reality nowadays a misnomer, for this tobacco is grown largely in Natal and Cape Colony. It is also cultivated in the Orange River Colony, is sold by the roll and can be obtained for about $8 a pound if a whole roll is purchased. It is also sold by the sack.

White men buy these sacks, but they do not smoke the contents themselves; they use it to reward the Kaffir servants for working overtime or doing any other meritorious action. The taste for Transvaal tobacco is an acquired one. It also takes a certain time before a man gets used to the scent. No white man who has come from a distance has so far lived long enough to acquire a liking for either the taste or the smell, but it has its uses in the case of the natives, and it is also useful if you have an undesirable visitor whom you are anxious to get rid of. Offer him a pipe of Boer tobacco, and he will never enter your house again.

The traders purchase this weed largely. They also use it upon the natives in the shape of presents, as every Kaffir who makes a purchase in a country store always asks for a free gift, and the competition to secure the native trade is so acute that the request cannot be refused.—South Africa.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

Make Up Your Mind to Seek It Rather Than Wait For It.

It is a dangerous thing to wait for opportunities until it becomes a habit. Energy and inclination for hard work ooze out in the waiting. Opportunity becomes invisible to those who are doing nothing or looking somewhere else for it. It is the great worker, the man who is alert for chances, that sees them.

Some people become so opportunity blind that they cannot see chances anywhere—they would pass through a gold mine without noticing anything precious—while others will find opportunities in the most barren and out of the way places. Bunyan found opportunity in Bedford jail to write the greatest allegory in the world on the untwisted paper that had been used to cork his bottles of milk. A Theodore Parker or a Lucy Stone sees an opportunity to go to college in a chance to pick berries. One boy sees an opening to his ambition in a chance to chop wood, wait on table or run errands, where another sees no chance at all. One sees an opportunity to get an education in the odds and ends of time, evenings and half holidays, which another throws away.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

SUNDAY MEALS.

Do Not Overeat and You Will Feel Better on Monday.

If it is desired to begin the week refreshed and ready for labor, rested in mind and body, the eating customs of Sunday will have to be readjusted. Have a later breakfast, if desired, but have then a very light one even if you are hungry, or, if it must be hearty, then do not upset your digestive habits any more than may be avoided and have but two meals on that day and eat no other. It would be far better to have three light meals, lighter than usual, if that could be arranged to fit with the other household arrangements. The custom of noon dinner on that day arises from the usual absence of cook or maid at the later one, and this may be unavoidable. Very well, then; treat this as a rest day for cook and digestive apparatus as well as from other labors. Have a light breakfast, a light dinner and a chafing dish supper as near the ordinary hours of meals as possible and remember as you are going to take less exercise than usual you demand a lesser amount of more easily digested food.—Helen Johnson in Good Housekeeping.

"Off" For "From."

As a stranger in Philadelphia I was much amused by certain provincialisms. One of these was the use of the word "off" instead of "from." "Please buy flowers off me," say the youthful street venders. One day while waiting for some groceries a young lady, evidently unused to housekeeping, approached the raw Irish clerk and timidly asked: "I want some mutton to make broth. Shall I get it off the neck?" "No, ma'am," was the solemn reply as the clerk pointed to the butcher busy at his block, "ye git it off that mon."—Presbyterian.

Crushed.

"I think I never saw Rymer so utterly crushed as he was when his first poem appeared in print."

"What was the matter? Some typographical error in the poem?"

"No, that wasn't it. What crushed him was that the paper was sold for a penny a copy, just as usual."

Saves Him Money.

"Why do you always agree with your wife in everything?" she said.

"I find it cheaper to do that than to quarrel with her and then buy diamonds to square myself."

Couldn't Spend It.

"Say, Bill, once I had more money dan I knew what to do with."

"Yer don't mean it?"

"Sure. I found a quarter in a temp'rance town."

An Inference.

Clerk—The old man thinks you are pretty. The Typewriter—Really? Has he said so? Clerk—No, but he doesn't criticise your spelling.—New York Press.

AFTER MOTHS.

Quincy Board of Health Take Action.

Will Issue Notices This Week.

Hearings at State House on Moth Legislation.

That the dreaded gypsy and brown tail moths all have made their appearance in Quincy there can be no doubt. The destructive work of this insect is widely know and it behooves citizen to unite and begin a vigorous warfare on the nests before they hatch out.

The Board of Health is thoroughly alive to the situation. They have received numerous complaints of the existence of the pest. That the general public may be warned, and stimulated to begin active work in exterminating the moth, they have issued a notice which will be found in today's paper, and which will be posted in every ward of the city.

The notice warns the citizens of the growing plague and advising the immediate pruning and destruction by fire of the nests found in the trees.

AT STATE HOUSE.

Two Hearings Relative to Moth Legislation.

Many cities and towns are interested in the extermination of the moths as was shown at the State House hearings on Thursday, reported by the Record as follows:

Ex-Senator Jones told the committee on ways and means, at the morning hearing, how Gov. Douglas wants the gypsy moth bill changed.

The governor objects to a commission of three, as called for in the bill, and suggested the matter being placed in the hands of one man, and so the bill has been revised, calling for the appointment of a state superintendent.

The Governor and council shall appoint this man and determine his salary and may remove him at any time. The superintendent shall have the same powers called for in the bill by the commissioners.

The governor also wants the responsibility fixed more strongly on the cities and towns. The superintendent is to order the cities and towns to do the work, shall choose his agents to see that the work is properly done, but is relieved of responsibility of actual contact with the work.

A fine of $100 a day shall be imposed upon a city or town that refuses to carry out the wishes of the superintendent.

Ex-Sen. Jones said that the society for the supression of the moths represents 45 or 46 cities and towns infected with the pest, and those towns pay 50 percent of the state tax. That would leave $300,000 to be expended by state, or less than $100,000 a year, which he considered cheap insurance for the state against the fearful spread of the pest which threatened the entire state.

At the end of the four years conditions would be the same practically as they were four years ago, and then the towns could take care of the moths themselves, and no further appropriation would be needed from the state.

Some towns would be unable to proceed in the work of extermination of the moths on the 50 per cent. payment plan with the state, he said, citing Lynnfield as an example. That town, and some others would be unable to pay even half the expense, and in those instances, he said, the Governor had said that special provision should be made for reimbursing such towns.

It was fundamental in the presentation of the bill, he said, that at the end of the four years the cities and towns would bind themselves to taxation necessary to take care of the moths by special legislation.

Mayor Dwyer of Medford said that his town was ready to proceed in the work under the conditions of equal cooperation with the state.

At the afternoon session the committee gave a hearing on the bill of Mayor Weed (Newton). The chief difference between this and the Jones (modified) bill is that it cuts the appropriation to $300,000.

Mayor Weed and City Solicitor Slocum of Newton explained the points of the proposed new bill. They contended that the state should not appropriate the larger sum, inasmuch as taxation was becoming a burden upon the cities and towns. The state, they said, should require the municipalities and land owners to do their full share of the work of extermination and suppression. Such action would probably keep the pest within reasonable bounds.

Mr. Slocum claimed that the provision in the reported bill, allowing for damages by any owners whose premises are entered upon for the purpose of abolishing the moths, would entail endless expense.

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

Church Social.

A supper and entertainment was held at the Washington street Congregational church on Thursday evening. The supper consisted of cold meats, baked beans, macaroni, pies of all kinds, rolls and coffee. An entertainment followed which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. There were drills by the Boys' Brigade from Atlantic, under the direction of Mr. Tilton. Two children in costume, sang the song, "You can't pick plums from my plum-tree." The parts were well taken and most generously applauded.

Entertained at Dinner.

Mrs. Ella Hayden entertained W. R. C. sewing circle at her home Thursday. The rooms were prettily decorated with flags and crepe paper. As it was Mrs. Hayden's birthday the ladies were invited to come early and take dinner her. After dinner there was singing with and piano solos by Miss Elvira Ewell, and speaking and singing by Master Forrest Hayden. All had a very pleasant time and wished Mrs. Hayden "many happy returns of the day."

The sewing circle is working hard for a three days' sale to take place the first week in May. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ann Wright Friday afternoon, March 24.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by C. W. Dillingham Company

The first chapter of this story was published in the Daily Ledger of Saturday, Feb. 11, and has been continued daily since. Copies of back numbers may be obtained.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey. XI—George visits Bawdsey, who is employed by Lord Derrington to watch the young man. Bawdsey warns him that he is suspected of Mrs. Jersey's murder. XII—Lord Derrington is visited by Brendon, who tells his grandfather that he saw him in Mrs. Jersey's house on the night of the murder. Brendon demands that his grandfather silence Mrs. Ward.

CHAPTER XIV.

KOWLASKI was a large, fat, good natured blackguard of a man, quite without principle. He came from some remote village in the Balkans. In his early days he arrived in London penniless and strove to make a living by selling toys in the street. Then he turned scene shifter at a music hall and while thus engaged educated himself to write and read and to speak English with wonderful fluency. Also he saved money and speculated in a small way, having a marvelous instinct of picking out lucrative ventures. Shortly he became stage manager; one thing led to another until he became proprietor of the very music hall which had witnessed his humble beginning.

When he first set eyes on Lola he had guessed that it would pay to invest money in her. The success of the ballet proved that Kowlaski was right, as usual, and he smiled his oily smile when he saw the crowded houses and looked over the receipts. The ballet would run for more than a year. He was sure of that, and set about some other business now that the music hall was flourishing. It was at this point that Lola demanded a week's holiday. Kowlaski whimpered. He usually did so to make people think he was weak, but under his apparent weakness he was possessed of an iron strength.

Having great experience with women, he thought to control Lola, but she, being gifted with a superlative temper, laughed in his face. All his cleverness could not make her swerve from the point. "I want a week to myself," she said doggedly. They were talking in French, as Kowlaski could swear more easily in that tongue and wanted freedom of speech.

"But, my dear child"—Kowlaski was always paternal—"it will not do. You are the draw, and if you go out of the bill the people will not come to my house."

"I don't care. I want a week, and a week I will have."

"Why do you wish for this week?"

"That's my business."

Kowlaski tried reproaches. "If you were a grateful woman"—

"Ah, bah! What of gratitude? You wanted me or would you have seen me die in the gutter."

Kowlaski began to whimper. "You will ruin me, my dear. It cannot be done."

"It must be. I want it to be done."

In the face of this obstinacy Kowlaski gave in. But first of all he tried threats, and Lola threatened to throw a chair at him. He finally agreed that she should have her week, and Lola walked out of the office without thanking him. That was the last he saw of her for seven days.

He made the most of her absence, declaring that she had been called away to nurse a dying mother and would reappear with a broken heart to keep her engagements with the public. Bawdsey saw this notice.

It was the first he had heard of Lola's escapade, and he went at once to her rooms in Bloomsbury to ask where she was going. Lola had already gone and, according to the landlady, had left no information as to her whereabouts.

Bawdsey was disappointed. He saw that Lola had taken every precaution to hide her trail and that there was not much chance of finding her. However, he went to see Kowlaski. The manager began to talk of the dying mother, and Bawdsey shut him up.

"Rubbish! That's for the public. I want to know where she is."

"My dear, I do not know," said Kowlaski, and for the first time in his wicked old life he told the truth.

Not to be beaten, Bawdsey sought out George Brendon. But George was as ignorant as the manager and the landlady. "I haven't the slightest idea," he said when Bawdsey asked, "and, to tell you the truth, I don't see why you should try to find out. I don't see what right you have to control her movements."

"Did she write and tell you where she was going?"

"No, and if she had done so I should not teh you," replied George, annoyed by the man's persistence.

"You may as well be civil to me, Mr. Brendon. You know that I am your friend."

"Oh, I've heard all that before. But people who talk much of friendship and gratitude are generally humbugs."

Lola threatened to throw a chair at him.

"I am not," said Bawdsey quietly. "See here, Mr. Brendon, Lola is in love with you"—

"That's my business. Leave it alone."

Bawdsey took up his hat. "Oh, very well. If you will not be civil I cannot help you to learn who killed your father."

"What!" George sprang from the table at which he was writing and seized the man's arm. "Do you know that?"

"Gently, Mr. Brendon. No, I do not know, but"—

"Then what do you mean by saying"—

"We had better have a chat," said Bawdsey and sat down. "But I wish to know where I stand. Lola loves you. Do you love her?"

"No," said Brendon, seeing that he would have to humor the man. "I am engaged to marry Miss Ward."

"Will you help me to marry Lola?"

"Willingly, though, to tell you the truth, I know very little about you, and to make that girl marry you"—

"Oh, Lola can look after herself, Mr. Brendon. If she becomes my wife she will have the upper hand. But I am so deeply in love with her that I am willing to play second fiddle. Can't you dispossess her of this infatuation for you?"

"See here, Bawdsey, if you can persuade this woman to get over her liking for me and to marry you I shall be delighted. I do not know where she is just now, but it is my impression that she has gone away because she is afraid of me."

"Afraid of you? Oh, that's absurd!"

"No, it isn't. The other morning she saw Miss Ward, and there was a scene in the park."

Bawdsey hung his red head. "I fear that is my fault," he confessed. "I pointed out Miss Ward to Lola and"—

"And it was I who foolishly mentioned that Miss Ward sometimes took a walk in the morning in the park."

"Oh," said Bawdsey, "I mentioned that also."

"Did you wish Lola to see Miss Ward?" asked George angrily.

"No. Nor did I intend to say anything about the walking in the early morning. I simply pointed her out in the box to Lola so that Lola might see there was no chance of your marrying her."

Our bargains are made by marking down our own stock to a low price, not by purchasing inferior goods to make an attractive price.

It is a mistake to infer that we carry only high-priced fabrics. We have medium grades as well, and our prices are low because our expenses are proportioned over a volume of business exceeded by few in our specialty in the United States, and equaled by none in New England.

Last Saturday evening in Cochato hall a subscription dance was held under the auspices of a few gentlemen residing on Mount Pleasant. Genuine dance music was rendered by Rowell's orchestra of Boston and the merry dancers enjoyed an uncrowded floor. The party was similiar to a home gathering where all knew each other and were out for an evening of enjoyment. So satisfactory to all was this dance that plans are being made for another, probably Saturday evening, April first.

BACK TO WORK.

Granite Sheds Will Be Lively on Monday.

Full Text of Cutters' Agreement.

Manufacturers Endorse the Work of Their Committee

The new bills and articles of agreement between the Granite Manufacturers' Association and Granite Cutters' and Blacksmiths' Unions were signed yesterday, and work in the sheds will be resumed Monday morning.

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Association was held last evening, at which the work of its committee was approved.

The principal articles in the agreement are those relative to the minimum day wage, the apprentice clause, overtime clause and increases in the piece bill. These articles as agreed upon in the Cutters' bill are as follows:

"The minimum rate of wages to be 37 1-2 cents per hour. Any man incapicated, by old age, or physical disability, from earning that rate, and whom the employers do not want to hire by the piece, to have a rate established, by committees representing both associations, on his earning power by the piece bill, but in no instance to have his rate established on a stone figuring less than $12 by the piece."

"The piece bill to be a uniform increase of 7 per cent. on the 1900 piece bill. Some items may be increased more, others less, but the general rise to equal 7 per cent. all the way through."

"There shall be not more than three apprentices to a journeymen gang, or less. If not more than two journeymen are employed there shall be but two apprentices. If more than a gang is employed there may be an additional apprentice to each additional four journeymen employed."

"For all overtime work done at request of employers, add 25 per cent. but in case of the cutter spoiling a stone, a special agreement may be made for overtime, but in no case to be less than the usual rate of wages."

Quincy Daily Ledger.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1905.

Points of Interest.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 36, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Closed for repairs, but soon to be opened to the public by the Society of Colonial Dames, the new owners.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company where warships are being built for the government.

The Yellow Holly

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Chapter 1. George Brendon, a young Londoner, visits his friend, Leonard Train, who has lodgings in the boarding house kept by Mrs. Jersey. Among the boarders is an elderly maiden lady, Miss Bull. Mrs. Jersey is startled by a piece of yellow holly worn by George. II.—George, whose real name is Vane, tells Train the story of his life. He is an orphan and the grandson of Lord Derrington, but the latter refuses to recognize the marriage of George's father (Lord Derrington's son), who had eloped. Brenden desires to establish his position as Lord Derrington's heir in order to marry Dorothy Ward. The place of marriage of George's parents is known only to Mrs. Jersey, formerly maid to George's mother. His mother died at his birth, and his father had been murdered in San Remo, Italy, years before. III.—In the night Mrs. Jersey is killed with a stiletto by an unknown person. IV.—Miss Bull takes charge of the house in behalf of Margery, niece of the murdered woman. The house has been leased from Lord Derrington. V.—Mrs. Ward, a heartless society woman, mother of Dorothy, is opposed to Dorothy's marriage to Brendon. The yellow holly had been given to Dorothy by her mother and by the girl to George. VI.—Mr. Ireland, George's former guardian, tells him of his mother's marriage and death and his father's murder. The latter was killed after leaving a masked ball in company with a woman—a blue domino—who wore a sprig of yellow holly. VII.—George, seeking a confession known to have been left by Mrs. Jersey, visits Miss Bull and learns that the dead woman received an annuity from Lord Derrington. George saves a Mr. Bawdsey from death and learns that the latter lives in the Jersey house. VIII—Lola Velez, a dancer, is in love with George and is loved by Bawdsey. Lola's parents lived in San Remo at the time of the murder of Brendon's father. IX and X—Mrs. Ward invites Train to dinner. He meets Lord Derrington. George visits Dorothy and makes a favorable impression on his grandfather. Mrs. Ward learns from Train that the later found a yellow holly berry near the body of Mrs. Jersey. XI—George visits Bawdsey, who is employed by Lord Derrington to watch the young man. Bawdsey warns him that he is suspected of Mrs. Jersey's murder. XII—Lord Derrington is visited by Brendon, who tells his grandfather that he saw him in Mrs. Jersey's house on the night of the murder. Brendon demands that his grandfather silence Mrs. Ward.

CHAPTER XIV—(Continued.)

"As if any woman would accept such an excuse," said Brendon contemptuously. "Then she questioned you about the walk?"

"Yes. She mentioned something about what you had told her, and I was rather free with my tongue. I am not usually," said Bawdsey penitently, "but there's something about Lola that makes me behave like a child. I'm wax in her hands. So she saw Miss Ward?"

"Yes. And she knows that I am angry. Of course Miss Ward sent to tell me at once, and I called on Lola to give her a talking to, but she was gone when I arrived. I am quite content not to see Lola again so long as she leaves Miss Ward alone."

"I will try to keep her away," said the detective, "but I have very little influence with her."

"Tell her I am angry and will be still more angry if she does not keep away from Curzon street. Well, we have discussed this matter. I now want to hear what you meant by your reference to my father. Do you know who killed him?"

Bawdsey shook his head. "I can't say for certain, but I can tell you who might know."

"Who is that?"

"Mr. Roger Ireland."

George looked astonished. "But that is ridiculous," he said. "Mr. Ireland told me that he did not know."

"Oh, I don't say that he knows for certain. But he is better acquainted with the matter than you think."

"How did you come to know Mr. Ireland?"

"He called to see Miss Bull, and I dropped across him."

"How did you get talking of the case?"

"Well, you see," said Bawdsey easily, "we naturally talked of Mrs. Jersey, and one thing led to another until I discovered that Ireland had been in San Remo when your father was murdered. I wished to find out who killed him, so I questioned Mr. Ireland."

"Why do you wish to know who killed my father?" asked George.

"Because I think that the murder of Mrs. Jersey is connected with that crime. See here"—Bawdsey cleared his throat—"Mrs. Jersey was in San Remo at the time of the death"—

"How do you know that?"

"Don't I tell you I questioned Mr. Ireland?"

George looked sharply at the detective. "What magic did you use to make him talk? Mr. Ireland knows how to hold his tongue."

"Well, when he found that I was looking after the case of Mrs. Jersey—and I made no secret of that—he was good enough to tell me all he knew. He thought, as I did, that the murder in San Remo was connected with the crime of Amelia square. There is nothing more to say. Mr. Ireland declined to tell me who he thought was guilty, but he hinted that he had seen the lady in the blue domino unmasked."

"Did he recognize her?"

"I think he did, but he assured me that he could not be sure and that he had not seen the lady again."

"Then he did know the face?"

Bawdsey's face assumed an impenetrable expression. "I can only refer you to Mr. Ireland," he said. "And as to Lola"—

"Oh, she'll turn up again," said Brendon irritably. "Don't worry me about Lola. I wish you would marry her and take her back to your native land."

"What land am I native of, Mr. Brendon?" asked Bawdsey calmly.

"America, I understand. You hinted as much when we met."

Bawdsey shook his head. "I am as English as you are," he declared.

"Well," said Brendon, with a shrug, "I thought as much. Your accent fails at times. You are not a good actor, Bawdsey."

"Never you mind, sir. I can hold my tongue when it suits me, and on this occasion it does suit me. But remember, Mr. Brendon, that whatever happens you have a friend in me."

"Are you referring to my father's murder?"

"And to Mrs. Jersey's. I have my suspicions, and—well, there's nothing more to be said. When I am certain I shall let you know."

"One moment, Bawdsey," said Brendon as the man had his hand on the door. "Do you suspect Miss Bull?"

"Why should I suspect her?" asked the detective in surprise.

"Because she was not on good terms with Mrs. Jersey, and you have taken up your abode in the house"—

"To watch her, you would say. Well, maybe," rejoined the man composedly. "I know what I know, and when I am more certain of what I know, sir"—He nodded. "Good day," he said and went abruptly.

It struck George that Bawdsey was a most mysterious person and knew far more about the San Remo murder than Derrington could have told him. Still it was possible that Derrington had unbosomed himself to Bawdsey, and it was necessary to do so if he wanted the murder of Mrs. Jersey cleared up. And Derrington, from his refusal to admit that he was at the house on the night and about the time the crime was committed, seemed to know something that might lead to the detection of the assassin.

"Humph," said George to himself when alone, "I shall go round and see that old man. It seems to me that Bawdsey is trying to serve two masters. It is impossible that my grandfather can know the truth. Yet, going by his height and figure and that sable claret colored coat, he was certainly in the house on the night in question."

On arriving at St. Giles square he saw a carriage at the door of the Derrington mansion. On asking for Lord Derrington, George was informed that his lordship was engaged with Mrs. Ward and could see no one. Brendon turned away, wondering that he had not recognized the carriage, and he was still more vexed with himself when Dorothy put her head out of the brougham and called to him.

"My dearest," he said softly, so that the coachman and footman might not hear, "this is an unexpected pleasure. Why are you not inside?"

"My mother wished to see Lord Derrington alone," replied Dorothy. "I am waiting till she comes out. She has been with him for half an hour. I don't know what they are talking about."

It was at this moment that a message was brought out of the house from Mrs. Ward saying that her daughter could drive home, as she would not be disengaged for another hour. Dorothy looked puzzled. "I can't understand," she said. "There is something wrong with my mother. Lord Derrington came to see her one day, and she has been upset ever since."

George shook his head. He suspected Mrs. Ward of knowing more than she chose to confess, and based his suspicions on the fact of the yellow holly which she had given Dorothy to present to him. Meanwhile he kept these suspicions to himself and made some excuse. "Oh, Mrs. Ward and my grandfather are probably talking over my iniquities," he said easily. "But I don't see why I should not take advantage of this chance."

"What do you mean, George?" asked Dorothy, with a becoming blush.

"Well, here is the brougham, and here you are. Why shouldn't we drive around the park before you go home?"

"My mother will be angry," said Dorothy, hesitating. Then she blushed again. "But I shall brave her anger. We have much to talk about, as I wish to speak of Lola Velez."

"Dorothy, surely you do not think"—

"No, no! But I want to ask you a few questions. I believe she is mad, George. Get in and we will drive round the park."

Meantime Mrs. Ward was seated in a chair facing Lord Derrington. The old gentleman looked savage, but Mrs. Ward was quite at her ease. They had been having a war of words, and Mrs. Ward so far had come off best. The conversation had been in reference to the sentence whispered in the little woman's ear when he had made her promise to hold her tongue about George.

"Of course I do think it is the meanest thing a man can do," said Mrs. Ward bitterly. "What if I did cheat at cards? Every woman does that, and I was losing no end of money."

"I don't think your friends would take that view," said Derrington grimly. "I came to hear of the matter quite by chance, and it is plain that you won over a hundred pounds by cheating."

"It's that horrid Mrs. Wayflete who told you"—

"No. If Mrs. Wayflete knows she has held her tongue. I learned it from a source of which you are ignorant. But the fact remains you cheated, and if your friends knew it you would be ostracized by all of them."

"As if they did not do these things themselves," retorted Mrs. Ward. "But since you have been so nasty I intend to be nasty too."

"I shouldn't advise you to be nasty to me, Mrs. Ward. I have a large reserve fund of strength."

Mrs. Ward laughed. "You needn't repeat my adjectives," she said in her most frivolous manner. "If you want to know the way in which I intend to protect myself"—

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean this," cried the little woman, growing angry all at once. "I am not going to be threatened about that unfortunate episode connected with the cards. It was that horrid Mrs. Wayflete who told you, so don't deny it. I am not going to be threatened without holding my own. Besides, I want Dorothy to marry your grandson."

"Which one?" asked Derrington coolly.

"You have only Walter Vane."

"Excuse me. George Brendon, whether there is a marriage or not, is equally my grandson. I admire him very much, and it is my mind to acknowledge him as my heir."

"I thought as much after your sticking up for him the other day," said Mrs. Ward furiously. "Now, look here, Lord Derrington, if Dorothy marries that Brendon creature I won't be able to do a thing with her. You know quite well I won't. But Walter shall be Dorothy's husband. I have made up my mind."

"Because he's a fool and putty in your hands."

"I shouldn't be vulgar if I were you," said Mrs. Ward in a dignified manner. "But so long as George Brendon leaves Dorothy alone I shall say nothing."

"That's really very good of you, Mrs. Ward."

"Your being nasty won't make me change my mind. But you quite understand the situation, Lord Derrington. Walter is to marry my daughter, and George is to be kept away."

"I don't see how he is to be kept away. I assure you Brendon is a strong man, and his will is quite equal to mine."

"Nonsense! You have the strongest will in London."

"And you come here to try to break it."

"Life is a game," said Mrs. Ward, leaning back, with a pretty air of philosophy. "And at present I hold the trump card."

"What is it?" asked Derrington, wondering by what means she hoped to make him consent to her demands.

"I'll tell you presently," said Mrs. Ward in a most masterful tone, which

"That is the weapon with which Mrs. Jersey was stabbed."

amused Derrington. "But you understand that if George Brendon doesn't keep away I shall give information to the police and have him arrested in connection with that murder."

"Oh, no; you won't," said Derrington good humoredly.

"Oh, yes; I shall. As to your accusation about my having cheated, you shall say nothing about that."

"Indeed I shall do so if you trouble Brendon."

"Think of Dorothy."

"I do think of Dorothy, and I'm very sorry she has such a mother."

"You dare to insult me," began Mrs. Ward when Derrington, who was losing patience, cut her short.

"I've had enough of this," he said sharply. "You shall hold your tongue about Brendon or I'll tell what I know."

"Then I'll do the same."

Derrington bowed politely. "By all means," he said. "My reputation is already so bad that a word or two from you can scarcely make it worse."

"Oh, it's more than that," said Mrs. Ward quietly. And she spoke in a positive a manner that Derrington began to recollect his worst sins. "Do you remember the night you came home here at 1 o'clock and found me in this very room?"

"Yes. You came with the amiable intention of telling me that George Brendon was going to pass the night at Mrs. Jersey's and that you suspected that he was up to mischief."

"I took the trouble to come from a party for that very purpose," was Mrs. Ward's plaintive reply. "And how was I received?"

"Mrs. Ward, I am getting tired of this circumlocution. What is it you have to say?"

"Well, on that night you were in a fur coat."

"My usual coat in winter."

"It was the night when Mrs. Jersey was killed."

"Was it indeed? I never noticed the coincidence."

"No. But you knew about it," said Mrs. Ward. You threw your coat on yonder sofa. I seated myself near it by chance. There was something hard in the pocket of the coat. When you were out of the room I took the something out. There it is." And she laid an Italian stiletto on the table.

"What is that?" asked Derrington calmly, but with an anxious face.

"That," said Mrs. Ward, touching it daintily with her finger, "is the weapon with which Mrs. Jersey was stabbed."

WAS HANDICAPPED

Kuropatkin's Dismissal Criticised In Great Britain

THE CZAR A PRISONER

Does Not Dare Venture Beyond Palace Walls--Russians Show Disposition to Resist Mobilization, Even Chopping Off Fingers to Evade Service

London, March 18.—No further news regarding the situation in Manchuria or of the whereabouts of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron has reached London.

The greatest sympathy is expressed by the British press and public for General Kuropatkin, and there is strong criticism for the curt manner of his dismissal, without a word of thanks for past services. Kuropatkin is considered to have been to a large extent a victim throughout the campaign of the interference of former Viceroy Alexieff and the grand ducal party and to never have had a free hand or proper support in men and measures. Little or nothing is hoped for from the appointment of General Linevitch, whose task is admitted to be almost superhuman.

All the St Petersburg correspondents of the London newspapers are most pessimistic. The Daily Mail's correspondent thinks the central fact of the situation is that since the blessing of the Neva (Jan. 19) the czar has been a prisoner at Tsarskoe Selo and never once has ventured to the capital. "In the moment of the greatest national emergency, needing the greatest sympathy between the government and the people, the ruler remains secluded behind triple bars and bayonets, as remote and absolutely aloof from the people as if he were in another planet."

The Morning Post's and other correspondents make gloomy predictions that the internal troubles will prevent the continuance of the war. The Daily Telegraph's correspondent says:

"If the command to mobilize is obeyed the war will be prosecuted indefinitely despite the failure to float foreign loans, but all symptoms point unmistakeably to the spirit of resistance growing among the people. Men are unfitting themselves for military service by chopping off fingers in such wholesale manner that Grand Duke Vladimir has turned his attention to the matter. In a word, I am personally convinced that an insurmountable obstacle to the continuation of the war will be found in the dogged determination of the Russian people to prefer the risks of open disobedience at home to certain death in Manchuria or Siberia. This consummation will mark the simultaneous victory of the Japanese abroad and liberalism in Russia."

It is reported that steamers are being chartered in London for Russian account for Nikolaievsk, on the Amur river, which port will be used to run supplies into Manchuria now that Vladivostok is closed by the Japanese navy.

Japan is said to be placing enormous orders in Australia for horses which are being shipped as rapidly as steamers are available.

The Morning Post's correspondent at Shanghai reports that a Chinese decree appointed Chacerchin viceroy of Manchuria. After he has conferred with the Japanese minister he will proceed to Mukden forthwith.

Anxiety at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, March 18.—Decided anxiety is felt here regarding the fate of the army in Manchuria under its new commander, no news of military developments the last two days having been received here.

To Investigate Surrender

St. Petersburg, March 18.—A commission has been appointed to investigate the surrender of Port Arthur, and act as a court to determine the responsibility of General Stoessel.

Kuropatkin Homeward Bound

St. Petersburg, March 18.—A dispatch from Changtufu reports that General Kuropatkin left there last evening for St. Petersburg.

Admitted Neglect of Duty

St. Petersburg, March 18.—The court martial of the officers and several men of the battery firing the salute at the blessing of the waters of the Neva on Jan. 19, which scattered bullets all around the imperial party participating in that ceremony, has been concluded. All pleaded guilty to charges of neglect of duty. No testimony tending to show the existence of a plot against the czar was brought out.

Japan's Big Orders For Flour

Minneapolis, March 18.—Heavy flour orders from Japan continue to pour in on Minneapolis milling companies. One of the big companies on Thursday received an order for 20,000 sacks, and a second order came yesterday for the same number. Japan's business this week with one firm has amounted to over 60,000 sacks of flour, and other companies report a proportionate amount of business.

Indictments Against Standard Oil

Morganfield, Ky., March 18.—The Union county grand jury has returned 151 indictments against the Standard Oil company for selling oil in retail lots without a license. The penalty is a fine of from $50 to $1000 for each conviction.

FORMER HUSBAND HELD

Mystery In the Death of a Divorced Woman at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., March 18.—Medical Examiner Pinkham last evening reported to Chief of Police Burckes the result of his autopsy on the body of Mrs. Susie A. Fuller, who was found dead in her room in a lodging house yesterday. Dr. Pinkham finds that death was due to violence—a blow delivered by some blunt instrument on the left side of the forehead, and that the two blood clots on the right side of the head are directly traceable to the effects of the blow.

The police took S. K. Whittier, the divorced husband of the deceased, into custody and are holding him on suspicion. Mrs. Fuller conducted the lodging house in which Whittier occupied a room. According to his story to the police, Mrs. Fuller had been ill with a cold for the past two weeks, during which time she has been frequently unable to support herself in walking. He claims that on March 8 Mrs. Fuller fell against a china closet in the kitchen and the same day against a window, breaking it and bruising her head, and that for the last 14 days she had fallen several times from the bed.

Mrs. Fuller was about 45 years of age. She was married to Whittier in Haverhill, and was later divorced from him. On June 25, 1895, she was married to Jerome S. Fuller. Fuller died in 1898, after which Mrs. Fuller came to Lynn and has since been conducting a lodging house, in which she was found dead.

Whittier, who is about 50 years old, is a shoemaker and has lived in this city and Haverhill. He was residing here when Mrs. Fuller came to this city.

Leyland Liner Overdue

Boston, March 18.—No tidings have been received from the belated Leyland line steamship Bohemian, which sailed from Liverpool March 4, and which was due here Tuesday. It is believed the vessel may have been disabled at sea or that she is rendering assistance to some steamer which has met with an accident.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '99, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Census-Ergebnisse.

Durchschnittliche Lebensdauer der Bevölkerung Amerikas—Die Frauen.

Das Census-Bureau der Ver. Staaten hat nahezu fünf Jahre dazu gebraucht, einige der wichtigsten soziologischen Resultate der Volkszählung im Juni 1900 statistisch zu veranschaulichen. An Statistiken aller Art war seit der jüngsten Zählung sicherlich kein Mangel, aber es fehlte an zuverlässigen Angaben bezüglich des Durchschnittsalters der Bevölkerung dieses Landes sowie des numerischen Verhältnisses der Geschlechter. Was nun den ersten Punkt anlangt, mögen die freundlichen Leserinnen huldvollst gestatten, auf die Erklärung des Census-Direktors hinzuweisen, daß die Damen sammt und sonders in Betreff der Angabe ihres Alters nicht übermäßig vertrauenswürdig sind, welches Faktum, obwohl allgemein bekannt, besonders hervorgehoben zu werden verdient, weil es, aller Wahrscheinlichkeit nach, hier zum ersten Male offizielle Bestätigung findet. Die Perspektive, welche die Statistik hinsichtlich der Lebensdauer den Erdenpilgern der Union eröffnet, ist nicht geeignet, einen freudigen Widerhall in den Herzen zu erwecken, sintemalen sich das Durchschnittsalter der Menschen auf etwas weniger als 23 Jahre stellt, doch soll hier gleich hinzugefügt werden, daß diese betrübende Thatsache aus dem Zusammenhange mit andern einschlägigen statistischen Aufstellungen sich ergibt, wonach der Durchschnittsmensch nur ein Alter von 35 Jahren erreicht, also etwa die Hälfte der Lebenszeit, welche der königliche Sänger David, als die längste Dauer der Erdenpilgerung aller Sterblichen bezeichnet.

Wie das „Ewig-Weibliche" immerdar das Bestreben kundgibt, sich jünger zu machen, als es in Wirklichkeit ist, so offenbaren die Alten stets eine Neigung zu Uebertreibungen, wenn man sich nach ihrem Alter erkundigt. Im Jahre 1900 existirten 3504 Personen, die ihr Alter auf 100 Jahre oder darüber angaben. Nach dem Dafürhalten des Census-Direktors sind diese Altersangaben übertrieben, insoweit die Neger im Süden in Betracht kommen, wo die älteren Einwohner gemeiniglich an Gedächtnißschwäche leiden, dafür aber eine desto lebhaftere Phantasie besitzen, welcher bei ihren Berechnungen wohl die Hauptrolle zufällt. Etwa 30,000 Personen, zumeist Frauen, gaben ihr Alter auf 90 Jahre oder darüber an und nahezu 1,000,000 hatte das 75. Lebensjahr erreicht.

In Bezug auf das Geschlecht zeigt die Statistik, daß in den Ver. Staaten 2,000,000 weniger Frauen als Männer leben und damit ist auch die Thatsache erklärlich, daß die Frauen hierzulande eine so hervorragende Rolle spielen. In Ländern, wo die Frauen den Männern numerisch überlegen sind, spielen letztere die erste Geige, aber in den Ver. Staaten, wo so viele dazu verurtheilt sind, als Hagestolze durch's Leben zu wandern, ist die „holde Maid" eine vielumworbene Persönlichkeit und darin ist auch die Ursache der dominirenden Stellung, die die Frau im Leben der amerikanischen Nation einnimmt, zu suchen. Die Frauen sind nicht allein rar, sondern auch gut, und sie regieren das Land durch ihren Einfluß auf die Männer, die ihnen als zweckdienliche Mittel zur Erreichung der angestrebten Ziele in allen Lebensverhältnissen dienen.

Alte Jungfern-Liga.

Aus der Noth machte eine Anzahl unverheirathet gebliebener Damen in Bristol, England, eine Tugend und gründete eine „Liga der alten Jungfern." In der konstituirenden Versammlung, die dieser Tage stattfand, predigte die Sekretärin des Bundes die Anschauung, daß das Ledigbleiben der Weg zur Glückseligkeit wäre. Man nahm darauf folgende Statuten an: „1. Alle Mitglieder müssen in dem Alter von 17 bis 30 Jahren stehen, lange Kleider tragen und sich gut frisiren. Die Mitglieder werden ersucht, sich so anziehend wie möglich zu kleiden und in ihrem Benehmen im besten Sinne mädchenhaft zu sein. 2. Die Mitglieder sind verpflichtet, a) gänzlich abgehärtet gegen männliche Reize zu sein, b) eine gesunde Verachtung gegen das Verliebtsein zu hegen und die Heirath zu verabscheuen. 3. Die Mitglieder sind auch verpflichtet, die Liga und alle ihre Vortheile eindringlich den jungen Mädchen vorzustellen, die ihrer Meinung nach das Opfer der in Paragraph 2 erwähnten Irrthümer werden könnten. 4. Jedes Mitglied muß in der Lage sein, das Recht der Liga zu vertheidigen, es muß gesund, geistig interessirt und in der Lage sein, seinen Lebensunterhalt selbst zu verdienen, so daß kein Mitglied eine Ehe einzugehen nöthig hat." Die Sekretärin dieser merkwürdigen Liga mußte allerdings zu ihrem Bedauern zugeben, daß es nicht leicht ist, neue Mitglieder zu werben.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The city of Quincy has become greatly agitated over the presence of the brown tail and gypsy moths, which have been discovered all over the city. The devastation which these pests have caused in other cities is not fully known in Quincy, but it has been something terrible, and if our city escapes it will be lucky. Trees are not only devastated of all foliage but in time are killed. They attack pear and apple trees and also the noble elms and other trees. Trees add greatly to the beauty of Quincy and must be preserved if possible. Sufficient notice of the presence of the moths has been given; it is now imperative that all nests be destroyed as warm weather is near at hand,

Woburn's appropriations of $1,000 to fight browntail moths lasted just six days. During that time 843 trees were cleaned, yielding 367,548 nests, an average of 437 nests to a tree. A collection of 437 nests ought to make several thousand crawling poisonous caterpillars. Thus we can judge what trees which are not cleaned will look like.

The board of health of Watertown began yesterday the compulsory extermination of the browntail moth, under chapter 75, sections 65-69, which gives them the power to stamp out a "cause of sickness." Property owners have 48 hours in which to comply with the order of the board of health to destroy moth nests, and if they don't comply the board will do the work and charge the expense to owners of the property from which the moths are removed.

Fred B. Rice is having printed some valuable suggestions telling how to exterminate the brown tail moths. They will be at City hall on and after Wednesday for free distribution.

If people of Brockton and vicinity want to come to Quincy, particularly to our summer resort at Houghs Neck they should certainly be encouraged, and we hope the train service will be made convenient so that they will not have to stop over en route.

They know that Quincy is a no-licence city, and probably it is for this reason that many prefer to come here for a breath of salt air rather than to go to Hull or Nantasket.

Many Quincy people have been anxious to secure new trains to Boston that they may get out of the city at pleasure, but this Brockton service is something deserving of more encouragement because it will bring hundreds of people to our city.

The long experience of the late Christopher A. Spear in various town and city offices, and in business affairs, made him a very efficient clerk of the City Council, whose position it will be difficult to fill. He was well educated, an excellent penman, always faithful, conscientious and obliging. We do not recall a time when his work as clerk of Council or committees was ever criticised, and he made the work of councilmen and presiding officers much easier. In fact it devolved on him to see that all orders took their proper readings and everything went along as it should. His sudden death was a great shock to the community, and the people generally lament.

The petition before the City Council for a druggist's license is one of considerable importance. Perhaps if it was guaranteed that there would be no other petitioners, C. C. Hearn would be successful, as people generally have confidence that he intends to conduct his business so that there will be no nuisance or criticism. But no such guarantee can be given, and there are druggists to whom it would not be save to give licenses. A license gives a druggist permission to sell pretty generally. We keenly appreciate the present position of the druggists in a no-license city like Quincy, but the solution is not easy.

GLOVER CASE

Eben B, Glover is the Defendant.

Wife Was Washington Widow.

The Testimony Before Judge Bond Yesterday.

The story of a married life's tragedy which was told in the Divorce Court before Judge Bond yesterday afternoon caused a flood of conflicting emotions, from unconcealed mirth to deep sadness, says the Post. Mary E. Glover, a wealthy woman of 688 Columbia road, said that she had become infatuated with Ebenezer B. Glover, formerly of Quincy, while he was negotiating with her about the sale of a tombstone for her former husband, and afterwards promised to change her name to that of the salesman.

Since then she says her life has been anything but happy, as her spouse, Mrs. Glover declares, has been leading the life of a confirmed drunkard, has compelled her to sign checks at the point of a revolver, and had threatened to cut her throat and to send her to an insane asylum so that he could obtain complete possession of her wealth.

Counsel for Mrs. Glover tried to introduce testimony to prove that her husband had married her for her money, but the court ruled it out. He did, however, show that Mr. Glover had not worked since his marriage. Mr. Glover, according to counsel, induced his wife to take a trip to California, and the expenses of the trip, which footed up to $1300, were all paid by Mrs. Glover.

Money, money, money, Mrs. Glover said, was his continual demand.

Mrs. Glover met her present husband in Washington, D. C. and their friendship soon appeared to ripen into love, and they were married Aug. 7, 1902. After their marriage they went to live at the Cairo in Washington, but, according to Mrs. Glover, her husband soon took to drink and became a confirmed drunkard from that time on.

She estimated that he was absent fron home about one-third of the time, and that he drank about one quart bottle of whiskey every day at his home together with all that he cared to take outside.

Witness said on Sept. 15, 1903, her husband asked her for $200 while they were at their summer cottage at Rock Island, and that she refused to give it to him, whereupon he said that they would have to pawn her diamond star. She admitted that she was persuaded to go to Boston with him the next day, and that she pawned the jewel for $200 which she handed over to him.

She also said that on Oct. 24, 1904, her husband came home in an intoxicated condition and threatened to cut her head off. All that night he threatened to put her in an insane asylum, and gloated over his expectant happiness when he had obtained possession of her money.

Mrs. Glover said that she had an income of $400 a month, and had spent the most of it on her husband while she had been married to him, and had finally reduced his income to $15 a week that she was willing to pay him.

Miss Agnes White a colored maid, was the first witness to testify in Mrs. Glovers behalf.

One morning she said she visited the Glover household an saw Mr. Glover stretched on the couch in a drunken stupor with the whiskey bottles lying by his side.

She testified that she saw the black and blue spots on Mrs. Glover, which she considered wounds that had been inflicted by Mr. Glover.

When asked if the wounds could have been received in any other way than by the violence of Mr. Glover, she said: "Well, I am from the South and there is a legend down there that a person with black and blue marks like that has been shaking hands with the dead."

Dr. J. B. Thompson, who is a tenant in the house with Mrs. Glover, at 688 Columbia road, said: "Whenever I got within five or ten feet of him I could smell liquor. I have been out with Mr. Glover and have been drinking with him. On one occasion we took in every barroom from Spring lane to the Adams House on Washington street."

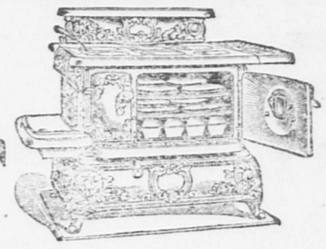

Mrs. Mary E. Middleton of Washington, D. C., mother of Mrs. Glover, then testified that she had become acqnainted with Mr. Glover while her daughter was on a visit to her home at Washington. Mr. Glover, she said, came up her steps in an intoxicated condition and she ordered him out with the threat that she would call the police.

Mr. H. E. Rice, a former tenant with the Glovers, testified that he had been aroused from his bed by Mr. Glover. who came home in an intoxicated condition. When cross-questioned as to whether or not Mr. Glover could walk, witness said: "He was on his hands and knees; his feet were not doing the work."

Drs. I. Eugene Reed and Alonzo K. Paine testified that they had examined Mrs. Glover and found her in a nervous condition and also afflicted with fatty degeneration of the heart, but they could not say that the deseases were caused by the threats made by her husband.

Dr. Paine said that he heard Mr. Glover say that he was going to put his wife in an insane asylum,

The case was continued to the 27th of the month.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. Stokes is still seriously ill at her home in Wollaston.

F. H. Johnson of Chelsea has accepted the position of organist of Bethany Congregational church. He is a graduate of Harvard college and has had experience in other churches.

One of the largest codfish ever seen in Quincy is on exhibition at the Consolidated fish market. The fish, as it now is, weighs 49 pounds, and is five feet long. The fish probably weighed 60 pounds when taken from the water. A fisherman who gets a fish like this on his line knows what fishing is.

—Once, when asked how he regained his fortune after becoming practically penniless at 52, Jay Cooke said: "That is simple enough. By never changing the temperament I derived from my father and mother. From my earliest experience in life I have always been of a hopeful temperament, never living in a cloud. I have always had the reasonable philosophy to believe that men and times were better than harsh criticism would suppose. I knew that this American world of ours was full of wealth, and that it was only necessary to go to work and find it. That is the secret of my success in life. Always look on the sunny side." This is certainly a get-rich-quick scheme that cannot lose the investor any money, even if it shouldn't make him very much.—Wilkesbarre Times.

Why do you suppose Jones' Superlative is used by more housekeepers and sold in more stores in Greater New York, the largest market in America, than any other brand?

Why do you suppose this has been true for more than half a century?

Why do you suppose the capacity of our mills is 11,000 bbls. daily?

Why do you suppose many of the principal grocers in New England have made Jones' Superlative their leading flour for twenty-five years?

Why do you suppose that at the great bread-making contest at the Taunton Agricultural Fair, with eight hundred and fifty loaves in competition, of the six prizes offered Jones' Superlative took five, including the first?

Why do you suppose that wherever exhibited Jones' Superlative has always had first place?

Why do you suppose we guarantee every barrel of Jones' Superlative to give perfect satisfaction in every respect?

Try a barrel or bag and you will have your answer.

FATS AND DRIPPING.

Those That Should Not Be Used In Making Pastry.

The use of raw suet, lard or mutton fat in pastries is to be avoided, for each leaves an unpleasant after taste. The small pieces of fat trimmed from off the piece of beef that forms the more substantial part of the daily dinner are placed in an iron pan and allowed to simmer four or five hours either in the oven or at the back of the range. The fluid fat is then strained into a small crock or tin pail and set within the refrigerator when sufficiently cooled. Here it will keep fresh indefinitely.

The fat that is skimmed from soups and gravies must never be mingled with the purer fat obtained as just described, because, useful as it is for frying and other purposes, owing to the fact that it is usually flavored with herbs, spices or vegetables of some description, it is not available for pastry. Should the supply of pure fat fail to suffice it can be augmented by the occasional purchase of three or four pounds of beef fat from the butcher's, where it is cut into bits ready for rendering.

The drippings of poultry lend a fine flavor to the fat and add to its richness. A cup of fat or half a cup and the same of butter and a saltspoonful of salt are rubbed to a cream with a wooden spoon. Add four cups of flour and mix with the hands until the mass resembles granulated sugar. Make a hole in the center and pour into the opening a full cup of ice water. Mix quickly and lightly with the spoon and do not knead. This suffices for three pies of ordinary size. Should less be required the remainder can be kept in the refrigerator and utilized for dumplings, tarts, turnovers, etc.

TRY VARIETY.

When Things Get Monotonous In the House Change Them Around.

When things get monotonous in the house try changing them around. Put the furniture in different positions, change the bric-a-brac from one room to another or, better still, give some of the ornaments a rest from duty and leave on view just enough to lend a note of distinctive simplicity.

If not in the habit of using flowers for everyday decoration of the dining table, try the effect of a few bright blossoms and feathery ferns. Then vary the menu and send the ordinary dishes to the table in a more attractive form than usual. Have bread and butter sandwiches instead of plain bread for dinner and try some of the varieties of breakfast biscuits instead of rolls and muffins for the first meal of the day. Serve croutons in the soup, utilizing stale bread for this purpose, and serve the pudding or jellies for dessert in individual molds instead of portions from one large dish and try new combinations in desserts.

This apparent touch of novelty is effective oftentimes in stimulating a jaded appetite or silencing the oft heard criticism of "same old thing" not unusual in the average household.—Brooklyn Eagle.

NURSERY NOTES.

Don't forget to dry the hands and feet of a child well.

Don't neglect to keep the feeding bottle properly cleaned.

Threats of the bogy man and ghost stories make a child cowardly.

Don't encourage little children to drink tea or coffee. It is very injurious to the nerves.

Don't forget that regular habits, proper feeding and long hours of sleep are necessary conditions for a healthy infant.

Don't lift an infant up by its arms or make it stand on its toes while partly lifted. Neither allow a child to be placed too early on its feet to stand or walk.

Don't use artificial means to put a child to sleep. Walking about with it, rocking it and jogging it are also bad habits. A child should be taught to go directly to rest.

A Good Cleansing Fluid.

The following recipe is highly recommended for its efficacy in cleansing fabrics without injuring the texture or "starting" the color, however delicate: Grate two potatoes of ordinary size into a bowl containing one pint of clean cold water. Strain carefully through a sieve, allowing the liquid to fall into another vessel containing an additional pint of cold water. Let it settle and then pour off the water and bottle it for use. It may be put into a clean fruit jar. Rub the soiled garment softly with a sponge dipped in the potato water, after which wash it in clean water. Dry carefully in the shade and then iron it. Use the sediment left after pouring off the water for cleaning heavy clothes, rugs and carpets.

Serving Sardines.

The serving of sardines with their accompaniment of oil always causes more or less trouble. A small china dish fluted and adorned with a realistic fish for handle does away with all embarrassment in this direction. It is stood on a plated silver tray, which makes a very pretty adjunct to the supper or luncheon table. The sardines are either turned out into the dish or set inside of it, box and all.

Furred Kettles.

A furred iron or copper kettle is easily cleaned. Place it empty over a clear fire for a short time. This will loosen the chalky deposit, which can then be removed. To prevent the kettle from furring again keep a large marble in it or an oyster shell will answer the same purpose.

One of the chief reasons for the establishment of the Temple Place office was to offer to women adequate and convenient banking facilities in the retail shopping district of Boston.

The pass books and check books used are small enough to fit into a woman's shopping bag, and from the teller's windows clean bills and new silver are always issued. Every effort is made to render it easy and pleasant for women to transact their business at this office. In addition, the entire second floor is reserved for their exclusive use, and is comfortably furnished, and supplied with writing-desks, stationery, magazines, and telephone service. The attendant will give any information or assistance that may be desired, and will take care of parcels that may be left with her.

This office is illustrated and more fully described in a pamphlet which will be mailed on request.

MISS UNDERWOOD.

Makes a Big Gain in the School Contest.

Over 2,000 Herald coupons have been forwarded today for School,—Coddington Grammar.

Teacher,—Miss Julia E. Underwood.
Pupil,—Henry C. Prescott.

The votes will swell the totals of the Coddington and Miss Underwood to over 5,000 and for Master Prescott to over 4,000, and will probably put all at the top. In addition, they have a large reserve.

MISS JULIA E. UNDERWOOD.

A good natured rivalry has sprung up among the Quincy schools, to see which shall give Miss Underwood the best support. The figures by buildings will be published next week. If the Coddington wins several of the buildings will obtain works of art.

It is important to win, that no coupons be sent out of Quincy for other schools or candidates; that all the votes for school shall go to the Coddington; all the votes for teacher, to Miss Underwood, and all the votes for pupil, to Henry C. Prescott. Friends should see that no coupons go astray or are hoarded up. It is Quincy against Malden, Brookline, Newton, Boston, and other cities in this contest, not a local contest between Quincy schools, Quincy teachers, and Quincy pupils. We can only win by being united.

Some children seem to be jealous of Master Prescott, and are witholding their coupons, but the fact that it will cost more than the value of the first prize for pupils, to print or stamp the votes necessary for Miss Underwood to win, should dispel all mercenary motives. To print 100,000 votes, postage, expressage, etc., will cost at least $60. There are other expenses for publicity, etc.

Please forward promptly the blank coupons to F. F. Prescott care Daily Ledger, and the names will be printed in and forwarded.

WAS IT LEGAL?

The Cohasset Election Case Heard in Quincy Court.

The celebrated Cohasset election case is being aired in the district court today, at an inquest before Judge Avery The inquest is on a petition of George A. Stewart, to determine whether the recent town election was legal.

The claim of the petitioner is tha parties seeking election officiated as election officers, a violation of the law. John W. McAnarney represented the town of Cohasset and Albert P. Worthen the petitioner.

Fifteen witnesses were sworn. Their testimony was taken separately; all but the party testifying being excluded from the room. Reporters were permitted to hear the testimony, but were forbidden by the court from taking and publishing any of the testimony.

Post Office Lease.

It is well known that the working space inside the present post office is not half large enough to allow good service. The lease of the present quarters will expire July 1, and the department has asked for proposals for leases for terms of five or ten years, to be forwarded before May 1.

Warmer Today.

The temperature at noon today registered 57 degrees, which is the warmest day at noon for a long time. The nearest to it was Nov. 4 last year when it was 56 at noon. At no time since Oct. 29 last year has the temperature at noon been as high as today.

Social Realm.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gillette pleasantly entertained a number of neighbors and friends at their home at Braintree. Souvenirs were awarded to those gaining the highest scores at whist. Refreshments were served and at a late hour the friends departed for their homes voting the occasion be added to the list of the season's happy festivities.

Graduates, former students, and friends of Radcliffe College in Quincy, are taking great interest in the three performances of the "Mikado" which are to be given in Jordan hall, Boston, on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, March 30 and 31, and on the afternoon of Saturday, April 1. This production is under the auspices of the Radcliffe Alumnae Association which is endeavoring to secure funds for constructing an adequate library building on land which the college already owns. The committee in charge consists of such well known graduates as Mary Coes, chairman; Lucy A. Paton; Sarah M. Dean; Cornelia J. Cannon; L. Isabelle May, and Esther F. Hallowell. The principal roles will be played by well known amateurs, Harvard or Radcliffe graduates, assisted by a chorus.

THE COCHATO CLUB.

Reports and Election at the Annual Meeting.

Tuesday evening in Cochato hall the annual business meeting and election of club officers was held. Vice President Albert E. Avery called the meeting to order. The reports of secretary and treasurer were read and accepted.

Upon the motion of Charles O. Miller the club voted to give the secretary hereafter a sum each year equivolent to his dues for his very satisfactory labors.

The following figures are of interest:

Cancelled Bonds	$600.00
Interest on Bonds	180.00
Interest on first mortgage	280.00
Braintree Taxes, 1904	197.80
Electric Lights and Fixtures	357.36
Fuel	193.39
Water Rates	54.00
Insurance	157.50
Entertainments to date	375.00
Summer Music	120.00
Library and Reading Room	39.75
Printing	47.60
Painting and Repairs	209.14
House Committee Acc't	126.95
Sundry Bills as per vouchers	353.33
Cash on hand	853.59

The following report of interest was read by F. Edgar Norris, secretary:

The fifth year of the existence of our club shows a membership as follows:

Resident,	156
Non resident,	47
Junior,	8
Special,	9
Total paying members,	220
Wives of members,	135
Total membership,	355

Compared with last year this is a gain of five persons. Twenty-four paying members—against twenty-one the last year—have joined the club. We have had thirteen resignations against thirty of last year. These members have left the club through legitimate reasons and not from any dissatisfaction. We have been particularly fortunate this year in losing but one, Mr. Tristam R. Newell, by death, as compared with five last year.

The secretary has received and paid over to your treasurer the following amounts:

Membership dues,	$2,926.59
Entrance fees,	270.00
Total,	$3,196.59

There were 48 ballots cast for officers for the ensuing year, resulting in the following:

A BOOMERANG.

How to Make and Use One Made of Stiff Cardboard.

You can make a very curious and interesting toy on the pattern of a weapon used by the aborigines of Australia. They made it of a piece of flat, hard wood, but you must use stiff cardboard, as that will be harmless.

Your miniature boomerang should be cut out of stiff cardboard, the form being somewhat like a right angle, except that the corner should be rounded both outside and inside. The illustration will give you the idea. The strip should be about half an inch wide and each end, or stem, a few inches long.

TO THROW THE BOOMERANG.

To throw it so that it will return to your feet lay it on a book held at a slight angle, allowing one end of it to project about an inch over the side of the book, and then strike the projecting end with a lead pencil or a stout penholder. After a little practice you will be able to make it fly off and come back to you.—New York Mail.

THE DOG'S BARK.

Some of the Proverbs About It and What They Mean.

When Dr. Watts said that dogs "delight to bark" he wrote of the dog of civilized folk. The wild dog, whether wolf or dingo, does not bark. It howls or growls or whines. Barking is therefore an accomplishment. The dog has acquired it just as a little girl may learn the piano or a boy French. For that reason it follows that barking alone is not a sign that a dog is savage or ill tempered. In fact, there is a proverb that "barking dogs never bite," but of course this rather means that fellows who are always bragging never can do anything else. When a dog barks at the moon [illegible] to frighten it or to express its contempt for it. The other proverb, which says that "his bark is worse than his bite," means, let a person scold and bully as he may, he doesn't intend half the mischief he threatens. It was from the sharp, loud noise of the dog's bark that pistols came to be called "barkers."

Advice For Boys.

A boy who is envious of the good fortune of others and is dissatisfied because he, too, cannot have it makes all around him unhappy. He should not be envious of anything but the good traits of others, and these he may possess if his desire for them is real. One restless, unhappy boy in a house, who is always bemoaning his own fate and envying others, will jar upon the good nature of a saint. He should not be vainglorious and assume airs for something which he supposes places him a little beyond his fellow creatures. If he cannot respect himself he cannot hope to exact it from others, but his self esteem must be tempered with modesty. He may be conscious of his own achievements, but it will be more becoming in him to allow others to herald them.—Pilgrim.

The Boy Was Right.

A schoolteacher, examining the class, lights on the youngest and is so struck with his intelligent aspect that he questions him forthwith, "Now, my little man, what do five and two make?" The little one remained silent. "Well, suppose, now, I were to give you five rabbits today and two more tomorrow, how many rabbits would you have then?" "Eight!" promptly answered the juvenile. "Eight! Why, how do you make that out?" "'Cause I've got one to home already."

He Knew It All.

Here is the exact answer of a New York schoolboy to the questions, "What is the meaning of the word 'hall,' how many other words are there that sound like 'hall' and what are their meanings?"

"Hall, where you open the dore and go in; hawl, hawling along a boy that won't go to skool; aul, what the shoemakes charges you 25 sents for to aul your shoes; all, all, everybody in the wurld."—Success.

Funny Kind of Kick.

Some little girls were returning home from the park when they were overtaken by a goat that wanted the whole street. They ran for dear life, the foremost shouting to her companions: "Run, run, girls! He will kick you with his head!"

Dotty's Learning.

Teacher says the world is round,
And yet it looks real flat.
She says it turns around like mad—
Now, will you think of that!

And that ain't all, for teacher tells Us some things queerer yet;
I'd tell them to you only I
Somehow seem to forget.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

DON'T TRY TO FOOL EVERY ONE

"Look here," said the lion one day to his tailor, the chimpanzee, "you are the worst tailor I ever had. Just look at these trousers you made me last [illegible] today to show you how miserably they fit, or, rather, how they don't fit. Why, they are big enough around the waist to put another fellow in just my size. How in the name of goodness did you ever expect me to appear in the courtroom with such things as these?"

"I KNOW YOUR MAJESTY'S APPETITE."

"Oh, your majesty," said his tailor bluntly and without rising, as he should have done, "that's all right; you see, these were made loose because I know your majesty's great appetite, and I felt that I should leave room for your majesty's dinner."

"You're a clever knave," laughed the lion. "I hadn't thought of that." And off he ambled.

"Ha, ha!" said the chimp when he had gone; "that's a lie I told his majesty, but, you see, some people are easy, and all you have to do is to fool them a little." And he went on stitching and singing to himself the refrain, "Under the Bamboo Tree-e-e-e."

Just then the lion appeared. "Look here," he said sharply, "you left these trousers wide to make room for dinner. It has occurred to me that you ought, therefore, to furnish the dinner to fill them." Saying which he set upon Mr. Chimp and ate him up. The trousers then fitted tight.

It doesn't pay to fool every one.—Atlanta Constitution.

—When a man who makes any claim to responsibility in what he says and does, asserts that the members of a state legislature have been bribed and "bought and sold as were sausages and fish at the markets and wharves," it certainly appears strange that he should find it necessary to afterwards advertise a reward for evidence to prove such an assertion. To declare that "it is common knowledge," is a very different thing from having the evidence to prove the charge.—Banker and Tradesman.

Gives No Reason For Queer Doings

Waltham, Mass., March 18.—Louise Syde, the young girl who was found on the outskirts of this city bound hand and foot, admitted to the police last night that her story of the assault up on her was fictitious, but she declined to say why she tied her hands and feet and placed a vial of supposed poison at her side. The girl within the last two weeks has been employed as a domestic in two Allston families and from each of these places she was discharged. The liquid which made the girl ill was found to be benzoin. The police authorities have not decided as to what disposition to make of the case.

Weavers' Terms Accepted

Fall River, Mass., March 18.—The manufacturers have reached a common understanding by which notices will be immediately posted in all the mills of new prices to be offered for weaving. The terms offered are 17.32 cents a cut on eight looms and 15.60 cents a cut on ten-loom basis. This is regarded by the employes as a concession of all demands made by the weavers, with the exception of the one that 46 yards be recognized as a standard cut, which contention will undoubtedly be allowed to rest now that other demands are conceded.

Allegations of Slander

Boston, March 18.—Suits based on alleged slander and defamation of character, in which he asks $50,000 damages from each defendant, have been entered in superior court against G. C. Holt and W. R. Gray, two of the [illegible] of John C. Paige & Co., by George McCarthy, a former partner. McCarthy severed his connection with the firm a year ago.

Plan to Reward War Veterans

Boston, March 18.—The payment of $125 to veterans of the Civil war who were honorably discharged is provided for in a bill which the committee on military affairs voted to report to the legislature. It provides that $125 shall be paid to each veteran soldier or sailor "as a testimonial of the sense that the commonwealth entertains of his patriotism and faithful service."

Killed Himself on His Beat

Boston, March 18.—Patrolman Michael Beretta, 45 years old, committed suicide early this morning by putting a bullet through his brain after reporting to his sergeant by telephone that all was well on his beat. Ill-health and consequent mental depression is ascribed as the cause for the deed. He is survived by a widow and five children.

REAL PROHIBITION

It Promises to Become a Fact In the Pine Tree State

NEW LAW IS IN EFFECT

Enforcement Commissioners to Carry Out Law Where Local Officials Fail to Do So--Wet Goods Shipped to Boston

Portland, Me., March 18.—The most determined campaign for the literal enforcement of the prohibitory law of the state perhaps ever attempted has begun as a result of the passage by the legislature of the Sturgis bill.

The new law authorizes the governor to appoint a commission of three members who shall have the power to exercise in any part of the state "all the common law and statutory powers of sheriffs in their respective counties in the enforcement of the law against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors." Two members of the commission are to be members of the dominant politic party, and the third a member of the political party casting the next highest vote at the state election.

These men, who will be known as enforcement commissioners, have the power to appoint deputies with similar powers to various counties. The purpose of the commission is to enforce the prohibitory law where the local officers have failed to do so.

Yesterday the sheriffs of several counties sent out sweeping instructions regarding the enforcement of the law. In this city all places where intoxicants in any form or under any construction of the law have been offered, suspended the sale and thousands of dollars' worth of liquors have been delivered for shipment to Boston.

Hotel proprietors, druggists and others have been instructed to immediately forward their internal revenue certificates to the sheriff's office. Similar action has been taken in the other cities of the state.

Many of the legislators confidently predict that the ultimate result of the new law will be the resubmission of the prohibition question to the voters.

A conference was held at Biddeford between County Attorney Emery, Sheriff Athorne and the deputy sheriffs of Biddeford and Saco, looking to the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law in York county. Mr. Emery stated, after the conference, that the mayors and chiefs of police in Biddeford and Saco will be notified that they will be expected to assist the deputy sheriffs to the utmost of their power in enforcing the law and if they fail to do so the enforcement commissioners will be appealed to. He said further that he had some surprises in store, but he would give no intimation as to their nature.

Three deputy sheriffs started out to visit the drug stores in Biddeford last night, and from four of them they secured enough liquor of all descriptions to fill two express wagons. The liquors were taken to the storehouse and the druggists were summoned to appear in court to answer the charge of illegally keeping liquor for sale. The raids created considerable excitement and it is quite impossible to obtain liquor for any purpose in Biddeford.

New French Military Law

Paris, March 18.—The chamber of deputies adopted, by a vote of 519 against 32, the military law reducing the term of active service in the army from three years to two years. Clauses of the new law render every Frenchman liable, abolishing former exemptions concerning widows' sons and bread-winners. Men hitherto released from military service owing to weakness will be enrolled in an auxiliary corps.

Faithful Employes' Awful Death

Pittsburg, March 18.—In the blast furnace department of the Clairton Steel company last night an oil line with 500 pounds pressure burst and set fire to the cast house. Master Mechanic Watson went into the building to try to shut off the flow. In a moment he was drenched with burning oil. His eyes were burned out and, staggering to the front of the building, he fell to the ground, fractured his skull and died.

Sea Eating Away Beach

San Diego, Cal., March 18.—The sea continues to eat into Coronado beach and much alarm is felt. The great hotel is threatened and a force of men are working night and day dropping bags of sand in front of the devastating waves. The boulevard has been eaten away. Seven thousand bags of sand have been tumbled over the bluff, and 20,000 more are ready to be used. The highest tide is yet to come.

Life Imprisonment For White

Frankfort, Ky., March 18.—The Kentucky court of appeals has affirmed the sentence of Tom White to the state penitentiary for life for complicity in the assassination of James B. Marcum. White was convicted jointly with Curtis Jett.

Drastic Anti-Cigaret Bill

Madison, Wis., March 18.—An anti-cigaret bill, previously passed by the assembly, has been passed by the senate. The bill makes unlawful the sale, gift or importation into Wisconsin of cigarets or cigaret materials.

JOHN C. ROWAN

Rheumatism.

Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, the discoverer of the formula of Paine's Celery Compound, always maintained that rheumatism could be traced back to diseased nerves that failed to do their work properly.

Bear this in mind while reading the letter of John C. Rowan that follows.

Mr. Rowan wrote us over 10 years ago telling us how much he was being helped by Paine's Celery Compound. We wrote him a short time ago to find out if he still relied on Paine's Celery Compound.

"Yours of the 2d inst. is at hand, and in reply would say that I have never had any cause to change my opinion as to the good qualities of Paine's Celery Compound. As you are aware, some ten years or thereabouts ago, I was a martyr to rheumatism, and suffered intense pain with it in my knees; could not rest at night, but walked the floor with pain.

"All manner of remedies were tried; some gave me temporary relief, others have had no effect whatever.

"Now, my reasons for taking Paine's Celery Compound in preference to other remedies was that on an occasion once before I had taken two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and was relieved so much that I did not take any more at that time, after my experience with other remedies which did me no good. Later, I was positive then that I had not given Paine's Celery Compound a fair trial to cure me absolutely of rheumatism.

"I concluded to take twelve bottles, and I did so, and I can assure you that you have a compound that is honest, and a sure destroyer of rheumatism.

"I have found it so, for up to the present date I have never felt any symptoms of rheumatism. I take it every spring, but for the blood only.

"Now, we have a remarkable case here in one of our schools, the janitor, Mr. William Garlow. He is a man between seventy and seventy-five years of age.

"He had suffered very much with rheumatism, so he felt he must give up his position. I had frequently recommended Paine's Celery Compound to him, and, like myself, he had taken one or two bottles of it, but did not give it a fair trial. I informed him of my case, and said: 'Try a dozen bottles, and it will convince you that my statement is correct.' He purchased five bottles; one he kept at the school, so he could take it as directions call for. Now he is well and feeling better than he has for years, and is a strong supporter of Paine's Celery Compound. His address is, William Garlow, Oakdale avenue, or Humboldt High School.

"Others have asked if it is a fact that Paine's Celery Compound has done so much for me and keeps me so healthy.

"That and the way I live have been the cause. At the time I had the rheumatism I was affected with catarrh. You can be assured I shall always be a friend of Paine's Celery Compound, for I am indebted to it—a debt I can never pay. You can refer to me and use this letter as you see fit in the cause of Paine's Celery Compound. I am, yours truly."—John C. Rowan, 137 East Winifred street, St. Paul, Minn.

When you are sick in some part of your body it is because some organ is not doing its work.

That is because THE NERVES ARE NOT STRONG ENOUGH to keep that organ up to its work.

The better the Nerve Force the better all the organs can work and give perfect health.

Paine's Celery Compound feeds the nerves—restores them to their strength—gives them new power to send vitality and health to every part of your body, new courage to your heart, new animation to your brain.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

Peabody Vacates Office and McDonald Is Made Governor

Denver, March 18.—The bargain made by leaders of the opposing Republican factions of Colorado to take the governor's chair from Alva Adams and to seat in it Lieutenant Governor McDonald after permitting James H. Peabody to hold it for one day was carried to a conclusion late yesterday afternoon.

In fulfillment of the agreement which he made before the general assembly decided the gubernatorial contest in his favor, Peabody resigned the office in which he was inaugurated late Thursday afternoon. His resignation was filed in the office of the secretary of state at 4:20 p. m.

Secretary of State Cowie immediately certified Peabody's resignation and McDonald was then sworn in as governor. There was no further ceremony. Governor Adams was ousted and Peabody installed by the general assembly about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon and McDonald was sworn in at 5 p. m. yesterday. Thus, in a space of less than 24 hours, Colorado had three governors.

Senator Cornforth, president pro tempore of the senate, becomes acting lieutenant governor by the elevation of McDonald to the office of chief executive.

Woman Murdered by Woman

Scranton, Pa., March 18.—Two young negro women, lifelong friends, members of respectable families, and the only negro girls every graduated from the Scranton High school, were the principals in a murder which took place on Wyoming avenue. Mrs. Charles Welden, aged 27, was wheeling a carriage containing her 3-months-old baby when Miss Emma Lee, aged 26, sent two bullets into Mrs. Welden's chest, killing her. Miss Lee gave herself up. She would only say that Mrs. Welden had been talking about her.

Hull Not Correctly Quoted

Des Moines, March 18.—Congressman Hull, chairman of the military affairs committee, claims that he has been misquoted regarding an alleged interview which has appeared in the press. What Hull did say was, he states, that this country needed a big navy to protect its island possessions and that the Japanese might in the future desire to gain possession of the Philippine islands. His idea was of a speculative nature as to what the future could produce.

The Virginia Mine Disaster

Montgomery, Ala., March 18.—The report of the board of state mine inspectors regarding the explosion at the Virginia mines on Feb. 20, where 111 miners lost their lives, says the accident was due to "dust" explosion; that the tamping made in preparation for a dynamite charge was defectively arranged, causing ignition of the gases in the shaft. The report did not fix the blame for the accident.

Great Day For Irishmen

New York, March 18.—With President Roosevelt the guest of Irishmen, the Ancient Order of Hibernians marching in a parade 60,000 strong and celebrating, General Miles reviewing the First regiment of Irish volunteers, and scores of Irish organizations holding banquets and receptions, the observance of the festival of Ireland's patron saint was the most elaborate in the history of the city.

Newsboy Stood Off Mob

St. Louis, March 18.—Five bullets were fired into the back of Antonio Santon during an altercation on Washington street with Antonio Cimento. A crowd quickly gathered about Cimento and threatened him, but a revolver was suddenly wrested from Cimento by Harry Meyers, a newsboy, who stood off the crowd until the police arrived. Santon died within an hour.

To Wage War on Disease

New York, March 18.—President Darlington of the board of health has appointed a commission to study and devise a means of preventing the spread of cerebro-spinal meningitis. The disease has been prevalent in some sections of the East Side and $5000 has been appropriated to find a means of combatting it.

Passengers Refused to Proceed

Horta, Azores, March 18.—The French steamer Montreal, bound for New York, has returned here, owing to the refusal of the passengers to continue on the voyage, the vessel being short of provisions. Serious trouble occurred between the passengers and officers.

Arctic Ice Breaking Up

Glace Bay, N. S., March 18.—The keeper of the signal station at Low Point, C. B., reports that heavy bodies of Arctic ice are noticeable in the distance, giving evidence of a breakup in northern latitudes. The whole Cape Breton coast is blocked with heavy ice.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

A man's life will not be any higher or deeper or nobler than the standards he has lifted and the principles he has idealized.—Rev. Dr. Charles Edward Locke, Methodist, Brooklyn.

The Human and the Divine Mind.

The human mind is like a flute, which can play but one note at a time. God's mind must be like an organ, which plays chords.—Rev. Dr. Frank Crane, Unitarian, Worcester, Mass.

The Soul's Peril.

The real peril of the soul is not in the wrath of God, but in the sorrow of God; not in hell or torment, but in a desolation like the ruined columns of Tadmor in the desert.—Rev. Willard R. Thorp, Congregationalist, Chicago.

Value of Patience.

Patience, born of faith, ripened by endurance, working in calmness, looking forward with hope, mellowed by sacrifice, steadied by the touch of a divine hand, will lead to the goal and sanctify life at the last.—Rev. Dr. Polemus H. Swift, Methodist, Chicago.

A Proper Balance.

We must seek to preserve a proper balance in our religious thinking. Some men have seen the danger of form and have sought to lead the Christian life apart from it, while others have allowed the spirit to be entirely lost.—Rev. Dr. W. J. Williamson, Baptist, St. Louis.

Man's Invincible Ally.

Faith is the energy that moves the human world. It is man's invincible ally. Faith is not one of the luxuries of life; it is our daily bread. It is the regal word of the Bible. It has this royal state in the Scriptures because it occupies the throne of sight in the practical life of man.—Rev. A. Bilkoosky, Universalist, Baltimore.

Language of Symbolism.

The sea and mountains and nature speak the language of symbolism. They are not so much water and rock and earth spread out or piled up. That which impresses us as we stand upon the shore or sail upon the sea is not the waters that are tossed in tempest or sleep in calm, but the mighty symbolism of the ocean itself.—Rev. G. B. Vosburgh, Baptist, Denver.

Care of Our Religious Natures.

Man's religious nature is the most real and lasting thing he has; hence the has need to guard it well. To neglect or to abuse it is to bring irreparable loss to the soul. God was at great pains to give us a holy religion and spared not his only Son that our religious nature might be satisfied. What a mistake to neglect religion!—Rev. E. K. Bell, Lutheran, Baltimore.

An Omnipotent God.

Man craves for an omnipotent God who can be with him always wherever he may be. This is one reason why the heathen multiply their idols, so they need an idol for the family, another for the market, another for the journey, another for war, etc. Their idols are not considered omnipresent, else they would not need to do this. In Christ, however, we have one who meets our demands.—Rev. R. E. Williams, Evangelist, Butte, Mont.

Comfort For the Afflicted.

Some time you will see that God came to you in mercy, not in judgment. He has taken your darlings out of darkness into light, out of danger into safety, out of limitations into the illimitable beauty of his wide universe. Will you not submissively yield to his call? He has given you the anointing of grief and placed upon your head the crown of sorrow. But one day your starry crown will be more beautiful for its thorns of pain. Now all you can do is to trust him. He is your Father.—Rev. Edwin Whittier Caswell, Methodist, New York.

The True Christian.

The true Christian is the one who carries the light into darkened homes and is so careful of the light that he forgets himself. He seeks not his own but another's welfare. He brings the gospel. He lives the gospel. He is the gospel. He exalts the Christ, who himself bore our griefs and carried our sorrows. He is a witness for him. He "testifies the gospel of the grace of God." He knows the result is certain and his own personal reward is sure. He works and waits for that most desired of all commendations, the "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." May this be said to every one of us.—Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Does It Pay?

We are living in such a materialistic age that most persons give not a little thought to the personal gain as to what they do, think and say. And yet, on the other hand, the results of much that is done leads one to believe that many are poor mathematicians; at least they get very little lasting satisfaction for what they expend. Action and reaction, cause and effect, place man at the center of a system of self executing rewards or penalties, according as he lives, so that man is to a large degree the architect of his own fate, and for most of his successes or failures he plays no little part in the transaction. It is therefore only right that man should in all his undertakings ask himself the question, "Does it pay?" If not, then let him change his mode of living. For example, does it pay to make a promise without having any idea even at the time of keeping that promise? Does it pay to selfishly wrong some one, hoping thereby successfully to build upon the ruins of another's downfall? Does it pay to toil and labor solely for the things which perish when at the same time you are sacrificing the privileges of present soul needs, together with the blessed hope of the bright beyond?—Rev. Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, Lutheran, Baltimore.

A NEW NATIONAL TYPE

President Says That It Will Be Worked Out by Nation In Whose Veins Runs Blood of the Old World

New York, March 18.—President Roosevelt was the guest of honor last night at the 121st annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He was accorded a flattering ovation by more than 600 members of the society and its guests and responded in a notable address. So great was the demand for tickets that the society was obliged to refuse more than 2000 applications.

Immediately back of and above the seat of the president at the banquet table were the Gaelic words "Caed Mille Failte," in letters of fire, signifying "A thousand welcomes." To the right and left of the guests' table were fine medallions of Washington and Roosevelt, illuminated by unique electric effects.

The contrast of Washington and Roosevelt was significant. The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick entertained Washington in 1782 as the general-in-chief of the colonial armies. Roosevelt is the first president, as such, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick have entertained, although both Arthur and Cleveland as ex-presidents were guests of the society.

The president paid tribute to the part played by men of Irish birth in the Revolutionary and Civil wars and said some of the men whom he was addressing served in the immortal brigade which on the fatal day of Fredericksburg left its dead closest to the stone wall which marked the limit that could not be over passed even by the highest human valor.

"The people who have come to this country from Ireland," said the president, "have contributed to the stock of our common citizenship qualities which are essential to the welfare of every great nation. They are a masterful race of rugged character—a race, the qualities of whose womanhood have become proverbial, while its men have the elemental, the indispensable virtues of working hard in time of peace and fighting hard in time of war. In every walk of life men of this blood have stood, and now stand, pre-eminent as statesmen and as soldiers, on the bench, at the bar, and in business. They are doing their full share toward the artistic and literary development of the country.

"We Americans take a just pride in the development of our great universities, and more and more we are seeking to provide for original and creative work in these universities. I hope that an earnest effort will be made to endow chairs in American universities for the study of Celtic literature and for research in Celtic antiquities. We of America, who have so large a Celtic strain in our blood, cannot afford to be behind hand in the work of adding to modern scholarship by bringing within its ken the great Celtic literature of the past.

"I have spoken especially of what has been done for this nation of ours by its sons of Irish blood. But after all, in speaking to you or any other body of my fellow-citizens, no matter from what Old World country they themselves or their forefathers may have come, the great thing to remember is that we are all of us Americans. Let us keep our pride in the stocks from which we have sprung; but let us show that pride by joining in a spirit of generous rivalry to see which can do most for our great common country.

"Americanism is not a matter of creed, or birthplace, or descent. That man is the best American who has in him the American spirit, the American soul. Such a man fears not the strong and harms not the weak. He scorns what is base or cruel or dishonest. He looks beyond the accidents of occupation or social condition, and hails each of his fellow-citizens as his brother, asking nothing save that each shall treat the other on his worth as a man, and that they shall join together to do all that in them lies for the uplifting of this mighty and vigorous people.

"In our veins runs the blood of many an Old World nation. We are kin to each of those nations, and yet identical with none. Our policy should be one of cordial friendship for all; and yet we should keep ever before our eyes the fact that we are ourselves a separate people, with our own ideals and standards, and destined, whether for better or for worse, to work out a wholly new national type.

"The fate of the 20th century will in no small degree depend upon the quality of citizenship developed on this continent. Surely such a thought must thrill us with the resolute purpose so to bear ourselves that the name American shall stand as the symbol of just, generous, and fearless dealing with all men and all nations. Let us be true to ourselves, for we cannot then be false to any man."

Business Conditions Improving

New York, March 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Review of Trade says that higher temperature is still needed to bring out full spring activity at many points, but improvement is discerned in almost all departments. Mercantile payments are also more prompt, which adds materially to the feeling of confidence.

TIFS ON THE TRACK

Accident on the New Haven Road Is Narrowly Averted

Newport, R. I., March 18.—The timely discovery by the engineer of an obstruction placed on the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, just outside of the city last night, probably prevented the wrecking of a train from Boston. Five railroad ties had been placed between the rails and the locomotive struck them with considerable force, although the power had been reversed and the brakes set. Four of the ties were picked up by the cowcatcher and thrown from the track, while the fifth was wedged between the pilot and truck wheels, where it remained fast when the train was brought to a standstill. An investigation is being made, the officials believing that the accident was the result of a boyish prank rather than a deliberate attempt to wreck the train.

The obstruction was placed on the tracks at a secluded spot just north of the yard signal near a sharp curve. The train consisted of a locomotive and three passenger coaches. The passengers suffered nothing more than a severe shaking up, while the locomotive was not seriously damaged.

Ignored Their Superior Officer

Plattsburg, N. Y., March 18.—Colonel Adams, commanding officer of the Fifth regiment, U. S. infantry, stationed at the barracks here, has placed under arrest Major Woodruff and Lieutenant Woodbury, surgeon and assistant surgeon, respectively, of the regiment, on charges of breach of discipline. They are now in close confinement. It is understood that Woodruff and Woodbury sent a report direct to the war department instead of through the proper regimental channels, to the effect that Adams was physically unfit to perform his duty as colonel.

Morgan Challenges Senate

Washington, March 18.—In the executive session of the senate, Senator Morgan continued his speech of Thursday in which he disclosed the details of certain concessions sought in Santo Domingo by a Mr. and Mrs. Reeder, operating under the name of the Reeder syndicate. Before the doors were closd he offered a resolution calling for an investigation of Dominican affairs by the senate committee on foreign relations and challenged the senate to adopt the resolution. He said that if this were done the charges he made would be proven.

Cuban-American Friendship

Havana, March 18.—Extensive preparations are being made for the visit to this port next week of the battleships Kentucky and Missouri and the cruisers Olympia and Cleveland. The occasion will be purely a demonstration of friendship between the United States and Cuba, the first since the junior republic was launched. The entertainments planned will not be confined to the officers of the American navy, but sailors and marines will be entertained by Cuban soldiers.

Victim of Elevated Train

New York, March 18.—Either pushed from the platform by an angry crowd who surged to board a passing elevated train that did not stop at the station, or struck by the train itself, as it passed at a high rate of speed, a man was run over and killed by an elevated train last evening. A soldier who was crossing the street under the elevated structure was struck by a falling hat. Looking up, he was struck by some of the mutilated parts of the man's body.

Near Limit of Diplomacy

Washington, March 18.—France has officially informed the United States of the action of the Venezuelan government against the French Cable company, which she regards as high-handed and unwarranted. While insisting that diplomatic means will be exhausted in the effort to relieve the situation, it is declared that President Castro is rapidly exhausting French patience and thereby forcing France toward the limit of diplomacy.

Chadwick Property at Auction

Cleveland, March 18.—The household property of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was sold at auction to A. D. Nelson of New York for $25,200. There were 20 bidders. Clothing to the value of over $4000, which Mrs. Chadwick held to be exempt from the claims of her creditors under the bankruptcy laws, was not offered for sale.

To Safeguard Human Life

Albany, March 18.—The first of the legislative measures that resulted from the General Slocum fire disaster was promptly signed upon reaching Governor Higgins. This was a bill requiring excursion boats to carry at least one life preserver for each passenger.

Won't Compete With Independents

Philadelphia, March 18.—It is announced that the Reading and other anthracite companies will not reduce their prices to compete with Coxe Bros. & Co., who declare that they will cut figures on pea and buckwheat sizes of hard coal.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fire in the Crompton block, a five-story building in the heart of the mercantile district of Worcester, Mass., wrecked the building, with an estimated loss of upwards of $150,000.

A man who registered as J. J. Laron, New Britain, Conn., committed suicide by leaping from a fourth-story window of a New York hotel.

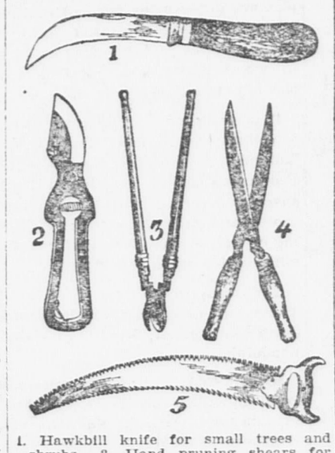

Rev. Elmer H. Capen, D. D., president of Tufts college, is ill at his college residence with pneumonia. His physicians say that his condition is serious.

FARM AND GARDEN

WHEN THE KNIFE IS SHARP.

Pruning In March Is Customary From Motives of Convenience.

The best time to prune is between the middle of May and the middle of June, when the trees are growing thriftily, as the wounds will heal over quicker if done at that time, but as this is a very busy season of the year the customary practice is to prune during the month of March, when satisfactory results are obtained. By pinching off young growth, which is not required, in summer, labor will be saved in pruning. It is much better to prune at any time of the year than to neglect it altogether, as it is not a matter of great consequence what month it is done in. The important tools are a sharp pruning knife or shears.

Modern orchardists have come to look upon the low headed apple tree as more desirable than those headed high. A head which is two and a half to three feet from the ground is at present considered more desirable than one which is six feet or more from the ground. The latter height was formerly frequently used. In forming the head care should be taken to have the framework branches disposed at different heights along the body of the tree, say from three to six inches apart, and distributed as evenly as possible around the body as a central axis—that is, when viewed from above the picture presented would be that of a wheel, the hub being the central axis of the tree and the framework branches the spokes of the wheel.

When the trees begin to grow thriftily many new branches will be formed, and it is the work of the pruner to remove all those which are not necessary and to cut back others. The top of the tree should be kept open to admit air and sunlight, but pruning should be so carefully done that there will be no bare limbs. All branches which are growing across and through the top should be cut out. If two branches touch one another one of them should be removed. If a branch on one side of the tree has outgrown the other it should be headed back so as to make the tree symmetrical, cutting it off just above a bud which is on the side that it is desired to have the new growth. If when the trees are young they are treated in this way every year comparatively little work will have to be done at one time.

Japanese Cane.

One item we have learned will be of untold benefit to sections just above the cane belt. Many farmers higher up have attempted to raise ribbon cane and have been compelled to quit on account of loss from our early frost. The new variety, the Japanese cane, is a true cane, smaller than the ribbon, but suckers more and will grow on poor land. It is fine for sirup and is also splendid feed for cattle of all kinds. It will stand 15 degrees more cold than ribbon cane. We think any farmer in middle Georgia, Alabama or South Carolina would do well to try some and learn of its adaptability. One gentleman told us he grew twenty-three stalks from a single eye.—Southern Cultivator.

Right Conditions.

Enthusiastic beginners in gardening should beware of the common mistake of starting outdoor operations too soon. Do not try to work the soil when it is too wet nor, on the other hand, delay the operation till it is too dry. Taken just right, the soil will genially second your efforts to put it into a nice mellow condition.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The special committee of the City Council on gas met last evening.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings will meet tonight.

Mrs. Mary W. Carter and daughter Nan, are expected home from the Cape today.

Mrs. Eliza Hayden of Granite street, who will be 91 years of age next month is quite ill.

The steamer Providence will leave the Fore River Works Monday morning for New York.

Alfred G. Flowers has accepted a position as sub-foreman in the Bates shoe factory at Webster.

The Quincy W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Tirrell at room 30, Adams building, Tuesday next, 3 P. M.

Mrs. Morley is quite seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Eaves of Cherry street, Quincy Point.

Mrs. Emma Marnock of South Quincy has the sympathy of her many friends in the serious illness of her daughter Lizzie.

The court was kind to all of the seventeenth of March drunks arrested last night, releasing them without arraignment.

A degree team composed of past grands of Mt. Wollaston lodge I. O. O. F., will perform work before the grand officers May 9.

The addition to the St. Francis church at Houghs Neck is completed. About thirty feet have been built onto the rear of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Tedlin of Northfield, Vt., are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of an 8-pound boy born on Mhursday, March 9.

The Rev. Albert L. Whittaker, rector of St. James's church, Fall River, will officiate at the early communion service at St. Chrysostom's church on Sunday. Mr. Whittaker will alao preach at the 10.45 service.

A meeting of the Rosebud club was held at the home of Susie Hayes, 24 Cross street, Thursday evening. After the meeting the members were pleasantly entertained. The next meeting will be with Isabel McGilvray.

Herman F. McIntire has begun the erection of his new home on Dixwell avenue, adjoining the Lawton place on Presidents hill. If it is as attractive as his present house it will be quite an addition to the neighborhood.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council accompanied by Mayor Thompson, City Solicitor Thomas and City Messenger Tirrell were about the city yesterday. One thing in particular that they looked over was the Atlantic bridge and approaches.

Frank W. Leighton formerly of Quincy died Thursday at Barre, Vt. of pneumonia. Mr. Leighton was a stone cutter and went to Barre several years ago, where he has since been employed at his trade. He leaves a widow and several children. The body will be brought to Quincy for burial.

A large number of scholars and teachers attended the social in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry last evening, given by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and her class. Games of all kinds were played, the older as well as the younger entering into them with a will. Several amusing stories were told by some of the teachers by way of entertainment. Fruit punch and fancy crackers were served by the young ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hayden, of River street entertained the whist club at their home last evening. Prizes were taken by Mrs. Dorley, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Howes. After whist, an excellent supper was served consisting of salad, cake, fruit, ices and frappe. Mrs. Hayden was presented with a very handsome table-cover, in remembrance of her birthday. The company left for their homes about midnight after spending a most delightful evening.

BRAINTREE.

About thirty members of the Cochato club visited the Commercials at Brockton last night and they were royally entertained. Miller, Crocker, J. Arnold, Hamblett and E. S. Hollis constituted the Cochato team and scored 844, 763 and 860, total 2467. The Commercials; Crocker, Dragdon, Fager, Stahl and Thatcher won two out of three: 848, 818 and 857, total 2523.

St. Francis church was filled on Wednesday evening at the Lenten services.

The presence of Rev. J. P. Cuffe, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Atlantic, who preached the Lenten sermon, was a pleasure to the many devoted friends to whom he endeared himself during his twenty years of labor among them, and in whose hearts, and prayerful memories his place is held sacred.

It is with much regret, we learn of the continued illness of Miss Mabel Knight, the faithful teacher of the Penniman district. It is hoped that the advent of spring will bring renewed health, and strength, and that the opening of school after the April vacation, will find her again at her post.

The many friends of Miss E. M. Thompson will be sorry to learn of the death of her sister, Mrs. John Wales of Randolph.

Miss Edith A. Hemingway, missionary to Singapore, sailed Tuesday on the Saxonia for Liverpool. She will reach Singapore about May 3.

Puritan lodge held its usual meeting, Tuesday evening. Three new names were proposed making a total of seven to work the initiatory degree on April 4th.

Mrs. Josiah Blanchard of Hancock street celebrated her birthday yesterday by entertaining quite a number of friends and relatives at her home. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chipperfield of Stoughton, and Mrs. Otis Spooner of North Easton were among the guests.

Amana Rebekah lodge will work the third degree on two candidates next Tuesday evening. As the sisters have been spending considerable time upon this degree something fine is expected.

Odd Fellowship in Braintree is making rapid progress. The subordinate lodge has just passed two through and has seven on the list, and the Rebekah's have two members to work on and three applications on the desk.

The members of the Christian Endeavor society of the South Congregational church are invited to attend a special service at the Braintree Baptist church Sunday evening, March 19th. There will be an address by a talented speaker and special music will be rendered.

Wednesday evening the ladies of Loyal Knights and Ladies gave one of of their well known suppers in the I. O. O. F. hall. There were about seventy present. After the repast an interesting entertainment was given.

Mrs. H. T. Cushman who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is slowly gaining strength and will soon be able to be about again.

Mrs. Oscar Gallagher and children have gone to Vermont for the summer hoping to benefit their health thereby.

Mr. M. V. B. Minchin after an illness of four weeks is about once more and will resume his duties at South Quincy next week.

Alfred Carver has moved into the house formerly occupied by Herbert Doane.

The new house being built on West street by contractor J. H. G. Robinson is nearly completed and will be occupied by Henry Binney.

The regular meeting of the J. P. S. A. was held Wednesday evening with Mrs. W. H. H. Bailey of Union street. The next play on the list, to be read is "As You Like It." This will be commenced at the next meeting. At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Bailey served dainty refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Dr. A. F. Ewell will give a talk at the Union church, Sunday evening, March 19, at six o'clock, to which everyone is cordially invited, especially young people.

Commissioners' Sale of Real Estate.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

WHEREAS, the undersigned were appointed commissioners by decree of the Probate Court of Norfolk County, dated December 18, A. D. 1904, to make partition of the real estate of James Frederic Harlow late of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, deceased testate; and

Whereas, by warrant of said court dated February 1, A. D. 1905, said commissioners were ordered to make sale and conveyance of said real estate, there will be sold at public auction on TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, the 4th, 5th and 6th of April, A. D. 1905, the three parcels of land hereinafter described with the buildings thereon, two of said parcels being situated in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and one in Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, and said three parcels being the whole of the real estate of said James Frederic Harlow, deceased. The sale of the first parcel will be on the premises at three o'clock P. M., April 4, A. D. 1905; the sale of the second parcel will be on the premises at 3 o'clock P. M., April 5, A. D. 1905; the sale of the third parcel will be on the premises at three o'clock P. M., April 6, A. D. 1905. Said three parcels are described as follows:

First Parcel: A parcel of land containing about thirty-two hundred (3200) square feet and the building thereon, according to the title deeds, being numbered 317 and 319 Cambridge Street, including Numbers 1 and 2 Cambridge Street Place, in said Boston, and subject to such rights as may exist in the ways called, respectively, Cambridge Street Place and Cambridge Street Avenue, and to the unpaid taxes for 1904.

Second Parcel: A parcel of land containing about nine hundred and eighteen (918) square feet and the building thereon, numbered 22 Lowell Street, in said Boston, and subject to the unpaid taxes for 1904.

Third Parcel: A parcel of land on North Street, in said Quincy, containing about three and one half (3 1/2) acres.

Terms: Five hundred dollars ($500) to be paid in cash on each of the first two parcels at the time of the sale and one hundred dollars ($100) to be paid in cash on the third parcel at the time of the sale; the balance on all three parcels to be paid within ten days from the time of said sale at the office of John B. Sullivan, Jr., 714 Tremont Building, Boston.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Klaw & Erlanger's wonderful production of "Humpty Dumpty" will be seen at the Colonial Theatre in a limited engagement, beginning Monday, March 20th, with matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays, and the engagement will offer the only opportunity to people of New England to witness the greatest spectacle ever presented on any stage in the world. The company contains over 400 artists, and the scenery, costumes and electrical and mechanical devices, fill six sixty-feet baggage cars.

"Humpty Dumpty" is admittedly the greatest indoor entertainment in the world, and its scale is one of such elaborate splendor as to baffle all description. The production cost over $100,000, and its many scenes are of the most wonderful character. It is interesting to everybody, young and old—a great show for the whole family, clean and wholsome, and it contains nothing that can give offense to anyone. Those who see it will have something they can always talk about, for it is very doubtful if such an elaborate production as "Humpty Dumpty" will ever again be witnessed in America.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The first professional production of Samuel E. Rork's spectacular musical merriment, "The Filibuster,"—written by John P. Wilson with music by William Loraine (composer of "Peggy from Paris") will be made at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, March 20th. A large section of the orchestra seats has been secured for the opening night by the Bank Officers' Association which originally produced "The Filibuster" in an amateur way, but with marked success. Since then the book has been completely rewritten for the professional production and much of the music changed. "The Filibuster" is said to excel in three great points: first as a musical show, second, as a funny entertainment, and third, as a gathering of pretty women in beautiful costumes. Of the music a great deal has already been said for the Boston press was unanimous in declaring it to be the best of any musical show since "Ermine," when it was given by the Bank Officers. William Loraine's score for "Peggy from Paris" was tuneful but in "Filibuster" he has completely eclipsed all previous efforts.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Vaudeville, as presented at the Empire Theatre, is of a progressive quality. For the week of March 20, the program marshalls several names which are well known the country over, and several acts which either are absolutely new to Boston or have not been offered in Boston in several years. The famous Hawthorne sisters, Nellie and Lola, they who with their sister Lily, made the "Willow Pattern Plate" celebrated, will appear in Boston in a sister act for the first time in at least three years, presenting a singing and dancing novelty which is certain to create a furore.

An exclusive, and a happy engagement is that of Billy Single Clifford the original American Chappie, formerly of the vaudeville firm of Clifford and Huth, and more lately,—indeed, at the present time, starring in his own musical comedy, "How He Won Her."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The Six Musical Cuttys, one of the leading instrumental acts in the varieties, will be the special feature of the Keith vaudeville show the week of March 20. This organization, which is make up of an equal number of both sexes, has been scoring the hit of every show in which they have appeared this season. Nearly a score of noted entertainers, constituting one of the best bills of the winter, are included in the surrounding company. Among them are the following: Pauline Hall, the noted comic opera prima donna; Edmund Day, "the Clyde Fitch of the varieties," in a new play, "The Sheriff;" Parker's trained dogs, one of the best troupes of educated canines in America; Victor Moore and Emma Littlefield, in their comedy singing and dancing specialties; the troupe of bicyclists will present the greatest act of the kind ever seen on the stage in this country; Fred Ward and John Curran, in their tremendously funny burlesque, "The Terrible Judge," and William H. Windom, a well-known minstrel, in his mirth-provoking skit, "The Colored Nurse Girl." An entire new list of motion pictures will be shown in the biograph, as usual.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Romeo and Juliet" will make the offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week, this being the first presentation of a Shakespearian play at the Castle Square the present season. It is designed to make this production the notable event of the spring season and to give all possible care to every detail of the presentation. The leading characters have been cast as follows; Romeo, Mr. Hansel; Mercutio, Mr. Davis; Paris Mr. Van Buren; Lord Capulet, Mr. Wade; Tybalt, Mr. Jenniags; Friar Lawrence, ——; Peter, Mr. Ben S. Field; Balthazar, Mr. Veban; Sampson, Mr. Macfarlane; Gregory, Mr. Thorne; Apothecary, Mr. Kent; Page to Paris, Miss Lillian Hall; Juliet, Miss Kemble; Lady Capulet, Miss Bradley; Nurse, Miss Ryan; Lord Montague, Mr. Kent; Araham, Mr. Carleton; Prince Escalus, Mr. Mason.

Foss' Pure Extracts

They Are Simply the Fruit in Liquid Form.

NO EXCUSE FOR USING UNWHOLESOME IMITATIONS.

Professional Cooks Refuse All Substitutes.

DAINTY DESSERTS ALWAYS FOLLOW USE OF FOSS' EXTRACTS.

Pure extracts are essential to good results in cookery. A well-known expert in cookery has aptly said that Foss' Vanilla flavors more and flavors better than any other. Make your desserts dainty, wholesome, delicious and so harmless that the children can enjoy them.

The decisive touch that settles whether the dessert is a success or not, depend on the purity, strength and delicacy of the flavoring extract. When other Vanilla Extracts besides Foss' are used the cook is apt to keep on increasing the amount of the flavoring to secure the proper strength. In this way the delicious vanilla flavor is destroyed, and a rank, strong taste imparted to puddings, pies, cakes and what not.

It is the artificial flavoring that makes pies, cakes and desserts so often disagree with you. The cleverest imitation can never be as wholesome as merely the fruits in liquid form. Families that have been using flavoring extracts that are mere clever imitations of the natural fruits are always delighted and surprised at the genuine purity, delicate, wholesome quality of Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts.

Competent cooks and housewives do not try to economize by using second-class eggs or flavoring. These two articles must be the best the market affords, or poor tasting, unsuccessful custards, puddings, ices, sherbets, and cakes will result.

There is something better than the old-fashioned artificial extracts. Foss' Extracts are fruits in liquid form. Not only are these modern extracts more delicate, purer and from every consideration of health more satisfactory, but they are much more economical, as less is required.

Mrs. Lincoln in her recipe for Ice Cream, on Page 364 of her Boston Cook Book, orders Foss' Pure Extract of Vanilla, simply because it is fruit in liquid form, and the best. Try it and you will agree with her.

All grocers sell it in Quincy, Wollaston, Braintree, Weymouth and East Weymouth.

A Tailor's Proclamation.

The art of advertising has reached a high pitch of excellence in these days, but old newspapers and circulars furnish some fetching examples which it would be difficult to improve upon. Fifty years ago a Maidstone (England) tailor made this alluring appeal to the public:

"Neoteric cutting. Coats, trousers and vests, in alamodal style and material, are scientifically constructed and symmetrically adjusted to the anthropological flexibilities, for a thaumaturgically minute, prompt, monetary gesticulation." Then follows the address, where your "commands will be executed with rabdological exactitude and melliloquent courtesy."

Bishop Brooks' Joke.

Some years ago Bishop Phillips Brooks was recovering from an illness and was denying himself to all visitors when Robert Ingersoll called. The bishop received him at once. "I appreciate this very much," said Mr. Ingersoll, "but why do you see me when you deny yourself to your friends?" "It is this way," said the bishop. "I feel confident of seeing my friends in the next world, but this may be my last chance of seeing you."

In the History Class.

"Who set fire to the temple of Diana at Ephesus?" asked the teacher, looking sharply at the boy.

"I—I don't know, ma'am," answered the frightened urchin. "As true as I'm settin' here, I didn't have nothin' to do with it."

Love's Young Dream.

A Washington youth wrote home after the elopement, "I am married now, and all my troubles are over." Married men, please don't titter.—Chicago Journal.

Nobody ever pries into another man's concerns but with a design to do or to be able to do him mischief.—South.

PROVIDENCE

To Steam Away Tomorrow Morning.

Almost Too Wide for Point Bridge.

Technical Description of Palatial Steamer.

The departure of the new steamer Providence tomorrow morning will be an event of importance to the city, as it marks the completion of a million dollar palatial floating palace by a Quincy corporation.

In the aggregate, Quincy ships a valuable product of granite every year; other cities ship shoes and other manufactures, but here is one article—a grand steamer for the Fall River line which has been built and fitted wholly in Quincy.

When business calls Quincy people to New York they will take considerable pleasure in travelling in the Providence and telling other passengers that the ship was built in "my city." It will be a good advertisement for Quincy.

The draw of the Quincy Point bridge has an opening lacking but a few inches of 100 feet, and the new steamer has a breadth of about 98 feet, allowing but eighteen inches in the clear for the steamer to get out. The pilot house towers up over 60 feet above the water. It will be worth one's while to arise early tomorrow morning and see the Providence steam away.

The tide will be high at 11.15, but 8 A. M. is the time set for the start.

The Sound Steamer "Providence" built for the Old Colony Steamboat Company, now operated by the new corporation called the New England Navigation Co., built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., of Quincy, from designs prepared by the late George Peirce, formerly superintendent of marine construction for the Old Colony Steamboat Co. Since the death of Mr. Peirce, which occurred soon after the contract was made, the boat has been built under the supervision of Mr. Stevenson Taylor, consulting engineer, marine district of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and Mr. J. Howland Gardner, who succeeded Mr. Peirce as superintendent of marine construction and Mr. William S. Rogers, assistant to Mr. Gardner.

The new vessel has passed all requirements of the U.S. Steamboat Inspection and the Association of Fire Underwriters.

The "Providence", will soon take her place on the Fall River Line, running from Providence to New York, is about a mean in size and dimensions of the other large boats of the line, being very nearly the tonage and dimensions of the "Puritan", somewhat smaller than the "Priscilla", and somewhat larger than the "Plymouth" and "Pilgrim".

The designer adhered to those well known features which have made the line so deservedly successful and popular.

THE HULL.

The hull is constructed of mild steel on the double hull system for the greater part of her length, and in appearance is of the familiar "Sound" type, having straight stem and semi-elliptical stern, with sponsoned wing walls from side wheels tapering gradually forward and aft, adding considerably to the strength and ensuring a great range of stability. Three tiers of deck houses are erected over the main deck and with two large smoke stacks and the usual bunting poles, a particularly pleasing profile is composed. The following are the principal dimensions of the steamer:

	Ft.	In.
Length over all	397
Length on 12 ft. water line	378	6
Breadth molded at widest part	50
Breadth over guards	88
Depth molded at centre	21	10
Dome deck to keel	62
Gross tonnage, 4365

The longitudinal system with double hull on which the "Providence" is built ensures a structure of enormous strength over the usual transverse construction, the double hull being subdivided into about 38 separate watertight compartments which protect the vessel against the risk of damage in grounding, or localize it to a very restricted area. In addition, the hull proper is itself divided by transverse steel bulkheads into eight watertight compartments, these bulkheads being of ample strength to withstand any pressure that may be exerted on them due to any of the large compartments being flooded by collision, ensuring the absolute safety of the vessel in the event of accident.

The vessel has seven decks, comprising lower, main, saloon, gallery, hurricane, break and dome decks. The construction of the hull below and including the main deck, is entirely composed of steel, and above this of wood work connected to steel beams and girders extending the entire length. This method of composite construction ensures an exceptionally light structure, while at the same time the maximum of rigidity is obtained.

THE DECORATION.

The general style of interior architecture and decoration is French Renaissance, strongly influenced by Louis XVI period, that being the most graceful decorative of the French orders and lending itself particularly well to the flowing lines of marine architecture. The color throughout the major portion is in rich old ivory, heavily accentuated with gold in the prominent features of the relief decorations.

The elaborate electric fixtures are of burnished gold finish, handsomely executed, and so distributed among the decorations that while the lighting is brilliant, the effect is a soft diffusion through every portion.

The quarter deck has a rich, heavily carved frieze, the space beneath, to line of dado, is panelled, with classical figure decoration in bas-relief, beautifully modelled and representing music and the dance, full of movement and graceful lines. The floor is of interlocking rubber tiles in handsome designs. The stairway leading from here to saloon and gallery decks is in dark mahogany with artistically carved newels.

The saloon and grand stairway are a fine example of the decorator's art, combining richness of detail and purity of style, treated effectively in soft ivory, heavily enriched with gold, giving full value to the smallest detail of ornament and accentuated with a soft greenish blue sky effect in three circular panels of the dome ceiling. The deck is carpeted in red and the upholstering is of plush of the same color. The effect is rich but refined, carefully planned and executed. The designing of the decorations was in charge of Messrs. Mortensen and Holdensen of Boston, and the modelling of the ornamentation is by Mr. Charles Emmel of Boston.

THE ACCOMMODATIONS.

Beginning with the dome deck the accommodations are as follows:

The staterooms on this deck are arranged in two rows, one on each side of the center line of the vessel, with a fore and aft passageway between. At the after end is situated the president's private stateroom, or director's room. Forward of this there are twenty-eight staterooms. The amidship portion of this deck is given up to the engineer's staff, nine staterooms being provided for this purpose. Quarters for sailors, watchmen, and band are provided at the forward end. A large pilot house is situated at the extreme forward end.

Gallery Deck. This deck is fitted up with two rows of staterooms on each side of the vessel for nearly its entire length, there being one hundred and fifty one staterooms and four parlor rooms, with staterooms for captain, first and second mates, first and second pilots, quarter master and bow watch. Ample toilet accommodation has been provided for both men and women.

NO-LICENSE

Henry H. Faxon Against Granting of Druggists' Licenses.

Editors of the Ledger:

The question of granting sixth-class licenses to druggists is the rock which has wrecked the No-License cause in several of the municipalities of the State, and I regret very much the present agitation on the subject in our city.

In 1882, Quincy, under the local option law, voted out the saloons. At that time I advocated the granting of sixth-class licenses to the druggists which permitted them to dispense liquor for medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes. After two years' trial of this system, during which the majority of the druggists flagrantly abused their privileges, the licensing authorities wisely refused to issue this class of licenses. For a period of twenty-one years this has been the fixed policy of our town and city, and that it has worked admirably is evidenced by the constantly increasing majority for No-License at every election.

I believe that a change in policy by granting these licenses would be detrimental to the public welfare, and a menace to our "No" vote.

Very truly yours,

Henry H. Faxon.

LARGE LOSS OF LIFE.

Some Reports Say From 100 to 150.

The Factory and Adjoining Buildings Destroyed by Fire.

Quincy Men and Women Were Among the Employes at the Factory.

A frightful accident, followed by fire and loss of life took place this morning in the Emerson shoe manufactory of R. B. Grover & Co. at Campello.

The accident was caused by the explosion of the boiler which wrecked that part of the factory. The part directly above collapsed, depositing all of the employes, both men and women together in the wreckage.

Fire immediately followed the explosion, adding horror to the scene. A general fire and police alarm was sounded in Brockton, and all the physicians from surrounding towns were summoned.

At 8.45 o'clock the entire factory had been destroyed, and the fire had communicated to the adjoining block. A telephone message received from Brockton at 10.30 stated that the adjoining block had been destroyed and that the fire was not under control.

Between 50 and 100 are reported as dead, and many others are missing. In the confusion these reports are probably exaggerated.

A telephone message received at the street railway office over its private wire at 10.30 stated that 42 were then unaccounted for.

Of this number 31 were employed in the stitching room. This does not include those killed and injured.

The boiler is said to have been situated directly beneath the stitching room, and the explosion took place shortly after starting up work at 7 A. M.

Many Quincy people are employed in the shoe factories at Brockton, and probably some at Grover's factory. Just who they were, however, could not be learned.

Another report about City Square this morning was that there were three Quincy girls employed in the stitching room. This report could not be verified.

Chief of Police Fitzgerald of Weymouth, who was in Quincy this morning, said that there were quite a number of Weymouth men and girls employed at Grover's factory.

The building was a four story wooden affair, situated on the corner of Main and Calman streets, Campello. It was also surrounded by several other wooden structures.

Late dispatches from Brockton only serve to confirm the horrors of the fire. The Brockton Enterprise posted a bulletin at 10.30 which stated that the dead numbered from 100 to 150. This however is believed to be exaggerated.

A dispatch from the scene, received at the Ledger office at 1 o'clock, stated that twenty-five bodies had already been taken from the ruins and that the work of rescue was still going on. Many of those reported as missing earlier in the day, had been heard from.

Another dispatch state that fully 25,000 people have gathered at the scene, and hundreds more are arriving on every train, and car. Every policeman that could be spared is on duty, and are having their hands full keeping the crowd back.

One of the workmen at the factory, who was in another part of the building at the time of the explosion, says that the scene beggars description. He was completely unnerved by the scenes that he witnessed, and he came away as soon as possible.

The explosion, or whatever it was, came without warning. Suddenly there was a ripping tearing sound, as the boiler lifted and shot out through the end of the building.

Fire almost immediately broke out, and as the workmen hastened toward that part of the building, they looked down into a struggling mass of humanity, among whom the flames had just started.

Some were killed outright, others sustained broken limbs which rendered them helpless, and as the flames crept nearer and nearer their cries were heartrending. It was an awful scene, and more so because the onlookers were powerless to render aid to their suffering comrades.

Those on the scene, with the aid of firemen and policemen, worked heroically at the work of rescue, but the flames spread so rapidly that they could do but little.

It is impossible at this hour to give the names of those killed or injured.

From what the workman referred to above said, it appears that the boiler did not burst; no one knows what caused the accident. He says the boiler seemed to be lifted bodily from its foundation.

It tore away the beams and overhead floor; then went out through the end of the building; then through one corner of a neighboring house, killing the wife of the engineer at the factory who was also killed.

The boiler then struck and broke down a tree, and landed on the sidewalk where it now lies intact.

News of the accident was received early in Quincy and hundreds of people from this city hastened to Brockton and helped to swell the crowd already gathered.

There are quite a few Quincy people employed in Brockton, but so far as could be learned this noon, none worked at this factory. There were several whose names were mentioned but upon investigation it turned out that they were employed elsewhere.

Council Business.

Tonight's meeting of the City Council will be an interesting one. Aside from the regular business such as reports of committees, reception of petitions and new orders, there will be four public hearings. One is on the petition to amend the Woodward Ordinance relative to salaries paid the treasurer, clerk and auditor; one on the petition of Charles C. Hearn for a druggist's liquor license, and two hearings on petitions of the Telephone company for location of poles and attachment of wires.

Monthly Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Junior Auxilary of the Y. M. C. A. was held with Miss Catheryne Hutchins, 54 Bigelow street, Friday afternoon, March 17, at 2.30. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly discussing plans for a gentleman's night to be held in the near future and for the fair which is to be given in May. The solo by Miss Hazel E. Mowry was enjoyed greatly by the members. A special meeting will be held with Miss Avah R. Gilson, April 7, to discuss further the plans for the Y. M. C. A. fair.

TODAY'S COURT.

David Tobin was arraigned for threatening assault at Weymouth. Case continued until March 31.

Battista Crasti was arraigned for keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy. Case continued until March 24.

John J. Tracy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Patrick Holloran was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The New Bedford city council has failed to appropriate the $7,000 necessary to secure an appropriation from the state for the maintenance of the Textile school in that city. There is such a thing as short-sighted economy.—Lowell Mail.

☞Evidently the defeat of the Dominican treaty in the senate is due to the Democratic desire to help out the Republican majority. When the majority has really wanted to ratify a treaty it has never lacked of ways and means for persuading a sufficient number of the minority to join with it in the process. There is every reason to suppose that the Dominican treaty meets disaster because a large share of the Republican members wish only disaster for it. It cannot be said, we think, that the people of this nation are as yet in a condition of great excitment over the matter. There are those who want Mr. Roosevelt to have his way simply because it is his way; and there are those who do not want him have it for the same reason. But as a rule, the condition is one of indifference, and largely of a feeling that after all no great harm will be done even if there is a little more delay.—New Bedford Standard.

RUSES OF BANKERS.

Devices Used to Either Gain Time or Inspire Confidence.

Some amusing anecdotes are told of the devices resorted to by bankers to gain time and inspire confidence. On one memorable occasion the excited subscribers, much to their indignation, were only able to enter the bank one by one except at the cost of spoiled coats, as the cute manager had caused the door posts to be freshly painted.

Another bank prevented a crisis in its affairs by exhibiting in the windows large tubs apparently brimful of sovereigns. These tubs, however, were simply upside down and a small quantity of gold only piled up on their bottoms.

But the most ingenious dodge of all was successfully carried out in Buenos Ayres. There was a run on a large bank, and for several days subscribers besieged the premises, withdrawing money and placing it in another bank on the opposite side of the road. It happened, however, that these two institutions had a private understanding, and as fast as the "safe" bank received the deposits they were returned to the "unsafe" one by an underground passage, with the result that every one marveled at its continued ability to meet its demands.—London News.

IT IS FOR LADIES, TOO.

They Can Stop Their Hair Falling Out With Herpicide.

Ladies who have thin hair and whose hair is falling out, can prevent the hair falling out, and thicken the growth, with Newbro's "Herpicide." Besides, Herpicide is one of the most agreeable hair dressings there is. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ that eats the hair off at the root. After the germ is destroyed, the root will shoot up, and the hair grow long as ever. Even a sample will convince any lady that Newbro's Herpicide is an indispensable toilet requisite. It contains no oil or grease, it will not stain or dye. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

HOLE IN HER BOW

Steamer Spartan Goes Ashore on End of Block Island

FILLED TO LOWER DECK

Half the Crew Brought to Land by Lifesavers--The Bulkheads Break In and Extinguish Fires, Will Be Difficult to Float Her

Block Island, R. I., March 20.—In rounding the southeast end of Block Island, two hours before daylight yesterday morning, the steamer Spartan, Captain Briggs, of the Boston and Philadelphia Steamship company, out on her way from Providence to Philadelphia, grounded on the point and sunk until the water was even with her lower deck, with a 15-foot hole in her bow.

The accident occurred almost under the bluff on which is the powerful Southeast light, equipped with a fog whistle, which, according to those on shore, had been blowing a half hour before the steamer struck. The weather at the time of the accident was somewhat foggy, but the mist was not particularly dense.

The Spartan ran squarely onto the reef that makes out from the end of the island for a distance of a few hundred yards, and as it was high tide at the time, and as she filled to her lower deck almost immediately, the chances of hauling her off appear to be somewhat slim.

The Spartan left Providence Saturday afternoon and made a slow run down Narragansett bay. She passed out by Beaver Tail light early yesterday morning and at once headed for Block Island with the intention of rounding and then keeping on down the coast. In going around the end of the island, for some reason she clung too close to the shore and suddenly fetched up on the reef.

The New Shoreham lifesavers returned at 9:30 o'clock last night with 11 of the crew, including Captain Briggs, the others, numbering 11 men, having decided to remain on the steamer.

Those who landed were the two quartermasters, the fireroom gang and a number of deckhands. They reported that the heavy seas had broken all the bulkheads in the boat and that she was full of water from stem to stern. The waves, when the crew left, were pounding very hard on the stern, which showed some signs of breaking off. It was believed, however, that the balance of the crew would be safe, especially as the steamer was near enough to land to be taken off, if necessary, by the breeches buoy. The breaking in of the bulkheads extinguished the fires and will add greatly to the work of floating the vessel

The members of the crew which came ashore were all housed at the New Shoreham station. They brought many of their personal effects.

Late last night the northeaster which set in early in the evening increased to 13 miles an hour, and again the sea began to hammer against the side of the Spartan.

A patrol from the New Shoreham life-saving station was constantly on the scene, ready to order up the life lines in case the steamer showed signs of breaking up.

The Spartan is a steel steamer of 1596 gross tonnage, 222 feet long, 37 feet broad, 16.5 feet deep, and was built at Wilmington, Del., in 1883.

Warner Elected Senator

Jefferson City, Mo., March 20.—After having been in a deadlock since Jan. 18 over the election of a United States senator to succeed Francis M. Cockrell, the legislature, at 15 minutes before the time set for sine die adjournment, elected William Warner (Rep) of Kansas City to fill the vacancy. The vote stood: Warner, 91; Cockrell, 83; Niedringhaus, 1. Warner was born in Wisconsin in 1840. He is a leading member of the bar and served with distinction in the Civil war.

Unfrocked Minister Gets Four Years

New Brunswick, N. J., March 20.—J. F. Cordova, the unfrocked minister, who twice eloped with Julia Bowne, and who was convicted of abandoning his wife and three children and assaulting his wife, was sentenced to serve four years in prison. The costs imposed will add nearly another year to the sentence and will balance the commutation allowed for good behavior.

Fatal Affray on Cruiser

Vallejo, Cal., March 20.—James A. Cooper is in jail here, charged with shooting A. Dorsett to death on the cruiser Boston. Both were negro attendants. Cooper was placed in irons and brought here. He says he acted in self-defense, as he thought Dorsett was about to attack him with a razor

Dirty Streets Breed Disease

New York, March 20.—Cerebro-spinal meningitis, which has been so prevalent in New York during the winter, has claimed 386 lives since Jan. 1. Most of the victims were children. Some physicians trace the epidemic to the dirty condition of the streets.

Georgia Justice

Sandersville, Ga., March 20.—In the trial of Boss Barrett for killing Gideon L. Mathis, a special police officer, the jury returned a verdict of acquittal. Garrett defied the vaccination ordinance and swore he would kill any man attempting to arrest him.

COLORADO SETS SAIL

New Cruiser May Have Work to Do In Venezuelan Waters

Norfolk, March 20.—Cruiser Colorado has sailed from Hampton Roads. It is understood she is bound for Venezuelan waters, though reports have her going to join the combined fleet near Pensacola. The Colorado has not completed the crew she is supposed to have.

Ten expert torpedo men were sent to the cruiser yesterday. The order for these torpedo experts was received in a personal telegram from Secretary Morton, and the men were taken from the torpedo boat Hopkins, now at the League Island navy yard.

This action of the United States government, if it proves to be directed at Venezuela, is a development of the strained situation caused by President Castro's cutting of the French Cable company's lines. Because of this, France has protested at Caracas and has asked Washington what shall be done. In adddition to the French grievance, American, German and British creditors of Venezuela are moving for settlement of their claims.

Bad Weather at Sea

New York, March 20.—Unusually severe weather has prevailed on the north Atlantic ocean for the past two weeks and great trans-Atlantic liners have, in consequence, been delayed in their arrival. Icebergs and field ice along the steamship lanes are reported by arriving steamers. Off the banks of Newfoundland on Thursday many large bergs were sighted. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until evening the Savoie coasted along a huge ice field, which covered the ocean as far as the eye could reach.

Ambassador Meyer Honored

Rome, March 20.—Seventy members of the aristocracy and court representatives of the Vatican gave a farewell dinner last night to American Ambassador Meyer. Among those present were Princes Triggiano, Paterno, Alfieri, Solofra, Ruspoli and Terranova. The Duke of Sermoneta proposed a toast to Meyer, declaring that his departure is a loss to the society of Rome. Mr. Meyer returned his thanks and said he should always preserve the kindest remembrance of his sojourn in Rome.

Secretary Hay Nearly Collapsed

New York, March 20.—On his way to take a Mediterranean voyage of six weeks to benefit his health, John Hay, secretary of state, nearly collapsed on the dock of the steamer line. A wheel chair was found and he was wheeled to the boat, and with aid was walked down the gangplank. The secretary was ghastly white. His condition has heretofore been studiously kept from the public, even the ship on which he would sail and his destination not being made known.

False Message Brought Death

Cleveland, March 20.—In order to hasten the return of her husband from Erie, Pa., Mrs. Patrick Kinsella of this city sent him a false telegram, announcing the death of his closest friend. Kinsella, finding that it would be some time before he could get a passenger train to Cleveland, boarded a freight train. In some unknown manner he fell under the wheels and was ground to death.

Indian Game Too Realistic

Philadelphia, March 20.—While a half dozen boys were playing "Indian" in the woods at Mount Airy, a suburb of this city, Warren Carr, aged 16, was shot dead with a rifle in the hands of James Hawthorne, aged 17. Hawthorne ran away and has not been found. The other boys who saw the shooting believe that Hawthorne thought the rifle was empty.

Strikers Want to Go Back

New York, March 20.—A committee has been appointed by the Central Federated union to request the officials of the Interborough company to reinstate the employes of the subway and elevated systems who recently went on strike. So far 1500 of the 5000 strikers are back at work.

Vesuvius In Eruption

Naples, March 20.—The activity of Mount Vesuvius continues. The desire of tourists to approach the crater is so urgent that extra guards have been stationed to prevent their passage. Detonations from the volcano are heard a long distance.

Suspected of Killing Neighbor

Fonda, N. Y., March 20.—As a result of an investigation into the murder of Peter Conrad, a farmer, whose body was found in a cow stable, Daniel Smullen, a neighbor of Conrad, is in jail, suspected of being the murderer.

TO the next-of-kin and all persons interested in the estate of of Quincy, in said County, an insane person.

Whereas, Michael A. Berry has presented to said Court his petition, representing that he is desirous of conveying certain real estate, described in said petition, in mortgage; and that his wife is an insane person and is therefore incompetent to release her right of dower and homestead, in said real estate, and praying that James A. Dailey, guardian of said Mary J. Berry may be authorized to release her said rights in said real estate.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the fifth day of April, A. D. 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each of you, fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of March, in the year one thousand nine hundred and five.

ROBBED AND BEATEN

Boston Thugs Commit Daring Crime In a Public Highway

Boston, March 20.—Bernard Olvito, a respectable citizen, was attacked by a gang of thugs, pulled out of his wagon, robbed, beaten and left unconscious in the public and much frequented neighborhood at the Charlestown end of the Chelsea bridge. This is merely one in the recent series of "gang" outrages. In Charlestown a gang of firebugs has destroyed considerably over $1,000,000 worth of property. A gang of pickpockets was recently reported working the "L" and subway cars, and gangs of holdup men are at work on the streets.

The police are making every effort, they say, to break up these "gangs." Police officials say that such gangs are again being formed for predatory raids. In the South End are the Canton street gang, Dedham street gang and Paul street gang. In the North End are several "gangs" known to the police In the West End is the "Charles street gang." In South Boston are a number of "gangs" which for a long time have given the police trouble.

Assault May Have Caused Death

New Haven, March 20.—Carl Carlson, 23 years old, died at the home of his sister under mysterious circumstances. He was taken to police headquarters with a badly battered face and after it was dressed was sent home. Several hours later he was found dead in his room. Medical Examiner Bartlett says that death may have resulted from asphyxiation, as his room was filled with gas from a stove. The police, however, say the young man was a victim of an assault.

Barely Kept Vessel Afloat

Boston, March 20.—After a perilous run of 60 miles around Cape Cod, with her pumps working constantly, schooner James Rothwell, from High Island, Me., to Philadelphia with a cargo of granite, reached here. The Orleans life-saving crew, which boarded the schooner when she was off Chatham, remained on her and assisted the crew in working the pumps on the run back to this port. All hands were much exhausted in their efforts to keep the vessel afloat.

Whittier Charged With Murder

Lynn, Mass., March 20.—That Mrs. Susie A. Fuller, whose bruised body was found in her apartments, and with whose death Seth K. Whittier, her former husband, is charged, met her end as the result of kicks on the head, is the theory of the local authorities. Whittier was arraigned in the local court on a charge of murder and held without bail until March 28. He entered a formal plea of not guilty.

Roughly Handled by Footpads

Salem, Mass., March 20.—Ernest W. Goodspeed was held up, severely beaten and robbed of his watch and a small amount of money by two men on Union street late last night. Goodspeed managed to crawl to the house of an acquaintance, and soon after being taken in the house he lost consciousness. Goodspeed was unable to describe his assailants.

Connecticut Hotel Gutted

Willimantic, Conn., March 20.—Fire which gutted the European hotel block and partially burned the Harrington block caused a loss of $25,000. Twelve boarders were in the European hotel at the time and escaped injury, but lost all their belongings. The fire started in the kitchen of the hotel. The cook, Lizzie Stewart, is said to have lost $1500 in cash.

Hungarian Safely Arrives

Portland, Me., March 20.—Steamship Hungarian of the Allan line, about which there had been some anxiety, arrived yesterday afternoon, having been delayed by rough weather. The Hungarian's passage of nearly 22 days from Glasgow is the longest time taken by any steamer on a trip across the Atlantic to this port.

Heavy Liquor Raid

Rockland, Me., March 20.—Sheriff Tolman chartered a steamer, went to High Head and visited two Italian boarding houses there. When he returned he had a wagon load of liquors of various kinds. Those suspected of having the intoxicants on hand for sale were ordered to appear in court.

A Persistent Incendiary

Hartford, March 20.—Three unsuccessful attempts, all within an hour, were made last evening to burn the house at 13 Columbia street. No clue to the incendiary has been found.

Five Buildings Collapse

New York, March 20.—Five buildings, in course of construction in this city, collapsed yesterday, the sudden change from cold to warm weather and alleged faulty work being given as the cause. It being Sunday, nobody was in the buildings, and no fatalities occurred, although occupants of adjoining buildings which were damaged by the falling walls had in several cases very narrow escapes.

Deliberately Burned to Death

Ringgold, Pa., March 20.—The charred body of Blanche Dinger, 14 years old, was found among the ashes of her father's barn which was burned here. The girl had been despondent over the death of her mother a week ago. It is believed that she set fire to the building and voluntarily burned to death.

Concessions to Mad Mullah

Rome, March 20.—In concluding peace with Great Britain through the mediation of Italy, the Mad Mullah has obtained permission to occupy definitely Illig, a village on Italian territory. Coast rights are granted the Mullah, qualified by a prohibition of trade in arms and slaves.

CITY BREVITIES.

Quite a change in the temperature.

The days are now longer than the nights.

There will be a change of the moon tonight.

Patriots' day will come on Wednesday the 19th of April.

Regular meeting of the City Council this evening with several public hearings.

Rev. H. K. Barstow, rector of St. Stephen's church, Cohasset, will be the preacher at the Wednesday evening service at St. Chrysostom's church.

Work in the granite cutting sheds, which has been suspended owing to the strike since the first of March, was resumed this morning.

The Quincy Quarries Co. are getting out a number of turned columns for the Annapolis Naval academy. The columns are 4 and 5 feet long, and are 3 feet in diameter.

The Quincy No-license league held a meeting Saturday evening. The league will be heard from at the public hearing before the City Council tonight on the petition of Charles C. Hearn for a druggist's liquor license.

The weekly sewing meeting at St. Chrysostom's church will be held on the remaining Friday afternoons of Lent at two. The change has been made to allow the time from 3.30 to 4 for a talk upon Japan which the rector is to give.

The electrics had a hard time this morning owing to the trolley wire becoming coated with ice. It was next to impossible for the cars to move, and in some cases it was necessary to take off the trolley wheel in order to make any headway. Cars were late on all lines.

The Committee on Public Buildings held a prolonged session Saturday night. The subject under discussion was the enlargement of the High school. Mayor Thompson and Commissioner Burke were present at the meeting, and it was after midnight before the committee adjourned.

The meetings at St. Chrysostom's church this week will be as follows: Tuesday, Sunshine club at 3.45. Wednesday, evening service and sermon at 8. Thursday, Guild of St. Perpetua with Mrs. Page at 3.30. Friday, Lenten sewing meeting in parish room at 2. Service and address at 4.

—Indiana has got a real cigarette law. It has been passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor. It prohibits everybody from directly or indirectly selling or giving away a cigarette and from keeping or owning any cigarettes or cigarette paper. There is a fine of $50 for a first offense and the more you smoke or sell cigarettes the greater the fine, and if the offense is persisted in, jail stares the offender in the face. The result of the passage of the law will be awaited with interest. This is the first state to make it an offense to own a cigarette.—Banker and Tradesman.

A PEACE "FEELER"

One of Czar's Advisors Tells What Might Be Done

DEFEAT ACKNOWLEDGED

Russia Would Be Willing to Renounce Manchurian Policy, but Finds No Precedent In History For Payment of Indemnity

St. Petersburg, March 20.—While Emperor Nicholas, whose word is final, still declines to abandon the prosecution of the war, and the government maintains its ability to continue the conflict, it is known that powerful influences, including several of the czar's own ministers, are now strongly urging that the time has come to indicate to Japan Russia's desire for peace upon a reasonable basis.

Should Japan then attempt to impose too onerous conditions, these influences argue that, in view of the universal wish to see the bloody conflict ended, Russia's position will be strengthened abroad by the alienation of sympathy from Japan, and the situation at home improved when the nation is made to understand that the czar's pacific proposals have been met with impossible terms.

One of the czar's ministers, in a conversation with a press correspondent last night, said:

"We have suffered bitter defeat on land and sea. We can, however, still continue the war. But both countries have suffered great losses in blood and treasure; it would only profit the rivals of both were we to fight on until one or the other is exhausted. Russia has a hard task fighting the war against such adversaries, 6000 miles from home, and I contend she can make a dignified peace, without glory, but not without honor.

"As the victor on land and sea, Japan can afford to remember, as Bismarck did at the conclusion of the Austro-Prussian war, that two countries which must live through the long future as neighbors may need each other's friendship. Japan may consider the time propitious, on account of the situation in European Russia, to try and crush us.

"Suppose, for the sake of argument, she succeeded in finally forcing a humiliating peace; it could not be more than an armed truce. Russia is too big and powerful to retire permanently from the field. The clouds at home will eventually roll away. With the army and navy reorganized, there will come inevitably our revenge. No permanent peace is possible now or later unless Japan is reasonable."

To the suggestion of the possibility of an alliance between Russia and Japan, the minister said:

"A reasonable peace must first be established."

"What," was asked, "would be reasonable?"

"Broadly speaking, Russia's renunciation of her entire Manchurian policy should satisfy Japan's claims. She could have her protectorate over Korea, such privileges on the Kwantung peninsula and at Port Arthur as the powers would not oppose, and the Chinese Eastern railway be placed under international control, Russia maintaining her rights to a railway line through northern Manchuria to Vladivostok."

"What would be Russia's attitude on the subject of indemnity?"

"Russia never yet has paid indemnity, and history practically affords no precedent for indemnity when territory is not occupied to insure payment, and Japan holds not a foot of Russian territory. Japan could, however, take the proceeds of the sale of the property and rights of the Chinese Eastern railway, which was built with Russian money."

Proceeding, the minister said the difficulties of continuing the war were fully appreciated both from a military and financial standpoint, but neither was insurmountable. He denied emphatically that the negotiations for a French loan were adjourned because Russia would not make peace. He expected that these negotiations would be resumed soon. The success of the international loan, the minister said, is assured. As for the question of a new army, much depended upon the exact situation when General Linevitch got the army out of danger.

Linevitch Continues Flight

Gunshu, Manchuria (120 miles above Tie Pass), March 20.—Hammering incessantly at the retreating Russians, the advance of whom are nearing here, the Japanese are chasing the czar's shattered army northward and inflicting much damage. Yesterday the last of the Russians were driven from Kaiyuen, 20 miles north of Tie Pass, after they had fired the railroad station.

The Japanese have begun a flanking movement to cut off retreat to Harbin. Their batteries are wreaking deadly execution among the ranks of the Russians, from whose lines the foe is visible.

It is feared that General Linevitch is doomed to utter defeat, and the railroad is reported menaced, and the Japanese are vigorously pressing home their very great advantage.

The Japanese in battle employed phenomenal tactics, innovations unknown to European military practice, showing that they are not copyists. One Japanese detachment had the Russians beaten near the northern tombs, and could have entered Mukden two days earlier, but retreated, simultaneously opposing the Russian regiments. When the army arrived at Tie Pass everything was inadequate to the wants of the occasion. The city was filled with troops, crowding every available space, and all superfluous rolling stock, and even now there is nothing better to accommodate the army.

Victories Easier Than Expected

Tokio, March 20.—The capture of Tie Pass and Mukden was effected much easier than was anticipated, according to a dispatch from General Kuroki, who says that the greatly elated army shows how thoroughly beaten are the Russians. General Kuroki's army continues to lead the Japanese forces, which have now been engaged for nine days in a hard pursuit, in which they have covered a distance of more than 95 miles with frequent fighting. The Russian retreat has become more disorganized daily.

General Kuroki's army captured the colors of the Fifth regiment of rifles. The colors were inscribed as having been presented by the czar in 1834. Most of the captured organizations succeeded in burning their standards before surrendering. A few prisoners are secured daily.

Russia's Internal Troubles

St. Petersburg, March 20.—Provincial journals bring alarming reports of peasant disorders in southern Russia, showing that an actual reign of terror already exists in some districts. Not only are estates plundered and buildings burned, but landlords are murdered. In some places actual battles have occurred between armed Moujiks and estate guardians. Millions of copies of two documents have been circulated by agitators, telling the peasants that the czar has decreed a division of land.

Sedition In Poland

Warsaw, March 20.—The working classes are greatly excited in anticipation of orders for mobilization. The men are determined to offer violent opposition. Scarcely a day passes without the appearance of seditious pamphlets.

Japanese Destroyer Lost

Better Robbed Than Robber

Pueblo, Col., March 20.—Former Governor Alva Adams was welcomed home last evening by one of the largest and most enthusiastic popular demonstrations in the city's history. Adams delivered a short address in which he said: "I come home to you defeated, but my hands are clean and I feel at this hour that I would rather be robbed than to rob. I hope to see the hour when retribution will come down on those men of Colorado who are controlled by corporations and serve these corporations as their masters."

Suit Against Tobacco Concerns

New York, March 20.—District Attorney Jerome has brought suits aggregating $267,000 against the American Tobacco company, the Continental Tobacco company, the American Cigar company and the Florodora Tag company, all subsidiary concerns of the American Tobacco Trust, alleging violation of the lottery laws of the state. The suits grew out of the guessing contests organized by the concerns.

Proposed Deal In Addicks' Favor

Dover, Del., March 20.—Senator Alee announces that if the two factions of the Republican party in Delaware will unite and elect Dupont or any other Republican as his successor next week and elect Addicks for the term beginning March 4, 1905, he (Alee) will present his resignation to the governor to show that he desires to see the state fully represented in the senate.

A Protest From France

Washington, March 20.—Minister Bowen, at Caracas, has cabled that the French minister at that place has protested to the Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs against the action of the government, which has given notice to the French Cable company of its intention to annul its concession and seize its property. There are no details in Bowen's dispatch.

Train Plunged Down Embankment

Hammond, Ind., March 20.—An express train, while running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, plunged down a 20-foot embankment near Winfield, injuring 12 people, two of whom may die. Many of the passengers had narrow escapes from death.

Part of Town Under Water

Warren, Pa., March 20.—Warren is experiencing a flood of serious proportions. The lower parts of the town are inundated and dozens are rendered homeless. The island portion of the town is covered with four feet of water.

Drouth and Forest Fires

Honolulu, March 20.—A forest fire is burning at the Oloa homesteads, Hawaii. A forest fire is raging also at Wahiawa, this island. The drouth continues and valuable forests and the cattle of Hawaii island are suffering.

Theatre Gallery Collapsed

Santiago, Chile, March 20.—An accident which occurred in the Lyric theatre here was caused by the collapse of the gallery. Four persons were killed and a great number injured.

MINERS ENTOMBED

Twenty-Four Men Dead as a Result of Explosions

TEN MEN FIRST KILLED

Rescuing Party of Fourteen Entered Mine and Had Lives Snuffed Out by Second Explosion and Afterdamp

Charleston, W. Va., March 20.—As the result of an explosion in the Rush Run and Red Ash mines near Thurmond, 24 men now lie stark in death in the two mines. Ten of these were killed in an explosion Saturday night and the other 14 were a rescuing party who entered the mine yesterday to take from the mines the charred and blackened remains of thir fellow-workmen. These latter were killed by a second explosion and the afterdamp.

The first explosion seemed to shake the foundations of the mountains, and the angry twin flash from the two neighboring drift mouths lighted up the heavens for miles around. Soon, from the mining villages for several miles up and down the river, hundreds of people rushed to the scene of the disaster.

The first explosion was caused by a "naked" flame coming in contact with the gas. The flames leaped from the drift mouth and set fire to everything in reach that was not blown out of harm's way by the force of the explosion. The great drum by which the loaded cars are run from the drift mouth down the incline to the tipple and the empties drawn up, was blown from its moorings and down the mountain side 600 feet, while the drum-house caught fire and was totally consumed. The big fan which furnished air in the mine was so damaged that it was several hours before it could be started again.

After considerable time the great fan was repaired and the power turned on and it began drawing 100,000 cubic feet of air through the charnel house each minute. A rescue party was formed and about 20 men entered the mine in search of the dead bodies of those who had perished at the first explosion. The men explored the mines for two or three hours, putting up brattices so that pure air should follow them wherever they went. Finally some of them came out and reported that the others were too careless in going forward faster than the good air was being supplied, carrying at the same time a "naked" light.

At 3:45 another awful explosion occurred, caused by the gas coming in contact with the "naked" flame of a miner's lamp and 14 more souls were launched into eternity. This explosion was not so forcible as the former, but more awful in its effects, and was followed by a shorter, thinner tongue of flame, followed by a silence so deadly that it seemed physically painful, and darkness impenetrable.

Mine Inspector Pinckney soon arrived on the ground and took charge of the rescue work. The second explosion again damaged the fan and Pinckney will allow no one to enter the mine until it is working properly and a draft of fresh air is running through the mine. When this is done, he will lead the rescue squad himself.

Terrible Fall to Death

Wallace, Ida., March 20.—W. A. Middlekarf was killed and L. M. Odell seriously injured by falling out of a balloon while making an ascension here. Both men were seated in parachutes and when they had ascended 200 feet the lower part of the balloon tore away. The parachutes failed to open, and both men fell among the spectators with terrific force. Middlekarf had nearly every bone in his body broken.

Dominican Treaty Still Pending

Washington, March 20.—The special session of the senate has adjourned without day. Most of the last day's session was devoted to the Santo Domingo question. No motion had been made to recommit the treaty, and it was allowed to remain in the calendar. It will be the pending business in executive session when the senate next meets whether it be in special or regular session.

Unsatisfactory Police System

New York, March 20.—The committee of nine, appointed at a public meeting of citizens to inquire into the organization, discipline and administration of the police force, has given out a preliminary report which declares that the conditions produced by the present police system are unsatisfactory both to the citizens and the majority of the force.

Street Cleaners' Complaint

New York, March 20.—Startling charges of corruption and petty persecution for alleged violation of arbitrary rules of the department are made in an appeal to the mayor and others by members of the street cleaning department. It is declared the men are cheated out of $270 a year out of the total amount of $870 they earn.

Floods In Northern New York

Malone, N. Y., March 20.—For the first time this winter a sudden thaw, accompanied by a steady downpour of rain, has created havoc throughout all northern New York. The rivers rose rapidly and several bridges were carried away. The weather is somewhat colder and the worst is over.

THE BELTED PLAID.

This Was the Original Dress of the Scottish Highlander.

The original dress of the highlander was the belted plaid. This was a piece of tartan cloth, two yards broad and four long, which was drawn around the waist in nicely adjusted folds and tightly buckled with a belt. The lower part came down to the knees in much the same manner as the modern kilt, while the upper part was drawn up and adjusted to the left shoulder, so that the right arm might be perfectly free. This upper part was the plaid, which was used as a covering for the shoulders and body in wet weather, and when the use of both arms was required it was fastened across the breast with a brooch, often curiously enriched. A brooch was also used to fasten the plaid on the left shoulder. To attire himself in the belted plaid required on the part of the highlander no small amount of dexterity. The usual way was to lay it on the floor and after carefully arranging the folds to lie down upon it and then buckle it on. The lower end was fastened at the right hip. The utility of such a dress in the highlands is obvious, for the plaid rendered the man indifferent to storms and prepared to pass a night in the open air in the most inclement weather, while the loose undergarment enabled him to wade rivers or ascend mountains with equal ease. It was thus peculiarly adapted to the warrior, the hunter and the shepherd.—London Mail.

PRAIRIE DOGS.

Choked Up a River While Traveling From Oklahoma to Texas.

"The prairie dog migration from Oklahoma to southwestern Texas during July, 1874, eclipsed anything of that sort witnessed by white men in this country," said a veteran who saw it. "Millions of the frisky little barkers must have been in quest of new pastures or perhaps feared the approaching legions of home seekers would surely exterminate the dogs and plow up the dog towns. The prairie dog migration from the north to the southwest lasted six days during the month of July, 1874. The traveling dogs while crossing the Red river interfered to a great extent with the cattle that came to that stream to quench their thirst. Some cowboys that were on the banks of Red river during the time when the prairie dogs swam across say that the stream was chock full of the little rascals for many miles up and down the river. The thirsty cattle were either unable or unwilling to stick their mouths into the water through the moving mass of living prairie dogs. The cowboys were getting ready to drive the famishing stock to a distant stream, but the Red river became clear of the repelling swimmers after blocking the useful drinking place for about a week. It was generally supposed that the dogs halted when they had reached the staked plains of Texas."—Kansas City Times.

The Pin In England.

The date of the first manufacture of pins in England is shrouded in uncertainty, but it is authentically recorded that as early as 1464, when money was "tight," extensive cloth workers compelled their laborers to accept in payment for their work "pins, girdles and other unprofitable wares instead of money." The march of improvement had begun and kept on steadily until toward the middle of the sixteenth century pins began to win appreciation so high that statutes were enacted protecting their manufacture, and rigid laws were passed prohibiting the importation of numerous minor articles, including pins, gloves, knives, tailors' shears, scissors and irons. Up to this period female dress was fastened with ribbons, laces, clasps, hooks and eyes and skewers of brass, silver and gold. The latter were, in fact, pins without heads.—London Globe.

Wild Flowers of Alaska.

Up in "green Alaska," as John Burroughs found it, the predominating color of the wild flowers is blue. The wild geranium is blue and tinges the slopes as daisies and buttercups do with us. He speaks of "patches of a most exquisite forgetmenot of pure, delicate blue with yellow center that grew to the height of about a foot. A handful of it looked like something just caught out of the sky above." In another paragraph he speaks of the forgetmenot growing round an Eskimo encampment at Plover bay, within sight of the Siberian coast, that was scarcely an inch high, of deep ultramarine blue, "the deepest, most intense blue I ever saw in a wild flower."

Fish Out of Water.

Many people think that fish when taken out of water die because air has a fatal effect on them. The real reason, however, is that their delicate gill filaments or membranes become dry and stick together, so that no air can can pass between them. Thus they lose the power to imbibe necessary oxygen, and the circulation of their blood stops. The painful gasping of a fish out of water is nature's effort to free the passage through the filaments.

Soft.

"Don't you think the custom of throwing rice at a newly married couple is idiotic?" asked the fluffy haired maid.

"Sure," answered the savage old bachelor. "Mush would be a great deal more appropriate."—Chicago News.

LAND COURT.

TO Thomas A. Whalen, Alice Whalen, Olive A. Holbrook, Henrietta Holbrook and Elizabeth L. Lowe, of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Paul T. Baxter, now or formerly of Irving, in the State of Nebraska or his heirs, devisees or legal representatives, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Emma J. McMurray of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, and being lot numbered one in section four on a plan of lands of the Bellevue Park Land Association in said Quincy, drawn by William A. Garbett, surveyor, dated Sept. 14, 1871, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 424, page 28, bounded: Southeasterly on Broadway, eighty (80) feet; southwesterly on lot numbered two in said section, one hundred eight and 33-100 (108.33) feet; northwesterly on lot numbered fourteen in said section, eighty and 42-100 (80.42) feet; northeasterly on Broadway, one hundred (100) feet.

Also another parcel and strip of land in said Quincy, on Bellevue Plans in section four on plan of lots drawn March 1, 1842, by said William A. Garbett, being triangular in form, and bounded: On Bowdoin Street, six (6) feet eight (8) inches; northwest by lot fourteen (14) on said plan; northeast by land of Alice Whalen, eighty and 42-100 (80 42) feet to a certain stake at the junction between lot fourteen and one on said plan; southwest on lot one about eighty feet to point of beginning.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in said County of Suffolk, on the seventeenth day of April, A. D., 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day of March, in the year nineteen hundred and five.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

AMONG THE LEADERS

Quincy Well to Front in School Contest.

Just 100 schools are now entered in the Herald contest in the greater Boston district, and Quincy is a good second by the latest announcement.

The number of teachers entered is even larger, but again Miss Julia E. Underwood of Quincy is second. Three will win in each district and it will be a hustle to keep Miss Underwood in the "charmed circle" with the keen competion that has developed. However her friends have a large reserve vote.

The Quincy pupils are better united than in most cities and Henry C. Prescott leads in the district. He has a close rival however.

The standing of the leaders today:

SCHOOL CONTEST.

Break in City Square.

Some persons unknown, evidently boys, broke into the store of V. E. Miller on Sunday and carried away a quantity of oranges. Entrance was made through the rear window. This is the second time that a similar break has been made.

ORIENTAL COURTESY.

An Incident In Which Miss Anna Dickinson Figured.

Miss Anna Dickinson traveled everywhere independently and saw human nature in all of its lairs. Writing to a woman friend once, she described a reception given by wealthy Chinamen in a restaurant kept by Chi Lung in San Francisco, and she was the guest of honor. She said that she saw a servant coming toward her with a box divided into many compartments, with different kinds of nuts and candies in the smaller trays. She picked out half a dozen or more and laid them on the arm of the chair, which served as a table. As the attendant passed on to others she saw that each took only one bonbon, and she was much embarrassed.

But when the servant approached the chief Chinaman, the one who had originated the reception, he took a large handful, and those after him did the same, and then Miss Dickinson felt relieved. She wrote:

"After I learned that I must have shocked all of those educated, cultured Chinamen as much as you or I should have been shocked if we had invited a Chinaman whom we respected to dine with us and he had taken a whole fried chicken and torn it limb from limb at our table. In such an event would you or I have had the tact and courtesy to have taken other chickens and thus dismembered them?"

RUSSIAN WOMEN.

The Many Restrictions to Which They Are Now Subjected.

It is difficult for an American to understand that freedom as we know it does not exist in Russia. There the legal position of woman is far from satisfactory. She hardly ever belongs to herself, but is always under the tutelage of some one.

As a daughter the Russian woman is under the entire control of her parents. Her coming of age does not alter her position. She simply changes the authority of her parents for the no less rigid authority of her husband. As the Russian statute puts it, "One person cannot reasonably be expected to fully satisfy two such unlimited powers as that of husband and parent."

The unlimited power of the parent is withdrawn and that of the husband substituted. She cannot leave her lord even to visit a neighboring town without a "pass" from him. He names the time she is permitted to stay, and at the end of that time she is bound to return to get the pass renewed.

A husband may appear in a court of law as a witness against his wife, but a wife is not allowed to appear against her husband. A woman's evidence in Russia is always regarded as of less weight than that of a man.—Harper's Weekly.

A new house is being erected at the foot of Edison street.

Shipbuilders' Club.

On Friday, March 17, instead of the usual weekly entertainment at the Shipbuilders' club, a special general meeting was held for the purpose of reading and confirming the constitution and rules as drawn up by the committee appointed for that purpose. With the exception of one or two minor modifications, the rules as read, were unanimously adopted. Nominations for the various offices were then invited, the voting for which will take place two weeks hence.

The treasurer of the club read a balance sheet of the proceeds derived from the inspection of the "Providence," as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Tickets issued 1600
Tickets sold 1335
Tickets taken at ship 1239 including 29 complimentary tickets
Total cash received	$333.75
less expenses	63.60
Total balance	$270.19

EXPENDITURES

Prescott, printing and advertising	$14.50
Green, printing and advertising	4.25
Yule, refreshments,	9.75
Incidentals badges, postage, etc.	6.05
Platform across Bent's Creek	19.10
Police fees	10.00
Total	$63.65

Considering the short notice given the public, and the hurried arrangements generally, the result may be considered perfectly satisfactory to all concerned. It is intended to hold other functions at an early date so that a substantial fund will be available, when the new club premises are ready for furnishing early in June. The management of the works have readily acceded to the members' wishes to have more suitable quarters, and are doing all in their power to assist the committee in making the club thorough successful.

CHAPTER XV.

IF Mrs. Ward expected to startle Derrington into a confession she was never more mistaken in her calculations. Lord Derrington had not moved in diplomatic circles all his life without knowing how to guard against the display of emotion. With an utterly expressionless face he looked at the stiletto. It was a slender steel blade with a silver handle of renaissance workmanship, evidently a valuable and curious relic of the middle ages. But Derrington stared at it as though he knew nothing about it.

"Well," said Mrs. Ward sharply and rather disappointed he did not grovel on the instant, "what do you say?"

Derrington looked at her in rather a humorous manner. "What do you want me to say?" he asked. "Confess that I killed Mrs. Jersey and then brought this weapon carefully home in my pocket for you to discover and use against me?"

"That is a subterfuge," said Mrs. Ward. "You did not expect to find me waiting for you, and you never meant that dagger to be discovered, Lord Derrington."

"I certainly never did," he assented heartily. "I cannot imagine how you came to know more than I did."

"What do you mean?" asked the little woman sharply.

"Well, you see," said Lord Derrington quietly, "this is a very clever bit of business on your part, but so far as I am concerned it has nothing to do with me. I never saw that weapon before."

"Oh, that's rubbish!" said Mrs. Ward with a mirthless laugh. "I found it in the pocket of your fur coat on the very"—

"You say you found it there," said Derrington meaningly.

"Do you deny that it was in the pocket?"

"Certainly. Had it been in the pocket I should have known it was there. But it was not in the pocket."

Mrs. Ward stared. "You are very brazen," she said. "You knew it was there all the time."

"In the pocket?" asked Derrington politely and perfectly calm.

Mrs. Ward hesitated. Then she faced him defiantly. "I am so sure of my ground," she declared, "that I don't mind saying it wasn't exactly in the pocket. There was a hole in the pocket, and the dagger had slipped down into the lining between the inside fur and the outer cloth. It lay sideways, and what with its position and the heavy fur"—

"I could not have known it was there," finished Derrington, balancing a paper cutter on his forefinger. "You have found a mare's nest, my dear Mrs. Ward, and if this is your trump card I am sorry to say it won't take the trick you wish to secure. I did not know that this"—he touched the stiletto—"was in the lining of my fur coat."

"Then it was, and Mrs. Jersey was stabbed with it."

"Isn't that taking a great deal for granted?" said Derrington, with raised brows. "Mrs. Jersey, according to the doctor, if I recall the report of the inquest rightly, was certainly stabbed with a weapon similar to this, but why do you say this is the one?"

"Because I believe you were in the house on that night."

"Which house? Be explicit, please."

Mrs. Ward was growing angry at this calm defiance. "In the house in Amelia square. You went there to prevent that Brendon creature from making Mrs. Jersey confess."

Lord Derrington laughed. "You would not make a good lawyer," said he. "By your own showing I did not know that Brendon was to be at Mrs. Jersey's on that night."

"I certainly came to tell you," said Mrs. Ward, feeling that she had missed a point, "but you could easily have heard it elsewhere."

"Who from? Brendon did not advertise in the papers that he was stopping with Mrs. Jersey on the night in question."

The little woman rose to her feet with an artificial laugh and shook out perfume from her silken skirts. "You are very clever and obstinate, Lord Derrington, but how will you explain this"—she pointed to the stiletto—"to the authorities?"

"There will be no need for me to do that," said Derrington, and took up the weapon. Mrs. Ward stretched out her hand.

"My property, if you please, Lord Derrington."

The old gentleman opened a drawer, dropped the weapon into it and closed the drawer with a snap. "It's locked now," he said coolly. "I shall take charge of this."

"How dare you? I insist"—

"Oh, dear, no! You insist on nothing." Lord Derrington rose, looking like a giant as he towered over the little woman. "My dear Mrs. Ward," said he quietly, but in his deepest tones, "I have been very patient with you, but this thing must end. You must promise to hold your tongue about Brendon and"—

"And about you, I suppose," she sneered.

"About me?" Derrington's tone expressed surprise. "What have you to hold your tongue about as regards me?"

Mrs. Ward stamped, though as a rule she was not given to betraying violent emotion. "Oh, it's too ridiculous!" she said furiously. "I can say to the police how I found the stiletto in your coat."

"I should advise you not to talk to any one about a thing which exists only in your imagination."

"The stiletto"—

"What are you talking of, Mrs. Ward?"

"It's in that drawer." She pointed to the table.

"Oh, dear, no, it isn't," said Derrington blandly; "there is no stiletto; there never was one. We have had a nice talk, and now we must part."

"Not before I have had my say," said Mrs. Ward savagely. "I see perfectly well that I have been foolish to let that stiletto get into your hands, but I thought I was dealing with a man of honor."

"Ah, Mrs. Ward, few of us can aspire to your high principles!"

The sneer infuriated her. "You can deny the stiletto if you like to the public, but you dare not do so to me."

"Why not? For the sake of argument we will admit the existence of the weapon. You come here with it in your hand and state that you found it in my coat—in the lining of the coat. By doing so you have defeated your own object. Had you produced the weapon from the coat and showed it to me at the very moment, your accusation might have held water. As it is the thing is simply ridiculous. You come here, you accuse me of a crime"—

"I did not accuse you," said Mrs. Ward, beginning to find that Derrington was too much even for her. "I believe Brendon killed the woman—oh, yes! You went to the house, and you saw him. He and Mrs. Jersey had words, as she would not confess, and Brendon killed her with the stiletto. Then you came in, and to save him you put the dagger into your pocket, sent him up to bed and promised to hold your tongue, and"—

Derrington laughed. "You have a most vivid imagination, Mrs. Ward," he said, with a shrug; "but, as it happens, you are talking nonsense. I was not at Amelia square that evening, but at my club, as any member then present can assure you. I can prove an alibi from the minute I left this house to the minute I returned to find you here. As to the stiletto you say you took out of my pocket, that is rubbish. On the whole, I think you had better hold your tongue."

"If I go to the police they will open that drawer."

"Oh, no! An Englishman's house is his castle, you know, and a man in my position cannot be treated in the way you suggest with impunity. Moreover, Mrs. Ward, there is ample time to destroy the stiletto."

"Which you will do," she said, recovering her composure now that she found it was useless to protest.

"No. I wouldn't even mind showing it to the police and saying how you brought it here with an accusation. If the police can prove that this is the weapon with which Mrs. Jersey was stabbed, and if you and the police can prove that the stiletto was in my pocket on the night of the murder, then you and the police are extremely clever."

"Oh, very well," said Mrs. Ward, realizing her defeat, "I shall say nothing about you. But Brendon"—

"You will hold your tongue about him also. I quite understand how you proposed to hold this stiletto and the tale of its being discovered in my pocket over me. If I did not consent to the marriage of Miss Ward and Walter—eh?"

"She shall marry him."

"Why do you hate Brendon so?" asked Derrington. "I know he is a strong man, and for the money's sake you do not want him to be your son-in-law. But even this does not account for your hatred. Why do you hate him?"

"I have nothing to say," retorted Mrs. Ward, who had flushed and paled alternately during this speech. "Please see me to the door."

MAIDEN TRIP.

Of Steamer Providence to New York.

Hundreds See Her Steam Away.

And Many Would Liked to Have Been Passengers.

A crowd of several hundred people gathered on the Quincy Point bridge and adjoining wharves this morning to see that floating palace, the steamer Providence, start on her maiden trip.

The steamer left her moorings in Bent's creek shortly after 9 o'clock, and accompanied by two tugs came gracefully down the river. The great white steamer towered above the little tugs like a mountain. Flags were flying from the steamer and it was a magnificent sight.

There was but a small leeway between the beam of the steamer and the opening of the draw, but it was hoped she would get safely through. It was a little after 9 30 when she approached the draw, her big paddle wheels turning slowly.

Quite a stiff breeze was blowing and it was a difficult job. Suddenly there was a crash which shook the very foundation of the bridge, and for a moment many feared that the Quincy abutment of the bridge had been carried away.

The guard rail of the steamer had struck the bridge a savage blow, but evidently did not injure either. The force of the blow caused the steamer to rebound, and then the paddle wheel caught in the dolphin piling and held her fast.

Officer Larkin quickly drove the crowd away from the bridge opening, as it was feared some one might get injured.

It was impossible to move the steamer, as she was stuck hard and fast. The officials did not dare to pull her back or pull her ahead. The tugs worked about her for some time without success. In the meantime the tide was constantly rising and about 10.30 she cleared.

Again the paddle wheels began to move, and she slowly forged ahead and in a few minutes was entirely free from the bridge. As she swung around, so as to follow the course of the channel, whistles on the tugs and at the works announced that the steamer had started on her trip to New York.

It was a grand sight to watch her as she steamed away, and there were few of the hundreds of watchers who would not have been glad of the opportunity to have taken the trip to New York.

DESCRIPTION.

A description of the steamer Providence was started in Mondays Ledger, and is continued below:

Saloon Deck. The saloon deck is arranged somewhat similarly to gallery deck just described; 159 staterooms being fitted, six parlor staterooms, each fitted with a large bed and one additional with bath room attached. These handsome staterooms are daintily decorated with ornaments in low relief and finished in cream and gold in pure Louis XVI style. At the after end of the saloon deck the music room has been built with all its fittings and furnishings in perfect harmony with the surroundings.

Main Deck. At the after end of the main deck the quarters for women have been placed, comprising staterooms with thirty five berths. The position of these quarters ensures complete privacy. Special toilet arrangements have been installed in convenient positions.

Forward of this is the social hall, quarter deck, purser's office, barber shop, bar, coat room and men's toilet, with the cargo space measuring about 85,000 cubic feet placed amidships. Accommodations for steerage passengers are located forward. The men's and women,s quarters are both fitted up with the most modern sanitary arrangements. In the men's quarters there are 45 pipe berths and in the woman's 69 pipe berths. At the extreme forward the firemen's quarters are situated, eighteen metal berths being provided in an ample and roomy forecastle.

The main dining room is on the lower deck aft and is accessible either by way of the quarter deck or by a staircase leading down to the social hall from the saloon deck. The dining room is very attractive ornamentally, and decorated in cream and gold. An innovation in steambeat practice has been introduced here by having on each table electric candelabra of four lights each, shaded with silk shades, giving a mellow and exquisite effect. The private dining room in the forward part of the main room is handsomely panelled in teak and lighted by electric lights concealed in the cornice.

There is an additional dining room for the ship's complement and forward passengers on the lower deck forward. Around the sides of this room are fifteen large staterooms, fitted with berths in usual the manner.

Amidships, on starboard, abreast engine room, are fitted five staterooms for cooks, porter's shop, engineer's stores, etc. Port side is arranged with pantries, kitchen and butcher shop.

The crew's forecastle is at the extreme forward end and contains thirty pipe berths in a large and well ventilated space.

Quarters for stewards and servants are arranged below the lower deck.

Particular care and attention has been given to thorough ventilation, and the most approved systems and appliances adopted and so regulated that the air can be changed in all the staterooms, dining rooms, pantries and kitchens, not naturally ventilated, to provide at all times an abundance of fresh air. For this purpose large blowers have been installed.

LEAVE TO WITHDRAW VOTED

Hearing Also Relative to Salaries From the Dr. Woodward Fund.

Considerable New Business--Reports, Orders, Petitions, Etc,

REV. AMBROSE F. ROCHE,
Pastor of St. Mary's Church.

Monday night's meeting of the City Council was one of the largest attended meetings ever held. The unusual interest was on account of the public hearings on granting sixth class liquor licenses, and on amending the Woodward Ordinance.

Both of these hearings attracted many citizens who occupied a larger part of the time of the council up to 11.15.

Geo. T. Magee was elected clerk pro tem. Councilman Savage was the only absentee.

The Mayor, City Clerk, and Council-Burgess drew Edward F. Drohan as a grand juror

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from Edward J. Murphy and S. F. Copeland for sixth class liquor licenses. Laid on the table.

Councilman Stone presented a petition for a public float and landing at foot of Sea street. To Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Stewart presented a petition for street lights at Germantown. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Flaherty presented a petition for a fire alarm box at the corner of Willard and West streets. To Committee on Fire Department.

Petitions were received for the refunding of $43.20 and $13.50, one-half cost of edgestones on Centre street. To Committee on Finance.

A petition was received from L. B. Titus for permission to plant and grow oysters on flats adjoining Squantum and Little Moon Island. To Committee on Licenses.

The New England Telephone Co. presented petitions for permission to attach wires to poles on Cranch, Whitwell and Edwards street, and for locations for poles on Granite and Quarry streets and Warren avenue. To Committee on Streets.

A public hearing was held on petitions of the New England Telephone Co. for attachment of wires to poles on Miller, Cross and River streets, Brook road, North and South Central avenues, Highland avenue, Billings road and West Elm avenue, and for a location for three poles on Park street. No one appeared and the orders were recommitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Streets reported on orders as follows:

A public hearing on petition of William Cashman to cross Furnace avenue with a railroad track at grade.

A public hearing on petition of the Old Colony street railway for a double track location over the new Atlantic bridge.

A public hearing on petition of New England Telephone Company to attach wires to poles on Taylor and Squantum streets.

Ought to pass on the order for $7,000 for street watering.

The Special Committee on Gas reported that the quality of gas was poor and price exhorbitant and presented a petition for cheaper gas and better service and that the Mayor be requested to complain to the Gas and Electric Light Commission. Adopted.

PRESIDENT NICHOLS,
Who desired to be recorded on the License Vote.

The Committee on Fire Department reported no legislation necessary on the order for a fire alarm whistle at Quincy Point.

The Committee on Fire Department reported an order for $3,500 for a combination truck and purchase of horses for Houghs Neck. To Committee on Finance.

NEW ORDERS.

Councilman Hynes offered an order for lights on Curtis avenue. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Gassett offered an order for discontinuing a part of Sea street. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Bass offered an order transferring $48.16 from any unexpended balances to advertising and election expenses for City Clerk for 1904. To Finance Committee.

Councilman Spargo offered an order for three lights on Federal avenue. To Committee on Streets.

It was voted when the Council adjourn it be for one week.

WOODWARD HEARING.

A public hearing was held on the petition to amend the Woodward Ordinance with reference to salaries paid the treasurer, clerk and auditor.

Rev. F. W. Pratt spoke for the petition. It was the duty of the City Treasurer to look after this money as Quincy money. Now $800 is taken from the Woodward fund. He asked that the Council do the fair thing by a dead man.

COUNCILMAN BASS
Who moved leave to withdraw.

Walter M. Hatch said the Woodward educated 150 girls at no expense to the city. It was a poor way to show gratitude to say we accept your bounty, and are going to charge you to take care of it. This custom of taking money has become a shame, and a disgrace.

Ex-President Walter S. Pinkham said it did not seem fair to take $800 from the fund. Does the City Treasurer devote a fourth of his time to the Woodward Fund? He should get all he now receives but it should not come

A Few Bits of Wholesome Advice For the Pessimists.

Don't talk about your hard luck.

Refuse to recognize it. Refuse to believe in it. Scorn to whine about it.

Get the whine out of your voice, or it will stop the development and growth of your body. It will narrow and shrink your mind. It will drive away your friends. It will make you unpopular. Quit your whining; brace up; go to work; be something; stand for something; fill your place in the universe. Instead of whining around, exciting only pity and contempt, face about and make something of yourself. Reach up to the stature of a strong, ennobling womanhood, to the beauty and strength of a superb womanhood. There is nothing the matter with you. Just quit your whining and go to work.

If you continually talk about your bad luck and moan about your ill fortune, you create for yourself an atmosphere of misfortune which will certainly overwhelm you unless you stop in time.

The man or woman who persistently fears that such and such a thing is not going to turn out well is enlisting powerful forces against success.—Boston Traveler.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

GOVERNOR IS SHOT

High Official of Finland Is In a Critical Condition

HIS ASSAILANT A BOY

Admits Being a Revolutionist and Had Fled to Sweden to Avoid Arrest--Further Crimes of a Like Nature Anticipated

St. Petersburg, March 21.—Upon the quietude of the Manchurian situation there has burst the news of the attempted assassination of another high official in Finland, whose efforts for the Russification of the grand duchy have exposed them to the vengeance of the young Finns. The incident indicates that the revolutionists have not abandoned the policy of terrorism, but are determined to have more blood, and it presages further crimes of a like nature.

Governor Miasoredoff was shot at Viborg by a 15-year-old lad. The lad obtained an entrance to the governor's office and fired three times at him, one bullet inflicting a serious wound and the others slightly wounding the governor's legs. The governor's condition is critical.

The youth who shot the governor was identified as Matti H. Reinikke, who admits that he is a revolutionist. He hails from the northwestern part of Finland, but recently has lived in Stockholm to avoid arrest on account of his known revolutionary ideas. He returned four days ago to Finland by way of Tornea, and spent three days in Viborg, but declines to reveal his stopping place.

Governor Miasoredoff has been most energetic in the Russification of Finland, and memorials have been sent to the estates, petitioning for his removal on account of his alleged illegal methods and the general conditions in his province, which were pronounced to be intolerable.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Reinikke gained access to the governor's cabinet and fired a shot from the threshhold. Then, advancing, he fired twice more, after which, jumping behind and under the governor's writing table, with his pistol he held up the clerks who were rushing in, and managed to reach the street. Secretary Markoff, who followed him, summoned assistance and the would-be assassin was captured.

Reinikke, who had lost one of his arms recently in a railroad accident, when asked if his name was Reinikke, replied: "The police of Helsingfors know me, my motive and the governor's record."

The crime was committed with an automatic pistol of the same type as the one with which Hohenthal assassinated Soisalon Soininen, the procurator general of Finland, on Feb. 6.

Lost $7000 on a "Sure Thing"

New York, March 21.—Rudolph Ganter and Harry Cohen were held in $2000 each for examination on a charge of swindling Norton Wood of Pittsfield, Mass., out of $7000. The police say Ganter told Wood that he had a friend who was in charge of the racing bureau of the Western Union Telegraph company and could have racing news held back while they made lots of money. Ganter introduced Wood to Cohen and Wood, it is further alleged, invested $7000, which he lost.

New Will Guide Republicans

Washington, March 21.—Postmaster General Cortelyou has appointed Harry S. New vice chairman of the Republican national committee and New will become acting chairman on his (Cortelyou's) retirement, which will take place in a very few days. New is the member of the Republican national committee from Indiana and both he and his father, John C. New, are active newspaper men and Republican politicians.

A Convert's Confession

Oakland, Cal., March 21.—Asserting that he had been converted by evangelists, Earl Bodine, who says he is an ex-convict, went before Chief of Police Hodgkins and confessed that eight years ago, near Fort Fairfield, Me., he had shot and killed a companion, throwing the body into the Aroostook river. The police believe that he is telling the truth.

The Seamy Side of Life

New York, March 21.—Deaths of such a nature that investigation was deemed necessary numbered 11,660 in New York city during the year 1904, according to statistics just compiled at the coroner's office. Of this number 5398 bodies were buried in potters field, 317 going to unmarked graves, never having been identified.

Cleveland on Pleasure Trip

Princeton, N. J., March 21.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, accompanied by his family physician, has left on his private car for a three weeks' trip to Florida. Mr. Cleveland recently suffered a severe attack of gout and is taking a pleasure trip to recuperate, devoting his time to fishing and hunting.

BOSTON MAN MISSING

Trust Funds of Over $500,000 Are Said to Be Involved

Boston, March 21.—Charles F. Berry, trustee of 11 estates and holder of trust funds valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, with an office at 23 Court street, and living at 486 Norfolk street, Dorchester, has left the city under peculiar circumstances. According to allegations made in a bill in equity filed in the superior court, he is an absconder. The amount involved will not be known for some time, until his affairs have been investigated, but it is roughly estimated that it will not be less than $500,000. The present whereabouts of Berry are not known. His affairs are in the hands of James D. Colt, as receiver, appointed by the supreme court.

The disappearance of Berry came as great shock to a large number of business men and members of the legal profession, among whom he was widely known and highly respected.

It would seem likely from appearances that the impending trouble had been anticipated by Berry. He must have seen some time ago that an accounting was inevitable. He had been importuned by various interests for an accounting. He had failed to give this accounting and application was made in the probate court in at least one instance and an accounting was ordered by the court.

Fire Caused Bad Scare

Boston, March 21.—A three-story wooden building on Water street, Charlestown district, occupied by Morris Segal, dealer in paper stock, old metals, etc., was destroyed by fire last night and, although the loss will not exceed $12,000, the fire gave the residents of that district a scare, owing to its close proximity to the Hoosac Tunnel docks, which have recently suffered by fires.

Arrested on Leaving Prison

Providence, March 21.—Bertram Wood, wanted in Boston on a charge of breaking and entering, after arraignment on a fugitive-from-justice warrant, decided to go to Boston without extradition proceedings and was taken there last evening. Wood had just finished a sentence at the Rhode Island state prison for breaking and entering.

GREAT SACRIFICE OF LIFE

AT LEAST SIXTY DEAD

Disaster at Grover Shoe Factory Due Primarily to Boiler Explosion--Large Plant Reduced to Ashes by Fire Which Followed -- Many Perished In Flames While Held Prisoners by Timbers and Machinery--No Warning of Impending Doom Came to Hundreds of Operatives--Instances of Rare Heroism--Brockton a City of Mourning For Lost Citizens

Brockton, Mass., March 21.—The city of Brockton is in mourning for at least three score of her citizens whose lives were blotted out by the explosion of a boiler in a large shoe manufacturing establishment in the Campello district conducted by the R. B. Grover company.

The explosion was immediately followed by a flash of flame which obliterated the factory, a long, four-story structure, as if it were a house of cards, and incinerated the men and women unable to extricate themselves from a mass of tangled wreckage formed by the terrific upheaval in the boiler room.

More than half a hundred of the employes in the building were maimed, burned or bruised by the time they reached safe ground. Some had jumped from the roof, some from windows, and others had been injured in the mad rush to escape from the doomed factory, which from all parts emitted the intense, awful heat of an inferno, driving back the band of heroic rescuers who in a few moments had performed gallant service.

The fire extended from the factory to seven other buildings in the vicinity and also reduced these to ashes. One of these buildings was a three-story wooden block; the others were cottages of small value and a blacksmith shop. Two wooden dwellings near the engine room were practically demolished by the onrush of the boiler, but none of the occupants was seriously injured. The total financial loss is estimated at $250,000, $200,000 of which falls on R. B. Grover company.

No one knows exactly how many persons were in the factory. It has been estimated at 400, but Treasurer Emerson says that he doubts that there were so many. Two hundred and fifty survivors have been accounted for and the remains of 60 bodies have been recovered from the ruins, the search among which was continued all night. Fragments of human frames which possibly might belong to bodies other than those enumerated have also been found. Few of the remains have been identified. The head in nearly every case is missing and except in rare instances it was even impossible to distinguish the sex.

Chief of Police Boyden expresses the opinion that some of the employes had not reached the factory at the time of the explosion and that undoubtedly a number of those living in nearby places were injured and had gone home without reporting. He thinks that many of those not accounted for, upwards of 100 in number, were among these.

The disaster was attended by many harrowing scenes and thrilling rescues. For hours hundreds of the relatives of the factory operatives besieged the ruins and the fire and police station in quest of missing ones. Some, in their violent grief and agonizing stress of mind, collapsed utterly. Several of the rescuers and searchers fainted as they beheld the revolting scene. There is no trace of the body of David W. Rockwell, engineer of the plant, who was first reported as having died from injuries. Later it developed that Rockwell had not been seen after the fire. It is supposed that he perished at his post.

An inspection of the wrecked boiler by the state boiler inspector showed that there was a sufficient supply of water in it. The cause of the explosion is a mystery at present. The disaster will be further investigated by the state authorities.

The explosion occurred shortly after the operatives had settled down to the work of the day. No warning of the impending disaster came to the employes. Suddenly the air was vibrated by the roar of an explosion, and at the same moment the larger wooden frame of the factory quivered and then the rear portion of it collapsed.

In a fraction of a second this section of the great building had been transferred in a mass of iron and wood wreckage, in the midst of which human beings were imprisoned and pinioned down. In another moment fire had broken out in this vast heap of debris, and death by being burned alive became the fate of scores of the operatives.

When the boiler exploded it passed upward almost perpendicularly, tearing a passage as it went, killing many on the way. After rising in the air it descended half the distance and then, swerving northerly, cut its way like some huge projectile through a dwelling house, 50 feet away, and then pierced another dwelling further along, demolishing that structure. Here its course was stopped.

Scenes of horror followed this wrenching apart of the factory building. In the rear the three upper floors, weighted as they were with heavy machinery, collapsed with a crash that was heard two blocks distant. Men and women operatives had time but to turn in an attempt to flee, after the first dull roar, when the floorings sank beneath them and they were hurled to the ground floor, crushed and bruised by the suffocating mass of debris. Many fell into a veritable fiery furnace. From the sections of the factory which did not collapse, the operatives were panic-stricken as they sought their escape.

Many fled down the stairways and reached the street, others ran to windows, for the fire escapes, but in many cases it was found that these had been torn away by the explosion. Crazed and in desperation, several jumped from the second and third-story windows to the ground and were severely injured.

Finding a safe exit by way of the fire escapes out of the question, many turned to the crowded stairway and reached the sidewalks, but quite a number sustained bruises in the rush.

Scarcely had the rear portion of the structure collapsed when a tongue of flame started up from the boiler pit and, reaching out as it ascended, communicated with the splintered wreckage. In a moment the entire mass was enveloped in fire and flames were rushing easterly. Soon the entire factory was engulfed and a great pillar of dense black smoke rose from the burning structure.

Instant death was the fate of many who went down with the floors that collapsed. A large number of men and women who were working nearer the windows than the others in the wrecked section were alive after the floors and walls fell. From these unfortunates a thrilling cry of agony and terror went up. Almost all had been caught between broken timbers, lighter wooden wreckage and heavy pieces of machinery and upon these people crept the flames, devouring all in their path. A few persons succeeded in extricating themselves from the wreckage and these took up the work of rescuing their fellow-employes.

By this time nearby citizens had arrived to assist the employes who escaped first in the rescue of their fellows. This task became momentarily more difficult and perilous, for the heat from the fire was almost unbearable. By the use of long pieces of timber the rescuers were able to raise parts of the wreckage and thereby release some of the imprisoned men and women and then by rushing into the smoke pull them from the ruins.

Then it was that acts of sacrifice and heroism developed. One man whose legs were caught under an iron beam cried to the rescuers that they could not extricate him and to help the girls behind him. He reached over, lifted the girls one by one in his arms, and passed them to the rescuers. Then the fire got to him and he died.

A woman who was entangled in a shoe machine cried out that she was dying and suffering and commanded the rescuers to attend to others. She begged to be shot. Soon the flames enveloped her.

Among the first to arrive on the scene was Rev. James A. O'Rourke, curate at St. Margaret's Roman Catholic church, nearby. At the risk of his life he removed seven men from the ruins before the fire had reached them and was returning for the eighth time when he fainted from the effect of the smoke and the shock. Father O'Rourke gave the last rites of the church to many Catholics, both to those who were saved and some who later perished.

Imprisoned operatives, too far away for rescue and who knew that their lives would last but a few moments, spoke words of encouragement to those who seemed nearer escape. Some prayed aloud. Others pleaded with the rescuers to say "good-bye" to relatives and not a few shrieked from pain and fright. This dreadful spectacle unnerved many who were trying vainly to get to them and some turned away sick and fainting. Members of the fire department, with ladders, aided greatly in the work of rescue, but their time for work was short, for within a brief interval fire closed over the wreckage and the cries of all were hushed.

Many of the victims were parishioners of St. Margaret's church. With tear-stained and haggard faces, women and children besieged the rectory during the day pleading with the priests for information about husband, father, sister or brother who had been employed in the factory and who failed to return home.

Little comfort could be given to these people and they returned once more to the scene of the wrecked building, hoping against hope that a loved one had escaped the death which claimed so many neighbors and friends.

At the Campello police station a similar scene was enacted. Mayor Keith, foreseeing the confusion which would ensue, posted notices in conspicuous places, requesting all employes who had escaped to go at once to the police station and give their names. These names were immediately posted and around this list of names hovered a throng of women—many convulsed with sobs because the list did not include a relative.

Back and forth from the ruins to the station house and from the station house to the ruins these grief-stricken women filed in a never-ending procession, looking at the crisp and smoking bodies as they were placed in pine boxes and hurried away to the morgue. Only in extremely rare cases was there the slightest chance of anyone identifying these bodies.

Do You Need Bracing Up?

No other tonic in the world is like Paine's Celery Compound; no other remedy takes so simple and scientific a way to perform its wonders.

Paine's Celery Compound acts directly upon the nerves, feeding them Nature's nerve food—celery—filling them with new viality. Through the nerves it acts upon the blood, purifying it, strengthening it, making it pure and strong and red and healthy. No other remedy purifies so gently and so quickly.

Paine's Celery Compound is the one known prescription that purifies without purging or weakening the system in any way.

If you feel "run down," "used up," nervous, tired,—in other words, if you need bracing up, try Paine's Celery Compound.

Learn the full luxury and delight of being always at your best, able to live your life for all that is in it.

Feel the exultant thrill of pure, rich blood and abundant Nerve Force, made by Paine's Celery Compound.

Paine's Celery Compound gives real Nerve Force, instead of the false activity imparted by mere stimulants. It is the best and quickest nerve tonic.

Tired, weak-nerved, thin-blooded, unhappy men and women get quick, sure, hearty health from this celebrated Nerve Vitalizer and Tonic. It drives away lassitude, gives courage and strength. It makes a rich increase in blood supply, and makes the whole system thrill with hearty health.

Miss Mary Stone, Secretary of the Young People's Christian Temperance Society of Milwaukee, tells her experience after feeling "run down" for months.

We have used Paine's Celery Compound in our family for a number of years and a few months ago when I felt so worn out and run down that I thought I would have to give up my work and take a vacation earlier, mother suggested that I try a couple of bottles of Celery Compound. A few doses made me feel quite different, my appetite increased, I began to sleep well at night and felt rested in the morning. In a very short time I felt like a different being and am glad to say that your medicine made it possible for me to continue my work uninterruptedly. Yours very truly,—Miss Mary Stone, 2621 Lisbon Ave., Milwaukee, Wis. Secretary Young People's Christian Temperance Society.

Try Paine's Celery Compound YOURSELF when you feel exhausted—when you grow tired sooner than you should—when you lose patience with the irritating cares of daily life—when you feel that your hopes and ambitions are not as high as they used to be—when you spend a sleepless night—when you get up almost as weary as when you went to bed—when you are worried—when the tired feeling puts its heavy touch upon you.

That is when you need the new Nerve Force, the good blood and fresh vitality that is given by PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Don't wait. Try Paine's Celery Compound today.

Take just one dose when you go to face the hard part of the day's trials. See how much better you feel.

See how much more easily the trials roll away.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will give proof of its marvelous powers.

For 18 years this famous prescription has been the most universally used tonic in the world. It has stood the test of time. Physicians constantly use and prescribe it. No prescription has ever been formulated that equaled it in curative power.

Remember this.—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, and all reputable Druggists sell and recommend it.

Nine Wrecked Buildings

New York, March 21.—The ninth partially completed building to collapse since the thaw set in on Saturday fell last evening just after a score of workmen, who had been engaged in and around it all day, had left for their homes. The structure was one of three five-story buildings nearing completion. It is feared that the adjoining buildings will also fall. The freezing of mortar before it had had time to settle is held responsible in this, as in the case of the other buildings which have collapsed.

Great Evangelistic Work

Dixon, Ills., March 21.—As a result of a great religious revival which has just closed here five dancing clubs have disbanded and several thousand people have taken an oath not to frequent barrooms and not to have anything to do with dancing parties or card tables. During the revival three bartenders were converted, a number of gambling dens were closed and gambling outfits were demolished.

TO CUT RETREAT

Japanese Pushing Northward West of the Railroad

LINEVITCH'S NEW PLAN

Retirement of His Army In Two Columns Considered a Dangerous Expedient--May Have a Force of 200,000 Men

London, March 21.—General Linevitch's report to the czar that he had inspected newly arrived troops causes considerable speculation in London as indicating that the commander-in-chief of the Russian army in Manchuria either has gone much further north than had been supposed or that Russian reinforcements are still being sent south from Harbin. The latter hypothesis is considered hardly likely in view of the fact that the Russians are trying to effect the speediest possible retirement on Harbin.

Clearly a rigorous censorship is again being enforced from both the Russian and Japanese sides.

General Linevitch, who continues to retire northward, has divided his army into two separate columns, one clinging to the railroad line which runs to Harbin, and the other following the Kirin highway running northeast. It is a dangerous expedient to divide a force under the conditions confronting Linevitch, but he evidently thinks he cannot afford to let the Japanese take undisputed possession of the important Kirin road.

Meanwhile the Japanese are hanging on his rear and west flank, seeking an opportunity to head him off and straddle his line of retreat. They are moving north along the great trade route which runs parallel to the railroad and about 20 miles to the west. It is an interesting race, but unless something unforeseen happens it now seems likely to be won by Linevitch. However, if the Japanese press him hard and continuously in sufficient numbers he must continue to retire until he reaches the lower branch of the Sungari.

If the total losses to the Russians in the battle of Mukden were but 120,000—the unofficial figure given out from St. Petersburg—Linevitch must have a force of approximately 200,000. It is further stated that most of the heavy artillery was saved. This is a formidable force, and a considerable nucleus for the new armies Russia declares she is to raise.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Morning Post declares that Russia is stubbornly prolonging a hopeless struggle in the hope of dragging in foreign intervention to dictate a settlement more favorable to her than would be possible by direct negotiations with Japan.

Witte Didn't Keep Appointment

Paris, March 21.—In the course of an interview in The Matin, Viscount Hayashi states that M. Witte, when in Berlin last July, sent an emissary to London asking the Japanese minister there to meet him and discuss peace. Minister Hayashi consented, but received no further communication.

Will Not Return to Bench

New York, March 21.—Former Chief Justice Parker of the state court of appeals, candidate for president in the last election, says that he would not consider any proposition to return to the bench of this state. It had been rumored that an effort would be made to induce Parker to succeed Presiding Justice Van Brunt of the supreme court, whose term expires on Dec. 31 next.

Syrians Barred From Hayti

Washington, March 21.—The state department is informed by Minister Powell, at Port au Prince, that a proclamation has been issued that all Syrians must leave the republic by April 1. These Syrians are extremely obnoxious to the natives, as they have managed to obtain control of most of the retail business of the country and are reputed to be merciless creditors.

Americans and Cubans Fraternize

Havana, March 21.—A demonstration of friendship between the United States and Cuba began with the arrival here from Guantanamo of a division of the American north Atlantic fleet. Many buildings are decorated in honor of the Americans, and the Cubans and Americans interested are making the occasion significant of the prevailing good feeling.

Secret Beef Investigation

New York, March 21.—It is learned that for a week past the federal grand jury, under the direction of federal officials, has been investigating the methods of the so-called beef trust in New York city and vicinity. The investigation is surrounded by considerable secrecy, even the subpoenas being given in this case to secret service men.

Mind Perhaps Unbalanced

New York, March 21.—A well dressed young man who told the police that his name was Nicholas Weiss was taken to Bellevue hospital for examination as to his sanity after he had attempted to cash a check for $2,800,000 at a private bank on the East Side.

VENEZUELAN FLURRY

France Does Not Intend to Take Definite Action at Present

Paris, March 21.—Inquiry at the ministry of marine failed to elicit verification of the report cabled here from the United States to the effect that French warships have been ordered to Venezuela.

On the contrary, no movements of that character have yet been ordered. Moreover, there has been no meeting of the cabinet since Friday, when it was decided not to take definite action until the Venezuelan court should have rendered a final decision.

The foreign office says specifically that the stage for the sending of warships has not yet been reached.

Washington, March 21.—The state department is not disposed to repeat the history of the first settlement with Venezuela, as the results have been far from satisfactory. The obligations incurred under the award of The Hague tribunal never have been met. It is therefore the present intention of the government here not to interfere in any dispute of a foreign nation with Venezuela provided the Monroe doctrine is not infringed. This determination does not estop action on the part of this country in the interests of American concessions and properties in Venezuela.

Flood Damage at Pittsburg

Pittsburg, March 21.—Midnight saw the end of one of the fiercest flood rampages the Allegheny river has been on for years. After remaining on the ground for four months, practically the entire winter's snowfall at up-river points was washed out by over an inch of rain which fell during Saturday and Sunday. The torrent caused by this movement caused the crippling of more than a score of industrial plants here and at least 10,000 men are temporarily forced into idleness. Hundreds of houses and stores are flooded. The monetary damage cannot now be definitely estimated.

Worst Ice Blockade In Years

St. Johns, March 21.—Incoming shipping, together with advices from the northern and western coasts, report the worst ice blockade of modern times. Icefloes extend hundreds of miles seaward. Along the northern coast ice is packed in heavy, flinty fields.

Messenger Robbed of $10,000

Berkeley, Cal., March 21.—J. F. Daly, who was acting as messenger for the Central bank of Oakland, was held up and robbed of $10,000 while on his way to the Standard Oil refinery at Point Richmond.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Yale university corporation has accepted the resignation of Professor Frank K. Sanders, dean of the divinity school, who has been called to the secretaryship of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing society.

The bill to prohibit gambling on race horses passed the Tennessee house just as it came from the senate and now lacks only the governor's signature to become a law.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

James Crowley of North street has returned from his western trip.

Many people went to Brockton today to see the ruins of the Grover factory.

There was a little flurry of snow yesterday, and also a squall this morning.

Mark J. Myett, is at a Boston hospital awaiting for a operation for a serious head trouble.

Miss Nan Carter entertained a number of her young friends at her home last evening. The occasion being her twenty-first birthday.

It is rumored that the Quincy post office will occupy the store in the Durgin-Merrill block recently vacated by L. M. Pratt & Son.

A meeting of the Pine Tree State association will be held Thursday evening, March 23, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gleason, 65 Independence avenue.

People took advantage of the pleasant days last week, and burned the dead grass off their lawns. Since the shower, these same lawns are beginning to look real green.

Several employes at the Fore River shipyard were hurriedly summoned to Brockton or vicinity on Monday because of injuries to relatives in the factory horror.

When some of the whistles were blown on the "Providence" Monday afternoon, many of the people living near, thought the steamer was about to start. One glance at the tide changed their minds, however.

If eggs were as plentiful as hens are in Atlantic, the town could live on angel cake every meal and still have the price of eggs in everyone's reach. But judging from the playfulness of said hens, they really don't have time to waste laying eggs, they had rather eat the struggling blades of grass off a disinterested neighbor's lawn.

On her way to the station, Tuesday morning, Miss Cassilda Gardner of Atlantic street, lost a very valuable piece of lace. She did not discover her loss until the train reached Neponset. Here she got out and walked back, retracing her steps slowly. On Sagamore street the lost treasure was found just where it had fallen. It was fortunate for Miss Gardner that those who take the early trains are mostly men, who would scorn a bit of lace on the roadside in their haste for the station.

Thankful They Were Late.

Several workmen from Braintree and Weymouth complained bitterly to the street car conductors Monday morning because the cars were so late. The delay was caused by ice forming on the trolley wires. Quite a few of these men were employed in the ill fated factory at Brockton.

Had the cars been on time they would have all been at work when the explosion took place. As it was the explosion occurred before they arrived. Then they thanked their lucky stars that the cars were late.

CITY COUNCIL.

from the Wooward fund. The only excuse is because we are too poor to pay by taxation.

Ex-Mayor Bryant told of the efforts made by him while in office to right this wrong. We are doing an injustice to the man who tried to do something for the city. He hoped this Council would see that justice was done to the fund. All admit the salaries of these officers are small enough. It is within your power to rectify the greatest evil and stigma that ever existed. They should be paid a salary equivalent with their position, but it should come out of the revenue of the city.

Ex-Councilman Horace M. Willard hoped that this Council will be unanimous against paying salaries from this fund. Let us pay fair salaries to the officers and stop taking from funds intended for a different purpose. He felt that the good name of Quincy was marred.

Ex-Councilman Whiton opposed the petition. He thought it a pity that Dr. Woodward did not have some of the smart clergymen to tell him how to made his will. There was no law to compel these city officers to take care of this fund if they should refuse. A small amount like $500 would be no graft. Is it not value received? We are not assured of the same board of trustees from year to year. They are not citizens in the same sense as you and I. He did not advocate paying $200 to the clerk and auditor but $50 each.

Fred F. Green thought it a small amount to pay for the care of a fund of $250,000. Does the superintendent of schools give one-sixth of his time for what they pay him? It is all right in their opinion to pay a man for doing their work, but not right for the city to pay for management of the fund.

The hearing was closed and the order was recommitted.

LICENSE HEARING.

A public hearing was also given Charles C. Hearn on a petition for a druggist's or sixth class liquor license.

Mr. Hearn appeared in support of his petition. He said, in part, that he had been a Quincy druggist for 16 years, but had never before applied for a license. Why now? Because a Weymouth druggist, who was a member of the State Board of Pharmacy, had been accused at a State House bearing of illegal liquor selling, because he sold on physician prescriptions by arrangement with the selectmen of the town.

Evidently a sale of liquor without a license is illegal, and there can be no arrangement. It is a criminal offense which I do not care to be party to. Custom is one thing, law is another. Today a prescription calling for liquor cannot be filled at my store, nor will it be until such time as I have legal authority to do so. I bow to no man in a desire to see the laws of this State lived up to, and enforced as well.

Extracts were read from Section 100 of the Revised Laws.

The sale of alcohol is allowed under restrictions. As a matter of fact I can honesely say, however, that there is more alcohol refused in my store than there is sold. There are cases where my sense of duty is little stronger than my desire for a dollar. I yield to no man in this city in a desire to see our city free from the odium of the liquor traffic, and have probably had more opportunity to put that desire into practical use.

Would you have me make a criminal of myself, especially when you have the power and authority to legalize the very thing you ask me to do? An abuse of the privileges granted by the license can be easily and quickly remedied by a revocation of the same. No man can long do an illegal business under the guise of a drug store.

Mr. Hearn was questioned at length by several Councilmen. To Mr. Bass he said, if a license was granted, it was his intention to use to full scope. He thought law was wrong. That it should permit sales on prescription. Declined to say whether he had sold on a doctor's prescription.

To Councilman Adams, it is legal to compound liquor in a doctor's prescription. Not to sell alone. Declined to interprete what was a sale and what a compound.

By request Dr. N. S. Hunting appeared for the petition but merely answered questions. Thought there was necessity for legalizing sale. There are 26 doctors in city. Might average a prescription for liquor once in three or four days. Could not say whether that was a fair average for other doctors.

Dr. F. E. Jones also favored. Said he did not wish to be a party to illegal sales. Prescribed liquor once or twice per week. Some of late had not been filled.

Dr. J. H. Ash and Dr. Middleton also favored.

Mr. Hearn was recalled and said he was not called upon to fill one liquor prescription per day on an average.

REMONSTRANCE.

Delcevare King opened for the remonstrants, representing the Citizens No-License Temperance League. He said Mr. Hearn had been very fair in his procedure. That he had spoken to H. H. Faxon and Dr. Sherman before filing his petition. That personally he did not appear against Mr. Hearn, but the league summed up the case as follows:

THE LAW.

Without any license, but on paying $25 to the U. S. Government any registered druggist can sell pure alcohol upon the purchaser's certificate that it is to be used for medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes.

Without any license, any registered druggist can keep liquors for compounding purposes and can dispense them on a physician's prescription when duly compounded.

With a six class liquor license, the druggist can dispense liquor of any kind on a physican's prescription or on merly the purchaser's certificate that it is to be used for medicinal, mechanical, or chemical purposes. There is no prescribed limit to the amount or frequency of the sale, and in order to prove an illegal sale, it must be shown—Com V. Gould 158 Mass. 500—"Not only that the liquor was bought for an unauthorized purpose but also that it was sold by the druggist with the guilty knowledge and belief. 'Reasonable cause to know' is not equivalent to belief or knowledge."

The law states that one or more liquor licenses of the sixth class shall be granted by the proper authorities, but in a case before Justice Holmes of the Supreme Court (now the U. S. Supreme Court) it was decided that the question of the fitness of the applicant was left wholly to the local authorities and that therefore if they decided that there was no one, under the existing law, who was fit to be granted a sixth-class liquor license, it was not mandatory to grant such a license.

EXPERIENCE IN STATE.

As given in Public Document No. 46, Thirteenth Annual Report of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, for the year ending December 31, 1904.

In 1904 there were 267 No-License cities and towns in Massachusetts.

Of the 267 No-License cities and towns, only 51 or less than one-fifth granted 6th-class licenses.

Of the 12 No-Llcense cities, the following granted 6th-class licenses: Cambridge—59, Malden—26, Medford—11, Newton—22, Somerville—35.

Woburn and Fitchburg, which voted for License, granted no 6th-class licenses.

OUR EXPERIENCE.

In 1882 and 1883 there were granted 6th-class liquor licenses.

In 1884 the licensing authorities refused to further grant any 6th-class liquor licenses and there have been none granted since.

OUR VOTE.

In 1882 the present Local Option Law went into effect and Quincy voted No-License.

Quincy has voted No-License every year since then.

On December 6th, 1904, every ward and every precinct in our city gave a substantial "No" majority.

The total "No" majority was 1834.

This is a majority 270 greater than ever before.

This is a majority more than double the majority in nineteen hundred.

For every "Yes" vote cast there were more than two and one-half "No" votes.

In conclusion he offered resolutions emphatically protesting against the granting of any sixth-class licenses.

Witness also answered questions by Councilmen Chase, Chamberlin, Stone, McLane and Hughes.

Dr. C. T. Sherman, president of the No-License league also opposed emphatically the granting of all sixth-class licenses. He read letters from the city marshal of Brockton and several other cities, all saying that there were no complaints that liquor could not be obtained; that they knew of no cases where there was suffering because of no-license, and all recommending that licenses be not granted.

Witness answered questions by Councilman Adams, Chamberlin and McLane.

Rev. Fr. Roche made one of the most convincing speeches against the petition. He said he regretted to do it, as Mr. Hearn was one of his best friends. Thought petitioner, however, over estimated his danger. We all know the abuse of a license, when granted to druggists.

The only ones to speak for the petition tonight were Mr. Hearn and doctors whom he summoned. Not another druggist had said he would do as Mr. Hearn. There was no limit to the number of druggists who might apply. Speaker did not believe in license at all. He cited the fact that when druggists had license years ago Henry H. Faxon seemed to be one of the largest purchasers. There was nothing to prevent the names of any reputable citizen being signed to the druggist's books. The sentiment of the city was strongly against license. The speaker was frequently applauded.

Theophilus King was the next speaker. He said he appeared because he could not keep away. It was the most important question before this city for years. A question of life or death. Doctors thought license was needed for life of a few, but it would be the death of many. He knew the value of liquor as a medicine. Would not favor sales on physicians' prescriptions, because he had known prescriptions to be obtained for fifty cents.

There were no technicalities to get around. If the druggists would continue to conduct in the future as clean a business as Mr. Hearn he would himself guarantee to pay any fine that might be imposed. Quincy has said NO emphatically. Is there a gentleman in this Council who will go contrary. He hoped to see a unanimous vote against granting this petition. [Applause.

H. O. Cassidy of Atlantic opposed. He said he had selected Quincy for his residence because of No-License.

Theodore Hermanson as representative of the Scandinavan club, also, opposed. Told how easy it was to get liquor when druggists had licenses.

Rev. L. H. Austin, protested, saying it would be a very bad thing for Quincy Point.

Mrs. George A. Brown, of Wollaston, president of the Norfolk County, W. C. T. U., was greeted with applause, when she advanced to speak. She entered a strong protest, saying there was no need of liquor. She had brought up a family of children, but had never given any of them a drop of liquor.

[Applause.]

Others were present to speak but the hour was late and the hearing closed at 10.45.

Councilman Bass moved that all three petitions for druggists' licenses be taken from the table. He then moved that the petitioners have leave to withdraw, and that the vote be taken by roll call.

All voted unanimously in favor of the motion, and the petitioners were given leave to withdraw amid applause.

It was 11.15 before the Council adjourned, voting to meet March 27.

Today's Storm.

The storm which has been threatening for several days came with full violence today and when the Daily Ledger went to press a good-sized blizzard was in progress. It began to snow about 10.30 this morning. It was very light at first, but as the morning wore on toward noon it increased in violence. The wind was blowing from the northeast and the snow that fell was of the damp clinging kind. It looks at 2.30 as though we were in for a good old-fashioned snow storm.

THE COMMANDMENTS

Rev. N. J. Sproul Preaches on Number Four.

During the past five weeks the Sunday evening sermons at the First Presbyterian church have been part of a series on the Ten Commandments. The pastor, Rev. N. J. Sproul, spoke Sunday evening upon the fourth commandment. He mentioned the fact which has been proven that even machinery of mills and factories work longer and better if given the day's rest, and emphasized how much more necessary it was for both man and beast to have the day of rest.

The names of Gladstone and Grant were mentioned among others as having stood for the strict observance of the Sabbath. Gladstone always attributed his longevity and the preservation of his mental powers, to the fact that he had made it the rule of his life to lay aside both private and public business upon the Lord's Day.

The demands of the public and the greed for profit are to a great extent the cause of having open on Sunday, upon almost every corner of our city, stores whose sales consist chiefly of cigars, cigarettes and the Sunday newspapers. The carrying and delivering of the Sunday newspaper was criticised as being a bad influence upon our boys, and the paper was denounced as being unfit to be received into any home.

He also failed to see the necessity of having the post offices open and the delivering of Sunday mail. This was also caused through the demands of the people as it has been stated on good authority that it was not the wish of the post office officials.

The unsightly spectacle of ice teams rumbling through our streets on Sunday shows a lack of foresight in the consumer or the want of proper facilities on the part of the dealer to deliver on Saturday. Surely the employees of the ice companies who have to work both early and late are entitled to their Sabbath rest.

The well known fact in history of the disastrous conditions which existed in France when she tried to abolish the Sabbath was alluded to.

Some fifty year ago a Frenchman returning from America, when asked what had most impressed him said, it was the observance of the Sabbath. Today we live in a different age. An age when men will set aside even comfort for personal gain; when the rush and turmoil of business tries a man to the very limit of physical endurance. But although our country can today well boast of her great finance and financiers, her mighty machinery, her splendid crops of wheat and corn, her many natural resources, all these will be of little avail should we as a nation or as individuals neglect the commandment of the Lord, "Remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy. Six days shalt labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work; thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor any stranger that is within thy gates; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath-day, and hallowed it."

The Auxiliary.

The storm did not prevent a large number of ladies from attending the Auxiliary meeting of the Y. M. C. A. at the home of Mrs. George Brown on Elm street Monday afternoon.

The devotional exercises were in charge of the President, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, followed by pleasing vocal selections from Miss Carrie Follett Spear.

Several matters of business were discussed and voted upon.

Rev. Edward Norton whom we always delight to hear gave an earnest and helpful talk; his subject being; "Finding a Man, or Finding possibilities in the boy."

The women of the Auxiliary are hoping for excellent results from their Colonial fair fete, to be held May 4, 5 and 6, in the new Y. M. C. A. building.

The two hundred ladies who are actively engaged in this work are sparing neither time nor energy to make the fair a grand success.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael Crowley was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Weymouth. Case continued until Wednesday.

George Young was arraigned for threatening assault on John W. Mitchell at Quincy.

AT ANCHOR.

Steamer Providence Stops near Fort Warren.

Weather Too Rough for Trip.

Steamed Away This Morning for New York.

The steamer Providence which left the Fore River works Tuesday on her maiden trip did not go very far toward her destination. It was deemed unwise to proceed in the teeth of a howling northeast snowstorm, and she came to anchor in the lee of Fort Warren where she remained all night. She proceeded on her way this morning.

DESCRIPTION.

A description of the steamer Providence was started in Monday's Ledger, and is continued below:

Appliances for fire protection are most complete, thorough and very much in advance of any statutory requirements.

For this purpose two powerful pumps are installed amidships on the main deck in a fire-proof enclosure, and under the direct control of the engine room staff. From these pumps are led four separate and independent fire mains of copper tubing six inches in diameter, reduced to two and one-half inches at the ends of the vessel. Running the entire length of the vessel these mains have at suitable intervals a total of forty five plugs, to which are attached sufficient lengths of fire hose of the finest quality made, also three large capacity 6 inch deck hand pumps with direct connection to the sea, the sea valves being immediately controlled from the deck. Arrangements are also provided at the slip's side for shore connections.

FOR EMERGENCIES.

Appliances for fire protection are most complete, thorough and very much in advance of any statutory requirements.

In addition to this complete water service the vessel is well equipped in all parts with all minor appliances such as axes, chemical extinguishers, and water buckets. The efficiency of the watch force is insured by complete electric watchman clock service.

An automatic fire alarm thermostat is located in each stateroom and at short distances apart in other parts of the vessel. When a thermostat is set off by any abnormal rise in temperature it indicates its location on the telephone central switchboard and at the same time rings fire alarm bells in the pilot house, engine room, and crew's quarters.

TELEPHONES AND LIGHT.

A very complete telephone system is installed. Each stateroom and all the important stations of the vessel are provided with telephones connected to a central switchboard. There are also private lines direct from the pilot house to the engine room, steering gear, wireless telegraph station and main deck, and from engine room to chief engineer's room. American Bell apparatus is used with the common battery system.

There is also installed an elaborate system of voice tubes, electric call bells and mechanical signal gongs.

The electric generating plant consists of three 50 K. W. General Electric direct connected marine generating sets, with vertical tandem compound engines, located in the engine-room at the line of the main deck. They operate at 110 volts direct current, and 350 R. P. M. The plant is located in the engine-room enclosure on the main deck.

The distribution is on the two wire system, feeders from the generator switch board supplying numerous panel boards in cabinets located in all parts of the vessel. Each panel board supplies the lights in its immediate vicinity on comparatively short distribution circuits. Steam tight fixtures with wiring in steel enameled conduit are used in all machinery spaces, freight spaces and hold. Living spaces are wired in moulding and have ornate fixtures of special design to harmonize with the surrounding decorations. A total of about 1600 incandescents are used.

The usual auxiliary machinery for steering the ship and handling her conveniently has been supplied, comprising steam and hand steering gear, one powerful steam windlass on main deck forward provided with vertical gypsy heads and steam capstans for warping, etc., worked by independent engines of the latest design; also two independent capstans aft on main deck for warping purposes. The anchor gear includes two 5,200 lb. anchors and 180 fathoms of 1-7-8 inch chain cable with cranes and rolling boards complete.

The most modern appliances for cleanliness, and sanitation are employed throughout the vessel, and especial means to accomplish these results are provided by the installation of the Kenny Vacuum Sweeping system by which all carpets and staterooms can be daily thoroughly cleaned without accumulation of dust. Six branches are provided for attachment of hose, and sweepers on each passenger deck. By this apparatus the dust and dirt which daily accumulates is actually removed from the steamer, not stirred up as by ordinary sweeping, only to be again deposited.

The life saving appliances consist of twelve metal life boats each 26 feet x 7 feet x 2 feet 6 inches; ten 20 feet x 22 inches diameter life rafts; one Lyle line throwing gun to make a shore connection and 1400 cork life jackets each of ample buoyancey (tested) to support indefinitely one person so that it will readily be seen everything that foresight could suggest has been done to provide for the safety of all on board.

ENGINES AND PROPELLERS.

The "Providence" is propelled by iron feathering paddle wheels which are 29 feet 6 inches outside diameter and each containing twelve buckets 13 feet long by 4 feet wide.

The paddle wheels are actuated by double inclined compound engines, two h. p. cylinders 44 inch diameter and two l. p. cylinders 83 inch diameter and 9 foot stroke. The framework of the engines is built up of heavy steel plates and shapes secured to the specially strongthened inner bottom and framing of the vessel.

The Stevens valve gear is used with Stephenson link and Sickel's cut off on the H. P. cylinders.

There are two condensers located in the after part of the engine room, one on each side of the vessel. The condenser shells are of cast iron, each containing a cooling surface of 5000 square feet.

The circulating water is supplied to each condenser by two 10 inch centrifugal pumps, driven by an independent vertical engine.

The two main air pumps, each 50 inches diameter by 30 foot stroke are connected to the low pressure crossheads by means of links and rocker shafts. Each pump has a 16 inch suction from the condenser and discharges into a feed water heater through a hotwell and filter tank directly overboard from the hotwell.

The boiler room which is immediately forward of the engine room is equipped with six Scotch boilers arranged back to back in the centre of vessel, with fire rooms outboard extending fore and aft, arranged for closed ash pit forced draft system.

The boilers are 14 feet 9 inches in diameter by 12 feet 9 1-2 inches long, and built for a working pressure of 152 pounds per square inch. Each contains three 49 inches inside diameter corrugated furnaces, 308 tubes, 3 inches outside diameter, No. 10 B. W. G., and has 88.8 square feet of grate surface, and 2542 square feet of heating surface.

There are two smoke-stacks arranged fore and aft, each 7 feet 7 inches inside diameter, and 8 feet 9 1-2 inches outside of casing. The height from grates to top of stack is 90 feet 3 inches. At the base of each stack is a superheater, 11 feet diameter by 12 feet high.

The fire rooms are also equipped with four ash ejectors, two on each side of the vessel.

The coal bunkers run fore and aft and extend the full lenth of the fire room, with a total capacity of 200 tons.

Located on the main deck just abaft the superheaters, is an 83 inch diameter vertical boiler, built for a working pressure of 162 pounds per square inch with 30 square feet of grate surface and 862 square feet of heating surface.

There are two 12 inch x 7 inch x 12 inch Blake horizontal duplex outside packed plunger feed pumps located in the engine room, one on either side of the center between engine frames. Each pump takes suction from the condenser, from the feed water heater and from the forward and after feed tanks, and discharges into the feed mains.

There are two other pump located in the engine room, one a 12 inch x 9 inches x 7 inches Cameron bilge pump, having a 5 inch suction from the secondary drain, and the other an 8 inch x 5 inch x 12 inch Blake horizontal duplex piston pump for fresh water service.

There is also located in the donkey boiler room a 5 1-2 x 3 1-4 inch x 7 inch Blake horizontal single piston pump for feeding the donkey boiler. In additon to the feed pumps, both main and auxiliary boilers are eqiupped with injectors.

On the main deck, port side, just forward of the paddle box, is the pump room in which are located two Blake horizontal duplex piston fire and wrecking pumps. One 18 1-2 inches x 12 inches x 12 inches, the other a 14 inch x 8 1-2 inches x 12 inches with 10 inches and 12 inches suction from drain and sea respectively.

There are two forced draft blowers located in the lower engine-room, and two just forward of boiler-room bulkhead, each with an 84 in. diameter fan and run by a 7 inch x 10 1-2 inch vertical engine. The blowers are arranged to ventilate the engine compartment and forward cabin, by taking the air from each place, and discharging into air ducts of forced draft system. Blower chutes are also arranged so that the blowers can discharge into the fire-room for ventilating purposes.

There is 12 inch drain of copper, running through the vessel from the forward to the after hold with five 12 inch suctions, one from forward hold, two from fire room, one from engine room and one from after hold. There is also a secondary drain running throughout the vessel with 65 connections for draining bilges and inner bottoms and arranged with a 5 inch suction to the Cameron Bilge Pump and a 6 inch to the fire and wrecking pumps.

In addition to the above there are two 10 inch suctions on the main circulating pumps for pumping bilges in the engine room.

TAKE A STAND.

Protest Against Accepting Rockefeller Gift.

Congregationalists Take Action.

Rev. E. N. Hardy Among the Remonstrants.

Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church was one of the Congregational ministers of Boston and vicinity who signed the protests forwarded to the American board of commissioners for foreign missions protesting against the acceptance by the board of a gift of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller of New York. The petition, which was prepared by a committee and unanimously adopted by the meeting of clergymen, of which the Rev. Daniel Evans of Cambridge was chairman, reads:

"The public prints of the week ending March 18, 1905, report a gift of $100,000 to the foreign missionary society of the Congregational churches from Mr. John D. Rockefeller, the head of the Standard Oil Company. This company stands before the public under repeated and recent formidable indictments in specific terms for methods which are morally iniquitous and socially destructive.

"The church is the moral educator and leader of the people, and in order to fulfil this calling with freedom and effect it must stand entirely clear of any implication in the evil it is set to condemn. The acceptance of such a gift involves the constituents of the board in a relation implying honor toward the donor and subjects the board to the charge of ignoring the moral issues involved.

"We, the undersigned, therefore protest against any action by which our church may even seem to be compromised, and we plead with the officers of the board to decline the gift of Mr. Rockefeller or to return it if it has been accepted."

The Quincy Plan.

The Coddington school is prominently mentioned nearly every day in the Herald school contest, and reference made to the "Quincy plan." Today one may read: "The Coddington, Newport, R. I., gave notice of doing something on a par with the work of the Quincy school." H. W. Lull is superintendent at Newport.

Hats Off to Mr. Reynolds.

If everybody would give the same attention to the trees on their premises that F. A. Reynolds of Washington street, Quincy Point, has given, brown-tail moths and other pests would find Quincy a very unhealthy place, and we would soon be rid of them. Mr. Reynolds found a bushel box full of the winter nests of the moth on his trees which after removal he destroyed by fire. He very thoroughly cleaned the trunks of all the trees for a distance of four or five feet from the ground and has applied a solution which not only gives them a neat, clean appearance but is a disinfectant and will result in more perfect fruit, and probably more fruit. Hats off to Mr. Reynolds.

Quincy Point Liquor Cases.

James P. Flannigan, a Quincy Point expressman, and Clifford H. Towle, who runs a little store at Quincy Point, in which Flannigan has an office, were arraigned in court this morning for violation of the liquor laws.

George E. Adams, Esq., represented the government, and J. J. McAnarney, Esq., the defendants. The police made a raid at these premises some time ago, seized a quantity of liquor in bottles. It is alleged by the police that Flannigan did a liquor business under the disguise of an expressman.

The hearing on the two cases occupied a greater part of the morning. At the conclusion of the hearing both cases were continued for judgment. Flannigan to April 5, and Towle to March 25.

Granite Cutters' Demand.

The North Chelmsford branch of the National Association of Granite Cutters has informed employers, says a dispatch to the Herald, that, beginning May 1 next, they will expect $3 a day on day work; that eight hours shall constitute a day's work; that 13 men shall constitute a gang; that none but union men shall be employed, and that the number of apprentices shall be limited. If the agreement is accepted, three months' notice will be required before a change can be made.

Not All At Work.

Work in the granite cutting yards is going on uninterrupted although all that desire work have not found employment. Those that are able to earn the $3 minimum and more had no difficulty in obtaining work. There is some dissatisfaction among the poorer class of workmen that the recent settlement did not give them $3 per day also.

Quarry Case.

John Oja, administrator of John Ojalawishrokka, late of Gloucester, recovered a verdict of $2,250 for his intestate's death, and of $250 for the latter's conscious suffering, against Edwin Canney, owner of a quarry at Lanesville, in the United States circuit court before Judge Lowell on Tuesday. The deceased, while working at the quarry Nov. 11, 1903, was hit by a chain used in lifting granite.

Afternoon Alarm.

The alarm from Box 152 at 1.09 this noon was for a slight fire in the residence of George Doran on Faxon road. The fire was confined to a bed lounge which was practically destroyed. The fire was caused by children. It was extinguished with a chemical stream.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

That there is a very strong No-License sentiment in Quincy was emphasized at the public hearing given by the City Council this week on the application for a druggist's liquor license. The Citizens' No-License Temperance League also showed itself to be alert, and conducted a campaign even more aggressive than on the eve of the annual municipal elections when strenuous efforts are used to get out a large "No" vote.

On a matter of this importance, where so many citizens had prepared themselves for a vigorous remonstrance, it was unusual to limit the speakers by vote to five minutes. With one or two exceptions the time of speakers were extended without opposition. Many noted, however, that the Councilman who limited the time soon left the chamber, and was not present to be recorded on roll call when leave to withdraw was voted.

To Mrs. George A. Brown of the W. C. T. U. and Rev. A. F. Roche of St. Mary's church in particular, credit is given for the great No-License victory. But all the speakers in remonstrance contributed to this end: Delcevare King, by organizing the opposition and his clear statement of the law and the attitude of the voters; Dr. Sherman, who was well fortified with advice in letters from officials in other cities; Rev. A. F. Roche, who was familiar with abuse of druggist's licenses; Theophilus King, who put his whole heart and soul into the cause; H. O. Cassidy, by his plea for the home; Theodore Hermanson, who told of the downfall of a friend; Rev. L. H. Austin, by his plea for law and order at Quincy Point; and Mrs. Brown for temperance, the home, and children.

Among others who contributed by their presence and were probably ready to speak in remonstrance were: H. H. Faxon, Rev. N. J. Sproul, Rev. J. A. Bernhard, Rev. E. N. Hardy, Rev. W. B. Barr, Rev. Edward Norton, Secretary Gay of the Y. M. C. A., A. D. Albee, Edward Southworth and many more.

The general feeling among the citizens is that the City Council did perfectly right in giving the petitioners for sixth class liquor licenses leave to withdraw. Some of the druggists who did not petition for a license, admit that it would be an open door, and that anyone would be able to obtain liquor at will.

The sincerity of Druggist Hearn is not questioned by anyone, and the action of the City Council in no way reflects upon him. In fact he stands better in the community today, for his efforts to do a legal and straightforward business, and people believe him when he says he has had opportunites to do considerable for temperance and he has done it.

DEATH LIST OF FIFTY-FIVE

Forty-Five Missing as Result of Grover Factory Disaster

SEARCH OF RUINS ENDS

But Fourteen Bodies Positively Identified, All the Others Being Badly Charred--Exact Number of Victims May Remain a Mystery--Remains of Unknown to Be Buried In War Veterans' Lot--Fraternal and Labor Organizations to Assist In Relieving Distress

Brockton, Mass., March 22.—Satisfied that there was no chance of recovering additional bodies from the ruins of the R. B. Grover company's shoe factory, search was abandoned at 11 o'clock last night and the small army of volunteers ceased work after 37 hours of continued toil.

Although the police and Medical Examiner Paine feel sure that they have removed from the debris all remains which were not reduced to ashes, a second search will be instituted in a day or two to satisfy relatives and friends of the victims.

The little band of people who have besieged the morgue since the first body was taken from the ruins reluctantly turned their steps homeward last night, satisfied that all that remained of missing ones occupied the pine boxes inscribed "unknown." At midnight, for the first time since Monday, Dr. Paine and his assistants remained alone with the unidentified bodies.

The revised list, as given out by the police, is as follows: Bodies recovered, 55; identified, 14; missing, 45; reported as escaped, 283.

It now seems probable that but 14 bodies will go to their graves with their identity positively established. The other 41 are so badly charred that all marks by which they could be recognized have been completely obliterated.

At a conference between Medical Examiner Paine and City Marshal Boyden it was decided to hold an inquest.

A movement has begun on the part of workmen in trades similar to that pursued by the victims of the disaster to raise a relief fund for the bereaved families. It is expected that several thousand dollars will be subscribed.

That the 55 known dead represents the total number of victims, no one familiar with the disaster believes. It is extremely doubtful, however, that more than fragmentary pices of other bodies will ever be found. Medical Examiner Paine says that he believes other bodies that might have been in the wreckage were probably reduced to ashes, and that the number of victims may never be positively known. He does not believe that further identifications of the charred remains at the morgue probable. Every body which had on it any trinket or piece of clothing which had not been destroyed by the flames has been identified.

At the request of Mayor Keith, clergymen of all denominations assembled in the aldermanic chamber at city hall yesterday afternon for the purpose of discussing appropriate public religious ceremonies for the victims. It was decided that these services shall be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the City theatre, at which two clergymen, one Catholic, the other Protestant, will make short addresses. An overflow service will be held at the Proctor Congregational church at the same hour. After these services the funeral procession, headed by a band, will proceed to the Melrose cemetery, where the unidentified bodies will be interred. The lot selected by the city officials for this purpose adjoins that set apart for veterans of the Civil and Spanish wars.

At noon tomorrow the city hall, public schools and every place of business in the city will be closed out of respect to the dead.

Numerous meetings were held last night by fraternal and labor organizations to take action in regard to the disaster, and in every instance arrangements were made to offer assistance to the city officials in relieving distress to families.

Mayor Keith last night received the following cablegram from President Faire of the Boot Manufacturers' association, Leicester, Eng.: "Sincere sympathy with sufferers in Brockton's dreadful calamity." Telegrams were received from Mayor Collins of Boston and several other cities throughout the state.

Captain Grover, president of the R. B. Grover company, who has been ill for several weeks past, was informed yesterday afternoon of the terrible loss of life which attended the destruction of his factory, and as he listened to the harrowing details, which he insisted should be withheld from him no longer, he expressed his grief at the sufferings of employes and their families. Captain Grover was told Monday of the destruction of his factory, but, owing to his weakened condition, it was thought best to withhold from him the fact that many had been killed.

A special meeting of both branches of the city government, called by Mayor Keith last night, passed resolutions of sympathy with the families and friends of the victims. A committee was appointed to co-operate with other committees in arranging relief measures.

At the factory of George E. Keith & Co., shoe manufacturers, the officials of the company sent to the men printed slips of paper asking them what portion of their day's salary they would be willing to contribute toward a fund for the widows and children, the victims of the disaster. There are 3000 employes in this factory alone, and one of the officers said last night that he expected that $3000 would be contributed from the factory.

Graft on a Huge Scale

Albany, March 22.—The feature thus far in the investigation by the assembly judiciary committee of the charges against Supreme Court Justice Hooker was the admission to the committee by former Postmaster Moore of Fredonia that several employes on the payroll of his office never performed any duty in his office; some of them indeed, being actually employed elsewhere at the same time. At least one of these nominal employes, he swore, he had never seen. He did not actually know in fact that any such person existed.

Senator's Charge Refuted

Denver, March 22.—The Colorado general assembly, in joint convention, exonerated J. H. Herbert, vice president and general manager of the Colorado and Southern railroad, and D. M. Sullivan, postmaster of Cripple Creek, who has been charged with bribery in the gubernatorial contest. Senator Morgan, a Republican, had presented a signed declaration that Herbert and Sullivan had offered him $1500 to vote for Alva Adams, and that one-half of this sum had already been given him.

To Maintain Strict Secrecy

Chicago, March 22.—Fifteen secret service men have been brought to Chicago to guard witnesses who will testify before the special grand jury which today begun investigating the so-called "beef trust." Every witness who testifies before the inquisitorial body will be closely guarded by one of the detectives, the purpose being to prevent the witnesses being approached by newspaper men or agents of the packers.

Great Increase In Debt

Boston, March 22.—Governor Douglas sent to the Massachusetts legislature a special message on the state's finances, in which he calls attention to the "alarming increase in the state debt and the rapid increase in running expenses," and declares that the subject should receive the legislature's serious and prompt attention. The total net debt on Dec. 31, 1904, was $74,335,130.12.

Disaster Overtakes Funeral Party

Lancaster, Pa., March 22.—While descending a steep hill near Martio Forge, a trolley car bearing a funeral party got beyond control of the motorman, and was wrecked against an embankment. Not one of the 21 persons aboard escaped injury. Thomas Cummings, aged 80, whose wife had just been buried, was so badly injured that he will die. The injuries of several others are serious.

Jockeys In Bad Mixup

New Orleans, March 22.—In the races at the fair grounds a moment after the field broke, Monograph stumbled and fell, unseating Jockey Aubuchon, who suffered a broken collar bone. Jack Martin, on Jim Hale, pulled up to avoid the prostrate horse and boy, but Irby Bennett, following closely, fell with Jockey Dominick, who, however, escaped injury.

Arabs Hold Count For Ransom

Tangier, March 22.—The French minister at Fez is negotiating for the liberation of Count de Segonzac. A ransom is demanded by Shick Souitaras, who effected the capture of the count in a treacherous manner. The count, who was sent by the French Moroccan commission to investigate commercial conditions in Morocco, is held by Arabs.

Zeigler Guards Withdrawn

Springfield, Ills., March 22.—For the first time since last September there are neither United States deputy marshals nor state troops to guard Joseph Leiter's mine at Zeigler. The state troops were removed last month. The 50 United States deputy marshals who have been stationed there since last November were withdrawn last night.

"Smoke Nuisance" on Battleship

Washington, March 22.—The excess of smoke on the battleship Maine has made the ship a nuisance to the remainder of her fleet. If, after a thorough test of the Maine, it is found that the repairs to her boilers have not remedied the smoke nuisance, she will return to a navy yard for changes in her smokestacks.

Double Murder and Suicide

St. Petersburg, Tex., March 22.—Thomas Haynes shot and mortally wounded Charles Morgan, instantly killed Roy Bess, then returned home and told his young wife what he had done, after which he locked himself in a closet and blew out his brains. The cause of the tragedy is unknown.

Island Mysteriously Appears

London, March 22.—The correspondent at Tokio of The Daily Telegraph sends to his paper the story of the volcanic throwing up of a new island in the Sea of Japan. The island has been named Nushima. It is nearly 2 3-4 miles in circumference and is 480 feet above sea level.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, March 23.
Sun rises—5:43; sets—5:59.
Moon rises—9:14 p. m.
High water—12:30 a. m.; 1 p. m.

There will be rain or snow in eastern New England; elsewhere partly cloudy weather is indicated.

CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE

Insurance Agent Shoots and Kills a Fellow Boarder

Boston, March 22.—In a quarrel at 302 Center street last night, caused, it is said, by the jealousy of one of the participants, Richard Gilmore was shot through the abdomen and died from his injuries while on the way to a hospital. James E. Rolfe, 24 years old, is under arrest, charged with having fired the fatal shot.

Gilmore was 28 years of age, and came here recently from the south. Rolfe is an insurance agent and also came here from the south a short time ago. Both men boarded at the house where the shooting took place, and which is the home of Mrs. R. E. Gilmore, sister-in-law of the dead man.

Mrs. Gilmore was absent last night and her daughter, Miss Annie Gilmore, is said to have found fault with her uncle when the latter came home late to dinner. Gilmore is said to have replied roughly when Rolfe interfered. Rolfe claims that Gilmore seized him by the throat, whereupon he shot the other in self-defense. Gilmore struggled with Rolfe for some time after he had received the bullet from a 38-calibre revolver in the abdomen.

Rolfe's story to the police was corroborated by Miss Gilmore, who was held by the police as a witness. Gilmore was a lithographer and a native of Belfast, Ire., where he is said to have a family.

Appleyard Declared a Fugitive

Boston, March 22.—Arthur J. Appleyard, the State street broker, must return to Buffalo in the custody of a detective of that city to answer to an indictment alleging, in two counts, grand larceny of $50,000 from the German bank of that city. Attorney General Parker sent to Governor Douglas his finding on the question of honoring the requisition papers asking the return of Appleyard to Buffalo. The attorney general sees no reason why the requisition should not be honored and the return of Appleyard granted.

An Alleged Baseball Trust

Lynn, Mass., March 22.—The Lynn baseball club of the New England league will be unable to play ball in this city the coming season, owing to the refusal of the board of aldermen to grant the club a license. The opposition to the granting of the license came from the Association club, which had already received a license to play at Ocean park. It was claimed that the New England league team belongs to a baseball trust and that it is trying to crush all opposition.

Debut of "Gentle Spring"

Boston, March 22.—Spring in southeastern New England was ushered in by a northeast snowstorm which raged along the coast as far north as Portsmouth, with considerable violence. The snow in this city fell to a depth of four inches and, being wet and sticky, occasioned some delays in railroad and street railway traffic. No marine disasters have been reported, but the storm wrought considerable injury to numerous vessels which had previously gone ashore.

No Hope of Saving Spartan

Block Island, R. I., March 22.—Steamer Spartan, which ran ashore Sunday morning on the east side of the island, has been abandoned by Captain Briggs and the balance of the crew who remained on board at great peril in the hope that the wrecking fleet assembled in the harbor might succeed in saving their vessel, which is now believed to be impossible.

Fishing Schooners Damaged

Provincetown, Mass., March 22.—A heavy easterly storm wrought some damage to the 16 fishing schooners which were driven ashore by ice. The ice field is still in the harbor, although the storm has blown it well over toward the west side. Two steamers and a coasting schooner put in here last night on account of the storm and all anchored well off shore.

Prison Superintendent Resigns

Windsor, Vt., March 22.—E. W. Oakes, for the past 10 years superintendent of the state prison, has addressed a letter to the board of prison directors asking to be relieved of his duties as superintendent at once. He also asked the directors for permission to appear before the legislative committee now investigating the state institutions.

Berry Keeps Away From Boston

Boston, March 22.—The affairs of Charles F. Berry, trustee of 10 or 11 estates whose total value will probably reach fully $1,000,000, are still under investigation. Berry is still missing from the city and while his counsel will not say that he will not return to Boston, neither does he admit that he expects him back in the near future.

Capen In Critical Condition

Medford, Mass., March 22.—The crisis in the illness of President Capen of Tufts college, who has been sick for some days with pneumonia, is rapidly approaching, and his condition is critical. Three physicians are in constant attendance, and every effort is being made to sustain his strength.

Britishers Far Ahead

Boston, March 22.—The Americans broke even with their British opponents in the sixth day's play of the international checker tournament, winning five of the 10 games won. The total score is: Britishers, 45; Americans, 24; drawn, 171.

A Period of Tranquility

Fall River, Mass., March 22.—The strikes among the weavers in two of the local cotton mills, the Davol and the Merchants, have been settled, and for the first time for several weeks the labor situation in this city is tranquil.

CITY BREVITIES.

Julins Johnson has commenced work on two new houses on Upland road.

More nests of the brown tail moth have been discovered on the trees at the Point.

There is one consolation, and that is the sun is so high that the snow will soon disappear.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hobbs of Sumner street, welcomed the arrival of a little daughter into their home this week.

Commissioner Burke was out bright and early this morning with his street gang and the sidewalks were ploughed out in good season.

Mrs. Fenton E. Lowe and daughter, Mabel Katherine, of Hingham, spent Sunday with her cousin Miss Katherine Merritt of this city.

The seventh concert of the Wollaston Glee club will be given Wednesday evening, March 29, at the Congregational church, Wollaston.

The street railway company found it necessary to keep its big plows out all night so that there should be no interruption in travel this morning.

The Committee on Finance of the City Council will complete its work on the annual budget this week, and it will be reported to the meeting next Monday evening.

Horses, harnesses, wagons and pungs will be sold at auction tomorrow morning in the rear of Hotel Greenleaf. They were used in the grocery business of L. M. Pratt & Son.

The contract for laying the sixty-inch cast iron twin siphons of the sewage system, under the Anacostia river at Washington, D. C., has been awarded to Hiram W. Phillips of this city.

Nature leaflet, No. 26, relative to the Brown-tail moth, may be obtained free on application to the Board of Health at City Hall. It is issued by the State Board of Agriculture and is illustrated.

Tomorrow evening the Red Cross staff of Grand commandery, Knights of Malta, will exemplify the Red Cross and Sepulchre degree at Quincy Music hall. This will be the last chance to join the new commandery in Quincy at the minimum fee and become charter members. Supper will follow the work at Greenleaf hall.

The Late William W. Jenness.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

On hearing of the death of Lawyer Jenness, a certain citizen remarked that it was a pity his brain could not be transferred to someone instead of returning to silent dust. The observation contains quite a tribute to the learning and ability of the deceased attorney. That, however, is not what I desire to emphasize, but the value of integrity and industry.

When Mr. Jenness came to Quincy he had little else save his Bar certificate and a resolute mind, bent in the right direction. During the few years that he practised he acquired a large business and considerable property; and that in spite of physical infirmity and ill health.

His success was due to an extensive knowledge of the law; and his knowledge of the law was not inherited by him, nor received from someone else who was about to die and had gotten through with it. It was the direct result of concentration of purpose and hard work.

Mr. Jenness realized that the law was a jealous mistress; he therefore did not attempt to flirt with the fickle jade of politics, and club life had no attractions for him.

He seemed to take for his motto the words of the great apostle, "This one thing I do," and gave to the study and practice of law his undivided attention. He may fairly be said to have earned what Senator Hoar once said was the highest title an American could wear, —"a good lawyer." His life was but a chapter in the gospel of hard work.

PLAN FOR PANAMA

Taft Will Soon Submit It to the President

THE REED REVELATIONS

Secretary Thinks They Went to Extremes and Were Flippant--Report Was Published Without His Knowledge

Washington, March 22.—Secretary Taft has made public a letter which he has written to the president concerning complaints made by Dr. C. A. L. Reed regarding the work of the isthmian canal commission.

In his letter Secretary Taft said that many of the things complained of would be remedied by placing the control of the canal under one head, or, at least, under a commission composed of not more than three members. He added that he will soon submit to the president a plan for the rearrangement of the commission.

President Roosevelt, in his reply, said he was glad to know that the secretary is preparing a plan for the rearrangement of the commission and promises to give the plan immediate attention when received.

In his letter to the president, Taft said Reed visited Panama at his request to act as an assessor of land. But as he was the head of the American Medical association, it seemed to the secretary an opportunity upon his return to secure information from one skilled in his profession as to the existing conditions upon the isthmus. Continuing, Taft says:

"In response to my queries he was so emphatic and so detailed in his charges that I asked him to make his statement in writing, which he did upon the same day by the use of a stenographer. It is probable that had he taken more time he would have been more measured in his criticisms, less extreme in his statements and less flippant in his references to the action of the commission. The report of Dr. Reed was published without my knowledge or consent.

"It is doubtless true that there have been undue delays in the furnishing of what was needed for sanitary purposes on the isthmus, but I venture to think that this is due rather to the inherent clumsiness of the commission as an executive body than to the neglect or willful non-action of any member of that board."

Investigating Mysterious Disease

New York, March 22.—The commission of eminent physicians asked by the commissioner of health to consider the ravages of cerebro-spinal meningitis has effected formal organization. In view of the mystery surrounding the origin and the working of the disease and the general lack of knowledge in regard to it and the methods of fighting it, exhaustive questions aimed to cover the entire ground will be asked of physicians in hospitals and private practice throughout the country and Europe.

Letter Proved a Boomerang

Washington, March 22.—The president has approved the sentence of dismissal imposed on Second Lieutenant Mohn, Fourth cavalry, by a general court martial on conviction of the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman. This officer had written letters to the president alleging that a number of his superior officers in the department of the Missouri were engaged in a conspiracy to force him out of the army.

Rockefeller Ticket Beaten

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 22.—John Wirth, the citizens' candidate for president of North Tarrytown village, the home of John D. Rockefeller, was elected, receiving 515 votes to 148 cast for W. J. Stoddard. Wirth says that he is very pleased over having beaten the so-called Rockefeller ticket. Rockefeller supported the ticket headed by Stoddard, the people's party candidate.

Honors to Americans

Havana, March 22.—President Palma and all the members of his cabinet visited the United States warships in the harbor of Havana, where they were received with honors. The parks and public buildings were illuminated last night in honor of the American visitors and various bands gave concerts at which American music predominated.

Eight Killed In Cyclone

Roanoke, Ala., March 22.—Reports have reached here of a cyclone which swept across the southern part of Randolph county. Eight lives are known to have been lost and damage amounting to thousands of dollars was done to property. Details of the storm are difficult to obtain on account of the wires being down.

Great Year For Railroad Building

Chicago, March 22.—The Railway Railway Age says that 1905 is to witness great activity in railroad building. A tabulated statement shows 7500 miles under contract for construction and 9332 miles of projected road which may reasonably be expected to materialize.

A Mayor Who Means Business

Sheboygan, Wis., March 22.—Mayor Born has stopped every street car in the city because the city order to equip all cars with fenders was not complied with.

HUSBAND IS HELD

Providence Woman Died, It Is Alleged, After a Quarrel

Providence, March 22.—Mrs. Catherine Sullivan of this city, who was found wandering about the streets of Pawtucket, in a serious condition, died yesterday afternoon at a local hospital, and her husband, John Sullivan, is under arrest on a charge of assault upon her. He was arraigned in court and held in $7000 for a hearing on Friday next.

An autopsy was held by Medical Examiner Pegram, who reported that death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain and uraemic poisoning. Dr. Pegram would not state as to the probable cause of the woman's condition, but simply sent his results to Coroner Lincoln, with instructions that an inquest be held.

The police claim that the woman made a statement before her death in which she charged her husband with having struck her, and they are proceeding on the theory that the two had a quarrel.

Stumbled Upon Buried Treasure

Akron, O., March 22.—While walking along the South shore of Silver lake George Lodge stumbled upon a huge billet of metal which was found to be silver. Making further investigation, he and his brothers dug out 26 large billets of an average weight of 100 pounds each. For many years the late Henry Wetmore, who died at the age of 110 years, told a story how an encampment of 500 Indians left the vicinity of this lake one night, and it is thought this silver was the treasure they dumped into the water for safekeeping.

Domingan Plans Hung Up

Washington, March 22.—The projected reorganization of the force of American customs collectors in San Domingo, based upon the expectation that the senate would approve the pending treaty before adjournment, has been indefinitely postponed. Some apprehension is felt here as to the probable action of those European powers that have claims against San Domingo, as some attempt may be made to secure joint action by these powers to seize the customs revenues at some Dominican ports.

Failure of Investment Concern

Philadelphia, March 22.—The Provident Investment company of this city has made an assignment and a petition has been filed asking that the concern be declared an involuntary bankrupt. The company was purely an investment concern, claiming to pay a certain amount of interest for money entrusted to it for investment. The liabilities of the company are said to amount to nearly $1,000,000 and the assets are said to be very small.

Safe Robber Foiled

New York, March 22.—A bold attempt was made to secure from the safe of James E. March, a contractor, $151,000 in railroad bonds, $10,000 in cash and $10,000 worth of jewelry. While March was reading in his office, a man who had entered by a back door tiptoed to the safe, which was open, and was proceeding to help himself to the valuables, when noticed by March, who overpowered the man and handed him over to the police.

Changed Mind About Suicide

Cortland, N. Y., March 22.—Mrs. Frances Colegrove, a widow, set fire to her house and then fired three shots at herself in an attempt at suicide. Finding that her efforts to kill herself were in vain, she frantically called for help. James D. Ellis secured a ladder and took the woman from a second-story window. The house was burned. The woman will probably recover.

To Strengthen Indian Police

Calcutta, March 22.—A scheme has been sanctioned to reorganize and strengthen the Indian police at a cost of $5,000,000 yearly, with a view to rendering the police capable of holding the country in an emergency, thus releasing the troops for work at the front. The total present strength of the native police is 150,000.

UNDER LINEVITCH

Kuropatkin to Have Direction of First Russian Army

GIGANTIC FOOT RACE ON

Russians Impede Pursuit by Destroying Bridges--Japanese Moving North on Highway--Rennenkampf May Be Cut Off

St. Petersburg, March 22.—The Russian army in Manchuria is still to have the services of General Kuropatkin, who is considered by many, in spite of his series of reverses, the best general and foremost strategist of the Russian army.

Sinking the feeling of personal bitterness because of his supercession and all of the old-time enmity between himself and General Linevitch, the former commander-in-chief volunteered to remain in any capacity with the army he had so long commanded. The tender has been accepted by the czar and received by the new leader of the grand army.

The change exactly reverses the old order of affairs, when Kuropatkin was the supreme leader and Linevitch directed the first army.

Authoritative news of this remarkable step was known in Manchuria much earlier than in St. Petersburg. General Kuropatkin, having paused on his homeward journey at Harbin, started southward on March 20 amidst a most remarkable farewell from residents of Harbin and soldiers who are on the way to fill out the ranks of the depleted army.

London, March 22.—Military events in Manchuria seem now to be in the nature of a gigantic foot-race for the railroad bridge across the Sungari river at Chenchiawatzu. This is the only crossing below Kirin, as the river is not fordable, and possession of it is vital to the safety of the Russian armies. General Linevitch has his headquarters at this place, and is probably preparing to defend it, with the troops arriving from Russia, against any attack by a Japanese flanking column on the west.

Tokio dispatches show an expectation that the Russians may get time to reconcentrate and attempt to hold the line from Chantun, on the railway to Kirin. The Russian rear guard is impeding the pursuit by its thorough destruction of bridges. Nothing is said about the condition of Oyama's army, or whether the flank pursuit ceased at Kaiyuan.

London's idea that the firing reported in the region of Tie Pass means that Rennenkampff's army has arrived there from east of Mukden, and is cut off, has something in its favor, as nothing direct has come from that command for over a week past, and it was apparently cut off by the breaking of the Russian centre on March 9.

The only Japanese force which figures in the Russian dispatches is the column said to be moving north on the highway roughly parallel to the railway, and about 20 miles west of it. The Russian second army is moving north along the railway, while the first and third are retreating along the Mandarin road to Kirin; both divisions are destroying behind them everything that can aid the Japanese advance.

Press dispatches indicate that the Russians have scanty information as to the Japanese movements, owing to the defection of the Chinese. General Linevitch's decision to hold Kirin is probably in part because its loss would open to the Japanese a great transport route toward Harbin on the upper Sungari. Another, and perhaps weightier reason, is that with Kirin in their hands, the Japanese would be in position to isolate Vladivostok by a movement northeast through Ninguta, and onward to the railroad.

Agrarian Troubles Extend

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Recurrences and extensions of agrarian troubles are noted and near Libau workmen and peasants are making common cause. The Caucasus is already the scene of armed resistance to the forces of civil authority and in the region around Kieff, where the peasants are increasingly bold, there have been many cases of violence.

Lodz Workman Again Out

Lodz, March 22.—The workmen in a number of factories have again struck. A police official was shot and severely wounded. His assailants escaped.

Little Fellow's Sad Fate

Madison, Wis., March 22.—Dead in the ice on Lake Mendota, Wilfred Bondi, 4 years old, and Frazier McGowan, aged 5, were found last night. The two little fellows had attempted to cross the lake on the ice with sleds. The ice gave way and, although the water is only three feet deep, the children were unable to climb out. They died from exposure.

Thief Murders Policeman

Baltimore, March 22.—Patrolman John J. McNamara of the police force of Curtis Bay, near this city, was shot and killed last night. The murderer, who escaped, is believed to have been one of four negroes who had been stealing coal from a nearby railroad.

Jules Verne on Death Bed

Amiens, France, March 22.—Jules Verne, the author, is pronounced by his private physicians to be in the last stage of diabetes. His life is despaired of.

St. Johns, March 22.—Four sealing steamers, the Aurora and Panther off the northern coast, and the Algerine and Viking in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, have been sighted from shore among the icefloes, apparently taking seals. Other steamers sighted further north were similarly employed.

Syrians Not Wanted In Hayti

Port Au Prince, March 22.—Public notice is made in the official Moniteur that Syrian traders must settle their affairs, cease trading and leave the country by April 1. Their legations must designate the liquidators.

Two Collisions In Subway

New York, March 22.—During the rush hour on the West Farms branch of the subway last night, there were two rear-end collisions in which four persons were injured. Slippery tracks are blamed for the accidents.

Gorbell Art Rooms.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Did you realize it? This is the second day of spring!

A patent was issued this week to W. H. Doble of this city.

The new Gorbell art rooms at No. 17 Granite street is now open.

The sun dispelled the clouds at noon and the snow is disappearing fast.

G. W. Chisholm of Norfolk Downs is seriously ill with cancer of the liver.

A greater part of the session of the district court this morning was taken up with liquor cases.

Milder weather with frequent rain or snow is the prediction of the Old Farmer's Almanac for this week.

The Unity club will hold a whist party in the club rooms at Quincy Point on Thursday evening.

Several Quincy members of the Elks will attend the benefit performance at the Boston theatre to-morrow.

Mrs. E. A. Penniman returned to her home on Elm place on Tuesday after a brief visit with her sister at the Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Bates, and daughter Mary are spending a few weeks in Wollaston during Mr. Bates' vacation.

The City Council Committee on Finance will meet Thursday night. It will probably complete the budget at this meeting.

Mrs. Robert Clegg has recovered from her recent illness and joined her husband in New York where they will make their future home.

The fourth annual concert of the Quincy High school will be given on Friday evening of next week at High School hall. It promises to excel its predecessors.

Division 5, A. O. H., will attend holy communion in a body at St. John's church Sunday morning for Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan, the division physician.

A special civil service examination for clerks and carriers for the Quincy post office will be held in Boston, Tuesday April 4. See John H. McDougall at Quincy office for particulars.

Dr. W. T. Grenfell, of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, will lecture in the Wollaston Congregational church next week. His subject will be his work on the Labrador coast. All are cordially invited.

It is hoped that the annual supper and meeting of the parish of the Washington Street Congregational church will be largely attended this evening. Matters of importance will be discussed.

Mrs. S. I. Wood, the popular Quincy milliner, was awarded a certificate of honorable mention for an original and meritorious design entered in the Inaugural hat contest at New York recently. But ten certificates were issued.

Good weather to fight the brown-tail. People are asking what the city is going to do about the shade trees along the road side. If the city does not look after its trees it will not do much good for property holders to look after theirs.

Luther C. Greenleaf Esq., of Boston, secretary and treasurer of the new Pine Tree State club of Boston, will be a guest of the Quincy Pine Tree State Association at its meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gleason, 65 Independence avenue. Mr. Greeleaf will speak to the members of the club regarding the new quarters of his club in Boston.

The S. of V. auxiliary, No. 3, are to hold a whist party in G. A. R. hall this evening.

Mr. Charles W. Hall of this city and Miss Florence Edna Cowling of Dorchester, were married at Dorchester on Tuesday the twenty-first.

The local contractors report considerable activity in their line and that there will probably be an unusual amount of building this spring.

The Committee on Public Buildings of the City Council have requested the architects who submitted sketches for a single complete addition to the High school to furnish plans and specifications. They have been very successful in getting sketches.

English and French Police.

No comparison can fairly be made between the police of London and Paris without due consideration of the fact that the French law admits an interference with the liberty of the subject which would not be tolerated in Great Britain. And it must also be remembered that the existence of octroi duties makes it difficult for a Frenchman to enter or quit Paris without being the subject of closer observation than he would encounter in an English city. —Solicitors' Journal.

Pay as You Go.

To live within one's income is the secret of prosperity. Happiness is the heritage of the one who adheres to this rule, and a contented mind and an ever increasing bank account will belong to the one who buys only what he can pay for.

APPEARING OLD

Acts as a Bar to Profitable Employment.

You cannot afford to grow old.
In these days of strenuous competition it is necessary to maintain, as long as possible ones youthful appearance.
It is impossible to do this without retaining a luxurious growth of hair.
The presence of Dandruff indicates the presence of a burrowing germ which lives and thrives on the roots of the hair until it causes total baldness.
Newbro's Herpicide is the only known destroyer of this pest, and it is as effective as it is delightful to use
Herpicide makes an elegant hair dressing as well as Dandruff cure.
Accept no substitute—there is none.
Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

OYAMA'S ACHIEVEMENTS

An Expert's Outline of Japanese Commander's Campaign.

WHAT HE DID IN EIGHT MONTHS

American Officer Tells How Oyama Was Quick To Learn the Lesson of Liaoyang Battle—Compares Him to Von Moltke, the Great Strategist of the German Army.

Marquis Oyama's previous record in the service of his native country and his emperor is a matter of record in modern history, and his brief but eventful career connected with the present history making epoch in the far east alone is here outlined by Captain William G. Haan of the general staff, United States army, having charge of the mapping of the Manchurion campaign at the war college in Washington, says the New York Times:

Oyama, the commander in chief of the Japanese armies in the field, started from Tokyo for his new and important field on July 6, 1904, and in the eight months following that date, half of which had to be passed in dreadful winter quarters, he has apparently achieved supremacy over a magnificent army approximately equal in numbers to his own and commanded by a man whose genius even in continuous reverses has compelled the admiration of the whole world.

When Oyama, with Chief of Staff Kodama, arrived in Manchuria he found that the Russian Port Arthur force had been cut off and by the Fourth Japanese army, under Nogi, was being gradually forced into the great fortress of which the brave Russian commander declared: "My life is given to Russia. Whatever happens I do not surrender. Port Arthur shall be my tomb." He was besieged by an army of as brave, patriotic and determined soldiers as ever fought for any cause. Their chief, Marquis Oyama, a hundred miles away, called upon them gently, but firmly, that the fall of the fortress was necessary for the success of the righteous cause of their emperor, and, like the turning of mighty machinery by the pressure of an electric button, the coils were drawn closer and tighter.

Thousands of lives had to be sacrificed, but to the indomitable will of the great directing center in this remarkable campaign it formed but a link in the chain being forged by the other three armies simultaneously and harmoniously, seeking ways and means eventually to complete a magic circle within whose circumference should be inclosed and neutralized the Russian power that has been threatening the very independence of the empire of the Rising Sun.

Having satisfactorily accounted for the Russian forces in Port Arthur by the assignment of the Fourth army to that task, Oyama undertook to arrange his remaining available forces in the best possible positions for striking a decisive blow at the enemy on his northern front. The First army, under Kuroki, the victor of the first battle, was on the right, based on Fengwangcheng. The Fourth, under Nodzu, was in the center, based on Sluyen, and the Second, under Oku, the victor of Nanshan and Vafangow, was moving north on the railroad south of Newchwang. The Russian army, based on Liaoyang, under General Kuropatkin, extended south on the railroad as far as Newchwang and Kaiping and held all the mountain passes east of the railroad in the Fenshui mountains, thus protecting his base and line of communication.

Kuropatkin's available active forces at this time, exclusive of the garrisons at Vladivostok and Port Arthur and the necessary railway guards, were approximately equal in numbers to the First, Second and Fourth armies under Oyama. Kuropatkin's force, however, appears to have been still imperfectly organized and not suitable for taking the offensive in a campaign against well organized and thoroughly disciplined troops such as the Japanese. It appears also that the Russian commander was considerably interfered with in his plan of action by Admiral Alexeieff, who was viceroy at that time.

While the campaign was going on against Port Arthur by the Fourth army the Japanese commander in chief determined to attack with all his power the Russian forces on his front and gave the signal for the movement of his great armies. Kuroki and Nodzu moved against the mountain passes, while Oku continued his advance north on the railroad. All roads and other lines of communication from the Japanese line, a hundred miles long, converged toward Liaoyang, the base of the Russian army. The movement of the Japanese armies was naturally made with the view of concentrating here and giving battle, if not in the hope of destroying the enemy, at least in the expectation of depriving him of a strong base and forcing him into less comfortable winter quarters, depriving him of a large amount of local supplies and securing a more favorable terrain for the winter quarters of the Japanese armies.

While the Japanese armies were advancing toward Liaoyang minor actions took place, due to the stubborn resistance of the Russian army. The principal ones, hardly worthy of the name of battles, however, in so great a war, may be mentioned chronologically as follows:

Kaiping, July 6, 7, 8—Oku.
Llanshan, July 17—Kuroki.
Tashichao, July 24, 25—Oku.
Simuchen, July 30, 31—Oku.
Haicheng, July 30, 31—Nodzu.
Lantse Pass, July 31 and Aug. 1, and Yushulin, July 31 and Aug. 1—Kuroki.
Nodzu had many small affairs with Russian detachments in the numerous passes in the Benshui mountains.

By the 1st of August all the mountain passes southeast of Liaoyang were in the hands of the Japanese, and their various columns, like mighty snakes, were slowly but surely getting into position to make a leap at the sullen foe, whose methodical retreat under a great commander emphasized the national characteristics of the Russian soldier, already well established in history—the national trait that knows so well how to sacrifice and the exercise of which sent home in sorrow and disgrace from the plains of Moscow the greatest commander who ever lived.

Oyama's columns were now, Aug. 1, about twenty miles from Liaoyang, to the south, southeast and east. During the next three weeks he moved forward his reserve ammunition and supplies, brought up at the same time all possible re-enforcements, reconnoitered the Russian position and made his plans for battle. This battle, known as the battle of Liaoyang, was begun on Aug. 26 and lasted practically for ten days. It must be recorded as one of the world's great battles, though the results achieved did not mark a turning point in history. The details have been given at some variance in the dispatches. The turning point in the battle was the bold flanking movement, two divisions of Kuroki's army taking in flank the Russian forces north of the Taitse river and threatening the lines of communication of the Russian army.

The masterly retreat made by the Russian commander, saving all his artillery and carrying off all his wounded and practically all his supplies, convinced the Japanese commander in chief that his armies were not sufficiently large to strike a finishing blow at his antagonist, and it was at this time that he demanded energetic action at Port Arthur in the hope of increasing his forces by adding to them the Fourth army after the fall of Port Arthur. It was at this time also that he conveyed to the emperor the information that the army must be increased if the foe was to be speedily overcome. The loyal and brave troops at Port Arthur responded with the energy that can only come from brave men, and the Japanese government responded no less energetically and authorized an increase in the army of about a quarter of a million men.

After the battle of Liaoyang the Russians retreated to the Hun river, south of Mukden, keeping in contact with and energetically resisting the advance of the pursuing Japanese. If Oyama's object was the destruction of the Russian army he utterly failed; if their dislodgment from a good base was his object he succeeded.

Liaoyang battle, however, was not a decisive one. The Russian army retained its morale, as was shown when less than a month later it took the offensive and with all its might attacked the Japanese lines in a most determined manner. The Japanese proved, however, too strong to be driven back and in turn assumed the offensive, driving the Russian army back across the Sha river, but they were unable to gain further ground. Oyama determined to intrench, establish his winter quarters, re-enforce his army and provision it for an early spring campaign.

Mukden is about the latitude of Chicago, a little more elevated, hence a trifle colder and having probably a little less snow, so that by the middle of March the ice begins to disappear from the rivers. The Hun river is not fordable in the vicinity of Mukden, and at the present time the ground is still solidly frozen, making transportation facilities good.

These considerations doubtless influenced the Japanese commander to take the offensive when the cold was still severe, when his movements were still unlooked for by the enemy, and when a defeat would be all the more destructive to his antagonist.

Combined strategical and tactical considerations determined the time for the attack. Oyama's belief in his superiority in numbers and efficiency justified him in making his great and hazardous turning movements in the hope of shattering the legions of his foe and reducing the morale of the Russian army to such an extent that its resisting power might not be equal to the future attacks of the Japanese forces available for offensive operations.

The methodical and at times brilliant work of the armies commanded by Marquis Oyama, together with the work he previously accomplished in the Chinese-Japanese war and as chief of the Japanese general staff, places him well up among the great commanders of modern times. As a strategist he has shown probably greater aptitude than any other Japanese commander. As a tactician he has done excellent work and is still improving. He has the great accomplishment of having perfected the plans of this war in time of peace, and if his future career keeps pace with his past he is properly entitled to a place alongside that great and loyal commander whose modest but forceful character and whose great military genius will ever form a profitable subject for study by the military student. I refer to Von Moltke, the genius of the German army.

Girl's Big Saving In Pennies.

Nellie Mason, a schoolgirl in Rockford, Ill., recently surprised the officials in one of the Rockford savings banks by pulling a toy wagon inside the counting room. Then she took the cover from the load the wagon contained and passed to the receiving teller seventy pounds of pennies, says a Rockford dispatch. There were 11,700 of them, done up in packages of twenty-five each. With the load she opened a savings account with $117 to her credit. The pennies had been given to her by her father, who is a small merchant in the residence part of Rockford.

Derrington walked to the door and opened it, with a bow. "Willingly. I think we understand one another. I am sorry to ask you to leave me so soon, as our conversation was most enjoyable. But I have to see a certain Mr. Ireland"—

"Is that Brendon's guardian?" asked Mrs. Ward, coming to a sudden stop in the hall.

"His former guardian," corrected Derrington. "How do you come to know of him, Mrs. Ward?"

"I think Dorothy mentioned the name," she said in rather a faltering tone. "Please tell your man to call a cab. I sent away the carriage."

"Let me send you home in mine."

"No! No, I want to go at once," and she approached the door quickly. "When did you say Mr. Ireland was coming?"

Derrington glanced at his watch. "He is due now," he said and looked at her, wondering why she asked the question.

Mrs. Ward's face was turned away. She was dressed in furs and carried a muff. When the door was opened by the footman a gentleman appeared on the threshold. Mrs. Ward lifted her muff to her face, but not before the stranger had caught sight of her face and had uttered an ejaculation of surprise. "You!" he said, stepping forward.

"What do you mean?" said Mrs. Ward, with her face still hidden. "Lord Derrington, this friend of yours is making a mistake. Tell that man to be quick calling a cab." And she moved past the stranger.

"You!"

"Pardon," he said politely, "but I wish to speak with you."

Derrington bent his bushy brows. "Let the lady pass," he said. "Who are you, sir, to stop the egress of my guests?"

"My name is Rodger Ireland," said the stranger quietly, "and I have been looking for that lady for over thirty years."

"What does the man mean?" asked Mrs. Ward haughtily, but looking disturbed.

"Lord Derrington," said Ireland, "I think if you will permit this lady and me to have a talk"—

"There seems to be some mistake," said Derrington. "Mrs. Ward, will you not wait until we rectify it?"

"No. The man is mad. Let me pass, sir. There is the cab."

But Ireland would not let her pass. "Lord Derrington," he said softly, lest the footman should overhear, "this is the lady who was with your son when he was murdered."

Derrington was not easily startled, but he turned suddenly white. Mrs. Ward shrank back into the hall. Now that the truth was told she seemed to recover from her fears and to regain all her tact. "I shall not want the cab at present," she said to the footman. "Tell the man to wait. Lord Derrington, if you do not wish these private affairs to be discussed in the presence of the servants we had better return to the library."

When they found themselves in the library Derrington closed the door and went to his seat. He looked much older, having aged in a most extraordinary manner under the shock of Ireland's information. Mrs. Ward was perfectly cool and resumed her former seat. As to Ireland, he let himself carefully down into the most capacious armchair he could find. Mrs. Ward opened the conversation at once.

"You say you saw me at San Remo?" she asked.

"I did," replied Ireland in his heavy voice. "I was there at the time Mr. Percy Vane was murdered"—Derrington groaned—"and I was at the masked ball where"—

"The Veglioni," said Mrs. Ward. "Well, you were there. You say you saw me?"

"In a blue domino."

"There were plenty of blue dominos at that ball. At least I should think there were."

"Yes, but you wore a sprig of yellow holly. That was why I recognized you when you were masked."

"How did you know it was I?"

"Because early in the evening you went into a box. I was there talking to the Marchesa Beltrami, to whom the box belonged. You removed your mask, and I had ample opportunity to observe you."

"What reason had you to observe me?" asked Mrs. Ward, just as though she were counsel examining a witness.

"Well," said Ireland, smoothing his face, "you see, I knew Mr. Vane very well. He married a woman of whom I was fond." Derrington shifted restlessly in his chair. "Do not be afraid, Lord Derrington. I do not intend to talk of Rosina Lockwood"—

"At present I say nothing," was his lordship's reply, and he watched the two faces before him with close attention.

"You saw me unmask in a certain box," said Mrs. Ward quickly. "Do you mean that after all these years, over thirty years, that you recognize me again? I was a girl then. I am a woman now."

"Quite so. But you have a mole on your forehead just above the left eyebrow. I knew you by that. And then I have a splendid memory for faces, and yours"—Ireland bowed gallantly—"is too beautiful to forget easily."

Mrs. Ward shrugged her shoulders. "It's a most remarkable memory," she said.

"It is, madam," assented Ireland. "My memory was always considered remarkable. And the fact is that I was thinking of the murder almost at the moment I entered the hall. Consequently your face was in my mind's eye. That made the chance of recognizing you more sure. Had I not been thinking of old days I might not have guessed so readily who you were."

"Why were you thinking of the murder then?" asked Derrington.

"Well, my lord, you sent for me to speak with me about George"—Mrs. Ward gave a short laugh, and Derrington smiled—"so I was naturally thinking of George; such a thought led to my thinking of his parents, and finally I remembered the circumstance of your son's death, as I thought you might wish to talk of it, and therefore desired to get my memory in order. In this way did I recognize the lady."

"This is all very well," said Mrs. Ward. "You say you recognize me, Mr. Ireland. Is that your name?"

"It is, but your memory is not so good as mine. We met only once." Derrington was not so sure that Mrs. Ward's memory was not good, for he remembered how she had tried to get away before the arrival of Ireland. "Go on! Go on!" he said irritably. "I wish to know the worst."

"The worst is that I am supposed to have killed Percy Vane," said Mrs. Ward coolly. "So you accuse me of that?" she asked Ireland.

"By no means. But you were at that ball"—

"I was, in a blue domino with a sprig of holly at my breast."

"And you were with Mr. Vane?"

"No, I was not!"

"You went out with Mr. Vane."

"I did not. It was my sister."

"Your sister!" said Derrington. "Hah!" And he relapsed into silence. Mrs. Ward shot a suspicious look at him, but his inscrutable face betrayed nothing.

GOOD CONTRACTS.

Secured by Fore River Company.

To Build Four Submarines

Contracts Amount to Nearly a Million Dollars.

It is reported that the Electric boat company of New York, which is practically the Holland submarine torpedo boat company, has placed a contract with the Fore River Shipbuilding company for four submarine boats.

It is understood that the Holland company are building these boats for the United States government, and that the company has guaranteed to deliver them at a stated time. The price to be paid for one of the boats is $250,000, one at $200,000 and two at $185,000 each.

The contract calls for the completion of the boats in eighteen months.

Brown-tail Remedies

The habit of the caterpillar in wintering over in webs at the tips of the branches gives a key to the simplest and cheapest remedy, which is merely to cut off and burn the webs during the fall, winter or spring. This preventative means is most effective, and gives such excellent results that in Germany, France and Belgium there is a law making it obligatory on property owners to destroy the webs during the winter season. Where citizens neglect to carry out this work it is done for them by the local authorities, and the sum thus expended added to their tax levy.

The work of removing the webs is best done in winter by the use of a long-handled tree pruner or similar device. Particular care should be given to gathering the webs and burning them, as any left on the ground will yield caterpillars and continue the infestation locally.

Spraying is very effective against these insects; in fact they are much less resistant to the action of poison than is the gypsy moth or elm leaf beetle. To secure best results, spraying should be done as soon as the foliage develops in the spring. Five pounds of the arsenate of lead paste to one hundred gallons of water is sufficient, or, if preferred, one pound of good Paris green kept well stirred may be applied in one hundred and fifty gallons of water.

Where the caterpillars swarm from trees along fences or on house walls the use of kerosene emulsion or strong soap suds is advisable.

Adjourned Town Meeting.

Monday evening the voters of Braintree reassembled in the Town hall and the following appropriations were made:

Highways and bridges, $4,500.
Construction and repair of sidewalks, $2,000.
Street watering, $750.
Removal of snow, $2,500.
Stone road, balance, $1,825.12.
New stone crushing plant, $2,500.
Construction of Sherbrooke avenue, $350.
Construction of Miller avenue, $275.
Support of poor, $5,500.
Military aid, $1,200.
Tree Warden's department, $1,150.

Mr. E. E. Abercrombie, tree warden, was given $1,000 more than the appropriation committee recommended by his special request to keep the brown-tail moth from coming into Braintree. Their recent appearance in Quincy has caused alarm in Braintree.

Voted to adjourn until Monday evening, March 27, at 7.30 o'clock.

—A certain man is reported as saying: "If I could purchase a good character for $10,000 I would do so quickly. I would count it a good investment. I could immediately make $20,000 out of it." He meant a good reputation, and his thought was that if he were believed to be honest and reputable he could secure a situation that was entirely out of his reach under the circumstances. Of course such a man would use such a place for dishonest purposes. Nevertheless he gave testimony to the commercial value of a good reputation.—Universalist Leader.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co. is encouraging its employes to take advantage of the International Correspondence school, and office arrangements will soon be made for representatives of the school.

An Interesting Meeting.

Wollaston lodge, No. 174, American Benefit Society, had a jolly time at their regular meeting in Brasee's hall, on Tuesday evening. Despite the bad storm, three-fourths of the members were present. Several applications for membership were received, quite a number were elected, and four were initiated. They were honored with the presence of the Supreme Medical Director, Dr. M. Morey Pearson, of Boston, who, in her address, highly complimented the officers for their good work, and predicted a bright future for Wollaston lodge. Dr. E. R. Johnson, who is the Medical Examiner, also gave an address in his usual jovial way, intermingled with laughable jokes, some of which were aimed at Bro. J. V. Carter, of Brockton which created considerable merriment. Sister Cora Merrill entertained with readings. Sandwiches, and hot coffee were served, while members partook of a mystery box. To Brother Ernest M. Tribou fell the possession of a pretty hand mirror. A laughable feature in the form of an empty egg shell race was then enjoyed, Brother Samuel Hanson winning the prize of a silver quarter presented by working Deputy, J. V. Carter. A social time followed.

New Keeper.

George Wilson, keeper of the Quincy Home, has tendered his resignation to take effect April 1. William J. Vaughn of Quincy Neck has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Vaughn was brought up on a farm, afterward learning the trade of a machinist. He served for two years as keeper of the almshouse at East Bridgewater. For some time past he has resided at Quincy Neck and has been employed at the Fore River works, while Mrs. Vaughn conducted a boarding house. He comes to the Quincy Home well recommended.

The Quincys Win.

The Quincy bowling team visited the Elite alleys in Boston Wednesday night and sprung quite a big surprise on the crack Elite team, taking two out of three games. The totals were: 465 to 457, 490 to 478 and 476 to 511. All the Quincy boys were in good form and mowed down the pins right and left. Connell did the best work getting a total of 318. For the Elite team W. Ferris was honor man, and got an elegant single of 119. The series now stand even, each team winning three games and the rubber game will be rolled on the Granite street alleys some night next week.

—Mrs. John D. Long of Hingham and Mrs. D. B. Russell of Brockton have been appointed by Gov. Douglas on the board of trustees of the State Sanatorium.

Channel at Houghs Neck.

The Legislative Committee on Harbors and Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Eben W. Sheppard and others, that the Harbor and Land Commissioners be directed to dredge and widen the channel off the southerly shore of Quincy, at Houghs Neck, will visit Quincy next week to look over the location.

The bill that has been reported, authorizes the expenditure of $5,000. It instructs the Harbor and Land Commissioners to dredge and widen a channel, known as the Quincy and Boston Steamboat Company's channel, off the southerly shore of Quincy and opposite the Quincy Yacht club house, to a depth not exceeding six feet at mean low water.

TODAY'S COURT.

Louis Wright was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Several juvenile cases were disposed of in the juvenile session.

—There has been no horror like the one at Brockton since the Pemberton mill, in Lawrence, fell, on Jan. 10, 1860, burying 700 persons in the ruins, of whom about 100 perished. Fire in the Pemberton after the collapse, as at Brockton, added to the horrors of the disaster.

—The First Presbyterian parish of Hyde Park will erect a $10,000 church edifice at 60 East River street.

—The state Y. M. C. A. handicap athletic meeting will take place at the Newton Y. M. C. A. tonight.

LADY MINSTRELS.

Young Ladies Assist Young Men at Wollaston.

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the first annual performance of the "Imperial Minstrels" at the Wollaston Unitarian church vestry Wednesday evening. The young people who took part and R. F. Weston the director should be congratulated upon their success. Miss Ethel Parker at the piano was an excellent accompanist.

The first part started off with piano duets by Miss Parker and William Weston. After the overture there were several comic songs and local jokes. The first part ended with a display of the worth of the Bell and Edison telephones by rival agents, a bone and tambo.

In the second part, G. D. Spaulding made a hit with several solos. He was dressed as a lady, and sang. "It's enough to make a perfect lady mad," "I'm a poor unlucky maid," and others. Baker and Simmons, the clever black faced comedians called forth great applause in their latest comic sketch "Look out for the cat."

In contrast to the comic part of the show Miss Jessie I. Fowler rendered two charming solos, "Hello, central, give me Heaven," and "Stay in your own back yard." These pathetic little songs were illustrated by beautiful stereopticon views.

The show concluded with a stirring musical burlesque, "Under the Stars and Stripes." One of the features was "The Big Brass Band." A quartette assisted by the chorus were equipped with zobo instruments and with Ralph Weston at the cornet and Winslow Weston and O. P. Stearns at the drum the band was complete.

After the band had responded to an encore, Robin Ding Dong sang "Move On." The whole chorus then sang a medley including choruses to popular songs which were acted out by members of the company.

The show ended with a sensational military finale "Fall In," sung by St. Tom Evans assisted by the chorus.

The end men were dressed in gorgeous costumes with high collars and tall hats in the first part. In the second they wore straw hats, white negligee shirts and white duck trousers.

The end ladies wore long coats and large paper hats during the whole performance.

The gentlemen in the chorus wore costumes similar to the "second part" costumes of the end men, and the ladies wore white shirtwaists, duck skirts and large hats.

The lighting effect during the whole performance was quite a feature. The stage was illuminated by red, white, and blue lamps at different times, and many colored lights were thrown on from arc lamps.

R. C. Baker who had charge of the lighting and scenery should be congratulated on the effect of his work and industry.

The tambos were Miss Helen Blossom Miss Minnie Heelan and Miss Cora Morton, and the bones Messrs. George Skalum, Bill Ellis, and Ray Loftus.

Among the company were: Miss Helen M. Sprague, Miss Cora B. Williams, Miss Gladys M. Parker, Miss Edna Fowler, Miss Marion Hatch, Miss Minnie Packard, Miss Helen C. Barnes, Miss Jessie I. Fowler, Miss Marjorie Fay, Miss Grace I. Bishop, Miss Alice L. Gow, Miss Leona Robbins and Miss Margaret T. Barnes.

Messrs. George E. Brown, Raymond B. Jordan, Francis H. Bishop, Harry Hooper, Osborne P. Stearns, Clarence W. Loud, George B. Weston, Carleton D. White, Winslow B. Weston, William E. Weston, Roy C. Baker, Earle Boyce, George Alexander, Lewis B. Weston, Geo. I. L. Keyes, Percy A. Hull, John L. Merrill, Ralph W. Weston.

Blown Five Miles.

Mr. E. Earl Staples, who resides in Eastondale, reports to the Enterprise that he found a piece of the boiler, which exploded at the R. B. Grover & Co. factory Monday, in the yard at the rear of his house, shortly after the accident took place.

Mr Staples was in the yard five minutes before he found the piece of boiler which is jagged and about the size of a man's hand, and is positive that it was not there at that time.

The distance from the R. B. Grover & Co.' factory to Mr. Staple's house is over five miles in a straight line.

Milk Inspection.

Miss Dearborn.

Miss Belinda Dearborn of Manchester, N. H., the only sister of Miss Mary E. Dearborn, who died last week after a long illness, is highly spoken of in the Manchester Union, as an earnest worker interested in benevolent and missionary enterprises. She found special spheres of activity in the People's Baptist church, the Dorcas Society, the Women's Home and the Foreign Missionary Society.

Miss Dearborn was the ideal church worker in many respects. Without display, never lifting her voice into prominence in the meetings, evidencing little of the exalted ecstacy of revival tides and never settling into the lethargy and gloom which too often intervenes between times of religious awakening, always possessing the same strong sweet, earnest spirit, and always quietly engaged in work along her chosen lines, her influence was wholly for good. Her last service, done while she was restricted to her bed, was the preparation of a paper which was read in a meeting of the mission society to whose work she was absolutely devoted.

—The Whitman Co-operative Bank, at the semi-annual meeting last week, had such a successful season that the bank could pay a dividend of 6 per cent. and carry nearly $600 to the surplus fund and 2 per cent. to the guarantee fund. It is the best showing the bank has made.

—Henry A. Hutchinson was on Wednesday appointed postmaster of Dedham, to succeed Charles H. Riley.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Some Massachusetts Democrats are said to contemplate side-tracking Governor Douglas next fall, and running a nominee more to their own liking. In that case, there will be no need for the Republicans to worry about the succession.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The terrible accident at Brockton is all the more terrible because it was preventable. It may be true that the defect in the boiler could not be discovered, owing to the position of the flaw that caused the shell to give way, but it is true that there is not enough inspectors of boilers. Where boilers are insured, the State inspectors keep away. Chief Shaw says he has absolutely no authority to examine a boiler that is under the protection of the boiler insurance companies. If he had the power he could not exercise it, for his force of boiler inspectors is inadequate to the task. Manufacturers complain of this, and with some reason. They hold that an annual, or a semi-annual examination of a boiler is insufficient.—Lynn Item.

☞ The great want in this age is men. Men who are not for sale. Men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to the heart's core. Men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe, in themselves as well as others. Men whose consciences are as steady as the needle to the pole. Men who will stand for the right though the heavens totter, and the earth reels. Men who can tell the truth and look the world and the devil in the eye. Men that neither flag nor run. Men who can have courage without shouting to it. Men in whom the courage of everlasting life runs still, deep and strong. Men who do not cry nor cause their voice to be heard on the street, but who will not fail nor be discouraged till judgment be set in the earth. Men who will not lie. Men who are not too lazy to work, nor too proud to be poor. Men who are willing to eat what is placed before them and to wear only what they have paid for.—Brookline Press.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Expert Report on Probable Cause of Brockton Disaster

IN HANDS OF THE POLICE

Death List Remains at Fifty-Five, No More Bodies Having Been Found--Score of Persons Believed to Have Been Missing May Have Escaped Death

Brockton, Mass., March 23.—The day of the funeral of the victims of Brockton's great disaster of Monday, which cost the lives of about three score shoe-factory operatives, finds the city silent and in mourning. Yesterday was devoted principally to arranging for the great public funeral for the victims of the disaster and also to an extended and careful investigation of the causes of the boiler explosion in R. B. Grover & Co.'s factory on Monday.

The investigation into the causes of the explosion was resumed with even more elaborate detail than characterized Tuesday's careful inquiries. Chief Shaw of the district police has in his possession a report from an expert as to the probable cause of the blowing up of the factory boiler, and he has notified District Attorney French of the nature of the expert's findings. These findings, however, have been withheld from the public.

City Marshal Boyden is authority for the statement that everything possible has been done to determine the question of criminal responsibility for the accident, but, like the district attorney, Boyden declines for the present to make any statement concerning the result of his investigations.

No more bodies have been found in the ruins, and the number of bodies recovered remains at 55. Late last night Marshal Boyden issued a statement to the effect that 44 persons who were employed in Grover & Co.'s factory were still missing, and he expressed the opinion that this number, added to the 15 identified dead, represented approximately the number of fatalities in Monday's disaster. This report of Boyden indicates that a score of persons believed to have been missing escaped death in the explosion and fire. The fact that a number of persons whose names were not on the factory's list reported for work Monday morning suggested to him, however, that some others may be dead whose names will never be known.

Preparations for the public funeral are so universal throughout the city, and so many organizations, varied in character, will participate, that the occasion has assumed all the qualities of a public sorrow which affects directly every one of the 45,000 inhabitants of Brockton.

At a meeting of the Joint Shoe Council last night it was announced that the relief fund amounted to more than $10,000.

Officer Scott of the district police was in the city making an inspection of the ruined boiler for the benefit of the fire marshal's department. He left for his home in Milford without making any statement regarding the result of his investigations.

For Inspection of Steam Boilers

Boston, March 23.—Senator Garfield of Brockton introduced a bill in the senate to provide for the appointment of 15 inspectors of steam boilers, instead of 10, as at present, and to provide also for the inspection by the state police department of stationary steam boilers, irrespective of the fact as to whether the boilers are insured or not.

Charges Against City Official

San Francisco, March 23.—Frank A. Maestretti, president of the board of public works of this city, was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of inducing witnesses to testify falsely in the case of Charles Wyman, formerly a barkeeper in Maestretti's employ, and now serving a sentence for fraudulent voting at the last primary election. The offense charged is a felony.

Cuts Out Domestic Bribery

Albany, March 23.—A bill making it a misdemeanor to bribe a servant or agent in respect to his master's business has been passed by the assembly. "The necessity of this bill is clearly shown," said the author of the measure, "by the fact that the butler of Mrs. Leland Stanford is said to have received $2100 from merchants selling supplies to the family."

Christian Science Legislation

Lincoln, Neb., March 23.—The senate last night passed the house bill regulating the practice of Christian science. An amendment permits osteopaths to practice. The bill requires a certificate from the state board of health before anyone can practice medicine or healing.

Will Try to Place Blame

New York, March 23.—Borough President Ahern has appointed a committee to investigate the collapse of various partly finished buildings in the city. He recommends that the blame be fixed wherever, in its opinion, it should rest.

Military Fired on Rioters

Warsaw, March 23.—Serious agrarian disturbances occurred yesterday at Kutno. The military fired on peasant rioters and several of the latter were killed or wounded. There were similar riots at Ostrov.

TRIBUTE TO CAPEN

Governor and Council Act on Death of College President

Boston, March 23.—The following resolution was adopted by the governor and council upon receipt of news of the death of President Elmer H. Capen of Tufts college:

"The announcement of the death of Elmer H. Capen has been received by the governor and council, as by the people of the commonwealth, with feelings of the deepest sorrow. Under his fostering care Tufts college has become an institution in which Massachusetts takes just pride. His service, however, to the public was not confined to the college he so dearly loved, nor to the state board of education of which he was such an efficient member.

"Unaffected, simple and sincere, his life was of continued well doing and of willing service in all good causes. A scholar and a gentleman in the truest sense, he well exemplified the citizen who lives that the community may be better for his life. His death is a loss which not merely his friends, but the people of Massachusetts, will universally deplore."

President Capen died at his home on College Hill, Medford, aged 67 years. He would have completed 30 years as head of Tufts college next June, having been elected on March 13, 1875, and inaugurated on June 3 following.

Got His $10,000 Back

New York, March 23.—Dr. H. H. Kane and Dr. W. H. Hale, under indictment for grand larceny, pleaded guilty to the charge and were remanded for sentence. The complainant, John J. McCallum, alleged that the two doctors treated him by what they called a radium process, for which he paid $10,000 without receiving any benefit. Since the indictments were brought Kane and Hale have returned the money.

Ticket Agent's Great Blunder

Yankton, S. D., March 23.—Twenty Russian families bound for Yankton have, by a misunderstanding on the part of a ticket agent at Hamburg, been sent to Guinna, South America, instead of to Yankton. The immigrants can speak no language but their own and their plight apparently will be similar to that of another Russian party destined for California and having by mistake been landed in Argentina.

In Favor of Secretary Hayes

Washington, March 23.—The long-standing controversy between the Burns and Hayes factions of the Knights of Labor has been decided by the court of appeals of the District of Columbia favorably to the latter. J. W. Hayes was elected general secretary of the order several years ago, but his right to the office was disputed by Simon Burns.

Mrs Chadwick's Promise

Cleveland, March 23.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick states that she will go on the witness stand in the bankruptcy proceedings against her and make known all the facts in her possession that will aid her creditors. Some of her disclosures, she says, may not be pleasant, but she will not say anything that cannot be backed up by documentary evidence.

Decision In Bankruptcy Case

New York, March 23.—A decision was handed down here by the United States circuit court of appeals defining a bank's right to apply money, the property of a bankrupt, in its possession, to the payment of notes of the bankrupt, held by the bank. The court held that such a payment constituted a preferential payment.

Heavy Purchase of Wheat

Minneapolis, March 23.—One of the largest transactions ever recorded in the Minneapolis grain trade was made when the F. H. Peavey company sold in a single trade about 2000 cars of wheat to a single flour concern. The transaction was for cash. Details as to prices, grades and terms of delivery were unobtainable.

Brothers' Quarrel May End Fatally

New York, March 23.—Charles Conselyea was arrested in Brooklyn last night on the charge of shooting his brother, John C. Conselyea, who is suffering from wounds which, it is believed, will prove fatal. The brothers were real estate partners and had quarreled over financial matters.

Police Commissioner Shot

St. Petersburg, March 23.—An attempt was made at Dvinsk yesterday afternoon to assassinate Assistant Commissioner of Police Degetereff. His assailant, who escaped, fired several shots at Degetereff and wounded him in the head.

NEWS IN BRIEF

As a result of a quarrel over land, James Blee shot and instantly killed a half-brother, Isaac Sailer, at Des Moines. Blee is under arrest.

Dr. W. P. Spring, a prominent physician of Minneapolis, died 60 hours after being overcome by fumes from a defective connection of a gas heater. He had been developing photographic negatives in a dark room.

The Italian cruiser Calabria, with Prince Ferdinand, son of the Duke of Genoa, aboard, has arrived at Kingston, Jam. The prince is on a voyage around the world.

The organization of the Massachusetts Bankers' association by representatives of 233 of the 445 banking companies of the state was perfected at a meeting at Boston.

Dr. Edward H. Hume, Yale '97, has been appointed head of the medical department of the new Yale college in Chungsha, China.

EXPLOSION IN MINE

Six Men Killed and Two Others Will Die From Injuries

Princeton, Ind., March 23.—Six miners dead and four injured, two fatally, is the result of an explosion in the mine of the Princeton Coal Mining company. The bodies of the dead were rescued two hours after the explosion, the delay being caused by the inability of the rescuers to combat afterdamp. The injured were brought to the surface 30 minutes after the explosion. They were found heaped together in an unconscious state. When the explosion occurred most of the miners had left the mine. Whether the explosion was a premature shot or an overcharge is not known.

Within a short time 50 women, relatives of the miners, surrounded the mouth of the shaft and anxiously awaited each ascension of the cage. The miners worked heroically and a number were overcome by the foul air which filled the mine. This is the second serious disaster in the mine, an explosion some years ago having killed nine men.

Girls Had Narrow Escape

New York, March 23.—Many lives were endangered and damage to the extent of $50,000 was done by a fire in a nine-story building at Broadway and Bleecker streets. Scores of girls employed in the upper portion of the building were thrown into a panic when flames swept up from the seventh floor, where the fire started, and it was only by the greatest good fortune that all escaped. As it was, many were more or less bruised in the crush which followed the rush down the stairways. The blaze was a most spectacular one.

To Probe Bribery Testimony

Denver, March 23.—A committee has been appointed by the state senate to review the testimony taken by the bribery investigating committee of the legislative joint assembly on the charges of bribery made by Senator Morgan against J. M. Herbert and D. M. Sullivan. The investigating committee's report, adopted by the joint convention on Tuesday, declared Morgan to be unworthy of belief, and exonerated Herbert and Sullivan.

Fishermen's Claims Refuted

Washington, March 23.—The navy department having received petitions from New England citizens complaining that target practice by warships off their coast interfered with fishing interests and drove away the fish, has obtained a statement from the fish commission to the effect that the firing of the guns does no damage so far as the fish are concerned.

Theatres "Reasonably Safe"

New York, March 23.—Health Commissioner Darlington, because of the recent strictures of New York theatres by District Attorney Jerome and others, last night issued a statement in which he said it would be "absurd to say that all of the theatres of the city of New York are absolutely safe." He says that the theatres of the city are "reasonably safe."

Pool Room Bribery

Cincinnati, March 23.—Charges made by clergymen that certain officials in Covington, Ky., had been bribed by the operators of various poolrooms in that city so that the poolrooms would not be molested in receiving bets on horse races are to be investigated by a special grand jury. The charges were made by ministers in several of the churches last Sunday.

Won't Acknowledge Defeat

New York, March 23.—About 200 former employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company had a stormy meeting, in which there were many protestations of loyalty to the union and assertions that the strike was still on. A committee was appointed to wait on those who have returned to work with the hope of inducing them to quit again.

Confessed to Stealing $1000

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—William T. Brisbine, a painter, 35 years old, has surrendered to the police of this city, stating that he is wanted at Waverly, Mass., to answer a charge of stealing $1000, which he took from a trunk in a room in which he was working at his trade. Brisbine says he has a wife and family at West Medford, Mass.

Disagreement of Lundberg Jury

New York, March 23.—The jury in the second trial of Henry Lundberg, former assistant inspector of steamboat hulls, charged with criminal neglect of duty, leading to manslaughter, in connection with the loss of life in the General Slocum disaster, having failed to agree on a verdict, was dismissed last night.

Boat and Crew Went to Bottom

Wheeling, March 23.—An unknown towboat, with all on board, went to the bottom in the flooded river at Bellaire, O., four miles below Wheeling, this morning. The disaster was caused by the boat striking a channel pier of a railroad bridge. The number of lives lost is unknown.

Trains Tied Up by Flood

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—Heavy rains and floods in Arizona and along the Colorado river have caused extensive washouts on the Southern Pacific and have completely tied up all trains on that road between Los Angeles and the east.

CITY BREVITIES.

The mercury was down in the 20s early this morning.

Considerable snow which fell on Wednesday still remains.

Mrs. A. G. Durgin of Winchendon, formerly of Quincy, is the guest of Mrs. A. H. Gilson, 22 Linden place.

It is rumored that Fred B. Rice is to open a retail shoe store in the building on Chestnut street recently purchased by him.

John J. Barron, of West Quincy, went to New York on the new steamer Providence from the Fore River shipyard.

Charles C. Foster has bought three lots of land on Bay View street, Edison Park, and will commence the erection of three cottage houses.

Napoleon B. Furnald has been reappointed for a term of seven years a justice of the peace with authority to solemnize marriages in Quincy.

This evening Quincy rolls South Braintree at the Quincy alleys. The visitors will have the Star Boston team but the locals are going to try hard to beat them in spite of the Boston ringers.

Mrs. I. P. Bent, who underwent an operation at the Massachusetts Homoeopathic hospital, Boston, five weeks ago, is rapitly inproving and has returned to her home at Quincy Point.

The Westerly association football club, champions of Rhode Island and Connecticut in 1903, 4, and 5, would like to arrange a game or two games with the Quincy eleven. Address: John McGrogan, 62 Mechanic street, Westerly, R. I.

A very pretty whist party was held Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Eastern Star lodge at the rooms of Mrs. Paul W. Kribbs in the Durgin—Merrill block. Eight tables were in play. Prizes for the best scores were awarded to Miss Alice B. Haltman, Mrs. Charles H. Penniman and Miss Jennie Crowell.

Contractor W. R. Lofgren, who is finishing the Revere road apartment house, expects to have it completed by the middle of April. These apartments will have all the modern appliances such as a public telephone, electric door openers, speaking tubes, dumb waiters, set ranges, rotary ash sifters, refrigerator drips, etc.

The disappointment in Atlantic over the postponement of the white ball was so keen that Miss Crane has been prevailed upon to reconsider her decision and give the party as hitherto planned on Friday evening of this week. There has been an overwhelming demand for tickets, and all previous complications have been removed by the combined energy of those who wish to make the ball a success. It will no doubt be the last dance of the season, and will be informal, sociable, and, as everyone is supposed to dress in white,—artistic as well.

The politeness which is manifest in every act of the boys in Atlantic is extremely creditable. No child over five forgets to remove his cap in greeting his elders, and the thoughtfulness of some of the older boys could well be copied by some of the men who think it enough to raise languid fingers to the hat-brim in saluting a woman. It is earnestly hoped that these chivalrous youths will not pattern after their elders in the years to come. There is little enough politeness left in these days, and the man—be he young or old—who takes off his hat with that innate touch of respect to women will succeed in life, no matter what his vocation may be.

George B. Burgess, Commander of Mayor J. A. Frye camp, No. 22, L. S. W. V., of Brockton, was among the killed, and unknown in the Brockton horror. He recently attended the public installation of Camp Boyd in this city, and the camp has passed resolutions of sympathy with the family, and Brockton camp. Mr. Burgess was with Dewey at the naval battle in Manila bay.

NEARER TO PEACE

Czar's Ministers Are In Favor of Ending the War

FRANCE AS A MEDIATOR

Russia Convinced That Japan Will Not Make First Move--Rather Make Liberal Compensation Than Direct Indemnity

St. Petersburg, March 23.—The party within the government which is urging the czar to indicate to Japan Russia's willingness to end the war if a reasonable basis can be reached, as related in these dispatches on March 20, has been greatly encouraged the last few days, and an actual pacific proposal may be just ahead. The subject has occupied much of the attention of the conferences at Tsarskoe-Selo.

Certain grand dukes, supported by General Sakharoff, the minister of war, Admiral Avellan, the head of the admiralty, and what is known as the war party, are still bitterly opposed to the idea of peace under present circumstances, but with the exception of the ministers of war and marine, the czar's ministers, backed by M. Witte, solidly favor this course, and the convincing arguments they offer are telling. French influences in the same direction are now being supported by German opinion.

The rumor noted last week that Emperor William had tendered his good offices now seems to be confirmed. It can be positively asserted, however, that if Emperor Nicholas decides to approach Japan it will be through France, and that negotiations will be conducted either between M. Delcasse, the French foreign minister, and Dr. Montono, the Japanese minister at Paris, or M. Harmand, the French minister to Japan, and Count Katsura, the Japanese premier at Tokio.

The Russian government now feels certain that Japan will not make the first move nor disclose her position until overtures are made authoritatively in the czar's name, on the ground that he alone is capable of binding Russia. It is quite possible that Japan's attitude in this regard has been exposed through unofficial attempts to ascertain terms. Japan took the same position when Herr Detring, the German commissioner of customs at Tientsin, without plenary powers, sought to obtain Japan's terms for ending the China-Japanese war, declining to treat until Li Hung Chang, accompanied by General Foster, went to Tokio clothed with full powers.

Furthermore, in view of the possibility that no basis of agreement might result even should the czar now approach Japan with pacific proposals, it is regarded as entirely likely that hostilities would continue, again following the precedent of the China-Japanese war, until negotiations ended. The China-Japanese negotiations were begun in December and peace was concluded in the following April. Meanwhile the Japanese made a winter campaign in Manchuria.

In the conferences concerning the question whether Russia should now indicate her willingness for peace all agreed, firstly, that preparations to continue the war shall not be relaxed, and secondly, to reject humiliating terms. There probably would be two points on which Russia would be found implacable, namely, cession of territory, and indemnity, to neither of which, it is said, would the czar ever agree.

It is pointed out, however, that if Japan seriously desires enduring peace on collateral questions Russia might be ready to offer liberal compensatory considerations.

For instance, in lieu of direct indemnity, she might turn over to Japan the proceeds of the sale of all the rights and property of the Port Arthur and Dalny and Chinese Eastern railways and liberally pay for the maintenance of Russian prisoners in Japan, and, while refusing to cede Sakhalin, might grant rights to the fisheries there or even relinquish all the valuable sea fisheries on the Commander islands. It is possible, also, that satisfactory arrangements might be made regarding Russian naval strength in eastern waters for a period of years.

Situation In Manchuria

London, March 23.—According to Russian dispatches, the Japanese column which has been moving north along the trade highway west of the railroad is abreast of the retreating Russians, and in touch with them. The strength of this flanking column is not known, but the dispatches profess to regard it as not arge enough to endanger the retreat. It is difficult to find a good reason for its movement, however, unless it is strong enough to do something in the way of fighting.

The Russian retreat is reported to be proceeding in orderly fashion, the troops having had some rest, and the units being largely reorganized. Kuropatkin's return to the front to take a subordinate command under Linevitch, his former subordinate and personal enemy, is warmly praised both in Russia and by the troops.

Independent of Oil Trust

Chanute, Kan., March 23.—A contract has been let for 8-inch pipe for a line from the Chanute oil field to Kansas City, where it is proposed to erect an independent refinery. The contract is for $211,600, work on the line to commence in 40 days.

BERRY LOCATED

Attorneys Said to Have Decided Not to Prosecute Him

Boston, March 23.—The Post says: Charles F. Berry, whose administration of certain funds and securities has been questioned, was located in Maine by a Post reporter yesterday. He is in touch with his attorney and is fully cognizant of what transpires in Boston.

One of Berry's boxes in the Security Safe Deposit vault in the Equitable building was opened yesterday with the aid of drills in the presence of interested parties. The contents of the box and of the safe have not as yet been disclosed to the public.

Attorneys interested in the case have decided, so it is said, not to proceed against him on a criminal basis, inasmuch as it is assumed that Berry made poor investments.

It has been alleged that Berry lost large sums in western mining schemes. It is admitted, it is said, that he did have at one time an interest in some western mining property, the returns from which were small and discouraging. He is also known to have gone west on several occasions, but returned disheartened.

Appeyard Papers Signed

Boston, March 23.—Governor Douglas has signed the requisition papers for the extradition of Arthur E. Appleyard, the railway promoter, as requested by Governor Higgins of New York. As soon as the governor had taken this action Appleyard was placed under arrest. Counsel immediately took steps for his release by bringing in the supreme court a petition for a writ of habeas corpus against Officer Rhoades. The petition came before Justice Loring and was continued until April 5, the petitioner being held in $15,000 bonds, which he furnished. The petitioner contends that he is not a fugitive from justice. Appleyard is charged with grand larceny by the New York state authorities.

Fraternal Insurance Encomium

Boston, March 23.—"Fraternal insurance as embodied by the Royal Arcanum symbolizes the spirit of American institutions—a spirit that we are glad to live for, and which, if the time of disruption ever comes, we will die for." Such was the peroration of a witty speech by Attorney General Parker at the public meeting of the Royal Arcanum last evening. Over 3000 people gathered in Tremont temple, and an overflow meeting was held in Lorimer hall, which over 1000 others attended. The speakers were Supreme Regent Robinson of Missouri and Supreme Chaplain Leisenring of Pennsylvania. Hon. John H. Butler presided.

Resignation Not Yet Accepted

Windsor, Vt., March 23.—Following their receipt of the resignation of E. W. Oakes, superintendent of the state prison here, Governor Bell and two prison directors came here and visited the prison. None of the visitors would discuss the resignation of Oakes further than to say that no action had yet been taken upon it. The legislative committee appointed to investigate state institutions will soon investigate conditions at the state prison.

Suicide Leaves Large Family

East Rochester, N. H., March 23.—"I am glad of it," said George E. Jacobs, a wool carder, just before his death last evening from a self-inflicted bullet wound. Jacobs shot himself on Saturday last because of despondency, and since then he has frequently expressed the hope that he might not survive. He was 49 years old and leaves a widow and nine children.

Attachment on Woolen Mills

Adams, Mass., March 23.—An attachment has been placed upon the woolen mills of Graham & Clark by a lawyer representing Peter Stitt, one of the heaviest creditors of the firm, this being the latest development in an effort to place the concern in the hands of a receiver. Graham & Clark have operated the mills since 1899 with practically no interruption.

Spartan Likely to Break Up

Block Island, R. I., March 23.—While the steamer Spartan has withstood heavy seas in fairly good shape and shows no signs exteriorly of breaking up, there are many evidences that her interior has been still further broken up by the storm. Several pieces of wreckage have been washed ashore, and one of her masts shows a slight list.

Ice Bound Vessels Released

Provincetown, Mass., March 23.—One of the highest of the spring tides and lively work by tug Peter B. Bradley and the revenue cutter Algonquin resulted in the floating of 14 of the 16 fishing vessels which were driven ashore by the ice field on the northwest side of the harbor last Monday.

Britishers Gain at Checkers

Boston, March 23.—The Britons have increased the commanding lead which they have had in the international checker tournament since it began a week ago. The total score stands: British, 51; Americans, 26; drawn, 203.

Childhood Love and Death

Kansas City, March 23.—Ruth Campbell, aged 10, the daughter of an attorney, is dead as the result of a bullet wound received last August, when Walter Ralston, her schoolboy sweetheart, is alleged to have shot her as the result of jealousy. At the time the girl apparently recovered, and the case against Ralston was dropped.

Merchant Killed by Robbers

Colton, Cal., March 23.—J. W. Schumate, a dry goods merchant, was shot and killed in his store here by robbers. He was apparently aroused from sleep by robbers plundering the place and exchanged shots with them.

FEARS A SEIZURE

Santo Domingo In a Serious Financial Tangle

A PROD FROM BELGIUM

Calls For Fulfillment of Unkept Agreement to Settle Debt--Similar Demands by Other Foreign Powers Anticipated

San Domingo, March 23.—The news of the postponement by the United States senate of action on the treaty with Santo Domingo makes the situation here acute and an internal uprising seems to be imminent, based on the cry that President Morales had been discredited in the United States.

President Morales states that he is prepared to put down any revolution, but that a more serious matter in his mind is foreign complications growing out of Belgium's demand presented on March 21. Belgium wants customs receipts of a port of San Domingo to the extent of $25,833 a month, according to a former agreement, on which no payment has been made for three years.

This first demand is construed as a direct result of the failure of the treaty between the United States and Santo Domingo. President Morales anticipates similar demands by other foreign powers, which he will be helpless to resist. He says he wants to pay all the republic's debts, but sees the ruin of the country with every port in the hands of a different foreign power and no revenue for the government. While he sees no light ahead, he has blind faith that "right will triumph."

In the course of an interview, President Morales said: "It is entirely possible that the United States may have to send an ultimatum here on account of the Dominican government being unable, though not unwilling, to meet its obligations. It is utterly impossible for the government to pay the sums due foreign nations unless the United States can procure from foreign powers a postponement of their demands. Otherwise, these demands will be pressed. I have no physical or moral force to resist them. With the customs houses in the control of the United States the resources of the island will develop speedily, and all demands will be paid, with the result that the country will be educated to peace and permanent prosperity."

With two Dominican ports now in the hands of the United States and the failure of the treaty, Dominicans believe that a "grab game" by foreign powers will begin at once. An Italian cruiser was here a few days ago, but withdrew to Kingston. The American gunboat Castine is here with 150 men. The cruiser Chattanooga is at Samana bay, the Detroit is at Puerto Plata, and the Dixie is at Monte Cristi. Rear Admiral Sigsbee has gone to Guantanamo for a consultation with Rear Admiral Barker.

With the seizure of Dominican ports by foreign powers, it is argued that the Monroe doctrine will be nullified as regards this republic. With the United States in the possession of two ports, it would not be logical, it is argued, to oppose the seizure of other ports by foreign powers. At the same time the only hope of Morales is that in some way the United States can secure a postponement of seizure by European powers. No steps to this end have been initiated here. No reply has yet been made to the Belgian demand.

President Morales has about 1200 men under arms, ready to crush the first internal uprising, but should the custom houses be seized he would speedily be without funds with which to pay his army, which would immediately desert.

Charged With Two Murders

St. Paul, March 23.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the murder of Joseph Hartmann rendered a verdict holding Edward Gottschalk responsible. Gottschalk is also charged with murdering Christian Schindeldecker, a butcher. Hartmann, it is alleged, was Gottschalk's accomplice in the murder of the butcher. The police claim that Gottschalk murdered Hartmann because of fear that Hartmann would confess the Schindeldecker murder.

Insurance Men Leave Arkansas

Little Rock, March 23.—The new trust law of Arkansas became effective today and practically all the non-resident, old line fire insurance companies, about 70 in number, have ceased doing business in this state because of the clause in the new law assessing heavy penalties upon such companies remaining here, if they are members of rating bureaus anywhere.

Admits Killing Policeman

Baltimore, March 23.—William Leaser, a negro arrested on suspicion, last night confessed that he shot and killed Patrolman John G. McNamara of the Curtis Bay police force Tuesday night. The murder followed an attempt of the officer to place Leaser under arrest for a minor offense.

Government Settles Old Debt

Jefferson City, Mo., March 23.—A check on the United States treasury for $475,196, payable to the governor of Missouri, has been received by Governor Folk. The money is to reimburse the state for expenditures in equipping and maintaining federal troops during the Civil war.

EAR OF DIONYSIUS.

One of the Famous Whispering Places of the World.

Among the notable whispering places of the world is the "Ear of Dionysius" of ancient Syracuse. It is in the shape of a parabolic curve, ending in an elliptical arch, with sides parallel to its axis, perfectly smooth and covered with a slight stalactitic incrustation that renders its repercussions amazingly sonorous. It is 64 feet high, from 17 to 35 in breadth and 187 deep. It has an awful and gloomy appearance, which, with its singular shape, perhaps gave rise to the popular and amusing paradox that Dionysius had it constructed for the confinement of those whom he deemed inimical to his authority and that from the little apartment above he could hear all the conversation among the captives who were brought to the ancient town of Syracuse in the time of its splendor, when it was the largest in Sicily. The sound of words uttered with a low voice is augmented in vaults or galleries so as to become audible at a considerable distance from the speaker.

A like effect takes place in a less degree when sound ascends from the bottom of a deep well or when words are uttered at one extremity of a long corridor or passage in a building. If a pin be dropped into a well the sound produced when it strikes the water is distinctly heard at the mouth or the sounds of words spoken near the surface of any well is similarly augmented. Try it.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A FAMOUS STAR GROUP.

The Constellation Orion In Legend and Literature.

The constellation Orion is mentioned in the literature of all ages. In Egypt it represented Horus, the young or rising sun, in a boat surmounted by stars, closely followed by Sirius, which was shown as a cow. It has also been found sculptured on the walls of Thebes 5,000 years ago. And on the men of that early time it shone down from the same position and with the same brightness as it does on us today, a striking example of the unchangeableness of the heavens.

From the days of the early Hindoos to the present the constellation has for some reason borne always a stormy character. Allusions to its direful influence are found everywhere among the classic writers. Thus Milton wrote:

When with fierce winds Orion arrived
Hath vexed the Red sea coast.

The loss of the Roman squadron in the first Punic war was ascribed to the fleets having sailed just after the rising of Orion. The group has also been employed as a calendar sign, its morning rising indicating the beginning of summer, its midnight rising the season of grape gathering and its early evening rising the arrival of winter, with its attendant storms. In recent times the group has always represented a great hunter or warrior. Its present title came into Greek astronomy from the Euphrates and originally signified the light of heaven.

Fig Sunday.

Palm Sunday is known in England as Fig Sunday because in many districts figs are freely eaten on that day. The custom is common in the villages of Bedford, Bucks, Hertford and Northampton and is found in some parts of north Wales. As Palm Sunday approaches the shop windows of Dunstable are filled with figs in readiness for the crowds who go to the top of Dunstable downs to regale themselves on that day. At Kempton, in Hertfordshire, to "keep warsel" is to feast on figs or fig puddings with your friends on Palm Sunday. Fig Sunday is probably connected with the story of the barren fig tree, which forms part of one of the lessons for the day.—London Mail.

The Inspector of Milk advertises office hours at City Hall.

The fund of the Good Will club now amounts to about $50.

The City Council Committee on Sewers and Drains will meet Friday evening.

Mrs. George K. Carter entertained a few friends on Wednesday in honor of her birthday.

A handsome new awning has been placed over the entrance to Johnson Bros.' market.

The sale of the horses, wagons, etc. of L. M. Pratt & Son advertised for today was postponed.

Mrs. Georgie Rich has gone on a trip to New York, and is stopping with friends at the Waldorf Astoria.

The Colonial express runs out to Braintree every night about midnight to turn around by means of the Y.

Mr. Pote and family of Washington street are moving into the house on Stanley avenue recently occupied by Mr. Small and family.

At the request of Brockton officials Quincy will send two wagons to that city today to assist at the public funeral of the victims of the recent fire.

The Tippecanoe club met Wednesday evening with the club secretary Miss Mollie Harris of Edwards street. A most enjoyable evening was past.

The Metropolitan Water and Sewerage commissioners have asked for proposals for 500 tons of coal in bins at Quincy pumping station, and 400 tons in bins at Nut island.

A special meeting of the School Committee will be held in their rooms Saturday evening, March 25, to consider plans and specifications for an addition to present High school.

About seventy-five Woodward girls were guests Wednesday afternoon of Miss Georgiana C. Lane at the Copley exhibition in Boston. A special car was attached to the train for the party.

A largely attended whist party under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Sons of Veterans was held Wednesday evening at Grand Army hall. Prizes were awarded to those having the best scores.

Richard Sprigings, a son in law of George Wight, a brother of Marcus Wight, was among the killed in the Brockton horror, and Mrs. George Wight was also injured. Mr. Sprigings was head usher at the City theatre.

One of the first acts of Fire Commissioner Wells of Boston after receiving his appointment was to appoint Joseph A. Webber, a son of ex-Chief Webber late of Quincy, as lieutenant. Lieutenant Webber who has been connected with Engine 6, is assigned to Engines 26 and 35, as chief's clerk and driver.

The annual supper of the parish of the Washington street Congregational church was held Wednesday evening in the vestry, and consisted of baked beans, salads, cold meats, pies, cake, coffee and rolls. Both the supper, and business meeting which followed, were largely attended. Officers and committees were elected for the coming year.

LONDON'S BIG REVIVAL

Incidents of Religious Crusade Conducted by Americans.

A TALK WITH ONE OF THE LEADERS

Charles M. Alexander Tells Why He Uses Songs That Reach the Heart—Impressions of the First Meeting. Hundreds Turned Away—A Service For Children.

Charles M. Alexander, one of the Chicago revivalists who is conducting a religious crusade in England with Dr. Reuben A. Torrey, talking recently to a representative of the Washington Star of the present big religious revival in London, said:

"Dr. Torrey and myself have come to London with one aim and view, and that is the definite salvation of souls. Every word that is uttered and every song that is sung we want to count in that direction. Our methods are as simple as we know how to make them in order to deal with such a large mass of people.

"If we were only conducting services in a church or chapel, with a thousand people a night, we should not need many things that we need in such a great campaign as that which we are about to commence. I do not believe that any other committee could have run so large an organization as this mission in London at less expense. The entire fund gathered by the committee will be used for the necessary expenses—advertising, rental of the Royal Albert hall, erection of the hall in Brixton and the work in Islington. It is quite a fallacy to suppose that the mission is in any way a money making one for Dr. Torrey and myself. We are after souls, and not after purses.

"If this mission had been organized on any smaller scale than it has been all London would not be speaking of religious subjects as it is today. Is it not worth many times £17,000 ($85,000) to get the greatest city in the world to make religion the foremost topic of the hour?

"If, I say again, the mission had been organized on any smaller scale, the press would not have thought it worth while to fill their columns as they have done of late with religious news. The millions who read the London papers are bound to be impressed by the magnitude of the work, and I have not the faintest doubt that thousands will be led to Jesus Christ simply through reading the reports of our meetings.

"In regard to the character of songs we use I would say that they are just as simple as I could get, for I find that the simple gospel song reaches the heart better than more complicated music. Some of the songs that have been criticised most severely by musicians have been the songs that have sent the most people into the kingdom.

"I have tried to get words that have a picture in every line, easy to speak, with melody that carries them without a hitch. People sing them as they go out to their work, and some have the words and tunes so thoroughly fixed in their memory that a hymn book is no longer necessary.

"The other Sunday in Cambridge, for example, with a hall packed with university men, I wanted to see how they would receive the songs. They caught them up as quickly as any audience I have ever seen. At the close the invitation to converts to declare themselves was given during the singing of 'Tell Mother I'll Be There.' Thirty-five men boldly rose and confessed Christ.

"People ask me why I do not use classical music for the higher class of people, and I reply that I will adopt classical music when I see that it leads people to forsake sin and accept Christ. This simple heart music which I use fuses the audience and puts them on the same level—the business man, the society woman, the laboring man, the outcast woman—and they find in it a touch that makes them all kin and leads them all along a common path to their Creator."

At the close of the first great Sunday evening meeting of the revival now being conducted in London by Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander, Mr. J. H. Putterill, the honorary secretary of the London evangelistic council, said to the Chicago Post's London correspondent, "It was the best first night I ever knew of any revival campaign in London." Dr. Torrey declared that it was the best first night he had ever had in his trip around the world.

As early as 5 o'clock in the afternoon people began forming in line outside the doors of the great hall. Slowly the line formed at first, and then faster and faster, until at 6:30 long cues of people four and six deep stretched far into the distance on either side of the great building. At 7 o'clock the doors were thrown open and the people streamed rapidly into the building. Long before 8 o'clock every available seat was filled. The audience was estimated at 12,000, while hundreds, if not thousands, were turned from the doors.

The meeting at Royal Albert hall in London the other afternoon was the most striking of the mission of Reuben A. Torrey and Charles M. Alexander, the Chicago revivalists, says the New York World. It was a children's revival, conducted on the same lines as the others. Long before the doors were opened the vast square outside the hall was crowded with children, rich and poor.

On the doors opening they surged up the broad stairs into the great auditorium, which was soon filled, while several thousands were turned away. More than 500 children went penitent to the platform.

GRASS LANDS.

Advantages In the Use of Commercial Fertilizers Over Manures.

There are some distinct advantages in the use of commercial fertilizers over manure for grass lands. In the first place, the average farmer does not produce enough stable manure to thoroughly fertilize all his arable land and is obliged to sell some fertilizers.

It has been found that manures, especially coarse ones, have the effect of lessening the number of grass plants on the land, the lumps of manure suffocating, so to speak, many of the plants and consequently not allowing the greatest possible yield. A good general rule for the farmer to follow is to use barnyard manure on the corn crop, vegetables, etc., and apply commercial fertilizer to grass land. It is always best to apply fertilizers and manures very liberally to the crop preceding the grass. Then the soil will be rich enough not to require additional manurial substances at time of sowing the grass seed. If, however, this has not been done or if the last crop has made heavy demands on the soil, fertilizers must be applied at time of seeding.

If this is done in the spring the fertilizer should contain nitrogen as well as phosphoric acid and potash. A suitable fertilizer for use in this connection would be 125 pounds nitrate of soda, 200 pounds tankage, 300 pounds ground bone, 200 pounds sulphate of potash.

Top Dressing.

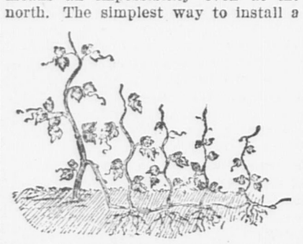

If the soil is in a very good state of fertility when seeded no top dressing should be needed for one to two years. In fact, a liberal top dressing might make trouble by causing lodging. But if the land has not been very well prepared or in any case after it has been seeded, say, two years, top dressing will no doubt prove profitable.

The kind of fertilizers the farmer should use for top dressing depends on whether he wants hay to sell which will bring the highest market price (timothy) or hay which will be of the greatest home feeding value (chiefly clover). In the first case he should use highly nitrogenous fertilizers, in the second fertilizers rich in lime, phosphoric acid and potash, especially the latter, because it has been found that potash is the dominant element for clover.—G. Runkle, Massachusetts.

LAYERING THE VINE.

There is hardly any one whose home domain is so small that he may not at least sit under his own vine, not to mention the fig tree, which is by no means an impossibility even at the north. The simplest way to install a vine or a few vines of the grape is to get them from a good local nurseryman. But say that you have an accommodating neighbor with good fruit or that you already have a nice vine yourself and want to propagate it, there are few things easier. Layering is one of the simplest of horticultural operations. Its story is told so plainly by the accompanying little sketch that explanation is almost unnecessary.

LAYER OF GRAPEVINE FROM NEW GROWTH

Layering should be done in early spring. A cane or shoot of the previous year's growth of wood is stretched along the ground and buried throughout its entire length in a shallow trench or it may be covered in certain places, leaving the remaining portion exposed. Roots will be put forth at intervals and branches thrown up. Later the vine may be cut between these branches, leaving a number of independent plants.

No Thoroughfare For the Cutworm.

Everybody knows the cutworm that in a night nips short the tender growing things of the garden. An old fashioned trap is to place bits of board near the plant, under which in the early morning you may find Master Cutworm safely hidden away for his daytime slumber. But here's a later wrinkle for the small garden. You can fence the worm out from the plant with nothing more than a neat circlet of paper. Cut a strip of tar paper a few inches wide and long enough so that when bent into a collar around the plant, with the ends tightly overlapped, each part of it will be at least two inches away from the plant. Having made sure there are no cutworms already in the surface soil near the plant, sink the lower edge of the band into the soil, so as to hold it firmly. Now, why the cutworm does not climb over the barrier is a curious fact for the nature study people to clear up. Thus far nobody seems to know, only he doesn't.

GARDEN SNAPSHOTS

Plant currant and gooseberry cuttings in April.

Rake some white clover seed into bare spots on the lawn.

Set the new strawberry bed in April.

According to one of the professors, the correct bordeaux mixture should be sky blue in color, of a very fine grain and should settle very slowly.

Some weeds, like chickweed and shepherd's purse, start up very early, and you cannot get after them too soon.

PROFITS OF THE DUMP.

Good Money In Many Old Things That Are Thrown Away.

"I get," said a Philadelphia dump boss, "$4 a week, free rent and the disposal of any dump of value.

"Tin cans, for instance, belong to me if they are dumped here, and I make a pretty penny out of them. They are turned, you know, into tin soldiers and so forth.

"Corks are another perquisite of mine. Many and many an old broken bottle on this dump had a good cork in it. I get 8 cents a pound for all the corks I find.

"Old shoes are never too old to be sold. They have always one good piece—the piece over the instep—that can be used again. The smaller pieces of good leather cut out of them are made into purses and wristlets.

"Eggshells also have value. Something like 1,000,000 pounds of eggshell are used every year in the manufacture of kid gloves and print calicoes.

"Do you see those eighteen barrels behind there? Well, each of those barrels contains its own variety of assorted marketable dumpage. Each will sell when filled at a good price. There are, I believe, fifty-seven varieties of marketable dumpage, and some dumps yield all the varieties. Mine yields twenty-seven."—Philadelphia Press.

THE PORCUPINE.

Is His Liking For Salt an Acquired or a Natural Taste?

Some men who were camping in the Adirondacks several years ago on breaking camp in the autumn left an old tub which was saturated with salt brine. On returning to the same camp the next year they found that the tub had been gnawed until little of it was left. They were not long in finding out what animal had done the work, for the camp was overrun with Canadian porcupines. At night they became such a nuisance that the campers were obliged to kill them to protect their property. The handle of a paddle was gnawed half through.

The explanation of their presence in such numbers during that year, when they had not been noticeably abundant in the previous year, is that they had made a rendezvous of the camp, being attracted by the old brine tub. On this they feasted all winter and for that reason were greatly pleased with the locality.

An interesting query is this: Is the liking for salt an acquired or a natural taste? Were they ever able to gratify that taste to any extent before man gave them a chance to do so?—St. Nicholas.

Curious Laws That Prevailed In the Florentine Republic.

The Florentine republic had a unique method of dealing with its too ardent democrats. In 1293 the state passed the famous "Magna Charta of Florence," to curb the cruelty and rapacity of the lawless nobles, who, in defiance of the law courts, were accustomed to flog and torture their dependents at will. The act practically disfranchised these titled harpies by a clause which excluded them from the signory—a body in the state corresponding to the British cabinet—unless they renounced their nobility.

This curious provision prepared the way for a still more extraordinary clause, which enacted that any member of the democratic party who made himself obnoxious to the government and was by them declared to be "guilty of treason to the commonwealth" should be given a patent of nobility and thus at the same moment be raised in the social scale and reduced to a political nobody at the will of the state.—London Telegraph.

The Nourishing Chestnut.

The London Lancet finds that the chestnut is the most digestible nut and cannot only take the place of the potato, as in France, where chestnuts, boiled and mashed like potatoes, make a delicious dish, but in reality they are a more perfect form of food. According to the Lancet's analysis of the potato and the chestnut, the latter contains less water, more proteid, more fat and starch, but less mineral matter, than the potato and is more digestible than the latter. Like the potato, also, its nutritive and digestive qualities are greatest when baked or roasted.

When Reptiles Die.

A Viennese naturalist declares that nearly all reptiles that die from natural causes close their lives between nightfall and midnight, only a few between midnight and morning and fewer still in daylight. Most reptiles seem aware of their approaching death, seeking out particular places and there awaiting the end, while those whose lives are spent underground come to the surface before death.

The Yellow Holly

"I remember," said Ireland in a slow, prosy way, "that there were two Miss Howards at San Remo, at the Hotel d'Angleterre. They were with their father, General Howard. I never met them, but Mr. Vane went frequently to call at the house."

"He did," said Mrs. Ward, "if by house you mean the hotel. The fact is, my sister Jenny was in love with Captain Vane"—

"I heard it was you," said Ireland distrustfully.

"It was my sister Jenny who loved Percy Vane. She would go to the ball and persuaded me to go with her. We slipped out of the hotel and went without a chaperon. Our father would have been shocked had he known, but it was merely the escapade of two schoolgirls. I went with a friend, and Jenny looked about for Mr. Vane. We agreed to meet after an hour and go home. As there were other blue dominos at the ball, we each wore"—and Mrs. Ward repeated the word to emphasize the fact—"each a sprig of yellow holly. I went to a box to have supper with a certain cousin of mine, and my sister then departed with Mr. Vane."

"Why did she leave the ballroom?" asked Derrington.

"Because Mr. Vane was shocked. He recognized her voice and made her unmask. He insisted on taking her home first, and then intended to return for me, as he could not find me at the moment. They went out together, Mr. Ireland, and that is the last I saw of Mr. Vane."

"What was the last your sister saw of him?"

"She was at the hotel and in our bedroom when I returned, which I did after looking vainly for her. She said that Mr. Vane had escorted her to the hotel and had left her at the gate at her earnest request, as Jenny was so afraid lest my father should hear of our escapade. She said good night to Mr. Vane and then went to her room. When we heard of the murder next morning she became very ill and my father took her away. But she always declared to me that she did not know who murdered Percy Vane."

"Did your father ever know that she was in Vane's company on that night?" asked Ireland.

"Never! We kept our folly a profound secret from him."

"Did any one else know?"

"You did," said Mrs. Ward sharply, "and Mr. Vane did, and a servant at the hotel—an English servant who attended to us. In fact, it was she who procured the yellow holly by which Jenny and I were to identify one another."

"What was her name?" asked Derrington quickly.

"Eliza Stokes."

"Ah! I thought so. Mrs. Jersey?"

"Yes, Mrs. Jersey. And now, Lord Derrington, you know how I come to take such an interest in the death of that woman."

"Yes. But I cannot understand how you came to know that Mrs. Jersey was Eliza Stokes."

"That's my business," flashed out Mrs. Ward.

"Or why," pursued Derrington, unmoved—"why you sent her the yellow holly?"

"Because I was not quite positive if she really was Eliza Stokes. I thought that the yellow holly, being connected in her mind with the death of Mr. Vane, would make her betray herself."

"It did in a way—but to Brendon. He would not have told you."

"He would doubtless have told Dorothy, and she would have told me."

Ireland, in his thoughtful, ponderous way, turned this matter over in his own mind. "Where is your sister now?" he asked.

Mrs. Ward replied with some reserve. "I can't tell you that. She went out of her mind for a time after the murder of Mr. Vane, and after she came out of the asylum we were all afraid to live with her. My father put her under some one's charge, and when he died she was allowed an annuity. Her guardian died, and my sister vanished. We made no attempt to find her, and it was supposed that she had put an end to herself."

Ireland looked at Derrington. "Did you ever meet Miss Jenny Howard, my lord?" he asked.

"No," said Derrington, "but I have known Mrs. Ward for many, many years."

"Quite twenty," said Mrs. Ward, with an artificial laugh. "We grow old. No, Mr. Ireland, Lord Derrington never met my sister. Why you ask I cannot conceive!"

"Because Lord Derrington is under a wrong impression. He has met your sister, and in this very room."

"I beg your pardon," began Derrington. "I"—

Ireland cut him short. "She called to see you here about the renewal of the Amelia square lease."

"Miss Bull?" said his lordship. "I thought there was something familiar about her face. So Miss Bull is Mrs. Ward's sister?"

"She told me so herself," was Ireland's reply.

CHAPTER XVI.

BRENDON was much astonished a day or two later to receive an invitation to dine with his grandfather. As George had fought the old man with his own weapons and had come off victor, he did not expect to be pardoned.

But in this he was wrong. Derrington, sickened with Walter's milk and water ways, saw in Brendon a worthy successor who would be able to hold his own in will and word and would shed fresh luster on the house.

However astonished, Brendon was too much a man of the world to reveal his feelings. On the evening in question he presented himself at the mansion in St. Giles square, scrupulously groomed and brushed. Derrington looked approvingly on his dress, which set off a handsome figure to advantage, and he unbent so far as to advance to George with outstretched hand.

"We had rather a rough interview, George," he said, "so I have invited you to smoke the pipe of peace."

Brendon shook the old man's hand quietly, but without much enthusiasm. He could not conjecture what Derrington meant by behaving in a way so different from that he usually adopted. His host felt the slack hand clasp and winced on seeing the want of response in Brendon's face.

"Dinner will be ready soon," said the old lord, waving Brendon to a seat; "only our two selves. I wish to consult you."

"Consult me?" George could not keep the astonishment out of his face.

"It's rather late in the day, is it not?" remarked Derrington dryly. "But you see I am old, George, and have not much time to spare. Yes, I wish you to consult with me after dinner about—but that can come in the course of our conversation. Meantime let us talk of anything you like."

"The weather, sir?"

"No, confound you," snapped Derrington, with a flash of his old irritable self; "talk of wine, wit and women if you like, but spare me platitudes."

Brendon stared at his shoes and smiled under his mustache. "I do not think I can say anything very original about the subjects you mention," he said quietly.

"Talk of Miss Ward then. You can be original on that point."

Brendon would rather not have mentioned Dorothy, but he was quite determined to show his grandfather that he fully intended to marry his lady-love and that he was not afraid to speak his mind. "I do not fancy that there is anything particularly original in a love story. I met Miss Ward some three years before, I have loved her ever since and we will marry when"—

"There, there," interrupted Derrington, waving his hand, "let us not get on to that subject as yet. We can talk of it after dinner. In fact, you may as well know that I asked you here to discuss your position. We must have an understanding."

"I think you must intend it to be a pleasant one," said Brendon, "as you have asked me to dinner."

It struck Brendon that his grandfather looked old and very haggard. He had lost his fresh color, his eyes were sunken and the defiant curl was out of his enormous mustache. He moved slowly toward the door, and George felt sorry to see him so lonely.

Moved by a sudden impulse, George moved to the elder man's side and offered his arm. The footman was holding the door open, and Derrington could not express, even by a look, the satisfaction he felt. With a surly grunt he took Brendon's arm, but George guessed by the warm pressure that Derrington was pleased.

It was quite a banquet, for Derrington lived in a most expensive manner. The table was a round one, laid with exquisite taste, and was placed under a kind of velvet tent, which shut off the rest of the room and made the meal particularly cozy. It was perfect, and after the somewhat stale food of his lodgings George enjoyed the meal greatly. Derrington himself did not eat much, but he took great pleasure in seeing George enjoy his viands.

After the dinner, during which the old lord was confirmed in his good opinion of George, he said: "There's coffee in the library, and we can talk over our cigars. Up I get. George, your arm."

He not only asked for it, but took it with marked pleasure. The footman in attendance returned to the servants' hall to state that the "old devil" (the domestic name for Derrington) had quite taken to the new young gentleman.

Meanwhile Brendon was seated in a comfortable chair enjoying one of the best cigars he had ever placed between his lips. At his elbow smoked a cup of Mocha, and in the chair on the other side of a roaring fire of seasoned timber smiled Lord Derrington. He looked a grim and determined old gentleman as he bent his shaggy brows on his grandson.

George was very comfortable and also felt grateful for the kindness which his grandfather was showing him. At the same time he felt as though he were acting wrongly in hobnobbing with a man who persistently blackened his mother's memory.

"I suppose you wondered when you received my invitation," said Derrington.

"I did, sir. I wondered very much."

HOME TEAMS LOSE

The South Braintrees and the Holbrooks Win.

The South Braintree team won two out of three from the Quincys in the Old Colony bowling league on Wednesday evening, by the following scores:

SOUTH BRAINTREES.

	1	2	3	Totals
Stetson,	79	68	92	239
Johnson,	77	94	80	251
McPhee,	106	96	100	302
Church,	88	103	104	295
Brown,	93	84	96	273
Totals	443	445	472	1360

QUINCYS.

	1	2	3	Totals
Jenkins,	69	93	102	264
Ferris,	90	92	75	257
Welch,	78	74	88	240
Grant,	84	105	71	260
Westland,	80	91	87	258
Totals,	401	455	423	1279

It was not surprising that the Quincys were defeated, as the Braintrees imported three professionals, Brown, McPhee and Church. Under the circumstances it was surprising that Quincy won one game.

At East Weymouth the home team was defeated two out of three by the Holbrooks by scores of 413 to 401, 431 to 420, and 417 to 420.

The Quincy Point and Weymouth teams did not bowl.

MILTON.

The body of Mrs. M. L. Kelsey, who died in California, arrived in East Milton on Thursday. The burial was from the East Milton Congregational church on Saturday. Mrs. Kelsey and her husband went to California for the winter last fall, intending to return in the spring. Mrs. Kelsey was taken ill with typhoid pneumonia and lived but a few days.

Anti-Cigarette Meeting.

Saturday afternoon, at four o'clock, a large anti-cigarette meeting is to be held at Faneuil hall, Boston, called by Hezekiah Butterworth, president of the New England branch of the World's, and Natural Anti-Cigarette League. Hon. Charles Bulkley Hubbell, of New York, will be the orator, and among other speakers will be Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Mrs. Howe, Dr. H. O. Marcy, and Miss Lucy Page Gaston, under whose auspices, the New England campaign was inaugurated. There will also be good music.

The cigarette evil despite all efforts is an increasing menace to home, school, and social life. None know it more than mothers, and instructors of youth. The hearty cooperation is asked of every one to help stamp out this evil, and all interested are invited to attend the meeting at Faneuil hall, Saturday afternoon.

IS ELIGIBLE.

And Promises to be a Winner With United Support.

It is surprising that there is anyone in Quincy who will work against the success of Miss Underwood in the Herald contest, but such is the case and many votes are being taken out of town.

The report is being industriously circulated that Miss Underwood is not eligible, but early in the contest the Herald editor decided that Miss Underwood was a teacher in the "Coddington grammar school," although teaching in a primary grade, and there is no appeal from this decision.

Fortunately Miss Underwood is receiving coupons by the hundreds from a great many out of town friends. At least 25 former teachers and pupils of Quincy are working for the success of Miss Underwood, and there is no question but what she will win without the purchase of extra coupons, if she receives the hearty support of Quincy. If the contest was decided today Miss Underwood would be one of the three winners in this district. Why not keep her at the front?

Votes may be sent in blank to the Daily Ledger office, or to Henry C. Prescott, 33 Bigelow street, Quincy.

Wanted For Assault.

Andrew D. King, of Vinal Haven, Me., was placed under arrest Thursday afternoon by Inspector Bradley, as being a fugitive from justice. Word was received at police headquarters from the sheriff at Rockland, Me., that they held a warrant for King for felonious assault, and that he was probably in Quincy.

Inspector Bradley found him at the residence of a relative on Quincy street, where he had arrived but a short time previous. King says he does not know about the charge unless it was in connection with the death of his wife.

He says that his wife died a few week ago, under circumstances that resulted in an inquest being held. After the inquest he says that he supposed they were all through with him and he came to Quincy. He will be held to await the arrival of Rockland officers. King says that he will return to Maine without the formality of extradition papers.

Parish Officers.

City Auditor George A. Sidelinger was moderator at the annual meeting of the Quincy Point church on Wednesday. The reports were encouraging. These officers were elected:

Clerk,—Edward H. Bushnell, M. D.

Prudential Committee,—Thomas B. Pollard, Herbert E. Bonney and Herbert D. Adams.

Auditor,—George A. Sidelinger.

Special Committee,—Arthur W. Newcomb, George A. Sidelinger and Eugene R. Stone.

It was voted to increase the salary of the pastor, $100.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

ONE WHO ESCAPED.

Willie Martell of West Quincy Was In Brockton Factory.

Willie Martell of West Quincy was one of those fortunate ones who escaped from Grover's factory at Brockton, on Monday, with his life. Martell was probably the only Quincy person employed in the factory, and he had been there but two weeks.

He was in the shipping room, and when the collapse came was thrown down and buried beneath a mass of debris. He says that everything about him was darkness. He, however, saw a little ray of light and finding himself uninjured began to crawl toward it.

Just how he got out he does not know but he suddenly found himself in the open air. He was immediately surrounded by frantic women who pulled him this way and that, each claiming him as her son.

His face and clothing was so besmeared at that time with dust and dirt, that his features were not recognizable. This was why the frantic women thought he was some of their people.

In making his escape he thinks that he must have crawled over some burning timbers, although he did not know it at the time, but the inside of his hands were quite badly burned.

Martell says that he was never so frightened, before in his life. He is naturally of dark complexion, but thinks that his face must have been as white as a sheet with fright.

Young Martell is well known in West Quincy, when he has always lived. He was employed last summer, as driver of an express wagon.

BIG CHARTER LIST.

About 100 Take the Knights of Malta Degrees.

Fully 300 were present at Music hall, Thursday evening at the final act of institution of John Adams Commandery, Knights of Malta. The work of this meeting was the exemplification of the Red Cross, and Sepulchre degrees.

The work was conferred upon 100 candidates, 69 of whom were charter members of John Adams commandery. Of this number but two received the degree, which was witnessed by the other candidates. There were also present companions from many of the commandaries about Boston.

The work was in full form and regalia, and was performed by Sovereign Commander Orson Young and full red degree staff of the Grand Commandery.

It was nearly midnight when the business of the evening was completed and an adjournment was made to Greenleaf hall, when a banquet was served. A social entertainment followed and it was 2.30 A. M. before the affair came to an end.

PINE TREE CLUB.

Hospitably Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gleason.

One of the most enjoyable meetings held thus far by the Pine Tree club, was that of Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gleason on Independence avenue. Fully eighty were preseut, all of whom claimed Maine as their native place.

The guests were not confined to Quincy, for they came from all the adjoining towns. Luther T. Greenleaf of Boston, was to be present to address the meeting, but at the last minute found it impossible to come. He however sent his greeting.

Fragrant cut flowers transformed the house into a perfect bower. No two rooms were decorated alike but the flowers were so arranged that they blended beautifully. "Jed's" office was used as a smoking den for the gentlemen and the wreaths of blue that worked their way from that room told only too plainly that the men were enjoying themselves.

After a short business meeting there was vocal and instrumental music, and brief remarks. These with social intercourse seemed to make the hours pass all too quickly.

No occasion like this would be complete without a lunch, and cake, ice cream, frozen pudding, coffee, etc., were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Gleason proved the best of entertainers, and it was the unanimous expression of all preseat that it was one of the best meetings yet held by the club.

Mrs. Gleason received in a beautiful gown of white and wore a corsage bouquet of violets. Each guest upon departure received a pink, jonquil or rosebud.

TODAY'S COURT.

Morris Fitzgerald was fined $3 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Fred Townsend was arraigned for drunkenness and creating a disturbance on a street car at Holbrook. He was fined $10 for creating a disturbance on the car. The complaint for drunkenness was placed on file.

The continued case of Battisto Crastl, for keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy, was called and he was defaulted.

—Rev. Willis B. Halcombe of New Bedford will act as locum tenen of Holy Spirit parish at Mattapan.

THE SECOND NIGHT

Imperial Minstrels Gave a Great Show at Wollaston.

The vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church was crowded again Thursday evening by an enthusiastic audience, when the second performance of the Imperial Minstrels took place. Showers of confetti together with generous applause greeted the successive features and showed the appreciation of the audience.

The jokes ran very smoothly. Roy C. Baker, the interlocutor, directed and answered questions in a cool, gentlemanly manner, and added greatly to the show, and his dignity and self possession were praised by many.

A novel feature which was introduced for the first time, and one which took decidedly, was a quarrel between two ends during which the interlocutor blew his whistle and in marched little Winslow Weston, dressed as a policeman. He silenced the riotous parties and marched out amid great applause.

In the finale to the first part "The Wonderful Telephone," chocolates were sent for, and brought by a messenger, and these the ends threw out to the audience.

Then, a large bunch of pinks was ordered, and instantly brought, and presented to Ray Faunce Weston as a mark of the appreciation for his work as director. Wednesday night a large bunch was presented to Miss Ethel Parker the gift accompanist of the performance.

The few minutes with G. D. Spaulding were very enjoyable ones, he making a decided hit in his songs and impersonations. Mr. Spaulding has aided the performers in many ways by his advice, and it was clearly demonstrated that he can act as well as direct.

On the whole the show was a decided success both nights and reflects much credit upon all parties concerned. The Ledger is pleased to give an extended notice although slighted in advertising and printing.

Military drills at the Newton school are to be abolished. Instead boys will have athletic exercise.

Drift of Opinion.

☞That was an awful catastrophe at Brockton and though the authorities will conduct a searching inquiry to determine the responsibility for it, whatever their success, there is small satisfaction for the hundreds of homes that are in the shadow of its death. It doesn't seem as if such frightful accidents were necessary, with all of the safeguards that are now placed around human lives and the precaution required by law to prevent accident. Is this to be another revelation of inspection that doesn't inspect and of safety appliances that are not safe?—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Hurry to condemn and hurry to exonerate are alike futile in the discussion of the terrible catastrophe at Brockton. It is easy to construct a snap judgment in either direction—but snap judgments are ordinarily of no value, and they may be easily worse than valueless in this case. After all that has been learned of the reasons for boiler explosions, it is evident that there are fields of ignorance concerning their possible causes still left to be explored, and laymen should certainly be cautious until those who have a right to speak have investigated and spoken.

Various general principles can be stated with assurance with respect to the prevention of such disaster—as, for example, the need of honest and careful work in the construction of boilers, and the need of intelligent and thoroughgoing care of them when they are in use. These apply everywhere, and their soundness has been demonstrated so many times that their lesson is of the tritest. As to this particular case, it may be that the experts will be able after a thorough examination and study to discover, at least approximately, the cause of the explosion; but the death of the engineer, who seems to have been the only man who could have given positive information concerning the condition of affairs in the boiler room, cuts of a source of knowledge that can never be made entirely good.—New Bedford Standard.

ARE OYAMA AND OKU IRISH?

St. Patrick Banquet Orator Says Japanese Generals Are Sons of Erin.

New light upon Japanese history was cast at the St. Patrick's banquet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Logansport, Ind., the other night, when D. P. Smith, state labor organizer, declared that the Japanese generals, Oyama and Oku, were descendants of Irishmen and still bore the original Irish names of the families slightly modified, says a Logansport dispatch.

"Oyama is of Irish ancestry," said Smith, "and his name as originally borne by his forbears was O'Yama. The original Patrick O'Yama left Ireland during the Elizabethian era for France. He was shipwrecked and rescued by a Spanish ship bound for the Philippines, where he was taken and cast adrift. His descendants went to Japan and turned to the career of fighting men.

"General Oku's name originally was O'Keough, who, though a military genius, could not spell well. The rigors of the Japanese alphabet proved too great for him, but by imperial edict he cut out a few letters. Thus the family became Oku."

BROCKTON'S WOE

Whole City Unites In Mourning For the Dead

SERVICE IN A THEATRE

Public Manifestation of Sorrow Augmented by Overflow Meetings In Various Churches--Thirty-Nine Unidentified Bodies Borne to Cemetery Past Hushed Throngs of People

Brockton, Mass., March 24.—All business was suspended in this city yesterday, traffic ceased, schools were closed and the people united in one great tribute of sorrow and sympathy on account of the explosion and fire of Monday in which, it is believed, 58 persons perished.

Thirty-nine bodies, so charred and disfigured as to make identification impossible, were borne away to Melrose cemetery on Brockton Heights, escorted by a great throng of mourners, city officials, representatives of labor organizations, and fraternal societies. Men, women and children in the multitude that saw the funeral procession pass made no effort to hide their tears as the long line of hearses and mourners wended its way to the burial place.

Three public funeral services had been arranged; five were necessary to begin to serve the desires of the people and thousands had no opportunity to take an active part in the expressions of grief and sympathy.

The day of sorrow opened with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church in memory of four members of the parish who are believed to have perished in the flames.

In the afternoon public funeral services were held at the City theatre, the Porter Congregational, St. Paul's Episcopal and First Congregational churches, and at Canton hall. While the services were being held militiamen, labor organizations and fraternal societies formed in line in readiness to escort the remains of the victims to the cemetery.

The service at the theatre was the formal public manifestation of the city's sorrow, while the services at the other places were in the nature of overflow meetings.

The solemnity of the services at the City theatre was notable from the moment the doors were opened. The attendants walked in slowly, the mourners occupying a space reserved for them in the centre of the auditorium.

On the stage sat clergymen representing practically every religious denomination in the city, the members of the city government and the members of the Joint Shoe Council. Mayor Keith presided, and near him sat Governor Douglas. Looking from the stage out into the auditorium the afflicted ones could easily be distinguished in the sea of faces, and from the first row of chairs far back to the rear of the house was a solid mass of black, the sombre garments worn by the sorrow-stricken people.

A brief utterance of sorrow at the city's calamity came from Mayor Keith in opening the services. Following Mayor Keith's remarks a band played Chopin's funeral dirge. As the mournful strains arose the first manifestation of poignant grief was awakened, and sobs were heard from all sections of the theatre.

After a psalm had been read by Rev. R. L. Rae, the boy choir of St. Patrick's church, robed in black cassocks and white surplices, sang two hymns, one in English and the other in Latin. Rev. Fr. Keating of St. Patrick's church then addressed the assemblage, referring particularly to the heroism and unselfishness so frequently shown at Monday's fire.

A white-haired man, stooped with age, the venerable dean of the city's clergy—Rev. Rush R. Shippen, pastor of the Unitarian church—rose and in faltering tones blessed the dead and the living. Then Rev. Samuel D. Turner of the Lincoln Congregational church, a negro, pronounced the benediction and the services were over.

Many people were unable to gain admission to the overflow services at the Porter Congregational and St. Paul's Episcopal churches. At the former church the speakers were Rev. Francis B. White and Rev. George B. Titus. At St. Paul's church the regular Episcopal service for the dead was read, with music by a vested choir and words of consolation by Rev. Sherman Ellis.

Meantime the bodies of the unidentified dead, which had remained at the morgue ever since the fire, were placed in hearses and undertaker's wagons, there being an insufficient number of hearses to bear all the caskets. These vehicles then moved to Main street and joined the procession that had been formed. It was an impressive spectacle as the hearses and carriages swept into line. Hats were raised reverently and at the same moment the fire bells began to toll and 55 strokes, representing the number of bodies recovered from the ruins, rang out.

With the first peal of the fire bells the band began a dirge and the slow march to Melrose cemetery was taken up. Through the hushed throngs of people the procession passed and the dark red glow of a late sunset was fast disappearing as the first line of marching men reached the summit of Brockton Heights and turned into the cemetery.

Through the divided ranks of the marching escort the carriages and hearses passed to a little house in the cemetery where the remains of the victims were to repose until graves could be prepared. One by one the caskets were removed from the hearses and darkness had set in when the last body had been placed inside.

When the last coffin had been transferred a few brief words of prayer were offered by Rev. Ira E. Davis and then the city battery of militia fired a salute in honor of the dead. Taps were sounded by the buglers and the procession then wended its way back to the city.

Funeral services for three identified victims were held during the day. At the Warren Avenue Baptist church services were held over the remains of David W. Rockwell, the engineer in charge of the boiler that exploded. After the disaster it was reported that Rockwell had escaped, but during the investigation of the ruins his body was found in the boiler pit.

The funeral of Stephen Snow, the oldest employe at the Grover factory, was held at the Central Methodist Episcopal church, with which the deceased had been affiliated for more than 60 years.

Private services in memory of Miss Florence A. Dunham were held at the residence of her parents, Rev. D. Pierce of the South Congregational society, officiating.

The list of identified dead and missing is 17 identified dead, and 41 missing

Investigation Was Sidetracked

Indianapolis, March 24.—Russell B. Harrison has received a letter from B. S. Hoyt of Pittsburg, saying the latter called the attention of the postoffice department last year to the Storey Cotton company of Philadelphia, which recently failed. It is intimated that some employe or employes of the postoffice department may have been protecting the company from the investigation asked for by Hoyt.

To Christen Warship With Oil

Topeka, March 24.—The battleship Kansas probably will be christened by breaking a bottle of Kansas crude oil over its prow in the place of a bottle of champagne, as is the usual custom. This is the idea of Governor Hoch, who said: "The Kansas will be christened with a bottle of oil—not Standard Oil or independent oil, but just Kansas oil—Kansas crude oil."

Acquittal of General Whiteman

Santa Fe, N. M., March 24.—A verdict of acquittal was brought in last night by a jury in the case of the territory against General Whiteman, for several years adjutant general of New Mexico, who was recently removed by Governor Oetero and was indicted eight times on the charge of having obtained money from the territory under false pretenses.

What Mine Operators Will Do

Scranton, Pa., March 24.—The operators announce that they will agree to an eight-hour workday for the mine employes if an eight-hour day is demanded by the union. A condition is that all underground mine workers are to report for work at a certain hour and that no employe shall be hoisted to the surface until eight hours have elapsed.

Will End His Days In Prison

Fayetteville, Ga., March 24.—Stephen D. Renfree, a lawyer, 77 years old, was convicted of the murder of his daughter-in-law. The jury recommended him to the mercy of the court. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary. Renfree quarreled with his daughter-in-law over a cabbage patch, the quarrel ending in his shooting her.

To Have Ten-Mile Trestle

Knoxville, March 24.—W. J. Oliver, a Knoxville railroad contractor, has been awarded the contract to build the New Orleans Great Northern road, running north from New Orleans along the Mississippi river, a distance of 350 miles. A trestle 10 miles in length will cross Lake Ponchartrain.

Disagrees With New Englanders

Syracuse, N. Y., March 24.—Referring to the protest of New England ministers against accepting John D. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000 for foreign missions, Chancellor Day of Syracuse university states that it is impossible that they could have acted judiciously and fairly.

Probing Beef Trust Affairs

Chicago, March 24.—Twelve out of town witnesses, supposed to be men employed by various packing firms and retail meat dealers, have thus far testified before the special grand jury which is hearing evidence against the so-called "beef trust."

Machinists Want More Pay

Toronto, March 24.—The machinists on the entire system of the Grand Trunk railroad have asked for an increase in wages of 25 percent. The men are well organized. A strike will result, it is said, should their request be refused.

L Accidents Continue

New York, March 24.—A crowded train crashed into the bumpers at the Battery terminal of the elevated railway during the rush hours last night, as the result of which four persons were injured, but none seriously.

A Cold-Blooded Deed

Philadelphia, March 24.—Dominic Narr, an Italian, was called to the front door of his home here last night and shot dead by Angelo Carapelotti. The latter declared that Narr had insulted his wife. Carapelotti escaped.

GRAFT CHARGE MADE

Claim That City Employes Got More Than Their Salaries

Boston, March 24.—Councilman M. L. Pierce of ward 11, at the council meeting last night, charged that there was a "pernicious system" of recompense going on in the office of the city collector, and cited seven cases where men employed were paid large sums for extra work each month, uring initials only. These extra sums amounted to $4900.77.

City Collector McDonald was called upon at his home in Brighton last night, says The Post, but it was announced that he was sick in bed and could not see any one. A Post reporter then called upon James P. Kelley, deputy collector and cashier in the office, and he refused to make any statement in regard to the matter.

Alleged Forger of Note

Haverhill, Mass., March 24.—Frank P. Titcomb of West Newbury was arrested last night on a charge of forgery preferred against him by Cashier Giles of the Georgetown National bank. It is alleged that Titcomb negotiated a loan of $100 from the bank, giving as security a note signed by his brother, Silas M. W. Titcomb, a farmer of West Newbury. This signature, it is alleged, is a forgery.

Ale Adulterated With Acid

Boston, March 24.—In the superior court Judge Holmes imposed a fine of $1000 against the Massachusetts Breweries company after it had entered a plea of guilty to the charge of selling ale adulterated with a substance injurious to health. The fine was at once paid. The case was based on the charge that one of the products of the company was adulterated with sulphurous acid.

From Prison to Prison

Boston, March 24.—A sentence of not more than 10 nor less than eight years in state prison was imposed by Judge Holmes upon Bertram Woods, who was convicted of breaking and entering a house here in 1902. Woods was arrested at Cranston, R. I., last Sunday upon his release from the Rhode Island state prison.

Trying to Save the Spartan

Block Island, R. I., March 24.—Wreckers believe that there is some chance of saving steamer Spartan, provided the weather conditions continue favorable. About 100 tons of cargo has been loaded into surfboats, it being impossible to get the lighters alongside, owing to the heavy swell.

Poor Maple Sugar Season

Burlington, Vt., March 24.—Reports from various sections of the state indicate that the maple sugar gathering this year is likely to be lighter than usual. Various causes are assigned, the principal ones being the continued cold weather and the water famine throughout the state.

Britishers Keep Far Ahead

Boston, March 24.—The eighth day's play in the international checker tournament resulted in the British visitors further increasing the lead over their American hosts. The total score is: British, 57; Americans, 28; drawn, 235.

Aged Woman Burned to Death

Boston, March 24.—An exploding kerosene lamp set fire to the clothing of Miss Mary Warren, 70 years old, at her home in Roxbury last night, burning her so severely that she died soon after. Miss Warren lived alone.

Stricken In Wife's Tomb

New York, March 24.—Unconscious and apparently dying, aged Jonathan Reed, a retired business man of Brooklyn, was found lying on the stone floor of his wife's granite tomb in the cemetery of the Evergreens. He had suffered a stroke of apoplexy as he sat in the lonely enclosure, as was his daily custom for more than seven years. He is said to have a fair chance of recovery.

Strikers Realize Their Error

New York, March 24.—President Belmont of the Interborough Rapid Transit company was appealed to by the united labor organizations to be generous and reinstate the subway and elevated railroad employes who went on strike two weeks ago, many of whom are now in actual want. Belmont promised to discuss the matter with the officials of the company.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

CODY LOSES SUIT

Charged Wife With Attempting to Poison Him

DIVORCE IS NOT GRANTED

Court Finds That Defendant Was an Over-Indulgent Mother and Wife, Who Showed Great Pride In Success of Husband

Sheridan, Wyo., March 24.—"Buffalo Bill" (Colonel William F. Cody) lost his suit for divorce from Louisa Cody, Judge Scott deciding that charges of attempts on the part of Mrs. Cody to poison her husband and other allegations had not been proved. Judge Scott asserted that the testimony showed that Mrs. Cody had always been a good mother and a loving and indulgent wife.

Judge Scott asked the attorneys for the defendant to amend their answer in the case by striking out those sections which dealt with charges relating to Bessie Isbell, to Cody's conduct in Chicago and to his early actions at Fort McPherson. When this was done the court found entirely in favor of the defendant, Mrs. Cody. Judge Scott in his opinion said:

"The first cause of action in this case is the charge of poisoning on Dec. 29, 1890, or some time prior thereto. The evidence wholly fails to support this issue, but shows the defendant was trying to rescue the plaintiff from a state of intoxication and administered not poison, but remedies which she deemed beneficial to him. His inability to speak on this occasion did not come from these remedies, but came from his extensive use of intoxicants at the banquet board and was as humiliating to the defendant as to the plaintiff.

"The unhappiness caused by the actions of the plaintiff is shown by the letter of their daughter, Arta Thorpe, whose beautiful character shone out from her unhappy home in the words of her letter written just before her death: 'Oh, papa, why did he do it. My heart is just broken over it. Oh, why did he do it.'"

Judge Scott also found that the charges of unbecoming actions on the part of the defendant toward Cody's guests was not proved; that there was no evidence that she had ever threatened her husband's life and that when attending the funeral of her daughter, Arta, at Rochester, N. Y., in February, 1904, she offered a permanent reconciliation and no answer ever came to this.

"She was an over-indulgent mother and wife, who always took pride in his success and always looked forward to his home-coming and made great preparations to receive him," said Judge Scott. "She entertained his guests with cordiality. She did not use profane language. The poisoning of his pet dogs was accidental. She never spoke disrespectfully of him to his friends or guests. She always accompanied him to the depot on his departure and was there to receive him on his return. In her home she has a large statue of him in the hall; in her bedroom she has his portrait, done by a famous painter, and on her stand she has his photograph, and the dishes she used were souvenir ones stamped or etched with his portrait. Such, in brief, is the character and conduct of Mrs. Cody extending over a long period of her married life.

"In return for this wifely devotion the plaintiff has been cruel to her and heaped indignities on her. Even if it was true that the defendant had at times been impatient with him and such impatience had been considered an indignity it is also true that she has had much to contend with. There are some allegations in the answer that are not sustained by the evidence. From the evidence it does not appear that the plaintiff was so addicted to gambling as to impair his business abilities or trustworthiness. He did not use intoxicating liquor in such quantities as to interfere with the transaction of his business."

An exception to the ruling of the court was noted by Judge Ridgley, attorney for Cody, and his request for 60 days for filing a petition for a rehearing was granted.

Chamberlain and Balfour at War

London, March 24.—Open war has been declared between Joseph Chamberlain and Premier Balfour over the fiscal question. Chamberlain claims that he has a majority of the Unionists with him and approving of the selection of a protectionist candidate to contest Lord Hugh Cecil's parliamentary seat at the next general election.

Naval Station Quarantined

DESERTER FOR RELIGION

Midshipman Is Dismissed From Navy and Decitizenised

Washington, March 24.—President Roosevelt has approved the sentence of the court martial inflicted upon Midshipman Milton W. Arrowood of North Carolina, recently tried for desertion from the navy. The sentence carries with it dismissal from the navy, and the law bearing upon the case provides that a man so dismissed shall not hereafter be eligible to any of the rights of citizenship.

Arrowood was appointed to the naval academy from North Carolina in 1900, and four years later went on sea duty aboard the flagship Kearsarge. While at the academy his father, Rev. Mr. Arrowood, insisted that his son should be allowed to attend the Presbyterian church at Annapolis instead of the college chapel. From time to time the elder Arrowood wrote to the navy department protesting against what he declared to be the "immoral atmosphere at the academy."

Young Arrowood finally submitted his resignation to the department, but as all midshipmen are required to serve a certain time in the navy after graduation, if was not accepted.

On Jan. 4 last, while the Kearsarge was at Hampton Roads, Va., Arrowood left the ship. He was apprehended in New York, where he was at work. He was tried by court martial on the Kearsarge and convicted of desertion and sentenced to dismissal. His father meantime urged on the department that it was impossible for the son to lead a religious life and remain in the service.

SKYLIGHT FASTENED

New York Tenement House Was a Veritable Death Trap

New York, March 24.—The tenement house commission is censured; Miss Celia Leiner, the lessee of the house, is declared guilty of gross negligence, and the tenement house law is found to have been violated in the verdict of a coroner's jury which has completed an investigation of the Allen street tenement house fire in which 20 lives were lost about a week ago. The jury reports that it was unable to ascertain the cause of the fire.

Immediately after the verdict was reached the coroner ordered the arrest of Mrs. Leiner and also caused the detention of Mrs. Belzinsky, the janitress of the house, as a witness. The charge of negligence against Mrs. Leiner was based upon the allegation that the trap door leading to the roof of the building was kept locked. The tenement house commission is censured for not properly inspecting the conditions of the premises and for permitting the door to the roof to remain fastened.

After the fire was extinguished a heap of bodies was found on the floor beneath the firmly fastened skylight, where they had fallen and died after vainly attempting to escape to the roof.

To Be Buried Together

Cleveland, March 24.—Orestes C. Pinney, a member of the battalion of engineers who was one of those seriously injured in the railroad wreck at Clifton Station, Pa., three weeks ago, died last night. He had been in a semi-conscious condition since the wreck occurred. His 9-year-old son, who was killed in the collision, and whose body has been in a vault, will be buried with his father.

For Temperance Fourth of July

Columbus, O., March 24.—A movement has been started under the auspices of the American Anti-Saloon league to "redeem the Fourth of July from its prevalent misuse." The plan is to interest every temperance organization in the United States and as far as possible to hold open air temperance meetings on July 4, 1905, and every year thereafter.

Rosseau Faces a Jury

New York, March 24.—Gessler Rosseau, charged with having sent an infernal machine to the dock of the steamship Umbria on May 9, 1903, is on trial before Recorder Goff and a jury. Rosseau was arrested in Philadelphia after the attempt to wreck the statue of Frederick the Great at Washington.

Plague Leaves Terrible Record

London, March 24.—Replying to questions in the house of commons last night, Mr. Brodrick, secretary of state for India, said that the latest figures on the plague in India showed that the total number of deaths from the plague from Jan. 1 to March 11 was 346,899.

PROMISE OF PEACE

Actual Step May Have Already Been Taken

EUROPEAN JEALOUSIES

Powers Fear Their Interests May Suffer In Settlement Not Arranged by Themselves--Financiers May Remove Obstacle

St. Petersburg, March 24.—The ministers and supporters of the court who advocate the submission of pacific proposals to Japan, as previously set forth in these dispatches, so as to ascertain whether an honorable basis of peace is possible, believe they have carried the day and it is reported on high authority that an actual step is imminent, if not already taken.

Washington, March 24.—The sudden growth of the sentiment in Russian official circles in favor of peace does not surprise officials here, because it is in line with recent predictions of the American embassy at St. Petersburg. In fact, it was gathered that the real obstacle in the way of beginning negotiations to this end was to be found rather in the jealousies of European powers outside of Russia, than in the czar's own court.

For some time there has been substantial evidence that by the exertion of quiet pressure from the outside upon the St. Petersburg government it might be induced to break the deadlock in the situation which results from the reluctance of each belligerent, as a matter of pride, to making the first overtures for peace.

But just at this point the efforts of the real friends of peace are said to have been negatived by the fear of some of the European powers that their interests might suffer in a settlement which they did not themselves arrange. There is reason to believe now, however, that the great financial interests of London, Berlin and Paris, looking to their own salvation and the security of their enormous loans to Russia, have risen above national lines and that to the exertion of their powerful influence is due the present promise of peace in the near future.

Practically at Japan's Mercy

St. Petersburg, March 24.—The possibility that if the Russian army should be unable to hold the lower line of the Sungari river at Chunchiatsu it may be compelled to retreat not only to Harbin but also further westward along the railroad, abandoning to the Japanese northern Manchuria and the Russian maritime Amur provinces as well, is the latest startling news from the front.

The strategic weakness of General Linevitch's position as he falls back northward is made clear by a Gunshu dispatch in which it is pointed out that unless the Chunchiatsu and Sungari lines, a scant hundred miles below Harbin, can be held, it will be difficult to maintain a position further back before Harbin, where, with the front of the army paralleling the railroad, the practicability of a turning movement to completely sever communications and isolate the army, 6000 miles from home, is too serious for Russian consideration. In view of this possibility, the dispatch alluded to suggests the advisability of immediately providing Vladivostok with war munitions and supplies for a two years' siege.

The correspondent estimates the number of reinforcements needed to give Linevitch the requisite superiority in force at 200,000. That such a dispatch should have been permitted to pass the censor at the front is significant; and if Linevitch has communicated a similar estimate of the situation direct to the czar it may account for his increased disposition to listen to peace counsels and open negotiations before the Japanese establish themselves on Russian soil. With Manchuria entirely abandoned to the Japanese and Vladivostok left as Russia's solitary sentinel on the Pacific, it is realized that Russia will be practically at Japan's mercy in the matter of peace terms.

"Sunshine" Hardly Offsets Gloom

St. Petersburg, March 24.—The successful conclusion of the internal loan of $100,000,000 at the emission price of 96 comes as a gleam of sunshine in an otherwise clouded situation. The internal situation in Russia is a source of continued apprehension. In the south of Russia workingmen and peasants already are joining hands and from the Caucasus, Poland and other quarters encounters between discontented workers and the police, with fatal consequences, are reported.

Retaliation Against Americans

St. Johns, March 24.—The Newfoundland government has ordered the customs collectors throughout the island to refuse American fishing vessels licenses to procure bait in colonial waters because the American senate buried the Bond-Hay treaty.

Syrians Given More Time

Port Au Prince, March 24.—The Haitian government has extended from April 1 to May 15 the time allowed for Syrians holding forged naturalized American citizenship papers to withdraw from Haiti.

Province In State of Siege

Tiflis, March 24.—A state of siege has been proclaimed in the government of Kutais, and General Ordeliani has been invested with full powers as governor general over the towns of Kutais, Poti and Batoum.

FLORIDA'S EXTENT.

The Everglade State Is Larger Than Most Folks Imagine.

But few people have any conception of Florida's extent. Jacksonville is about as far north of Miami as she is south of Charlotte, N. C.; about as far north of Key West as she is south of Danville, Va. Ignorance of the extent of Florida leads to many amusing mistakes. We sometimes hear the railroads of the state charged with making poor time. Why, it takes over twenty-four hours to go from Pensacola to Miami. The man who makes this remark would think he was traveling on a flier if he made the trip from Pensacola to Chicago in the same length of time it would take him to go to Miami. But there is very little difference in the distance. A land trip from one end of Florida to the other is as long as from the lakes to the gulf. A citizen of Maine who makes up his mind to come south may get on the cars and pass through Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and far into Virginia. When he has done this he has taken no longer ride than he could have taken by an equally direct line from one Florida town to another, and there are some men green enough to think they are making poor time when they find it takes them longer to go from Pensacola to Miami than from the eastern to the western side of Maine. Of course the old stagers do not make these amusing mistakes. They have a pretty clear conception of the geography of Florida. There are many, however, who come on their first visit with very hazy ideas of the state.—Florida Times-Union.

CHATEAUBRIAND IN LONDON

"All the English are mad by nature or by fashion," Chateaubriand writes nonchalantly in the book of his embassy in London (1821), but he had a very gay time with the same lunatics We hear of dinners, Almack's and le beau monde. "The day was thus distributed in London: At 6 o'clock in the morning one hastened to a party of pleasure, consisting of a breakfast in the country; one returned to lunch in London; one changed one's dress to walk in Bond street or Hyde park; one dressed again to dine at 7:30; one dressed again for the opera; at midnight one dressed once more for an evening party or rout. What a life of enchantments! I should a hundred times have preferred the galleys." One smiles and reads on. He found London full of recollections of Bonaparte. "The people had passed from the vilification of 'Nick' to a stupid enthusiasm. His colossal bust by Canova decorated the Duke of Wellington's staircase."

At an evening party at Lord Londonderry's, the English premier, "I was presented by his majesty to a severe looking lady seventy-three years old. She was dressed in crape, wore a black veil like a diadem on her white hair and resembled a queen who had abdicated her throne. She greeted me in a solemn voice with three mangled sentences from the 'Génie du Christianisme;' then she said to me, with no less solemnity, 'I am Mrs. Siddons.' If she had said to me, 'I am Lady Macbeth,' I should have believed her."—John J. a'Becket in Catholic Quarterly Review.

Charity of Former Kings.

Henry II. sought peace for his soul after the murder of Becket by feeding and sustaining 10,000 people daily, a proceeding that must have made many a man rejoice in the fall of the "proud prelate." Quaintest of all, though, was the charity of Henry III., who commanded that "in the great hall at Winsore, at a good fire, all the poor and needy children that could be found were to be fed, according to the weight and measure of the king's children," a queer variant of the more modern system of distributing the Maundy money. It is to be feared that nowadays, says the London Chronicle, the amount of food equivalent to "the weight and measure of the king's children" would not go far in relieving "all the poor and needy children that could be found."

Time and Books.

The economy of saving time is wise, but there is an economy of spending time. In reading, especially, hurry is most wasteful. Reading is the making of thoughts, of ideas, of pictures in the brain. All young photographers know how little is to be made out of an "underexposed plate," but do they understand that there may be such a thing as an underexposed brain? It takes time to make impressions on the mind. If you read too fast, either aloud or to yourself, or skim over your reading, the mind receives poor impressions or none at all.—St. Nicholas.

The Descending Scale.

When a girl is first engaged she figures on a ten room house in the swell part of town. As time goes on the house gradually decreases in size until it is a four room structure. Then all the fancy trimmings are left off, and next the house is located in a remote part of town. Finally when the wedding comes off it is announced that the couple will reside with the bride's father.—Atchison Globe.

Bills and Boards.

Bill had a billboard. Bill also had a board bill. The board bill bored Bill so that Bill sold the billboard to pay his board bill. So after Bill sold his billboard to pay his board bill the board bill no longer bored Bill.—Yale Expositor.

The eyeball is white because the blood vessels that feed its substance are so small that they do not admit the red corpuscles.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. Rachel Loud, of Elm street, is seriously ill at her home.

Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters, will meet with Mrs. Charles Brooks, Highland avenue, on Monday.

George H. Wilson has cleared all his trees of the brown-tail moths having discovered a few moths on his pear and elm trees.

N. G. Nickerson of Wollaston gives notice today of a removal of his Boston office. He has a large real estate business in Boston and vicinity as well as Quincy.

The Sunday school of the First Parish will observe Association day on Sunday by a special service at 12 noon in the chapel. Parents and friends are cordially invited to attend.

George F. Wilson & Co., who will vacate their store before April 1, offer big bargains for the coming week in groceries and store fixtures. One-fifth off is worth saving.

Accident.

Friends of Waldron P. Schumacher of Wollaston, are very sorry to hear of his serious misfortune in Boston last Monday. While at work with some machinery, at the Institute of Technology, his left hand was caught between two rollers, breaking a bone and badly lacerating the flesh. He was taken to the City Hospital, Boston, for treatment where he remained until Thursday when he was removed to a hospital in Cambridge. Under skilful treatment and care, it is hoped that no permanent serious results will follow.

Sudden Death.

George W. Noyes, of South Braintree, an engineer, on the New York, New Haven, and Hartford railroad, died Thursday at the hospital in New Haven, Conn., as a result of a surgical operation. Mr. Noyes formerly lived on Crescent street, West Quincy, but after the death of his wife removed to Braintree.

He was secretary of the grievance committee of the brotherhood of locomotive engineer, and was attending a conference at New Haven, when it became necessary to go to the hospital, and undergo an operation. He was 38 years of age, and leaves a family of children.

Will Not Injure Trees.

An application for an injunction to restrain the Old Colony Street Railway Company from cutting off the limbs of trees in the vicinity of his property in Quincy, made by Frank S. Patch, was denied by Judge Sheldon in the equity superior court on Thursday, says the Herald. The company stipulated in court that it would not interfere with the trees. The company is engaged in installing a high tension service between a new power station at Quincy Point and Brockton and other places, and Patch was apprehensive that it might injure the trees in carrying out that work.

CORTELYOU'S RECREATION.

Postmaster General Finds Rest In Music and a Cure For Troubles.

George Bruce Cortelyou, postmaster general in the new Roosevelt cabinet, is one of the most attractive personalities in public life, says the New York Press. Few persons know that he is one of the finest amateur pianists in the world. At one period of life he seriously considered making music a profession, and his talents are such that it is easy to believe that he would have attained the same heights of success which have marked his endeavors in another line.

Whenever business weighs heavily on Mr. Cortelyou or when he is in need of recreation he goes to the second floor of his home, where his den is located. He locks the doors and draws the blinds if it be daylight and lowers the gas if the sun has gone to sleep, and then he plays, sometimes by the hour, soft minor chords and strains, all improvised, throbbing strains, which haunt those who hear them.

Mrs. Cortelyou does not like to hear her husband keep to the minor for long, for she knows then that his worries still oppress him, but when the strains quicken gradually until finally the loud resounding notes of a grand march are heard she knows the clouds have passed away.

Mr. Cortelyou finds the same rest and refreshment in music that some men find in sleep, others in strong drink or drugs, others in a long walk in the country.

It was noted just after Mr. McKinley's assassination that Mr. Cortelyou looked ghastly and did not recover his poise as quickly as he generally did. He explained that it was because his solace had failed him. He did not have the heart to open the piano, and he feared if any one heard him playing they would not understand and it might be construed into slighting the memory of his beloved friend and benefactor.

CAMPAIGNING IN MANCHURIA

Obstacles the Hostile Armies Have to Contend With.

Carefully avoiding all reference to the military operations observed by him as attache with the Russian forces, Colonel W. S. Schuyler, U. S. A., delivered an interesting lecture the other night at the National Rifles' armory, in Washington, on Manchuria. Some of the terrible obstacles which the two hostile armies have to contend with in their movements through Manchuria were suggested by inference in the lecturer's remarks, says the Washington Times.

"A Chinese field furrow," he said, "is as crooked as a ram's horn. Chinese farmers purposely plow it that way on account of superstition. This of course makes it tremendously difficult for an army to cut across a field, especially when the crops are growing, as it is almost impossible to find the way.

"Then, too, to protect his fields, the Chinese farmer has a way of digging pitfalls every here and there about his lands, and for men to go tumbling down into these holes is very discouraging.

"Rivers are very fluctuating, and the fording of them presents great problems to armies. They are, however, not very deep. Manchuria, I think, is the dustiest country I was ever in. In the dry, cold winter the dust is swept about in clouds. Riding against it one has to hold one's breath. It pains the muscles of the chest. The climate in summer is hot and wet, and in winter it is cold and dry."

Little is known of Labrador, so that the lecture of Dr. W. T. Grenfell at the Wollaston Congregational church next Tuesday will be of interest. Hear about the icebergs the dogs and the cold weather.

PLEA FOR NO CHILDREN

Young Wife's Reason For Not Having a Family.

HAS BEEN MARRIED FIVE YEARS

Literary Wage Earner In Answering President Roosevelt's Views on Duties of Motherhood Declares Offspring Would Destroy Social Usefulness of Herself and Husband and Make Them Lower.

"We believe that to have children would be detrimental to our usefulness as members of society, detract from the happiness of our marriage and make us lower, not nobler, people."

Thus does "A Childless Wife" sum up in the Independent the reasons "Why I Have No Family." In a foreword the editor of that magazine says that the author and her husband are not infrequent contributors to the Independent under their own signatures. The publication of the article was brought about by President Roosevelt's recent lecture to the women of America on the duties and rewards of motherhood, when he advocated raising a large family. As to the justification of the writer in following out her theories the editor of the magazine says she is one of the most useful and able of the younger women of America in her field of social service, and her husband is equally useful in his field.

This young wife begins her statement of the situation by saying:

"My husband and I are young, well in mind and body, comfortably situated financially, love each other devotedly and are fond of children. Yet after five years of married life we have no family and have no present intention of ever having any. The principal aim of our lives as well as our standard of human value is social usefulness. My husband is even more opposed to our having children than I am and is more firmly convinced that it would be in every way the wrong thing for us to do.

"With no lack of admirers, I made one mistake in becoming engaged at eighteen to a man to whom I was attracted by his strong emphasis on human development and the importance of constant growth. He was enthusiastic, high minded, five years my senior, with a poetic temperament and boundless faith in his future. He undertook to direct my reading and to develop my mind. After a time, however, it became clear to me that his idea of my development was that I should become as nearly as possible a copy of himself.

"Meanwhile I had left teaching for newspaper work, which carried me from the small town where I had been raised to Chicago. There I climbed from a reporter to an editor and finally to a magazine position, with congenial work and a good salary. Living in a great city, I soon became conscious of the many social problems that distress our present civilization.

"Then came the man. He appeared on my horizon as a special writer, on a subject of which he was master, for the magazine of which I was one of the editors. His work I had followed for some time, but the man was a revelation. He was gentle and strong, free and pure in mind and life. His was a genuine free nature. He wanted liberty for others as well as for himself. He delighted in unconventional ideas and habits of life and was as fearless an analyst of existing conditions and customs as myself.

"We were friends at once—comrades. I was utterly happy as our friendship ripened into love. My love was conditioned upon my respect not only for him, but for myself. Our relations must always be such that neither would suffer any diminution of freedom or opportunity for development. Of children we spoke, but decided to wait until we felt the desire for them."

When, after marriage, this couple began definitely to consider parenthood they found that with such responsibilities the wife would have to give up her employment, which would cut in half the joint income as well as destroy her social usefulness. The husband would have to more than double his income, putting all his energies into money making to the exclusion of social work.

Then, besides, there was no telling what kind of children they might have. "We might," she says, "raise a son like Tolstoi's, who would go into the army, or a daughter who would delight in giving pink teas."

The personal reason, too, was an important one to the wife, who loved life and health and feared "to risk such precious possessions."

Besides, the wife says, being thus cut off from her independent income, she would have as a favor a liberty she now enjoys as a right.

How General Trepoff Was Warned.

According to the Moscow correspondent of the London Chronicle, on the day following his arrival in St. Petersburg from Moscow, on March 2, General Trepoff received the following epistle at his office in the Winter palace:

"Monsieur—We regret that you were put to so much trouble in devising a means of escaping from Moscow without being killed. We desire to make your mind easy on this score. You have nothing to fear in the streets or in the theaters or in any of the public places. You will simply be killed in your own bedroom."

"And you felt inclined to refuse."

"I had almost made up my mind to."

"Why did you change your mind?"

George pondered and looked again at his neat shoes. "Well, sir," said he, after a pause, "I thought that after a dinner we might come to understand each other better, and I am anxious for peace."

"And for recognition of your birth."

"Naturally. The one included the other."

"Does that mean you will fight till you get what you want?"

"Yes," said George curtly and then closed his lips with a firm determination to give battle if necessary. At the same time he felt it was rather awkward after eating Derrington's food. A sudden impulse made him rise.

"What's the matter now?" asked Derrington, not moving.

"Well, sir," burst out Brendon, "I have a feeling that we are going to quarrel, and in your own house, and after that very excellent dinner I don't want to behave rudely. It will be better to postpone this talk."

"Not a bit of it," said Derrington quietly. "We are relatives, and quarrels between relatives do not count. Sit down. I have something important to say to you."

George sat down and prepared for the worst. "We'll leave the question of your birth alone for the present," said the elder in a hard tone. "At this moment I wish to talk of Mrs. Jersey's death, also about your father's death."

"What has that to do with this, sir?"

"I believe the one is connected with the other."

George remembered what Bawdsey had said. "I've heard that remark before," he observed.

"Of course. That detective I employed to watch you made it."

"He did. I think you trust that man too much, sir," said Brendon after a pause.

"Do you? I thought he was a friend of yours?"

"Oh"— George shrugged his shoulders. "I saved his life, but that does not constitute friendship. I don't think Bawdsey is worthy of your confidence."

"I know he isn't. But you see I can't help myself."

George looked up quickly. "Blackmail?"

"Something of that sort. I intend to trust my own flesh and blood—that is, I intend to tell you all I know connected with the Jersey case and ask you to help me to get the better of Bawdsey."

"Assuredly, sir."

Derrington was rather moved. "I have not behaved well, George."

"That's true enough, sir," said George, who was not going to be weak, "but you can make amends by acknowledging that my mother was an honest woman."

"I believe she was, George, for none but an honest woman could have borne

"My boy, I have behaved badly."

a son like you. But, you see, I know no more than you do where the marriage took place."

"Do you acknowledge that there was a marriage?" said George, starting to his feet. Derrington rose also, and the tall men faced one another.

"My boy," said he, "I am sure there was a marriage. I am sure that you are my legitimate heir, and, by heavens, I intend to acknowledge you as such before the week's out."

Brendon was so moved by this sudden recognition of all he longed for that a sudden weakness seized him, and he sat down, covering his face with his hand. Derrington thought the young man did so to conceal his tears, but in reality George was putting up a short thanksgiving for this wonderful and bloodless victory. His grandfather again touched his shoulder. "My boy," he said again, and his voice was broken with emotion, "I have behaved badly. I ask your pardon."

George put out his hand blindly and grasped that of his grandfather. When it was once in the old man's grip he raised his grandson with a jerk and made him look him in the face. "You forgive me?" he asked.

"With all my heart and soul," said Brendon quietly, and after another handshake they resumed their seats.

"I can marry Dorothy now," said Brendon, with a contented sigh.

"If my influence can help you, yes." Derrington paused and shook his head. "But there is a lioness in the path, George."

"Mrs. Ward?"

"Exactly. She will move heaven and earth to prevent the marriage."

George looked puzzled. "I see no reason why she should oppose it if I am acknowledged as your heir."

"Nor do I. I thought myself that it was simply the money she wanted, and if you were the son-in-law she would not get her claws on the gold. But there is more in it than that. She seeks revenge."

"On me? I have never harmed her."

"It's a vicarious revenge. I believe that woman loved your father, George, and that he slighted her. That is why she wants to visit his sin—as with a vindictive spirit she may regard it—on you."

"Did Mrs. Ward know my father, sir?" asked George quickly.

"Yes. She met him at San Remo."

"Then she knew he was murdered?"

"Of course. I saw Mrs. Ward the other day, George. She came here to force me to harm you and to consent to Walter marrying Dorothy."

"Oh! You never agreed to that."

"I have answered her challenge by asking you to dinner and will acknowledge you my heir. Mrs. Ward will then try to make mischief."

"Can she do so?"

"Yes. She knows that I was in Mrs Jersey's house on that night."

"And you were, sir?"

Derrington made a most unexpected reply. "No, I was not."

BE ATTRACTIVE.

Even the Plainest Woman Can Make Herself Lovable.

Many a glorious crown of hair is made hideous by foolish arrangement. The entire halo is twisted in hard knots and done in little door knobs and Alp-like bumps that are anything but beautiful, while around the edges in single file go small mouselike curls that leave the hair line scraggy and horrid. Just a little knack, merely a suggestion of artistic sense, and that beautiful mop of hair could be made into such a glorious pyramid of soft waves and loops that the girl would be considered lovely ever after, no matter if freckles streaked her brow and her eyes were green.

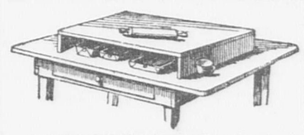

Many a pair of eyes would be beautiful if the one whose eyes they happen to be would let a little of the soul, the sweet thoughts, the goodness of her, beam through. The woman who feels no emotions, whose heart is not stirred by sympathy or appreciation or the kindnesses of other people, has eyes that are cold and staring. They are eyes—nothing more. But the eyes of the tender hearted, whole souled woman! Why, they are beautiful just because she makes them lovely by sending into them the warmth of her graciousness and womanliness.

Consider the question of the hands. Of course long slender hands are beautiful, especially when the nails are shaped prettily and the skin is soft and smooth and white. Yet the most beautifully modeled hands can be extremely ungraceful, while hands that are naturally well formed can justly be considered pretty if they move with charm and daintiness. So let us console ourselves with the tender thought that there are possibilities in all of us. Even the plainest woman can be attractive. She can cultivate a sweet voice and gentle manners, and she can breathe an air of freshness and cleanliness that is a thousand times more beautiful than the most beautiful woman in the world without these attributes. It is all a matter of making the best of the materials that are at hand. Let the glory of the few beauty qualities cover up the lack of the many. —Chicago Tribune.

KITCHEN TABLE.

Have an Upper Deck For Use When Making Bread.

There are many little contrivances that help to make the work of the kitchen less laborious, and the wise woman will adapt each one as it comes to her notice. For instance, when bread is to be made an "upper deck" for the kitchen table will be found to be convenient. For one thing it saves whoever is making the bread from the need to bend over the table. Besides this it almost doubles the table space, as the illustration given herewith makes plain. As this extra piece is only set upon the table, it may be kept in a closet when not actually needed. The end supports may be hinged to the upper part and folded in when the board is not really in use.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Wicker Furniture.

Oftentimes a piece of wicker furniture grows dirty past all cleaning. In these cases they should be dyed, and this can be done easily and successfully. In the first place, the old varnish must be removed. To do this pour boiling water, to which a little piece of washing soda has been added, over the piece of furniture and after it is dry wipe it with a piece of flannel which has been wet in either turpentine or naphtha. The next day it will have to be sandpapered. To take the dye evenly the whole surface should be wet just before the color is applied with clear hot water. Most housekeepers prefer a white enamel to any colored stain. When white is used the piece of furniture which you are renovating must be left perfectly dry. Give it two coats of white varnish, then rub it down with sandpaper, and after this oil it with a soft silk cloth and rub until there is a high polish.

Washing Linens.

A firm of linen manufacturers gives some useful hints for washing table and other linens. They advise the best of washing soaps, to begin with. Soaps full of alkali discolor linen. It is better to wring linen by hand or at least have the rollers of the wringer fairly loose. Be sure that the rinsing process is thorough. A great improvement in doing up linen is this stock: Dissolve one ounce of gum arabic in half a pint of warm water. Add one tablespoonful of the solution to a quart of water and wring out the linens in the mixture. A point in the care of towels—admonish the masculine members of the family never to wipe a razor on a towel. The damage done often does not show at the time, but is apparent after the towel is washed.

Bits of Lace.

A bit of real lace will often contribute greatly to the style of a frock, and it is an excellent plan to rip from the garments before they are thrown aside any lace trimmings. No matter how badly soiled, every scrap of lace is worth saving. And this applies to the imitations as well as to the real, for if there is only sufficient to trim a stock collar it may be used for that purpose very conveniently and effectively on some future occasion, and as lace does not occupy a great deal of space and is not so popular with most as are many other materials it may easily be preserved.

Mrs. Levi B. Curtis and Miss Lillian Curtis of North Weymouth are at The Pines, Daytona, Florida.

Miss Whitney of Gay street was at home on Wednesday afternoon from three until half-past five in honor of her brother's bride, Mrs. William Harrison Whitney. About a hundred relatives and friends were present during the afternoon. Cocoa, punch and cake were served by friends of the hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney reside at 264 South Central avenue, Wollaston, where they are at home to their friends.

* * *

Mrs. Annie E. Shaw read a paper on Thursday at the district conference of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary at North Abington on "The value of new workers." Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard was appointed on the committee for the next conference.

* * *

* * *

As Miss Randall lived in Germany, a year, studying music and travelling, her next travel talk on Germany and German life should be most interesting. It is to be given at the home of Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick, Chestnut street, on Tuesday afternoon, the twenty-eighth.

* * *

At the literary meeting of the Manet club at Christ church parish house on Tuesday evening Mrs. Walter T. Babcock is to give a paper which she wrote for the Wednesday Morning club of Boston and which was so well received, the subject being "Our territorial growth."

* * *

The regular meeting of the Hospital Aid association will be held Thursday, March 30th, at 2.30 P. M., in the chapel of the First church, City Square. A large attendance is desired as the subject of establishing a visiting nurse is to be again considered.

* * *

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Stover, and daughter, Florence attended the eighth annual reunion and banquet of the Boston Alumni association of the Coburn Classical Institute at Berkeley Temple, Boston, Monday evening, and report a most successful, and happy meeting. Principal F. W. Johnson, Mr. Benjamin Holbrook, one of the editors of the Boston Globe, and Prof. William Matthews were among the after supper, speaker. Mr. Stover was president, and toast-master.

An interesting feature of the Pine Tree State Association on Thursday evening was a poem entitled "Sons and Daughters of Maine" which was composed and read by Mr. C. H. Bingham. It was voted that a copy of this poem be entered in the records of the meeting. The attendance and membership increase with every meeting, a good evidence that the Association is in a progressive condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Costello have gone to Washington and on their return will visit Lieut. and Mrs. George G. Mitchell at Annapolis.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron C. Dowse of Malden observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday, the eighteenth. Mr. Dowse is editor of the New England Grocer and is well known to the newspaper fraternity and the trade. He has also done good work at the state house ably representing his district. They have two daughters and a very pretty home in Malden, where they hospitably entertain their friends.

* * *

Miss Laura and Miss Grace Coles of Faxon road have gone to Washington. On their return they will stop at Philadelphia and New York. The latter place will be especially entertaining, as a theatre party has been planned in compliment to them. Their trip will cover ten days.

* * *

The meeting of the Bridgewater Normal Association announced for today was postponed because of the death of President Capen of Tufts college.

* * *

Mrs. Cephas Drew, of Walker street, gave a delightful tea Friday afternoon to several friends. After an hour of sewing refreshments were served, and each guest helped make things merry by enumerating laughable incidents. The informality of the gathering was one of its most pleasurable features.

* * *

Miss Crafts of Somerville is a guest of Miss Ethel Hill of Walker street for the week end.

Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 the Wollaston W. C. T. U., will meet with Mrs. G. E. Thomas, 28 Newton street. The program for the afternoon will be "Non-alcoholic Medication."

* * *

Mrs. Sarah E. Thompson has returned to her home in Weymouth after a six weeks' visit with Quincy relatives.

* * *

All the habiliments of summer were seen at the white ball given by Miss Lena Crane in Atlantic Music hall, last evening. About sixty dancers were on hand to take advantage of the good time offered and all seemed to be losing no part of the evening's enjoyment. The effect was pretty and simple, as almost everyone wore white. Ices were served at intermission. Miss Gertrude Warren was at the piano. This final ball closes one of the most successful seasons Miss Crane has ever had.

ELEVATOR ACCIDENT

Quincy Young Man Was Instantly Killed in Boston.

Charles Pratt, aged 17 years, a recent pupil of the Quincy High school, and a son of Francis W. Pratt of Arnold street, was instantly killed in an elevator accident at 368 Congress street Boston yesterday afternoon.

The young man was employed as an errand boy by Wellington, Pearce & Co., lace curtain manufacturers, and was well liked.

Shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon he was given two large packages to deliver. He took the bundles to the elevator and pulled the rope of the elevator which was on the floor below.

Just how the accident happened is not known. His screams attracted the attention of other employes, who ran out and found him pinned between the elevator and the fourth floor, the elevator having taken him upward. He was in such a position that it was difficult to reach him and a policeman and fireman was called in.

While they held him from above the elevator was lowered a little and the lifeless body taken out. He had been crushed to death.

The body was given in charge of an undertaker and later removed to Quincy.

TRIBUTE TO BRAVE PRIVATE

Recognition of American Soldier's Heroism In the Philippines.

The latest military post established in the Philippines is situated on the island of Mindanao, in the regions inhabited by the hostile Moros, and is known as Fort Fernando Keithley, says the New York Times. In the naming of this fort General Corbin, the commander in chief in the Philippines, has made a graceful recognition of the heroism of a private soldier of Company H of the fighting Twenty-eighth infantry. In the latter part of last November Private Keithley, with three other privates, was on sentry duty near Marahui, a small Mindanao settlement, when suddenly an attack was made upon the outpost by a score of hostile Moros.

Three of the men fell at the first volley from the Moros, leaving only Keithley, frightfully wounded, yet able to stand and use his gun. Keithley, bringing his Krag-Jorgensen to his wounded shoulder, began falling back, all the time firing into the pursuing Moros, at least six of whom succumbed to his marksmanship. All the time the bullets were whizzing past Keithley, and when at last he staggered into his camp he was able only to tell what had happened, and then he fell to the ground dead.

The bravery and heroism of Keithley were in the due course of events brought to the attention of the Philippine headquarters of the army, and when the extent of the brave young soldier's sacrifice was fully known General Corbin at once issued the order naming the new fort in honor of his memory. One of the last official orders received at Washington is headed "distinguished service." The order reads:

"Private Fernando Keithley, Company H, Twenty-eighth infantry, for distinguished bravery and endurance while on sentry duty."

CHAPTER XVII.

GEORGE was rather puzzled to reconcile the apparent contradiction in Derrington's speech. The old gentleman saw his bewilderment, and before the young man could speak he anticipated his question.

"You are perplexed," he said quietly. "I thought you would be. To explain myself clearly it will be better to tell you the whole story from the beginning."

"What story?"

"The story of your mother's marriage and of my quarrel with your father. Do not be afraid. I shall say nothing to hurt your pride. But I fear Percy was not overburdened with brains. He was gay and thoughtless and thriftless. Your talents, George, come from your mother. She must have been a remarkable woman.

"However, to continue," pursued Derrington, pushing away his empty cup, "Percy saw Miss Lockwood, he fell in love with her, and finally he eloped. I wrote him a letter saying he was to return or I would never see him again. He declined to return and remained on the continent with his wife. I never did see him again," added Derrington quietly, "for three years later he was murdered at San Remo."

"In his letter to you did my father say he was married?"

"He did, but at the time, as he did not say where the marriage was celebrated, I thought he mentioned it out of obstinacy."

George colored. "I don't see why you should have so misjudged my mother," he said hotly. "Admitting that she was not born in the purple, she was in a good position and had no reason to run away with my father."

"She was in love with him, I believe."

"Even then she would not have eloped unless it was to be married."

Derrington nodded. "You are perfectly right," he said. "I tried to disbelieve in the marriage, but in my own heart I knew there was one. I have behaved very badly, George."

"You have, sir. But as we are now reconciled the less said about the thing the better. You are quite sure you do not know where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No, George. I do not. After the death of your father I tried to find out, but it was impossible. Had I really seen the register of the marriage I should have acknowledged you as my heir. As a matter of fact," added Derrington, with a burst of candor, "I did not trouble much to search, as I feared lest the marriage should be verified."

George wriggled in his seat. "Let us say no more," he said.

"Very good. I have confessed my sins, and I have received absolution from you. At the present moment we will leave the murder of your father at San Remo alone and come to the appearance of Mrs. Jersey in my life. You were with your grandfather Lockwood in Amelia square. I had constituted my second son my heir, and I had relegated to obscurity the escapade of my son Percy. All was nicely settled, in my humble opinion, when Mrs. Jersey appeared to make trouble. That was eight years after your father's death."

"Where was she in the meantime?"

"I cannot say. She told me nothing of her history, but from a word or two which she let slip I believe she must have been in the United States. Why she went there from San Remo or for what reason I cannot say. She came here to see me—we had an interview in this very room—to demand money."

"What threat did she make?"

"She said that she knew where the marriage was celebrated, adding that if I did not give her an annuity she would go to Lockwood and help him to prove that you were my legitimate grandson and heir."

"Did she say if the marriage was celebrated in England or abroad?"

"No, sir. Mrs. Jersey was a remarkably clever woman, and if my son Percy had married her she would have made a man of him."

"Then she really was in love with my father?"

"Very deeply in love—as she told me herself. But she did not regard his memory with such veneration as to desire to aid his son. She was content that you should lose your rights, provided that I paid her an annuity. I tried in vain to learn from her where the marriage had been celebrated. She refused to open her mouth, so I allowed her an annuity of five hundred a year. I arranged that the money should be paid through my lawyers, and she vanished."

"Where to?"

"I can't say. She might have gone to rejoin Mr. Jersey if there ever was such a person. She sent a messenger regularly to the office of my lawyers for the money, but did not trouble me in any way. Her next appearance was shortly after the death of your grandfather."

"What did she want this time?"

"To set up a boarding house in Amelia square. She said that her life was lonely—a remark which made me think Mr. Jersey was a myth—and that she wanted company. I expect she learned in some way that I was buying old Lockwood's house."

"Why did you buy it?"

"I have a lot of property in that district, and I wanted to round it off with this house. Ireland, in his rage at me for my treatment of your mother, would not have sold it to me. I bought the house through an agent. Mrs. Jersey must have heard of the purchase, for it was then that she came to me and asked me to set her up in the house as a landlady."

"I wonder why she did that?" said George thoughtfully.

"She was lonely, I understand."

George looked at his shoes. "As Eliza Stokes she lived in that house along with my mother previous to the elopement. I expect she had a kind of affection for it."

"Well, whatever her reason was, I did what she asked. She agreed to pay me a rent, and her money was as good as any one else's. Besides, I felt that as my tenant I could keep her under my own eye. When she was away I never knew but what she might die and part with the secret to some one else, who might come on me for blackmail also. I thought it best Mrs. Jersey should have the house, so she went into it and used the old furniture. I don't deny but what she was a good business woman and made the house pay. At all events she was never behindhand with her rent."

"I wonder she paid you any at all."

"Oh, she had her annuity and was afraid of pressing me too hard. I refused to let her the house on a seven years' lease. She only had it from year to year, and in that way I kept a check upon her. She knew if I once lost my temper I would throw her over and acknowledge you as my heir."

"I wish you had done so," said Brendon moodily. "It would have saved a lot of trouble."

"I do so now," replied Derrington testily. "Better late than never. Well, Mrs. Jersey lived and flourished for fifteen years. I tried to find you out, George, lest she should get at you"—

"Oh, was that why you offered to make me an allowance?"

"It was. I intended to give you a yearly income on condition that you went to Australia. Then I could be sure that Mrs. Jersey would not seek you out. But you refused my offer and disappeared."

"I went to college under the name of Brendon," observed George.

"And that is why Mrs. Jersey never found you and why I could not come across you until you put those advertisements about the marriage into the papers. It was that which"—

"Yes; so Bawdsey told me. You had me watched."

"I did," said Derrington, "and in that way I found out that you were going to stop in Mrs. Jersey's house."

"How did you learn that, sir?" asked George in surprise. "I never told any one."

"Oh, yes; you told Lola."

"So I did," said Brendon quickly. "She bothered me to come and see her, and I said that I was going to stop in the neighborhood of Amelia square with a friend and would call on her the next day. I expect she told this to Bawdsey."

"Exactly, and Bawdsey told me. I was afraid lest you should make Mrs. Jersey confess. I wrote to her and asked her to see me. She refused to come to my house, so I made up my mind to seek her out in Amelia square. I arranged by letter with her to call about 11 o'clock at her place and see her secretly."

"Why secretly, and why at night? Your visit could have been accounted for from the fact that she was your tenant."

"Ah," said Derrington grimly, "I never thought of that. I received a note from Mrs. Jersey saying she would wait for me on Friday evening at 11 o'clock in her sitting room. It was a foggy night, if you remember."

"Very foggy. I suppose you traced the house by means of the red light over the door."

"I did not trace the house at all," said Derrington quietly. "I did not go near the house."

"But I saw you," insisted George.

"You saw my coat and a man with my tall figure, and having my association with yourself in your head, you jumped to the conclusion that the figure was me."

"Then if not you, who was the man?"

"Bawdsey!" said Derrington curtly.

George stared. "In your coat?" he said incredulously.

"It seems strange," said Derrington, "but the fact is that Bawdsey is one of the few who have got the better of me in my life. It was in this way that he prevented me from seeing Mrs. Jersey. On that night I visited him at his rooms, which then were in Bloomsbury. I desired to tell him that I intended to see Mrs. Jersey and to warn her against revealing anything. I don't suppose the warning was needed, as she knew when she was well off. But the fact is, Mrs. Jersey was not in good health and was feeling compunction about keeping you out of your rights. I learned from Bawdsey that Mrs. Jersey had written out a confession of the whole matter and that she intended to leave this to her niece, Margery Watson, so that I might be forced to continue the lease of the house."

George uttered an ejaculation. "I thought from what Margery said that there was some such confession," he remarked, "but it is missing. It was not found among her papers after her death. Unless Miss Bull took it and forced you to"—

"No," interrupted Derrington vigorously, "she came here quietly and put the case of the poor girl to me. She also undertook that the rent would be paid regularly and that through Miss Watson she would manage the house. I was quite satisfied with the existing arrangements, and, moreover, thought that if such a confession were found, out of gratitude Miss Watson might bring it to me."

"If Miss Bull had told her to she would have done so, but not otherwise," said George. "She is under Miss Bull's thumb."

"The best place she could be, George. The girl is a born idiot, from what I saw of her. However, you know why I renewed the year by year lease. Where the confession is I have no idea, but the person who holds it will certainly make use of it some day to extort money, and then we will learn who killed Mrs. Jersey."

Derrington proceeded with his account of his doings on that night. "As I said, I went to see Bawdsey at his rooms. I took a cab, and as the fog was thick I had considerable difficulty in finding the place. The rain and fog chilled me, for I am not so young as I was, and when I arrived I was shivering. But I was too anxious to tell Bawdsey about Mrs. Jersey to trouble. He heated some water to give me a glass of hot whisky. While the water was boiling I told him I was going to see Mrs. Jersey. He asked me how I could get into the house without being admitted by one of the servants and thus run a chance of my being known."

"Did it never strike him that Mrs. Jersey expected you and would admit you when you rang?"

"Yes, it did strike him, but he knew that I didn't want any one to know that she had a visitor so late at night."

"I don't know why you took all these precautions, sir."

Derrington smiled dryly. "Perhaps they were rather unnecessary, but I thought it best to be on the safe side. As a matter of fact, I had a latchkey."

"I thought that Mrs. Jersey never allowed latchkeys."

"This one came to me when I bought the house and was given to me by the agent. I told Mrs. Jersey I had it and that I would let myself in. She expected me at 11."

"I know she did," said George, "for on that night she asked the boarders to be in bed by 11 and broke up her party at 10. I wondered if she was having any one to meet her then."

"She was expecting me. It was after 10 when I told Bawdsey, and I explained to him that I had a latchkey. He gave me the whisky, and, being chilled, I drank it. Then I fell asleep."

George looked up suddenly. "The whisky was drugged," he guessed.

"It was," assented Derrington, "and while I was insensible Bawdsey took the latchkey out of my pocket and put on my coat. He is rather my height, so with that and the fur coat I expect he passed himself off as me to Mrs. Jersey until she saw his face."

"When she did, she would have nothing to do with him. Although," added George, "he was an old boarder in the house."

"Wait till I tell you the rest," said Derrington, "and then you can give an opinion. When I awoke it was after 12. I never suspected that the whisky had been drugged and thought that it was some sort of illness. Bawdsey was in the room when I awoke. He did not tell me that he had been to Mrs. Jersey, and I now saw that it was too late to go. He advised me to see her on the morrow, saying that it was doubtful if you would speak to her on that night."

"I intended to wait till the next day, but, as a matter of fact, I became anxious to see if any one was with her, and I went down the stairs."

"By means of that secret door, Bawdsey told me."

"Well, I crept downstairs and saw—as I thought—you. It was, of course, Bawdsey. He was standing at the door of the sitting room. I was afraid lest you—as I thought it was—should see me, so I went upstairs again."

"And Bawdsey left the house. However, I never suspected him. I went home and found Mrs. Ward waiting for me. She came to tell me that she had heard from Dorothy that you proposed to stop with Train at Mrs. Jersey's house, and came to warn me."

"How good of Mrs. Ward!"

"She is a dangerous woman, George. I threw my coat on yonder sofa, and she sat near it. Feeling something in the pocket, her curiosity led her to take out the something when I was absent from the room. It was a stiletto."

George started from his seat. "A stiletto?"

"Yes." Derrington opened the drawer in his desk and took out the weapon which Mrs. Ward had brought. "This was between the fur and the lining of the coat. What with the weight of the coat and the position of the weapon lying along the bottom of the coat I never suspected it. I brought it home quite unconsciously. Mrs. Ward found it, took it away with her and came the other day to accuse me of having murdered Mrs. Jersey."

"How dare she do such a thing?"

"Oh, Mrs. Ward is capable of all things! However, you can see from what I tell you what happened. Bawdsey put the stiletto in my coat and either forgot to take it out or left it there so that I might be incriminated."

"Did he tell you this?"

"He told me, when I rebuked him too sharply, that he could get me into trouble. He also referred to the stiletto. I denied that I had seen it, and it was only when Mrs. Ward brought it the other day that I saw that this part of Bawdsey's story was true."

"What did you do?"

"I accused him of having killed the woman."

"What did he say?"

"He denied that he had done so. He declared that he went to Mrs. Jersey's sitting room door close upon 12, having let himself in noiselessly by the front door. He discovered Mrs. Jersey lying dead, as she was found in the morning. On the floor was the stiletto. Fearing lest he should be accused of the crime, Bawdsey left the house quickly, but took the stiletto with him so that he might find out who had done the deed. He changed his mind or left it by mistake in my fur coat."

"Did he ask money?"

"No. He has not done so yet, but he told me very plainly that no one could prove that he had been in the house on that night, and that if he had been seen the coat would make people think it was I."

"Exactly what I did think," said George.

"Well, I had to hold my tongue, for you see I was in a most awkward position, and I could prove nothing. I bluffed Mrs. Ward, but if the matter came into court things would look extremely unpleasant for me."

"I can see that," said Brendon, "but Bawdsey"—

"He has made himself secure, as no one can prove that he was in the house on that night. Even you thought it was I. I can't say for certain if Bawdsey committed the murder or if he really did find the woman dead, as he said, but he swears to his innocence. As yet he has not made any use of his power, but I am quite sure that he will try to get money out of me, so I have asked you here to advise me about the matter."

"Do you think Bawdsey has the confession?"

"He may have. If so, he knows where the marriage was celebrated!"

Brendon mused for a time. "I think it best to do nothing at the present moment," he said. Bawdsey is friendly to me, as I saved him from being run over. If he thought I knew this, he might turn crusty and make trouble. Better wait."

"For what?" asked Derrington restlessly.

"To see what he will do. If he does blackmail you, call me in. He's a scoundrel, but I know how to conquer him."

MORE PEACE TALK

Appears to Be Assuming a Definite Aspect

FINANCIERS' INFLUENCE

Resumption of Negotiations For Russian Loan on Grounds That Proceeds Will Not Be Applied to Continuance of War

Paris, March 25.—The prospects of peace between Russia and Japan have assumed a more definite and almost a tangible aspect as the result of the announcement of the resumption of negotiations for a Russian loan. The postponement of the loan occurred through the stand taken by the financial element against proceeding while the uncertainties of war continued, while a willingness to resume negotiations was construed as meaning that their strong influence finally has prevailed with the authorities at St. Petersburg.

The announcement of the resumption of negotiations took definite form in a communication to the syndicate of agents de change who form an influential element on the Bourse, holding government credentials.

The effect of the first announcement was to stimulate the market and particularly Russian securities. A reaction occurred on fears as to the effect the heavy demands of the loan would have on the market and doubts concerning the uses to which the loan will be put. However, it seems to be the accepted view of financiers that the proceeds of the loan will not be applied to the further continuance of the war.

Coupled with the announcement of resumption of the loan negotiation came a strong intimation from official and diplomatic quarters that steps looking toward peace had been definitely taken by Russia. The foreign office declined to confirm a report that France was likely to be the intermediary, but diplomats who are actively interested for the first time gave credit to the statement that Russia had decided to seek peace.

It was said in these quarters that Russia would deal directly with Tokio through the French minister, who has charge of Russia's interests there. However, the report of France's active part in the negotiations were said to be not entirely correct, as other powers have contributed towards a pacific solution, and it is expected they will take part in its realization. It appears that some of the lesser powers, including Sweden, are assisting to that end.

Russia's chief preoccupation is said to be avoidance of having peace plans arouse the animosity of the powerful war element at home.

The receipt of an official dispatch at St. Petersburg saying that the Japanese were approaching Vladivostok is said to have induced the determination to seek a pacific solution.

Where Japan Is Superior

London, March 25.—The possibilities of arranging peace between Russia and Japan and the financial contest between the two countries are attracting greater attention for the moment than the strategic developments in Manchuria. The spectacle of the Russian minister of finance inviting newspaper editors and correspondents to verify by personal inspection the national bullion deposits while Japan is negotiating an enormous loan on better terms than her previous small, timid issues, puts the development of the credit of the two belligerents into vivid contrast and is greatly commented upon. The London papers express little doubt that Russia will obtain her loan in France eventually, but on hard terms. It is reported that the new Japanese loan is already fully underwritten and that dealings have begun at a substantial premium.

Diplomats See Sign of Peace

Washington, March 25.—If Paris financiers, as reported, have declined to take up the Russian loan save on condition that the proceeds shall not go toward the war fund, official Washington, with the exception of the Russian embassy, believes that this important fact marks the beginning of peace negotiations. The several European ambassadors directly interested are anxiously awaiting news from their foreign offices on this point.

Prepared For Further Retreat

St. Petersburg, March 25.—The Russian rear guard is now occupying a line of fairly strong natural positions 34 miles south of Gunshu pass. The Russians, however, may have been outflanked, and have no intention of making a serious stand, especially as all the correspondents continue to report rumors of wide turning operations on both flanks.

Reported Attack on Russian Fleet

Paris, March 25.—The Matin's St. Petersburg correspondent sends an unconfirmed report that Japanese torpedo boats have succeeded in damaging two of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's battleships.

Fell Into Japs' Hands

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—Captain Connauton of the steamer Tacoma, captured by Japanese gunboats, cables that he has been released on parole at Yokohama, and that the crew will be released shortly and sent home. The Tacoma was loaded with supplies and was supposed to be destined for Vladivostok.

OWES BUT $750,000

Mrs Chadwick Tells of Alleged Enormous Commission

Cleveland, March 25.—In bankruptcy court here Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick detailed some of her financial transactions in the course of an examination by Attorney Grossman, acting for Trustee Loeser.

Mrs. Chadwick testified that her total indebtedness would not exceed $750,000. Of this sum, borrowed from various persons, she had received only $517,000, leaving $268,000 for commission to the money lenders. She said she owed certain banks in Cleveland $200,000.

Relative to the suit of Herbert D. Newton of Brookline, Mass., to recover $190,800 loaned by him, Mrs. Chadwick said Newton held her paper for that sum, but that she did not receive that much money from him.

"How much did he give you, actually?" Grossman asked.

"It would represent $78,000," replied Mrs. Chadwick. "I obtained $28,000 in money and notes for the balance. Two $15,000 notes were applied upon an old debt and two $10,000 notes were negotiated. I realized $1000 on one and $4000 on the other."

In response to the question whether the difference between $78,000 and $190,800 represented the commission, Mrs. Chadwick answered "yes."

Alleged Schems to Defraud

Philadelphia, March 25.—Stanley Francis, a promoter of many companies, was arrested on the charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes and after a hearing he was held in $10,000 bail for a further hearing. In default of bail Francis was committed to prison. It is charged that Francis is one of the leading figures in the Storey Cotton company and the Provident Investment company, which are alleged by postal inspectors to be fraudulent "get-rich-quick" concerns. Both companies have gone into the hands of receivers.

Decline to Accept Reduction

Spring Hill, N. S., March 25.—Another serious labor problem is confronting Nova Scotia, and a strike is anticipated at the Spring Hill colliery. The Cumberland Coal and Railway company employs 1770 men and claims to have operated last year at a loss. They have made a reduction on the wages of the coal miners of 12 percent, commencing March 1. The miners delivered their ultimatum last night, in which they state that unless the 12 percent reduction is cancelled by April 1 they will cease work on that date.

To Investigate In Santo Domingo

Washington, March 25.—Arrangements for the investigation of the affairs of Santo Domingo were completed after a conference participated in by President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and Professor J. H. Hollander, who is to make the inquiry. Hollander will sail from New York April 1 for San Juan, P. R., thence to San Domingo on the Chattanooga, which will be at his disposal while he is pursuing the investigation.

Jury Failed to Agree

Albany, March 25.—After being out 44 hours the jury in the Preusser murder case came into court last evening and announced that agreement was impossible. Justice Hasbrouck discharged them. Richard E. Preusser was indicted for murder in the first degree. It was charged that he shot Myles B. McDonnell of Boston. The efforts of the defense throughout the trial were directed toward proving insanity.

Carlisle's Fat Fee

New York, March 25.—The decree of a lower court awarding John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury, $25,349, for professional services in connection with a contest against the constitutionality of the laws under which duties were levied on goods imported from Porto Rico, has been affirmed by the appellate division of the supreme court.

Death of Mexican Ambassador

Washington, March 25.—Don Manuel de Azpiroz, Mexico's first ambassador to the United States, died at the Mexican embassy last evening, surrounded by members of his family. Although a sick man since last fall, the ambassador's death was due to a relapse caused by exposure on inauguration day. He was born at Puebla, Mex., in 1836.

Violated Pure Food Laws

New York, March 25.—For violations of the pure food laws Andrew Walsh, in the court of special session, in Brooklyn, was sent to jail for three months for selling oleomargarine for butter. This was the first conviction for violation of the oleomargarine act since the passage of the federal statute imposing a tax of 10 cents a pound.

Toastmaster Kidnapped

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 25.—Raymond S. Williams was kidnapped by sophomores of the University of Michigan, which prevented his acting as toastmaster last night at the annual freshman banquet of the literary students.

Mail Destroyed In Train Wreck

Seattle, March 25.—Many thousands of letters and all registered mail matter were destroyed by fire and water in a Great Northern train wreck in Idaho. This mail came from St. Paul and the east.

A. H. MERRITT.

"Tired in the Morning"

This condition is unnatural. A healthy person gets up in the morning well rested, feeling fine and ready for the day's work.

If you get up in the morning tired, it simply means that your nerves have not rested and their restlessness has not allowed you to rest in the healthy, normal way.

"Tired in the morning." "Run down." "All worn out"—these signs are the warnings—they mean that your nerves need attention.

You must feed some new power to your nerves.

That is just what Paine's Celery Compound does. It feeds new power to the nerves and builds them back to healthy strength.

It makes new Nerve Force.

It makes new vitality and makes life worth living.

That is just why for the past 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used tonic in the world.

A. H. MERRITT'S EXPERIENCE WILL PROVE VITALLY INTERESTING TO THOUSANDS.

"Two years ago I had a nervous disorder that completely prostrated me. I couldn't sleep, and would lay and toss about all night, arising in the morning more tired than ever, head heavy, eyes dull and every bone and muscle aching. I tried to get along without calling in a doctor, but was finally driven to it. He treated me for some time, but with no perceptible improvement in my health. Some one recommended your Paine's Celery Compound. The change it effected in my system was noticeable almost instantly. I gradually took on flesh. The 'all-gone' feeling left me. In less than six weeks I was fully recovered from what looked to me like an everlasting sickness. I feel actually grateful to you, as my health to-day is a testimonial of what your medicine can do. Yours very truly."—A. H. Merritt, 32 Music Hall Building, Boston, Mass., Feb. 12, 1904. Bandmaster First Regiment Band, Heavy Artillery, M. V. M.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day.

The patient feels this at once and gains confidence by it.

The stronger nerve forces have begun at once to make each organ of the body do the work that nature expects of it.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

For over 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this world has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

ECHOES FROM THE WAR

Extraordinary Scene When the Russians Left Port Arthur.

TRIBUTE FROM JAPANESE SOLDIER

Tragic Finding on a Battlefield of a Couplet to His Sovereign—Ingenious Manner In Which the Japanese Fire at the Russian Fleet In Port Arthur Was Guided.

A correspondent of the London Times thus describes the departure of the Russians from Port Arthur for Dalny after the surrender:

"Then occurred a scene which those who witnessed it will never forget and will ever remember with shame and disgust. Even third class carriages are scarce on the Dalny-Port Arthur line and one has to be content to make the journey in open trucks, but on this occasion there was a saloon for Stoessel, with a few carriages for the women and children. Directly the general and his wife had entered the train one expected to see the women and children led forward and assisted into the remaining vacant seats. But no, the crowd of generals and officers pushed forward and entered the carriages, pushing past the women and children without paying the slightest regard for them. Soon every single carriage was packed with these gentlemen, and the women and children were left on the platform sitting on their luggage.

"The indignation of every foreigner present and every Japanese was instantly aroused by this last exhibition of callousness and brutality. 'They treat their women like so many beasts,' was the comment of one. Some of the station officials and the Japanese officers intervened and assisted the helpless ones into the most empty of the open trucks, which were already nearly full of the officers' servants, who, taking the cue from their masters, were not going to wait for the women and children to be seated first. Some of the women found seats in the trucks intermingled with the dirty, common soldiers and the luggage of the officers in the closed carriages.

"One beautiful widow whose husband had been killed in the siege, whose very appearance one would have thought might have aroused a spark of dormant gallantry in the breast of one of the czar's chosen warriors, was left wandering about and would have missed the train had not General Nogi's aid-de-camp, Captain Matsuada, cleared out some of the soldiers and found room for her in a truck."

The national ideal of Nippon for many, many centuries has been the union of the soldier and the scholar in one. A man who is brave, but at the same time is not cultured and gentle, is very far from commanding the admiration of his countrymen. The gentle flower of culture alone is not sufficient for the making of an ideal man to our way of thinking, says a Japanese soldier in Success Magazine for April.

It was the historic night of the 26th of May, on the hill slopes of the Nanshan. We had driven the Russians down the hillside. The Nippon army bivouacked upon the battlefield atop of the Nanshan. Campfires flickered upon as sad and bloody a field of battle as one could possibly see. An officer who had missed a comrade was searching over the battlefield for his lost friend. He had wandered long far into the night. At length he came upon two soldiers who were trying to bury the remains of a heroic dead man. As the light of his lantern fell upon the lifeless body the officer, who had been wandering up and down the field of carnage, was electrified by the discovery of the remains of his old comrade. Without a word he brushed aside the two privates who were about to put the body into its last resting place. Around the forehead of the dead there was a piece of white cloth stained with blood. The officer who had been searching untied the cloth. At first it appeared like a bit of innocent towel, but when the officer shook it out in the light of his lantern there fluttered upon the night wind the national flag, with the round, red sun of Nippon dyed in the center. There was upon the flag something besides the sun. In spite of the stains of blood one had little trouble in making out the lines of a classic couplet. It was written with ink of rusty red. Unquestionably it was written with blood. The dead soldier must have written it with his own blood before going into action. The couplet read:

"Forever shall we guard thy standard, O sovereign prince, even if this our life shall vanish with the dews of the morrow!"

Captain N. O. von Essen, the commander of the battleship Sevastopol, which was sunk in Port Arthur harbor, thus described to a representative of the Scientific American the manner in which the Japanese gunners got the range on the vessels in the harbor:

"Before the Japanese captured Two Hundred and Three Meter hill the hits they made upon the ships were due to indirect or high angle fire, in which the gunners could not see the ships. The aiming was largely guesswork, for the Japanese did not command any height from which they could see the vessels. Nevertheless the fire for awhile was so intelligently directed as to make it evident to the Russians that some system of signaling existed. It was ultimately found that some Chinese fishermen were in the habit of frequenting a certain spot in the harbor from which they could watch the Russian ships and be themselves clearly discerned by field glasses from a distant hill that was occupied by the Japanese.

"Careful observation of these simple minded Chinamen as they were engaged in their laudable effort to pick up some greatly needed food from the sea revealed the fact that when a shot fell beyond a particular ship one of these boats immediately moved out beyond the group in a corresponding direction, say to the right; that if the next shot fell to the left John Chinaman would immediately conclude that he could find better fishing if he moved somewhat over to the left of the fleet of boats. These movements were duly noted from the Japanese observation station and the fire directed accordingly. After the Russians discovered the scheme there was no more fishing permitted in that particular section of the harbor.

"Not long afterward, however, the fire began again to grow remarkably accurate, and it was noticed that a Chinaman occasionally waded into the shallows with a couple of buckets, apparently in search of crabs, and that one bucket was white and the other black. If the Japanese shot fell beyond the mark the black bucket would be carried off a corresponding distance beyond the white bucket, or if the shot fell short or to the left or right, strange to relate, the black bucket would move in sympathy, and if a hit were made the industrious crab catcher would place his buckets together."

In Frederic Villiers' book on Port Arthur he tells the following incident of the siege:

"During the fighting yesterday a young Japanese officer in charging a trench with his men was severely injured in both legs by the enemy's shrapnel and fell fainting into the ditch. His company was driven back down the glacis to a donga below. This morning a Russian soldier, carrying something in his arms, was seen coming toward the donga from the glacis. The something he carried was the young Japanese officer, who had been left in the trench the previous day. Of course there was much rejoicing, and the Russian prisoner is on parole, much petted by the Japanese soldiers.

"This is the officer's story: When he recovered consciousness after his fall he was lying, with several dead comrades near him, unable to move his legs, when an unarmed Russian soldier stole into the trench and began to examine the dead. The Japanese officer, fearing that the Russian would kill and rob him, attempted to unbuckle his revolver, but the soldier, on seeing his action, approached him with such a reassuring smile that he refrained from pulling the trigger.

"'He stood over me,' he said, 'and spoke some words of Russian which of course I did not understand, but they were gentle and amiable I could tell. Then the man passed behind me, and presently I found myself being safely raised from the ground, and eventually in the strong arms of the humane Muscovite I was brought down to the trench in which my comrades had taken cover.'"

NEW ERA IN INDIA.

Asiatic Empire to Manufacture Its Own Steel.

Experiments [illegible] trained officials of the geological survey department of the government of India show that the demand for coke for the blast furnaces will render profitable the extraction at Indian collieries of coal tar and ammonium sulphate, both valuable byproducts, says the London Mail. For this purpose sulphuric acid factories are to be set up in western Bengal to utilize the hitherto unprofitable deposits of sulphurous copper ore which have long been known to exist in the Chota Nagpur district.

This means that India is about to enter the field as a producer of both copper and chemical manure as well as of iron and aluminium. Its cheap labor, abundant raw materials and enormous local markets give it a position of great advantage in this connection.

Already Indian coal supplies nearly all the requirements of southern Asia, to the exclusion of Cardiff coal. Indian jute mills have secured almost a monopoly of the supply of sacks for the grain producing world. Indian tea is driving Chinese tea before it from St. Petersburg to New York. Iron and steel are already being manufactured on a small scale in Bengal. The developments which are pending have the history of the past upon their side.

Joy For Apple Growers.

There is joy in the offices of the horticultural commission in San Francisco for the reason that a great problem of transcending importance to apple growers throughout the United States and particularly in California has been solved, says the San Francisco Call. The other day a codlin moth parasite emerged from the darkness in which it was hatched in a glass jar in the Ferry building, and so the fact was finally and conclusively demonstrated that the parasite will multiply indefinitely in California even under such adverse circumstances as the environment of a glass jar in a closed room. In the open air the proposition is easier than it has been in the horticultural commissioner's domain.

Preparing For Accidents.

The Pennsylvania Railway company is equipping all its passenger and freight trains with emergency hospital outfits. All the employees of the line are compelled to attend lectures on first aid to the injured.

Race Question Everywhere.

Seattle underwriters have received instructions not to insure saw or shingle mills in which Japanese are employed owing to the growth of hostility to the yellow men on the part of white laborers.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The late Easter this year will have its advantages for the flower lovers, for City Forester Doogue of Boston is preparing to take advantage of the lateness and have the finest display ever known at the Public Gardens and at Copley square. Easter church goers will stroll across the Public Garden through lanes of many kinds of flowers; hyacinths, jonquils, crocuses, spireas and lilies of the valley will predominate, they being now forced in the city greenhouses ready for transplanting a day or two before Easter. Quincy people will be repaid by a visit to Boston, Easter Sunday.

Y. M. C. A. Work in Japan.

Mr. Galen M. Fisher representing the International Young Men's Christian Association and who is National Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Japan, will speak at the men's meeting Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. He will also speak Sunday evening at 7.30 in the Bethany church.

The Japanese Minister of War recently gave the Young Men's Christian Association permission to establish work in Manchuria. All ready there are nine secretaries on the field, seven Japanese and two American.

Generals in the Japanese Army are urging that work be started at various military posts. Even the soldiers were not only ignorant, but suspicious of it, but all is changed and from the highest to the lowest all is praise.

The Association is called, "The Mother of the Army." The sick are visited, correspondence, and the gospels are furnished, and soldiers by the thousands come to the Association tents for games, entertainments, newspapers, music, hair clipping and religious meetings.

Wonderful is this opportunity, for as General Stewart L. Woodford, of New York says, "If you capture the Japanese army you capture the nation for Christ."

The public are especially favored in getting this opportunity to hear of this work from one who not only knows the country but of the existing conditions and all should make an effort to improve their opportunities.

Y. P. S. C. E. Officers.

At a recent business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Quincy Point church the following officers and committees were elected for one year: President, Victoria M. Carter; Vice President, Gertrude E. Foster; Secretary and Treasurer, Wm. W. H. West; Prayer meeting Committee, Rev. L. H. Austin and Annie E. Carter; Lookout Committee, Malvina Phillips and Gertrude E. Foster; Social Committee, Mrs. Leon H. Austin and all associate members. Six new members were voted into the society at this meeting.

Manslaughter the Charge.

Andrew D. King of Vinal Haven, Me., who was placed under arrest by Inspector Bradley on Thursday, as being a fugitive from justice, left this morning for Maine in custody of Deputy Sheriff D. E. White. Sheriff White was armed with a warrant charging King with manslaughter in causing the death of his wife. King waived requisition papers.

Brockton Inquest.

District Attorney Asa P. French has ordered an inquest into the Brockton explosion to be held next week, upon the death of one of the victims, Richard Spriggins.

In a letter to a resident of Quincy, Mr. Albert Crane writes, from the Royal Palm hotel, Miami, Florida. "Here all is bright, and warm,—roses, and oleanders, salvia, phlox and many other flowers in bloom, and all the ladies in white thin gowns. We leave here Thursday for Hampton Terrance, North Augusta, South Carolina."

NATURAL BEAUTIES

Interesting Papers at Meeting of the Unity Club.

The regular meeting of the Wollaston Unity club was held in the vestry of the Unitarian church last evening. Mr. Walter E. Simmons had charge of the evening, the subject being "Natural Beauties of America."

Mrs. Wilson Marsh read an excellent paper on "Landscapes." She described many of the beautiful landscape scenes of America, several being in or very near Quincy.

Mrs. Alden of Quincy had prepared a very interesting paper on "National Parks," describing each of the six parks of which America can boast. Owing to illnes Mrs. Alden was unable to be present, and the paper was read by Charles Hardwick of Quincy.

All were sorry that Mrs. Gurney who was to have given the third paper was ill and unable to be present.

The music of the evening was omitted since the piano had been moved for the entertainment the evening before.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, chairman of the committee appointed to nominate officers for next year, reported that they had found it impossible to find persons willing to serve; therefore she moved, that a committee of twelve be appointed to take the matter under consideration and make a report. The committee, which consists of the present officers, the nominating committee and Frederick H. Bishop will make a report at the next regular meeting which is to be held April 14.

Dr. Grenfell's Lecture.

Of Dr. Grenfell, who is to give an illustrated lecture at the Wollaston Congregational church Tuesday, March 28th, Norman Duncan writes:

"Will you not permit me to call attention to the approaching visit of Dr. Wilfred T. Greenfell, of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, whose particular field is the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador? Dr. Grenfell is not a missionary of the familiar type; he is less a preacher than a physician, and not more a physician than a philanthropist and industrial inspiration and organizer of the most sane and practical sort. Moreover, he is the devoted champion of the simple folk among whom he labors.

These simple folk inhabit some two thousand miles of what has been called by seamen 'the worst coast in the world.' What with fog, wind, reefs, and ice, navigation of those waters is a matter of extreme difficulty always, and often of hardship and dreadful danger. Nevertheless, in summer and winter, Dr. Grenfell manages to make his professional round—in summer by the little hospital ship Strathcona, in winter by means of dog-team and komatik. It is a proverb on the coast that he regards neither hardship nor peril.

McKinley Monument.

Architect Magenigle has reported to Secretary Hartzell of the McKinley National Memorial Association at Canton, Ohio, that he has completed the revised plans for the McKinley Monument. These will be submitted to seven contractors, who are to be ready to report about April 1. The trustees of the Memorial Association will meet in New York, May 1, when the contract for the monument is to be let. Secretary Hartzell says work on the monument will be commenced by June 1.

Bondsmen Superseded

The personal bondsman is fast becoming obsolete; the risk to private fortune is too great.

The corporate bond is just as rapidly supplanting the old form; and, in time, men will marvel that they were ever called upon to incur the danger of personal suretyship.

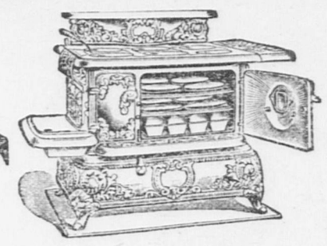

In point of safety, convenience and propriety, there can be no comparison between the two; the one is just as weak and perilous as the other is strong and safe.

The time is near when it will be thought as reasonable to borrow the key of a friend's safe as to borrow his name for surety purposes.

Antietam S. of V. Auxiliary, No. 16, will hold their regular meeting in G. A. R. hall Monday evening, March 27th at 8 o'clock.

The Amana Rebekah Lodge of South Braintree held their regular meeting on Thursday night, two new members were taken in and light refreshments were served. Many visitors were present from out of town.

The Miller Construction Co. have the contract for a dwelling house to be built on Liberty street for Mr. Charles Nickson. Ground was broken for the cellar Friday.

James A. Jackson of Abington one of the victims of the Brockton disaster was well known in East Braintree. His wife who died five years ago was Miss Helena Callahan, daughter of William Callahan of Washington street, Weymouth.

Great preparations are being made for the grand colonial fair to de held April 11th and 12th. Gen. Miles will open the fair the first night and Admiral Geo. F. F. Wilde, the second night. An excellent drama is promised for the first night and something equally as good the second night. It is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity to meet Gen. Miles and Admiral Wilde.

Mr. Converse A. Babcock, a respected citizen of the town passed away at his home on Elm knoll, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He was born in Newport, N. H., Aug. 23, 1839 and at the outbreak of the war in 1861, he enlisted in the army, serving in Co. K., 5th Mass. Vol. In the famous battle of Bull Run, he was the first in the regiment to be wounded. He was taken prisoner and confined in Libby prison and at Tuscaloosa, Ala., ten months. July 22, 1864 he reenlisted in the navy, as acting Ensign, serving until May 23, 1865, when he was honorably discharged with commendation from the department.

The entertainment given by Mrs. Cooke's Sunday school class, for the benefit of the piano fund was a great success in every way. The program consisted of piano solos by Miss Bessie Cooke and vocal solos by Miss Ethel Wilby, both from the New England Conservatory of Music; a piano duet by Miss Cooke and Miss Alice Thayer; solo by little Alice Johnson of South Braintree; and readings by Miss Plummer of Braintree and Miss Watkins, the latter reading selections in negro dialect.

An unusually interesting evening is anticipated. A large attendance of the members is desired, and the general public are invited to attend.

The School Committee holds a special meeting tonight to consider the plans for a single complete addition to the High school. Five sets of plans have been submitted. The architects are Mr. Cobb, Mr. Towner, Messrs. Hurd & Gore; Messrs. Hutchinson & Murray and Messrs. McFarland, Colby and McFarland.

A grand program has been prepared for the concert of the Wollaston Glee Club which will be given next Wednesday evening at the Congregational church. Concerts by this organization have passed the experimental stage, as this will be the seventh. The club will be assisted by Mrs. Annie Estelle Hollis, soprano, and William Howard of Boston, violinist. The accompanist will be Mrs. Mira Richards Moulton. An eight-page program will be issued giving the words of the choruses of which there are seven or eight.

An Easter Custom In Europe.

In certain great European churches during the hours the Saviour was in the tomb between Good Friday and Easter dawn the sanctuaries are shrouded in gloom, the kneeling congregations are wrapped in silent prayer. Finally, at the hour of the resurrection, a single light bearer appears before the altar. He is followed by a burst of music from the organ and the choir. The breathless multitude awaiting the signal spring to their feet; the light is caught up by thousands of candles kept in readiness and passed from hand to hand until the whole audience is an army of light bearers. "Christ is risen" sing the choir. "He is risen indeed," reply the joyful watchers, and, singing a choral while clouds of incense float through the vaulted spaces of the vast interiors of the cathedrals, the crowds pass out into the streets, beginning the happiest festival of the Christian year.

Banking by mail

is now an accomplished fact, in successful operation in many cities.

The Old Colony Trust Company has adopted a system which makes it easy for its out-of-town depositors to open accounts and transact business by mail. Deposits sent by mail may be in the form of money orders or checks, and they are acknowledged the day they are received. It is not necessary to send the pass book with deposits, or to be balanced, as, on request, statements are mailed showing the balance on the last day of each month, and the cancelled checks are returned at the same time.

This system is a great convenience to those who come to Boston infrequently, and to those whose business makes it difficult for them to reach a bank during banking hours.

Residents of towns surrounding Boston, who may be interested in this method of banking, are invited to send for a pamphlet more fully describing it and illustrating the Temple Place office in the shopping district.

Monday Evening Club.

The Monday Club, of Atlantic, held its sixth regular meeting of the season, March 20. One hundred and forty-two members were present.

Mr. Meyer Bloomfield, director of the Civic Service House of Boston, addressed the club. His subject was—"The Truth about the So-called Slums." Mr. Bloomfield explained to the club the training for citizenship which the immigrants are receiving, and defined the duties of all loyal, patriotic Americans toward these strangers upon our shores.

Miss Isabel Emery, former secretary of the club, and to whom the club owes in part its organization, and success for seven years, read a valuable paper on "The Peace Conference of 1904."

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Small had charge of the music for the evening.

Miss Mabel Florence Burr, soprano, Miss Marguerite Hickok, the young violinist, and Mr. C. H. Buker, basso, were the artists, who offered the club, one of the richest musical treats of the season.

The program was as follows:

Bass Solo, "The Skipper," Mr. C. H. Buker.

Soprano Solo with violin obligato by Miss Hickok, "Bright Star of Love," Miss Mabel Burr.

Bass solo, "The Friars of Orders Gray, Mr. Buker.

Both Miss Burr, and Mr. Buker generously responded to enthusiastic requests for encores.

Mrs. Metcalf, and Miss Emilie Gassett accompanied.

Wollaston Alliance.

At one o'clock, next Wednesday, March 28, a lunch will be served in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church, for the ladies of the parish and their friends. A limited number of tickets may be procured of the committee in charge, of which Mrs. Geo. W. Bennett is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Brigham, Mrs. Rowe, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Parker.

At half-past two in the afternoon, the regular meeting of the Alliance will be held. Mrs. Abbie A. Peterson of Boston, a director in the National Alliance, will speak on Southern circuit work. Mrs. Peterson has just returned from a trip south, and will no doubt have many interesting things to say upon the condition of affairs there, and particularly in regard to the work that is being so ably carried on by the Rev. W. S. Key, former pastor of the Unitarian church at Wollaston.

—Scotland is becoming alarmed at the increase in the number of "Burns relics." Chairs enough are now known to have furnished a dozen Burns cottages. Six of them were at the St. Louis exposition alone, and even the well-known habits of the poet will not account for the array of Burns cup and mugs that are scattered around the world.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The open meeting of the Quincy Women's club at First Church chapel on Wednesday afternoon will give club members an opportunity to meet Dr. Brackett, who has so generously given the club the use of his home for a club house. Dr. Brackett will not only be present at the meeting but will outline some of the work in which he is particularly interested. Cards have not been sent out but it is hoped all members will attend the meeting. In April or May the club house will be open to members for inspection before the repairs are begun.

March 21st the Philergians met at Braintree. Among the guests were the officers of the Women's club of Quincy, Randolph, Brockton, Weymouth and other towns. After a short business meeting, the president, Mrs. O. W. Allen, introduced Miss Georgie A. Bacon of Worcester, vice president of Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs, who spoke on the Tramp Question. The history and evolution of the tramp, from the landless man in England the tomato can wag, the two-cent duser, the man who will hunt for his food in garbage barrels, and sleep in a five center, seven, ten center lodging house, to the professional hobo, the yegg man was given.

The Current Events Club of Hyde Park met Wednesday morning. Political, war and educational news were followed by miscellaneous items after which Hon. Richard H. Dana lectured on "Civil Service Reform." Ten dollars was voted by the club to the Shawnut avenue Day Nursery, Boston.

The treasurer of the Quincy Women's club will be prepared to give out membership cards at the meeting on Wednesday afternoon at First Church chapel.

* * *

Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. W. T. Babcock and Miss Annie L. Prescott, were guests of the Philergians at Pythian hall, Braintree on Tuesday afternoon. Officers of the Quincy Women's club were also invited but owing to the storm were unable to be present. Miss Georgia Bacon, of Worcester, vice president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, was the speaker of the afternoon and gave a most interesting paper on "Tramps." It contained food for reflection and club women will probably hereafter give tramps nothing but the cold shoulder when they solicit food and money.

* * *

The Thought club of Hyde Park had an art afternoon on Tuesday with papers on the works of Massaccio and Fra Angelico.

A special meeting of the Quincy Women's club will be held Wednesday afternoon, March 29, at half-past two, in the chapel of First church, City square. Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett will be present and address the meeting. The subject will be, "the establishing of a visiting nurse under the auspices of the club, with headquarters in the clubhouse." A large attendance is especially desired.

—A bill is pending in the legislature which authorizes the district police to formulate regulations for the keeping, storage, manufacture, transportation, etc., of gunpowder, dynamite, crude petroleum, or any of its products and other explosives. By a vote of 18 to 4 an amendment offered by Senator Lane of Boston to exempt fireworks and firecrackers was adopted. Senator Chapple stated that these had not been included because the laws of last year gave the state police regulating powers. The bill as substituted takes its place in the calendar for the several readings.

POULTRY SPECIALIZATION.

In the Biggest Poultry Producing County of the United States.

Poultry raising is largely carried on by farmers in America as a minor factor in diversified agricultural practice. In consequence poultry is found distributed on a large number of farms in small groups. This fact is illustrated by figures from the last census, which show that 88.8 per cent of the farms in the United States report poultry. This tendency is less marked in the west, for the census figures show that only 75.8 per cent of the farms in the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast states report poultry. The diffuse distribution of the poultry industry has to a certain extent masked the importance of poultry diseases. Individual losses are necessarily slight and have not constituted an incentive for demanding the more extensive investigation of the cause and prevention of disease. Unquestionably, too, the isolation of poultry in small groups has contributed to restrict the spread of infections.

An Amazing Poultry Population.

A complex combination of factors made Sonoma county, Cal., the greatest poultry producing county of the United States. The census of 1900 credits that county with an output of 3,218,450 dozen eggs and with 481,425 fowls three months old and over. The poultry population has increased since the census, as shown by figures compiled by the Petaluma Poultry Journal from data supplied by produce concerns in Petaluma, the principal shipping point in the county. During the calendar year 1903 the territory tributary to this one town supplied 3,407,334 dozen eggs. This divided by 6.2 dozen, the census figures for the average annual production for California fowls over three months of age, would indicate the presence of 549,408 fowls near Petaluma.

Fowl Concentration and Disease.

The concentration of this number of fowls upon a few square miles of territory has demonstrated the importance of the infectious diseases of poultry in undermining the profits of the business. The proximity of poultry establishments to one another as well as the traffic in laying hens affords favorable conditions for the spread of disease. The owner of 6,000 hens naturally dreads the practical annihilation of his stock more keenly than the average farmer owning a few barnyard fowls.

Sanitation a Necessity.

California poultrymen are united to an unusual extent in affirming that failure and diminished profits are due principally to diseases. A study of the poultry diseases and of the conditions under which they occur leads to the conclusion that a large percentage of the losses among chickens older than broilers is due to preventable diseases.

The man who would reap the greatest profits from poultry husbandry must become thoroughly informed concerning the recognition of the various diseases and the sanitary methods necessary for their control.

Horticulture furnishes a striking example of a widespread popular education on matters pertaining to preventable losses from disease and the parasitic insects. This is a necessity sequent to specialization and concentration.

Scratching Posts.

Scratching posts, in the opinion of hog men, are not only a great comfort to hogs, but they may be made useful in ridding them of lice and of a scaly skin. The following plan is practiced by a successful hog raiser, who markets his animals in Baltimore. Plant a hickory post four inches in diameter in the hog run. Coil a manilla rope around this post as high as a hog stands and staple it securely. Then thoroughly saturate the rope with crude petroleum—kerosene will do, but it is not as good—and it becomes an ideal scratching post for hogs and pigs. The animals will rub against it continually, and oil is fatal to lice and mites. If kerosene is used the saturation should be renewed every few days.—American Cultivator.

SPRING IN THE GARDEN

"Had I but two loaves," said Mohammed, "I would sell one and buy hyacinths to feed my soul," a sentiment we must all approve; but when hyacinths are growing and blooming in our garden we may keep the loaf.

Sow seed for tomato plants in March or April in the hotbed or in plats in the house.

By error in a recent note it was stated that soil inoculation is good for "sweet potatoes." The reader familiar with the legumes undoubtedly read between the lines and saw what was intended—viz, "sweet peas."

When the seedlings are growing in the hotbeds do not let the beds become too hot. Ventilate well in the milder days and water liberally.

On account of its vigorous growth, which enables it to overtop grass and hold its own against weeds, asparagus will withstand perhaps more neglect than most vegetables. But it also responds generously to good culture.

April is a critical month with the hotbeds. A little neglect in giving air and an hour or two of ardent sunshine will scorch the tender growth, or Jack Frost's touch at night, after a balmy day, may put the plant to sleep for good and all if the protecting mats were thoughtlessly left off.

The dahlia, that fashionable flower of the present, may be grown from seeds. These germinate freely. Seeds of single dahlias prove highly satisfactory, producing a great variety of self colors—striped, spotted and tipped—and are greatly liked for cutting.

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell who is to speak on Labrador at the Congregational church at Wollaston on Tuesday evening is a young Englishman and Oxford man who for love of God, practices medicine on the sparsely settled coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador. For thirteen years he has given these people the only medical attendance they have had. Dr. Grenfell is a robust, jolly fellow, thoroughly interested in life; makes light of his deprivations and dangers. Those intending attending the lecture at Wollaston will be interested in reading in the April McClure just out, an article by Dr. Greenfell entitled, "Leaves from the Log of the Lend-a-Hand."

Miss Florence A. Killian's popularity as an entertainer was evinced by the fact that despite the severe storm of Wednesday night, a dozen young lady and gentleman friends, from Braintree and Quincy, gathered at her home at Braintree to partake of her hospitality. A delightful evening, enlivened by song and story, was spent.

On the evening of March 17th a delegation of Amana Rebekah lodge members paid a fraternal visit to Past Grand Ralph Houghton, at his home in Randolph, a member of Golden Star Rebekah lodge. Mr. Houghton is very much interested in that branch of the order as well as in the subordinate lodge. The delegation spent a very pleasant evening with the veteran odd fellow and his two daughters who are both past noble grands in the order of Rebekah. The Houghtons entertained hospitably and served a collation.

In Brockton Accident.

Charles E. Smith, a young man in his teens, who resides with his mother, Mrs. Francis Smith, Summer street, South Braintree, has worked at the Grover factory for the past two years, as an assistant to his uncle, George E. Smith in the heeling department on the third floor. He went to Campello on the 7.11 train, and had been at work only a few minutes, when the explosion took place. He remembers seeing the floor rise, by the force of the explosion, and the machines whirl in space, and instantly the floor settled.

In a second he found himself flooded in water, from the massive shattered tank upon the roof, and hemmed in by shoe racks. He managed to crawl out through a very small opening, but his uncle was under a two ton heeling machine, unable to save himself. The uncle, a large courageous man talked to his nephew until the cruel flames burned him to his death. There was no possible way to save him so rapidly did the fire spread.

POINTS FOR SMOKERS.

Some Advice to Follow if They Must Use the Weed.

Very few people are aware how much harm is done to young men by the almost universal habit of cigarette smoking. The man who smokes cigarettes has one always in his mouth and is continually inhaling nicotine until the system is saturated with the poison.

The result of this practice is a catarrhal condition of the nose, throat and bronchi, a disordered and very irritable state of the nerves, a weak and rapid action of the heart and indigestion.

Thin, anaemic, weak, with clammy hands stained with nicotine poison, unstrung nerves and degenerated muscles, the youth of the land go on ignorantly suffering the consequences of a pernicious habit until attacks of heart trouble, nervous prostration, melancholia, etc., bring their condition to the attention of the physician.

If a man must smoke—and we admit the charm of the habit to those who have become accustomed to its soothing influences—let him choose a mild cigar and have certain set times for indulging. If he puts a certain restraint upon himself from the start in the matter of smoking, he will not overdo it, and there are few men who can smoke more than three cigars a day without injury.—Medical Brief.

MUSIC AND HUMOR.

An English Critic Says That the Two Cannot Be Linked.

There is little room in music for humor and no room at all for wit. When I hear some one speak of the wit of a Chopin scherzo I think, "My friend, you had better see a doctor at once; you are slightly deranged mentally." In association with words there can be humor in music, as, for example, the prolonged low notes Handel gives to Polyphemus when he asks for a hundred reeds "for my capacious mouth." But the humor of Haydn and Beethoven in their instrumental works consists entirely of practical jokes—a sudden low C on the bassoon, a horn passage which no horn player can ever hope to play, a bass who enters a bar too soon or too late. The late Harold Frederic summed up the question beautifully. He said to me one day when I had not laughed at one of his stories: "Musicians have no sense of humor. When I was a young man touching negatives in a photographer's studio I was very musical. I had notes in my voice that couldn't be found in any piano in our parts. I had no sense of humor. Afterward I developed a sense of humor and lost my voice."—London Saturday Review.

INCITED MUTINY.

An English Admiral Once Did This by Royal Command.

Not only did an English admiral once receive instructions to incite his men to mutiny, but he actually carried his instructions out.

On the eve of the death of James I., and as a result of Prince Charles' marriage to Henrietta Maria, Buckingham agreed to lend the Vanguard and seven merchantmen to the French. Before his promise was fulfilled the Huguenot rebellion at Rochelle broke out, and by the time Sir John Pennington, who had been put in command, was ready to sail the authorities in England became disagreeably aware that their ships would be used against the French Protestants.

Buckingham was conscious of the storm of indignation this would arouse in England. In his perplexity the only solution that occurred to him was to instruct Pennington to get his men to mutiny. A secret message to this effect was sent him through the Earl of Pembroke, and Sir John, who had no wish to hand the ships over to the French, obeyed and allowed his crew to carry him and his officers back to England.

Trees That Make a Noise.

A curiosity is known in the tropics as the sand bark tree and also as the monkey's dinner bell. It has a round, hard shelled fruit about the size of an orange, which when ripe and dry bursts open with a sharp noise like the report of a pistol. Its juice is poisonous. The South American trumpet tree might furnish a band with musical instruments, inasmuch as its hollow branches are utilized for horns and also for drums.

A Stinging Reproof.

A gentleman had an inquisitive servant, relates Chums, whom he once saw open a private letter of his. The next day he sent another letter by the servant containing a postscript: "You may send a verbal answer by bearer. He has taken the precaution to read this before delivery."

Civil Service.

"Maria," said Boggles to his wife, with an idea of instructing her in political economy, "do you know what civil service is?"

"Jasper," said Mrs. Boggles, with memory of recent contact with the cook, "there isn't any."

Fruits in Liquid Form.

Foss' Pure Extracts Make Daintiest Desserts.

PURER, MORE WHOLESOME, MORE ECONOMICAL.

Foss' Vanilla Flavors More and Better than Any Other.

ARTIFICIAL FLAVORING MAKES DESSERTS DISAGREE WITH YOU.

Housewives have never liked to use artificia flavoring for their pies, cakes and desserts and have used the natural fruit when ever they could, but this course is not always practicable. They have never got satisfactory results when the artificial extracts were used; pies and cakes and ice cream have never come up to their expectations for daintiness and entire harmlessness. So thoroughly has the danger from cleverly imitated flavoring been recognized by mothers that children have about ceased to expect more than a taste at dessert.

Foss' Extracts are the out come of a persistent demand on the part of professional cooks for a purer, more economica', wholesome flavoring that should be simply the natural fruit in liquid form.

From the first appearance of Foss' Extracts hotel chefs, cooking school teachers and thousands of plain housewives entirely discarded the use of all artifical extracts and began to use nothing but Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts because they know that they are using simply the natural fruit in liquid form.

Women who have just begun the use of these extracts are delighted at the dainty flavoring imparted to their desserts and surprised that the matter of flavoring should make so great a difference in the palatableness of their cooking. This is the comment in many homes, not only by those whose business is to "taste" the food before serving, but by the men and women who only know the proof of the pudding by the eating.

There is something better than the old-fashioned artificial extracts. Foss' Extracts are fruits in liquid form. Not only are these modern extracts more delicate, purer and from every consideration of health more satisfactory, but they are much more economical, as less is required. Mrs. Lincoln in her recipe for Ice Cream, on Page 364 of her Boston Cook Book, orders Foss' Pure Extract of Vanilla, simply because it is fruit in liquid form, and the best. Try it and you will agree with her.

JULES VERNE DEAD

Favorite Author of Young People All Over the World

Paris, March 25.—Jules Verne, the famous writer of scientific romances, died at Amiens yesterday afternoon. This favorite author was born at Nantes Feb. 8, 1828, was educated in his native town, and afterward studied law in Paris. Turning his attention to dramatic literature, he wrote a comedy in verse, which was performed in 1850. This was followed by a three-act comedy, and by several comic operas.

But his fame rests chiefly on his scientific romances. From about 1870 to about 1885 few works of fiction were more widely popular than the scientific romances of Jules Verne.

As the author of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," "Around the World in 80 Days," "Five Weeks in a Balloon," "Steam House," "Screw Island" and "Michael Strogoff," Verne is known to millions of boys and girls in every land.

Men and women may read his books in French, English, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, Italian, Swedish, Russian, Japanese, Arabic and Persian.

The Holland submarine boat, the Santos Dumont dirigible balloon, the auto and the great ocean greyhounds of the present day were all predicted by this author at a time when the imagination of present-day grandfathers was unable to arouse in them faith in the possibilities of these inventions.

Much-Wanted Man Captured

New York, March 25.—While attempting to break into the room of a patron of the Hotel Netherlands last night, J. T. Standing was captured by a house detective. Standing, who occupied a room in the hotel, was identified as the man who has robbed patrons of half a dozen hotels within the last three months, and who has been sought by the police in the principal cities in the country. He is said to have confessed to obtaining $35,000 worth of jewels in hotels.

Hunting For Escaped Convict

Tacoma, Wash., March 25.—The revenue cutter Grant last night took up the man hunt for the escaped federal convict, Albert E. Bell, the bank robber, and has thrown out a cordon of small boats on the west side of McNeill island. The entire island has been searched closely without result. Bell has in recent months paid the fines of fellow prisoners, and it is the opinion that they are now paying their debts to the bank robber.

Australian "Angels" In Michigan

Detroit, March 25.—Glittering with topazes and accompanied by an uproarous brass band and a small menagerie, the long-haired "Angels of the House of David" passed through Detroit en route to the community of Christian Israelites in Benton Harbor, Mich. There were 85 in the party, following Benjamin and Mary, the founders of the faith, home from Australia.

Castro In Pugnacious Mood

New York, March 25.—In answer to a request for a statement on the present Venezuelan troubles, The Tribune last night received the following cable dispatch from President Castro: "I do not believe there will be any trouble, and if there should be any, Venezuela would win, because she never drifts away from right, reason and justice, which is the strength of weak nations."

Union Endangered

London, March 25.—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, in an interview last night on the consular difficulty between Norway and Sweden, said that the situation was graver than generally understood abroad and that there was a very serious danger to the union if Sweden persisted in refusing Norway's undisputed rights.

A Hint to Explorers

Ottawa, March 25.—Dr. Ami of the geological survey believes that diamonds are hidden in that part of Canada between the Great Lakes and Hudson bay, and he warns surveying parties and explorers to be on the lookout for anything that will show traces of diamonds in that territory.

Indianapolis, March 25.—John W. Browning, aged 65, veteran railroad man, widely known horseman and politician, committed suicide last night at his home, shooting a bullet through his brain. He had been despondent for some months.

HITS NEW ENGLAND

Newfoundland Revokes Her Bait Act of Comity

RETALIATORY MEASURE

Brought About by Senate's Refusal to Grant Privileges In Return For Fishing Rights--Gloucester Is Stirred Up

Washington, March 25.—Official notice has been received by the state department of the decision of the government of Newfoundland to revoke the privileges so long enjoyed by American fishermen of buying bait and fishing in Newfoundland waters.

This promises to be a serious blow at the New England fishing industry, but there does not appear to be sufficient ground for the lodgement of a protest by this government. The treaty of 1818 did not include the shore fisheries of Newfoundland within the waters opened to American fishermen, so that this privilege has been enjoyed by the Americans by sufferance and the good will of the Newfoundlanders.

After the failure, in Secretary Bayard's time, of the treaty conferring specific rights on American fishermen in those waters, the Newfoundland government, as an act of comity and in the hope that the American government would reciprocate in the end by entering into a treaty with Newfoundland conferring certain reciprocal advantages in trade, authorized the issue to American fishing vessels of licenses at a merely nominal cost to take bait and fish in Newfoundland waters. This same privilege has been denied to French fishing vessels, so that the American fishermen have divided the fisheries with the Newfoundlanders.

About a year ago the government of Newfoundland asked the United States to reciprocate for the valuable privilege, and, recognizing the justice of the appeal, Secretary Hay negotiated a treaty with Premier Bond, whereby the Newfoundlanders were to be given free entry for their fish at United States ports and certain other privileges in return for the fishing rights. The action of the senate at the last session in amending this treaty so as to render it valueless to the Newfoundlanders and, consequently, its failure, is the reason for the revocation of the fishing rights, and something in the nature of a retaliatory tariff war is expected.

The Feeling at Gloucester

Gloucester, Mass., March 25.—Owners and captains of fishing vessels who were seen regarding the announcement from Washington that the government of Newfoundland has decided to revoke the privilege of buying bait and fishing in Newfoundland waters, while admitting that, in case the decision is carried out to the letter, American fishing interests will suffer much inconvenience, were confident that some way would be found to overcome the obstacles placed in their way.

Having in mind the belief that some action of this kind might be taken by the Newfoundland government, the schooner Maggie and May, one of the Grand Banks fleet, which sailed from Gloucester Thursday on her first trip of the year, carried two small purse seines, with which Captain McEachern intends to secure his own bait of caplin and lance. This is a district innovation and the success or failure of the idea is of great interest to the fishing interests of this port.

The Grand Banks fishermen will be especially affected by the decision of the Newfoundland government. They usually count upon securing one or more baitings in Newfoundland ports in the prosecution of that fishery. Outside the Grand Banks fishery, the decision would not mean a serious hardship.

The amount annually paid for licenses by Gloucester vessels averages about $6000. Of the 65 or 70 banks fishermen sailing from this port, 45 have already left on their first trips.

Found Great Reptile's Skeleton

St. Louis, March 25.—According to the statement of W. B. S. Whaley, a Boston engineer who has been on a trip of inspection near Lake Tebo, the incomplete skeleton of a huge prehistoric animal, possibly a dinosaur, has been discovered by an inspection party. They came upon the tail of the skeleton first, the head being about 40 feet distant.

Many Hours on Witness Stand

Chicago, March 25.—In the beef trust trust investigation T. R. Ruddy, head of Ruddy Bros.' Packing company of Kansas City, was subjected to a close examination, and except during noon adjournment was on the witness stand from 11:30 a. m. until adjournment at 5 o'clock last evening. He was visibly affected by the ordeal.

Ditched by Burned Bridge

Paris, Tex., March 25.—A 'Frisco passenger train encountered a burned bridge near Arthur City. The chair car and two sleepers were ditched and the smoker derailed. One woman was fatally injured and died later. Several other passengers were hurt.

Killed Wife and Self

Lincoln, Neb., March 25.—Allen H. Ephriam, a negro, entered a room occupied by his wife and a negro named James Stevenson, killed the woman by shooting and slashing her throat with a knife, and then shot himself, dying instantly.

NEW CRISIS ARISES

Weavers Opposed to Mill Improvements at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., March 25.—An issue of vital importance to the local mills has been forced by the strike of weavers at the Granite mills. This is the view taken by the management of the property and by other manufacturers as well. In the strikes at several mills in the past few weeks, complaints were made against the 10-loom system because of low wages, or because the long bobbins supplied were not considered a sufficient aid to the weaver in his work to warrant the reduction in price per cut which was made. In these cases, rather than face trouble at a time when the market conditions were growing more favorable to the mills, concessions were made.

But the Granite mills have expended $40,000 in the past two years equipping looms not only with long bobbins, but with electrical warp stop motions as well. Now, although a strike is at hand in his mills, and although other manufacturers have conceded demands that were not fair in all cases, Treasurer Shove says he will not go back to the old system, whatever the pressure may be. In this position he has the hearty backing of every manufacturer and the struggle, if persisted in by the union, promises to be the most interesting textile strike known in New England for years.

Is Not a New System

Boston, March 25.—The facts regarding the "extras" secured by members of the office staff of the collecting department, as revealed at a meeting of the common council, did not create much of a sensation at city hall, as the practice is one that has long been in vogue in the office. In the important branches of the municipal service located on the first floor of city hall none receive as small salaries as the clerks of that department, and the "extras" paid the employes are the result of work actually done, which takes place outside their regular hours of duty.

Vessel Lost Off Cape Sable

Boston, March 25.—Fifteen members of the crew of fishing schooner Hazel Oneita, which struck on a ledge off Cape Sable, foundering in seven fathoms of water, arrived here on steamer Boston from Yarmouth, N. S. The Oneita was on her way home to Gloucester with 90,000 pounds of fish when disaster overtook her in the thick weather. The men barely had time to escape.

Suspended Students Going Back

Amherst, Mass., March 25.—The trouble at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, growing out of the suspension of three members of the senior class and the refusal of the other members of the class to attend the college exercises, was settled last night to the satisfaction of both faculty and students, and the suspended members of the class will be reinstated.

End of New London Strike

New London, Conn., March 25.—Members of the International Bricklayers and Plasterers' union voted last night to declare off its strike against the F. M. Todd company. It was on account of this strike that the local branch of the Interstate Builders, Contractors and Dealers' association declared a lockout against union bricklayers and plasterers.

Robbery Given as Motive

Dedham, Mass., March 25.—Probable cause was found by Judge Grover in the case of Guiseppe Sabbatino, charged with the murder of Alfonso Turi at Readville. Sabbatino was held without bail for the April term of the grand jury. Evidence was introduced tending to support the allegation of the police that robbery was the motive for the crime charged.

Beached Just In Time

Provincetown, Mass., March 25.—Dredging sloop Perseverance struck an icefloe off Long Point end while entering the harbor, smashing two big holes in her starboard bow. The inrush of water rendered useless the small auxiliary motor. The boat was rushed across the harbor and run up on the sands barely in time to prevent sinking.

Americans Make Poor Showing

Boston, March 25.—The international checker tournament concludes tonight. The total score at the end of last night's play was: Britishers, 66; Americans, 29; drawn, 26!.

Broker Held In $10,000 Bail

New York, March 25.—Francis P. Magoun of the banking and brokerage firm of Magoun Bros. & Co. of Wall street, which failed a few years ago, was held in $10,000 bail for examination on a charge of grand larceny. Magoun came from Cincinnati to testify in a suit in the supreme court and was arrested immediately after leaving the stand.

Freed From Murder Charge

Bedford, Ind., March 25.—The grand jury, after an investigation which has continued five weeks, released Elmer Browning. Browning's divorced wife charged that her husband had admitted that he, with the help of Frank Evans, murdered Sarah Schaefer.

New Head of Asiatic Fleet

Washington, March 25.—Rear Admiral Folger has been relieved from command of the Asiatic fleet and Rear Admiral Train will succeed him. The relief of Admiral Folger is at his own request on account of ill-health.

Orangeman For Ninety Years

Acton, Ont., March 25.—Robert Mills, the oldest Orangeman in Canada, died last evening. He was 105 years old. Mills joined the order in Ireland 90 years ago.

Organized Movement For Relief Gets Into Working Order--Donations of Any Amount Are Solicited For the Destitute

Brockton, Mass., March 25.—By the explosion and fire at the factory of the R. B. Grover Shoe company on Monday, in which 58 persons are supposed to have perished, 37 wives were made widows, 48 children left fatherless, while six children became orphans. For the purpose of caring for those families from which the bread winners have been removed the first organized movement for relief was begun last night.

The work of relief is now in the hands of a committee of 32, composed as follows: Eight chosen by a mass meeting of citizens; eight chosen at a meeting of the shoe manufacturers and merchants, eight chosen from the city government, and eight chosen by the Joint Shoe Council.

The mass meeting of citizens was called to order by Mayor Keith in Canton hall. The meeting endorsed unanimously the suggestion that every wage earner in the city be requested to donate one day's pay to the relief fund. It was also suggested that envelopes be prepared for distribution at all of the churches on Sunday and that the recipients of the envelopes enclose their subscriptions and send them to the relief fund committee.

At the conclusion of the meeting in Canton hall Mayor Keith hurried to city hall, where he presided over a meeting of merchants and shoe manufacturers. At this meeting the only business transacted was the appointment of a committee of eight to act with the other committees.

At the conclusion of this meeting all the committees met in the city hall and organized the committee of 32. Mayor Keith was chosen chairman of the committee, with George W. Alden secretary and City Treasurer Emerson treasurer. Four trustees to have charge of the distribution of the relief fund were chosen. A committee of 12 was appointed to investigate conditions and needs of assistance. All cases investigated will be reported to the trustees and the trustees will be instructed how to distribute relief.

The question of soliciting relief outside the city was debated at great length, and it was finally decided that the needs of the case were so pressing and of such magnitude that outside assistance would have to be invoked. Accordingly, the following appeal, addressed to the general public, was drawn up and signed by the trustees:

"The board of directors, appointed to receive and distribute contributions for the sufferers of the Brockton horror who are in need of financial assistance, respectfully request that donations of any amount immediately be forwarded to City Treasurer W. H. Emerson, and they will be acknowledged in the press:

"Words are inadequate to portray the real situation to those who have not witnessed the chaos and suffering left in the wake of the explosion. Children have been made orphans, wives made widows ,and large families have been made destitute.

"While the trustees realize that this is a local affair, the magnitude is so overwhelming that we feel compelled to appeal to friends to assist us in this our time of need."

The relief fund thus far amounts to $29,807.

Satisfactory Business Conditions

New York, March 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that spring trade responds to seasonable weather, and shipments of merchandise have increased so rapidly that railway facilities are severely taxed. Textile fabrics on the whole are in slightly better position. Apathy early in the season is tending to make subsequent business more satisfactory, March showing a decided improvement over February.

Failure of Woolen Concerns

Indianapolis, March 25.—The directors of the Indiana Woolen Manufacturing company have made an assignment, following the assignment of the Eclipse Woolen mills at Louisville, the majority of the stock in both concerns being owned by D. A. Chenoweth of this city. The total liabilities of both concerns amount to about $320,000.

Opera Singer Badly Burned

Syracuse, N. Y., March 25.—Miss Ethel Tillson, prima donna of a light opera company playing here, was badly burned in her dressing room at a theatre here last night, sustaining injuries that necessitated her removal to a hospital. Her condition is not dangerous.

Poles Carved One Another

Steubenville, O., March 25.—A knife duel to the death was fought by John Dobinsky and John Slato, two Polish miners, at Plum Run, a mining town. The men agreed to settle a grievance with knives.

Snug Sum For Sick Actor

New York, March 25.—A benefit at the Metropolitan Opera house for Joseph Holland, the actor, who, on account of illness, probably will never be able to appear again, netted $23,000.

A Dangerous Acquaintance

By WILLIS EMERY

Copyright, 1904, by Charles B. Etherington

THREE flights of stairs, steep and uneven, led up to Stephen Churchill's studio. They presented serious difficulties, especially on a hot afternoon, to so plump a man as John Gregory, art editor of the Traveler, and he paused at the head of the second flight and vainly tried to fan himself with a soft alpine hat.

He was somewhat sensitive in regard to his weight, and so he made a thin excuse for this halt, pretending that he had something to say to his companion, a brown eyed girl in a white dress.

"Remember," said he as impressively as he was able with the breath that was in him, "remember that I am not responsible for Steve Churchill. He is a good artist and a bad man—a dangerous man."

"We have flirtatious men at home," said she. "In that respect Mr. Churchill will not be a novelty. But we have no men there who could have painted 'The Cliff's Edge.' It is Mr. Churchill, the artist, whom your little country cousin wants to meet. Lead on, Jack, when you get your breath."

"I despise these fellows who pursue every pretty face," he began.

"Perhaps he won't think I'm pretty," said she demurely. "Besides, I'll tell him right away that I'm engaged."

"Well, that may do some good," muttered Gregory, "as the sailor said when he dropped an anchor with no cable fastened to it."

There were other visitors in Churchill's studio when Gregory and his cousin entered, and in the midst of them stood the artist at his easel, hard at work. He was a man of unimpressive appearance except for his air of earnestness. He had blue eyes and light brown hair, a clear skin and a fairly good figure—altogether a commonplace young man whose looks did not give the smallest suggestion of his ability unless one happened to remember that "genius is the capacity for taking infinite pains." Churchill certainly had the facial expression which would fit that definition.

He did not lay down his palette when Gregory introduced him to "the country cousin," and he seemed to take no especial interest in her except at the mention of the fact that she was an artist. Then he looked at her sympathetically, as if Gregory had said that she suffered from some chronic and painful ailment. Immediately he returned to his work without offering an apology, but for several minutes he continued to converse with Gregory and Miss Talbot, wandering ever farther away from them until his voice seemed to become inaudible in the far background of the landscape on the easel.

Helen Talbot laughed softly all the way down the three flights of stairs, and her enjoyment was the greater because of Gregory's extraordinary muttering and head shaking.

HE LOOKED AT HER SYMPATHETICALLY.

"I'll tell you what's a fact, Helen," he said as they came out upon the sidewalk, "something has struck Steve Churchill. I never saw him act like that before."

"Dangerous, dangerous man!" laughed the girl. "Where on earth did you get that idea of him?"

"The thing that makes me afraid for you, Helen," said he, "whether it's a question of trolley cars, express wagons or unprincipled men, is that you treat peril by the faith cure and deny its existence."

"And you imagine its existence," she retorted. "But, seriously, Jack," she added, "I am tremendously obliged to you for taking me to see Mr. Churchill. I have paid $100 for a course of lessons and have learned less from it than I learned from the pictures in that studio and from the man himself at work."

"Churchill not only has individual method," said Gregory, "but he has all kinds of method. You can't help picking up something that will help you. However, I'm interested in the man just now, not in the artist. What the dickens has come over him?"

Helen offered no solution of the problem, and presently they parted. A few days later the girl appeared in the art department of the Traveler, and every artist looked over the top of his drawing board while she was passing through the room. Indeed they never failed to do so. It would have been possible for Helen to deny them this pleasure by taking a somewhat longer route to her cousin's room—perhaps a dozen yards longer, involving the loss of several seconds—but she, always convinced herself that she was in a hurry. Admiration is of course pleasant to a pretty girl, and there is no reason why she should go out of her way to avoid it.

"I've learned that Mr. Churchill has a class of art," said she. "Why didn't you tell me?"

"It slipped my mind," answered Gregory, frowning at a drawing.

"Well," said Helen, "I've joined it."

Gregory settled down a little farther into his chair.

"Mr. Churchill is a great natural teacher," the girl continued, "but he discourages me."

"Why?" inquired Gregory.

"Because he evidently does not think I have any ability," she replied. "He gives me all the attention I could ask, but it is perfectly obvious that he does so because his conscience compels him."

"Churchill's conscience!" muttered Gregory.

"By the way," said Helen, "I asked some of the other pupils whether they had noticed any change in him, and they hadn't. But none of them knew him very well."

"No," said Gregory. "I guess they didn't."

"It certainly seems to me," persisted Helen, "that Mr. Churchill has something on his mind. He talks to me as if he didn't see me at all. I should think he was looking at somebody standing behind me. Do you suppose he can have met with any misfortune?"

"None that he doesn't deserve," growled Gregory.

Helen rose from her chair with the air of one who has reached the limit of patience.

"Well, it's not very flattering," said she, "and I'd like to know what it means. However," she added after a momentary pause, "I'm bound to say that so far as I can see he treats all the other girls just the same way."

"Churchill always had an indifferent manner," responded Gregory. "It's not that that makes me think him changed. There seems to be a new purpose in the fellow, an energy and an ambition that I never saw before. Upon my word, I could almost believe that he has been caught at his own game and that some girl has made a dent in his vulcanized rubber heart."

"The same notion occurred to me," said Helen. And presently she went away without having given any satisfactory reason why she had called.

It may have been about two weeks later that Helen happened to be in the vicinity of Churchill's studio about an hour before the time for the assembling of the class. It seemed better to wait in the studio than anywhere else that she could think of at the moment. Doubtless some of the other pupils would arrive early and keep her company. Churchill himself would be no company at all, as she had already learned. He would attend strictly to his work and forget her existence.

Upon this occasion, however, the artist was not at work, or, to be more exact, he was not at his usual task. He sat by a desk upon which were many letters which he had written. When Helen entered he looked at her for some seconds intently, as if trying to bring his mind to her from some remote region.

"How do you do?" said he in a far-away voice. And then when she was seated he resumed his place at the desk and slowly tore all the letters into very small pieces. Afterward he put something which looked like a locket or very small metal picture frame into a drawer of the desk and turned the key upon it.

"Mr. Churchill," said she, "I have been talking with my cousin about you."

"Yes?" he responded, with only the faintest show of interest.

"He finds you greatly changed," said the girl.

Immediately a very obvious and surprising change revealed itself in the man. He rose with energy, and his eyes grew bright.

"I have good reason," he said.

She smiled and pointed to the drawer in the desk.

Churchill hesitated and then slowly turned. He opened the drawer and took from it something which the girl could not see until he held it toward her. It was, as she had guessed, a small round frame of plain gold containing a face cut from a photograph, the face of a very pretty girl, yet not such a girl as might be expected to accomplish a great and beneficial change in a man like Churchill.

To be honest about it, she looked vain and silly. As a mat for a genius she might fulfill the doleful traditions in regard to this subject, but youth always fights against tradition. Certainly Helen rebelled at the thought that such a doll should sway the destinies of a man whose most commonplace idea and lowliest aspiration she must always be totally unable to appreciate.

"Isn't she lovely?" she exclaimed. "Blue eyes, of course, like yours. How odd!"

"It's odd that any girl should care a penny for me," responded Churchill, relapsing into his former manner. "I'm not worth it."

He began to pace restlessly up and down the studio, in which exercise he was interrupted by the entrance of some members of his class.

It may have been a month after this that Helen came early to the studio again, but this is not to say that she had never done so in the meantime. A peculiar fascination had brought her there more than once. Why she came she surely did not know. Churchill never seemed particularly glad to see her, and their conversation was often depressing, though Helen always strove to lift it to the highest level of aspiration and artistic enthusiasm.

If she had any comprehensible purpose it was to put the man at his best. Really she was fighting against the doll's face in the gold frame, protesting against the ascendency of the worse side of Churchill's nature, for, after all, when a man leaves running after pretty faces and begins to run after one pretty face he is not much the better for the change. A man's higher nature should impel him to seek a suitable mate, a woman who can help him and in some measure comprehend him. It seemed to Helen almost a duty to show Churchill that not all pretty women were dolls; that one of them might possibly be a companion and even an equal in her own way.

Upon the day that has been mentioned Churchill was not looking his best. He was somewhat pale; he seemed to have grown older, and all the lines in his face were intensified. He greeted her with his customary indifference, and then it all suddenly fell away from him.

"Helen," said he—for she had permitted him that liberty with her name—"I am going to say goodby to you now before any one else comes, though I may see you again even after today."

"Goodby!" she echoed, amazed.

"I'm going away," he said hurriedly. "I'm going abroad—or somewhere. I'm all out of sorts—broken down. I can't work. I need a change."

"Why, what in the world is the matter?" she demanded.

He hesitated and then almost sprang to his desk. In another instant he had shown her the gold frame, empty.

"It's all over," said he. "Better for her—much better for her. And for me, perhaps—I don't know—there's been another influence—I'm not the same man."

"What influence"— she began.

He looked into her eyes. She started back.

"No, no!" she cried. "I did not mean to do this."

He smiled sadly and extended his hand.

"Goodby," said he.

In the moment that followed they both heard steps upon the stairs.

"In a few days you'll have forgotten all about it," said he. "I shall be gone"—

"No!" she cried. "I don't want you to go."

His hand closed tighter upon hers, and then some one knocked at the door.

At the close of the session of the class Helen went to the Traveler office. She wanted to see Gregory, whom she recognized as her best available mentor, and yet she had by no means decided to tell him what had happened. In fact, she did not know what really had occurred except that she had broken Churchill's engagement. Her own sentiments were in wild confusion. She seemed to be two different girls, one of whom still remained bound in honor and affection to the man who held her promise, while the other was whirling away into another part of the universe.

Gregory was not in his office, and no one seemed to know what had become of him. While waiting Helen could not be idle. She seized upon the portfolios of the department and ran through endless stores of portraits and scenes, as if in frantic search for something.

When Gregory entered she was rigid as stone, staring at a photograph which she held in her hand.

"Jack," said she, "who is this?"

He glanced over her shoulder.

"English beauty," he replied. "Used to be on the stage. Dead, poor girl."

"Dead?"

"Yes, three or four years ago. I thought I'd thrown the picture away."

"Jack," said she, "Mr. Churchill had this girl's picture in a frame. Was he ever engaged to her?"

"To her! Why, he never saw her. She was never in this country nor he abroad. He made a portrait of her once long ago for the Traveler."

"Why, he told me"—

"Yes," said Gregory, sitting down heavily. "He told you that you had interrupted a romance. Old game. Wish you'd informed me sooner. But you didn't think I knew enough to make it worth while."

"Jack," said she, "I'm going home,—no, I'll go somewhere else for a week or two, and then I'll go home and stay."

"That's my good little cousin," said he heartily. "I'm glad to hear it."

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

April showers today.

A three-column complete story in today's paper.

Some of the lettuce in the local markets is too pretty to eat.

Granite lodge, Sons of St. George, has contributed $10 to the Brockton relief fund.

John T. Bates has returned to Quincy after a two weeks' trip to Newport, R. I.

The alarm from Box 69 at 8.50 last night was a false alarm. The recall sounded seven minutes later.

On account of the severity of the storm on Tuesday afternoon Miss Corlew postponed her dancing class.

It is expected that the North Atlantic fleet of U. S. warships will be in Boston harbor on June 17, Bunker Hill day.

The temperature at noon today was the same as last Saturday at the same hour, 57 It is the maximum for this year thus far.

The Fore River Select Club will give a concert at French's hall in City Square next Wednesday evening. The Fore River band, of which Thomas Foley is conductor, will make its first appearance at this entertainment.

There is considerable dissatisfation among the granite cutters over the working of the $3 minimum clause. Many of them complain that they are unable to obtain work. On the other hand the Manufacturers say that they can not pay $3 to a man who is not able to earn it.

Capt. Higgins was in charge of the steamer Surprise when she left the Fore River docks on Thursday. It was thought there might be some difficulty in getting her through the draw at Quincy Point. Capt. Higgins proved his ability however, by taking her through safely under her own steam.

MASTLESS STEAMERS.

A Seaman's Prediction About Coastwise Vessels.

That in the near future all coastwise steamers will be constructed mastless is the opinion of Captain J. G. Hulphers, senior commander of the Old Dominion line, says the New York Times. Speaking of the old appearance of his line's steamers, due to discarding the mainmast, he said to Captain George L. Norton and a few others in a shipping office at New York the other day:

"The Inman line vessels were ship rigged, carrying three royal yards aloft, and they did look handsome and shipshape, I admit. So did the White Star liners which came out later with four masts and two forward ones square rigged. Our coastwise Morgan line steamers, the first of the larger ships, were provided with three masts. Now observe the spars carried on these ships, and you will find the Inman line, absorbed by the American line, has reduced its steamers' masts to two short ones, with not a yard aloft. The White Star ships carry slender pole masts, while the Morgan liners have been reduced to two spars and the Old Dominion liners to one. Why? Because we never have occasion to set a sail. Our high rate of speed makes these spars useless at any time excepting during a gale of wind and of so little use then that it does not pay to carry any extra weight. Besides, each mast is quite a factor in holding wind under nearly all conditions on our route."

The Pigtail's Future.

Much of the black hair that is sold in the hair market comes from China. The London Daily News interviewed the other day a wholesale dealer in hair, who said: "I am not fully acquainted with the Chinese customs, but I understand in a general way that the Chinaman who disobeys the law suffers the loss of his tail, which a thrifty government turns into cash, perhaps to defray some part of the cost of the prosecution. Then I understand from a friend of mine who has traveled a great deal in the east that on a Chinese sailor dying at sea his tail is cut off and dispatched to his government, whether in accordance with some religious requirement or as a sort of informal death certificate I am unable to say. But these tails, after their arrival has been duly chronicled, also, I understand, find their way to the English and American market. Chinese hair is coarse, but its length gives it a special value in our business."

To Save Doctor's Bills.

It was an association of gentlemen, professionally physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have been connected with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Castoria, which as every one knows is a pleasant and effective remedy for the ailments of infants and children. It has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, and its reward has been the greatest popularity ever enjoyed by any remedy ever put upon the market; attained, not by flamboyant advertising or appeals to ignorance or vulgar prejudice, but by inherent merit. All physicians recommend it, and many, very many, prescribe it.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does today. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Next Saturday will be the first day of April.

Give Nature a Chance

BY USING

Newbro's Herpicide

The ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ."

It destroys the tiny vegetable growth in the sebaceous glands of the scalp, after which the hair will grow as nature intended. Don't wait until it is too late, for chronic baldness is incurable.

The microbe of dandruff and baldness makes the hair dull, brittle and lustreless. It fills the hair with dandruff and causes itching of the scalp. Later, it chokes the very life out of the hair and causes it to fall. Save it with NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE. Extraordinary results follow its use.

Read These Three Letters.

After typhoid fever my physician recommended Herpicide for my hair, which was falling. I used it a number of months and my hair is longer now than ever before, measuring more than five feet in length.

St. Paul, Minn (Singed) MARIE A. McINTYRE.

The top of my head was completely bald and fifty dollars worth of "Hair Growers" failed to benefit me. My photograph shows the result of a thorough treatment with your dandruff germ destroyer. (Signed) CLARENCE HAMILTON.

Atlanta, Ga., Police Dept.

At an early age my hair began to fall. I was almost bald when I was induced to try your valued remedy and now I have a fine head of hair. (Signed) C. J. BUDLONG.

Washington, R. I.

Herpicide contains no grease, it will not stain or dye.
STOPS ITCHING OF THE SCALP INSTANTLY.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

A success was predicted for the professional production of Samuel E. Rork's spectacular musical merriment, "The Filibuster," long before it was given but even the most hopeful did not dare to predict such an overwhelming triumph as it achieved at the Majestic theatre last Monday night; moreover it is proving to be lasting in its magnitnde, and the second big week will begin next Monday. The Boston press, without an exception, did not hesitate to proclain it the best show of its kind ever seen in the city. The music was spoken of as second to none in recent years. The comedy provoked continued mirth. The costumes and scenery were admitted to be second to those of no other production and the girls—gracious! Every newspaper in Boston devoted at least 200 words to proclaiming the beauty, winsomenes and generally attractiveness of the feminime chorus. Also it was stated emphatically that they were not only pretty but that they could sing sweetly.

PARK THEATRE.

Aside from the effective acting of Mr. Robert Edeson and his associates in "Strongheart," to be presented at the Park Theatre on March 27th, there is little doubt that much of the popularity of the play is due to the fact that it pictures vividly college life of today. "Strongheart" breathes the college spirit particularly when football is in the air for its action takes place on and about the time of the big game of the season. Its scenes reflect the days of youth, of spontaneous fun, of frolic, of fraternities, of campus heroes and of boy and girl love affairs. Placed in the midst of this breezy bustling life is Strongheart, the son of an Indian chief, football hero and a brother comrade in every sense of the word until his love for the sister of his chum stirs "the prejudice of centuries" and the line is drawn between the Indian and the white man. Mr. Edeson in an unconventional role presents the best characterization of his career and has eclipsed his earlier triumphs in "Soldiers of Fortune" and "Ranson's Folly" which under the direction of Henry B. Harris won for him a foremost place among the American stars of today. Mr. Edeson comes to Boston direct from the Hudson Theatre, New York where he has played the most prosperous engagement of his career.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

With the prettiest and daintiest one-act dramatic play that has yet been offered in vaudeville, Valerie Bergere will appear at Keith's Boston Theatre next Monday, March 27, and throughout the week. The little piece is called "His Japanese Wife," and is the most elaborately staged and beautifully costumed act in the varieties at the present time. It deals with the marriage romance of a pretty Japanese girl who has contracted an alliance with an American senator and has been transplanted from the land of cherry blossoms to unromantic Washington. Miss Bergere lived in Japan several years, and consequently has a most complete knowledge of the type of character she impersonates, which is remarkably true to the original. She is one of the most gifted actresses on the American stage, and during her brief career in vaudeville, her praises have been sung unanimously by both press and public. In the bill with Miss Bergere will be Eddie Foy, late comedian with "Piff Paff Pouf," who will be the central figure in an eccentric comedy sketch, "The Man Behind the Gun." Mr. Foy, of course, will sing some of the topical ditties for which he is famous.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The announcement of "Carmen" as next week's attraction at the Castle Square Theatre will, without doubt, prove very interesting to the patrons of this play house as the stage version of Prosper Merrimee's novel is a comparative novelty with Boston audiences. The version of the novel to be used at the Castle Square is that made famous by Olga Nethersole during her last tour in this country and in this version the thrillingly dramatic story told by Merrimee is presented in a series of strongly planned scenes and situations offering splendid opportunities for good players. Lillian Kemble in the title role will have a character well suited to her skill as an emotianal actress and the other members of the company will make up a strong cast. The play will be put upon the stage with due care as to costumes, scenery, etc. "Carmen" is announced for a single week with the usual free distribution of boxes of choice chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

As the circus season draws nigh the spirits of the small boy rise accordingly. The small boy, and his parents and relatives likewise, will be interested, then, in the announcement that while a circus entire is not to be put on at the Empire Theatre, Boston, formerly Boston Music Hall, next week, there will be one feature which will smack of the sensational element to be found only in a modern menagerie. Mlle. Ona Cecil and her den of leopards will be the attraction, and it is said to be one which for daring and and absolute mastery on the part of the trainer, and for wild beauty and fascinating powers on the part of the leopards, far surpasses any animal act ever presented in the varieties. There will be an abundance of comedy in the coming show, a fair share of which will be provided by Watson, Hutchings, Edwards and company, in Vaudeville Exchange," a sketch built on original lines and teeming with mirth-provoking dialogues and action.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from James P. Flannigan at Quincy Point were forfeited.

Ray Barstow was arraigned for larceny of money from Gilbert S. Hallowell at Quincy. Case continued until Monday.

The continued case of Lewis Ericson, for malicious mischief, was called and he was fined $3.

The continued cases of William B. Lownsbury of Quincy for assault, and of George H. Wuest, for perjury, were called and again continued.

—The complaint that woman is encroaching upon man's rightful field of work seems to be justified. The Boston Globe finds there are in the United States 550 female carpenters, 130 wood choppers, 200 blacksmiths, 170 brick and stone masons, 3,500 iron and steel workers, 40,000 boot and shoe workers, 180 engineers and 600 machinists. No wonder the number of male cooks is increasing and that our big city streets are lined with the signs of men forced into the polite vocation of ladies' tailoring.

GAS FIGURES.

From Reports of Quincy Company.

Filed With the Gas Commissioners.

No Company With as Few Stockholders.

[Special to the Quincy Daily Ledger.

Boston, March 25.—In the annual report of the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners are many details of interest to all gas consumers regarding their local companies. Most of the city companies were inspected many times during the year, Boston heading the list with 53 times and several other large cities having had 52. The Citizens' of Quincy was inspected only three times.

The legal standard of light is 16 candle power. The average of the Citizens' company was 16.70. Its highest test was 17.9 and its lowest was 14.7. The highest average in this class was Southbridge, with 24.90 candle power as an average for the year, while the lowest was Norwood, with 14.33.

The date of this 14.7 was November 22, when the days were short and dark and the demands on the company were large.

On October 7 and November 22 the test showed that sulphuretted hydrogen was in the gas of the Citizens' company when the law does not permit any to be present.

This company is put down as supplying a population of 23,899 people, and as having a capital of $33,000. It has only two stockholders, both resident in the state and there is no other company in the state where the gas stock is held in so few hands. In four cases there are only five stockholders, and that is the next smallest number to Quincy's two.

The assessed value of the Citizens' property is $32,000. Its taxes paid amounted to $602.82, which was at the rate of $0.696 per 1000 cubic feet of gas sold.

The Citizens' company was one of the 21 in the state which paid no dividend. The highest dividend paid by any company was 12 per cent. and that was paid by the Adams, Attleboro, Beverly and Springfield. Worcester paid 11 and there are several which paid 10, but most are down to 8 or 6. Boston paid only 5.

The gross price charged by the Citizens' company, $2, is reduced in some way not shown by the report so that the average price for the year covered was $1.96, against $1.93 the year before. The average price for coal gas has steadily declined in recent years. The report shows that the average for the entire state in 1886 was $1.72, and that in 1903 it was down to $1.06.

The daily capacity of the Quincy works is 50,000 cubic feet, and the greatest daily output was 44,000 feet, on December 5. The least output was 18,500 feet on June 20. The total sales of the Citizens' company during the year were 9,315,400, which was a decrease of 5.18 per cent. from the year before. This means a capital, including bonds, of $8.16 per 1000 cubic feet of gas made.

Reckoned per mile of main, the Quincy company has $5,338.58 of capital. It sold 654,355 feet of gas and 111,309 feet were unaccounted for to every mile of main, but there are a great many higher. The Boston company heads the list with 453,603, and other big companies show an immense leakage.

The number of of consumers per mile of main of the Citizens' is 39.2, but there are many companies which have a more scattered support than this, Boston heads the list with 217.

The gas sold per consumer in Quincy averaged 15,350 cubic feet and the gas sold per meter light averaged 2995 feet. The full balance sheets of the companies are given in the appendix and there is other statistical information.

ATHLETIC MEET.

Interesting Work by Pupils of Thayer Academy.

A large number of friends of Thayer Academy attended the annual indoor athletic meet in the Town hall at Braintree on Saturday evening, and were highly entertained. They were also pleased at the proficiency of the young athletes.

The officials were: O. C. Gallagher referee, W. T. Harrison judge at the finish, W. W. Gallagher starter, O. B. Oakman clerk, E. U. Kinsberry announcer, H. W. Wellington and W. S Perry assistant judges.

The summary:

15-yard dash—Won by J. G. Morrison, W. J. Rudderham second, A. Rogers third.

Sack race—Won by H. Power, Charles Marsh second, J. French third.

High jump—Won by W. J. Rudderham, A. Carson second, H. Sprague third; height 5 ft. 1 1-2 in.

Potato race—Won by F. McKenney, N. Shay second, J. Crawford third.

Three standing jumps—Won by W. Remick, J. Reed second, W. J. Rudderham third; distance 35 ft. 1 1-2 in.

High dive—Won by H. Sprague, W. J. Rudderham second, W. Remick third; height 5 ft. 1 in.

Other events were pyramids, cock fights and stick drill.

Arrested for Drunk.

Officers Lyons, and Curtin were called to the Rhode Island house on the corner of Howard street, and Des Moines road early Sunday morning to quell a disturbance. They found a young fellow, Archie Hill, on the floor, with a gash on his neck, and covered with blood. Hill could not say how he got his wound, but it was evidently made with a bottle or tumbler. He had been to Boston, Saturday night, and came home with others. After arriving home, there was more or less drinking, and the accompaning argument. Whether some one struck him with a bottle or whether he fell in a drunken stupor onto a broken bottle is not known.

The police are inclined to think, however, that Hill fell onto broken glass. He was sent to the police station, and after having his injuries dressed by City Physician Hallowell, and Dr. Jones, he was locked up for drunkenness.

High School Plans.

The School Committee held a late session Saturday night. They had before them the plans for a single complete addition to the High school that has been secured by the Committee on Public Buildings of the City Council. The School Board did not finish its examination of the plans at this session.

WORK IN JAPAN.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting With Encouragement.

War Was the Great Opportunity.

Two Addresses in Quincy by National Secretary Fisher.

Large audiences listened with pleasure on Sunday to Mr. Galen M. Fisher, a New Englander by birth, who is National Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Japan; at the Y. M. C. A. rooms in the afternoon and at Bethany Congregational church in the evening. To the representative of the Ledger, he said he felt well acquainted with Quincy and Braintree because of assistance received from local churches. Large collections were taken.

At the Y. M. C. A. service there was a praise service led by A. C. Albee with piano and cornet accompaniment; responsive readings led by Dr. Sherman; prayer by Rev. N. J. Sproul and selections by the Granite City Quartette.

Mr. Fisher said the Y. M. C. A. went to Japan on invitation. That its work was peculiarly adapted to Japan, which was a nation of young men. It is young men who are doing the thinking and planning, for the great war.

The industrial classes were quick to appreciate the Y. M. C. A., but it was not until last summer that the association was allowed to work among the soldiers. Mr. Fisher spoke of the obstacles to be overcome, and the unkind treatment at first by soldiers, when permission was obtained from the Minister of War.

But by supplying the comforts to the soldiers they quickly won their hearts and good will. They supplied tables with writing paper and postal cards all with the Y. M. C. A. imprint; also games, newspapers, magazines, scrap books and hair clippers and made the Y. M. C. A. tents the only social headquarters.

The letters to the soldiers' homes was also converting them to christianity and they were now raising funds to support the good work. The sum of $600 was netted at one entertainment in Tokio.

The Y. M. C. A. found a very advantageous place to work in the hospitals, where the sick, and injured soldiers were homesick, and lonely. They were eager for the gospel, and the friendly touch. The graphaphones were introduced, and are greatly appreciated, especially some war songs.

After the crisis of the war is over the Y. M. C. A. will be self supporting in Japan, but now the expenses are great, as the clamour is for the extension of the work and send out more secretaries.

Held for Perjury.

Edward Kelcourse, for whom the police held a warrant charging him with perjury, in giving what is known as straw bail, returned to Quincy this morning and gave himself up to the police.

It is alleged that on Feb. 16 last Kelcourse with George W. Wuest visited the police station to give bonds to release Daniel McFadden, who had been arrested for drunkenness. It is alleged that Kelcourse not only gave a name other than his own, but he swore that be possessed certain property.

Upon his representation McFadden was released. It afterward transpired that straw bail had been given, and warrants were issued. Wuest was charged with subornation of perjury, and Kelcourse with perjury. Wuest was arrested but Kelcourse disappeared.

Kelcourse waived examination in the lower court and was held in $500 for the grand jury. The case of Wuest was dismissed.

George E. Adams, Esq., appeared for the government and John W. McAnarney, Esq., for the defendants.

—A Hyde Park teacher tells the story of a troublesome boy whose conduct had been so bad that she informed him he must stay after school and be punished. His reply was: "I can't stay tonight, teacher; I have to go to the Christian Endeavor meeting."

—Marshfield residents have been active after bounties on woodchucks and hawks in the past year. The selectmen have paid bounties on 507 woodchucks and 38 hawks at 25 cents per head, and the expense to the town has been $126.75 on woodchucks and $9.50 on hawks.

Business for City Council.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. The Finance Committee will report in print the annual appropriation order for 1905. The same committee may also report upon some of the other matters before them.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains will report on the order for $6,000 for house connections with the public sewer.

In the calendar are the orders granting the Electric Light Company locations for poles on Clive, Field Temple and Hancock streets; and the Telephone Company permission to attach wires to poles of the American Telephone Company and Electric Light Company.

Bankers Meet at Atlantic City.

The second annual Convention of the New Jersey Bankers' Association has just been held at Atlantic City.

At that convention, the Bank Money Order plan recently adopted by the American Bankers' Association, was officially endorsed, and each Bank that was represented at the Convention agreed to install the system.

Under that plan, which was carefully devised by a committee composed of Mr. A. B. Hepburn and other prominent financiers, banks throughout the country are enabled to accommodate the public with Bank Money Orders, the payment of which is guaranteed by the American Surety Company of New York.

The system is coming rapidly in favor with those who are required to make remittances, as it is an improvement over the Government and Express Company Money Orders.

Vespers at Quincy Point.

The vesper service which was held last Sunday afternoon at the Point church was largely attended by people from all parts of Quincy. The program included:

Violin solo, "Ave Maria," Gounod
James Melville
Anthem, "Sing Alleluia Forth," Dudley Buck
Trio, Father Lead Me by Thy Hand," from "Belchazzar"
Mrs. Carter, Miss Gage and Mr. Byrne
Anthem, "How Lovely are the Messengers," from "St. Paul"
Solo with refrain, "Abide with me," Macy
Mrs. Carter and quartette
Solo, Miss Gage
Anthem, "Send Out Thy Light," Gounod

The regular choir was assisted by Mrs. R. H. Newcomb, Miss Nina Gage, Messrs. James Melville, Charles A. Tanner, A. J. Sidelinger.

Suicide Attempted.

Miss Ida Catler, aged 20 years, attempted suicide Saturday night at her home, 130 Copeland street, by cutting her throat. The wound is not a dangerous one, the knife having been taken away from her by her brother before she had time to inflict a more serious wound. The girl has been subject to temporary insanity for some time, and it is not the first time that she has attempted her life. The family came to Quincy from Boston. While in Boston her family tried to have her committed to some State institution, but as she had been in this country but a short time they were unsuccessful. She will be examined as to her sanity today.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank H. Sanborn, William O'Brien, Archie Hill, Edward Collias and Charles Smith were fined $3 each and John McKenna, $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Donald McPhail and Frank H. Whipple were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Edward W. Kelcourse was arraigned for perjury at Quincy and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

The continued case of George Wuest for subornation at Quincy was called and he was discharged.

William A. W. Tilden and Henry M. Donovan were arraigned for breaking and entering and larceny at Cohasset. They were held in $300 each for the grand jury.

Conrad Willardu was fined $10 for assault on John Peterson at Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Religion is changing its form. It is not passing away. Any day there may be a transformation into something new and strange as wonderful as the metamorphosis of the butterfly.—Christian Register.

☞Governor Douglas says that one-tenth of the taxes in the State goes to pay interest charges. That is a good starting point for any taxpayer who wants to discover why his tax bill is so high.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞A distinguished general, in attempting to gloss over the sacrifices demanded by war, once said that it was necessary to break eggs in order to make an omelet. The Russian army has learned to its cost that it is possible to break a great many eggs without having any omelet to show for the destruction.—Providence Journal.

☞Democritus was not a modern Democrat, but he was highly democratic when he said that "a life without a holiday is like a long journey without an inn." Who could put it better today? Holidays well used are no loss to school, trade or the industries. It is highly important that the world and the school learn how to use the holidays.—Journal of Education.

☞Tree Warden Kidder of Milton says there are no gypsy moths in Milton and that his department has been all over the town and examined every likely spot and cut off and destroyed every brown-tail nest found. In some districts the place has been gone over twice. He asks every citizen to look over his own land carefully and burn everything that looks suspicious and that the inspection continue when the leaves begin to grow that the caterpillars may be destroyed while small.

☞The idea seems to be pretty general that ambition is born in us, that we have little or nothing to do with its acquisition or cultivation, and that we cannot modify, enlarge, stimulate or improve it to any extent. A study of life does not confirm this idea, that the ambition is a cultivatible quality, capable of being molded or destroyed according as we will, is demonstrated every day in the lives of those about us. We see people in whom the spark of ambition is kindled suddenly by the reading of a book, the hearing of a lecture or the speaking of a kindly word by a friend or teacher, and, on the other hand, we see those who allow their ambition to die out for want of fuel.

The death of ambition is one of the tragedies of life. When a young man feels his ambition begin to fade there is trouble somewhere. Either he is in the wrong environment and his faculties protest against what he is trying to do, or some vicious habit is draining his energy, or his health is poor or he is being led into dissipation by bad companions. A youth whose ambition begins to wane is not in a normal condition. When he is not stimulated by a noble purpose, and filled with a desire to become a strong man among men, there is something wrong somewhere.—Success.

Missions Urged to Reject Rockefeller's $100,000

'TWIXT GOD AND MAMMON

Those Who Accept Gifts From Man Who Represents Greed System Must Become His Apologists--Dr Gladden's Views

Columbus, O., March 27.—Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, pastor of the First Congregational church of Columbus and moderator of the general council of the Congregational churches of the United States, in a sermon delivered yesterday, discussed the gift of $100,000 made by John D. Rockefeller to the American Board of Missions. He said:

"The money proffered to our board of missions comes out of a colossal estate, whose foundations were laid in the most relentless rapacity known to modern commercial history. The success of this business from the beginning until now has been largely due to unlawful manipulations of railway rates.

"The United States government is now engaged in a strenuous attempt to ferret out and punish this injustice. And the people of the United States have a tremendous battle on their hands with the corporate greed, which has intrenched itself in this stronghold and has learned to use the railways for the oppression and spoliation of people.

"And now on the eve of this battle, they are asked to accept a great gift of money from the man who more completely than any other represents the system they are summoned to fight. I hope they are not mean enough to take his money and then turn around and fight him. I hope they are not so faithless to their obligations as to take his money and shut their mouths or become his apologists.

"We do not want this man's money. To accept it will be to work the contempt of millions of honest men; to reject it will strengthen our churches in the affection and respect of millions who are inclined to doubt whether the churches love God more than mammon.

"Our missions will be richer and stronger without it than with it, and we shall lose nothing by our loyalty to the things unseen and eternal."

"Worse Than Dive Keeper"

Boston, March 27.—"Mr. Rockefeller is the most conspicuous example of injustice in business methods which the country affords," said Rev. H. S. Johnson in his sermon prelude at the Warren Avenue Baptist church last night. "I do not include his influence in the same class with the saloon keeper and the proprietor of a den of vice. I believe that it is a thousand times worse.

"To accept his money, on the general plea that religious societies cannot investigate the source from which money comes under the circumstances of this special case, is unwarranted in justice and religion."

An Unpleasant Honeymoon

New York, March 27.—Within an hour after being married to Madeline Gildersleeve, 15 years old, Edward W. Stewart, aged 32, of Ottawa, was arrested in Brooklyn on a charge of abduction, made by the girl's mother, who had objected to her daughter's marriage on account of her youth. Stewart was later charged by T. J. Assit of Brooklyn with having passed a check for $100 on the Union bank of Brooklyn, in which he had no account.

Returning Confederate Flags

Washington, March 27.—Acting under authority of a special act of congress, General Ainsworth, the military secretary, has begun the delivery to the governors of all the southern states affected of all Confederate battle flags captured by the Union forces during the war of the rebellion. There are about 540 of them, but some cannot be returned from lack of identification.

Deputy Sheriff Arrested

New York, March 27.—Extensive frauds in the naturalization of Italian immigrants which have been in progress in this city resulted in the arrest of Frederick Levigne, a deputy sheriff of Westchester county, and his arraignment on a charge of perjury. Levigne is an Italian of some prominence in politics. The authorities say he has confessed.

Bad Dynamite Accident

Cumberland, Md., March 27.—Two men were killed and seven injured by an explosion of dynamite on the Western Maryland railroad extension. The blast, which had failed to explode when first set, was being rammed when the accident occurred. All the victims were married and had families.

Actress Tillson Will Recover

Syracuse, N. Y., March 27.—The condition of Ethel Tillson, the prima donna who was so badly burned in her dressing room at a local theatre as a result of her picture hat coming in contact with a gas jet, has improved, and her recovery is expected. Her face probably will be slightly disfigured.

Odell Hobnobs With Royalty

Rome, March 27.—King Victor Emmanuel received former Governor Odell of New York in private audience. The king, who speaks English perfectly, conversed with Odell for half an hour.

TUCKER'S APPEAL

Fight For New Trial on Charge of Killing Mabel Page

Cambridge, Mass., March 27.—Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Mabel Page at Weston on March 31, 1904, appeared in court here this morning to hear the beginning of another fight for his life. Judges Sherman and Sheldon, who presided at the trial where Tucker was convicted, are asked to grant the young man a new trial.

James H. Vahey, senior counsel for Tucker, has a long list of grounds upon which he bases his application for the setting aside of the verdict rendered by the jury. Vahey's motions will be opposed by Attorney General Parker, who appears for the commonwealth.

The principal point in the application for a new trial is the contention of the defense that the verdict was against the weight of evidence. On this ground alone the verdict may be set aside.

Failing in this the attorneys for the defense have numerous other grounds upon which to argue for a new trial. Chief among them is the contention that Juror Nason took notes of the evidence and used them in coming to a decision, which proceeding the defense claims was prejudicial to the interests of the prisoner. Nason has not denied the note taking.

This is a most novel and important point, and one which has never before been raised in this state, and it is doubtful if there ever has been any direct decisions on the subject.

Harvest From the Sea

Block Island, R. I., March 27.—A heavy swell broke in the port gangway of the stranded steamer Spartan Sunday and washed out nearly 100 tons of freight. By nightfall a large number of the islanders had provided themselves with rubber shoes and families had replenished many times their stock of white cotton cloth from the wreck.

Scotchmen Best Checker Players

Boston, March 27.—The Britons won the international checker tournament, after 10 days' play, with a score of 73 games against the 34 games won by the Americans. The feature of the tournament was the showing made by the five Scotchmen of the British team. Out of the 194 games played, they won 46, lost but 2, and 146 games were drawn.

Anti-Cigaret Crusade

Boston, March 27.—To 800 school children assembled at Faneuil hall Charles B. Hubbell asserted that cigarets are a greater danger to this country than either rum or opium. Hubbell is actively engaged in the formation of an anti-cigaret league in New England and it is to the school children that he pays particular attention.

Accidentally Killed Brother

Westbrook, Me., March 27.—William Quinn, aged 12 years, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of an older brother. The latter was removing shells from the weapon when the accident occurred, the charge entering the other's right shoulder and neck.

Shot, Beaten and Robbed

Hartford, Me., March 27.—Ralph Wyman, railroad station master here, was assaulted by an unknown person last night and robbed of his money and watch. The robber shot Wyman in one arm. Wyman was then struck on the head with some heavy instrument and knocked unconscious.

Thrown From Train and Killed

Somerville, Mass., March 27.—The body of Charles King of this city, aged 29, was found lying between the tracks a short distance from the Somerville avenue crossing. King was probably standing on the rear platform of a train when a sudden lurch threw him off and he struck on his head.

Supposed Counterfeiters Caught

New Haven, March 27.—The police this morning captured two men supposed to be William Gober and Samuel Fastow, both of New York, who had with them complete counterfeiting outfits and a large sum of counterfeit money. The men were taken at the point of a revolver.

Perhaps Asleep on Track

Providence, March 26.—Isaac Derosia, a woodchopper, 50 years old, married, and the father of several children, was struck by a train at a point near Moosup and died soon after. The man was lying apparently asleep on the track on a sharp curve. The body was badly mangled.

Honors to Naval Apprentice

Newport, R. I., March 27.—Apprentice Seaman Arthur Slocum of Olean, N. Y., died at the training station of diphtheria and was buried in Newport cemetery with naval honors. The entire naval battalion, band and marine guard accompanied the body to the cemetery.

Jury's Long Deliberation

St. Albans, Vt., March 27.—A verdict of manslaughter was returned by a jury against Giovanni Vincone, charged with having caused the death of Francisco Philipi at Swanton Junction. The two quarreled and Philipi was shot. The jury was out 21 hours.

Church a Hundred Years Old

Kingston, Mass., March 27.—The four days' celebration of the founding by Rev. Ezra Kendall of the First Baptist church of this town 100 years ago was begun with a historical address by the present pastor, Rev. Edgar L. Hamilton.

France Loses Torpedo Boat

Toulon, March 27.—During naval maneuvers off this harbor torpedo boat No. 250 sank. Her crew were saved.

CITY BREVITIES.

April showers are numerous and ahead of time.

Open street cars were run on the Quincy Point line Sunday.

R. J. Barry is building an addition to the south side of his store on Hancock street.

H. H. I. Smith and family have leased the Stedman estate on Cherry street, Quincy Point.

G. M. Merrill has been called to his home in West Falmouth, Maine, by the sudden death of his aunt.

The warm, mild weather Sunday afternoon brought out scores of bicycles and automobiles. It was an ideal spring day.

Frank Wingate returned to his home in Hallowell, Maine, this week, after a brief visit with relatives in South Quincy.

Grand Patriarch Johnson and grand officers will visit Wompatuck encampment, I. O. O. F., at Weymouth, this evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Leon H. Austin leave today for Coventry, Conn., where they will visit at Mr. Austin's home for a short time.

Freeman D. Grant has commenced the erection of another three-tenement house on Grant street near the street railway car barn.

Quincy had its first 60 degree temperature on Sunday. It was delightfully warm and pleasant, and attracted the people outdoors.

Miss Mary E. Dearborn returned this morning from Manchester, N. H., and resumed her position as principal of the Coddington school.

A special edition of the Golden-Rod, the Quincy High school paper, will be issued in a few weeks. It will contain original prize stories and illustrations by pupils.

The net proceeds from the High school concert on Friday evening will be expended for decorating the interior of the High school. May they soon have additional rooms to embellish.

Local real estate men report that there is an increasing demand for land for building purposes, also for tenements and that the indications are that business in the building line will be humming as soon as the weather becomes any way settled.

Trial of New Steamship.

The steamship Dakota, just completed at the Groton shipyard, returned to New London on Friday after a trial trip of 24 hours. During the trip, her compasses were adjusted and her machinery given a thorough trial, which is said to have been satisfactory. The Dakota probably will make her final departure from this port early next week, preparatory to starting for Pacific waters. She is owned by the Great Northern Steamship Company.

NAVAL REARMAMENT

Japan May Ask That Russia Suspend It For Some Years

Paris, March 27.—It is stated in diplomatic quarters here that among the conditions of peace which Japan may ask will be that Russia give a pledge to build no more warships for a term of years. A diplomatic official said that such a condition would be the most effective means of assuring Japan against Russia's carrying out her cherished project of naval rearmament for the renewal of hostilities under better conditions than those at present existing.

It is well known that Russia contemplates a huge plan of naval rehabilitation. Admiral Doubassoff, head of the technical board of the admiralty, and other Russian naval authorities recently have taken the position that peace was desirable until a naval reconstruction could be completed. This appears to have stimulated Japan's diplomats to consider means of avoiding a peace that would be equivalent to no more than a truce during which Russia would have time to forge an effective weapon, and therefore the intimation is now given that limitation of Russian naval armament may figure as a means of ensuring a prolonged peace in the Orient.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

WHEREAS, the undersigned were appointed commissioners by decree of the Probate Court of Norfolk County, dated December 28, A. D. 1904, to make partition of the real estate of James Frederic Harlow late of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, deceased testate; and

Whereas, by warrant of said court dated February 1, A. D. 1905, said commissioners were ordered to make sale and conveyance of said real estate, there will be sold at public auction on TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, the 4th, 5th and 6th of April, A. D. 1905, the three parcels of land hereinafter described with the buildings thereon, two of said parcels being situated in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and one in Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, and said three parcels being the whole of the real estate of said James Frederic Harlow, deceased. The sale of the first parcel will be on the premises at three o'clock P. M., April 4, A. D. 1905; the sale of the second parcel will be on the premises at 3 o'clock P. M., April 5, A. D. 1905; the sale of the third parcel will be on the premises at three o'clock P. M., April 6, A. D. 1905. Said three parcels are described as follows:

First Parcel: A parcel of land containing about thirty-two hundred (3200) square feet and the building thereon, according to the title deeds, being numbered 317 and 319 Cambridge Street, including Numbers 1 and 2 Cambridge Street Place, in said Boston, and subject to such rights as may exist in the ways called, respectively, Cambridge Street Place and Cambridge Street Avenue, and to the unpaid taxes for 1904.

Second Parcel: A parcel of land containing about nine hundred and eighteen (918) square feet and the building thereon, numbered 22 Lowell Street, in said Boston, and subject to the unpaid taxes for 1904.

Third Parcel; A parcel of land on North Street, in said Quincy, containing about three and one half (3 1-2) acres.

Terms: Five hundred dollars ($500) to be paid in cash on each of the first two parcels at the time of the sale and one hundred dollars ($100) to be paid in cash on the third parcel at the time of the sale; the balance on all three parcels to be paid within ten days from the time of said sale at the office of John B. Sullivan, Jr., 714 Tremont Building, Boston.

LAND COURT.

TO Thomas A. Whalen, Alice Whalen, Olive A. Holbrook, Henrietta Holbrook and Elizabeth L. Lowe, of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Paul T. Baxter, now or formerly of Irving, in the State of Nebraska or his heirs, devisees or legal representatives, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Emma J. McMurray of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, and being lot numbered one in section four on a plan of lands of the Bellevue Park Land Association in said Quincy, drawn by William A. Garbett, surveyor, dated Sept. 14, 1871, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 424, page 28, bounded: Southeasterly on Broadway, eighty (80) feet; southwesterly on lot numbered two in said section, one hundred eight and 33-100 (108.33) feet; northwesterly on lot numbered fourteen in said section, eighty and 42-100 (80.42) feet; northeasterly on Broadway, one hundred (100) feet.

Also another parcel and strip of land in said Quincy, on Bellevue Plans in section four on plan of lots drawn March 1, 1842, by said William A. Garbett, being triangular in form, and bounded: On Bowdoin Street, six (6) feet eight (8) inches; northwest by lot fourteen (14) on said plan; northeast by land of Alice Whalen, eighty and 42-100 (80 42) feet to a certain stake at the junction between lot fourteen and one on said plan; southwest on lot one about eighty feet to point of beginning.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in said County of Suffolk, on the seventeenth day of April, A. D., 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighteenth day of March, in the year nineteen hundred and five.

BOMBS IN PLENTY

One Thrown Into Police Station Near Warsaw

ROOM PARTLY WRECKED

Half a Dozen Men Injured and Two Killed While In Pursuit of Culprit--Second Bomb Injures Warsaw Chief of Police

Warsaw, March 27.—A bomb was thrown into the carriage of Baron Von Nolken, chief of police of Warsaw, last evening. The baron was severely wounded.

The attack on Von Nolken was the result of an elaborate conspiracy of the revolutionary party. Shortly before 8 o'clock last evening an elegantly dressed man went to the police station at Praga, a large suburb of Warsaw, on the other side of the Vistula, and threw a bomb into a room of the station where the men assembled before going on duty. Six policemen were wounded and all the furniture as well as one wall were destroyed. The bomb thrower in trying to escape met a policeman and shot twice, wounding the officer in the stomach. The bomb thrower tore himself away. Another policeman fired twice after him without result. Half an hour later a man was found dead in Sowia street, whom the police at first believed to be the bomb thrower, but it proved to be a plain clothes policeman who was pursuing Von Nolken's assailant. The police believe that the latter turned on the policeman and shot him dead.

A telephone message was immediately sent to Von Nolken at the city hall, informing him of the outrage. Von Nolken, accompanied by a police official, started immediately for Praga.

According to the theory of the police, the revolutionists calculated upon Von Nolken going to Praga on learning of the explosion of the bomb at the station there, and knew he must pass the castle, that being the only road by which he could reach the bridge across the Vistula.

The affair caused great excitement. A popular rumor says the revolutionaries adopted this course of informing the police that they have more bombs besides those discovered in the Powonski cemetery Saturday.

Baron Von Nolken is very unpopular. He is hated by the masses of the Polish population, who hold him responsible for the sanguinary suppression of the disturbances here at the end of January. He has been here only a year, having come from St. Petersburg, where he was chief of the mounted division of the police. Von Nolken's injuries are serious, but it is thought that he will recover.

In Anarchy's Grip

St. Petersburg, March 27.—The peasant movement in south and west Russia continues to spread. There has been a renewal of the burning and destruction of property in the Chernigoff government, the peasants attacking especially the property of M. Tereschtanko, a rich sugar refiner, who has 400,000 acres planted to beets. Several landlords have been murdered. The peasants in other sections are taking armed possession of forest land, on which they had the right of cutting wood before emancipation, and are offering resistance to the police.

Revolutionary Propaganda

Warsaw, March 27.—A revolutionary movement of considerable proportions is making itself manifest in connection with the industrial disturbances in the region south and southeast of Warsaw. The country has been flooded with proclamations calling for a rising in Poland and with revolutionary songs and addresses.

Nest of Arms and Bombs

Moscow, March 27.—An organized depot of arms and bombs was discovered on the premises of a rich merchant named Barassoff. Investigation disclosed a conspiracy to distribute arms. There have been over 800 arrests in connection with the affair.

Good News For Steel Workers

Pittsburg, March 27.—Officials of the United States Steel corporation are reported to have completed all plans preparatory to making the announcement of a sweeping wage increase, to go into effect April 1. The total increase for the year will, it is said, approximate $9,000,000. The advance will affect 30,000 workmen in this district.

Car Struck Automobile

Los Angeles, Cal., March 27.—In an automobile accident at Hollywood, a suburb, Mrs. Sherman Pease was instantly killed and her husband seriously injured. Two other occupants of the car sustained slight injuries. The automobile was struck by an electric car at a crossing while running at full speed.

Thugs Maltreated Farmer

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 27.—Frank Griffin of Greenhaven, a farmer, was held up and robbed of $380 on the outskirts of this city last night. The thugs hammered him unmercifully and broke his jaw. The men escaped, but are known to the police.

Cruiser Unexpectedly Returns

Norfolk, March 27.—Cruiser Galveston, which sailed on Thursday last for Culebra, has returned to Hampton Roads. Owing to inability to reach the Galveston the cause for her return to the roads is not known.

FORTY UNKNOWN DEAD

Factory Horror as a Theme For Brockton Ministers

Brockton, Mass., March 27.—Perhaps 20,000 people yesterday visited the scene of ast week's mill disaster. Electric cars brought crowds from all directions, and as the day was particularly fine the throng about the ruins gathered early and did not seem to diminish until after sunset.

Further public services for the dead were held during the day. The Odd Fellows conducted a largely attended memorial meeting in Canton hall, at which members of all lodges in the vicinity were present. Addresses were made by Rev. W. H. Morrison of the First Universalist church and by Rev. G. B. Titus of the First Baptist church.

At the regular services in churches the pastors referred to the recent calamity and appealed for additions to the relief fund.

The identification yesterday by Arthur Clark of a comb believed to have been worn by his wife is thought to have established that Mrs. Clark's body is among the unidentified dead at the Melrose cemetery. This identification brings the number of known dead to 18, and reduces the list of the unknown to 40.

Now that the bodies of the victims of the explosion have been laid away, and the relief measures under way, the state and city officials are devoting their energies to discover the cause of the disaster and an inquest will be held next Wednesday in police court.

Boy Came Back Alone

Chicago, March 27.—Frank Rogers, who disappeared from his home in Evanston four years ago with his aunt, Miss Florence Ely, has returned. Young Rogers states that since leaving Chicago he has been working in Buffalo and New York city. The police and others for a long time worked on the case as a kidnapping mystery. The boy now denies that he has been with his aunt. Since young Rogers and his aunt disappeared from his home no trace of either the boy or the woman had been found until he suddenly appeared yesterday.

Murder Followed Wedding

Jasper, Ga., March 27.—A young man named Glazier killed his bride and a sheriff's posse is in pursuit to avenge the deed. Glazier is 20 years old, his wife 16. They had separated and she had gone to live with her mother. Glazier came to their home Saturday evening, asking the girl to return to him. She finally consented and they had gone but a short distance when shots were heard and the young woman was found dead in the road. Both families are well connected.

Danger Signal of No Avail

Wilmington, Del., March 27.—Two men were killed and another was injured in a freight wreck at Stanton. A freight train stopped at a water tower and was run into by a coal train. An investigation of the cause of the wreck, it is said, shows that the danger signal had been set, but that the engineer of the coal train was not able to stop his train in time to avoid a collision.

Dog's Home His Castle

Edwardsville, Ills., March 27.—James Tobin had sued John Winkelmeyer for $5000 damages because Winkelmeyer's dog had bitten Tobin. The dog disfigured Tobin's face. It was shown that Tobin was endeavoring to crawl into the dog's kennel to take a nap. The defense contended that the dog had a perfect right to defend its own premises against an intruder. The jury so decided.

Consul's Commission Held Up

Washington, March 27.—On complaint of his divorced wife, the commission of Frederick McMaster of New York, recently appointed consul to Zanzibar, has been held up by direction of President Roosevelt until an investigation can be made.

Mrs Chadwick's Life Story

Cleveland, March 27.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick announces that her autobiography is in preparation and will soon be given to the public. Mrs. Chadwick says that she has received a handsome offer from a well known publisher.

"Getting Back" at Americans

St. Johns, March 27.—The Bond ministry, it is said, will probably levy an export duty on herring taken by American vessels, equal to the American import duty on herring conveyed by Newfoundland ships.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Dudley Porter, a retired banker of Haverhill, Mass., died suddenly in a ferry house at New York. He was on his way back from Virginia with his son.

Rome is full of Americans. Besides the ordinary number of tourists, 600 "personally conducted" excursionists have arrived there.

While walking on the tracks in the East Deering (Me.) railroad yard John H. McCrink, a brakeman, was struck by an engine and instantly killed.

The Standard Oil company has cut the price of crude oil for the Kansas field, affecting all grades of oil 2 cents.

Henry S. Thompson has been appointed graduate manager of athletics at Harvard, to succeed Roger Earnest.

Joseph Miller, a brakeman, while coupling cars was run over and killed at Canaan, Conn.

The body of Mrs. John Devine, aged 60, was found in the Thames river at Norwich, Conn. Her death will be investigated.

Carson and Newman college, a Baptist institution at Jefferson City, Tenn., has been offered $10,000 from Andrew Carnegie for a library provided it raises a similar sum.

A RACE FOR SHORE

Many Lives Imperilled by Collision of Steamers

ONE FOUNDERS AT DOCK

Captains of the Vessels Appear to Be Striving to Place Blame Each Upon the Other--Libel For $150,000 Damages

Halifax, March 27.—The two ocean steamers, the Parisian and the Albano, whose 1800 passengers were saved from death at sea after the collision between the two vessels off the harbor's mouth Saturday evening by a thrilling 15-mile race for shallow water, show plainly how serious was the accident, the Parisian resting on bottom at her dock and the Albano's forepeak being full of water.

The Parisian, which came up the harbor at 6 o'clock Saturday night with a gaping hole in her starboard side from the Albano's sharp bow, filled gradually during the night, and at dawn her engine room had been flooded. her fires extinguished, her lower deck was awash and her keel rested on the dock's mud.

Every effort was made during the night to keep the Parisian afloat. Many divers were employed and the pumps were kept constantly at work, but they all proved unavailing. A large part of the Parisian's cargo has been damaged by water, but the bulk of the mail, consisting of 400 sacks, has been saved in dry condition.

The statements of the two commanders of the vessels as to the probable cause of the collision are conflicting, and the courts will undoubtedly be invoked to place the blame. In fact proceedings have already been begun in the admiralty court against the owners of the Albano on behalf of the Parisian.

The case was entered in the court within a few hours after the Parisian docked. and yesterday the Albano, as a result of these proceedings, was libelled for $150,000 damages in behalf of the Allan line, and a deputy sheriff placed in charge of the Hamburg-American company's boat. It was announced later that a counter suit would be commenced by the German company.

Captain Kudenheld of the Albano, in speaking of the accident, said: "Just before the collision the Parisian, which had reached the harbor mouth ahead of us, was sighted hove to and taking on a pilot. We came up to get a pilot also. It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the weather was perfectly clear. As my ship approached the Parisian we started across in front of her, but before we could range ahead the Parisian started up and the collision followed.

"The Parisian, it seems to me, committed a clear breach of international regulations in attempting to pass in front of the Albano, instead of going astern. I saw the course which the Parisian was taking and realized at once the danger of a collision. I rang full speed astern and this greatly reduced the speed of the Albano, but it was not enough to entirely check the vessel's progress. As we came up onto the Parisian her helm was thrown to port instead of starboard, and this sent her starboard quarter still further in the direction of the Albano, and added greatly to the force of the collision."

Captain Johnson of the Parisian declares that the captain of the Albano signalled that he would pass astern of the Parisian, but that the signal was apparently misunderstood by the Albano's bridge, as the German steamer came directly on and would have struck the Parisian abreast of the engine room had not the speed of the latter been increased in an endeavor to escape.

Although the Albano's peak is full of water, from her twisted stem and bent bow plate, some of which are torn from the frames, it is likely that she will proceed to Philadelphia after giving bonds in the libel suit and being subjected to a survey by the port warden.

A Santo Domingo Proposition

Washington, March 27.—State department officials definitely announce that as yet no final determination has been reached regarding the proposition of the representatives of the powers at Santo Domingo that the United States appoint one of its citizens to act as interior commissioner for the collection of customs, pending the disposition of the treaty by the United States senate.

Girl Foiled Jail Breakers

Scottsboro, Ala., March 27.—A daring attempt at a jail delivery here was frustrated by Miss Lulu Austin, the young daughter of Sheriff Austin. After three of the steel bars leading into the main corridor had been cut, Miss Austin learned the condition of affairs and herself forced the prisoners to turn back over to her the six saws which had been used in the operation.

Strangled by Unknown Person

Wheeling, March 27.—The coroner's inquest into the cause of the death of Hilda Schubart, the young woman who was found dead near her home in this city, resulted in the jury finding a verdict that Miss Schubart came to her death by strangulation by a person unknown to the authorities.

Close Watch on Steamships

New York, March 27.—Armed with warrants issued at Philadelphia, detectives will watch the piers of the outgoing ocean steamships to intercept Frank C. Marrin and Sophia Beck. Marrin is wanted to give an explanation regarding the disappearance of nearly $1,000,000, the proceeds of the business of the Storey Cotton company, which failed recently in Philadelphia. Miss Beck, it is said, was Marrin's secretary.

Women Jumped From Windows

New York, March 27.—Three women leaped from third-story windows during a fire last night in a tenement in Williamsburg. Mrs. Eliza Cottus suffered a fracture of the skull, a broken leg and internal injuries. Miss Kate Cottus had one of her legs broken and Mrs. Julia Jensen received a fracture of the jaw, a dislocated shoulder and a broken kneecap. All were removed to a hospital unconscious. The damage by the fire was slight.

Chinese Currency Debased

Shanghai, March 27.—The provincial mines have been issuing unlimited quantities of debased copper currency, whereby officials have profited to the extent of 18,000,000 taels annually. As a result of this debasement of the currency a financial collapse is threatened.

May Land on Russian Territory

St. Petersburg, March 27.—According to government mail, the Japanese are expected to land at Korsakovsk within a fortnight, the port being free from ice early in April. The Russians are not in a position to resist, the whole force on the island being less than 2000 soldiers and prison guards. There are 6000 convicts in the penal camps. The prospect that the convicts may be landed on the mainland in the vicinity of Vladivostok by the Japanese is being considered.

Japanese Loan Over-Subscribed

Tokio, March 27.—General satisfaction is expressed at the sucess in placing the foreign loan. The domestic loan was over-subscribed several times, and it is probable a portion of it will be allotted to foreign subscribers. The foreign applications amount to several million dollars. The success of the foreign and domestic loans strengthens the feeling of confidence that Japan will be able to finance the war without difficulty or embarrassment.

Would Not Permit Indemnity

Moscow, March 27.—With the exception of the Moscow Gazette, practically all the newspapers of this city are for peace on condition that there be neither cession of territory nor payment of indemnity. At a banquet of merchants it was declared that "the happiest end of the war would be immediate peace, but if the government consents to indemnity we will throw the bomb. Enough Russian gold has been spent in Manchuria."

Thought Japs Could Be Whipped

St. Petersburg, March 27.—The newspaper Dawn has unearthed a remarkable report made by General Kuropatkin to the czar in the fall of 1903, in which Kuropatkin expressed the opinion that the Yalu concession was sure to induce war in the far east and took an optimistic view of Russia's ability to cope with Japan on land and sea.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. J. E. Poland will hold another enjoyable whist party at the Norfolk Downs hall on Friday evening.

Mrs. R. L. Goldsmith and son of Washington street have been the guests of relatives at Middleboro the past week.

Miss Mattie Holton, teacher at Rollinsford, N. H., is enjoying a two weeks' vacation with her sisters and brother at their home on Edwards street.

Winifred F. Pote and family are to move this week from Washington street, Quincy Point, to the Burrell house on Charles street corner of Edison street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hart, will give a whist parly at their home, on Independence avenue, tomorrow night, for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid society.

Alexander C. Marnock and family have moved from President avenue to Dorchester, and will be greatly missed by their many friends and acquaintances.

The Brownie whist club will be entertained by Mrs. Annie T. Grigon, at the home of Mrs. M. A. H. Crane, Washington street, on Wednesday afternoon.

The old Redding house on Washington street, Quincy Point, now owned by the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., is to be remodeled and occupied by the Shipbuilders' club.

Unknown parties entered the grain store of A. J. Richards & Son on Sunday and stole twenty-five cents in money and some pens. Entrance was gained through the engine room.

Mrs. B. C. Jilbert, who has been confined to her home on Baxter street, the past six weeks, by illness, is slowly improving, and her many friends are pleased to see her out again.

The temperature at noon today was 60 degrees. This is the highest point that the temperature has been at that hour thus far this year. The temperature at noon Sunday was 57 degrees.

The funeral of Charles Pratt, who was killed in an elevator accident in Boston, was held this morning from St. John's church. Services were conducted by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

M. D. Phelan and family are to move this week from Washington street, corner of Edwards street, to Dorchester, and will be greatly missed by their many friends, neighbors and associates.

Thousands of people visited Brockton on Sunday to view the ruins of the R. B. Grover & Co. factory, that was burned a week ago, and in which so many lives were lost. Extra cars were run on the line between Quincy and that city and hundreds of people carried.

The meeting of the Quincy Women's club at First church chapel at half past two Wednesday afternoon, will be open to members and friends interested. Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett will be present and speak on district nursing, with a view to establishing a nurse in Quincy.

SPECIAL TRAIN.

For Mourners at the Funeral of Engineer Noyes.

The funeral of George W. Noyes, of Braintree, one of the oldest engineers on the New York, and New Haven was held Sunday from the First Congregational church. The services were very largely attended, many railroad men being present.

These included Supt. George T. Taylor and other officials of the Plymouth division, and officers of the Locomotive Engineers', Railway Conductors' and Trainmen's Associations and Adelphi lodge of Masons.

The services were conducted by Rev. E. C. Stover of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. George E. Whitehouse, Grand Chaplain Dority and Rev. F. W. Burrows, of the First Congregational church. There were many beautiful flowers. The Weber quartette furnished music.

After the services a special train of Pullman cars took the remains, accompanied by the several organizations to Cedar Grove cemetery in Dorchester, where services were conducted by Rev. E. C. Stover.

The bearers were E. W. Hurley, F. S. Evans, George Witherell, C. A. Fenderson, Cyrus Fletcher, A. F. McFarland, E. F. Estes and George F. Hall.

A young Italian boy fell in front of the Weeks-Hill pharmacy this morning and struck his face on the curbstone, cutting quite a gash in his lip. He was taken to physician's and his wound dressed. His name could not be learned.

The Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts has assigned Saturday, June 24, to the Squantum Yacht club, and Saturday, July 8, to the Quincy Yacht club.

—At the town meeting in Wellesley the citizens will be asked to appoint a committee to make arrangements for erecting a soldiers' monument, and to appropriate sufficient necessary money. The Grand Army veterans are enthusiastic over the project.

—The prospects of American shipbulders having a large share in the rebuilding and enlargement of the Russian navy are growing brighter. An extensive naval programme, which in a few years will restore Russia to an equality with the first-class sea powers, has been practically completed, but has not yet received the final assent of Emperor Nicholas.

—Good lawyers believe that there should be more resort in this state to the Torren system of land transfer. The law has been in operation for about six years and a great many titles have been registered, but by comparison the business done under the Torrens law is comparatively insignificant. Much of the opposition to the registering of titles comes from conveyancers who have for years been collecting abstracts, and they would lose a good thing if the Torrens law was generally taken advantage of. Chicago is a city where this law flourishes with great vigor. For abstracts of title and fees for their examination Chicagoans have paid annually $3,500,000. Now that their titles are under the Torrens system they culculate that the annual saving is about $3,000,000. The average cost of the initial registratration in Illinois is $24, and once registered no further search is needed. An ordinary sale or mortgage costs but $3, and is usually completed upon the day on which it is negotiated.—Banker and Tradesman.

WHY NOT QUINCY?

Should Make the Most of New Express Trains.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

A short time ago Quincy had no express trains; everybody kicked; they said that we needed them, and that they would be largely patronized.

Now we have them let us use them. Quincy people should use nothing else; otherwise, the road will say that the dissatisfaction was only on the surface—a good deal of smoke, and not much fire.

Should the road take them off, we should all look at one another, and say "How did it happen?" That is the trouble with Quincy; compare it with Brockton. In Brockton, everybody says "whoop la! all up for Brockton! Greatest town on earth!"

In Quincy, not one out of three would betany money that Quincy was on the earth, and quietly give the city a "dig" at every opportunity.

Why not "whoop la!" for Quincy? Infinitely better situated than Brockton—fine rolling country, fine drives, seashore and forest, State park, yachting, bathing and in natural advantages; as pretty a piece of country as lies out of doors.

Brockton got its grade crossings illuminated by concreted action. Why not Quincy? Other towns get many things. Why not Quincy?

Herman F. McIntire.

Revival Meetings.

The meeting at the United Presbyterian church last week were of such an impressive character that it was voted by the congregation to continue them this week. Rev. Heslip of Brockton preached very strong and helpful sermons last week and his services were very much appreciated. It is hoped that he may be able to return a few nights this week. The largest number of communicants took sacrament Sunday in the history of the church. A very great desire prevails in the church for a sweeping revival for Quincy and New England and many prayers are going up to God for this much needed blessing upon the church's. Services tonight at 7.30.

A STOLEN INVENTION.

How the Designer of the Hansom Cab Lost a Fortune.

Charles Hansom, the famous English architect, was a talented man in many respects other than in the exercise of his profession. He was dining on a certain day with a few friends when one of them taunted him with being unable to invent a vehicle which would supersede the old fashioned hacks and cabs in universal use in London. Mr. Hansom got a sheet of paper, and without any delay he sketched out his idea of a safe and convenient mode of passing through the crowded streets of the great metropolis. His friends watched him while he was at work and unanimously applauded the sketch which he had drawn. They dubbed it by the name of its inventor, and it was then and there called a "Hansom car." One of those present advised him to take out a patent for it, which he said he would do on the morrow. However, there was one dishonest man in the company, by whom he was forestalled, for on reaching his own house that evening and being, like Mr. Hansom, a clever draftsman, as all great architects are, he sketched out a car like the drawing he had seen, and early the following morning he took it to the office and got out a patent for it in his own name, thus robbing the talented inventor of all the remuneration which he deserved to reap from it. It brought an immense but ill gotten fortune to the one who had perpetrated the fraud, whereas Mr. Charles Hansom was never one penny the richer.—Donahoe's.

JACK TAR'S GIN.

The Way Liquor Was Smuggled Aboard One of Our Warships.

While on the China station in 1886 the master at arms' mess on the United States steamer Omaha was in a drunken and demoralized condition for several weeks. Try as he might the captain could not discover where the liquor was coming from. Finally all shore liberty was stopped, but the drunkenness did not cease. On the morning of sailing while the executive officer was near the port gangway watching the taking in of stores he asked what was in a large demijohn that came over the side with boxes and packages. He was told that it was vinegar. He pulled the cork and sniffed it. It was vinegar. Then his attention was attracted by the tag marked "master at arms' mess," and, remarking that the mess must be using vinegar for bathing, as he had already seen the same demijohn brought aboard twice within that week, he ordered the officer of the deck to inspect it carefully and taste it. He did; it was vinegar. That officer, however, noticed that the jug had an unusually long neck. He poured out a small quantity of vinegar and discovered an extra cork in the bottom of the neck. Below that were three gallons of gin. The vinegar between the corks had served to deceive the inspecting officer at the gangway for a month.—Chicago News.

Men and Heads.

"What kind of head do you like on a man?" was asked of the president of a corporation employing several thousand hands. He replied: "It depends altogether on what I want the head to do. Each department of our business requires a different shape of head. We don't look for veneration, benevolence, generosity, sublimity, conscientiousness, acquisitiveness or ideality. Take them all in all, I think I'd rather have around me men of combativeness, aggressiveness, hope, spirit, constructiveness. I try to pick out such. I should like every man in my employ to have at least two-thirds of his head in front of his ears. Men with big back heads are overweighted with intellect; too slow to keep up with the age."—New York Press.

Belgium as a Lace Center.

Belgium has long been an important center of the lace industry.

The art of making lace spread through Flanders from France and Italy in the middle centuries owing to the splendid qualities of Belgian flax, and it was there that the wonderful duchesse lace was originated. Much of the so called Spanish lace—black, with its large roses and trailing design—was also made in Flanders, and for the last hundred years the cities of Bruges, Ghent and Ypres have put on the market the three best grades of the modern valenciennes lace, each city having a distinct variation in design due to the differences in workmanship gradually introduced in the course of years in the three localities.

He Won Easily.

Mr. Subbubs—You know you're only talking nonsense. What do you want a couple of new gowns for? Mrs. Subbubs—Why, Mrs. Playne has got a dozen gowns, all of them much handsomer than the two or three that I've got. Mr. Subbubs—Yes, I know. But a homely woman like that needs rich attire in order to attract attention from her face. You don't.—Liverpool Mercury.

Indignation.

"Say, boss," began the beggar, "I'm outer work an'"—

"See here," interrupted Goodart, "I gave you 50 cents last week."

"Well, ver've earned more since, ain't yer?"—Exchange.

Not His Privilege.

Employer (to presumptuous clerk)—Are you the boss here, I'd like to know? Clerk—No, sir, but— Employer—Well, don't talk like a fool then.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISS BULL was alone in the sitting room of the late Mrs. Jersey. Margery had gone out shopping, and the old maid was left to her own resources.

Her thoughts were sad. Here she was, an old spinster dragging out a miserable old age in a London lodging house, while her sister lived and fared sumptuously in accordance with her position. "It can't last much longer," said Miss Bull, with a sigh. "I am getting old, and the end is coming. The sooner the better."

As she gave vent to this dreary sentence there was a ring at the door. Miss Bull paid little attention to it, as she never had any visitors. But this day proved to be an exception, for George was admitted into the room. He advanced cordially toward Miss Bull.

"I have come to see you again, you see," said Brendon.

"I am very glad to see you, Mr. Brendon," she said. "You have come to make further inquiries likely to forward your fight for your birthright?"

George laughed. "There's no need for that, thank God," said he; "my grandfather has agreed to acknowledge me."

"Then there was a marriage?"

"I cannot be certain of that yet. How do you know about that?"

Miss Bull answered quietly: "You told me last time you were here that you were Lord Derrington's grandson, and I heard that there was some doubt about the legitimacy."

"I know it was common talk at one time," replied Brendon, satisfied with this explanation. "Did Mrs. Jersey ever speak about it?"

"No. She never did. What did she know about it?"

"I think you can best answer that question, Miss Bull."

"I don't know to what you allude, Mr. Brendon."

"Perhaps if I allude to your life in San Remo you"—

Miss Bull started to her feet, and the cup she held fell on the carpet. "San Remo?" she muttered.

"Yes, Miss Howard," said Brendon, using her real name purposely.

The little old maid put one thin hand to her head. "Miss Howard!"

"The daughter of the late General Howard!" said George.

"My father was a general?"

"He was. General Howard. You are Miss Jenny Howard."

Miss Bull started and then sat down. Her face expressed pain. "He used to call me Jenny. Jenny Howard. Yes, there was a happy girl of that name, but she—she died."

"Not at all," said Brendon briskly, to arouse her from this dreamy state. "She lived and changed her name to Bull."

The woman pushed back her white hair and made an effort to be calm. But her lip quivered. "Why have you come here to awaken these painful memories?" she asked.

"Because I wish to know how my father came by his death."

"I do not know—indeed I do not know," moaned Miss Bull, putting out her hand as though to ward off the thought.

"You may not know for certain, but you have some idea. Your sister, Mrs. Ward"—

Miss Bull's face flushed crimson, and she drew a deep breath. "Oh, it's Violet's work, is it?" she said, and her eyes grew hard. "And pray, Mr. Brendon, has she sent you to cross question me?"

"No. I come on my own behalf. You knew my father?"

"Percy Vane. Yes, I knew him. He loved me—ah, indeed he did! That night he asked me to be his wife, and had he not been murdered"—

"Did he ask you when he was taking you home?" asked George, wondering how Miss Bull would have behaved as his stepmother.

"Taking me home? He never did that on the night of the ball."

"Your sister, Mrs. Ward"—

"I have no sister. I disown Violet. She is a wicked woman! She is selfish, vain, cruel and deceitful. How do you know that I am her sister? And how did you come to learn my name?"

"San Remo?"

"Lord Derrington told me, and it was told to him by Mr. Ireland."

"Your guardian." Miss Bull tapped her hand on the woodwork of her chair. "He recognized me when I called to see him on that day about the lease. But he promised to hold his tongue."

"He would have done so had he not been startled by meeting Mrs. Ward and recognizing in her the woman who had left the ball with my father."

"And Violet admitted this?"

"No. She said that you had left the ball with my father. It was you who wore the blue domino and the holly sprig."

"Liar! Liar!" muttered Miss Bull. "But she is always the same. My sister has enjoyed the good things of this life. She has had money, position, praise, and all that a woman desires. As for myself"—

"Then it really was Mrs. Ward who left the ball."

"It was. She lays the blame on my shoulders"— Miss Bull paused, and her mouth worked nervously. "Does she accuse me of the crime?"

"No. She says that you left Mr. Vane at the gate of the hotel."

"Oh," muttered Miss Bull, "Percy came as far as that with her, did he? And she said he left her at the door of the room where the ball was being held. Liar! Liar! Violet has told her story, now I will tell you mine. I want to know, however, exactly what she said, in the exact words if you can remember them."

"I did not hear her speak," confessed George. "It was my grandfather and Mr. Ireland to whom she told the story."

"Story! Fable! Lie! Romance!" said Miss Bull vehemently. "Well, tell me what you can remember!"

This George did as concisely as possible, for he feared lest Margery should interrupt the interview. Miss Bull listened with a downcast face and pursed up lips. Not a word did she say, but when George ended she looked up, with a bitter smile.

"She has simply put herself in my place," she said. "Wait!"

For a moment or so she tried to compose herself. Then she raised her head and looked her visitor squarely in the eyes. "I am going to tell the truth," said Miss Bull bravely. "Therefore I have no need to shun your gaze. Mr. Brendon, I loved your father."

"So Mrs. Ward said."

"And Violet loved him also."

"He must have been a singularly attractive man," remarked Brendon, wondering at this revelation. "My mother eloped with him, her maid was in love with him, and now you and Mrs. Ward"—

"Oh, Violet really did not love him. It was simply a desire to take him from me that made her behave as she did. Violet never loved any one in her life save the person she sees in the mirror every day."

"I don't quite understand, but if you will relate the story"—

"I shall do so at once. You may as well know all, and know also what a bad woman I have for a sister. If she was dying," cried Miss Bull vehemently, "I wouldn't raise a finger to save her life."

Brendon said nothing, and in a few moments Miss Bull composed herself sufficiently to tell what she knew. "My father was General Howard," she said quietly, "and Violet was my only sister. We never got on well together. Violet was jealous of admiration, and as I was said to be prettier than she was she hated me intensely."

"You hinted that she took my father away," said Brendon.

"She did—at least she tried to. But if he had not been murdered I should have been Mrs. Vane in spite of Violet's arts."

"Well, tell me how you came to San Remo and met my father."

"Oh, I knew him before that. We were six months at Como and saw your father frequently then. He and the general used to talk politics. Mr. Vane was always bringing us books and magazines, and we used to climb Mount Bisbino. What a delightful summer that was! I remember you then," she added, looking at George with interest. "You were scarcely two years old—a dear, good, fair little fellow. I met you and the nurse sometimes and often carried you."

CLERK ELECTED.

Local Newspaper Man the Choice.

Debate on the Annual Appropriations.

Action Taken by City Council Relative to Boulevard.

The annual appropriation order for 1905 was reported to the City Council on Monday evening by the Finance Committee and withstood all attempts at amendment by the School Committee and other departments.

Councilmen Barry, Loud and Savage were the absentees.

George T. Magee was elected clerk pro tem.

JURORS.

The Mayor assisted by the City Clerk and Councilman Sidelinger drew the following jurors: Benjamin King, Albert D. Kingsley, Frank W. Crane, Jeremiah W. Donovan and Waldo A. Coolidge.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from Mrs. Christopher A. Spear thanking the Council and officials for floral tributes. Placed on file.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

Councilman Hynes presented a petition for the acceptance of Broadway between Washington street and Watson road. To Committee on Streets.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported ought to pass on the order for $6,000 for house connections with the sewer. To Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee reported on the following orders:

Transfers to the credit of Fire Department of 1904. Rules suspended and order passed.

Appropriating $25,000 for water extensions. Ordered to a second reading.

Amending the Ordinance concerning police. To Ordinance Committee.

Transfers to the credit of advertising, etc., City Clerk, 1904. Rules suspended and order passed.

The street watering schedule for 1905.

Upon motion of Councilman Stone Howard avenue was, by request of abutters, stricken out.

Upon motion of Councilman Stewart Miller Stile road was added to the schedule.

APPROPRIATIONS.

The Finance Committee reported the annual appropriation order which appears in full in another column.

Chairman Hallowell of the School Board spoke at length upon the school budget. The amount reported was not considered sufficient to maintain the schools for the current year at their standard of excellence. The School Committee considered this very carefully and can account for every dollar asked for.

Instead of $86,379 for salaries appropriated last year, we ask for $88,632, which is necessary to carry out our contract with the teachers with the regular rate of increase. It has never been intimated that we spend too much for salaries.

Our janitors are competent and intelligent men whom we can trust. They receive less per hour than men who work on the streets.

For books and supplies we had last year $8,971. We ask for $1,500 more. There was a deficit last year, not in money but in stock. It is a very small sum for 5,500 pupils.

It is improbable that fuel will be any cheaper this year and we ask for $300 more than last year.

Last year's transportation was $892. This year we ask for $1000.

Rentals last year were $800. We are obliged to pay this year $810.

If not given what is asked we must cut, but where can we do it? The only thing is fuel and books and supplies. Fuel will not be less than last year and it must therefore be on books and supplies. We think that we shall not have money enough.

Councilman Piper asked in relation to amount expended for text books, etc.

Dr. Hallowell replied the per capita for books and supplies was $1.62. In reply to further questions, he said that sundries included oil and things of that kind.

Councilman Piper.—In 1903 the State report shows $6,542 for text books and $3,469 for sundries. How does that compare with other cities?

Dr. Hallowell—I think Chelsea and Gloucester were a cent or two under.

Councilman Piper—In 1903 there were nine below and 16 above Quincy. In 1902 there were 20 below and 5 above. Is it not possible for Quincy to buy as low as any other city?

Dr. Hallowell—I think we do. It is possible that some cities need more one year than another. If we run short one year we have to purchase more the next year.

Councilman Piper—I find that Quincy has been above the average in text book books and supplies. That is the one department in which we can economize. We should purchase as low as any city, but do not.

In reply to Councilman Crane, Dr. Hallowell said pupils were transported from Squantum, Houghs Neck and Germantown. It was cheaper to bring the pupils from Germantown all the way in a barge than to bring them to Palmer street and then transfer to the cars.

In reply to Councilman Stone, Dr. Hallowell said the number of pupils increases every year. We ought to have more money to educate 200 more pupils. It was not possible to educate 5,500 pupils for the same amount it took to educate 5,000.

Councilman Stone — Other departments have had a special session with the Finance Committee and the School Committee should have the same show. He would like to see the department get what it required.

Councilman Chamberlin—The point taken by the gentleman from Ward 3 is important. I would like to ask if his point is that we are paying more for text books than other cities?

Councilman Piper — I cannot say where it comes. I understand supplies are criticised by teachers who come from out of town. They do cost us more in the total.

At this point Collector of Taxes Cunningham made an appeal for an increase in the amount given his department for clerical services.

Councilman Stone moved to amend the item in the school budget for salaries, etc., making the amount $114,500.

Councilman Bass hoped the amendment would not prevail. We can only raise $12 per $1000, and such receipts as are sent by the Mayor. This makes a total of $317,613.42. The budget calls for $314,114.00. This leaves a balance of $3,499.42. We have never been able to collect taxes within $3,000 or $4,000. If that is the case we must allow a leeway so as not to exceed the limit.

If we add to the budget it will leave too close a margin. They had $111,000.00 last year and lived within the appropriation. This year we increased it $3,000.

Mayor Thompson—The chairman of Finance Committee is a little off in figures. He has forgotten the matter of overlays, which last year were $10,000 or $12,000. In fact 5 per cent. may be added. He was quite sure we have a considerable amount ahead in taxes and income over expenditures. Last year New Bedford only made provisions for $4,000 in overlays. We made provision for $10,000 or $12,000. We are not exceptionable. Quincy may be poor but we are on a par with sister cities.

Councilman Chamberlin—The statutes provide that the schools are in sole control of the School Committee, Massachusetts is the leading state in education and Quincy was the leading city in the United States in regard to its schools. The School Committee devote much of their time to these questions. It is evident they know what they are talking about. My vote is influenced by what the chairman says. He did not believe the people of Quincy wanted the schools run in any way but a first class manner. If we cannot do it we had better close them up. When the School Committee say they require a certain number of text books I doubt if a member of the City Council is competent to dispute them.

I think it safe for us to follow the judgment of the School Committee. He hoped amendment would prevail.

Councilman Bass differed as to competency of Council. It will be a great mistake if we increase the amount. The overlays are not intended to be raised for current expenses. We should proceed within our rights.

The amendment was put and defeated, only a few voting.

The order was then ordered to a second reading.

BOULEVARD.

Councilman Chase offered an order for a committee of three including the President to be appointed by the President to confer with the Mayor and the Metropolitan Park Commission in the interest of the city in the construction of boulevard in and along the Quincy shore to the Blue Hills. Order adopted.

President Nichols appointed Councilmen Chase and Hughes.

CLERK ELECTED.

Councilman Bass moved and it was voted to proceed to the election of a Clerk of the Council.

Upon roll call George T. Magee was elected Clerk of the Council by vote of 12 to 8 as follows:

For GEORGE T. MAGEE—Councilmen Adams, Chamberlin, Chase, Flaherty, Hughes, Hynes, Piper, Polk, Sidelinger, Spargo, Stone and Nichols—12.

For EDGAR G. CLEAVES—Councilmen Bass, Burgess, Crane, Gassett, Gearwar, McLane, Sawyer and Stewart—8.

ABSENT,—Councilmen Barry, Loud and Savage—3.

Upon roll call George T. Magee was unanimously elected Clerk of Committees. He was then sworn in by Harrison A. Keith, City Clerk.

CALENDAR.

The orders granting the Telephone Company and Electric Light Co. locations and permission to attach wires took their second reading and were referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Gov. Douglas takes to financiering the state of Massachusetts as naturally as if he had had a little actual experience in business himself.—Worcester Gazette.

☞ Accuracy must not be pressed too far. Someone has said that "accuracy" is the bane of conversation, and in any case I would earnestly warn the young, if anyone in their company refers to an incident as having happened on Aug. 17, 1853, by no means to stop him because they happen to know it was on the 18th.—Cornhill Magazine.

☞ Often times the only way you can interpret the name signed to a letter is by reference to the printed letterhead. What business has anybody to write his name so that nobody can read it? With all this howl about the vertical writing, and its too great legibility and lack of individality, it can be read—and thousands of business signatures cannot be.—Lowell Citizen.

☞ The saving habit is reflex in its action. it is an index of character. It is easy to spend money. It requires effort to save it. The flabby-minded man lets go his money recklessly. The strong man resists the strong temptation to spend more than he can afford and, in resisting this temptation, grows stronger. Nor need one grow stingy and hard-hearted. There are many inducements for a young man, especially, to let go of his money. He is urged in a hundred ways to squander his hard-earned dollars foolishly. He who resists is laying the foundation for a strong business character.—Beverly Times.

☞ In some quarters there is a manifest disposition to blame Governor Douglas for his message calling attention to the condition of the commonwealth's finances. It is on the same principle that some persons blame the newspapers when they walk into a scrape and the papers tell about it. But the governor is no more responsible for the difficult financial condition than the papers are because some people persist in making fools of themselves. In point of fact, the governor has done just right in telling the legislature and the people exactly what the condition of affairs is. That is the first step toward making a bad condition good. If nobody else will do it, then the governor ought; and we are not sure that it is not his business to tell, any way. It will be pretty difficult, we think, to induce the people of this state to condemn Mr. Douglas for his showing for the facts. —New Bedford Standard.

GIVEN TEN YEARS

Mrs Chadwick Receives Sentence In Cleveland Court

RESIGNED TO HER FATE

Did Not Appear to Be Particularly Affected--Was Convicted Upon Seven Charges Relating to Oberlin Bank Failure

Cleveland, March 28.—Unless the higher court interferes, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick will spend the greater part of the net 10 years in the Ohio state penitentiary for conspiracy in wrecking the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin.

A sentence of 10 years was imposed upon her by Judge Tayler, in the United States district court, at 5 o'clock last evening. The sentence came at the close of a busy day for the court in hearing arguments on a motion for a new trial, which lasted all day. The motion was overruled.

Mrs. Chadwick was convicted upon seven counts and sentenced upon six counts. For four of these counts a sentence of two years each was imposed. Upon two counts a sentence of one year each was imposed, making a total sentence of 10 years.

Mrs. Chadwick was not particularly affected by the action of the court. Seemingly she had resigned herself to any action. When told that the motion for a new trial had been refused, she merely nodded her head as if she already knew, though she is so hard of hearing she could not have known what words the court uttered.

When ordered to stand up and receive the sentence, Mrs. Chadwick was assisted to her feet by Deputy Marshal Clobitz. The court asked her if she had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced. She looked around in bewilderment. She was not certain what was taking place and had not the slightest idea what the court said. She was then led forward, nearer the bench, and the court shouted the question. She then understood.

"I have something to say," she said, "but I would like to consult with my attorneys first."

"You may do so, but it must be immediately," the court enjoined her. "If you have anything to say you must say it now."

Mrs. Chadwick said there was nothing she cared to say herself. Her attorneys made no appeal to the court and the sentence was immediately imposed. Judge Tayler made no remarks, except to explain the terms of the sentence. He stated that the sentence of one count should begin at the expiration of the one preceding it.

J. P. Dawley, of counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, took exceptions to the sentences upon each count, except the first. The defense intends to make the claim that the court cannot impose a separate sentence for each count; that the law applies to the general charge instead of each incident of a general charge. The various counts of the indictment are considered by the defense to refer only to details of the general offense. This point, like other points in the trial, will also be contested in the higher courts. United States Attorney Sullivan will represent the government's case through every court to which the defense may appeal.

No action will be taken by Attorney Sullivan regarding the other six indictments against Mrs. Chadwick in the federal court until the present case is finally disposed of. If the present case and sentence is sustained by the last court the other cases will be dropped; otherwise they will be used against the woman.

The action of the court finally closes the Chadwick case so far as the Cleveland court is concerned, unless the unexpected happens and the higher court discharges the woman or orders a new trial.

After the sentence was imposed court adjourned, but it was over a half hour later before Mrs. Chadwick was taken back to the county jail. She had been talking with her attorneys.

Mrs. Chadwick was indicted by the United States grand jury at a special session on seven separate charges, each relating to her connection with the failure of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, of which the late C. T. Beckwith was president and A. B. Spear cashier. Both the president and cashier were jointly indicted with the woman, who borrowed thousands of dollars of the bank's money. She was convicted under the indictment in which she was charged with conspiracy with Beckwith and Spear to certify her checks when she had no money in the bank. This is a transaction prohibited by the government for the protection of depositors and stockholders of a national bank.

By good behavior she can reduce her time of imprisonment to eight years and four months.

Mrs. Chadwick's trial began March 6 and the jury returned a verdict of guilty March 11. J. P. Dawley, chief counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, says that he has nothing to say regarding the sentence.

Fears For Safety of Big Dam

New York, March 28.—The World says: Conditions brought about by the unprecedented floods throughout the vast watershed which feeds the new Groton reservoir are menacing the new $5,000,000 Croton dam. The engineers in charge of the work believed the danger to be so formidable last night that watchers were detailed to patrol the dam and give immediate warning in case of imminent peril. The village of Croton Landing, with a population of about 1100, is directly in the path of the flood should the dam break.

German Ruler Visits Portugal

FATE IN THE BALANCE

Judges Reserve Decision on Tucker's Appeal

Cambridge, Mass., March 28.—With the same wonderful nerve that characterized his demeanor when on trial, Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Mabel Page, occupied the prisoner's pen in the East Cambridge courtroom and listened to the arguments of his counsel upon their motion for the setting aside of the verdict of guilty and the ordering of a new trial.

His senior counsel argued eloquently that his young client be given a new trial, the stern-featured attorney general exerted his full powers in urging that the verdict should stand, and through it all the placidity of Tucker's countenance was undisturbed.

Judges Sherman and Sheldon sat on the bench. James H. Vahey, senior counsel for Tucker, read the motion asking that the verdict of the jury be set aside and a new trial be granted, giving six reasons.

For the last reason in the original motion, Mr. Vahey substituted the following: "The defendant moves that the verdict be set aside because one of the jurymen during the trial of the case took notes or memoranda of the testimony of some of the witnesses in violation of the law and the defendant's rights."

Attorney Vahey laid particular stress in his arguments upon the last reason.

At the conclusion of the arguments the court announced that in view of the importance of the case, it desired time to fully and carefully deliberate upon the motion and would therefore reserve its decision. Not before the last of the week at the earliest is the decision expected.

Ice May Carry Away Bridges

Montpelier, Vt., March 28.—The ice jam in the Winooski river above the city, which has been forming for several days, has extended back for a distance of a mile, and is seriously threatening four bridges as well as factories on the river front. A large gang of men endeavored to open a channel with dynamite. The Central Vermont railroad bridge is anchored with 10 loaded freight cars.

Explosion Woke Up City

Portland, Me., March 28.—The sleeping city was aroused shortly after 1 o'clock this morning by a loud explosion and it was generally supposed some sort of a castrophe had happened. It turned out that a tool house belonging to a contractor had caught fire and the dynamite stored there was what exploded. The building was not much more than a shanty and the loss is nominal.

Faithful Missionary Dead

Boston, March 28.—The American Board of Foreign Missions has received the news of the death at Poona, India, March 3, of Rev. THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

WITHDRAW SOUTH

Japanese May Next Try to Take Vladivostok

TALKING PEACE TO CZAR

His Advisers Are For Settlement, but Provisions For War Continue--Internal Situation Becomes More Ominous

St. Petersburg, March 28.—The impression prevalent in some military circles that the Japanese, having removed the possibility of the main army in Manchuria assuming the initiative, will now turn their attention to the next objective of the war, Vladivostok, is strengthened by a dispatch from Gunshu pass announcing the withdrawal of the Japanese from the immediate front of the Russian army for a distance of 35 miles south.

It is realized, of course, that this may be merely a blind to cover flanking operations, but it is not improbable that the Japanese, having cleared southern Manchuria of Russian troops and secured a position from whence expulsion would be a long and difficult process, may be satisfied to hold the Tie Pass line without further extension of communication.

While the voice of the czar's advisers is for peace if honorable terms are obtainable, the government is going forward with all provisions for the continuance of the war. Preparations are reported to be making for the mobilization of five corps. It had been understood that the guards would be retained at St. Petersburg, but some of the officers of this crack organization believe their services have been requisitioned and are making preparations to that end.

There has been a recrudescence of reports of a change in the head of the war office. It is stated in a usually well informed source that Lieutenant General Sakharoff will leave very shortly and be succeeded by General Ridiger, now chief of the chancellory of the war office.

It is also reported that General Polivanoff will be appointed chief of the general staff. Both Polivanoff and Ridiger are of the younger school of generals, but have high repute as theoreticians and administrators. General Ridiger is the author of a number of text books on tactics.

The government is advised that Chinese bandits are appearing in great number along the Siberian railroad and causing interference with the train service.

Pushing Revolutionary Propaganda

St. Petersburg, March 28.—The internal situation in Russia is becoming daily more ominous. The Polish situation is causing great anxiety. The Crimea is boiling with discontent, and the strong hand of military force has been involved to crush the incipient revolution at Yalta, near the czar's summer residence. The spirit of disorder has spread to Sebastopol. Moderate Liberals in St. Petersburg are becoming alarmed at the situation, realizing that an actual revolutionary propaganda is being pushed with vigor in many sections of the empire. The authorities of the government of Saratoff are closing the schools there on account of peasant disturbances.

Bomb Victim Badly Hurt

Warsaw, March 28.—Baron Von Nolken, who was injured by a bomb, is believed to be out of danger. He is suffering intensely. Further investigation shows the carefulness with which the plans of the conspirators were laid. A number of persons of the poorer class proceeding on different streets in the direction of the palace just before the bomb was thrown were warned by persons, evidently posted for the purpose, to go in some other direction.

Monroe Doctrine and Triple Alliance

London, March 28.—The Daily Telegraph, editorially discussing the question of the common interests of Great Britain, Japan and the United States in the far east, thinks that, though such a triple alliance is eminently desirable, the Monroe doctrine would prevent America from allying herself with Japan, but that as far as Great Britain and Japan are concerned there is nothing to prevent a permanent offensive and defensive alliance which, The Daily Telegraph contends, might even induce Japan to forego indemnity and which, by placing at Great Britain's disposal in India the service of Japan's fine troops, would forever remove apprehensions of Russian invasion of India.

Joy Killed Fighter

London, March 28.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of The Times reports that General Dokstouroff, who was to start tomorrow to join General Kaulbars' staff in Manchuria, died yesterday as the result of a stroke from running up stairs in the war office to thank the minister of war for his appointment. Dokstouroff, who was 70 years old and the hero of several campaigns, had begged to be sent to Manchuria because he wished to die a soldier's death.

Financiers Yield to Russia

London, March 28.—The Daily Telegraph says that it understands that the principal French banking house which opposed the Russian loan has now yielded and that the loan will be concluded.

JOHN S. LONG.

Dr. S. Weir. Mitchell, the Great Neurologist, Warns Americans Who Neglect Their Nerves.

"In busy centers the number of deaths due to nervous causes has increased twenty per cent in forty years. One-fourth of the deaths in cities to-day are from nervous diseases."—Dr. S. Weir. Mitchell.

The clean, rich nerve-force that was behind the health and happiness of thousands upon thousands is literally burning itself up like the dry wick of an empty lamp. It is the "Strenuous Life," with a vengeance.

Can men who go to their work in the morning tired and with lax spirits give to their own affairs the electric touch of confidence and power upon which success depends?

Can mothers worn out and nervous, plodding dully or ill-tempered through the routine of homekeeping, bring into the family life that precious spirit of hopefulness and happiness without which the word "home" seems a mockery?

When you feel exhausted—when you grow tired sooner than you should—when you lose patience with the irritating cares of daily life—when you feel discouraged—when you feel that your hopes and ambitions are not as high as they used to be—when you spend a sleepless night—when you get up almost as weary as when you went to bed—when you are worried.

These are all signs that your nerve forces are burning low.

Neglect the nerves and they will make you feel this neglect in many ways, they control all of the organs of the body and must be kept healthy and strong to do their work properly,—tired nerves cannot keep the organs of the body working in that harmony which is essential to real health.

This is why Paine's Celery Compound is able to bring health in so many different forms. Paine's Celery Compound feeds and nourishes the nerves. It make new Nerve Force. It makes pure, rich blood, a clean active liver, a stomach that acts quietly and strongly upon all the food that is given to it, bowels that throw away promptly and surely all the ashes from life's engine room.

It makes the heart beat true and evenly, it makes the brain clear and vigorous.

The Nerve Force does this all, and Paine's Celery Compound makes the Nerve Force.

Best of all it makes that buoyant life-spirit, the thrill of health, that is the secret of happiness and the keynote of individual success.

Without Nerve Force there can be no health at all—no success—no joy in living.

John S. Long's case is simply one of thousands upon thousands. An average case and an object lesson to the average person.

"For nervousness and stomach troubles Paine's Celery Compound is the medicine. I was almost a physical wreck when I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am as healthy as any man in the world, and I owe it all to Paine's Celery Compound. The first bottle I took helped me wonderfully, and by the time the second was used I was a well man, and I can cheerfully recommend it to any one as being the best medicine I have ever used."
—John S. Long, Ballard, Wash.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day. It braces you up at once.

Take two days' treatment. See how much better you feel. See how much more easily the trials roll away.

For over 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University. All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

FLOOD MENACING

Canal Banks Burst at Schenectady and Water Is Rising

Schenectady, N. Y., March 28.—The Mohawk river, which has been gorged with ice at Hoffman's Ferry, about six miles west of this city, last night overflowed into the Erie canal, which runs parallel at this point, tearing the embankment away for more than 200 feet, and great disaster is feared.

Although the canal was empty, in less than an hour there was a rush of water which flooded streets in this city adjacent to the canal, tore boats from their moorings and rendered several houses uninhabitable.

Huge cakes of ice tore down several poles carrying feed wires to the Rotterdam pumping station, which is dependent upon electrical power and from which the city obtains its water supply.

A 20-foot gorge has formed at Hoffman's Ferry, backing up the water, which has spread over the flats and flowed around the gorge, which threatens to break at any minute.

The river at this point is rising at the rate of six feet an hour, a record which has not been reached for eight years.

Patterson Trial Plans

New York, March 28.—The trial of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young will be started in the court of general sessions early in April. At the request of district Attorney Jerome, the case has been removed from the supreme court. The reason alleged is that there probably would not be a supreme court justice at liberty to try the case at that time and the trial must be held then unless the prisoner were to be discharged.

Must Clear His Record

Washington, March 28.—Frederick McMaster, newly appointed, but still to be commissioned American consul to Zanzibar, has been informed by the department of state that he must produce evidence to show that he was legally divorced from the woman who claims that he has failed to support her, and that he has lived up to the terms of the decree, before his commission shall be issued to him.

Opposition to Conscription

Helsingfors, March 28.—Yesterday was marked by a great demonstration at Abo, former capital of Finland, and Helsingfors, thousands of workingmen parading with the Finnish national colors, bands playing national airs and the people singing patriotic songs. Resolutions were adopted favoring opposition to conscription. The gatherings were orderly and the police did not interfere.

Woman Perhaps Slain

Kingston, N. Y., March 28.—The body of an unknown woman was found in Wallkill creek at Tuttletown. She was apparently about 23 years old, handsomely dressed and wore a diamond ring. Physicians who examined the body say the woman was dead before being placed in the water. There was a severe wound on the left breast and one eye was badly bruised.

Receiver For Tabbard Inn Concerns

Philadelphia, March 28.—Five concerns allied with the Book Lovers' and Tabard Inn libraries, of which Seymour Eaton is president, were placed in the hands of a receiver here. The liabilities, according to Eaton's statement, are less than $150,000 and the assets exceed $1,000,000, scattered in more than 2000 cities as well as on scores of trains and ocean steamships.

Turbine Steamer Does Well

Glasgow, March 28.—In a preliminary trial trip of the Allan line's new turbine steamer Virginian the vessel acquitted herself in a very satisfactory manner. A speed exceeding that made on trials of her sister ship, the turbine Victorian, now on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to Halifax, was attained.

The Parisian Badly Damaged

Halifax, March 28.—Steamer Parisian is now submerged from the stern to the bridge, and her bow is high in the air. She has such a heavy list to port that it is feared she will fall over into the wharf. The rent in her side is 22 feet in depth by three feet wide.

More Trouble For Santo Domingo

Kingston, Jam., March 28.—The Italian cruiser Calabria has received instructions to return immediately to San Domingo. It is supposed that the order has a bearing on the demand for the payment of claims against the republic of Santo Domingo.

Ames Sues For "Back Salary"

Minneapolis, March 28.—Former Mayor Ames, who was tried several times on charges of alleged illegal acceptance of money while in office, but was acquitted, has filed suit against the city for $490 back salary alleged to be due him.

Excitement Has Subsided

Cincinnati, March 28.—The run on the Union Savings Bank and Trust company has exhausted itself and the police who were sent to the bank to preserve order exceed in number the depositors who wish to withdraw their money.

Woman Suffrage Defeated

Christiana, March 28.—The lower house of the storthing, by a vote of 48 to 33, rejected the government bill proposing to give women equal rights with men to hold public offices.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, March 29.
Sun rises—5:32; sets—6:06.
Moon rises—2:11 a. m.

A TACTLESS MOVE

Salisbury's Letter on Fiscal Policy Has Revived Controversy

London, March 28.—Premier Balfour had a long conference yesterday with Lord Salisbury concerning the latter's letter to The Times relative to the late Lord Salisbury's attitude toward protection and Joseph Chamberlain's fiscal policy, which letter has created a great sensation in the lobbies of parliament. It is understood that Lord Salisbury wrote the letter without consulting the premier, and that a member of the government should so bluntly repudiate Chamberlain's policy and emphasize the strong divergence of views in the Union party on the fiscal question is considered not only indiscreet, but a tactless move which Chamberlain and his party will be bound to resent.

A letter from Chamberlain in reply to Salisbury's communication appeared in The Times this morning, in which, after expressing regret that Salisbury should think he had misapprehended his father's views, he proceeds to give extracts from speeches delivered by the late Lord Salisbury between 1892 and 1895 which, Chamberlain maintains, show he approved of retaliation and colonial preference. Mr. Chamberlain adds that it was only after Salisbury death, 1903, that he (Chamberlain) developed his policy beyond the lines of these two general principles.

Long Journey After Embezzler

San Francisco, March 28.—Henry Vida, deputy sheriff of Honolulu, has arrived here en route for London, where he is to take in charge Henry Kapea, former clerk of the Hawaiian Trust company, under indictment for embezzlement. Kapea was arrested in London.

Russia Buys Ten Steamers

London, March 28.—The Times states that Russia has bought 10 Hamburg-American steamers for delivery at Libau with cargoes and coal. It is supposed that they are designed for employment as colliers for the Baltic squadron.

Grafter Under $10,000 Bail

Madison, Wis., March 28.—The supreme court has granted a stay of execution to Charles S. Havenor, an alderman in Milwaukee, who was convicted of bribery and sentenced to the house of correction. He was released on $10,000 bail.

There will be a parish meeting at the Wollaston Unitarian Vestry next Friday evening to see what action, if any, should be taken concerning the calling of a pastor.

DERRICK FALLS.

Fortunate Escape at a Granite Yard This Morning.

A large derrick in the granite yard of James Craig, on Water street, fell with a loud crash shortly before 11 o'clock, this morning. Fortunately, however, no one was injured, and, but little damage was done.

A big block of granite was being hoisted at the time. Suddenly something was heard to crack. A warning shout went up, and everybody ran for safety. The derrick fell over onto the roof of one of the sheds, but before it struck the guy rope checked it, thus preventing the sheds from being smashed. It was a fortunate escape.

The New Clerk.

George T. Magee, the new Clerk of the City Council and Committees, was born in Hingham, August 9, 1860. He removed to Quincy with his parents when but a few years of age, and has made this city his home the greater part of the time since.

In 1871 he returned to Hingham, remaining there three years, at the end of which he again removed to Quincy. He followed various occupations until 1886, when he went to Weymouth and associated himself with the Weymouth Gazette as a reporter.

Returning to Quincy in 1891 he entered the employ of the Daily Ledger as a reporter, and has since been connected with this paper in that capacity. One of his numerous duties was to cover the meetings of the City Council and there have been but few meetings of that body since 1901 that he has not been in his chair at the reporters' table.

His duties as a reporter takes him to all parts of the city thus enabling him to become not only thoroughly acquainted with our city, but with all of its prominent citizens. Aside from his work on the Daily Ledger he has done some little work on Boston newspapers and has officiated as clerk pro tem of the City Council during the absence of Clerk C. A. Spear.

He is therefore thoroughly familiar with most of the minor details of City Council work.

His education was obtained in the schools of Quincy and Hingham, the first public school he attended being taught by Miss Julia E. Underwood.

Mr. Magee was married in Boston in 1887 to Miss Fannie Jackman, a daughter of a former well known Boston business man.

ANNOUNCEMENT

HAVING completed the Paper Hanging in the new Y. M. C. A. building, I have decided to stay in Quincy, and anyone wanting a nice job of decorating at a REASONABLE PRICE will get an estimate on their work at once.

Tinting, Paper Hanging or Inside

My motto is not how cheap but how Good.
2 000 different patterns of Wall Paper sent to your home for inspection by request on a postal.

Yours for good work,

E. S. PRESCOTT,

ON EXHIBITION.

Very Creditable Work of Y. M. C. A. Evening School.

Work of the Y. M. C. A. freehand and monumental drawing class is now on exhibition in the store window of L. M. Pratt & Son, Hancock street, and at Falconer & Co.'s office on Water street.

The work was organized by the Associations educational committee and taught by H. W. Beattie, the well known modeler and designer. A most creditable progress has been made by all; so marked in fact as to cause the question, how is such excellence possible from entirely green men, as all these men were only five months ago.

When this work started back in November, 19 men applied for admission, the ages ranged from 15 years to 37, the average being about 22. Only one had done any drawing, and the majority knew nothing whatever on the subject.

The majority of the class continued throught the entire forty lessons paying a good price for their instruction, in addition to their membership in the Association.

The attendance for the first term was 78 per cent and for the second term it was 92 per cent. of the enrollment, thus showing an unabated interest in the work.

The progress was steady from the start, until now the work as exhibited speaks for itself.

One member, now in a draughting office of a Boston granite company, has had his salary substantially increased in consequence of his improvment. Two others have made such progress as to affect their earning capacity materially.

The class has fully justified the experiment. The committee undertook the work against odds, having no other association privileges to offer and having to hire the hall in which the classes were held. A financial statement will be made later, when the financial soundness of the enterprise will be shown.

The class in mechanical drawing finishes its second term tonight. This class has also done splendid work, samples of which will be exhibited soon. This class was large and have had an equal interesting and satifisfactory progress.

All of this work will prove to those interested in these subjects that the Association is equipped to do the thing satisfactorily, and will, with the new building in the fall, offer more complete and extended courses.

Let every one reading this, look up the exhibits in the windows above mentioned.

Grade Six in Lead.

A DISTRICT NURSE.

A Help to the People in Reduced Circumstances.

Those who are conversant with the needs of Quincy, in regard to the care of the sick in our midst who are greatly reduced in circumstances, or even people of moderate means, will agree that it is high time that some organization took the iniative in a movement to secure the services of a district nurse. In all cities that employ such nurses, the testimony is that no one can realize their usefulness until such nurses are employed.

Investigation has proved that the expense of securing such help is about $600 a year, not including medicine or needed articles, as the nurse makes her rounds day by day. All the visits should be made under the directions of a careful physician, lest those who are amply able to pay for such service, at regular prices, impose on the generosity of the public.

Many families are able to pay a small sum for ministrations, perhaps sums varying from twenty-five to fifty cents a visit. Such payments are added to the general fund, and thus reduce the amount of donations needed. Many lives would be saved if in the hour of sudden illness a nurse was promptly on hand to render efficient aid.

The mother, who frequently has to resume her household duties too soon, would be aided by having proper care for herself and babe. She would have many little things given to comfort and strengthen her, and thus perhaps her life prolonged.

A meeting of the Quincy Women's club has been called for tomorrow afternoon at First Church chapel to consider the need of a district nurse for Quincy. Dr. Brackett will address the meeting on that subject. The matter is also to be discussed at meetings of the Hospital Aid association and the Quincy Charitable society, hoping that by concerted action a district nurse may be established here.

Fighting the Cigarette.

Miss Eva Brown, Mrs. H. E. C. Burns, Mr. Crowell, Delcevare King and others represented Quincy at the enthusiastic anti-cigarette meeting at Faneuil hall on Saturday. Five hundred or more young people, including newsboys, messenger boys, bootblacks and school children, together with a number of men and women who are in the front ranks of the anti-cigarette movement in this country, were present. Hezekiah Butterworth, president of the New England branch of the World's and National Anti-Cigarette League, presided, and had with him on the platform, among others, Miss Lucy Page Gaston of Chicago, D. M. Wentworth, H. R. Reed, J. W. Field, Bishop Mallalieu, Rev. Mr. Hanaford, Robert H. Magwood, secretary of the League; Dr. H. O. Marcy and Hon. Charles Bulkley Hubbell, former superintendent of the board of education of Greater New York, and the first man to begin the fight against cigarette smoking by American boys.

Mr. Hubbell was the chief speaker, and he told the young people how the senses are impaired by the use of the vile weed, and how it leads to other vices. Several others spoke along the same lines. There was singing by all, as well as solos by Miss Mabel Plant, Herber W. Perry and Miss Helen Fisher.

Other meetings will be held.

Granite Quarry Owner Dead.

Mr. John B. Reinhalter, for many years indentified with the granite industry in Quincy, died Monday night at his home on Copeland street, aged 50 years.

Mr. Reinhalter was employed by various firms during his early career. Later he entered business with his brother Alphonse. Upon the death of his brother, who was killed in a quarry accident, Mr. Reinhalter conducted the business for himself.

Last summer he went to Barre, Vt., and purchased a quarry which he has since conducted. At that time he practically gave up his Quincy business. He leaves a widow and a large family.

Glee Club Concert.

From the eight-page program for the concert of the Wollaston Glee Club, tomorrow evening, printed at the Daily Ledger office, we are convinced that a grand entertainment will be given. The choruses include, "Up and Away," "Dan Cupid and Dame Fortune," "Autumn Song," "On the Sea," "The Oyster," "Honey I want yer now," and the "Blackbird Song." The club will be assisted by a talented violinist and a favorite soprano. Mrs. Moulton will be the accompanist.

Almost a Record Breaker.

With one exception, the maximum temperature today of 68 degrees is the highest it has been in March for nine years. The maximum last year was 66 degrees. In 1903 it was 74 degrees, in 1902 it was 65 degrees, in 1901 it was 59 degrees, in 1900 it was 65 degrees, in 1899 it was 63 degrees, in 1898 it was 65 degrees, and in 1897 it was 58 degrees.

Granite City Club Dine at United States.

Also Attend Majestic Theatre.

Comedians in The Filibuster Get Onto Them.

The rooms of the Granite City club in the Savings Bank building were deserted Tuesday evening. The bright welcoming light that usually shines from its windows was missing. The reason for this unusual state of affairs was that the club members were out of town on pleasure bent.

Once a year the club members hike themselves to Boston town, and after regaling themselves with things good to eat wind up by witnessing one of the attractions at some playhouse.

The United States Hotel was the battlefield at which the army gathered for the feast and the Majestic theatre for the after part.

It was announced that dinner would be served at 5.30, and at that hour a goodly number had assembled in one of the parlors awaiting the signal to file into the dining room. The signal came a few minutes before 6 o'clock, and it was not long before the seats at the long table were occupied.

President Jones occupied the seat of honor at the head of the table, while at his left side sat Vice President Curtis, and on his right the watchdog of the house committee. In one corner of the large dining hall was Monk's orchestra.

George Monk knew just the kind of music the boys liked, and all the popular airs of the day were rendered. So catchy was the music that there was hardly a selection in which the musical voices of the club's vocalists were not heard. The second page of the menu card enumerated some of the selections played which were dedicated to well known members.

Between the courses President Jones read letters and telegrams from absent members,—President Roosevelt, Rockefeller and others. These were brimful of wit and replete with knocks that hit the mark.

The applause that greeted the reading of these effusions showed only too well how near the mark their authors had come. It was nearly 7.30 when the after dinner coffee had been taken and the cigars passed.

The members then headed for the Majestic theatre, and when the curtain arose for the opening act of "The Filibuster" the three front rows of the orchestra were filled with good looking gentlemen at which more than one pair of opera glasses in the hands of the fair sex was trained during the evening.

Each wore on the lapel of his coat a fragrant pink, and although now and then a shinning bald head could be seen they were on the whole a fine looking body of men who did credit to the city.

The tuneful opera was greatly enjoyed, and the sweet musical voices of the soloist brought forth rounds of applause.

Some one had put the comedian and other actors wise, and now and then reference was made to some of the gentlemen in the three front rows. Everybody in these seats immediately caught on and there was a general clapping of hands.

All good things come to an end some time, and so did the opera. Some of those who hurried were in time for the 10.50 train. Others came home on the 11.27 upon which a car had been reserved for their use.

As a whole the evening proved a most enjoyable one, and thanks are due to the entertainment committee, consisting of Ernest L. Saunders, Charles H. Penniman and Walter C. McConnell, for the successful manner in which the program was arranged and carried out.

QUINCY MUSEUM.

Plan of Work Discussed by Colonial Dames.

The Massachusetts society of Colonial Dames held its annual meeting on Tuesday at Mrs. Winthrop Sargent's, 207 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Mrs. H. R. Dalton presided. There was a discussion of plans of work, especially of that connected with the old Quincy house, says the Herald.

The organization has recently purchased this house, the oldest in Quincy. A portion of it was built by a Mr. Coddington in 1636, and latter it was purchased by Edmund Quincy, who added to it in 1700.

It has been converted into a museum by the Dames, and is open to the public on payment of a small fee. As the grounds are now a part of the Metropolitan park system, and are on the line of trolley cars, it is considered that it will be a delightful spot for a summer outing.

Another interesting work is the Boston City History Club, which the Dames are also assisting. Mrs. Sargent is the chairman of the committee. The society will soon issue a handsome book, bound in buff and blue, and adorned with the seal, containing the names and ancestors of all its members.

The following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. Barrett Wendell; first vice-president, Mrs. H. R. Dalton; second vice-president, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent; managers for three years, Miss Sarah Crocker, Miss Madeline Lawrence, Miss Mary T. Spalding, Mrs. H. H. Sprague, Miss Susan Clarke; manager for two years, Mrs. H. W. Cunningham: managers for one year, Mrs. Charles S. Minot, Mrs. W. W. Vaughan.

NEW MOTH BILL.

Committee Favor City Paying Half the Expenses.

Quincy and other cities may soon have an additional expense. The joint legislative committee on ways and means on Tuesday considered in executive session the bill reported by the committee on agriculture, appropriating $600,000 to be expended in the next three years in exterminating the gypsy and brown-tail moths.

Representative Ward of Rockland suggested that the amount of appropriation be reduced to $300,000 for exterminating the moths, and that $25,000 additional be appropriated for finding a parasite. He thought that not more than $75,000 should be expended for the balance of this year for extermination, $150,000 next year and $75,000 the third. He also thought the amount for finding a parasite should be divided between three years, $10,000 to be expended in each of the next two years and $5000 in the third year if necessary.

The committee voted to authorize Senate Chairman Parker to appoint a subcommittee of five members to draft a bill for the consideration of the committee, with the understanding that 50 per cent. of the entire expense shall be borne by the state, and 50 per cent. by the cities and towns.

The committee's intention is to classify the municipalities so that those of a real estate valuation above $12,000,000 shall be required to pay $5000 toward the expense of exterminating the moth, but any amount above that sum which it may be necessary to spend shall be divided equally between the municipality and the state. The method of treating the second class of cities and towns whose real estate valuation is between $5,000,000 and $12,000,000 remains to be determined. Towns with a valuation under $5,000,000 are to pay a tax of 1-25 of 1 per cent. of the real estate valuation toward the extermination of the moth, the state to pay the balance.

The Manet Club.

The meeting Tuesday evening of the Manet club in the Parish house of Christ church was an unusually interesting one. Mrs. Frank Moore, ably accompanied by Mrs. Charles Sampson, sang twice to the delight of all. Her selections were: The Star Spangled Banner and The Battle Hymn of the Republic. Mr. Charles Brown gave, with good success, Hail Columbia and The Red, White and Blue, on the cornet.

Mrs. W. T. Babcock read an instructive and able paper on "Our New Possessions." She argued that the American nation is the leading nation of the world and the constitution of the United States a model for the world's federation. A large map was used to illustrate the paper.

The platform was decorated with plants loaned by Arnold & Johnson, the Music hall florists, and cut flowers given by Mrs. A. B. Packard.

Leave to Withdraw.

The Legislative committee on cities, after the burlesque hearing on the subject of a city charter for Hyde Park, in this town last week, lost no time in giving the petitioners leave to withdraw, and in view of the public sentiment on the question, as disclosed at the meeting, the promoters were evidently glad to drop the matter. This leaves Quincy the only city on the Norfolk county map; and Hyde Park, having no ambition in that direction, is willing that it should have the honor. We are of the opinion however, that the taxpayers of Quincy would gladly return to the simple town government or town council system, and get rid of the heavy burden that a city government imposes.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Balance Wheel.

A foreign dispatch says the Hamburg-American line is building a new steamer at the Vulcan works at Stettin which will be fitted out with an invention of Otto Shick. It consists of a massive balance wheel mounted in such a manner as to counteract the shifting of the centre of gravity of the ship. The invention hitherto has only been tested in connection with models, but the Hamburg-American officials are so convinced of its utility that they are advancing money, and loaning a vessel for a trial which will take place in June or July. Naval engineers regard the invention as likely to be of the greatest use to warships, in adding to the stability of the gun platforms.

—The spring convention of the Norfolk County W. C. T. U. will be held in the Baptist church, Needham, Tuesday, April 4th, from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. Addresses by Mrs. E. M. Allen, superintendent of railroad work, and K. L. Stevenson, president of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U.

DR. GRENFELL

Gives an Illustrated Lecture on Work in Labrador.

An audience that tested the seating capacity of the house, greeted Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, at the Wollaston Congregational church, Tuesday evening. After brief introductory remarks, Rev. Mr. Chase presented Dr. Grenfell, who for an hour and a half held his audience intensely interested in his story of the work that he and his colleagues are doing as medical missionaries among the deep sea fishermen along the coast of Labrador.

Stereopticon pictures of the scenes of the docter's labors, including the picturesque coast of Labrador, with its deep fords and jagged cliffs, the beautiful but awesome icebergs, the fishing vessels, the little hospal buildings that have been built, and of the simple fisherfolk themselves, all helped to make the lecture very appealing as well as interesting.

A contribution was taken up at the close and Rev. Mr. Chase made a few remarks, proposing two or three ways by which Wollaston people might be able to give permanent and substantial pecuniary aid to this great work that Dr. Grenfell is doing.

TOWLE ALSO FINED.

For Violation of Liquor Law at Quincy Point.

Clifford H. Towle, proprietor of a store near the Fore River works, was before the court this morning upon a complaint charging him with violation of the liquor law. James P. Flannigan had an express office in the same building. The police made a raid there some weeks ago and seized a quantity of liquor.

Warrants for violation of the liquor law were issued against both Towle and Flannigan. The latter was fined $75 in court last week. Towle was fined $50 and appealed. George E. Adams, Esq., represented the government and J. J. McAnarney, Esq., the defendant.

A Big Deficiency.

A Boston paper says that Somerville's finance committee has reported and the city is facing an increased tax rate. The cause of this is to be found in large part in a deficiency of $45,500 in the current expenses of last year. The committee has decided that this deficiency cannot be made good from the funded debt accounts, and that it must be made up from current taxes. It has, therefore, been decided to assess the deficit in full. The report will be considered at the meeting of the aldermen this week.

Ninety-first Birthday.

George S. T. Whiting is observing his 91st birthday today at his home, Quincy avenue, surrounded by his family and friends. Mr. Whiting has not enjoyed as good health as usual of late, and is confined to his home. His friends however did not forget that he was passing another milestone and there were several callers. Mr. Whiting was showered with congratulations and presented with flowers, fruit and other tokens.

On a Junket.

Representative Freeman is with the Legislative committee on harbors and public lands at the cape, studying proposed improvements asked for. The depredations by the sea at Chatham this winter occupied the committee's time on Tuesday. The improvements at Herring river, at Harwich, and the Bass river route for the Cape Cod ship canal will be viewed.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Perhaps the chief reason for the increase in the school expenses in Quincy is the same as in Somerville. A member of the School Committee in the latter city says:

"I am an ardent admirer of President Roosevelt, and I don't want anything I say about him misinterpreted as indicating that I wish to criticise him, but from a financial point of view I will say that the people of Somerville are following too closely the President's advice favoring the raising of large families. As a result there is a continual increase in the number of pupils attending our public schools and a corresponding annual increase in the expenses connected with the maintenance of the schools."

Drift of Opinion.

☞Some good may come out of the Brockton accident. That is not a very comforting thought to the relatives and friends of those who died, but it is without question a fact. The men who know about boilers, about factory work, about buildings, about engines, about everything that was brought to light in the horror, have been investigating and have been making their investigations public in many cases. The people know more about boilers and about factory work than they did a week ago. They know more about the dangers and the defenses surrounding them than they did. Carelessness and slothfulness will become things of the past around sources of danger in business places for a time at least. Boiler inspections will be prompt and thorough for a time, and every safeguard will be called for by employes, and many at least will be used by employers to make safer the existence of the workers as well as of themselves. All this is some good that has come out of much evil. But it hardly seems, when the balance sheet is struck, as though the account was evened yet. There was too much slaughtering and pain and ruin for the amount of good that may accrue.—Brockton Enterprise.

Seal Fishery Unsatisfactory

St. Johns, March 29.—Steamer Eagle, the first ship of the sealing fleet which sailed March 13, returned last night fully laden, having 33,000 seals. She reports eight steamers loaded with 56,000 seals. Eleven other steamers are unreported. The figures indicate a poor fishery, the outlook being the least satisfactory in many years.

Death of Banker Iselin

New York, March 29.—Adrian Iselin, the banker, died at his home here last night, aged 92 years. Iselin was the founder of the banking firm of A. Iselin & Co., New York, and the father of C. O. Iselin, the yachtsman. He was a native of Basle, Switzerland, and came here 50 years ago.

HAS PART OF GIFT

American Board Got $41,500 From Rockefeller

DR GLADDEN'S PROTEST

Declares That Money From Standard Oil Sources Belongs to People From Whom It Has Been Extorted

Boston, March 29.—Positive action was taken on the question of accepting John D. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000 to the American board of commissioners for Foreign Missions, at a meeting the prudential committee of that organization, but the nature of the action was not disclosed. The committee announced officially, however, that a statement citing the decision of the committee would be given out directly after the report adopted, which is in the form of resolutions, had been put in complete form and had been officially communicated to a committee appointed at a meeting of Congregational clergymen of Boston and vicinity to protest the acceptance of the Rockefeller gift.

Already the American Board has received from Rockefeller $41,500, which has been apportioned to various foreign missions conducted by the board. The question really decided yesterday, therefore, was whether this amount should be returned to Rockefeller, or retained and the balance of $100,000 drawn from him.

Dr. Washington Gladden, moderator of the Congregational church, filed a protest with the prudential committee against the acceptance of the gift of $100,000 from Rockefeller. It is as follows:

"I must ask the privilege of expressing, as explicitly as I can, my surprise and regret that the officers of the American Board have accepted a large sum of money from Mr. John D. Rockefeller. I object to this because the money thus bestowed does not rightfully belong to the man who gives it; it has been flagitiously acquired, and all the world knows it.

"It may be difficult, in many cases, to judge the methods by which wealth has been gained; the operations are complex, and we may be in doubt respecting their honesty. It is, no doubt, impracticable to undertake the investigation of the sources of all the gifts that are offered us. But when the investigation has been thoroughly made, and the case is clear, we are bound to guide our conduct by the facts made known.

"In this case the investigation has been thoroughly made and the facts are known. The legislative inquiries, the records of courts, have given the reading people of this country the materials for a judgment upon the methods of Standard Oil, and there never was a day when their minds were as clear on this subject as they are now. They know that this great power has been built up by injustice and oppression, they know that its immense gains have been made by forcibly despoiling citizens of their honest gains and shutting the doors of opportunity upon them.

"It has been forcibly done, I say. It has been done very largely through illicit and iniquitous control of railways. It has never ceased to use this power in this way. It is using it today as effectively as it ever did.

"Mr. Rockefeller may deny that rebates are now given to the Standard, but the Standard now controls about two-thirds of the railroads of this country, and its power is exerted in fixing the classification of freights in such a way that it can kill competition. Rebates are no longer necessary. Thus this stupendous power, which owes its existence to a shameful prostitution of agencies created by public law for the public service, is now able to lay its paralyzing hand upon all the industries of the nation, and to force them to contribute to its enormous revenues. And this is the money which is offered to the American Board. We have no right to take it. It does not belong to the man who offers it. It belongs to the people from whom it has been extorted.

"It is often assumed, I fear, that we do not need to be very scrupulous about money which we can use in 'doing good.' That indifference is deadly. The 'good' that is done by lowering our ethical standards might better be left undone. Shall the young men and women of the missionary college be taught to regard Mr. Rockefeller as a great benefactor? The colleges might better be permanently closed."

The board also received a communication from Rev. A. H. Bradford, D. D., of Montclair, N. J., former moderator of the National Congregational Council and president of the American Missionary association, favoring the acceptance of Rockefeller's gift.

A Carnegie College Offer

New York, March 29.—In pursuance of his plan to aid the small colleges, Andrew Carnegie has offered the University of Rochester $100,000 for a building to be used for scientific purposes. The gift is made on condition that friends of Rochester raise another $100,000 to endow the building.

DRINK AND JEALOUSY

Maddened Mill Operative Takes Life of Wife and Self

Lawrence, Mass., March 29.—Crazed by rum and jealousy, Rene Nietens, 44, a mill hand, shot and killed his wife at their home, 37 Melrose street, and then ran to the Merrimac river and drowned himself. Four children ranging from 20 to 4 years old, are left orphans.

Nietens had not been living with his wife for the past four months, and had been drinking heavily of late. He had been very abusive before he left home, so his son, Harry, says, and had accused his wife with being intimate with another man. He went to the house and told his wife that he was going away, and that he wanted to see his daughter, Josephine. He asked his wife to let him in, and renewed his accusation.

The sound of the firing attracted neighbors and persons on the street. As they were about to enter the house to investigate the murderer rushed out and headed for the Merrimac, with half a dozen men close upon him. He plunged into the water, but as the river is shallow at that point, the man did not disappear. Determined to avoid being taken alive he held his head under the surface, and when taken out of the river five minutes later he was dying.

Aged Couple Guilty of Arson

Rutland, Vt., March 29.—Robert and Mary Todd, who have been town charges at Chittenden, were found guilty of arson in the Rutland county superior court in causing the fire which destroyed the farm buildings of Bela Churchill at Chittenden. Todd is 76 years old and his wife is 80. The town of Chittenden paid Churchill for keeping the couple, and at the trial an effort was made to show that the two bore some ill will against him.

Hospital Patient a Suicide

Providence, March 29.—While his nurse was absent, John Chadwick, who was being treated at the Rhode Island hospital for injuries sustained in a street car accident, jumped from the second story of the surgical ward, and fractured his skull. He lived but a short time. Chadwick had shown no evidence of mental aberration up to five minutes prior to the discovery of his body outside the building. He was 68 years old.

Not a Case of Manslaughter

Vinalhaven, Me., March 29.—Andrew D. King of this town, who was brought back from Quincy, Mass., to answer to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife on March 7, was acquitted by Judge Messervey in the local court without having to offer any evidence in his own defense. Several physicians testified that Mrs. King's death was due to natural causes.

Dissatisfied Weavers Strike

North Adams, Mass., March 29.—Eighty-five weavers in the employ of the H. T. Stevens Sons' company went out on strike when the firm refused to grant all their demands for an advance in wages and a change in conditions. The weavers demanded a less number of shuttles on two-loom work, one loom on certain qualities of goods and an advance in wages on all two-loom work.

Defeat of Labor Measure

Boston, March 29.—One of the most important bills of interest to organized labor in Massachusetts was defeated in the house of representatives. The bill was intended to legalize picketing during strikes and was strongly advocated by labor leaders throughout the state. By a vote of 85 to 93, the measure was killed. An effort will be made to reconsider the bill.

Winooski Ice Jam Broken

Montpelier, Vt., March 29.—The big ice jam in the Winooski river above the city was broken up by dynamite and passed down without causing damage to the four bridges or the river front factories. More than 1000 pounds of dynamite has been used in the effort to smash the jam and start the ice which choked the river for more than a mile.

Fire Scare In Girl's Home

Revere, Mass., March 29.—Twenty-eight young women were compelled to make a hurried exit last night from the Ingleside Home for Girls, when flames broke out in a shed adjoining the dormitory of the home. All the inmates escaped unharmed. The damage caused by the fire was small.

Wreckers May Save Spartan

Block Island, R. I., March 29.—By lightering 350 tons of miscellaneous freight from the stranded steamer Spartan, the wreckers have cleared her main deck and saved about half her cargo. The wreckers believe that the chances of saving the vessel have been considerably increased.

Meningitis Victims at Lowell

Lowell, Mass., March 29.—Three new cases of cerebro spinal meningitis were reported at the office of the board of health yesterday, making an aggregate of 27 cases of the disease reported since Jan. 1. A majority of the cases under treatment at the present time are of a severe nature.

Child's Clothes Caught Fire

Lawrence, Mass., March 29.—Jennie Freedman, 6 years old, is suffering from terrible burns, which, in the opinion of physicians, will probably cause her death. The victim's garments are said to have been ignited from a grass fire, alleged to have been set by boys.

Smallpox Hospital Burned

Waltham, Mass., March 29.—The main building of the city's smallpox hospital on South street was burned last night, entailing a loss of $3500. The fire, which also badly damaged the contagious hospital adjoining, is believed to have been set by tramps.

CITY BREVITIES.

Saturday will be All Fools' day.

The sun now sets after 6 o'clock.

The dust is flying on some streets.

Probably showers and cooler tomorrow.

Glee club concert at Wollaston this evening.

Miss Marion Nickerson of Wollaston has arrived from Europe.

Mrs. Lysander Nash of Wollaston, has returned from a visit to Philadelphia.

The Quincy Yacht club are arranging for a smoker to be held at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moulton of Wollaston, have gone on a short trip to Montreal.

Miss Clair Sears of Everett was a guest of Miss Florence Hill of Walker street over Sunday.

A grand concert will be given by the Wollaston Unitarian Society the latter part of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. McIntire have taken apartments at Hotel Greenleaf for the summer.

Miss Helen Bemis of Atlantic street returned to her school duties this week after a week's vacation.

George T. Magee is receiving many congratulations upon his election as clerk of the City Council.

That was rather too jovial a party in the vicinity of Belmont street on Saturday night, so the neighbors say.

A Sunday school teachers' institute will be held at Bethany church on Friday afternoon and evening of next week.

Carl Sheppard and Joel F. Sheppard, 2d, are home from Cornell University. They were accompanied by three college chums.

The Endeavor Society of the Wollaston Congregational church will hold a sociable for the church people Thursday at 8 o'clock.

Views on Japan will be presented at the Atlantic Memorial church, April 5, under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor society.

Two house lots are to be given away at the concert of the Fore River Select club at French's hall this evening. A long array of talent has volunteered, including the new Fore River band.

Another Masonic social will be held this evening. The success of those already held prompted the committee to seek a larger hall and this dance will be held at Quincy Music hall. Cuff's orchestra will furnish the music.

Rev. Carleton P. Mills of St. Chrysostom's church attended a meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Sunday school organizations at New York Tuesday morning. In the afternoon he attended a committee meeting of the joint diocesan lesson committee. Wednesday he speaks in St. John's church, Stanford, Conn., on the work of Sunday school commissions.

Judge Kettelle's Widow.

The Edmund Quincy tomb in the Granary burying ground, Boston, was opened Saturday afternoon to receive the body of Mrs. Lucia Drew Kettelle, widow of Judge Jacob Quincy Kettelle of Braintree, a direct descendant of the Quincys. The interment services began shortly after 3 o'clock. Hundreds gazed from the windows of Tremont street buildings, while a throng on the sidewalk peered through the paling.

The burial of Mrs. Kettelle is the first to be made this year in the Granary burying ground. In 1904 there were two, which has been the average number for many years.

Judge Kettelle's death occurred in 1865. His body was placed in the Edmund Quincy vault.

Mrs. Kettelle had for many years made her home at 71 Toxteth street, Brookline. She was 82 years old.

Drunk Ruling.

Judge Bruce of Wakefield has given a new ruling on drunkenness. Monday, in discharging a prisoner arraigned for drunkeness, he said he discharged him because he was not drunk, although undoubtly under the influence of liquor. "A man is not drunk who is in possession of his mental and physical faculties, no matter how much liquor he may have been drinking," he says.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE BEEF INQUIRY

Confidential Employe of Big Packers Arrested

ENTERTAINED A WITNESS

Allegation That He Suggested Testimony Favorable to Armour & Co--Secret Service Men Kept Up a Strict Watch

Chicago, March 29.—The federal grand jury investigating the alleged beef trust returned an indictment last night against Thomas J. Connors, general superintendent for Armour & Co. The charge is interfering with a witness summoned to appear before the grand jury.

Connors, who is one of J. Ogden Armour's most confidential employes and is the active head of one of the largest packing companies in the world, was arrested last night on a bench warrant by a United States deputy marshal and brought to the grand jury room. After considerable delay the prisoner was released on a $5000 bond. Following his release, Connors absolutely refused to discuss the matter.

The indictment alleges that John E. Shields of Brooklyn, a former employe of Armour & Co., who has been in Chicago since the investigation began, was approached, favored and entertained by Connors, and specifically charges that on March 25 the offense for which Connors is indicted occurred. It is also charged that Shields was given the use of Armour & Co.'s offices at the packing house.

Another allegation is that Shields was entertained by Connors and that Connors suggested the proposed witness should testify favorably for Armour & Co. and not tell all that witness knew concerning the matter under investigation. The second count of the indictment charges that Connors did not limit his attempt at influencing witnesses to Shields, but that other witnesses who have not as yet appeared in Chicago have been approached by Connors and attempts made to influence them as to the nature of testimony to be given.

When the special grand jury convened last week Shields was one of the first witnesses to appear. He came to Chicago from New York. He had testified before a grand jury in New York and is said to have divulged facts which led the federal officials to believe him to be in possession of many other details concerning subjects under consideration.

Shields was watched very closely. Two secret service men were detailed to this work. One of the secret service men obtained Shields' confidence and thus learned facts which doubled the precautions of the government to prevent any of the witnesses from being coached. Shields was followed by the detectives and it was soon learned that he frequented the offices of Armour & Co., having a private wire at his disposal and answering all his private correspondence there. Shields was followed to theatres, dinners and meetings in down-town hotels, every movement he made being closely watched.

The surveillance reached a climax when one of the secret service men submitted a report to his superiors. Yesterday Shields was before the grand jury for three hours. The section of the statutes under which the indictment is drawn provides that any person who interferes with a witness shall be subjected to a fine of $500, or imprisonment for three months, or both.

R. Budatz, department manager for Armour & Co. at Omaha, and Edward Welch, of Armour & Co., at Kansas City, were the only other witnesses besides Shields heard yesterday.

Cash For Police "Friendship"

Pittsburg, March 29.—At the hearings in the Allegheny "graft" cases, Police Captain Wilson, Lieutenants Dickson and Boreland and Patrolmen Rodman and Carroll, charged with extortion in receiving money for opening and protecting illegal resorts, were held for court. In the case of each of the defendants testimony was given showing that they had accepted money from keepers of resorts under the promise of "friendship."

Child Swept Off by Food

Amsterdam, N. Y., March 29.—Carrie Frazier, 10 years old, fell into Bunn creek last evening and was carried with the spring torrent out into the Chuctanunda and presumably on to the Mohawk river. Hundreds of persons lined the banks and watched in vain for the appearance of her body.

Woman Mysteriously Assaulted

Ottawa, Kan., March 29.—Mrs. Caroline Jones, 72 years old, was attacked at a sanitarium here during the night by some unknown person and perhaps fatally wounded. Her skull was fractured with an axe and her body was horribly mutilated.

New Head of State Prison

Rutland, Vt., March 29.—W. S. Lovell of Springfield, a deputy sheriff of Windsor county for 32 years, has been appointed superintendent of the state prison at Windsor to succeed E. W. Oakes, who resigned last week.

Old Age Pension Proposition

Lansing, Mich., March 29.—Senator Fyfe introduced in the state senate a bill providing for pensions for citizens over 65 years of age who have lived in the state for 20 years. The money is to be raised by poll tax.

EXILES START REVOLT

American Warships May Have Work Off Santo Domingo

Cape Haytien, Hayti, March 29.—Advices from Monte Cristi, on the northern coast of Santo Domingo, announce that General Barba with a number of Dominican exiles landed at Monte Cristi and that the inhabitants have risen against President Morales, reproaching him with being the cause of the present difficulties with foreign countries.

Washington, March 29.—Intimations of a projected movement against President Morales of Santo Domingo, fomented by exiles from that country, reached the state department several days ago. The affair, however, is not giving the officials here any uneasiness, as they now feel free, in view of President Roosevelt's acceptance of the Dominican government's proposition to control the finances of that country, to assist, and, it is stated, will assist President Morales if requested by the latter, in putting down any movement which is a menace to the republic's best interests.

The district of Monte Cristi is known to be the hotbed of the revolutionists in San Domingo. The navy department has several vessels in Dominican waters and, under directions from the state department, if required to do so by Morales, will lend its co-operation in preserving the peace of the country so that its finances may be restored to a settled condition.

Italian Cruiser at San Domingo

San Domingo, March 29.—The Italian cruiser Calabria has arrived here. Dominican officials regard the coming of the Calabria as significant and declare that an arrangement with foreign creditors is urgently needed in order to prevent complictions with foreign powers.

Explosion Followed Political Speech

Chicago, March 29.—One man was perhaps fatally scalded and seven others were painfully burned by the explosion of a boiler at the car shops of the Illinois Central railroad. Judge Dunne, Democratic candidate for mayor of Chicago, had but a few minutes previously finished an address to the workmen. Reports of the accident made to officials of the company say that the explosion followed the accumulation of too much steam in the boiler while the workmen were away from their posts listening to Dunne.

Relics of Civil Strife

Washington, March 29.—The United States colors which floated at Fort Sumter at the time of its surrender in April, 1861, and which afterward were raised over that fort at the time of its recapture by the Union forces, in April, 1864, have been turned over to the war department under the provision of the will of the widow of General Anderson, in the possession of whose family the standards had been since the war. They will be placed in a glass case in the reception room of the department.

The New Industrial Union

Denver, March 29.—William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, says: "President Gompers is needlessly excited over the plan to organize an international industrial union. There are 20,000,000 wage earners in the United States. Approximately 1,500,000 are members of a union. The unions limit the number of apprentices and then refuse a man a union card unless he has served an apprenticeship. We propose to organize the workers everywhere."

Will Have Another Try For Cup

Chicago, March 29.—Alexander H. Revell of this city has received a letter from Sir Thomas Lipton, in which he says he is determined to have one more try for the America's cup. The only difficulty in the way was to find a designer, but he will give the matter attention as soon as he returns from Ceylon, where he now is.

Candidates for the High school base ball team have commenced out door practice.

QUESTION OF PEACE

Russia Is Said to Have Outlined Her Conditions

HAD UNITED STATES' AID

Good Offices of France Also Said to Figure In Negotiations --No Information on Subject Gleaned at Washington

St. Petersburg, March 29.—Russia has outlined the conditions under which she is prepared to negotiate peace. It is stated with every semblance of authority that, thanks to the good offices of the United States and France, the question of peace has assumed practical shape.

No Light at Washington

Washington, March 29.—Diligent inquiry last night failed to develop what assistance this government had given in the way of bringing about preliminary negotiations for peace between Russia and Japan, but inasmuch as nearly all the American officials likely to have knowledge of such a matter were at social functions or were otherwise inaccessible, the inquiry necessarily was not complete.

It is known that this government for a long time has stood prepared to use its good offices in the interest of peace whenever the opportune moment arrived for action by this government without serious risk of giving offense to either of the combatants and thereby lessening our power for good.

A prominent head of one of the diplomatic establishments here, when shown the St. Petersburg statement, said that he had not received any word from his government on the subject for several days and had heard nothing to confirm the report. At the same time he would not be astonished to learn of its accuracy, though he had not expected matters to reach that stage as yet.

Delcasse as Intermediary

London, March 29.—A telegram from a northern European capital received in London says: "I have just learned on reliable authority that Russia has asked Delcasse to act as an intermediary and open peace negotiations with Japan. Delcasse has signified his willingness, but considers Lansdowne's co-operation is essential to success."

London, March 29.—"When peace negotiations commence it will be between Russia and Japan direct and not through any intermediary," was Minister Hayashi's comment last night when shown the dispatch from a northern European capital stating that M. Delcasse, the French foreign minister, had been asked to act as an intermediary to open peace negotiations.

Minister Hayashi said he attached no importance to the statement, but believed that France was trying to influence Russia to open negotiations for peace. "So far as I know," he added, "no negotiations have been begun; but when Russia is ready to make terms Japan will be happy to consider them."

Minister Hayashi repeated his previous statements that Japan is not noticing peace rumors, but steadily preparing to prosecute the war to the bitter end.

At Foreign Secretary Lansdowne's residence last night it was stated that it would be useless to ask Lord Lansdowne for an expression of opinion at the present juncture, as he must decline to give out any statement on the subject of peace.

A Grand Duke's Blindness

Vienna, March 29.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of The Zeitung gives an interview with Grand Duke Vladimir, who is quoted as saying he doubted the existence of any real revolutionary movement, but if the people again raise their hands against the czar they will receive greater punishment than before. With reference to the war, the grand duke said that the Russian troops have been unlucky, but Russia never would entertain propositions for a dishonorable peace.

Communications Perhaps Cut

London, March 30.—The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs; "The entire absence of private and press telegrams from the front, together with a laconic message from General Linevitch last night, dated Harbin, and saying: 'No reports from the armies,' evolves fears that communications have been cut and that the Japanese have turned the Russian positions."

Socialists Under Suspicion

Warsaw, March 29.—The police are prosecuting a strict search of factories and workshops here for socialist workmen with the purpose of discovering the conspirators concerned with recent bomb throwing. Baron Von Nolken, the chief of police, who was wounded by the explosion of a bomb on Sunday, is improving. He received 120 separate wounds, cuts and scratches.

Killed Himself In Hospital

St. Louis, March 29.—Gustave Haeber, 80 years old, and for many years manager of the Western Reserve Life Insurance company, died last night from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the Lutheran hospital, of which he had been a patient for about a year. The hospital authorities are perplexed over the presence of the revolver in Haeber's room and are investigating.

BALFOUR SILENT

No Response to Commoners' Censure of His Policy

London, March 29.—In the house of commons last night a vote of censure of Premier Balfour's fiscal policy was unanimously carried, Ministerialists abstaining from voting. The ministerial front benches were entirely deserted and only about a dozen Unionists, principally free traders, were present when Mr. Walton (Liberal) moved a resolution as follows:

"In view of the declaration made by the prime minister, this house thinks it necessary to record its condemnation of his policy of fiscal retaliation."

The opposition had hoped that in view of the fact that this was a vote of censure the government would take up the challenge and would not adhere to its declared intention of ignoring fiscal resolutions of private members, but Balfour declined to be drawn out and the opposition was driven to address denunciatory speeches to empty benches and reap the indirect benefit of the effect of the government's refusal to fight when challenged. Mr. Walton's motion was carried without a division.

Disaster In Powder Works

Troy, N. Y., March 29.—Three men were killed outright and another so badly injured that he died a few hours later by an explosion at the Schaghticoke Powder mills last evening. The bodies of three of the victims were blown to fragments, while the fourth was blown a distance of 100 feet. He was picked up alive, but his injuries were fatal. No cause for the explosion is known. A remarkable incident in connection with the explosion was that fire did not follow it.

Suicide Coincidences

Cleveland, March 29.—Henry L. Woodward, an attorney of New York city, and Charles A. Brouse, a traveling salesman for a Toledo firm, committed suicide in their rooms at the Hollenden hotel. The coroner's verdict in each case gives despondency over domestic and business troubles as the cause. So far as is known there was no agreement between the two men to end their lives, although it is said they had been seen together in the lobby of the hotel.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

G. W. Sargent has returned from his trip South.

The Des Moines and Macdonough arrived at Pensacola on Monday.

Mr. Skinner and family of North street are moving to Sargents lane, Quincy Neck.

A new dry goods store is to be opened on Temple street, in the Adams building, by Boston parties.

Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, are arranging for their annual concert and ball to be held April 24.

H. H. I. Smith is having his store painted which greatly adds to the general appearance of the place.

The funeral of John B. Reinhalter was held this morning from St. Mary's church. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss A. Maud Briggs, of Appleton street was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank Emery, of Ashmont, the first of the week.

The many young friends and playmates of Charlie Irish are sorry to learn that he is confined to the house with rheumatism.

It is said that a majority of the abutters on Howard avenue desire that the street be watered, the only remonstrants being C. E. Snow and Mr. Wight.

At a meeting of the directors of the Mt. Wollaston National bank on Tuesday, a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent., payable April 1, was declared.

Rev. Arthur W. Bailey preached his farewell sermon at Syracuse, N. Y., on Sunday, and is moving this week to Keene, N. H., where he has accepted a call.

Some days ago the Board of Health put a gypsy moth web secured from a tree, under glass. The glass was placed in the sun and the moths have been hatched out.

Chief of Police Cunningham of Cambridge will be the principal speaker at the Provincial club entertainment Thursday evening in Doble's hall. A collation and dance will follow.

H. G. Smith, manager of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., who has occupied the E. A. Perkins house on Elm street for the past two years, will move April first to Presidents hill.

Harry Foster, formerly of Quincy, died suddenly at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. F. Page of Leadville, Colorado. He is survived by a widow. The remains are to be brought East for burial.

Representative Freeman was paired against, and Representatives Nicol was not recorded on the vote in the House on Tuesday to substitute the Weeks picketing bill for the adverse report of the committee. The substitute was lost 85 to 93 with 14 pairs.

It is said that three seasons' work on a tree by a brown-tail will kill the tree. Many elm trees in Quincy are still showing the nests and it looks as though they were to be allowed full sway. Is Quincy to lose all its beautiful old elm trees?

Tonight, at the Granite street alleys, the Elite team representing the Elite alleys of Boston will roll the Quincy team the final game of the series of nine games. The standing now is a tie, each team winning three games. Both teams will try hard to win.

A meeting of the Central Conference of Day Nurseries is to be held in Perkins hall, 264 Boylston street on Wednesday April 5th at quarter of eleven. Dr. Jeffery R. Brackett is to speak on "Long range views in social work." The directors of the Quincy Day Nursery are invited to attend the meeting.

At the poor farm, the cemetery and along the Boughs Neck road the elm trees show many brown-tail moths nests. If some one would devise a method of getting at these nests at small expense it would be appreciated by owners of elm trees. Most of the pear and small trees have been quite thoroughly gone over by property owners.

—Co. K of Hingham was inspected Monday evening by Lieut.-Col. F. T. L. Magurn and Capt. Leroy T. Eltinge of the 15th United States cavalry. Three officers and 58 men were examined, after which the company gave a drill and was complimented.

TODAY'S COURT.

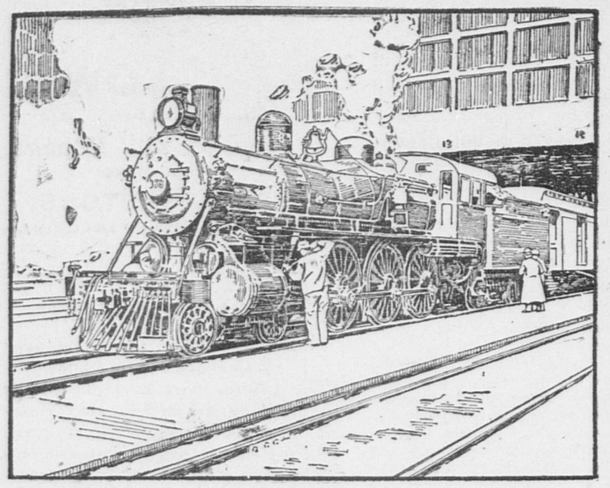

John Kenney and Elzard Bourk were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Daniel Cameron was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Clifford H. Towle, for violation of the liquor law, was heard and he was fined $50.

NEW TYPES OF LOCOMOTIVES.

Have Reduced the Time Between Boston and New York on the New Haven Line.

No road confines its orders to any one type of locomotive. The New Haven is now experimenting with the Vauclain four-cylinder balanced-compound type, built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the Merchants' Limited, the five-hour evening train between New York and Boston. Though these locomotives are regarded more or less as experiments by some, tests have made fairly certain that they combine in the highest degree yet reached the essentials of speed, power and economy in fuel and in wear on the track. Some Western roads have used this kind of locomotive for some years, but in the East the New Haven is the first road to make any use of it.

The speed of which the new locomotives are capable was shown on a trial trip. The record between New Haven and Boston, a distance of 160 miles, was broken by nineteen minutes, the new time being two hours and fifty-five minutes. With the completion of the new bridges now being built along the Shore Line, this speed should make it possible to reduce the running time between the two great cities of the Atlantic Coast by more than half-an-hour.

From Millionaire to Bankrupt

St. Louis, March 29.—Thomas J. Cleage, Jr., commission man, who has several times cornered the wheat market, and is reputed to have made and lost $1,000,000 in one day, has been declared a bankrupt. Cleage contended that he could not be held responsible for certain accounts, as they were not bonafide "transactions," but simply "betting on the rise or fall in the market price of grain," and that no grain deliveries were expected on the contracts.

Procession Created Havoc

New York, March 29.—During a procession last night to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the establishment of Hoboken as a city, a team of three horses drawing a truck broke from its place in the line and dashed into the crowd on a sidewalk and trampled down many persons. A boy of 14, who was not identified, was killed, eight persons were seriously hurt, and several more sustained minor injuries.

Riot Combined With Funeral

Madrid, March 29.—A Socialist demonstration at the funeral of a workman who was accidentally killed led to serious disorders here, in the course of which several members of the municipal guard were wounded. Chief of Police Ellias had a narrow escape from being killed by a man who fired two shots point blank at him, but without hitting him.

Mormonism In Illinois

Carthage, Ills., March 29.—Because of historical associations, the members of the Mormon church have purchased for $4000 the old jail here, where the first prophet and founder of the faith met a tragic death at the hands of a mob. The old structure was not worth over $1500. It is proposed to establish a mission church in the building.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Rear Admiral Evans has left Washington for Pensacola, Fla., where he will assume command of the north Atlantic fleet on March 31, on which day Rear Admiral Barker retires from active service.

Enoch G. Bidwell, appointed postmaster of Norwich, Conn., by President Grant and who served for 16 years continuously in that office, died of heart trouble, aged 75. In state politics he was well known.

Negotiations are in progress looking toward the purchase by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company of the Springfield (Mass.) Street Railway company's property.

The Seaboard Navigation company, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000, was incorporated at Trenton.

The Panama canal commission has authorized the construction of a marine barracks at Ancon, Panama, at a cost of $65,000.

IN A NEW BUSINESS

Carnegie Takes an Interest In Small Colleges

LIBRARY DEMAND SLACK

Says Sport Is Taking the Place of Valuable Knowledge at Big Colleges--Favors Head Expansion Rather Than Football

New York, March 28.—Andrew Carnegie was the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the alumni of Stevens institute at the Hotel Astor last night. Dr. A. C. Humphries, president of Stevens, announced that Mr. Carnegie, in addition to the $290,000 which he has already given to the institute, would give $50,000 more, to which he himself would add $50,000 when the alumni raised $100,000.

Mr. Carnegie congratulated the alumni on having chosen a professional career and said in part: "I want to tell you gentlemen that your career is much higher than a speculative one. Stock gambling is not a business; it is a mere parasite on business.

"If I had a son, I should prefer to have him enter upon a professional career such as you chose rather than any other. I have been looking largely into small colleges of late and I have entered into the college business, as I not long ago entered into the library business. I did a rip-roaring business at the library stand, but I could look ahead and see the demand for libraries slacken. My secretary says that the demand is down to one library a day.

"I think a young man who goes to a small college receives a better education than at a large one. I like to see men not excelling in football or things pertaining to the foot, but excelling in head expansion. Sport is too generally taking the place of valuable knowledge at the big colleges.

"Since I have gone into the new business there has been a great boom. Within the past few days I have received more than 100 applications for the material I am sending to small colleges. Business, gentlemen, is promising."

All Hands on Short Rations

New York, March 28.—Owing to a misunderstanding as to the number of passengers she would carry when she left Havre, and because of unexpected delay due to rough seas and high winds, provisions ran short on steamer Quebec, which arrived last night with 488 steerage passengers. For five days the allowance of provisions for all hands had to be reduced. The Quebec left Havre provisioned for 15 days only. Her voyage occupied 21 days.

Alleged Swindler In Custody

New York, March 28.—Through the arrest last night of a man who is accused by the police as one of the most adept swindlers who ever came from the west, detectives believe they have the leader of a band of men who during the last three months have made $25,000 out of the postoffice department by using forged money orders. The prisoner gave the name of Louis Durckeheimer, 29 years old.

Killed Her Children to Marry

Paducah, Ky., March 28.—Mrs. Mary Brockwell, whose three children died from poisoning under suspicious circumstances last Saturday, has confessed that she gave the children morphine and coal oil. The woman's husband is in an asylum. She stated that George Alberton promised to marry her if she would get rid of the children. Alberton was arrested as an accessory.

Bad Times In Armenia

London, March 28.—Letters and consular reports received in London from Armenia state that the situation there is steadily growing worse. Business is at a standstill, few crops have been sown and Kurd raids on Armenian villages are unrestricted. The government is said to be demanding taxes with relentless severity and seizing even bedding and household necessities.

Town Reported Demolished

St. Paul, March 28.—A report has reached this city that the little town of Louisburg, in the extreme western portion of the state, has been practically wiped out by a tornado and that from two to seven persons were killed. Louisburg is a town of about 100 inhabitants and has neither telephone nor telegraph connection with the outside world.

Nova Scotia Miners to Strike

Spring Hill, N. S., March 28.—Officials of the Provincial Workmen's association, as well as officials of the Cumberland Railway and Coal company, admit that there is no possibility of avoiding a strike. The strike will call out not only the coal cutters affected by the reduction of 12 percent in wages, but the mechanics as well.

Steamer Abandoned at Sea

Azores, March 28.—The crew of the Norwegian steamer Coringa, which was lost at sea while bound to Halifax with a cargo of salt, from Barcelona and Cadiz, have arrived here. One of the men died before reaching this place. The Coringa was abandoned in a sinking condition.

New Governor of Tennessee

Nashville, March 28.—Governor Frazier last evening resigned his office, having been elected United States senator, and John I. Cox, speaker of the state senate, was sworn in as governor.

CHAPTER XVIII—(Continued.)

"Was the nurse's name Eliza Stokes?"

"No. It was—let me see, some Scotch name—Jane Fraser, I think."

"Ah! Then Eliza Stokes was not at Como?"

"I never saw her. Mr. Vane told me that you had had another nurse, but that he had to dismiss her at Milan for impertinence."

George saw that Miss Bull was not keeping strictly to the truth, and corrected her at once, "You knew Eliza Stokes at San Remo?"

"So I did, I quite forgot." Miss Bull put her hand to her head, with a puzzled air. "But since my illness I have forgotten so much. It is all a blank to me."

Brendon remembered that she had been in an asylum, and thought that her mind was still weak. It might be that after all she had not told an untruth, but had quite forgotten Eliza Stokes. George was confirmed in his supposition by her next remark.

"Eliza Stokes. I remember. Mrs. Jersey."

"You knew she was Mrs. Jersey?"

"Yes. That was why I came to this house."

"Did you like her then?"

Miss Bull's eyes flashed. "She was another Violet. I hated her. Oh, how I hated her! I found her through my sister mentioning that Lord Derrington had given her this house, so I came here to board."

"But your sister knows nothing about you. She says you ran away and that it was supposed you were dead."

Miss Bull laughed bitterly. "My sister knows perfectly well that I live here, but it suits her to disown the relationship. It is my wish also, and for that reason I changed my name."

"But if you hated Mrs. Jersey"—

"I did—I did, but she was the only person who could talk about Mr. Vane. She loved him also, but not as I did, and we have talked for hours in this very room. We quarreled, certainly, but at times she was very nice. I miss our talks greatly."

"Did she know who killed him?"

Miss Bull shook her head. "No. She never knew. No one ever knew. I sometimes thought that Violet—but she declared that he left her at the door of the ballroom."

"Miss Bull," said George, growing impatient of this disconnected recital, "will you go on with your story?"

"Story—yes, it is a story—a sad romance." She passed her hand again over her forehead as though wearied and resumed with an effort. "Mr. Vane left Como and came to Milan; afterward he went on to San Remo. My father, who liked his society, joined him there. We stopped at the Hotel d'Angleterre. Eliza Stokes was a housemaid there, and it was while attending to our bedroom that she told me she had been your nurse. She was a large, stout girl, with red cheeks. As Mrs. Jersey she was vastly improved, but as a girl"— Miss Bull shuddered in a prim way and continued: "Yet, she had her admirers. A waiter, called George Rates, wished to marry her. She had accepted him, but while within sight of Mr. Vane she could not love him."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, Eliza used to spy on Mr. Vane and follow him in his walks. She was quite insane about him. I told Mr. Vane, and he kept away from the hotel. And George Rates was jealous of Eliza's love for Mr. Vane. But he never loved her, nor Violet—he loved no one but me."

"And he told you so at the masked ball?"

"Yes. There was to be a masked ball, and both Violet and I were anxious to go. We made a friend of Eliza, and she got us two blue dominos. That we might recognize one another we each wore a sprig of yellow holly. My father was supposed to know nothing about the matter, but we told a young Oxford cousin of ours. He met us at the ball and afterward took Violet away. I found Mr. Vane, and we danced together. He did not know me at first, but afterward, when we went into a quiet room, I unmasked. He was vexed at first that I and Violet should come to the ball unattended, as he said my father would be so angry, which was quite true. Then he told me that he loved me and asked me to become his wife. I accepted, and he kissed me."

"Did he speak of his first wife—of my mother?"

"Yes. He told me how dearly he had loved her."

"Did he say where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No. I never thought to ask him. I always thought there was a marriage—why should I not?—until I later heard that Lord Derrington denied that such had taken place. But that was after I came out of the asylum," added Miss Bull, with a troubled air, "so it might be my fancy."

"No. It is true. Lord Derrington did deny the marriage, but he now recognizes that it took place. We wish to find where."

"I cannot help you, Mr. Brendon. Mr. Vane never mentioned it to me. He told me that he loved me. Then he went away to get me an ice and said he would take me home and return for Violet. I waited, but as he did not appear I went to look for him. He was gone"—

"With your sister?"

"Yes," said Miss Bull, clinching her fists. "Violet overheard a part of our conversation. She had just come down from the box of the Marchesa Beltrami"—

"That was where she unmasked and Mr. Ireland recognized her."

"She must have seen me with Mr. Vane," continued Miss Bull, taking no notice of this interruption, "so she stole behind us and heard what we were to one another. Then she slipped on her mask and followed Mr. Vane. She said she did not want an ice, but that she desired to go home at once. Mr. Vane wanted to wait for her"—

"For Violet?"

"Yes. He thought that I had run after him, and as Violet wore a blue domino with the sprig of holly he fancied she was I."

"I understand. So he took her home."

"She said he left her at the door and then came back to look for—for Violet," said Miss Bull contemptuously. "She disguised her voice, and he quite thought she was myself. But from what Mr. Ireland said, Mr. Vane saw Violet home to the gates of the hotel. I waited for a time, and as your father did not come back I ran home alone. Violet was in our bedroom and said that Mr. Vane had left her at the door of the ballroom and had gone back for me. Then the next morning we heard of the murder. I never knew until you told me how Violet had managed to get Mr. Vane away from me."

"She tricked you," said George sympathizingly.

"She tricked every one. When I heard of your father's death I fell very ill. The world became a blank to me. When I came to myself I was in an asylum. Then I grew better and was let out. My father died, and an annuity was allowed to me. I heard about Mrs. Jersey taking this house, and, wishing for some one to talk to about your father, I came here, and here I have been ever since."

"Then you do not know who killed my father?"

"No." Miss Bull shook her head. "He was struck down on the parade when returning to the ballroom. It must have been after he saw my sister home."

"Do you think Mrs. Ward knows the truth?"

"She might. Perhaps some one followed, and Violet might have been mistaken for some other person. I know there was a married woman in San Remo deeply in love with Mr. Vane"—

"What an attractive man he must have been!"

"Oh, he was the handsomest man in the world," cried Miss Bull, with genuine enthusiasm, "and so kind! No wonder Eliza Stokes loved him. But he loved no one but me—no one but me!"

"What did Eliza Stokes say when she heard of his death?"

"Oh, she almost went out of her mind! I did altogether," said poor Miss Bull, with a wan smile. "And as they found her a nuisance in the hotel she went away. George Rates went also."

"Did she marry him?"

"No. I asked her when I met her here as Mrs. Jersey. She said that she returned to England and that Rates had been run over and killed in the street. She then went to America and married Mr. Jersey. He died and left her some money. Then she set up this house."

"So she said nothing of the annuity from Lord Derrington?"

"No. It wasn't to her interest to do so. She could hold her tongue when she liked."

George rose to go. "Thank you for telling me so much, Miss Bull," he said. "What was the name of the foreign woman who loved my father?"

"Oh, she was a common woman who kept a shop. Velez was the name."

"Velez!" cried George, and added to himself, "So that is how Lola knows."

North American Investment Company Increases Its Security Deposit to $500,000.

[Special Despatch to the Globe-Democrat.]

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 24,—G. L. Williams, treasurer of the North American investment company of the United States, the home office of which corporation is in St. Louis, was here today and increased the company's deposit with Hon. John F. Gmelich, treasurer of the State of Missouri, to $500,000 for the security of the company's boudholders. Only a few months ago Mr. Williams increased this deposit to $350,000; and the half million figure now reached is the best possible evidence of the growth and prosperity of the North American investment company and the popularity among savings investors of the company's 5 per cent interest-bearing gold bonds. The deposit thus placed with the chief financial officer of Missouri is the largest made by any similar company in the world.

WOMEN'S CLUB.

Jeffrey R. Brackett Outlines Work.

Advocates a Visiting Nurse.

Club Should Exist for Intelligent and Purposeful Service.

The large Brackett house on Goffe street, with a considerable lot around it, is about to be given to several trustees of a corporation, to be used for the benefit of this community, for educational and philanthropic purposes. The land is a portion of the Brackett homestead. The house which has unusually large rooms was built about fifty years ago. It is to be placed in the care of the newly formed Quincy Women's Club to be used as its clubhouse. The expectations is that other agencies for educational and philanthropic purposes will make it a center for work.

On Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the First church, Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett addressed the Women's club on "Possibilities of social service." He began with an allusion to a dream in which his great-grandmother in the seventh generation back, one of the little band of settlers of the ancient north precinct of Braintree, now Quincy, had questioned him as to the meaning of a woman's club. "In her time," she said, "men considered such things as clubs unworthy. The women were exhorted to be home-makers and to do good works in a quiet manner."

The visitation of this ancient lady led Mr. Brackett to dwell on the changes in community life in the New England towns, as between old Braintree and Quincy of today. Until two generations ago, the New England town was a small community, comparatively isolated. There was usually one church only, and nearly all the inhabitants were nominally if not actually its members. There were only a few schools. The men all met in town meeting and the older boys looked on—an education in the rudiments of democratic government. It was a homogeneous people, each knowing somewhat of all. There was a strong sense of community life, of civic obligation. There was much true neighborliness and reciprocity of services.

Today, in contrast, Quincy is a city, growing fast. There are a score of churches, of many denominations, each with its own activities; the children are divided up among a score of schools, public and private; the government is a representative one. Under such conditions, there is less neighborliness and knowledge of one another; there are many and increasing problems incident to modern society.

There are active today, as always, the great forces of human kindness and social obligation. How to develop and use these forces, in order to answer best the problems of modern society, is a duty resting on the earnest members of each community. Happily, the use of scientific methods for the acquisition of knowledge is giving us advantages that our grandfathers never dreamed of. In the larger and more complicated communities, today, there is need of organization, for acquisition and spread of knowledge, for economy of effort in the uses of the great forces of human kindness and social obligation. In this women have taken and should take an important place.

A healthy woman's club may be likened to a healthy individual—it should enjoy recreation, but it should exist for intelligent and purposeful service. Recognizing the inter-dependence of all members in a community, it should work in every possible way to better the common life. Much has been done by healthy women's clubs, more still can be done by them. The first step for a club is to recognize plainly this reason for its being and adopt this as a definite policy to govern its action. Then careful study should be made of local conditions and needs and efforts should be made to fill some of the needs which are most pressing. A club should not undertake too much and should believe in the educational value of doing well even the little things.

As an illustration of such work as a woman's club may well do, Mr. Brackett spoke of instructive visiting nursing. Sickness is a leading cause among the poor of worry and of want. Communities can do much by sanitation to prevent illness; hospitals are absolutely necessary for the treatment of many ills; but there is a large place in every community to be filled by the nurse well trained, with experience and commonsense, working in the homes of those who cannot or should not be sent to a hospital.

Her work will not merely be professional but will be instructive in the preparation of food, in the care of the sick room and in many ways which are most important for proper treatment of illness. No form of service for others is more satisfactory to thoughtful persons than the provision of such nursing. A nurse visits from eight to dozen patients a day, spending time varying with the particular need.

There are some persons who should have trained nursing who cannot afford to pay for constant care but can pay for visits daily. The cost of maintaining a nurse is not great; the good results from one are great indeed. In Quincy the hope is earnestly expressed that the Woman's club may be able to arouse interest which will result soon in starting instructive visiting nursing.

Many ways of such useful service can be found in every community, calling not so much for large sums of money as for general interest. Few persons realize the opportunities that are open all around us. A purposeful woman's club can search out these. Information as to best ways of work, the experience of other communities and workers, can be given by addresses.

There is a growing literature, standard and current, on philanthropic work. Interest the public library to get these, for circulation among all.

With all the changes, woman is not changing her nature. There are some new possibilities and duties—but not a new woman! And men must not be allowed to think that philanthropic work is essentially woman's work. It is work for good citizens all. The men are needed in it; and they need it for themselves, and men and women should learn to work at these things together.

Quincy is an old and honored community. It has stood for much civic service, for wise uses of the public school, for tolerance and liberality in religion. May the women from all parts of this community, of all creeds, now show what organization of women can do to advance knowledge and neighborliness, making for the good that was in the old New England life with all the advantages in the life of today.

The ladies showed their appreciation of Dr. Brackett's remarks by hearty applause. At the close of the meeting an informal reception was held Mrs. E. C. Bumpus president of the club and Dr. and Mrs. Brackett receiving. It was a pleasure to many to renew acquaintance with Dr. Brackett and to all to meet him and his charming wife.

During the spring several more meetings of the club will be held and the Brackett home will be open for inspection on several days before repairs are begun.

THINGS DOING.

Good Progress Being Made While Building is Uncompleted.

Plans for the opening of the completed Y. M. C. A. building are maturing, as the carpenters will be through in a few days and the painters and decorators are close at their heels.

Already six men are occupying the new dormitories in the building, which on an average net the association $2.60 per week.

Here are some of the things doing at the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association.

In an unfinished building with workmen about. there are 220 members, of whom 50 are boys and 170 men.

Conducting 11 gymnasium classes weekly for business men, young men, High school boys, working boys and Juniors. Weekly average in classes, 190; daily average, 38.

Bowling alleys immensely attractive; 3214 strings bowled since opening Jan. 28.

Four educational classes with enrollment of 70; 60 different men; 13 different nationalities; ages range from 16 to 45; average age 22. Average attendance large and work done remarkably satisfactory. International examinations participated in.

Four men's meetings held Sunday afternoons in the gymnasium, averaging 140.

Five boys' Bible classes, average 5 each.

Teachers' class.

GRAND CONCERT.

The Best Yet by Wollaston Glee Club.

Good Work Also by the Soloists.

The Violinist and the Quartet Appreciated.

A large house greeted the Wollaston Glee club at the Congregational church at Wollaston, on Wednesday evening, and all were pleased with the fine entertaiment given.

The Glee Club showed improvement and the verdict of musical experts was that the concert was the best yet. Several of the choruses were encored, and were repeated in part. Owing to the inability of Mr. J. A. Crowley, the conductor, to be with the club on this occasion, the concert was conducted very satisfactorily by Mr. Bertram C. Henry, and the accompanist was Mrs. Mira Richards Moulton, who added to the success of the entertainment.

Up and Away (March)	Adam Geibel
Dan Cupid and Dame Fortune	C. Reinecke
Autumn Song	H. W. Martin
On the Sea	Dudley Buck
The Oyster	Charles P. Scott
Honey I wants Yer Now	Collin Coe
Blackbird Song	Frank N. Shepperd

Alma Faunce Smith played the accompaniment.

The club was assisted by Mrs. Annie Estelle Hollis, the favorite soprano, and Mr. William Howard of Boston, the talented violinist, and the numbers by both artists were greatly appreciated. Both were encored and responded to.

The quartette which was so much enjoyed was composed of Messrs E. E. Bullock, A. R. Moulton, H. E. Follett and H. I. Hahn. They substituted two nursery rhymes for the "Winter song."

The audience was also greatly pleased with the solos by Mr. A. L. Hayden, of Quincy, member of the club. He was recalled each time.

TWO QUINCY CASES.

Infant Dies This Morning of Cerebro-spinal Meningitis.

Two cases of cerebro-spinal menengitis have been reported to the Board of Health this week, one of which resulted fatally this morning. The first case was that of James Hickey, aged 21 years, an employe at the Fore River works. He was taken sick the first of the week and was removed to the City Hospital on Tuesday where he now is.

The other case was Stephen, the six months old son of Thomas H. Palmer of 306 Beale street. The child was taken with a cold early in the week. It grew rapidly worse and Wednesday was diagnosed as cerebro-spinal meningitis. The child died this morning.

The family came to Quincy from New Brunswick a few weeks ago. The Board of Health are taking extra precaution to prevent the spread of the disease, and the Beale street house is quarantined.

In 1897, the year when the disease reached its maximum, there were three deaths in Quincy, 185 in Boston, 52 in Somerville, 14 in Wakefield, 20 in Cambridge, 10 in Chelsea and others.

North Atlantic Fleet.

The North Atlantic fleet of warships will be reorganized when Rear Admiral R. D. Evans assumes command at Pensocola this week, and Rear Admiral Barker retires from active service. The cruiser Des Moines, built at Quincy, will be assigned to the third squadron, fifth division, of which Rear Admiral Bradford will be commander. The Olympia will be the flagship, and in the division will be the Cleveland and Denver. The Macdonough and Lawrence both built at Quincy, will be in the flotilla of destroyers in the command of Lieutenant Commander Johnston.

FORE RIVER MEN.

Give a Concert Which is Largely Attended.

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at French hall at the concert under the auspices of the Fore River Select club. It was also the first public appearance of the Fore River band, which under the conductorship of Thomas Foley rendered several selections.

Among the artists who contributed to the evenings entertainment were: Charles O'Neil, Philip Pitts, William Brown, Carl A. Swanterson, J. Campbell, William Grant, Morris Mundy, J. Dougherty, Drum Major Dunn, Frank Dornan, J. J. Johnson, Thomas Duff, Tommy Doyle, Johnny Boyce, Samuel Jones, Lewis Proctor, Professor B. Dalton.

A comedy sketch by the "Fore River Four" was one of the hits of the evening. The title was "Lost the last train in Dry Town."

After the entertainment there was a social hour during which refreshments were served. Two house lots at South Braintree were awarded to Edward J. Murphy, the druggist.

EX-SELECTMEN.

But Five Living, No Two Having Served Together.

The only living ex-Selectmen of Quincy are:

Charles N. Ditson, first elected in 1871, who served one year.

John C. A. Field, first elected in 1872, who served four years.

Charles H. Porter, first elected in 1879, who served two years.

George H. Field, first elected in 1882, who served five years.

Walter H. Ripley, first elected in 1887 who served the last two years of the town government.

There is not a single board where all members are living, or in fact where there are two members, therefore the five men represent 14 boards of Selectmen out of the last 18 years of the town government.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Nearly all public wrongs grow out of the indifferences of the people. There are many who thrill with patriotic fervor at the thought of going to war and risking their lives for their country, but who forget to vote on election day. The patriotism of peace is just as necessary as the patriotism of war. The patriotism of the ballot is even more necessary in a free country than the patriotism of a bullet. Plenty of men will die for their country, but the man who will live for his city and state every day is the man good government needs.—Gov. Folk of Missouri.

☞ A son of President Schurman, of Cornell, has been turned out to earn his own living. He is 19 years old, and working for a blacksmith at 75 cents a day. In college he showed no aptitude for study, and being an utter failure as a student he was sent away. His father decided to make an example of him and told the boy he must earn his own living, which he is trying to do. He will not have much money to spend after paying his board out of his weekly stipend of $4.50, but he is learning a trade, and having acquired that there may awake in his mind a desire for knowledge that will make him more effective. He told the boss that he wanted to be a mechanical engineer, and he has taken the preliminary step in that direction. He might have done the same thing in Cornell, for the university is well equipped with mechanical plants. The course of this young prodigal will be followed with interest by reason of his relationship to the President of Cornell.—Lynn Item.

AN OVERDRAFT.

The Reason For a Peculiar Request Received by a Bank.

"We often receive peculiar requests for overdrafts," said a banker the other day. "A client whose standing account had never exceeded $1,000 requested us to grant him an overdraft of $4,000, stating that he was not able to offer any explanation at the present, but assured us that at no time would the bank be in any danger of losing, as the overdraft would not be real.

"After some hesitancy we consented, but stipulated certain conditions and reserved the privilege of refusing if these conditions were not followed.

"Shortly after his departure a well dressed gentleman came in and handed to our paying teller a check for $5,000 bearing the signature of our client and with it a letter requesting us to honor the check with cash. This letter was one of the conditions we imposed for our safety. Still feeling that we were taking a chance, the money was passed out to him. After holding the currency a moment in his hands he returned it, with a request for the check, which he destroyed before us.

"On the following day our client thanked us for our courtesy and waived the overdraft privilege, saying that he had no further use for it. He had with him a check for $5,000, which he deposited. This he had won from his friend on a bet. He had bet that he could negotiate an overdraft for that amount without first explaining that it was a bet and the nature of it, and his friend wagered that no bank would trust him for that amount."—Kansas City Star.

DEMANDING HELP

American Interests In Santo Domingo Are Threatened

DELAY ON THE TREATY

Senators Unwilling to Have It Interpreted as Abandonment of the Island to Chaos--Minority Support Difficult to Get

Washington, March 30.—The decision of the administration to accept Santo Domingo's proposal was not reached without protracted debate, in which dissent from this policy was vigorously presented. It was declared to be a fundamental fallacy to regard Morales, or anybody else, as at the head of a rebel government in the republic, or anything which could be properly called a government.

While the arrangement now adopted does not commit the United States to the cause of Morales, it clearly lends him a certain moral support, and to doing this objection was expressed. But the real argument which influenced the members of the conference, including most of the cabinet and four influential senators, was the feeling that under international law, during the pendency of a treaty, it was the duty of the parties to it to preserve the status quo; that Santo Domingo could not honorably permit any course of action to be adopted which would prove inconsistent with the ultimate settlement of the case along the lines laid down in the treaty pending.

Accordingly, the administration has decided to take its part, responding to the request of Morales, in maintaining a status which will be compatible with the ratification of the treaty, and not greatly troublesome should the treaty fail.

One point which the administration feels that it has gained is the support of certain leaders of the senate, whom it did not really have before, notably Mr. Spooner. The policy was not entered into until the distinct and affirmative approval had been gained of Lodge, Spooner, Foraker and Knox, of the foreign relations committee of the senate. They make this their plan. Lodge was, of course, already friendly to the administration's policy, but the others were more or less lukewarm.

There was laid before these men the complicating circumstances, the American interests on the island which are demanding help, and the insistent pressure from foreign governments that we do something; the senators were asked what course the administration should take. To do less than this, it was argued, would be a virtual abandonment of the treaty to defeat and of the affairs of the island to chaos.

The senators present, and the same thing is true of some southern Democrats, did not desire to have their postponement of the treaty interpreted so seriously. They were unwilling to take that degree of responsibility. In fact, individual opponents of the treaty have been to the White House since adjournment to urge that no steps be taken which would imply that the senate had done more than to postpone consideration till October. That will be soon enough, it was argued, at the recent conference, to turn the islands and its affairs loose, in case the ultimate decision of the senate is adverse to the president's policy.

Wide difference of opinion exists as to whether ratification is made probable by this action. It would have been made practically impossible had the administration turned the island adrift now. But the president's course is already severely criticised as an attempt to do by executive authority what the senate had neglected to give its consent for, and the Democratic minority in the senate, with its first taste of victory, may be unwilling to let go. With the two-thirds' requirement for the ratification of the treaty, and certain Republican places vacant, some support must be had from the minority. Could a prominent minority member of the foreign relations committee have been present at the recent conference, and given his approval to the decision, the case before the country would have been much stronger. But this minority support would have been difficult to secure. Mr. Morgan's hostility is unrelenting, while Bacon even voted against the second draft of the Hay-Pauncefote instrument, putting an end to the vexatious Clayton-Bulwer treaty. The minority have thus loaded the foreign relations committee with men whose ultra-partisanship makes the two-thirds' requirement especially severe. The administration is by no means confident of success of the treaty now that it has taken this step to maintain conditions favorable to its carrying out, in the event of ratification in October.

Further Exposure of Graft

Pittsburg, March 30.—In addition to the five Allegheny police officials who were held for court in the "graft" crusade, T. B. Scandrett, director of public safety, has been held for court under $1000 bail. John Reagan testified that Scandrett accepted $100 from him and gave him permission to open and run a gambling house.

Coal Tax Bill Shelved

Harrisburg, March 30.—The house ways and means committee of the Pennsylvania legislature voted to indefinitely postpone further consideration of the bill taxing coal 3 cents a ton, which disposes of the measure for the present legislative session.

RETENTION FAVORED

Further Protest Against Rockefeller Gift to Be Allowed

Boston, March 30.—John D. Rockefellers gift of $100,000 to the American Board is to be retained. This was the decision reached at the meeting of the prudential committee and embodied in a statement which was issued from the office of the board.

The statement is in the form of a report, which was presented to the full prudential committee by the special sub-committee which had in charge the protests made by a committee of Congregational ministers. The report was presented at the meeting Tuesday afternoon and was accepted as expressing the unanimous judgment of the prudential committee and the executive officers.

It is stated, however, that inasmuch as the protesting ministers and a few corporate members have requested delay, the prudential committee will hold final action in abeyance for two weeks. A copy of the report has been sent to Rev. Daniel Evans, chairman of the committee of protesting ministers. This committee, it is understood, is far from satisfied with the outcome of its protest and will proceed to draft an even more urgent protest against the retention of the gift.

Held For Vermont Court

Boston, March 30.—There was a brief hearing before Commissioner Fiske in the case of James S. Fosbre, who was arrested here on the charge of smuggling Canadian-made clothes into the United States. A copy of his indictment in the United States circuit court of Vermont was shown to Commissioner Fiske, and the defendant was held in $1000 for the present session of that court at Burlington, Vt. Fosbre is a representative for the tailoring concern of Gibb & Co. of Montreal.

Big Ice Jam In Merrimack

Manchester, N. H., March 30.—An ice jam which formed in the Merrimack river above the Amoskeag bridge backed the water up behind it until all the mills below had to close down for lack of water, and finally tipped over the Cygnet Boat clubhouse. The ice came down the river in one gigantic field and after it jammed the water above it rose seven feet in 10 minutes. The jam held firm for half an hour, when it suddenly broke and released the water, removing all danger.

Charged With Stealing Mail

Boston, March 30.—Frank O. Pierce of Somerville was taken into custody by postoffice inspectors on the charge of stealing letters containing money. He was a clerk on a night mail train which arrived from New York by way of Providence. Prior to his appointment to the railway mail service in 1901, he worked in the mailing division of the Boston postoffice and he has worked on the mail cars on the Newton circuit.

Sugged and Thrown Overboard

New London, Conn., March 30.—The autopsy on the body of Charles H. Wittier, taken from the waters of Winthrop cove, showed that death resulted from drowning and not from blows upon the head. Wittier was probably stunned and it is supposed his assailants, believing him dead, threw him overboard. Four men are under arrest on suspicion.

Wreckers Make Good Progress

Block Island, R. I., March 30.—The lightering of the cargo of the stranded steamer Spartan continues and the wreckers have taken out 1200 of the 1500 tons of freight which the steamer had on board. It is hoped that the steamer will be completely cleared of freight today, so that the work of patching the holes along her keel can be begun.

Found Dead at Switchboard

New Britain, Conn., March 30.—Thomas Haynes, an assistant engineer in a local power house, was found dead at the switch board. According to the medical examiner, he died of an electric shock. A small burn on his forehead was the only mark on his body.

Express Companies Raided

Rockland, Me., March 30.—In his application of the prohibitory statute. Sheriff Tolman visited the local offices of two express companies and seized an assortment of liquors amounting to 15 or 20 gallons. The agents were notified to appear in court.

Registration Not Necessary

Boston, March 30.—That a citizen of the state not registered as a voter, but entitled to such registration, is eligible to be a candidate for public office was the ruling handed down in the supreme court by Judge Loring.

Hay Feels Much Better

Gibraltar, March 30.—Steamer Cretic, from New York for Naples, with Secretary of State Hay on board, has arrived here. In an interview Mr. Hay said he felt much better than when he left New York. He thoroughly enjoyed his trip. Although Hay has improved, he has by no means recovered his health.

Baxley Loses His Position

Baltimore, March 30.—The American says that, as a consequence of his arrest at Portland, Me., on the charge of impersonating another in a medical examination, Dr. Haughton Baxley of this city has been expelled from his professorship in the Baltimore university school of medicine.

A Steamer's Odd Cargo

New York, March 30.—Steamer Gneisenau arrived in port last night, direct from Bremen, with 95 cabin and 2073 steerage passengers. She also brought a large collection of wild animals, reptiles and snakes, which filled a whole compartment on the vessel.

PANAMA COMMISSION

President to Have Free Hand In Its Reorganization

Washington, March 30.—The first practical step having in view the reorganization of the Panama canal commission was taken when, in compliance with instructions from President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft requested the members of the commission to tender their resignations. This request was promptly complied with by those members of the commission now in Washington and their resignations will be in the hands of the president today.

As indicated in the letter of Taft, the resignations are requested in order that the president may have a free hand in reorganizing the commission. That the president contemplated the reorganization of the commission has been known for some time and he has been in frequent consultation with Taft as to his future policy in choosing its personnel and directing its work. The appointments probably will be announced by the president during the progress of his southern trip.

The members of the present commission, in addition to General Davis, governor of the canal zone, are Rear Admiral Walker of the navy, retired, chairman; W. B. Parsons, W. H. Burr, B. M. Harrod and C. E. Grunsky.

Disbelieves In Sectarianism

New York, March 30.—The Times prints an interview with Andrew Carnegie, in the course of which Carnegie declared that sectarian foundations were not eligible to his gifts. He added: "Most of the colleges which started as sectarian foundations have broadened their basis voluntarily and, while still sectarian in name, perhaps, admit students of all creeds. In the case of a school so strictly guarded that it made the acceptance of its tenets a condition of matriculation, it would not interest me."

Character Revealed by Accident

Paris, March 30.—A man suspected of being the author of the recent bomb outrage, when members of the republican guards and of the police were wounded, has been arrested. The man is a waiter out of employment, who was engaged yesterday in preparing a bomb, which exploded, severely injuring him. A search of his residence resulted in the finding of anarchist documents and the police have proof that at the time the outrage occurred he was employed in the neighborhood.

Means Idleness For 45,000 Miners

Altoona, Pa., March 30.—The operators and miners of the central bituminous district of Pennsylvania, after being in conference in this city almost continuously since March 16, endeavoring to agree upon a wage scale to go into effect April 1, have adjourned finally without coming to an agreement. The failure to agree means a suspension of work by the 45,000 organized miners of the district at the end of the present month.

Frills and Fads Cut Out

New York, March 30.—The board of education has voted to reduce the hours of study for pupils in the first year of the elementary schools of this city from five to 3½ hours a day and abolish such studies as have been termed "frills and fads." This does away during the first year with the teaching of sewing, physical training, organized games, physiology and hygiene.

A Gubernatorial Veto

Lincoln, Neb., March 30.—Governor Mickey last evening sent to the house a veto of the McMullen bill for the regulation of the practice of medicine in Nebraska. The bill is also known as "the anti-Christian science bill." The governor says that he believes the bill to be in violation of religious toleration and freedom.

Disturbances May Spread

St. Petersburg, March 30.—The disturbances at Yalta, in the Crimea, were largely fomented by Social Democrats. The same organization, which includes 8000 workmen at Yalta, is inuential at other large industrial cities and apprehension is felt lest the Yalta example may be followed at other places.

Rumor of Czar's Attempt at Suicide

Paris, March 30.—An unconfirmed rumor from St. Petersburg is published here to the effect that the czar made an attempt to commit suicide and wounded himself in the hand. The rumor further says that the czar's design was frustrated by the intervention of his mother, the empress dowager.

Woolen Manufacturer Fails

Indianapolis, March 30.—Daniel Chenoweth, majority stockholder of the Eclipse woolen mills of Louisville and the Indiana Woolen Manufacturing company of this city, both of which failed last week, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy here, with liabilities amounting to $362,014.

Would Leave Nothing to Relatives

Lacrosse, Wis., March 30.—Confessing that she had burned her house and money because she intended to kill herself and did not want to leave anything whereby her relatives could profit at her death, Charlotte Wolf, aged 74, has been adjudged insane and committed to an asylum.

Decline of Russian Securities

St. Petersburg, March 30.—Russian 4s took a further sharp drop yesterday to 83 1-4, closing 2 1-4 points below Tuesday's low mark. Other government securities and industrials suffered in sympathy, and there was considerable excitement on the bourse.

CITY BREVITIES.

Miss Mary Carruthers is confined to her home on Spear street.

The City Council Committee on State Aid will meet Friday evening.

The city road scraper was put to work on Hancock street this morning.

The granite manufacturers and the cutters of Cape Ann have reached an agreement.

The frost is nearly all out of the ground and farmers have commenced to put their garden seed in.

The funeral of Harry C. Foster, formerly of Quincy, will be held at Salem tomorrow at 2.30 P. M.

Mrs. R. G. Staples and children are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carruthers on Spear street, while their home on Edison Park is being prepared.

Mrs. W. S. Goodale of Medford, Mass., past department President of the Woman's Relief Corps, has been the guest of her brother, F. C. Goldthwaite, the past week.

James H. Lally, superintendent of the painting department of the Fore River Co., who accompanied the steamer Providence on her trip to New York, returned to Quincy on Wednesday.

Chelsea's increasing birth-rate has made necessary the building of still another school, in addition to the two recently constructed. The number of births in Chelsea increased from 900 in 1899 to 1050 in 1904, and were 5,063 in the five years, 1899-1904. This beats Quincy whose high water mark was 811 in 1903.

So many complaints have been made about the Squantum car that a petition for a new car is about to be entered with a convincing number of signatures at the bottom of it. The present conveyance—it does not merit the appellation of car—is a menace to healthy comfort, and convenience. It rattles so mightily on its course that the bric-a-brac in the houses even so far as Walker street shakes and trembles, and the residents of Newbury avenue and Billings street fear for the plastering the jar is so vigorous.

Flagship's Services May Be Needed

Washington, March 30.—An American man-of-war will be sent to Port au Prince to protect the American interests. This determination was arrived at when a cablegram from Minister Powell stated that serious trouble is impending in Haiti and it is doubtful whether the authorities can maintain peace and order.

Murder Mystery Unsolved

Kingston, N. Y., March 30.—The mystery surrounding the identity of the young woman whose body was found in Wallkill creek remains unsolved. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that death resulted from a blow on the head inflicted with a blunt instrument by some person unknown.

Wedding Checked by Death

Jamestown, N. Y., March 30.—Rev. Albert Lundberg of Scandia, Pa., who was here preparing for his marriage to Miss Hulda Fritz of this city, dropped dead yesterday afternoon. The wedding was to have been celebrated last night. Heart disease was given as the cause.

Nations of the Earth Invited

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. AS WAR MEDIATOR

No American Official Willing to Hold the Position

JAPAN GETS A WARNING

Indirect Peace Negotiations Likely to Lead to International Conference, Which Would Be Harmful to Both Belligerents

Washington, March 30.—Neither Russia nor Japan has asked President Roosevelt to assist in ending the war. So far as the Washington government is aware, the czar has not yet weakened in his announced decision "to prosecute the war to the bitter end."

The genuine wish of this government for peace in the far east is not based upon selfish interests. American financiers have not overloaded themselves with the bonds of either of the belligerent nations. Washington believes that it is to the advantage of both belligerents that the far eastern war come to a speedy end, and anything that this government can do to bring that about will be done gladly.

From the outset of the war the president has taken the position, as has been repeatedly announced by Secretary Hay, that he will do anything in his power to assist Russia and Japan to a peace basis when his services shall be acceptable to the belligerents. But it is authoritatively stated that no official of the Washington government is ambitious to pose as the mediator between the czar and mikado.

It is the feeling here that Russia and Japan should negotiate directly and avoid an international conference. This opinion also prevails in Berlin. Indeed, Japan has recently received an urgent warning against indirect negotiations, lest they lead to an international conference, the results of which might prove disastrous to the interests of both belligerents.

There is authority for the statement that France is diligently striving to end the war, and for six weeks past negotiations of the most confidential character have been in progress between Paris and St. Petersburg. Even diplomats of the highest rank have failed to obtain from M. Delcasse, the French foreign minister, the results of these negotiations, but it can be announced on the same authority that Count Lamsdorff, the Russian minister for foreign affairs, has within a week admitted that he had in a general way outlined to Delcasse the general terms along which Russia might consent to consider peace.

Advices from Europe tell of the fear prevalent there in certain quarters that the activities of Lamsdorff and Delcasse are directed toward an international conference to be held in some neutral European capital, such as Stockholm, where peace negotiations might be conducted. It is said that this move has, in a measure, been blocked by the refusal of Japan to give any indication as to the peace terms she would accept until positively assured, in the name of the czar himself, that Russia is prepared to negotiate in good faith for peace. Not only does Japan insist upon this assurance, but she prefers to negotiate directly with St. Petersburg.

With the United States, Germany and Japan opposed to an international conference to end the war, the belief is strong in Washington that successful peace negotiations will date from the day St. Petersburg communicates with Tokio direct. The Washington government is alertly watching for the opportunity to assist Russia and Japan in getting into diplomatic communication. Thus would an international conference be avoided and the United States would be in a better position to insist upon the maintenance of the integrity and administrative entity of China. No negotiations involving an attack upon this principle can be acquiesced in by the United States.

Diplomats Have Nothing to Say

St. Petersburg, March 30.—Officially the authorities continue to deny that Russia has made any proposals to Japan. This is literally true, as Russia has only made known the negative conditions, leaving the intermediary to convey these conditions on its own responsibility to Japan. Diplomats in St. Petersburg are convinced that something is in progress, but none of those in a position to know will acknowledge that they are aware what has actually been or is being done.

Doings at War Front

St. Petersburg, March 30.—There has been no fighting of importance latterly. Reconnaissances establish the fact that the Japanese are gathering in heavy force 20 miles south of Sipinghai, evidently intending to attack the Russian position at Sipinghai. The Japanese are approaching Kirin, threatening the communications in the Ussuri district. Chinese report that Field Marshal Oyama has issued proclamations fixing the date for the occupation of Harbin as April 10.

Sees Vast Conspiracy

Philadelphia, March 30.—J. H. McNeal, receiver of the Provident Investment Bureau, states that federal officials, assisted by the receivers of the Storey Cotton company and the Provident Investment Bureau, expect to have in their possession in a few days evidence of a widespread conspiracy to defraud the public through the medium of "get-rich-quick" concerns.

MRS. INA M. LOWRY.

You Can Feel Better at Once!

When everything seems an effort, when you feel tired most of the time, when you wake up every morning as tired as when you went to bed,—then there is something wrong.

Nature is protesting against some neglect or some abuse.

Nature protests more often against nerve neglect than any other cause.

Remember, your strength is not in your muscles—the muscles simply work when the Nerve Force tells them to.

Even your brain does not work by itself—the substance in your brain cells must have energy to do its work; this energy must be nerve force—the same great power-of-life that controls every organ of the body.

Every form of weakness, or sickness, or disease, comes from a lack of Nerve Force to keep the organs working properly.

When one speaks of "a good constitution," one simply means a strong, healthy nerve system.

When the nerve system is not strong and well-nourished, it follows inevitably that one is easily "over-worked"—easily run down—just as Mrs. Lowry describes.

"For several months my system had been run down and I felt all worn out, tired, did not feel able to get out of bed in the morning and felt just as tired when I got up as when I retired. Had no appetite and looked pale and sallow. A friend who had used Paine's Celery Compound a couple of years ago, and who recommended it very highly, induced me to try it. I felt better at once and I found that at the end of six weeks it had changed me into a well woman, and I cannot say too much in its praise. I shall take a bottle every Spring and Fall and feel sure that it is all the medicine I shall need. Very truly yours,"—Mrs. Ina M. Lowry, 3109 Dunham Ave., Kansas City, Mo. (Worthy Matron Order of Eastern Star; Rec. Sec. Kansas City Friendly Aid Society.)

Paine's Celery Compound is giving new Nerve Force to thousands every day by feeding and restoring the nerves to their full strength. It never fails to build up the run down system to full, ruddy health.

Two days' treatment proves its marvelous power. You feel better at once.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day. Take just one dose when you go to face the hard part of the day's trials.

See how much better you feel.

See how much more easily the trials roll away.

Paine's Celery Compound feeds the nerves—restores them to their strength—gives them new power to send vitality and health to every part of your body, new courage to your heart, new animation to your brain.

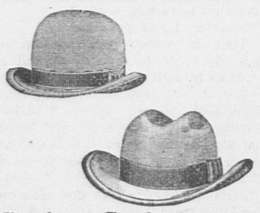

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

UTILIZE NEW IDEAS

Mill Owners Announce Determination to Do So

REASONS ARE EXPLAINED

Claim That Improved Machinery Is For Best Interests of All Concerned and Has Become Absolutely Necessary

Fall River, Mass., March 30.—The Manufacturers' association has issued a statement on the weaving situation, saying in part:

"Every industry engaged in manufacturing any product which is confronted by a keen competition is forced to utilize every device and every new method proved to be of practical value to increase the production per capita and to improve the quality of the product, thereby making it possible to decrease the cost and at the same time maintain or increase the earnings of the operatives.

"To meet the extreme conditions affecting the business during the past few years, especially, they have introduced certain devices and adopted methods which will, to a certain extent, accomplish this result. In some cases these have been in operation successfully for several years. It now seems to be the intention of some weavers, as before stated, to force the manufacturers to utterly abandon all these improvements, and to go back to methods which have been in use for a generation.

"The manufacturers wish to state, with the utmost emphasis, that this cannot and will not be done. They claim and shall insist upon their right to adopt such new devices in the way of machinery which, after careful experiment and testing, they deem to be for the best interests of all concerned, which, without working injustice to employes, shall prove by the same means to be necessary for the successful carrying out of their business.

"All around in New England and in the southern states the Northup loom, the warp-stop motion and the long bobbin are being rapidly and successfully introduced without opposition on the part of operatives and it is therefore absolutely necessary, if the manufacturers are to compete and maintain their industry, that they have free scope to use any or all of these and such other improvements as expediency shall from time to time suggest."

Secretary Whitehead of the Weavers' union, in speaking of the manufacturers' statement, said: "The manufacturers misrepresent the conditions. The weavers are not opposed to improvements in the mills and the looms, but they do oppose devices which increase the work and the skill without a corresponding increase in pay. The cost of installing the electric stop and the long bobbin is taken directly from the wages of the weavers, for wages are reduced while the output is increased."

The strike of the weavers at the Granite mills Nos. 1 and 3 and at the Davoll mills against the new improvements still continues and shows no sign of settlement.

Terribly Abused by Negro

Johnstown, Pa., March 30.—While in her home near Elton with a little adopted daughter, Mrs. Frank Rose, aged 62, was assaulted by a negro, who tore her clothing from her body and left her unconscious upon the kitchen floor, where she was found by neighbors summoned by the little girl. The aged victim's condition is serious. Posses are being organized to hunt for the negro.

Germany and Morocco

Paris, March 30.—Chancellor Von Buelow's speech in the reichstag on the subject of Germany's attitude toward Morocco, coming at the moment of Emperor William's visit to Morocco, is believed to disclose Germany's purpose not to recognize the Anglo-French agreement giving France a paramount position in Morocco.

Real Summer Temperature

Kingston, N. Y., March 30.—The thermometer registered 80 degrees in the shade here yesterday. Zero was touched less than three weeks ago.

Philadelphia, March 30.—The maximum temperature in this city yesterday was 79. The hottest March day previous to this was March 22, 1894, when the mercury reached 77.

Attell Sent to the Mat

Philadelphia, March 30.—Monte Attell of San Francisco was carried from the ring last night after a six-round bout with Jimmy Walsh of Boston. Walsh accidentally hit Attell low and followed the blow with a right and left to the jaw. Attell was not knocked out, but the foul blow seriously injured him.

Turbine Cruiser a Success

Berlin, March 30.—The new cruiser Ruebeck, the first turbine propelled vessel of the German navy, ran her trial trip from Kiel to Swinemuende, 180 sea miles, in 23 knots an hour. The contract called for 22 knots. The naval commission aboard accepted the vessel during the run.

Proposed Tax on Stock Transfers

Albany, March 30.—The Republican assembly caucus last night adopted as a party measure the bill which proposes a tax on all stock transfers. The bill has been bitterly opposed by the financial interests of New York city.

Inspectors Found a Concealed Crack In Brockton Boiler

Brockton, Mass., March 30.—The statement that no evidence had been adduced to show that any person was criminally liable for the explosion in the R. B. Grover company's shoe factory here last week, which caused the death of about 60 employes, was made yesterday afternoon by District Attorney French, at the conclusion of an inquest held in the police court to determine, if possible, the cause of the accident and to place responsibility. Mr. French said also that he believed it to be shown that the explosion was due to a defect in the factory boiler and expressed the opinion that this defect was all the more serious because hidden.

The witnesses examined included a representative of the Grover company, who testified that the boiler was inspected in December and that there was no knowledge but what it was in good condition; several boiler inspectors who testified to having found a concealed crack in the exploded boiler which was itself was of an obsolete type, and several other persons, principally factory employes, who declared that David W. Rockwell, the engineer in charge of the boiler, seemed capable of attending to his duties on the morning of the explosion. The engineer was killed at the explosion. Judge Bixby, who conducted the inquest, said that he would report the findings later.

Reformatory Has $50,000 Fire

Elmira, N. Y., March 30.—A fire of unknown origin broke out in the storeroom of the New York state reformatory early this morning and in an hour's time the flames had entirely enveloped this building and one adjoining it to the east. Twenty-five patients in the hospital were removed to places of safety before the flames penetrated this department. The entire city fire department worked with the reformatory department and a corps of trusted inmates. The flames were finally extinguished, with a loss of about $50,000.

Held For $10,000 Robbery

San Francisco, March 30.—John Zimmerman, an ex-convict, was arrested in this city on suspicion of having been one of the principals in the $10,000 robbery in Contra Costa county on March 20. He would not say where he last saw his alleged associate in the holdup. The stolen money was being sent by the Central bank to pay off employes of the Standard Oil plant. Two men in charge of the money were held up at a lonely spot while driving in a buggy. They have identified Zimmerman as one of the highwaymen.

Shields Put Under Bonds

Chicago, March 30.—Ten witnesses were heard at yesterday's session of the special grand jury investigating the so-called beef trust. J. E. Shields, government witness in the case against T. H. Connors, Armour's general superintendent, indicted on a charge of trying to influence a witness, was put under $1000 bonds to appear when the Connors case is set for hearing. Shields signed his own bonds and left for New York last night.

Farmers Charged With Peonage

Athens, Ga., March 30.—Henry Lewis, a negro, his wife and two daughters, have made affidavits against Crawford Fleaman, Tom Irwin, Bud Wheeler and Allen Goolsby, four farmers, charging them with peonage. The three women are in jail here now on a burglary warrant sworn out by Fleaman. A writ of habeas corpus in favor of the negroes has been issued and served.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. M. Morley of Cherry street continues seriously ill.

A. J. Preston is again on his laundry route, after a long illness.

The alarm from Box 445 at 11.35 this morning was for a grass fire off Common street.

The Unity club held a whist party at the club rooms at Quincy Point Wednesday evening.

Joseph Oliver of Cushing academy was in town Wednesday and visited several friends.

Henry Glidden is enjoying a few weeks' vacation at his home on Cleverly court, Quincy Point.

The Squantum car was not running part of yesterday afternoon. Repairs were being made on it.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams returned Tuesday from Europe where they have been spending the winter.

Louis A. Newton, a well known New York detective, is in town on a visit to his nephew Walter M. Packard.

The Board of Health is getting its contagious hospital near the city farm ready in case it should be needed.

A cake and candy sale will be held by the juniors at the birthplace of President John Adams on Saturday afternoon.

St. Francis court of Foresters will attend holy communion in a body at St. Mary's church next Sunday at the 7.45 mass.

The residence of James Nichol, superintendent of Mt. Wollaston cemetery, has been connected by telephone. The number is 278 ring 3.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maybury return to their home in North Weymouth this week, after having passed the winter with Mrs. Maybury's father at Quincy Point.

Charles Goss left for Newport on Wednesday afternoon where he will board the Providence for her trial trip. Mr. Goss is to have charge of the switchboard during this trip.

Mrs. Cohen and family have returned to their summer cottage at Squantum. They are getting in readiness the waiting room at the end of the car line which they will run again this summer.

Those who have known of the suffering of little Robert Talbot, the younger son of Mrs. Josephine Talbot, of Glencoe place, will be glad to hear that he passed to his eternal rest, early in the morning of Wednesday the 29th.

After enjoying a smoke on Wednesday, while driving to Hingham, John W. Fitzgerald, of the Quincy Beef Co., put his pipe into his pocket. Before he became aware of it a lively blaze was kindled, and his clothing was considerably burned and also one of his hands before he could extinguish it.

A very enjoyable social dance was held Wednesday evening at Music hall under the auspices of the entertainment committee of Rural lodge, A. F. and A. M. About sixty couple participated and dancing was in order until 11.30. Cuff's orchestra furnished music. Fruit punch was served during the entire evening.

Surprise at Quincy Point.

Carlton McNeil of 7 Wharf street, received a real surprise on Wednesday night. He went out for a call on a neighbor and upon his return he found the parlor in darkness; taking a small "flash light" from his pocket and telling a friend to "look out for the table," he flashed it on about twenty of his friends. He was presented with a costly signet ring. Those present were: Harry Oliver, Harry Redding, Arthur Dyer, Morris Smith, David Melville, Alfred Thayer, Will Hayden, Nan Mc Neil, Maybelle Means, May Oliver, Edna Stewart, Bertha Smith, Edith Delory, Sadie Mellen, Edith Small, Emma Hayden, Julia Hayden, and several older friends. Refreshments were served and all went home satisfied that it was "a truly surprise."

Wollaston Alliance.

A very appetizing lunch was served in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry at 1 o'clock, Wednesday, by a committee of ladies from the Wollaston Alliance. The tables daintily spread, and decorated with carnations and potted azaleas, looked inviting. About sixty ladies enjoyed the lunch, the menu consisting of harlequin salad, cold ham, creamed shrimp, rolls, orange pudding, crackers, cheese and coffee.

At half-past two, the regular meeting of the Alliance was held. The exercises were opened by a solo, "A Song of Spring," charmingly rendered by Mrs. F. A. Page. After the transaction of some necessary business, Mrs. Abbie A. Peterson of Boston, gave a very entertaining talk upon her recent trip through the Southern circuit.

Civic Federation.

James Duncan, the secretary of the National Granite Cutters Union located in Quincy, is one of the seven representatives of the wage earners on the conciliation committee of the Civic Federation of New England which has this week opened headquarters in the Paddock building at No. 101 Tremont street, Boston. The committee also has representatives of the employers and of the public.

Ninety-fifth Birthday.

Mrs. Susan Preston Curtis, widow of Ebenezer Curtis, and one of the oldest ladies in Quincy celebrated her 95th birthday anniversary Wednesday, at the residence of her neice, 53 Holmes street, Norfolk Downs. Four generations were present during the day and Mrs. Curtis was remembered with gifts and flowers. It was a happy family reunion that gathered about the tea table when the supper was served. Mrs. Curtis enjoys good health for one of her age and is quite smart. She entered into the spirit of the gathering with a zest worthy of one in their prime.

DIED.

CHAPTER XIX.

AS George stepped out of the front door he came face to face with Bawdsey, who was mounting the steps. The man seemed excited and carried a carelessly folded newspaper which he had apparently been reading.

"I didn't expect to see you here," he said, with a certain degree of roughness.

"I did not know that this house was interdicted to me," replied Brendon sharply. "I am glad to meet you, however, as I wish to have a few words."

"I am too busy to give you any time," retorted Bawdsey, and tried to enter the house.

"Nevertheless you will give me a quarter of an hour," said George, blocking the doorway with his stalwart form. "What I have to say cannot be left until a more convenient period."

"I tell you I am busy, Mr. Brendon."

"And I tell you that I intend to have this interview," rejoined Brendon imperiously. "You talk a great deal about gratitude, Bawdsey, yet you are unwilling to put yourself out for me in the least degree."

Bawdsey became penitent at once. "It is true, Mr. Brendon, but I am very worried." He cast a glance at the newspaper in his hand. "However, you have first call upon my time."

No more words passed. Bawdsey mounted the stairs and led George into a well remembered room. Brendon took a chair, and Bawdsey, with an anxious look, threw himself into another. The man's face was flushed, his red hair was in disorder, and his eyes were bright. As a rule he was calm and self controlled, so George conjectured that something particularly important must have occurred to upset him. "I had a conversation with Lord Derrington the other evening," George said deliberately, "and we talked of you."

"Then you heard no good of me," replied Bawdsey, with a sneer. "Lord Derrington does not like me."

"That matters little. No liking can exist between a man in Lord Derrington's position and his paid servant."

"Oh, you call me that, do you, sir?"

"What else are you? Lord Derrington engaged you as his agent to watch me, and that you have done."

"Not lately. I have given you a free hand."

"In any case I have a free hand," said George loftily. "You were grateful enough for my service in saving your life to release me from your espionage, but had you not done so I should have taken means to put a stop to your dogging my footsteps."

"You would not have known had I not told you, Mr. Brendon."

"Oh, yes, I should. In any case, I should have seen my grandfather, and he would have told me."

"No, sir. He is your enemy."

"That is where you are wrong, Bawdsey. He is my friend and intends to recognize me as his heir."

"Has he learned where the marriage took place?" asked Bawdsey, starting from his seat and again glancing anxiously at the newspaper which lay on a small table at his elbow.

"No. We have yet to find that out. But he is quite satisfied from the hints of the late Mrs. Jersey that a marriage did take place."

"Whew! What means did you take to force him to recognize you?"

"I used no force at all," responded Brendon very dryly.

"Lord Derrington would not climb down unless he were made to."

"As a matter of fact he did. The olive branch was held out by him. All this is none of your business, Mr. Bawdsey, and I only tell it to you to clear the ground for what I am about to say."

"First, Mr. Brendon, I should like to know your exact position."

"Oh, that is easily explained, and there is no reason why you should not know what all London will know soon. Lord Derrington will join with me in searching for the register of marriage, and meanwhile will recognize me as his grandson and the heir to his estates. In a fortnight I leave my Kensington rooms and take up my residence with Lord Derrington in St. Giles square. Then I shall assume my real name of George Vane."

"And you will marry Miss Ward, I suppose?"

"That is entirely my business," said George placidly. "You will gain nothing by insolence, Bawdsey."

The man rose with a wounded air. "Upon my word, Mr. Vane," he said, giving George his correct name to show that he recognized his new position, "I have not the slightest intention of being insolent. I am glad for your sake that things are as they are, and pleased for my own, since Lola may now give up thoughts of you and turn to me."

"That's all very well, Bawdsey," said Brendon quietly. "You profess a great friendship for me, but how can I trust you?"

"Why should you doubt me?" asked Bawdsey, still wounded.

"I can only judge the future by the past, and since you are quite ready to play Lord Derrington false"—

"Who says that?" cried the man, sitting down.

"I say so. Lord Derrington has told me all."

"All what?" demanded Bawdsey, willfully ignorant.

"All that took place on the night when you came to this house to impersonate him."

Bawdsey laughed, and his face cleared. "If that is your disagreeable business, sir, I can easily put that to rights."

"Can you explain why you drugged him, why you threatened him?"

"I did not threaten him."

"Lord Derrington informed me that you threatened to get him into trouble. That was why he consulted me, and that is why I have come to tell you that if you fight Lord Derrington you will fight me also."

"Don't press too hard, Mr. Brendon. I am willing to do you a service, and you are misjudging me," said Bawdsey.

"I am willing to hear what you have to say."

"If you are satisfied with my explanation, will you endeavor to get Lola to marry me?"

"I know nothing about you save what my grandfather told me, and his report does not bias me in your favor."

Bawdsey shrugged his shoulders. "Lola is well able to look after herself," he said. "I think I mentioned that before. But if you are satisfied with what I am about to tell you will you help me?"

"I'll do my best," said George impatiently. "But I shall not advise her to marry you unless you prove to me that you do not intend to blackmail Lord Derrington."

"Nothing was farther from my thoughts," said Bawdsey earnestly. "It was to my interest that your grandfather should hold his tongue about my having been to this house"—

"He would not have known had you not told him voluntarily."

"Oh, yes, he would have discovered in some way. I thought it best to be on the right side by confessing voluntarily what I had done. I said I could get him into trouble—and I admit that I did threaten him so far—simply to make him hold his tongue."

"You were afraid lest you should be accused of the crime?"

Bawdsey looked at George in surprise. "That possibility never crossed my mind," he replied calmly. "I certainly did not kill the woman. Do you think I did, Mr. Brendon?"

George shrugged his shoulders. "Going by circumstantial evidence"—

"Oh"—Bawdsey flipped away that objection with a snap of his fingers—"that's all right; I will explain. No, Mr. Brendon; why I wished Lord Derrington to be silent was that I might carry out my plans so as to learn who killed Mrs. Jersey."

"Then you are looking after the case?"

"On behalf of Lord Derrington. He has an idea that the assassin became possessed of a confession which Mrs. Jersey left behind her"—

"How do you know she left it?"

North American Investment Company Increases Its Security Deposit to $500,000.

[Special Despatch to the Globe-Democrat.]

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 24,—G. L. Williams, treasurer of the North American investment company of the United States, the home office of which corporation is in St. Louis, was here today and increased the company's deposit with Hon. John F. Gmelich, treasurer of the State of Missouri, to $500,000 for the security of the company's boudholders. Only a few months ago Mr. Williams increased this deposit to $350,000; and the half million figure now reached is the best possible evidence of the growth and prosperity of the North American investment company and the popularity among savings investors of the company's 5 per cent interest-bearing gold bonds. The deposit thus placed with the chief financial officer of Missouri is the largest made by any similar company in the world.

FIREMEN SCARCE

At the South Quincy Blaze This Afternoon.

Chief Williams Handles the Hose.

House and Barn on Daniel Baxter Estate on Fire.

The alarm from Box 37 at 1.42 this afternoon was for a brisk fire on the roof of the old barn on the Daniel Baxter estate off School street. The fire started from a spark from a passing locomotive alighting on the old and dry shingles.

The high wind quickly fanned the spark into a blaze, and when the alarm was sounded the whole roof was burning briskly, and sparks were flying in all directions.

The department apparatus was quickly on the scene, but was handicapped by lack of men. A line of hose was run to the burning building, but there were no men to handle it. Chief Williams, and one of the permanent men tried to direct the stream onto the roof, but with the water pressure, and awkward position, they could do, but little.

A ladder was needed and one was brought, but there was no one to raise it. In the meantime the Chief and one man did the best they could. There were plenty of bystanders, but none offered to help.

It was some minutes before the call men began to arrive. Before that time a burning board had fallen on the roof of the McDonnell estate, but there were no firemen to look out for it. Some boys, however, climbed to the roof by the aid of the lightning rod, and failing to extinguish the fire with their caps, pulled the shingles off.

Fortunately but little damage was done by fire. The fact that more men are needed at the early stages of a fire was practically demonstated.

Coffee and Smoke In Spain.

Even of wine, so cheap and abundant in Spain, the natives seem to use very little. They are frightfully intemperate, however, in their use of tobacco and coffee. They drink coffee at all hours and apparently every hour. The clerk who takes his morning cup at 9 has another at his desk an hour later, purchased from a street vender. The business men passing through the streets pause while a fellow who carries hot coffee, hot milk, sugar and spoons harnessed upon him serves them on the sidewalk.

If the Spaniard does not smoke in his sleep it is his only respite from the habit.—Rosary Magazine.

Stale Bread Bag.

A traveler says that a curious weakness of grownup Moors is the love of eating newly baked bread. The caid of Azemmoor, in Morocco, discovered that old bread was thrown away as waste. To waste food is a serious offense in the eyes of a Moslem. The caid of Azemmoor therefore issued a bylaw prohibiting the baking of bread upon one day in each week. The citizens, he declared, must eat up the bread already baked, and he fixed Wednesday as the "bitalah," or holiday.

The Longest Novel.

The "Story of the Eight Dogs" is the longest novel that has ever been published. Fortunately, perhaps, it is written in Japanese, so no one will set himself the task of reading it. It contains 106 volumes, several hundred characters and numerous dogs, all of which are successfully disposed of by the time the last chapter is reached. Just imagine reading through that—one book that would last a lifetime!

True Heroism.

The hero fears not that if he withhold the avowal of a just and brave act it will go unwitnessed and unloved. One knows it—himself—and is pledged by it to sweetness of peace and to nobleness of aim, which will prove in the end a better proclamation of it than the relating of the incident.—Emerson.

She Reasoned It Out.

Ethel—Mamma, if a little boy is a lad, why isn't a big boy a ladder? Mamma—For the same reason, I suppose, that, although a little doll is a doll, a big doll is not a dollar. Ethel (reflectively)—That's so. My big doll has $2.—Kansas City Journal.

GOOD AMERICANS.

The First Aim of Provincial Club ---Then Unity of Action.

The entertainment of the Provincial club on Thursday evening in Doble's hall brought twice as many as were expected, and the committee found their hall accommodations inadequate.

After piano selections by Mr. Wilson, the president William McCalder, introduced John D. Mackay, Esq., as the first speaker and the chairman of the evening. Mr. Mackay referred to the principal events in the struggle between France and Britain for possession of Canada. Since Wolfe decided the issue on the Plains of Abraham, the history of the country had been one of progress and development, until today Canada was about to step out and take her place among the nations of the earth.

The withdrawal of the British military forces from Esquimalt and Halifax and their replacement on the first day of next July by native soldiers was significant, but under some arrangement Canada although independent, would continue to be the right arm of Britain's power. But proud though the members of the club were of their native country their first allegiance was to this country, and the aim of the club was to make Canadians in Quincy Americans, without a hyphen before the word and encourage them in assuming the responsibilities of American citizenship.

Henry J. Cunningham of Cambridge was the next speaker and spoke on the importance of organization. Capital was organized; labor was organized; even the thieves in some large cities were organized for mutual protection. In order to have any influence in the community, the Canadians must be organized like other citizens of foreign birth. In this country, as in their own country, the voter was really king. Every Provincialist ought to be naturalized and a registered voter. This country needs an increase of the better element in politics. Mr. Cunningham gave the names of Stephen O'Meara and other prominent Bostonians who were reared in Canada; racially they were Canadians, politically Americans. Mr. Cunningham, who is a college man, is a good speaker and made a good impression. He was Chief of the Cambridge Police until recently.

The concert talent was furnished by William Wilson, John J. Phalen, D. J. Stewart McCurdy, Mr. Powers, Arthur E. Dunn, Frank Dornan and John McDonald, the piper, and his two little girls, who danced the Highland fling. A collation was served and a dance followed. During intermission, Malcolm Beaton gave selections on the violin. William McInnis, Angus G. Macdonnell and others gave exhibitions of the sword dance and other difficult Scotch dances.

Miss McBride in Court.

Anna McBride, who appeared in the Brighton police court on Thursday on the charge of being an accessory before the fact to the setting fire to property owned by her, is known in Quincy, being interested in a quarry here. John Doherty has been held in $3,000 bail on a charge of setting the fire.

The young woman's arrest has created a sensation in the district, because it has made known to the public that she is a business woman of an extraordinary character, inasmuch as for the last 10 years she has successfully managed a contracting business left to her by her father, and has supervised the fulfilling of large contracts.

Both parties will be given a hearing on April 5.

STILL ALARM

At 2.30 the apparatus responded on a still alarm for a fire at George O. Langley's on Washington street.

MILTON.

A petition is being circulated at East Milton which will be presented to the officials of the New York and New Haven. The petition asks that the depot be kept open until the arrival of the late outward train; that the old freight car now used as a freight house, be moved from its present conspicuous location, and for better train service.

The alarm from Box 14 at 1.16 Wednesday afternoon was for a grass fire. The department was called out on a still alarm Tuesday for a grass fire on the Flander property. In going through a street on the property the horses sank in the mud nearly to their knees and the wheels of the hose wagon nearly to the hubs. It was with some difficulty that they were gotten out.

Mr. and Mrs. Seaver of Edge Hill road have returned from the south.

Rev. F. Lee Whittemore of Dedham will preach on Sunday evening at the Mission of Our Saviour church.

John Mullen has purchased a new pair of horses for his express business.

E. J. Tinker has returned from a visit to Vermont.

Through misinformation it was erroneously stated last week that a thimble party had been held at the residence of Mrs. John Hennigan.

An enjoyable whist party was held by the Thursday Evening club this week.

Little Tots Missing,

Word was sent to the police station this morning that two little girls, each aged about 3 years, were missing, and that no trace of them could be found. The little girls were the children of John Goldbranson and Charles Samuelson of Arthur street. They went out to play about 8 o'clock. Not having been seen from that time up to 10.30 the parents became alarmed. The police were notified and the neighbors formed a searching party to look for them. The neighborhood was searched but up to 11.30 they had not been found.

The lost child call was sounded on the fire alarm circuit at 11.55 to summon searchers. Shortly after the two little girls were found on Rogers street, West Quincy.

Had Big Roll of Money.

Word was telephoned to the police station Thursday afternoon to come to West Quincy and look after a man who was evidently somewhat demented. Inspector Bradley responded. The man proved to be John Furmingham who has been living in the basement of 22 Arthur street. Mr. Furmingham, who is 57 years of age, has been living alone and has not been considered just right.

Inspector Bradley accompanied the man to his home, and was shown where he had secreted $1,700 in an old felt shoe. The man remained in charge of the police all night, and was examined as to his mental condition this morning.

Whist party.

The entertainment committee of George L. Gill, Rebekah lodge held a large, and successful whist party in I. O. O. F. hall, Thursday evening. Twenty-four tables were in play, and favors were awarded: Mrs. N. B. Furnald, an umbrella; H. Titcomb, sofa pillow; Miss Mabel Cody, Battenburg center piece; G. Craig, china dish; Mrs. J. B. Sylvester, hand painted collar pin; Mr. C. K. Magnuson, picture; and Miss Ella Peterson, picture frame.

No New Cases.

The report this noon that one of Quincy's physicians was ill with meningitis proves to be but an idle rumor. John Hickey, the man who is ill at the hospital, is reported as doing well and will probably recover.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas Skinner was fined $5, and Thomas F. Smith and John Downey $3 each, for drunkenness at Quincy.

HANDSOME CHECK.

Sent by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to Brockton Sufferers.

W. H. Emerson, the treasurer of the Brockton fund for the relief of the sufferers by the boiler explosion, is in receipt today of a handsome check of $1,000 from T. E. Byrne, assistant to President Mellen, on behalf of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

This is further evidence that the New Haven road is interested in the cities and towns along its route, and is anxious not only to give good train service and conveniences, but is also looking out for the comfort of its patrons generally.

Farewell Reception.

Many friends of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Wright Pratt assembled in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Thursday evening to bid them good-bye and to extend to them hearty good wishes for their future happiness and prosperity. The reception was in charge of the parish committee and their wives. Music was furnished by the church choir and piano duets by Miss Ethel Parker and William Weston. Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. Carlton P. Mills, Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Chase, Rev. E. D. Webber and Rev. Mr. Heath. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served during the evening.

"Can You Talk?" the famous and beautiful picture of the wandering child and the big dog, will be given away next Sunday in the series of handsome framed pictures with the Boston Globe.

For women, spring and summer hints abound in the always seasonable and sensible housekeepers' department of the Boston Globe. Note a few of the useful and timely features next Sunday—12 Corset Covers, illustrations and directions; Two of Last Year's Summer Gowns Remodelled for Spring. A Knitted Sweater for Evening Wear. A Crocheted Golf Vest. A Pretty Kimono made of Handkerchiefs. The housekeepers' department of the Globe. Daily and Sunday, is by New England Women and for New England Women.

PUBLIC HEARING.

CITY OF QUINCY.

IN COUNCIL,
March 20th, 1905.

ORDERED: On the petition of the Board of Directors of the Old Colony Street Railway Company, that the alteration of the Bridge and the approaches thereto at the crossing in Hancock Street, in said Quincy, over the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, make it requisite to the convenience of the public, and for the safe operation of cars of said Company in and through said Hancock Street, over the said Bridge and approaches, that its tracks in said Hancock Street, be relocated and your petitioner respectfully asks that permission be granted to said Company to relocate its tracks and to construct, lay, maintain, and use tracks as follows, viz:

From a point in said Hancock Street about 480 feet southerly of the southerly side of Madison Street to a point about 70 feet northerly of the northerly line of Linden Street, double tracks, with the necessary connecting curves into Sagamore Street and crossovers, all as shown in red lines upon a plan marked "Old Colony Street Railway Company, proposed location of tracks Hancock Street, at Atlantic Bridge, Quincy, Mass., October 20, 1904, Road Master's Office, Boston, Mass., R C 149," and to erect, place, maintain and use poles as shown on said plan, together with wires and such other appliances as are usual and necessary in the overhead trolley system of street car propulsion and to make such underground and surface alterations in said Street as may be necessary, that a public hearing be given to all persons interested by the City Council on MONDAY Evening, April 17th, 1905, at 8.15 o'clock, in the Council Chamber, City Hall, when all persons interested may appear and be heard, and the petitioner is hereby directed to give notice of said hearing, by publishing a copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger and the Quincy Advertiser at least fourteen days before the time of said hearing.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Mrs. Chadwick is now in the state in which she left the banks that she dealt with. She has collapsed.

"The Shoe Dealer" says women will wear large, roomy shoes with broad toes, and low heels this summer. The women have not had their say yet.

There was nothing startling in the report sent out from Philadelphia that here was a dearth of silver coins. Almost anyone could report a similar condition in his own affairs.

Many Congressional junkets are in the wind. There will be a big party to visit the Phillipines with Secretary Taft, ex-Secretary Root, Speaker Cannon and others at Government expense. One crowd has already gone to Porto Rico and another to Cuba. Others are going to Alaska and the North west. A great deal of information will be added to the equipment of our statesmen by these trips and even though this belated education does come high they need it and we must have it

In the words of the Gloucester Times, now that the springtime is coming along at a rapid gait, it is well to clean up the back yards and thus do much toward preventing the spread of disease as well as to put these premises into such a presentable condition as to be enjoyed, not only by the occupants of the premises but the passers by as well.

It is one sign of a good citizen that he keeps his premises in good condition and everyone should have sufficient pride to attend to this duty, either themselves or get someone to do it for them. Nothing gives one such a good opinion of a town or city as to see the grounds around the dwelling house clean and orderly. It speaks volumes in praise of the occupants of the dwellings and in itself is a strong inducement for people to purchase real estate and make a home here.

Drift of Opinion.

☞There is no exaggerated and barefaced compliment a man will not swallow greedily, if it be served up by a woman. And his complacency under the process of swallowing is something delicious to witness!—Lady's Realm.

☞When a man who makes any claim to responsibility in what he says and does, asserts that the members of a state legislature have been bribed and "bought and sold as were sausages and fish at the markets and wharves," it certainly appears strange that he should find it necessary to afterwards advertise a reward for evidence to prove such an assertion. To declare that "it is common knowledge," is a very different thing from having the evidence to prove the charge.—Banker and Tradesman.

☞When Governor Cobb stated to the people of Maine last fall that he would to the full extent of his power and influence enforce the prohibitory law as faithfully as the other laws of the State, he was not talking for mere political effect. That has never been his way. He is direct, outspoken and absolutely sincere in all his relations. He does not deviate from the strict standard of absolute honesty in his private or official life. This fact has impressed itself most forcefully upon all who have come in contact with him, and the members of the seventy-second Legislature will carry to their homes a warm personal appreciation of the sterling qualities of the strong, able man whom the people of Maine have placed at the head of our State Government. His circle of friends has grown constantly with the widening circle of his acquaintances. To know him is to honor him. Governor Cobb is the best type of a temperance man. He is a temperate man. A lifelong teetotaler, he has lived the principles he stands for and advocates. He has stood unequivocally for a faithful enforcement of the statute law—an honest living up to the platform pledges of the Republican party.—Kennebec Journal.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

Russia's Negative Conditions of Peace Too Mild

WAR FORCED UPON JAPAN

Must Have Cession of Territory and Substantial Indemnity as Compensation For the Costly Struggle--China Making Rapid Strides Along Lines Developed by Japanese In Manchuala

London, March 31.—Peace talk is prevalent everywhere, but that negotiations have commenced is still positively denied in all official circles here.

The foreign office disclaims even having any knowledge of peace proposals. It is quite evident, however, that while the first definite step may be taken at any moment an advance further than indicated in the press dispatches may be postponed indefinitely.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, declared last evening that he had no information in regard to the announcement contained in St. Petersburg dispatches that Russia had indirectly made known to Japan the negative conditions on which peace might be concluded, namely, no cession of territory and no indemnity, leaving Japan to determine whether peace negotiations could be begun upon that basis, but he said unreservedly that the terms then mentioned could not even be considered, and added:

"A cession of territory and an indemnity are the only points negotiable, as Japan's ante bellum demands have already been secured by Japan."

M. Takahashi, the Japanese special financial commissioner, in an interview, said:

"The war cost between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 the first year and it is estimated that it will cost $350,000,000 during the present year. It would be unprecedented in the history of great wars that no indemnity and no territory be given up by the vanquished. While it is beyond my province to discuss terms of peace I can express my personal opinion that, as the war was forced upon Japan, it is not likely that she will waive the right to an indemnity and cession of territory when concluding peace. What indemnity will be demanded I cannot say, but it is my private opinion that it will at least cover the expense of the war.

"If Russia assumes that a continuance of the war will deplete our finances before hers, it will be another mistake of judgment on her part. We can maintain a sufficient army in Manchuria to keep out the Russians indefinitely, but this will necessitate Japan remaining in Manchuria and administering the province on a war footing, which we do not desire. Manchuria is fertile and productive, and an army can be maintained there more economically than in the case of the opposing force in Siberia. If Russia is prepared for the test of a war of finances, we are willing. The longer the war lasts the more certain it will be that it will not be resumed."

Mr. Takahashi spoke interestingly regarding the internal conditions in China since the Chino-Japanese war. He said China was awakening. The government was now making rapid strides along the lines on which Japan had developed. China was sending pupils abroad to study and bring in foreign instructors. Many of these were Japanese and a rapprochement between the two countries was steadily being effected. The Manchus were delighted with the Japanese administration wherever it was in force, because they found no lawlessness and found perfect justice. The Chinese government, M. Takahashi added, proposes reorganizing the army of China and recreating its navy. The Japanese believe that within 10 years China will be able to defy Russia.

In this connection a foreign office official said that he believed Japan would occupy Harbin and also maintain the nucleus of a garrison in Manchuria by an arrangement with China for a period of years after the war. He added that there was not the slightest doubt that the Japanese would maintain the open door and refrain from all active manipulation of the Manchurian government, as they had declared at the beginning of hostilities.

Russian Posts Closely Watched

Harbin, March 31.—Japanese scouting parties are very active in endeavoring to pierce the screen of the Russian vanguard posts and develop the disposition and strength of the positions, their attempts at times verging on the nature of reconnaissances in force.

Land Owners Badly Scared

Kharkoff, March 31.—The land owners of the government of Kharkoff are almost panic-stricken at the spread of rural disorders, and many of them are deserting their estates and flocking to the cities. The peasants of the Bolachoff district are already discussing division of the properties of the large proprietors.

Serious Risings of Peasants

Tiflis, March 31.—Alarming conditions are reported officially to exist in the Gori district. Trans-Caucasia, where the losses sustained by landed proprietors through peasant attacks and strikes have been enormous. The postal service has ceased and documents in the public offices have been destroyed. Thousands of peasants marched through the town of Gori and destroyed a number of shops. The crowd also attacked a military patrol, whereupon the soldiers fired a volley, wounding 10 peasants, one of whom died.

Prominent Terrorists In Custody

London, March 31.—Dispatches from St. Petersburg report several arrests of prominent terrorists belonging to the inner, or "bomb" section. One of the persons arrested is a wealthy man and two are women. One of these latter, an anarchist, had been vainly sought by the police since the assassination of Emperor Alexander II., and the other is a beautiful girl belonging to a prominent official family. It is also stated that these women and the man arrested on Thursday had been watching the movements of Governor General Trepoff, Grand Duke Vladimir and Minister of the Interior Bouligan.

Bullets Missed Their Mark

St. Petersburg, March 31.—A man dressed as a porter fired three revolver shots at a secret police agent in the street yesterday afternoon. All the shots missed their aim. The assailant was arrested.

Interfering With Witnesses

Chicago, March 31.—Conspiracy indictments are threatened against heads of big meat packing concerns unless alleged tampering with witnesses who have been summoned to testify before the federal grand jury is discontinued at once. With two witnesses on the stand yesterday, who, it is asserted, admitted that they had been approached with a suggestion that their testimony be mild, the jury, it is declared, is getting ready to take drastic action.

Tom Watson's Daughter Poisoned

Augusta, Ga., March 31.—Miss Agnes Watson, daughter of Thomas E. Watson, is in a serious condition as the result of an accidental overdose of morphine. Suffering intense pain from the extraction of a tooth, she took three doses of the drug and soon was in a state of coma. Physicians who attended her say the dose was three times too great for safety. Miss Watson has regained consciousness, but her chance for recovery is poor.

Fire In Aged Women's Home

Cleveland, March 31.—A fire in the Dorcas invalid home for women last night caused a panic among 42 aged women and for a time put them in great danger of death from fire. Matron Simms showed great bravery in rescuing the inmates and did so at the risk of her life. The building is of three stories and many of the old women were on the upper floors. The first floor of the building was badly damaged by fire.

One Survivor of Triple Shooting

Collinsville, Ills., March 31.—Barney Vossallo entered John Berta's place of business yesterday and began shooting at Mrs. Berta. She seized a revolver and returned the fire. Just as Mrs. Berta was shot dead, Berta rushed in, attracted by the shooting, and was slightly wounded by a bullet from Vossallo. Berta shot Vossallo dead. Berta was last night released from custody on a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Syrians Highly Unpopular

Port Au Prince, Haiti, March 31.—Some scenes of disorder were provoked by Haitian soldiers in the markets yesterday, but were suppressed by the police. All the troops are now consigned to their barracks, and it is believed that in spite of the feeling among the people against the Syrians, rioting will be avoided.

Taft's Party to Sail July 8

Washington, March 31.—The day of sailing from San Francisco of Secretary Taft and the congressional party bound for Manila has been postponed from July 1 next to July 8. The postponement is to enable members of the party to adjust important business matters during the first week of July.

Four Children Poisoned

Madison, N. J., March 31.—Daniel Hurley, 6 years old, is dead; his brother, 14, his sister, 12, and another boy of this village, are ill as the result of eating rat poison which the children found while exploring the cellar of a recently vacated building. The poison was in the form of wafers.

Settlement of Samoan Claims

Berlin, March 31.—The reichstag's petition committee voted to accept the offer of the United States and Great Britain to pay $40,000 each as indemnity to the Samoans and to pay the balance of the claims, which are estimated at from $20,000 to $30,000, from the imperial treasury.

Gotham's Aldermen Criticised

New York, March 31.—Speaking at a meeting here last night, City Comptroller Grout advocated the abolition of the local board of aldermen because they have not been faithful in their duties. The board of aldermen, he said, no longer serves the purpose for which it was created.

Telephone Supersedes Telegraph

Philadelphia, March 31.—The telegraphic department of the Pennsylvania Railroad company has decided to abandon the telegraph as a means of handling trains at seven points in Pennsylvania. The telephone will replace it.

Convicted of Killing Lawyer

Elkton, Md., March 31.—John H. Simpers was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Albert Constable, a lawyer. The murder followed an attempt at highway robbery.

THE ROCKEFELLER GIFT

Strong Effort to Be Made Toward Accomplishing Rejection

Boston, March 31.—Not content with the decision of the prudential committee of the American Board of Foreign Missions in regard to the gift of $100,000 made by John D. Rockefeller, the protesting Congregational clergymen met again and decided not only to maintain their attitude of opposition to the acceptance of the Rockefeller donation, but also to submit the facts and documents in the matter to the Congregational clergymen of the country.

It was for these protesting ministers that final action in the matter was held in abeyance for two weeks by the prudential committee. The clergymen who participated in the meeting yesterday were vehement in their expressions. The position of the prudential committee—that the committee could not discriminate in its acceptance of gifts—made it all the more necessary, it was said, for the protestants to urge that the money be rejected. A committee was appointed to confer with the prudential committee with a view to securing co-operation in this connection.

Accidentally Shot Brother

Rutland, Vt., March 31.—While two young boys, Charles and George Foster, brothers, were engaged in a footrace to see which should have the first shot at a mark, the younger boy, George, who carried a small rifle in his hand, stumbled and fell, and the weapon, being discharged, sent a bullet into the left shoulder of Charles, who is in a critical condition, having had several hemorrhages and being paralyzed below the hip.

"Cadets" Operating at Boston

Boston, March 31.—The Post says that 20 young girls from the South End have been lured to Philadelphia during the past month by the false promises of members of the dreaded "cadet" system. This is information in the hands of the police of Boston. These girls, it is feared, attracted by lying promises of good situations and big pay, have practically stolen into a most terrible and degrading form of white slavery.

Not Forgotten by Police

Boston, March 31.—Robert Olson, released three days ago from the Wheeling (W. Va.) jail, was brought to this city last night to stand trial for the theft of $1435 worth of jewelry from the home of J. L. Putnam of this city nearly two years ago. The alleged theft was committed while Olson was employed as a valet by Putnam.

Alumni to Have a Voice

Boston, March 31.—At a meeting of the corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology it was voted to refer the tentative plan for co-operating with Harvard to the faculty for a report as to its educational advantages or disadvantages, and to transmit it also to the alumni for an expression of their opinion.

Heavy Verdict For Fireman

Boston, March 31.—A verdict for $22,500 in favor of Charles W. McNear, a locomotive fireman, against the Boston and Maine Railroad company, for personal injuries due to the derailment of an unsafe locomotive on which he was at work at Wayland, was returned in the superior court.

Would Bar Divorce Ads

Providence, March 31.—The judiciary committee of the Rhode Island legislature reported a bill providing that whoever publishes or circulates advertisements soliciting clients desiring divorces shall be fined a sum not to exceed $100.

Summer Conditions In Vermont

Burlington, Vt., March 31.—The thermometer was 75 in the shade here at noon yesterday, followed by a thunderstorm and the first hard rain since last fall.

Not an "Underground" Hearing

New York, March 31.—The interesting development of the first day's session of the legislative committee which is inquiring into the lighting situation and alleged monopoly and combination of gas and electric companies in New York city was the statement of Chairman Stevens that no executive sessions will be held; that the companies must give their answer to all questions publicly and must produce the books giving complete accounts of receipts and expenses.

Still Under Government Control

St. Paul, March 31.—Judge Lochren of the United States district court, in a decision handed down on the argument of a writ of habeas corpus, holds that land in an Indian reservation is still subject to government control, even though the title has passed from the government. The decision was given in denying a writ of habeas corpus for Hugh Funk, charged with introducing liquor on the Chippewa Indian reservation.

Young Fiend Arrested

Johnstown, Pa., March 31.—A young negro giving his name as Frank Manuel was arrested in the mountains about 25 miles from here as the person who feloniously assaulted Mrs. Barbara Rose. He was identified by the aged woman and is now lodged in jail. There was considerable talk of lynching by the mountaineers, but this was frustrated by the vigilance of the officers.

Crusade on Gamblers

Ithaca, N. Y., March 31.—As a result of the recent crusade in this city the grand jury handed down in the supreme court 12 indictments found against alleged proprietors of gambling resorts. Six arrests were made last night. A former city treasurer and a local merchant are among the number.

Rev. E N. Hardy attended on Thursday the meeting of the Congregational ministers who are protesting against the acceptance of the $100,000 gift from Rockefeller to the American Board of Foreign Missions.

Gentle showers laid the dust last night, but the streets are getting dusty and the appearance of the street sprinkler is awaited to abate the dust nuisance. The watering schedule, now before the City Council, calls for the street watering service to commence April 15.

Summer Homes.

Spring is already upon us. The season of recreation and outdoor sport is about to open and already thousands of families are making ready for an early departure to the country and seashore. The indications all along the line are that the season will begin earlier this year than ever before for the winter has been a long and somewhat depressing one. Quaint old Cape Cod will be sought more than ever. Besides the scenic beauty and the healthful conditions that abound everywhere there is a charm that is utterly undefinable.

There is still a wealth of locations and retreats to draw from and now is the time for the drawing. A few weeks hence may be too late. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad's increased train facilities is a crowning inducement to hundreds of men of affairs and others who cannot cut themselves off from the big city to pitch the family tent on Cape Cod soil for the summer.

SMITHS ARRESTED

Nan Patterson's Sister and Brother-In-Law Run Down

DETECTIVE'S FINE WORK

Made Friends With Suspects In Caesar Young Case and Was Their Traveling Companion--Indicted by Jury at New York

Cincinnati, March 31.—Accused of conspiracy to commit murder, J. Morgan Smith and wife were arrested in this city on telegraphic request from District Attorney Jerome of New York city. Nan Patterson, the actress, who has been twice put on trial for the murder of Caesar Young, in New York, May 4, 1904, is charged in the same connection, new indictments to this effect having been found in New York.

For a long time the authorities had been unable to locate Smith and his wife, the couple having left New York a few months after the murder and before the beginning of the recent mistrial of Nan Patterson, in which Smith's testimony was considered almost vital to the prosecution. Several weeks ago a New York detective named Aiken met Smith in Montreal, and from that time until the arrests here this officer has awaited a favorable time for making the arrests.

Aiken followed the couple, part of the time as traveling companion, over half of the continent, having made friends with Smith, who knew him to be a detective, but believed that the officer was after some other persons. Detroit, Cleveland and a number of Canadian cities were visited. Finally Smith went to Nashville and Louisville in the hope of securing a position with some of the bookmakers in those cities, leaving his wife in Cleveland. He was unsuccessful and came to Cincinnati, where his wife met him on Wednesday.

Mrs. Smith said she had relatives in Covington, Ky., and she went with her husband to that city Wednesday to call on these people, who, however, refused to see the visitors and afterwards declared that there was no relationship between them. Returning to this city, Mr. and Mrs. Smith registered at the Grand hotel as H. H. Banning and wife.

The detective had kept in telegraphic communication with New York and had deferred an arrest until it was possible to take both husband and wife, their separation soon after reaching the United States on returning from Canada having caused the delay.

The arrest was quietly made and Smith and wife were taken to police headquarters, where they made no attempt to deny or conceal their identity, although both denied any guilt in connection with the case. They showed signs of nervousness and worry, but both husband and wife expressed an intention to return to New York without a requisition.

The detective who has been following Smith says that Smith went under many aliases in different cities, before registering here as H. H. Banning.

Before being locked up Smith was searched. In his pockets were found an old watch, some pocket pieces and $2.85 in cash. In his breast pocket were found two envelopes sealed. When Lieutenant Poppe took the envelopes, Smith made frantic efforts to get them back, but the two envelopes were retained by the police.

The New Indictments

New York, March 31.—The grand jury in this city late yesterday handed down indictments against J. Morgan Smith, Julia Smith, his wife, and Nan Patterson, charging them jointly with conspiracy. The indictments are based upon a letter alleged to have been written by Julia Smith to Caesar Young, in which, it is alleged, was a threat and a demand for money for the Patterson girl.

This action by the grand jury followed a hearing at which several witnesses were examined by Assistant District Attorney Rand, who conducted the recent trial of Nan Patterson, charged with Caesar Young's murder, which resulted in a disagreement by the jury.

The arrest of Smith and his wife at Cincinnati, according to the local authorities, will have an important bearing upon the new trial of Nan Patterson on the charge of murder, set for April 10. At the first trial an attempt was made to prove that the revolver with which Young was shot was purchased by Smith and a woman the day before the tragedy occurred. Nan Patterson has not been informed of the arrest of her sister and brother-in-law.

Want to Unite With Greece

Athens, March 31.—A resolution demanding the union of Crete with Greece was passed at a mass meeting of 4000 Cretans in a public square here. The Cretans afterwards paraded the streets, shouting for union. The Greek newspapers protest vigorously against the proposed use of foreign troops against the Cretan insurgents.

Millionaire's Auto Killed Woman

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31.— Barbee Hook, a reputed millionaire, was charged with manslaughter by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Miss Margaret Birtwistle, who was run down and fatally injured by an automobile driven by Hook. Hook's machine was wrecked and four occupants were injured.

DRIVEN FROM OFFICE

Mississippi Negro Lodges Complaint at the White House

Washington, March 31.—M. J. Hornsby, a young negro from Yazoo, Miss., called at the White House with a story which has been referred to the civil service commission for investigation. The president was too hurried, in the preparation for his trip, to listen to Hornsby's recital, but to the reporters he told, as he started for the civil service commission, this story.

A civil service examination for an assistant clerkship in the Yazoo postoffice had resulted in the success of Hornsby, who persisted in accepting the position, to which he was legally entitled. It was made so uncomfortable for him, however, by out-of-office whippings, that he resigned and left the city.

A special examination was held Feb. 7 to fill the vacancy. Four negro men, one negro woman and two white men took it. Hornsby, who tells the story, stood highest, and was again appointed. When he asked the postmaster for a blank bond to fill out, that officer told him to come back the next day.

Meantime arrangements were made for leading him to resign. The train on which he went to Jackson to get his bonds the next day was searched by a party of 20 whites. Hornsby escaped from it, but was pursued, and under various threats of whipping and hanging, wrote out his resignation, which was all the protectors of white supremacy desired.

A Much-Married Woman

Wheeling, March 31—Pela Gorgovitch, 30 years old and pretty, was arrested at Penwood upon her own confession that she had eight husbands and no divorce. She was arrested for impersonating another woman to secure merchandise. She was fined for the fraud, and a foreigner, who exhibited a license to wed and thus become the ninth husband, paid the penalty and the woman was released. Before the couple could become man and wife, as they anticipated, the police had arrested the woman and are holding her for an investigation.

Broke Nose In Wrestling Match

Atlanta, March 31.—Blinded and suffering from a broken nose, M. J. Dwyer last night gave up his wrestling match with Frank Gotch after three minutes of the second round. Gotch secured the first fall in 21 minutes. Dwyer's nose was broken after 10 minutes' work in this round, but he continued until he was thrown. After the intermission he began again, but soon discovered that he was in no condition to continue the match and gave up.

Miners' Strike Postponed

Springhill, N. S., March 31.—The threatened strike of miners employed by the Cumberland Coal and Railway company has been postponed, the management having granted the request to leave the entire matter open to discussion until May 18. In the meantime an effort will be made to terminate the dispute in a conciliatory spirit. The threatened strike was due to a reduction of 12 percent in the wage schedule.

Goldsborough Not Over-Speedy

Seattle, March 31.—Torpedo boat destroyer Goldsborough made an average of 25 knots on its final trial in Elliott bay. The craft made 29.4 knots for a half-mile, but she failed to keep it up. From the report of the trial board there is little hope that the Goldsborough ever will be able to develop an average of more than 23 knots. Several minor accidents occured.

Felton Released on Bail

New York, March 31.—Stewart A. Felton, known to the sporting fraternity as "Big Frank," who has been in the Tombs prison for several months, charged with murder in the first degree in having killed Guy Roche, a gambler, has been released on $2500 bail. The shooting of Roche is alleged to have resulted from a quarrel over a woman.

Jeweler Relieved of Diamonds

Minneapolis, March 31.—Diamonds valued at $3000 were taken from the jewelry store of John S. Allen by two men, one of whom engaged a clerk in conversation while the other reached across a counter and secured the gems. The theft was not discovered until the men left the store.

Colliery to Be Flooded

Shamokin, Pa., March 31.—It has been decided to flood the Enterprise colliery here, which is operated by W. J. Connell & Co. The mine has been on fire since last November. The flames were thought to have been extinguished several times, but broke out in new places.

RUSSIA'S ECLIPSE

Germany May Be Endeavoring to Profit by It

KAISER'S TANGIER VISIT

England Surprised at Action Which Will Make Morocco Defiant of France and Prove a Menace to Commercial Rights

London, March 31.—The editorial articles and dispatches printed in the London newspapers almost all reflect a certain sense of uneasiness, almost amounting to irritation, at the idea, based on Chancellor Von Buelow's speech in the reichstag, that Emperor William's visit to Tangier has a distinctly political motive. The subject is also much commented upon in the lobbies of the houses of parliament.

"Russia's eclipse is Germany's opportunity," crystallizes in a sentence the general idea prevalent on the subject. It is suggested that Emperor William, far from desiring to irritate France, wishes rather to emphasize the diminished value of the Russian alliance and thereby persuade France of the advisability of a rapprochement with Germany. At the same time those least inclined to cavil at the German emperor's action admit that it is calculated to stiffen the sultan's resistance to French policy in Morocco and so retard the civilizing scheme involved in the Anglo-French agreement.

In this light the usually moderate Daily Telegraph says the emperor's visit to Tangier can only be regarded as an unfriendly act. All the other papers are inclined to doubt the wisdom of Emperor William's policy, which they think is more likely to result in strengthening the Anglo-French entente.

It is learned at the foreign office that Von Buelow's announcement of Germany's policy towards Morocco came as a complete surprise to the British government. It was believed, as had been generally declared, that Emperor William's visit to Tangier was without political significance.

When the Anglo-French entente was concluded in 1904, France officially informed Germany of the fact and also of the agreement between herself and Spain signed six months later, whereby France was given a mandate to regulate the affairs of Morocco. Reforms in Morocco were imperatively necessary for the good of all the powers commercially interested in the country, and as concert of powers had proved so difficult and unworkable in Turkey, China and elsewhere where it had been tried, it was the opinion of the British government that one power alone could best exert pressure on the sultan of Morocco.

France, being far the deepest concerned financially and commercially, naturally was given the mandate to institute reforms. As the open door was guaranteed and commercial rights ensured to all the countries concerned, it was said at the foreign office that it is difficult to understand here what can be Germany's motive. The German attitude, it is believed, will certainly make the sultan of Morocco defiant of the French and cause him to persist in his old-time conduct, which will be destructive of trade and endanger life.

Dispatches from Tangier give elaborate details of the preparations being made for the reception of Emperor William, who is expected there today. The sultan of Morocco has sent a special embassy to Tangier to present Arab horses to the emperor. Great interest attaches to the expected arrival at Tangier of Raisuli, the brigand chief who captured Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley, and who will head the native cavalcade.

Investigation Falls Flat

Trenton, March 31.—The house of assembly resolved itself into a committee of the whole to investigate charges made in the Trenton True American that the passage of the Morris canal abandonment bill through the house had been attended with bribery. The investigation resulted in the failure to secure any casual evidence and the investigation was abandoned.

To Raise Tabard Inn Funds

Philadelphia, March 31.—The board of directors of the suspended Tabard Inn corporation have decided to issue bonds for the purpose of raising the necessary funds to pay off all outstanding claims. These bonds are to be secured by the stock of some of the subordinate companies.

Charges Against Judge Not Proved

Pensacola, Fla., March 31.—Judge Parkhill of the first judicial circuit, in deciding the disbarment case brought against ex-Chief Justice Liddon in the courts of Jackson county, exonerated Judge Liddon of all the 12 charges brought against him.

Money to Help Smash Trusts

Austin, March 31.—Bills have been prepared for introduction in both branches of the Texas legislature, appropriating $15,000 for use by the attorney general in the investigation of "trusts," particularly the beef and oil combinations.

Date of Extra Session

Washington, March 31.—Senator Burrows called on the president, seeking definite information regarding the extra session in the autumn. The president named Oct. 16 as the most probable date for the extra session.

JOB'S TEARS.

Seeds That Are Used For Food and Ornament In India.

A seed much used for ornament is that which bears the popular name of Job's tears. The old botanist Gerarde thus describes it: "Every graine resembleth the drop or tear that falleth from the eye." There are, however, now three or four well marked forms of this seed met with in India, which differ from each other in shape, color and degree of hardness and in the presence or absence of grooves or furrows along the length of the hardened involucer.

Dr. Watt of Calcutta thus enumerates them: "There are three types of shape—a long cylindrical or tubular, a normal pear shaped condition and a flattened spheroidal form. The cylindrical grain is always of a white color, smooth, polished, not furrowed, but constricted toward both extremities. This is collected for ornamental purposes only and not as an article for food. The pear shaped form varies in size and color, being pale and bluish white, gray, yellow or brown black. The flattened spheroidal kinds are often yellow or even pink.

"The two principal forms are: One almost round and either white or black. This form is sometimes, though less frequently, used for rosaries and ornamental purposes, but chiefly for food among the hill tribes of India. The second form is tubular, about half an inch long. This is extensively employed for decorative purposes, the dresses worn by the Karen women being often completely covered with embroidered designs of this grain."

FAIRLY TRAPPED.

The Clever Manner In Which Balzac Outwitted His Publisher.

No man knew the value of Balzac's writings better than the famous French novelist himself, a fact which he never failed to impress upon his publishers when terms were being discussed.

On one occasion, as Balzac sat smoking in a friendly fashion with a well known publisher, he remarked casually:

"Now, I want your candid opinion. Honestly, do you believe that I have as much talent as Frederic Soulie?"

"My dear Balzac, how can you ask?" answered his unsuspecting companion. "Why, you have twice his literary capacity."

"Well, as I consider his works immeasurably superior to anything of Eugene Sue's, I suppose I must have more talent than Sue too?"

"Of course you have."

"Twice as much, according to you. Well, I am glad. And now tell me honestly, as we are discussing literary merits, surely I am as good as Dumas?"

"Better—better."

"Thank goodness, our opinions coincide. And now, since my novels are worth twice as much as those of Frederic Soulie and Eugene Sue, I demand in common justice to be paid double what you pay them for theirs."

There was nothing to be said, says one of Balzac's biographers. The unfortunate publisher had been trapped and owned it.

Distress Signals at Sea.

When ships at sea are in want of provisions and starving the signal used is a pendant with a ball underneath. Should the signal be reversed—i. e., ball uppermost—it would signify that the vessel addressed was running into danger. If a ball should be hoisted superior to a large square flag it would denote that the cargo is on fire or ship leaking and requires immediate assistance. All "distant signals" are answered by hoisting a ball at ship's masthead or masthead of signal staff on shore and are used at all times when the colors of a ship's flag cannot be distinguished. The above are international signals.

Seaweeds.

Aside from their use as food by man and beast and as fertilizer in agriculture, seaweeds have numerous uses in the arts and sciences. From them are obtained soda, chlorides, sulphates, silicates, iodine, bromine and gelose. They have ever occupied an important place in the rude pharmacopoeia of the untutored savage as well as of the higher one of his more civilized brethren. Certain varieties are used in stuffing chairs and beds. They are especially suitable for the latter purpose, as their aromatic smell is said to drive insects away.

Fish Scale Jewelry.

The scales of the sea drum are extensively used in the manufacture of the sprays of flowers and other articles of fancy work which are sold at seaside resorts under the name of "fish scale jewelry." They are large and silvery and so hard that it is necessary to remove them from the fish with an axe or hatchet. The scales of sheepshead, tarpon, channel bass, etc., are also used for this purpose at times.

Sensible.

She—I suppose you would have me believe I am the first woman you ever loved? He—Not at all. I've loved scores of women, but you are the last one I have fallen in love with. She—Very well, then I'll say "Yes." As long as I am the last one you have loved we'll get along all right.—Boston Transcript.

Sure.

Mrs. Bunn—So your servant ran off. Don't you think she'll regret it? Mrs. Hunn—Yes, because my husband ran with her.—Manchester (N. H.) Mirror and American.

Only as we love can we work beautifully, harmoniously, courageously. Courage comes with love; it is love alone that makes tasks easy and fingers fly fast.—W. J. Colville.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Miss B. A. Hayden has accepted a position in a Boston office.

The cruiser Des Moines has sailed from Pensacola for St. Josephs bay.

Rev. F. W. Pratt and family leave today for their new home at Hopedale, Mass.

A number of people are busy having bonfires this week—a sure sign of spring.

It is reported that one or two big real estate transfer deals will be consumated this week.

Considerable water escaped from the hydrant on South street, near Cain's corner on Thursday.

John McKenzie, of Claremont avenue is having a small addition built onto the rear of his store.

Today is the City Treasurer's busy day. Pay of city officials, State aid, soldiers' relief, etc., being paid.

It surely must be spring for George Morton was seen in City Square Thursday wearing a white straw hat.

Frank W. Crane has had plans made for a new house which he will erect on Avon way, Presidents hill, for his own occupancy.

There was a rehearsal held at Bethany chapel, Thursday evening, for a concert to be given soon under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Page.

It was the Fore River House on South street, from which the officers took a drunk last Sunday morning, and not the Rhode Island House as stated.

Dr. Frederick J. Peirce who has been confined to his home for some days with tonsilitis is on the road to recovery and will be able to be out next week.

The High school concert this evening will include several choruses by pupils under the direction of Mr. E. Landis Snyder, orchestral numbers, and other instrumental music.

A large automobile-house is being built for J. C. Frazer of Beach street, Wollaston, and it is rumored that a fine touring car will be forthcoming as soon as the house is completed.

An opportunity for a bargain will be offered tomorrow at the auction sale of the estate formerly occupied by A. G. Durgin on Woodward avenue. House lots and furniture will also be sold.

The date of the Wollaston Yacht club minstrel show has been changed to Wednesday, April 26. Rehearsals are being held each Tuesday and Friday evening, and the indications are that there will be a rousing chorus, some crack-a-jack end men, and in Auctioneer J. J. Henry an interlocutor who is A No. 1.

The Boston Herald announces to teachers and pupils that the option of transferring scattering votes expires on Saturday, April 1. If Coddington school pupils, now in the contest, unite on the leading pupil of their school, and transfer their votes to him today, he may be one of the ten prize winners in the district. Even then the chances are not the best.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

CHAPTER XIX—(Continued.)

"Because I knew Mrs. Jersey very well, and, as I told you long since, I was once a boarder here. One day she let slip that she had some one in her power, and would leave the evidence of that power behind her so that her niece might benefit. I told this to Lord Derrington. He insisted that I should try to discover the assassin so as to get that confession, which compromises him, back again. To spur me on he has promised me a reward of a thousand pounds should I obtain the confession and the conviction of the assassin. As I want money to marry Lola, I am doing my best. I came to live here for that purpose. Lord Derrington talking of my visit to the house on the night of the crime would have jeopardized my plans, therefore I was obliged—as you say—to threaten him so as to make him keep silent. So far, do you blame me, Mr. Brendon?"

"No," replied George, after some thought, "the end justifies the means. But you might have adopted less rascally means."

"I have not adopted any. I have not asked Lord Derrington for money, so I am not a blackmailer; nor do I intend to claim from him anything but what is justly mine."

"And what is justly yours, if you please?"

"The reward of £1,000 for the discovery of the assassin."

"Oh! Have you learned who killed her?"

"Not yet, but I may learn. At present I confess I am in fault."

George pondered a little. So far Bawdsey spoke frankly enough, but he could not help mistrusting him. However, since the man was in the telling vein, he thought it best to betray no doubts lest Bawdsey should turn rusty. "Well, the discovery is in your hands," he said, "and I sincerely trust you will gain that thousand pounds. I am as unwilling as my grandfather that Mrs. Jersey's connection with this unfortunate business should become public. I am perfectly convinced that the person who took that confession stabbed the unfortunate woman."

"Do you think so?" asked Bawdsey, stealing a glance at the newspaper.

George nodded. "The confession was written. I learned that much from Margery. Mrs. Jersey told her it was a story. Well, as the confession was not found among Mrs. Jersey's papers when she died, it must have been taken by some one. But I can't think what interest such a thing can have had for any one unless"—

"Unless what, Mr. Brendon?"

"Unless it contained the name of the person who assassinated my father."

"How could Mrs. Jersey know that?"

"She was at San Remo when my father was killed; she loved him and she used to follow him. How I learned these things, Bawdsey, does not matter. But it is just possible that Mrs. Jersey—or Eliza Stokes as she was then—might have some knowledge of who committed the crime. If that was set down in her confession (as is highly probable), I can quite understand that the original assassin killed her to gain a dangerous document such as it undoubtedly was."

"Then you think that the assassin of your father was also the assassin of Mrs. Jersey?"

"I fancy so, as I can explain the disappearance of the confession in no other way. And if I remember rightly, Bawdsey, it was you who said that the San Remo crime was connected with the one committed in this house."

"I did say so," replied Bawdsey thoughtfully. He pondered for a few minutes and then looked up briskly. "Well, Mr. Brendon, that point cannot be settled without proof, and there is no use our wasting time in indulging in vain speculations. Let me tell you about the night I went to see Mrs. Jersey."

"Go on," said Brendon, crossing his legs. "I am all attention."

"I knew before your grandfather came to see me that you were about to pass the night here. Lola told me."

"Yes, I was foolish enough to tell her; though, to be sure, I had no great reason to conceal my visit to Train. I never knew that a murder would take place. So Lola told you?"

Bawdsey nodded. "She did. But I never intended to bother about the matter, as I did not think there was anything in your visit. But Lord Derrington came and put a different complexion on the affair. It was his belief that you intended to force Mrs. Jersey into confessing."

"I came to appeal to her," said Brendon dryly. "There was no thought of forcing in my mind."

"Lord Derrington judged you by himself and thought there might be. I rather agreed with him. Then, knowing his temper, I fancied if he went to see Mrs. Jersey there would be a row and a scandal, and I did not want that to happen. I was making a very good thing out of Lord Derrington," admitted Bawdsey frankly, "and if a scandal had taken place my occupation would have been gone. I therefore determined to drug him and to go myself."

"But why in his coat?"

"I thought that Mrs. Jersey might not admit me. I feared lest she should order me out of the house unless I could gain time by being mistaken for Lord Derrington. I drugged the old gentleman, and then, taking his coat and the latchkey, I went to see Mrs. Jersey."

"At what time were you there?"

"Some time before 12. I cannot say for certain. Well, Mr. Brendon, I let myself in with the latchkey, and I found the house by the red light over the door. In former years it had been my custom to guide myself in that way. I told Lola so."

"Why did you tell her that?"

"Oh, she knew that you were going late to the house and made a fuss about the chance of your being lost in the fog. I said that probably Train would tell you of the red light and that you could guide yourself by that."

"Humph! Lola was always unnecessarily kind," said George. "Well?"

"Well, I closed the door softly and went into the sitting room."

"You knew where that was?"

"Of course. Don't I tell you I once lived in this house? I entered the sitting room. The lamp was burning, and Mrs. Jersey was seated at the table." Bawdsey shuddered. "There is no need to tell you more. I left the room at once, for the sight horrified me."

"Why did you pause in the hall?"

"I thought I heard a footstep on the stairs, and the shock gave me one of my fits—the fear of open spaces, you know. How did you come to learn that I paused in the hall?"

"Because I had come down the stairs to see who was with Mrs. Jersey."

"Ah! Then it must have been your footstep I heard," said the detective. "Well, I soon recovered and left the house."

"What about the stiletto?"

"It was lying on the floor near the table. I saw it glittering in the lamplight. As there was blood on it and I saw the wound I knew that Mrs. Jersey had been killed by it. I slipped it into my pocket with a vague idea that thereby I might trace the assassin."

"Did you leave it purposely in the coat?"

"No," said Bawdsey frankly. "I did not. I was so moved and—as a woman would say—flustered by the death that I forgot all about it. Lord Derrington woke up and went home. I said nothing about the murder to him at the time. I had not the nerve. It was only after he departed that I remembered the stiletto. I thought he might make a row and accuse me of the crime. So that is all I can tell you,

"I never meant you to see that!"

Mr. Brendon, and you will see that I am not such a bad man as you try to make out."

"Oh, you have spoken clearly enough," said George. Then, after a pause: "Yes, I think you are honest, so far as I can judge. I trust you."

Bawdsey looked delighted. "Will you have a glass of wine with me to show that?" he asked, rising.

"On the Arab principle of bread and salt?" said Brendon. "Certainly."

Bawdsey nodded in a pleased manner and went to his sideboard at the end of the room. George mechanically took up the newspaper. His eyes were caught by a cross heading, "Strange Affair In an Essex Church," and by the words "destruction of the registers." Just as he was about to glance over the article, never thinking what it meant to him, Bawdsey returned with the wine and two glasses. He uttered an exclamation of dismay when he saw the paper in George's hand.

"Hang it, I never meant you to see that!" he said.

"Why not?" replied George. "Is it this news about a lady trying to tear the registers?" He started and looked at Bawdsey, who was uneasy and pale. "It's Lola!" said George.

"No, and yet—why should you not know? I believe it is Lola, though no name is mentioned."

George picked up the paper again and read rapidly. No name was mentioned, as it said that the strange lady who had been arrested refused to give any name. It seemed that she went to Wargrove church and asked to see the registers for a certain year—the registers of marriage. The sexton took the fee and showed the books. Then it appeared that the strange lady searched for an hour. The sexton left the vestry for a few minutes. When he returned he saw that she had torn a page out of the book. Being taken by surprise, she had tried to conceal her theft, but the sexton seized her, rescued the torn page and called for assistance. The end of it was that the strange lady—who was described as having a foreign air—was arrested and placed in prison. "It is Lola!" said George breathlessly.

"Yes," assented Bawdsey, also pale. "She evidently tried to destroy the evidence of your mother's marriage."

George gave a cry. "Wargrove," he said, "Wargrove in Essex. It was in the parish church that the marriage took place. And Lola knew—Lola"—He paused. The eyes of the two men met.

A BAMBOO LAND.

Wide Usefulness of This Wonderful Plant In China.

A man can sit in a bamboo house, under a bamboo roof, on a bamboo chair, at a bamboo table, with his feet resting on a bamboo footstool, with a bamboo hat on his head and bamboo sandals on his feet. He can at the same time hold in one hand a bamboo bowl, in the other bamboo chopsticks and eat bamboo sprouts.

When through with his meal, which has been cooked over a bamboo fire, the table may be washed with a bamboo cloth, and he can fan himself with a bamboo fan and take a siesta on a bamboo bed, lying on a bamboo mat, with his head resting on a bamboo pillow. His child might be lying in a bamboo cradle, playing with a bamboo toy.

On rising, he could smoke a bamboo pipe and, taking a bamboo pen, write a letter on bamboo paper or carry his articles in bamboo baskets suspended from a bamboo pole, with a bamboo umbrella over his head. He might then take a walk over a bamboo suspension bridge, drink water out of a bamboo ladle and scrape himself with a bamboo sweat scraper (handkerchief). The bamboo ingenuity and persistency have produced (bamboo) joint results which exhibit the potentialities and possibilities of the Chinese people.

WISDOM OF CHILDREN.

Bright Comments That Drop From the Lips of Juveniles.

What could be more simple or more splendidly direct as a compliment to a pretty girl than the small boy's admiring question, "Are your eyes new ones?" No "grownup" person could have thought of that. "A ruminating animal is one that chews her cubs"—there might surely be less thoughtful definitions. As for definitions, no dictionary has ever given anything better than "a movable feast—a picnic."

There is a delightful note of the night nursery in the beginning of a girl's essay on boys, "The boy is not an animal, but they can be heard to a considerable distance," equaled perhaps in its splendid simplicity by the boy's written criticism to the effect that "most girls are very shy and angry." It is the directness of the description which compels attention in vivid comments such as, "Just before it killed me the tooth came out," and nothing surely could be more Johnsonian in its absolute truth than the answer given to the painstaking schoolmaster trying to make the class understand what might be meant by the subversive word "antipodes." "If I bored a hole right through the earth till I came out at the other side where should I be?" "Off yer 'ead! You can't do it!"—London Spectator.

THE COTTON GIN.

How Eli Whitney, Its Inventor, Got His Great Idea.

Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin, got the germ of his great idea from seeing through the interstices of a hut an old negro work a hand saw among the freshly picked cotton stored within.

The teeth of the saw tore the lint from the seed easily and quickly, and young Whitney (he was barely thirteen at the time) realized at once that a machine working a number of similar saws simultaneously would revolutionize the cotton growing industry.

He said nothing to anybody, but set to work building models and experimenting. His difficulties were enormous, for he not only had to make his own wheels, cogs, etc., but he had also first to forge his own tools and even to manufacture the paint wherewith to color his many plans and drawings.

But he succeeded in the end, and, though the outbreak of war and other hindrances prevented the invention from being actually placed upon the market until many years afterward, the first complete cotton gin ever constructed was built from those very models and plans and with scarcely a single alteration.

A Webster Retort.

It is related of Mr. Webster that when he was secretary of state he was one day reading at a cabinet meeting a draft of a message he had written for the president to transmit to congress. As he went on he was constantly interrupted by one of the members with suggestions until, losing patience, he turned to him and said, "Sir, you might as well expect seven hens to lay one egg as seven men to construct one message."

Method In Her Decision.

Higgins—My wife says if I should die she would remain a widow until death. Of course she might change her mind, but it is sort of consoling just the same. Jinks—Evidently your wife thinks there is no other man in the world like you. Higgins—On the contrary, she's afraid there is and that she'd get him.—Boston Transcript.

Hitting the Judge.

Justice—You say that you did not know you were violating the law. Ah, but, my dear sir, ignorance of the law is no excuse to any man. Prisoner—That's rather rough on both of us, ain't it, your honor? Clerk—Order in the court!

At the Sewing Circle.

"Men and women are the hooks and eyes of society," remarked Miss Smith.

"And they are constantly becoming unfastened," naively put in the divorcee.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Hard One For Mamma.

Charley (who thinks)—Say, mamma, if we're made of dust, why don't we get muddy when we drink?—Puck.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.
